I would burn them together]Heb. I will burn her, or, it, together; which becauſe it cannot here be underſtood ſtrictly of burning up the vineyard it ſelf, as a ground altogether forlorn, Heb. 6. 8. (notwithſtanding what is ſaid, Lam. 4. 11.) muſt of neceſſity be meant, of burning thoſe briers and thorns out of it; and may well, therefore be

be rendred, I will burn them out of it; for the preposition is, in ſuch manner, oft implyed, either in the verb, or in the pronoun, or affixe: ſo Pſalm. 53. 5. encamping me, for encamping againſt me; dwell thee, for dwell with thee, Pſalm 5. 4. come us, for come to us, ch. 28. 15. ſo Pſalm 65. 5. where the ſame particle is neceſſarily ſupplyed, that is here wanting; though in a diverſe uſe, then here.

V. 5. Or, let him take hold of my ſtrength, that he may make peace with me, and he ſhall make peace with me] Some read the words, Or, who will, or can grappel with my ſtrength? let him make peace with me, &c. as if he had ſaid, who is able to fray mine hand, by laying hold on mine arm, or can hope to make his part good againſt me? Job 9. 4, 12, 13. Dan. 4. 35. 1 Cor. 10. 22. and it is their wiſeſt courſe, therefore, to make their peace with me, Job 11. 13.& 22. 21. The interrogative, ſupplyed from the words before-going, the future, for the potential: as 2. 6. 18. Others, Or, he ſhall take hold of my ſtrength, that he may make peace with me, that he may, I ſay, make peace with me] under ſtanding it, as in allusion to one who perceiving ſome offended perſon ready to ſmite him, or give fire upon him, in an humble and ſubmiſſive manner, layeth hold on his arm, and by earneſt ſuit, with prayers and teares, endeavoureth to ſtay him from ſmiting, or diſcharging on him, and by allaying of his wrath, to make his peace with him. See Exod. 32. 6. Hoſ. 12, 4. Jon. 3. 8-10. as if he had ſaid, So will I proceed againſt ſuch as thus provoke me; unleſſe by humbling of themſelves, and ſeeking timely to me, they make their peace with me, and ſo prevent it, Zeph. 2. 1, 2. Luk. 14. 32. a defect of the finitive particle that: as ch. 5. 11.& 10. 2. Hoſ. 1. 6. and the latter branch, for the greater emphaſis, repeated: as chap. 26. 3. Cant. 6. 13.

V. 6. He ſhall cauſe them, that come to Jacob, to take root, Iſrael ſhall bloſſome and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit] The Prophet returns again to theſe gracious promiſes of God, to be made good to his people; either of his reſtitution of them, or upon, and by means of his judgments executed upon the wicked, among them; their taking deeper root, thriving better, and growing ſo abundantly fruitful, that their fruit ſhould fill the whole world.

He ſhall cauſe them, that come to Jacob, to take root] Or as ſome others, He ſhall cauſe thoſe of Jacob that come to take root, Or, as ſome other again, He ſhall cauſe them that come from Jacob, to take root. Or, Jacob ſhall take root in his Poſterity. The firſt, underſtanding the text of Jacobs Proſelytes, chap. 2. 3.& 56. 3. 8. The ſecond, of thoſe that return from captivity, v. 13. chap. 35. 10. The third and fourth, of their Poſterity, chap. 44. 3, 4.& 48. 19. But the words, eſpecially as they ly in the original, will not well bear any of theſe verſions. The beſt Interpreters concurring therein with the Jewiſh Commenters, thus read them; Hereafter, or, in times coming, ſhall Jacob's root, or take root, or, to knit them, the more aptly to the former diſcourſe; That in time coming Jacob may take root: as an effect of Gods purging of his Vineyard, his Church, from ſuch noxious plants as cumbred the ground, and hindred the growth and welfare of it. See chap. 4. 2, 4. of the uſual defect of the particle: ſee on v. 5.

them that come]Heb. in the coming; to wit, days, or times: as, Behold the days coming, Jer. 30. 3. 8. 31. 27, 31, 38. a defect of the particle; as in this very phraſe, Eccl. 2. 16.

he ſhall cauſe thoſe that come to Jacob, to take root;] to wit, God, Pſal. 80. 9. thou madeſt it to take root; or, taking it indefinitely, he, or, they ſhall be rooted, as Jer. 12. 2. ſo ver. 3. leſt he hurt it, or, Jacob ſhall take root, as Job 5. 3. I have ſeen the fooliſh taking root, where the word is the ſame, and in the ſame form; See Chapter 37. 31.

Iſrael ſhall bloſſome and bud] So Chap. 35. 1, 2.& 66. 14. of the word, See Chap. 5. 24.& 17. 11. Iſrael, and Jacob, are here the ſame: to wit, the Poſterity of Jacob, called alſo Iſrael, as Chap. 14. 1.

and fill the face of the world with fruit] Heb. and they ſhall fill, to wit, the Poſterity of Jacob; either naturally deſcended from him, or by profeſſion of faith adjoyned to him. Pſal. 22. 6. Rom. 9. 6. Gal. 6. 16. the face of the world; the ſurface of the habitable part of it. See chap. 13. 11.& 14. 21.& 25. 17 they ſhall be diſperſed, and enlarge themſelves through all parts of the world, fulfilled in the converts of the Gentiles, in all places by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, called here, fruit, by a metaphor taken from the fruit, or, revenue of the field, Deut. 32. 13. 1 Zek. 36. 30. See Joh. 15. 16. Col. 1. 6. See alſo, ch. 37. 31. Job 14. 7. 9.

V. 7. Hath he ſmitten him, as he ſmote thoſe that ſmote him] Another argument of Gods mercy to his people, albeit he did, and had, ſometime, ſeverely chaſtiſed them, yet doth he not therein deal ſo roughly and rigorouſly with them, as ſho doth uſually with their enmies, when he comes to take vengeance upon them.

as he ſmote thoſe that ſmote him?]Heb. according to the ſtroke of him that ſmote him, or, ſtruck him. as ch. 10. 26. him that ſmote, for, thoſe that ſmote. The word taken collectively: Such as God had made uſe of, as inſtruments, rods, and cudgels, for the chaſtiſing of his people, ch. 10. 5, 20, 24.

or, is he ſlain according to the ſlaughter of them, that were ſlain by him?]The ſame thing is, as oft, again, but in other terms, ſomewhat more emphatically, repeated.

or,] A defect of the disjunctive; as Job 6. 6. which yet here may well be ſpared.

is he ſlain] Or, hath he (that is, Iſrael, Gods people) been ſlain. That it may run in the ſame tenour, with the former branch.

according to the ſlaughter of them] As he ſlew, or, hath ſlain them, or, as they have been ſlain, or, ſlaughtered. Heb. his ſlain, or, his ſlaughtered ones, as, her ſlain, ch. 26. 21. Theſe ſlain, all agree to be of the enemies of God, and his people: but whoſe ſlain they are ſaid to be, is queſtioned. Some ſay, the ſlain of the Leviathan, of the King of Babylon, before ſpoken of, not ſlain by him, but belonging to him. The Hebrew Commenters, the ſlain of him, that is, of God that ſlew them; as is ſaid, verſe. 1. Or, of him, that is, of Iſrael; not because ſlain by them, but becauſe ſlain for them, for the wrongs that they did them. I ſuppoſe it may well be read, as thoſe (that is, thoſe other, before mentioned,) ſlain by him. And the interrogative implies a more vehement negative, as if he had ſaid; God hath in no wiſe, ſo either ſmote, or ſlain his people, as he hath ſmote, and ſlain thoſe other, his, and their enemies, chap. 26. 14. verſ. 1. The verſion of many, who render this latter branch, Hath he been ſlain, as they have been ſlain, that ſlew him; the particle, being paſſive, will not admit. But thoſe ſwerve further from the ſcope of the Prophet, that turn over all this to the Leviathan, above mentioned, as if the Prophet ſhould ſay, Hath he ſmitten him, (to wit, the Leviathan) as one ſmiting himſelf? as, ſaith he, God doth his people himſelf, feeling what on them he inflicts: Or, hath he ſlain him, as he ſlayeth his own ſlain? That is, his people, his friends. Prov. 27. 6. Hoſ. 6. 2, 3. Zach. 13. 3, 6. But this is all clean beſides the cuſhion.

V. 8. In meaſure, when it ſhooteth forth, thou wilt debate with it: he ſtayeth his rough wind, in the day of the Eaſt-wind] The Prophet having affirmed, that God in his chaſtiſing of his people, dealeth otherwiſe with them, then he is wont to do with others, whom he hath not the like reſpect, or relation unto; he now proceeds more diſtinctly, to ſhew, wherein the difference conſiſteth, between Gods dealing with the one, and with the other. One point of difference, here laid down, is, that God dealeth in way of diſcretion, and in much moderation with his, Jer. 10. 24.& 30. 11. meting out their ſufferings in a due proportion, like thoſe that do things exactly, by weight and meaſure; Phyſitians, eſpecially, in preſcribing pills, or potions to their patients, having a reſpect, as well to the ability of the patient, as to the nature and quality of the diſeaſe: not according to the greatneſs of his power, and his wrath anſwerable thereunto, Job 23. 6.& 37. 23. Pſal. 78. 38.& 90. 11. or to the hainouſneſs of their ſin, Exr. 9. 13. Job 11. 6. Pſa. 103. 10. Lam. 3. 22. but according to the ability of the chaſtiſed, to bear that which is inflicted, Pſalm 103. 13, 14. Cor. 10. 13. Whereas in dealing with the other, he is nothing ſo cautious; but proceeds, as thoſe that pour out, or lay on, without regard of ſtint or meaſure, Chap. 65 6, 7. Ier. 10. 25. See Ioh. 3. 34. He dealeth with the one, as a Father, in correcting his children when they have done amiſs, regarding their weakneſs, as well as their wantonneſs; and laying leſs on the more infirm, though all alike faulty, Pſal. 103. 13. Mal. 3. 17. With other his enemies, as a Judg with delinquents, who proceeding, according to the ſtrict rule of Law and Juſtice, regardeth not the perſon of the offender, but his offence only, and according thereunto, diſpenſeth juſtice, equally unto all alike delinquent, though not alike able to ſuſtain what their offence calls for, chap. 59. 18. and 65. 6, 7.

in meaſure]The word, here uſed, is derived from one, that ſignifies a certain meaſure, one of the leſſer ſort of thoſe that they uſed, in meaſuring out of drie wares, meal, grain, or the like, and contained, as moſt ſuppoſe, the third part of an Epha, (and yet why ſhould they then ſay, three fears, Gen 18. 6. the meaſure ſeems, being the ordinary rate of one batch, Mat. 13. 33. and not rather in one term, an Epha,) that is, according to the received eſtimation of the Jewiſh Epha, much about, but ſome what above, our peck. Of it, ſee 1 Sam. 25. 18. 1 King. 18. 32. 2 King. 7. 1, 16, 18. and in the places before mentioned. The word is a duplicate, as many other of the like ſtamp in that language: which moſt of the Jewiſh maſters would have to be a Noun, as if it ſhould be ſaid, By peck-peck, that is, delivering out, not the whole buſhel, or ſtrike together, but by peck after peck, as a man doth in meting out meal, or grain, out of a great Heap, or Tun, into veſſels of a ſmaller ſize. Some make it a verb, with a Pronoun affixed to it, and render the text, in meaſuring, as it were, by the peck out to it; as afterward, in ſending out of it. The former ſeems the better, and that the rather, becauſe there wants that point in the belly of the laſt letter, which the Pronoun wontedly hath. The word, as many other in this Prophet, hath no mate.

when it ſhooteth forth] The word, in the original, is very ambiguous. That which hath bred much diverſity, both of verſion, and interpretations, amongſt thoſe that write upon the place. Some, In due meaſure, uſing the ſword wilt thou debate it. Becauſe a word uſed for a ſword, ſo called of putting it up, or ſe-ſwing it out, comes neer to the term here uſed, 2 Chr. 23. 10. Neh. 4. 17. Ioel 2. 8. Others, in meaſure, with her plantations doſt thou contend: Becauſe of thoſe things which the ground it ſelf, as plants growing on it, ſends out, the like word is alſo uſed, Nehem. 3. 15. Chapter 16. 8. Eſt. 17. 6, 7. As if the meaning were, that God in chaſtiſing, his people, did rather smite them, in the fruits of the field, then in their persons, Joel 1.4. Amos 4.6-9. but this is not found. Others, In her shooting forth; that is, when the grows luxuriant, he pruneth her, but warily, as the husbandman doth his vines, of his fruit-trees; to as not, either to hurt the heart, or kill the root of the plant, Joh. 15.2. Others, in sending (that is, inflicting judgments) upon her; as 2 Sam. 24.15 Ezek. 14.19,21. The preposition included in the verb, or affix: as ver. 4. And in the very next word, debate it, or contend with it, for, debate, or, contend with it. The like whereunto see, Deut. 33.8. Job 10.2. chap. 49.25. Others, lastly, In casting, dismissing, &c. sending her out; as the word, most properly, and usually signifies. Which I conceive to be the genuine sense of the place. The gender of the pronoun, altered here, from the masculine to the feminine; because in the fore-going verse, was relation had to the people, vers. 6. In this to the land, or vineyard, vers. 2. And some suppose an allusion here to a Father, who displeased with his son, though he purpose not to disinherit, or cast him utterly off, yet either excludes him, for a time, from his prefence, as David did Absolom, 2 Sam. 14.24. or sends him out into the country, and there holds him to hard meat, and keeps him in servile employments, until he have made his peace with him, Jerem. 2.14. Others to an husband, who for ill carriage, or misdemeanure, dismisseth his wife for a time, but with a purpose to receive and entertain her again: As God having the like affection and disposition towards his people, even then when he seemed to cast them off, as no longer his, and to have given them a peremptory bill of divorce, Pf. 44.9. ch. 50.1. Jer. 3.1-14. It is most probable, that the Prophet had an eye unto Gods sending, or casting them out into captivity, which though the heaviest affliction that ever he exercised his people with, was yet tempered with mercy towards them, towards their, at least, offspring, as we have seen, Jer. 15.11.& 24.5. Lam. 3.22. Ezek. 11.16. They run wide still, both Jews and Christian Commenters, that expound this passage, also, of Gods dealings in exact rigour of justice, according to their demerits, or in way of retaliation, measure for measure, with the enemies of his people, Ier. 50.15. Rev. 16.5,6.& 18.6,7.

thou wilt debate with it] Or, dost, or didst thou (for he seems to speak of what was past) debate with it; to wit, by thy judgments; as Amos 7.4.

he stayeth his rough wind, in the day of the East-wind] Most Interpreters apply this also, to Gods proceedings with his people. The first word is ambiguous, and maketh the sense the more uncertain. Some taking it in his most usual sense of meditating, render it, when in his Spirit, he meditateth, or, minderh, hareth, or, rough things toward them. Others, eying another use of the word, whereby it signifies, sometime, to make a noise, chap. 8.20. & 31.4.& 38.11.& 59.11. when he whistleth, or, though he blow with his stiff gale of wind. Others, following a third notion of the word, whereby it is used, for to remove, or, take away, 2 Sam. 20.12. Prov. 25.4,5. (and some of the Jewish Commenters here so take it) when he (that is, the enemy, or God himself by the enemy) took her away with that his stiff sor, bostes ous wind. Or, when with such a tempestuous form, she was born, or carried away into captivity, Jer. 13.24.& 18.17. Ezek. 5.2,12. (for the Text so read, would be left taken indefinitely, as the like, vers. 3.) And they knit this latter clause thus to the former; which yet others sever, and make this latter an entire sentence, by it self. Some, whom our version followeth, applying it to Gods people, he stayeth, or refraineth his rough wind; that is, in fanning his people, he allayeth and slackens the fiercnesse and boisterousnesse of it, that it may not carry all away before it, Pfal. 78.38. he did not raise up all his wrath before chap. 48.9. Others understanding it, of the enemies of Gods people, render the words with an adversative prefixed; as Pf. 119.23. Prov. 11.23. but, or, whereas, with a rough wind he carrieth them away; the sweepeth them away, to their utter destruction, with a stiff blaft of some tempestuous wind, that rents or tears up trees by the roots; such as pafled by Elias, 1 King. 19.12. and that carries all before it, as that did the locusts in Egypt, Exod. 10.19. (alluded to, Joel 2.20.) which with a stiff blaft of wind, he blew into the red Sea, and there drowned them, as he did Pharao also after them, with the like, and all his forces, Exod. 15.10. See Job 27.20,21. ch. 41.15,16. Ier. 49.36. A defect of the pronoun them; as Prov. 8.13, and this laft I incline to.

in the day of the East-wind] At such time as the East-wind blow-eth; noted for a blasting, boisterous, & blustring wind, in those parts, Gen. 41.6,23. Pfalm 48.7. Ezek. 17.10.& 19.12.& 27.26. Heb. Eastern, for, Eastern wind: as standing, for, standing corn, chap. 17.5.

V.9. By this therefore, shall the iniquity of Jacob be purged; and this is all the fruit, to take away his sin:] Another difference between Gods dealings in this kind with his people, and with those other. All that he doth herein to his people, is not to destroy them, but to chastise them for what they have done formerly amiss, and for the future, to reform them; to wean, and withdraw them from their sins, that they may not perish by them, ch. 1.25.& 4.4.& 48.10. Pro. 21.30. Ezek. 18.31.& 33.11. Dan. 11.35. Mal. 3.3. 1 Cor. 11.32. Heb. 12.9,10.

By this shall the iniquity of Jacob be purged] Or, Hereby is, or, hath the iniquity of Jacob (that is, of Gods people; as v.6.) been done away (as ch. 28.18.) or, expiated, as Num. 35.33. Prov. 16.6. chap. 6.7.& 22. 24. the guilt of it is remitted, and Gods paternall indignation and displeasure satisfied, and pacified, upon their sincere repentance, and serious humiliation, thereby procured, and produced in them, Job 5. 17, 18.& 33.16-24. chap. 26.8, 9, 16-18. & 40.2.& 42.25. and 54. 8, 9.

all the fruit] All the fruit thereof, a defect of the pronoun as Deut. 25.12. ch. 3.6, 15.& 30.27. All the end that God aimeth at, in afflicting his people; to wit, their amendment, fruit being the end, for which men plant, set and sow, ch. 5.2. 2 Tim. 2.6. Heb. 6.7. Jam. 5.7. and the benefit that thence redoundeth to Gods people: the fruit, that, they thereby reap and receive; and in regard whereof, they are thereby in themselves also bettered, Pf. 94.12.& 119.67,71. Heb. 12.10,11.

to take away his sin:] Or, taking away: that he may taking away, take away: as chap. 5.5. that he, that is, God, may utterly take away, may throughly purge sin out of them, Job 33.17,18. chap. 1.25.& 28.10. a two-fold defect, both of the verb finite; as ch. 59.13. and of the finitive particle; as ver. 5. or as others render it, when he shall have taken away his sin. When he, to wit, Gods people, shall have abandoned the practice of those sins, that formerly they had fallen into; a want of the adverb of time; as chap. 17.6.& 26.10. or, taking it indefinitely, as ver. 3. when his sin shall be abandoned; sin, fay they, that is, the subject matter, means, and instruments of his Sin; mentioned in the next branch: as, Your sin, for, the calf wherein ye sinned, Deut. 9.21. but we need not depart from the proper sense of the word; the words relate to the former branch, what was termed iniquity there, is sin here: as Pfal. 51. so only there seems intended a removal of it, in regard of guilt and wrath, by free remission, on Gods part; here an abandoning of it, by sincere repentance, and serious reformation on mans part, Ezek. 6.9.& 36.31.

when he maketh all the stones of the altar, as chalk stones, that are beaten in sunder] When he shall have made the sincerity of his repentance (without which no reconcilement of God and man, ch. 59. 2.) to appear, by abandoning his idols, together with the instruments and monuments of his former idolatries, ch. 30.22. Deut. 7.5.& 12. 2,3. 2 King. 18.4.& 23.4-20:

all the stones of the altar] Or, all his, or, their, altar stones; for there is no particular altar designed; but the word without any particle prefixed, taken collectively: the stones, whereof their altars were made, whereon they sacrificed to their idols, ch. 65.3. a defect of the pronoun: as ch. 13.22. Ier. 5.45.

chalk-stones] Heb. stones of chalk, or lime; for so the word properly signifies: (though no where else found in the Hebrew text of the Old Testament; but another used for it, ch. 33.12.) as appears both by the word of pargeting, and a pargeter, among the Talmudists, thence deduced; and by the Syriack, in Daniel, where it is used in the Syriack form, for the pargeting or plaster of the wall, Dan. 5.5. as he mos thosen broken in pieces; that is, as chalk-stones, broken in pieces to make lime, wherewith to parget. So Ch. 24.10. and the participle is in such a form, not else-where read, as implies a breaking to pieces, as such stones, for such uses, are wont. So Deut. 9.21. 2 King. 23.12.

the groves and images shall not stand up] These words are so joyned to the former in our version, as if the meaning were, that when the altars should be demolished, then the groves and images should not stand up. Which yeelds a sense, that seems but flat: they would rather be rendred with fupply of a copulative: as chap. 26.17. and the groves and images, or sun-images: stand not: as Pfal. 1.5. Nah. 1.6. but are likewise beaten and broken down, or abide not: as Gen. 45. 1. or, continue not: as Job. 15.29. but are also utterly abandoned, are demolisht, and abolisht. Of these groves and sun-images, see on chap. 17.8.

V.10. Yet the defenced city shall be desolate; and the habitation forsaken, and left like a wilderneſſe] This verse, and the next, are by divers diverfly taken. Some, and so the Jewish Commenters themselves, expound them; of Gods dealing with Israel, his own people. Others, rather, of his proceedings against his and their enemies; because he speaketh, in the close of it, of judgment, without any allay of mercy: as Jam. 2.13. which if it be applyed, therefore, unto Gods people, must be understood of, and restrained unto, those obstinate ones among them; of which before, ver. 4. See Deut. 29. 18-21.

Yet] As ch. 9.4.or, But: as ch. 2.6. as either foretelling what should be: de Gods people, before they were thus reformed: or, as passing to the relation of Gods dealing with others in a rougher manner, then with them: as ver. 7.

the defenced city] Jerusalem, say Some: Samaria, say others: and others, again, Babylon; or as those of either judgment, that take the words more largely, the strongeſt cities, as well in Iudah, as in Israel, Samaria, and Ierusalem, themselves not excepted, 2 King. 17.5. Ier. 34.1.or, the strongest cities of Gods enemies, Babylon, and others of them, ch. 24.10.& 25.12.& 26.5,6. the word being collectively understood, their defenced cities, and afterwards, their habitations: as Ier. 50.45.

desolate] Heb. solitary; left alone: either all the Towns and Country about her being wasted and destroyed, ch. 1.8. or forsaken of those that formerly replenished her, and whose company and presence in times past she enjoyed, Lam. 1.1.

the habitation] This some apply to the Sanctuary or Temple at Ierusalem Jerusalem; to which it seems applyed, by way of Prophecy, Exod. 15.2, 17. Jer. 31.23. Others conceive it spoken of the stately palaces, (the word being collectively used) of the city, or cities, before intended: ded: ed of Babylon, Jer. 50.45.50. more generally their habitations, as well without, as within their cities: for the word is very general, all, Job 5.8. Hol. 9.13. Yet some render it, their sheeps-coats. Which albeit, the word oft elsewhere seems to import, 2 Samu. 7.8. Chapter 65.10. Yet I conceive not to have place here. We read, indeed, in Scripture, of the habitations, or sheep-walks, if you please, rather then sheep-coats, of the wilderneſſe, that is, of the waſte, or the plain, where cattle use to graze, Pfal. 65.12. Joel 2.22. but because the places here intended are opposed to the wilderneſſe, or waſtes, I suppose, rather, such pleasant places to be here intended, (see Hol. 9.13. where the same word is used as either within their cities, or about their Countries were choicely planted, and charily kept for their pleasure and delight. See ch. 32.13. so that the meaning is, that their strongeſt places should be ruined, & the pleasantest defaced.

left as a wilderneſſe] ch. 6.11,12.& 32.14.& 64.10. Ezek. 36.4. Jer. 9.12.

there shall the calf feed, and there shall he ly down, and consume the branches thereof] Cattle shall feed, and lodge, and browze, where men now dwel, where houses now stand; threatned to Jerusalem, c. 32.13, 14. Ier. 26.18. Mic. 3.12.

feed, and ly down] Quietly, without restraint, or disturbance; all lying open, and none to chaſe away, or affright, Chapter 17.2.

consume the branches thereof] Browze upon the shrubs, that shall be there growing, when the cities and dwellings ruined have lien long waſte, chap. 32.14. or upon the pleasant plants, and choice slips, that their Orchards and Gardens had bin planted and furnished with within the City, Neh. 3 15. Cant. 2.5. Chap. 17.11. Some restrain it to the famous Babylonian Gardens; whereof see Diodore, lib. 2. ch. 10. and they may well come in among the rest. Howbeit, some expound it, of the persons of men; as it all sorts, from the greater boughs, resembling men of note and place, to the leſſer sprigs or spray, that is, the meaner sort of people should be exposed to destruction; as chap. 10.33,34. and others, that utter ruine is threatned to the State; compared to a tree, that is by baſils browzed upon, while it is green; and made fuel of, when it is fear. See Chapter 18.5,6. and of the word here used, Chapter 2.21. & 17.6. But I suppose, that these notions do not suit so well with the Prophets present discourse, describing the devaſtation of the places, rather then the destructions of the persons there inhabiting, save as the deportation or destruction of the one, is a means to produce the desolation of the other.

V.11. When the boughs thereof are withered, they shall be broken off, the women come, and set them on fire] The Prophet proceeds in the relation of the desolation and waſteneſs, that should befal the city, or cities, here intended.

the boughs thereof] Heb. Harveſt: as Pf. 80.11. the name harveſt, being common, as well to the plucking of trees, as to the cutting of corn. See ch. 17.11. and of some trees, no other harveſt is, then their boughs, Neh. 8.15.

they shall be broken] The verb is plural; the noun singular. Whence some render it, each one of them shall be broken; as chap. 26.19. none escape: but because the noun is masculine, and the verb feminine; and again, the noun of such a comprehensive notion, as admits not well, such a distributive as to say, every one of an harveſt, meaning, bear, bough, or fruit: Some, therefore, deeming the speech to be defective, and a word to be supplyed, fitting the verb, and found, ch. 18.5. read the words thus; the sprigs shall be broken: and this the rather is to be admitted, because the Prophet seems to speak, not of bought, decayed on the tree, and then becauſe grown fear, broken off, but of trees felled, or broken down, for the use of cattle, while yet green, the sprigs whereof, when they have barked them, growing fear, are eaſily snapped asunder: and as spray good for nothing else, are picked up for the fire.

the women come] Or, and women come. For there is no article in the text, the copulative supplyed: as ver. 10. Some find mysterious matter in the word women, to wit, that the enemies of Gods people should be so dejected, that they should be destroyed, even by a weak womans hand; as was Sisera by Jael, Iudg. 4.9,21. and Abimelech by the of woman Thebez, Iudg. 9.53,54. and Pyrrus, by a woman seeing her son in danger to be slain by him; and some bring it home to the Babylonians, subdved by the Medes formerly, deemed but an effeminate people: and somewhat in the Prophets may seem to found this way, Ier. 50.45. But the plain literall sense seems most agreeable to the Prophets mind; and the ordinary practice in all places, may inform us, that where boughes lept lye, till they be fear, unregarded, it is the usuall manner of women and children, to gather up the spray, either to make fire of, or to kindle fire with, Ier. 7.18.

set them on fire] Heb set it on fire: and here the former version, by way of distribution, may not do amiss, if, that is, each one, or any one of the sprigs, either bigger, or leſſe, as before.

set on fire] Or, on a light fire, such a light fire, as such light stuff is wont to produce; having oftentimes more light, then heat; more blaze then warmth, Eccl. 7.6. the word properly signifies to enlighten, or to make light, Pfal. 18.28. but because there is little difference between the two words in Hebrew of one and the same stock, that signifies light, the one, chap. 5.20. and fire, the other, chap. 44.16. yea the one is used, sometime, for the other: fire is put for light, chap. 50. 11. as light for fire, Mar. 14.54. and that light and fire commonly go together; and no looner is the fire kindled, but it presently gives light. Hence it is, that in Hebrew, the word that signifieth first, and properly, to lighten, or give light, is used also for to kindle, or set on fire, Mal. 1.10. The plain meaning of the place seems to be, that those places that had been before so curiously planted, and carefully fenced, that none might have accesse unto them, to touch ought there, should now lye open, for man and beast, chap. 5.5.& 7.25.& that which now grew there, whether leſt, of what had been formerly there planted, or had, since the land was over-run, sprung up of it self, should be so neglected, that it should be free for any, other beast, to browze on, while it was green, or people, to make fewel of, when it grew fear: an argument of extream waſte, and utter neglect.

for it is a people of no understanding] Heb. not a people of understandings; that is, not of any understanding; understandings, for any understanding: as chap 40.14. and as salvations, or deliverances, for any salvation, or deliverance, chap. 26.18. and, righteousneſſes, for any righteousneſſe, at all, Dan. 9.18. a people that hath no understanding at all, ch. 1.3. that understand nothing, take no notice of, not regard at all, either God himself, his dealings with them, and their duty to him; or ought that doth truly and really concern their own good, Deut. 32.6,28,29. Pfalm 82.5. Chap. 5.12. 13.& 42.18. 20,25.& 44.19. Jer. 4.22.& 5.4,5.& 8.7.& 10 8,14. The reason is here rendred, of Gods so severe proceeding against them, whether forrein Nations, or those among his own people; as the like also in the other places pointed to. See Hol. 4.14.

therefore he that made them, will have no mercy on them, and he that formed them, will shew them no favour] A heavy close, and a sad sentence; which therefore might seem to confirm the judgment of them who conceive this whole passage to be understood of forrein Nations, and not of Gods own people. But those terms of making and forming, are so frequently, in a peculiar manner, applied unto Gods people, as importing, and intending, not so much the creating of them, as men in the loins of our first Parents, or the procreating of them, by their several next Parents, common to them with all manner of mankind, Gen. 1.27,28.& 2.7. Job. 10.8-10. Pfal. 119.73. & 139.13-16. Ier. 1.5. but the making of them such a Nation, as they were, and the framing of them into such a State, as well Ecclesiastical, as Civil, as God had setled among them, and advanced them unto: these terms, I say, in a more special manner attributed in regard of Gods peculiar dealings with them, to that people, makes me encline to think, that they are the people here meant, whom God would so severely proceed against. See Deut. 32.6,15,18, Pfal. 149.2. ch. 22.11.& 43.1,7.& 44.2.& 45.11.

will have no mercy on him] Or, will not have mercy on him: a kind of extenuation, as some would have it. I will not have mercy on them, for, I will punish them: but it seems to me rather, a very full and emphatical phrase; as if he had said, I will punish them unmercifully: my judgments inflicted on them, shall have no mixture of mercy. See ch. 9.17. Hos. 1.6. So in that of Solomon, Prov. 17.21. He that begetteth a fool, begetteth him self grief, or, sorrows: (so it would be read) & the father of a fool shall have no joy, hath no small emphasis in it, as some Learned observe: the like may be said of the other branch; in fense with this the same. See on ver. 10.

V.12. And it shall come to passe in that day, that &c.] In this verse, and the next, the Prophet, after his wonted manner, concludeth this long Sermon, with a gracious promise of Gods restitution of his people, after the main body of the obstinate wicked, by his judgments destroyed from among them, and the residue reformed, which is the day, or time pointed to in these words, as ch. 11.11. The particle that, is wanting; as ch. 7.21,22. and so also, v. 13.

the Lord shall beat off from the chanel of the river, unto the stream of Egypt.] This some expound of Gods chastising his people, partly by the Assyrians, and partly, yea principally, by the Chaldeans, who should over-run their Land, and beat them out of it, from the one end of it, to the other; and thus they rather conceive it to be understood, because the Land of their inheritance is usually thus bounded. See on chap. 23.3 Others understand it, of a beating over all those parts, lying between Euphrates and Nilus, Assyria and Egypt, by the Medes in their expedition against Babylon. And others lastly, as I search that God would make for his people, and a beating of them out, or, a separation to be made of them, from other people, among whom they were dispersed in all parts, that they had an ordinary notice of.

the Lord shall beat off: Or, beat out, a metaphor taken either from trees, whose fruit is in the gathering of it beat off, Deut. 24. 20. ch. 17.6.& 24.13. or, from corn; the grain whereof, is beaten out of the ear from the chaff, Iudg. 6.11. Ruth. 2.17. with the staff, or the flail, chap. 28.27. for they had other kinds of threshing also: see ch. 28.27, 28. now becaule threshing is an ordinary emblem of affliction; Ot which, see ch. 21.10.& 25.10. and the beating of trees likewise, chap. 17.6. many suppose that afflictions should of necessity here be intimated, if not of Gods people, yet of some to be beaten off, as fruit sion in the trees, from the places of their former abodes, and of those Nations at least, from whom they were to be reduced, as being thence brought forth, as grain out of the threshing floor: neither of which, yet, I suppose, is necessary. There they shall in this term be intimated, no more then a severing of Gods dispersed people from the Nations, among whom they remained, and with whom they were intermingled; as by beating, the berries are severed from the tree; by threshing, the grain from the ear, the straw and the chaff, not to hurt, or destroy either, but that they may be gathered, carried in the other Mat. 3.12. & 13.30. And the beating, here consequently, seems to imply no more affliction to Gods people, then the reaping at the last day, Mat. 13. 38, 39. albeit, that reaping and cutting in Scripture be an ordinary resemblance of the execution of Gods wrath upon the wicked, Iob 24.24. Pf. 37.2. Joel 3.13. Rev. 14.15.19. Thus the Jewish Commenters take it, and the word of gathering that followeth, seems to confirm it.

from the chalnel of the river]Or, from the flood, as Pfal. 69.2.15. (for in this notion, it is no where else found) and it is deemed to import such a stream, as runs with strength and noise, of the river, to wit, Euphrates, chap. 8.7. whose several branches, do some of them, in Heathen Writers, bear their names from the world here used, as Nahar-fares, and Nahar-malcha; Pliny, l. 6. c. 26. Ammiane, l. 24. c. 3.

to the river of Egypt] That is, to Nilus. See on chap. 23.3. Out of all parts of the Land of Iſrael, whose limits elſe two were, Deut. 17.18. Jer. 12.14. Iosh. 1.4. & 13.3. as ſome, or out of all thoſe Countries that lay between Euphrates and Nilus, the utmoſt parts of Aſſyria, the one way toward the Eaſt, and the farthereſt parts of Egypt towards the Weſt. See chap. 11.11, 12. a place paralleled to this, ſee alſo verſ. 13.

and ye ſhall be gathered one by one, O ye children of Iſrael] The term of gathering here uſed, as appears by the word of beating premiſed, is not taken from the gathering or gleaning of corn; for that is firſt gathered, and then beaten out, Ruth 2.17. but from the gathering up of fruit or berries, that are picked up from the ground one by one, after that they have either fallen of themſelves, or bin beaten down from the tree; whereby the Prophet would either intimate the ſmall number of the people, that having been formerly faithful, or being ſincerely converted, ſhould be preſerved in thoſe times of univerſal calamity, and reſerved for mercy, in regard of the whole Nation, chap. 1.9. & 10. 12, 13. it being a note of ſome ſcarcity, where berries are picked up one by one, or ſignifie an exact collection of them (the verb alſo being in a form of ſome emphaſis) God picking them out, as it were, one by one, out of ſeverall places into which they had bin diſperſed; ſo expreſſed, to aſſure them of an entire reſtoring and return of all thoſe that were to have a ſhare in this mercy, to meet and gather together in the ſame, albeit they were never ſo far aſunder, one from another, or never ſo few of them in any one place. V. 13. And it ſhall come to paſſe in that day, that the great trumpet ſhall be blowne] Heb. with a great trumpet (ſuch an one, as may be heard far and neer) ſhall it be ſounded, that is, the trumpet (ſuch an one) ſhall be ſounded, as Amos 3.6. Cyrus his proclamation ſhall come forth, for the return of Gods people out of all parts, where they remained in captivity, into their own Country, 2 Chr. 36.22, 23. Ezr. 1.1, 2. an alluſion to the Jubilee-trumpet, that ſhe ſounded in the yeal of Reſtaut, when in men were ſet free, and returned each one to his inheritance and poſſeſſion again, Lev. 25.9, 10. a type of the Evangelical trumpet, whereby, under the Meſſias, Gods Elect out of all parts, are called in out of their ſpiritual thraldome, under ſin and Satan, to inherit a ſhare in the Kingdome of grace here, ch. 61. 1, 2. and they ſhall come, that were ready to periſh, in the land of Aſſyria] Whither the ten Tribes had been carried captive, 2 King. 17.6.

ready to periſh] Heb. periſhed, as Deut. 26.5. Iob 29.13. Pſ. 119.176.

to deſtroyed, for ready to be deſtroyed, Pſ. 137.8. or, periſhed, in no better caſe then as utterly periſhed, deemed no other, then as dead, ch. 26.19. Ezek. 37.11.

and the out-caſts] Pſ. 147.2. ch. 16.3, 4. Jer. 30.17. Ezek. 34.16. Mic. 4.6. Zeph. 3.19.

in the land of Egypt] Whither they had many of them fled, Jer. 43. 7. & 44.28. and many other had at ſundry times alſo been led captive, Deut. 28. 68. Hoſ. 8.13. Zach. 10.10. Aſſyria and Egypt, ſeem mentioned, not as the only places, into which the people of God had bin diſperſed, but as Euphrates and Nilus, ver. 12. as two of the remoteſt places one from another, into which they had bin ſequeſtred & this helps to confirm that which was before ſpoken of thoſe two famous rivers, was not intended to ſet out the bounds & ends of their own Land, but to intimate the extent of their depoſitation and captivity, Iam. 1.1.

and ſhall worſhip the Lord, in the holy mountain at Jeruſalem] They ſhall go in at their return, ſeriouſly and ſet up again in the ſolemn ſervice of God, that had bin wholly intermitted (the Temple, the place peculiar aſſigned the e nto, being deſtroyed) during the time of their captivity.

and ſhall worſhip] Or, to worſhip, that they may worſhip, as Iosh 24.9. Heb. bow themſelves to, that is, worſhip by bowing themſelves, as Pſ. 72.11. in the holy mountain] Mount Zion. See ch. 2.2. mountain of holineſſe, 2 Ezek. 20.40.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Verſ. 1. WO to the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim,] This Chapter conteineth a new Sermon, or Prophecy, conſiſting of two principal parts; the former, concerning Ephraim, or the ten Tribes, ver. 1-4. the latter, concerning the people of Iudah, and their adherents, ver. 5-29. He begins that concerning the ten Tribes, with denunciation of a wo againſt them, for their pride and haughtineſs, deſcribing them, as men drunk with proſperity, and thrown in inſenſibility into the like of them, Hoſ. 4. 11. & 5.5. Amos 6.1, 4, 8.

wo] in way of commination; as Chap. 5.11. though ſome read it, by way of compellation: O the crown, &c. See Chap. 10.1. to the crown of pride] The lword King, or Kingdom, verſ. 7.10. crown, for kingly ſtate, or Kingdom, as Iſa. 62.3. 1 Sam. 1.16. pride] So here, as Pſ. 17.10. See on Chap. 12.5. & 26.10. the crown of pride, as the foot of pride, that is, of proud perſons, Pſ. 58.8. although ſome render it, not the haughty, but the ſtately crown, becauſe to multitude and power it ſeemed to exceed that of the other two Tribes.

to the Drunkards] Or, of the drunkards, Joel 1.5. ver. 3. of Ephraim] Iſrael, the ten Tribes, which of Ephraim the chief, Hoſ. 60.7. Hoſ. 13.1. See on ch. 7.2.

whoſe glorious beauty is a fading flower] Heb. and the fading flower the goodlineſſe of bravery, or gallantry, which being rendred according to our verſion, the copulative is put for the diſiunct, vis Chap. 4. 6. & 17.2. But ſome render it, as rendring a reaſon of the woe, or because (as chap. 16.2. this glorious beauty is, or ſhall be, a fading flower. But that comes to the ſame, ver. 3, 4. Some, (Vatablus) by the reſt carrying on the ſentence, which reference ſhall be the wo, until to him whoſe fat glorious beauty ſhall become a fading flower; that is to Ephraim, whoſe Kingdom and ſtate, for all the bravery of their proud hearts, ſhall ſhortly like a fading flower, be ſeen, and ſuddenly blaſted and blown away, by the coming of Salmaneſer, whom God ſhall ſend to fall upon them, ver. 2. Or, and to the fading flower of the goodly, or brave gallantry, ſee ver. 4.

glorious beauty] Heb. goodlineſſe of bravery, or gallantry. See on Chap. 4.2. and ver. 4. Some take it in an explication of the word crown.

a fading flower] Or, as a fading flower; the note of ſimilitude employed, as Chap. 22.18. See the like expreſſion, Pſ. 103.15, 16. Iſa. 40.6, 7. Iam. 1.11. Some ſuppoſe here an alluſion, both in the word, and that of a crown, to the garlands, or coronets, made of flowers, that they uſed to wear on their heads at their Feaſts: Of which, the Athenians, Iſraelites, and Wiſemen, ch. 28.1. See more what the like, Chap. 19.6.

which are the head of the fat vallies] Or, to them that are, or, as others, which (to wit, the flower) is on the top of the moſt fat, or fertile vale; and by flower, theſe latter underſtand the chief ſtate of the Kingdom, formerly flouriſhing, but now beginning to decay which are on the head] That is, as many expound it, the wiſe, the Princes or Rulers, in that fat vale and it is true, that the word head, is commonly uſed for a Ruler, or Governour, and headſhip, for principality or rule, Pſal. 18.43. & 60.7. Chap. 7.8. & 9.14, 15. But the form of ſpeech, here uſed will not admit it, for it ſhould then be, the head over the vale, Pſal. 110.6. the heads over many countries, not as the text hath it; on the head of the vale. Which I ſuppoſe, therefore to ſignifie it either by ſituation as it is, that is, dwell and abide on the head that is, on the top, (as Exod. 17.9. Deut. 34.1. 2 Sam. 2.25.) or to this wiſe, in the mountain ſituate above the vale, in the mountains of Samaria, Hoſ. 6.1. the head, or top of the valley, is the rock of the plain, Jer. 21.13. Or, on the head, that is, in the firſt (or principal) part of that fat vale: head for chief, as Exod. 30.23. 2 Sam. 23.8, 18. Pſal. 137.6. Cant. 4.14. For as for that, which ſome have, that the word head, ſhould here be given to that Land, becauſe it lay higher, and was more hilly then Iudah's country, I can hardly ſubſcribe to, doubting ſomewhat, in part, of the thing it ſelf.

of the fat vallys Heb. vale of fatneſſe: that is, an exceeding fat and fertile vale; fatneſſe, for richneſſe and rankneſſe of ſoil, Gen. 27.28, 39. & 45. 18. and the head of the vale of fatneſſes, for the prime, and chief, of that exceeding fat, or rich valeies, the horn of the ſon of fatneſſe, chap. 5.1. for, a chief and principal rich ſoyl. What vale it here intended, I dare not preſume to ſay. Some ſuppoſe the main body of the Land, to be meant, which lay all at a vale beneath Mount Lebanon and was a very fertile ſoyl, Gen. 49.25. Deut. 33.13. Others conceive the vale to be meant, that lay neer to the habitation, or which was Samaria, the head city of the Kingdome, was ſituate, 1 King. 16.24. and this ſeems the moſt probable; for to the Court, the place of the Kings reſidence, and the chief places of the Kingdom, where the abuſes there pointed at did moſt abound, the Prophet ſeems to have a ſpecial eye. Howbeit, ſome of the Rabbines underſtand by it, the Vale of Cinneroth, mentioned of Deut. 3.17. Iosh. 12.3. 1 King. 15.20. in the new Teſtament, called Geneſereth, Mat. 6.53. a rich vale, indeed, but no reaſon rendred, why it ſhould be here meant, ſave becauſe it yeelds pleaſant Fiſhes. For thoſe that would think it to be Gethſemane, which, yet queſtionleſſe, had hence its name, a fertile valley, at the foot of Mount Olivet, neer to Jeruſalem, Mat. 26.36. ſtrideth ſo far out of the Prophets way, who is here dealing with Ephraim and Samaria, not with Iuda or Jeruſalem. And I ſhould rather imagine, that the Prophet might have ſome glance in the word of fatneſſes, uſed alſo for ointments, Cant. 1.3. & 4.10. at their immoderate uſe thereof in their Feaſtings, expreſly taxed in them them, Amos 6.6. then (as ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters do) expound the text, as ſpeaking thereof directly, while they render the words, as whoſe heads is a valley of ointments: that is, whoſe heads run down with ointments, as abundantly, as valleys do with water, Pſal. 104.10.

that are overcome with wine] Or, as ſome, of thoſe that are overcome with wine, as having reference to ſtrong, that is, State before-mentioned. I rather, to thoſe overcome with wine, referring it to the wo, or to the drunkards, here further deſcribed, over-whelmed with wine. Heb. ſmitten, as Iudg. 4.26. Pſal. 141.5. chap. 9.1. 10. 32. beaten, Prov. 23.35. or, beaten down, as 1 Sam. 14.16. or, broken, as Iudg. 5.22. or, broken down; as Pſal. 74.8. chap. 26.8. the word is very ſignificant, and from it comes the word, that ſignifies an hammer, uſed in the ſtory of Siſera, Iudg. 4.22. and no where elſe, which the Prophet might well have an eye unto; as if he had ſaid, they are ſtruck down, or laid along with wine, no more able to ſtir or execute ought, then Siſera was, when Iael with the hammer had driven the nail thorow his temples, and faſtened his head to the ground: a fit reſemblance of a man over-whelmed with drink. See another no leſſe pregnant expreſſion, ver. 7.

V. 2. Behold the Lord hath a mighty and ſtrong one, which as a tempeſt of haile, and a deſtroying ſhowr, as a flood of mighty waters over-flowing, ſhall caſt down to the earth with the hand] Or, in a general term denounced, ver. 1. is here more particularly ſpecified, by the inſtrument that God would uſe for the effecting of it, deſcribed, partly, by his might and power, and partly by the mildneſſ that he ſhould do among them; both elegantly and pregnantly ſet forth to the life, by variety of ſimilitudes heaped up together; to intimate an utter ruine and ſubverſion of all with them.

the Lord hath a mighty and ſtrong one] that is, as they conceive, the Hebrew text to run, that thus render it: a mighty and ſtrong one is to the Lord: a common form, as will in other languages, as in the Hebrew, Gen. 44.29. 1 King. 17.12. Hoſ. 4.1. and the meaning then is, that ſuch an one he hath ready at his command, to do his pleaſure upon Samaria. Yet ſome others make no entire ſentence of it; and there for e omitting thoſe ſupplyes, both of the verb ſubſtantive in this branch, and of the pronoun relative in the next, read the words, one mighty, or a mighty one, and ſtrong to the Lord: that is, exceeding ſtrong; as ſtrong to the Lord, (ſuch is the words are their) that is, exceeding great ſtrength, Gen. 13.13. or, ſtrong from the Lord, that is, a day of perplexity from the Lord: in all which places, and others the like, is the ſame particle found, that is in this place. So in the Greek Hebraiſme, Act. 7.20. of Moſes, comely to God; either for exceeding comely, or, comely by compariſon: received from God as Exek. 16.14. and of the Apoſtle Paul, 2 Cor. 10.4. mighty to God: that is, mighty by power received from God, 2 Cor. 4.7. and this mighty one, there is no doubt, but it was Sennacherib, the King of Aſſyria, and his forces; who in the fourth year of Hezekiah, overran the whole Land of Iſrael, tore downe Samaria, and after three years ſiege took it, diſſolved their Kingdome and State, carryed the Natives away captive, and in the room of them peopled the Country with ſtrangers, brought out of ſundry parts, 2 King. 17.5, 6. 24. & 18.9, 11.

mighty and ſtrong one] Either, King of Iſrael, or both, words of equal force, uſed for application: as chap. 27.1. now read we to put in here, with the Iewiſh Commenters, either, day, as ſome, or wind, as other of the ſame, by being unneceſſary, ſuperfluous.

which] The relative is not wanting, Exod. 13.8. 1 Chap. 42.5. but, according to the latter reading, either of them, doth no ule at all here.

as a tempeſt of haile, Move violent, then rain; that beats down, and breaks aſunder, not the ſtanding corn only, and ſuch things as grow on the ſurface of the ground, or ſhy plant of trees; eaſily, but even the biggeſt branches alſo, as well as the ſmalleſt progynyes, men and beaſt, themſelves, according to Exod. 9.23-25. Hoſ. 10.11 Iſa. 28.2. 30.30. Ezek. 13.11.

a deſtroying ſhowr] Heb. a ſtorm of excision, or, deſtruction. Deut. 32.24. Pſal. 91.6. Hoſ. 13.9, 10. Iove-ſtorms, generally, which, yet a late learned Author controlleth, affirming the word here uſed, to ſignifie not a ſtorm, but a gate, and would have it rendred, in the gate excision; and the meaning to be ſuch a ſtorm of hail, as ſhall beat down the gates that is, deſtroy the State. But the reading he followeth, is not by general aſſent, as he would have it, as by ſolution of copies I have obſerved; and the Rabbins, that comment upon the place, taking no notice of any other reading, go the ſame received way, that our Interpreters unanimouſly take.

a flood of mighty waters overflowing] The word, rendred flood, is the ſame, that was tranſlated waters, before. Of it, ſee on ch. 4.6. and 25.4. in the former of which places, it ſeems taken as, in that branch, in the latter, as this of mighty waters, or, of many waters, ſee on ch. 16.14. & 17.12. over-flowing, as the waters of the Sea, or of great rivers, are wont to do with much force, and in great abundance, when they have ſwoln above their Sea-walls, or have broken thorow their banks, Iob 30.14. Pſal. 42.7. & 69.1. & 88.16, 17. ch. 8.7. v. 17.12. Rich. 50.23. Jer. 51.42, 55.

ſhall caſt down to the earth] Some, ſhall make to reſt on the ground: But that portion conceives another, though neighbour root. Heb. hath (in a prophetical phraſe) left, &c. laid 10, 9, on the ground: there ſeems a deſect of the participle is, as Chap. 21.3. & 26.1. the mighty one before-mentioned hath lay it, that is, the crown of Ephraim, with all their gallantry, on the ground, as Pſal 89.39, 44. chap. 14. 12, 15. to the ground, for on the ground, as, to the earth, or on the earth, chap. 26.9. and ſo Amos 5.7. (the ſame phraſe with this here would be rendred) they lay juſtice on the ground.

with his hand] or, with an hand; or, by hand: that is, as moſt of ours, eaſily; with no great ado, as with the bare hand onely; or with the one hand, Chap. 19.15. or, quickly, ſoon, ſpeedily: (for he was not long about it) as we uſe to ſay, with, or, of hand, Lam. 4.5. See V. 4. but I ſuppoſe rather, that by hand, here is, by force of hand, by main might: So the Jewiſh Interpreters, deeming a deſect of the Epithet to be in the text, with hand, that is, with aſtrong hand, expreſſed, Exod. 3.19. Iſa. 40.23. Dan. 9.15. I rather, as for a ſtrong hand; as, name, for a great name, Gen. 6.4. & 11.4. or, a good name, Prov. 22.1. Eccl. 7.1.

V. 3. The crown of pride, the drunkards of Ephraim, ſhall be trodden under foot] They, and it, ſhall not be laid along on the ground onely, ch. 51.23. but even trampled upon under feet, Mal. 4.3.

The crown of pride, the drunkards of Ephraim] As ſome read it, The crown of pride and the drunkards; a deſect of the copulative: as chap. 27.4. Or, the drunkards of Ephraim, with their crown of pride; a deſect of the prepoſition: as Pſal. 5.4. I ſuppoſe it may well be rendred, the crown of pride: that is, the haughty, or lofty crown, of the drunkards of Ephraim, ſhall be trampled upon with feet (ſo the Hebrew is, ſee chap. 26.6.) all the difficulty in this verſion is, that the word crown, is ſingular, and the verb anſwering it, plural: but it is obſerved, that in ſuch ſyntax, as this here is, the noun, or verb ſomertime agreeth in form, with the latter term, in ſenſe with the former: So 1 Sam. 2.4. the bow of the mighty ones were broken, for was broken, Iob 29.10. the voice of the nobles were hid, for was hid, Hag. 1.7. the deſpiſe of all nations ſhall come: the verb plural, as here; but the diſagreement leſſe here, then in ſome of them: for the verb agreeeth, though not in number, yet in gender, with the word crown. Seev. 1. and we need not, therefore, either with that late learned Author or others, read the words, as by way of apoſition, the crown, pride, that is, the crown and the pride: Or, with the Belgick edition, the proud crowns, which neither ſounded ſo nor ſuiteth ſo well here, as appeareth by comparing this with ver. 1.

under foot] The crown is abaſed as low as may be, from upon the head, Pſal. 21.3. Iob 19.9. to lye under the feet, Pſalm 110. 1. to be trampled upon, as mire and dirt, and ſuch things as are of meaneſt and vileſt eſteem, ch. 10.6. Mic. 7.10. Mar. 5.13.

N. 4. And the glorious beauty which is on the head of the fat valley, ſhall be a fading flower] Heb. and his, (that is, Ephraims) goodly gallantry, ſhall be, as the flower of a fading thing: fading, for a fading plant: a fading, chap. 17.5. for fading corn: and, fading or, falling, for fading or falling Fig, as chap. 34.4. fading, or ſhedding, that ſheddeth flower, or leaf, ch. 1.30.

and, as the haſty fruit before the ſummer] Or, or as, &c. becauſe a ſimilitude diverſe from the former, wanting here, as Iob 6.6. All their pomp and ſtate ſhall be as rathe ripe fruit, that is, as we uſe to ſay, ſoon ripe and ſoon rotten, and are not wont, therefore, to be reſerved for ſtore, but to be ſpent out of the way; or, that is haſtily pluckt, and greedily devoured, became longed for commonly, and carnaſtly deſired. Jer. 24.2. Hoſ. 9.10. Mic. 7.1.

which when he that looketh upon it, ſeeth it, while it is yt in his hand, he eateth it up] Or, which when one eſpyeth, as ſoon as it is in his hand, he devoureth it. Heb. ſwalloweth it; greedily devoureth it, Iob 20.15. See ver. 2.

V. 5. In that day ſhall the Lord of Hoſts be for a crown of glory, and for a diadem of beauty, unto the reſidue of his people] The Prophet having done with Ephraim, cometh now to Iudah; and having related what evils he would bring on the one, he beginneth now to tell, what good he would do for, and what honour confer upon the other.

In that day] When this judgment ſhall be executed upon Ephraim, which was in the days of Ezekiah.

Shall the Lord of Hoſts be] Of the title, ſee chap. 1.ver. 9.

for a crown of glory; Or, goodneſſe; a goodly crown: as an inheritance of goodneſſe, for a goodly inheritance, Jer. 3.19 for it, or in ſtead of it, he will grace and honour that State, as much, or more, then the goodlieſt or richeſt crown in the world, had they it to wear, could ſee: the like, Prov. 4.9. chap. 62.3. and this is here oppoſed to Ephraim's haughty crown, like a garland of fading flower: for this is a crown of annoyance, or everlaſting, a flower ſo termed, and this crown ſo from it, I Pet. 5.6. a crown that faideth not, 1 Pet. 1.4.

a diadem of beauty] Or, of gallantry, Jer. 13.18. a gallant diadem; the ſame thing, in effect with the former: the word rendred diadem, is in this notion no where elſe found: See ver. 1.

unto the reſidue of his people] Unto the King dome of Iudah, that remained ſtill in their own land, and retained their wonted State with addition of much honour, under Ezekiah and Joſiah, after that the ten Tribes were diſperſed, and their State diſſolved.

V. 6. And for a ſpirit of judgment, to him that ſitteth in judgment, and for ſtrength, to them that turn the battel to the gate] The means whereby whereby God would make their State so honourable and illustrious, by endowing their Rulers with wisedome, and their Warriors with valour: these two being the two principal pillars of a State, chap.3. 1,2. and these two endowments, the principal requisites, and true ornaments in either, ch.11.2.

a spirit of judgment] An ability to judge aright, and discern of truth and falshood, right and wrong, in those things that come before them: in regard whereof, Solomon calleth the Kings doom, a divination, Prov. 16. 10. as proceeding from a divine inspiration: such a spirit of discretion, for civil affairs; as was that gift of discretion, for spiritual affairs, called the discretion of spirits: 1 Cor. 12.10. a sagacity more then ordinary, in discerning of soundness, and discovery of unsoundness in others.

to him that sitteth in judgment] Heb. upon judgment: that is, upon the throne, or seat of judgment, Psal.9.4. Prov.20. 8. judgment, for the judgment seat: as royalty, for royal robes, Esth.5.1. those narrow the text over-much, that restrain this (as some do) to Ezekiah: for though the word be singular, yet it is collectively taken; as Prov. 20.8. and includeth others also, together with him, that judged under him, or were assistant to him in judgment.

for strength] For that also is Gods, and in his hand to give, 1 Chr. 29.11, 12.2 Chr.20.6.

that turneth the battel to the gate] The old Latine corrupts the sense of this text, rendring the words, that return from war to the gate, that is, home, which some apply to Ezekiah's return from his war against the Philistines, 2 King.18.8. as do those also that render it, that turn the war away from the gate. For neither will the words of the text admit either of these Interpretations; and the meaning seems much more emphatical: such, as not onely defend their own Country from the enemy, but beat him back, and pursue him to his own gates, chap.22.7. and so indeed did Ezekiah, when he did not only beat the Philistines home to the gates of their strongest Forts, and fenced Cities, but entred them also, and possessed himself of them, 2 King.18.8.

V.7. But they also have erred through wine, and through strong drink are out of the way] The Prophet having begun this prophecy concerning Judah, with a gracious promise of Gods favour toward that State, both in the continuance, and the advancement of it, after the ruine of Ephraim; whereas it might have been justly feared, that the subversion of the one, being so neer neighbours, might have provoked a great impeachment; it not a downfal of the other; doth now passe on to a grievous complaint against those of Judah, as not free, from those enormities, for which, this heavy calamity befel that people, and therefore unworthy of so great favour.

they also] Those of Judah, whom God vouchsafeth these favours unto, and that have Gods Word and Worship still among them, which the other Tribes had abandoned, that professed to be better, and had better means, both to make, and to keep them better; yet take the same evill courses with them, 2 Chr.13.8,11.ch.48.1, 2. & 58.2. Jer.3. 10.

have erred through wine, and through strong drink are out of the way] Or, erre through wine, and stray through strong drink: for the tense is the same in either verb, and the sound somewhat alike in the original. They are guilty of the same crime, that those of Ephraim were charged with, to wit, sensuality, and excesse, ver.1.

strong drink] The word, in the original, is but one; it signifies such drink, as is apt to make drunk: and from it, comes the term drunkard, used ver.1. See ch.5.11.

the Priest, and the Prophet have erred through strong drink] Or, do erre: they that should give good example, and endeavour by reproof, and censure, to restrain and reform it in others, are in this kind themselves as faulty as others, ch.56.12.

erre] Either sin, in the immoderate use, and abuse of the creature. Prov. 20. 1. for every man is a straying from the way of truth and right, chap. 53. 6. Jam. 5. 19. or, fail in the duties of their special places, either corrupted hereby, or dilabled thereunto, Mic. 2.11. & 3.5.

they are swallowed up of wine] They take it in so excessively, that it over-mastereth them; and they seem rather to be over head and ears (as we say) in it, then to have it in them: it depriveth them so of all abilities, for the use of the powers and parts, either of body or mind, Prov. 20. 21. Jer. 23. 9. Hos. 4. 11. that which we use to say, drowned in drink. See somewhat the like expression, ver.1.

they erre in vision, they stumble in judgment] The former member, specially, respects the Prophets: the latter, the Priests. Being drunken sots, and wholly addicted to sensuality, they regard not what they teach, or prophecy, the one, so it tend to loosenesse and licentiousnesse, which the people were well pleased with, chap.30.10,11. Jer. 5. 31. Ezek.13.19,20,22. Mic.2.6,7,11. & 3.5. nor what sentence they past, so they might have wherewith to maintain their excesse, the other, Jer.5,31.

vision] Prophecy, or Teaching, Prov. 29. 18. chap. 1. 1. Mic.3.6.

stumble] Or, reel rather, or, stagger, alluding to their drunkenness, and the usual manner of men in drink: the word is used in this notion, here only, and Jer. 10.4. of Images, said to be fastened with nails to the wall, that they may not move, as it is there rendred, or stir, certainly, stagger, or reel, rather then stumble, and a word derived from it, Nah.2.10. rendred, the knees smite together but the word there is a noun, and it may seem to be rendred better staggering of knees: knees, fure, may more fitly be said to stagger, then to stumble.

in judgment] The particle in, is wanting here; as chap. 26. 8. and oft else-where. Howbeit, some of the Hebrew Criticks take occasion, thereby, to render the text, they cause judgment to stagger, or, to go awry, to go the wrong way; but that most agree in the other sense, they stagger, themselves in judgment; either ignorantly, not knowing, through foolishness, what sentence to give, or, wilfully declining to this side, or that side, as their corrupt affections, and sinister respects byassed them.

judgment] Or, the judgment of God: for there is another word of this stock, that signifieth judgment simply, chap.16.3. See ch.6.13. & 19.24.& Jer.2.31. where words of the same stamp are found; that judgment, which by Gods appointment they were to give, Deut.17.9. Mal.2.7. and which is said to be the judgment not of man but of God, 2 Chr.19.6,8,11. that which, as seriously considered, should exact the greater care and circumspection, in the due performance of it: so doth much conduce to the aggravation of their sin, that carryed themselves so wretchlesly and irreligiously therein, Psal.59.1,2.& 82.1,2.

V.8. For all tables are full of vomit, and filthiness] The generality, and the excess, in the loathsom effect of it.

all tables] That is, many, or most: all, in a manner; as Chap. 56.10.& 64.6. Jer.9.2. Phil.2.23. or, all their tables. The tables of these men, and the places where they met. A defect of the pronoun; as ch.13.22. Job 5.12.

of vomit, and filthiness] Or, ordure; for so the word properly signifies, ch.36.12. See ch.4.4. and excess of drunkenness, that makes men purge both waies. See ch.19.14. Jer.25.27.& 48.26. Hab.2.16. A defect of the copulative; as ch.27.4.

so that there is no place clean] Or, free. A defect of the epither; as ch.5.2. See the note there; and the like phrase, ch.5.8. For that Expositio[n] which the learned Annotator, here holdeth out, of one of the Iewish Doctors, without place, that is, without God, whom, by that term, they oft design, as if the meaning were, There is no talking of God, or his Law, at their tables; is of the same stamp with many other of their ridiculous toys and daliances with divine Oracles, which yet without any intimation of the least disallowance, that learned Author oft reciteth.

V.9. whom shall he teach knowledge? and whom shall he make to understand doctrine? them, that are weaned from the milk, and drawn from the breasts?] Or, as some read the words, by way of interrogation; Those that are weaned from the milk, and drawn from the breasts. Another shameful effect of this their sensuality, and excess; it had made them so sottish, that they were become altogether unteachable, uncapable of learning ought: Insomuch, that a man might as soon teach a child, newly weaned, letters, as to make them to understand ought, concerning themselves, or their duty to God, or man, Jer.4.22. Hos.4.11.

shall he teach] Or, can any man teach for the verb seems to be taken potentially; as ch.26.18. and indefinitely; as ver.5. and so, can any make to understand in the next branch. Yet some render it, should God teach? to wit, by his Prophets, 1 Cor.2.14. But I suppose the Prophets intention, more general.

doctrine] Heb. hearing: as ver.19. So ch.53.1.

weaned] Newly, or, lately weaned. So Ps.131.2. as if he should say, Either such, or none. It being as difficult a matter to teach such children, as to teach such sottish, and self-willed people; as these are; yea, in some regard, more difficult; because, there is some want of understanding in the one; but there is, besides that, a perverseness, also, of disposition in the other, Rom.8.7.2 Tim.2.25.

breasts] Heb. teats: as Lam.4.3. Joel 2.16. So called, as some think, from a word signifying moisture, Num.11.8. Pf.32.4. in regard of the pleasant liquor, or milk, that they yeeld. From the Syriak form of it, had Thaddeus his surname, Mat. 10. 3. and thence also comes our English word, teat.

V.10. For precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept; line upon line, line upon line, here a little, and there a little] Or, precept hath been upon precept, &c. Thus they must be taught, or, thus they have been taught, as little children are wont to be, when they begin to learn their first rudiments, either of reading, or writing, to know letter after letter, and to draw line after line, in the fashioning of their letters, to have the same rules oft given them, and the same things oft told them; and yet for all this diligence used about them, and pains taken with them, they are never a whit the better, they continue still, as grosly ignorant, and as unreformed, as ever, 2 Tim.3.7. Heb.5.12.

precept upon precept] Or, rule upon rule; or, rule after rule. It is a short word, saith a Rabbine, no where else read, and argues a short rule; yet, by his leave, it is found, Hos.5.11.

line upon line] Or, line after line. The word signifies properly, a cord, or, line, chap.49.13. Jer.31.39. Ezek.47.3. thence taken, and applied to lines drawn with a pen, in writing and painting. An allusion, saith one of the Jewish Masters, to such as teach children to write, enuring them first to frame the several parts of each letter apart, and then to joyn them together, line to line, to make up the letter; (not letter to letter; for they never joyn them) or that guide their hand from line to line, and so cause them to draw one line after another. Though some of them would have it taken from the Masons line, by which he teacheth his novice, to lay one row of stones after another, for the making up of a wall. But the first seems the more likely. There is an elegant consonancy between this word and the former, which our English cannot express. And there is a reiteration of either branch, to imply a frequent inculcation of one and the same point, in the teaching of them, as with dull Scholars, is wont to be done.

here a little, and there a little] Heb. a little there, a little there, that is, a little of one thing, and a little of another; or, a little at one time, and a little at another. A defect of the copulative; as verf. 8. And thus saith a Rabbine, are they taught to do, that teach a Sucker, so they call a novice, or young Scholar, such as hath need yet of milk, as the Apostle speaks, alluding, in likelihood, to that term, 1 Cor.3. 1,2. Heb.6.1,2,3.

V.11. For with stammering lips, and another tongue will he speak to this people] Or, hath he spoken; or, must one speak; as before, ver. 10. This passage hath more difficulty in it, then the former. Some suppose the former similitude to be still insisted upon, that God hath dealt with them, or they were to be dealt with, in a very plain and familiar manner, as Nurses, or Parents, are wont to do with little ones that lisp, and clip words, and change letters, and use divers new terms, when they teach them to speak; and yet all this would do no good. Others conceive their fottishness to be a new way deciphered; as if the Prophet should say, that they were grown to that height of stupidity and senselesness, that they no more understood, or regarded, or reaped any fruit from ought spoken unto them, though never so plainly, either by God in his word, or from God by his Prophets, then as if it were delivered in some strange and barbarous language, in a tongue utterly unknown to them. And this way, most, both Jewish, and Christian Commenters, go; yet, in regard of the Apostles quotation of it, 1 Cor. 14. 21. seeming to look another way, some other Interpreters, whom our version seems to have followed, understand it, as delivered by way commination, as if God, by the Prophet threatned them, to take another course with them; and because they were grown so brutish, he would speak to them now, not, as to reasonable creatures, by words and speech, but as men are wont to speak to brute-beasts, by blows and stripes; by bringing in upon them, people of a strange language, which they should not understand, to handle them the more cruelly, in regard that they should not well know how to sue to them for mercy, because they had refused to hear him speaking to them, in his word, and by his messengers, in their own language which they might have understood. See Deut.28.49. Jer.5.15. Ezek. 3. 5. And some, again, admitting the same interpretation, as spoken by way of relation, what was already past, that in such manner, and by such people, (though to little purpose) God had spoken to them heretofore. But I see not why the second, and most received sense, of the words, may not as well, as this last, agree with the scope of the Apostle; which is to shew, that speech, in a language not understood, is unuseful.

stammering lips] Heb. mocks, or, scoffs of lip; lip, for, language, as Gen.11.1. one lip, for one language: and, a pure lip, for, a pure language, Zeph.3.9. mocks, scoffs, or derision of lip, or, language by an hypallage, or transposition, for, lip, or, language of mocks, or, derisions; (as, choice of valleys, for, valleys of choice, Chap.22. 7.) that is, as some, stammering, stuttering, or lisping language: because such language men are wont to use in mocking; and such kind of language is such subject to derision. Or, as others, strange language; which to those that understand it not, seems ridiculous; and they are wont therefore, to deride, and deem, as barbarous, Psal. 114.1.1 Cor.14.11. And this latter way, both the words following, carry it: and the Greek also, 1 Cor.14.21. See ch.33.19.

another tongue] For, a strange tongue: So, other tongues, for, strange tongues, Act.2.4.1 Cor.14.21.

V.12. To whom he said, This is the rest, wherewith ye may cause the weary to rest, and this is the refreshing, yet they would not hear] Or, Because when he said unto them, This is the rest, yet they would not hear; or, they would not hear: He said, and they would not hear; that is, when he said they would not hear; as, Prov. 1. 24. I called, and ye refused; that is, Ye refused, when I called. See ch. 50.2. ver. 18. The words then, thus read; the Prophet proceedeth to shew what should betide them; for this their brutish stupidity, and wilful obstinacy, in refusing to hearken to Gods gratious admonitions, and slighting his wholesome instructions, to their own confusion.

To whom he said] Heb. which he said unto them: but the relative is oft used for the casuative; as 1 King.15.13. and so here, Because he said to them.

he said] God, by his Prophets, ch.7.4.& 30.15.

This is the rest] The onely means, whereby rest and quietness may be either procured, or preserved, to wit, by hearkening to Gods Prophets, following the directions of his word, and relying upon him, and keeping close to him, 2 Chr.14.2-7.& 15. 4-19. & 16. 7-9. Jer.6.16. Mat.11.28,29.

wherewith ye may cause the weary to rest] According to this reading there should be a defect of the relative; Psal.109.19. that may procure rest for those, that are tired out with grievous pressures, and calamities of the times. But the form of the verb, admitteth not this reading. And others, therefore, more rightly render the words, with supply of the relative, as spoken in way of admonition, or exhortation, cause the weary to rest; Take some course, that your poor afflicted, whether country or countrymen, rather, may have some ease of, and rest from, those grievous scourges, wherewith they have been so much wearied.

the weary] To wit, people: A defect of the substantive; as chap. 40.19.& 50.4. or, as some, the weary land: but then it should be feminine; as ch.32.2. whereas, it is masculine.

the refreshing] The word is for signification, the same, in effect with the former, rendred rest also, Jer.6.16. where found in another form: But in this, here, the more fitly to comply in sound with the former; ease, and rest, refreshing, not so properly, but as that is an effect of it. See ch.30.15.

they would not hear] It was their willful obstinacy, as well as their blockish stupidity, both arising from their sensuality, that hindred Gods word from producing any good effect with them, Psal. 81.11.& 82. 5. Jer. 6. 16.& 44. 16. Zach. 7. 11. Luk. 8. 14.& 21. 34.

V.13. But the word of God was unto them, precept upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line, here a little, and there a little: that they may go, and fall backward, and be broken, and snared, and taken] Heb. And the word of God was, or, shall be which some render, as here, But the word of God was, and for, But: as 2 Sam. 13. Some, Though the word of God, were: And, for, Though, as ch.49.5. Though the word were in so plain, and familiar a way delivered unto them; as before, ver.10. Howbeit, some others read, and render it, as in way of commination, Therefore the word of God shall be unto you; as Amos 5.27. as if God threatned to punish their former stupidity, and obstinacy, with further blindness, as ch.6.9, 10.& 16.& 29.10-12.

that they might go, and fall backward, &c.] This some refer to the judgment here denounced, as a dismal effect of it, by God therein intended; as chap.6.10. Others refer it to their obstinacy, mentioned ver.12. as an effect thereof, though not intended by them, yet flowing necessarily from it. Of which manner of speech, see on chap. 3. 8.& Jer. 7. 18. and of the words, chap. 8.15.& 42.22.

go, and fall backward] Heb. go, and stumble backward: that is, stumble, and fall backward as they go. A defective speech: the like whereunto, see chap. 1. 4. and the supply, Psal.27.1.ch. 8.15. Jer. 46.6.& 50.32.

V.14. wherefore hear the word of the Lord, ye scornfull men, that rule this people, which is at Jerusalem] The word of commination seems hence to begin; directed unto the Rulers, such of them as Shebna was, of whom, see ch.22.15. that scorned, and scoffed at the menaces of Gods Prophets, as supposing themselves to be sufficiently secured against all occurrents whatsoever, ver.15.ch.5.19.2 Chr.36.16. Jer. 5.12,13.

hear the word of the Lord] What, not I, but he, by me, saith to you especially; as ch.1.10.

scornful men] Heb. men of scorn; as Prov.29.8. not scorned, but scorning; scornful, such as Solomon there saith, bring a city, or State, into a snare. A thing glanced at, verf.13. though, in this place, it may seem to imply more specially, (that which yet with scornfulness is commonly joyned) matter of mockage; and may peradventure, therefore, more fitly be rendred here, men of mockage, or, mockers; as 2 Per. 2. 3. for that seems the crime, here, specially charged upon them, verf. 15. and which they are advised to leave, ver.22.

that rule this people] Heb. the Rulers of this people; or, domineers, over them; as the word and phrase is used, ch.52.5. that abuse the power ye have, in regard of your places, to domineer, and lord it over my people, at your pleasure, chapter 26. 13. 1 Pet.5.3.

V.15. Because ye have said, we have made a covenant with death, and with hell are we at agreement] Because you deem your selves as safe and secure, as if death and you were entred into a solemn league, either with other. And whatsoever, therefore, might betide the State, ye were sure to escape.

ye have said] Or, ye say. That is, think with your selves, make account so; as Psal. 14. 1. & 94. 7. And yet it is not unlikely, that some such scoffing terms, as these, they had sometime also in their mouths; as we find somewhat like in the like in some Latine Comicks. See ch.22.13.

made a covenant] Heb. cut a covenant; as chap.55.3. The ground of which form is taken, either from the nature and manner of solemn Covenants, in which the conditions, whereupon the covenant is made, are wont to be precisely, and exactly on either side determined, and as it were cut out; The like whereunto, see verf. 22. ch.10.22,23. Dan.9.24. Or, from certain rites, that were commonly used at the solemn contracting of such leagues and agreement both among the people of God, and other nations. Of which, see Gen. 15. 9, 10. Psal. 50. 5. and on Jer. 34.18.

with death] That is, say some, with Sennacherib, the deadly enemy my to our State, whom we mean to comply with. But this pulleth out the pith of the Prophets speech, whose words shew, that death it self is intended, which the grave followeth, as an attendant on it, Hos. 13. 14. Rev. 6. 8.

with hell] Or, the grave. See Chap. 14. 15.

are we at agreement] Heb. we have made provision; as Exod. 18. 21. provide able men. And so the word following, verse 18. is to be expounded; which being another form, from the same root, sheweth this to be a noun: and of the same signification, in effect with the former. The Jewish Criticks are much are much divided about it, and seem to look any way, rather then to the right reason of the term. The Chaldee rendreth it peace; and the reason thereof, saith one of them, is, because when men make peace, they meet together, and look one another in the face, Gen. 32. 10. 2 Sam. 14. 32. 1 King 20. 33. like light to light; or, sight to sight, in Solomons temple, 1 King. 7. 4, 5. And so they do also, when they meet to fight, 2 Chro. 25. 17, 21. Another would have it a participle, and to signifie, a Seer or teacher, as if they should say, We have set one to watch death, well enough, from surprising of us; as Ezek. 33. 2—5. But it is not death that is mentioned in this branch, but the grave. Another would have it, We have fet a bound, or, a limit unto death, or the grave, that it shall not pass, to come so nere to us, as to fasten upon us. Deriving it from a word, used, Pf. 107. 20. which, in Chaldee, commonly beareth that sense. Another, lastly, to let the rest pass, we have made a complication, that is, a confederacy, from a word fignifying to be enwrapped, or entangled, as the strings of a root, Job 8. 17. or the boughs of a tree, Dan. 4. 11. or, branched horns of a beast, Dan. 8. 5. But of this sense of the word, in any one of these places, can hardly any good proof be made. And I think therefore to what was given at first.

when the overflowing scourge shall pass thorow, it shall not come unto us] Or, though the scourge, or, the bore, of a surrounding flood, or, river, pass thorow the land, it shall not come at us. Though these things, that the Prophets prate so much of, scourges, and land-floods, and we know not what storms, and inundations, and deluges, should come and overflow the whole land; yet they shall not touch us: we shall, for all that, be safe; we have shelter sufficient enough at hand, to secure us.

when] Or, though, as chap. 12. 1. Pfal. 23. 4. For they little thought in likelyhood, that ever they would come.

the overflowing scourge] The word here used, doth commonly fignifie a whip, or a scourge, Pro. 26. 3. Nah. 3. 2. howbeit, some of the Jewish Criticks, in regard of the term of inundation annexed to it, understand by it here, the shock, or bore, or fierce stream of a river overflowing his banks, running along thorow the whole level as coming of a word, that fignifieth to run, or pass speedily through a place, 2 Sam. 24. 2. Job 1. 7. Jer. 5. 1. but it is not unlikely, that the Prophet did of purpose use the word scourge here, though to expresse that which they would have it here to import; In relating the words of those scoffing mates, that in mockery used these termes, because they heard the Prophets, in their menaces, making mention of an inundation, and a scourge, chap. 8. 7, 8. & 10. 22, 26. and it may therefore be well rendred, the scourge of an overflowing, or surrounding river, or flood; a defect of the subject: as fading, for a fading plant, v. 4, 10. overflowing, for an overflowing flood: as it is expressed, and expressed, ch. 30. 28. & 66. 12. Jer. 47. 20. 2 Chr. 32. 4. or, an overflowing storm: as the supply is, Ezek. 13. 11, 13. & 38. 22. which cometh home much to one: such storms of rain commonly causing also great land-floods, and the term is common to either, see chap. 25. 4. but that mention is made of a storm also, ver. 17.

passe thorow] To with the land. So Dan. 11. 10, 40.

it shall not come unto us] Heb. came us, for come us, the particle omitted, as Pfa. 36. 11. supply. d Pfa. 91. 20.

for we have made lies our refuge, and under falshood have we hid our selves] The ground of this their security from whence they presumed and promised to themselves undoubted safety: a ly, (so it is in the Hebrew) and falshood, both in effect the same, whereby some understand their idols, so termed, chap. 44. 20. Jer. 10. 14. Rom. 1. 25. wherein many of them much confided, chap. 1. 31. & 17. 8. Others, their treachery, and dissembling, in compliance with the adverse party, whereby they made account to save themselves, whatsoever became of others. Others, their crafty shifts, and wily devices which may well include the former, ch. 29. 15, 16. Others lastly which is most likely, their strength raised, and wealth gotten by fraudulent and deceitful courses, Pfal. 52. 7. & 62. 9, 10. ch. 30. 12. lies and falshood for goods thereby gotten: as the robbery, and the oppression, or fraud, for the thing gotten by robbery, oppression, or fraud, Lev. 6. 4. So, the mammon of iniquity. Luke 16. 11.

visiting] See chap. 5. 4. Zeph. 1. 9.

we have hid our selves] Or, are wehid: See ver. 17.

V. 16. Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner-stone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste] Their deep security a-gainst their fensuality, and wilful obstinacy, and vain confidence of safety, notwithstanding Gods menaces by his Prophets, which they scoffed at, was before. Now God, by the Prophet, proceeding to relate what a round and sharp course he meant to take with them for these things; doth before premise, for the stay of the minds of of his faithful ones, amids the ensuing distractions and disturbances of the times, what provision he had made for their security and indemnity, to wit, such a rock, for them, by faith to rest on, as should stay by them, stay them up, and support them, amidst all those storms that should threaten the State, and sweep away those unsure and fickle staies, that those profane wretches, so much, but most fondly relyed on.

Behold] See chap. 7. 14. and verse 2.

I lay for a foundation] Heb. I am founding, or, I have founded, as chap. 14. 32. the Lord hath founded Zion; for it seems, that in this form, the participle is sometime the same with the first of the verb; as in that of Solomon, Eccles. 4. 2. I praised the dead: and then we need not, either with some of the Jewish Criticks, and some of ours, following them, make it a noun, reading the words, I the founder; Or, with other of them, make a further needless supply, rendring, them, I am he that hath founded: Or lastly, it may be an interchange of the person, the third for the first: as the like is deemed to be, Chap. 29. 14. in those words, I add. But however we read or render them, the meaning is apparent, that God before hand had laid a sure ground for the faithful to build and rest themselves upon, in those tumultuous and troublesome times.

in zion] In Jerusalem, a type of the Church, then to come, and the principal seat, both of Gods people, and of his service, at that present, Pfalm 65. 1. & 76. 2. Chap. 2. 2.

a stone] A foundation stone, that is, Ezekias, fay some of the Jewish Doctors; and a type of this stone, it is granted, he might be: but other of them better, the Messias, Jesus Christ, the onlytrue and sure foundation-stone, Rom. 9. 33. & 10. 11. 1 Cor. 3. 11. Eph. 2. 20. 1 Pet. 2. 6. 8. laid in Gods purpose from all eternity, 1 Pet. 1. 20. and for efficacy the same, to all the faithful in all ages, yesterday, as this day, and for ever, chap. 26. 4. Mat. 16. 18. Heb. 13. 8. opposed here to the fickle stays, and vain fastnesses of wicked Worldlings: as Prov. 18. 10, 11.

a tried stone] Heb. a stone of tryal; or, of proof, rather, as we use to say, armour of proof, and as a sword of proof, Ezek. 21. 13. for that it seems to relate to, there, from v. 9. that is, as stone, a touchstone, whereby men may, and shall be tried, whether found and sincere; or no, ch. 8. 14, 15. Mat. 11. 6. & 21. 44, 45. Luk. 2. 34. 35. Rom. 9. 33. 1 Pet. 2. 7, 8. or rather a stone throughly tried and approved of, a choice stone, 1 Pet. 2. 4, 6. Yet some of the Rabbines would have it to import, a stone of munition, or defence; because it is very neer to a term that signifieth a fort, or tower; properly a sentinel, or watch-tower, chap. 23. 13. & 32. 14. There is a place called (with very small difference from the word here used) the stone of Bohan, Josh. 15. 6. which might peradventure here be alluded unto.

a precious corner-stone] Heb. a stone of the corner of precious stones, a corner, for a corner stone; for thence, the chief heads in a State are termed: as resembling corner-stones, corners, Judg. 20. 2. 1 Sam. 14. 38. the choicest and fumest stones, are made choice of for corner stones, as well for the finer knitting of the walls together, as for the better bearing up, and for the beauty also, (Pfal. 144. 12.) of the building; in both which regards, the name of a corner-stone, fitteth well to Christ, Pfal. 118. 22. Mat. 21. 42. Act. 4. 11. since, that he not only beareth up the entire structure of his Church, Mat. 16. 18. 1 Cor. 3. 11. Epheſ. 2. 20. but also joineth and knitteth most closely and firmly together, both the two main walls of Jew and Gentile, and each living stone also, in either wall, one to another, Ephe. 2. 14-22. & 4. 15, 16. 1 Pet. 2. 4, 5. and again, a stone of pretiousness, for most pretious, 1 Pet. 2. 4, 6. See chap. 54. 11.

a sure foundation] Heb. a foundation founded: that is, a firm and sure, a well-grounded foundation: as a founded staff, ch. 30. 32. ch. 26. 4. Matth. 7. 24, 25. Luk 6. 48.

he that believeth shall not make haste,] So the word properly signifieth, Jud. 30. 37. Now because men beingout of their way, are wont to run to and fro, hastily and unadvisedly, this way, and that way: some therefore render it, he shall not go astray. But I suppose rather, it respecteth the manner of those, that being in danger, without surety, or certainty of any means, whereby to escape, try this way, and that way, but keep not constant to any; or despairing of safety, if they stay by it, make all the haste they can to quit the place they are in at present, though as uncertain of safety elsewhere, Pfal. 55. 7. 8. Act. 27. 30. or that expecting helps from abroad, though having assurance given of their timely approach, yet refuse to stay their coming, and out distrust of relief, are ready to yield upon any, the baseſt terms. The meaning then is, that those, who by faith rest themselves upon this rock, upon God in Christ, and his powerfull protection, shall not in their streights and distresses, as men at their wits end, run backward and forward, seeking by sinister coutes, and any base shifts, to rid themselves out of danger, as the faithleſs Jews frequently did, refusing to rely upon God, chap. 30. 1, 5, 15. & 31. 1. Jer. 2. 18, 36. Hos. 5. 13. & 7. 11. & 12. 1. but they shall with assurance of a good and timely issue, depend upon God, and with patience, quietly expect the performance of his gracious promises, as well for a seasonable deliverance, as for a powerful and providential support, until the time thereof do come, Pfal. 62. 1, 2. & 112. 7, 8. & 121. 1, 2. 2 Chr. 14. 11. & 16. 8. & 20. 12. ch. 8. 17. & 10. 20. & 30. 18. Jer. 17. 7. and it is not amiss observed by some of the Jewish Doctors, that he saith, the rather, he shall not make haste, because the prophecies and promises concerning either the exhibition of the Messia's then expected, or the deliverances of the faithful, were not presently effected; and God might seem, therefore, in mans fleshly conceit, to be slow and slack in his performances, against which temptation, they were to arm themselves with faith and patience, Hab. 2. 3, 4. Luk. 21. 19. Heb. 10. 36, 37. Now what the Prophet saith, he shall not make haste, the Apostle seems to render, he shall not be ashamed, or confounded, Rom. 9. 33. Whence, some suppose, some alteration to be in the Originall, from what anciently it was. But, besides what might be, and is commonly answered, that the Apostle ofr, in citing Scripture, regards not the words, but the matter; and herein both well agree, (since that it is the manner of men, that are in such confusion, to be heady and hasty) the Apostle, as he joyneth in the former part of that quotation, two places of this Prophet together, chap. 8. 14. & 28. 16. so in the latter part, likewise, he might well have an eye to two other, this, and that chap. 49. 23. where it is said, They that wait on me, shall not be confounded, or ashamed, a place parallel to this. The Chaldee here rendreth it, He that believeth these things, shall not tremble; or shall not be moved, when trouble cometh: rightly interpreting, saith the learned Annotator, the term here used, by that of moving: For so, saith he, the Ethiopick word fignifieth in the active form, to move, Mat. 27. 39. in the passive, to be moved, Mat. 11. 6. The sense is good & found, doubtleſs; but that proveth not this to be the genuine notion of the Hebrew term here used, and that in an active form, though a neuter or standing sense.

V. 17. Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousnesse to the plummet] Or, And I will set out judgment by line, and justice by plummet. Having provided sufficiently for my faithful and loyal ones security, I will proceed in an exact and precise way of justice, against these sensual, secure, and scornfull wretches: and this is laid down by a metaphor, taken from the practice of Masons and Carpenters, who when they will have a thing done exactly and exquisitely, are wont to do it by line and levell: fo Amos 7. 8. In which manner of speaking, may two things be intimated: First, a strict and severe proceeding against this brutish, profane, and malignant party, chap. 9. 27. & 27. 11. And secondly, a wary and cautelous carriage of this sad business, that though it fall heavy upon them; yet it doth not so far extend it self, as to hurt, or endamage any of those whom he shall be pleased to exempt, as workmen, to this end, draw the line over timber to be squared, or stone to be hewed, that in cutting, they may keep precisely to it, and not cut an hairs breadth beyond it.

Judgment I will lay] Heb. set judgment, for those scorners, v. 14. so ch. 34. 5.

to the line] Or, by line: as chap. 34. 17. For, as for the particle here used, the Prophet seems to have retained it, in reference to what was before, ver. 10. and wherein it also fo used, Job 35. 2. Chap. 32. 1. by line here, by judgment there: that is, according thereunto: So the rather it would be read, to remove an ambiguity: that it be not understood of some strict examination of the judgment and righteousnesse of others: the line is here meant, that workmen in building make use of, Job 38. 5. Chap. 44. 13.

righteousnesse] Or, justice: for that is the term we use most in matter of judicature: as when we say, do a man justice, and do justice upon a man.

to the plummet] Or, by level, as before: the word signifieth the weight that hangeth at the lines end, to keep it strait and eaven, 2 King. 21. 13. judgment and justice by line and level: or neither judgment without justice, nor justice without judgment: as neither any use of the line, in such case, without the level, no more then of the level, without the line: so that the meaning is, both joyntly, by both; though by a rhetoricall amplification, very familiar with this Prophet, expressed by way of distribution: of which manner of speech, see on ch. 5. 13. & 12. 6.

and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shal over-flow the hiding place] The effect of this strict proceeding of God with them, with the utter abandoning of all their vain confidences.

the hail] A storm of hail, Ezek. 13. 11.——15. See ver. 2.

sweep away] As with a besome: the like whereunto, see 1 King. 14. 10. ch. 14. 23. Or, as others, shovell away, as with a shovel: and others again, thrust out, as with a fork. Thus several Expositors, according to their several conceits, concerning the fignification of a word from this only, no instance else found, deduced, whereof see on Jer. 52. 18. But the forementioned learned Annotator rendreth it, shall lower up, because the word in the Ethiopick tongue, fignifieth to lower, Mat. 3. 12. & 13. 40. and hail, besides that it hath a burning or parching quality, is oft accompanied, in storms, with fire, Exod. 9. 24. Pfal. 18. 13.

the refuge of lies] Heb. of a lye as ver. 15. but termed so, here, not onely in regard of the ground of it, as there; but in regard of the effect of it, a lying refuge: as if he should say, Your refuge of lies shall prove a lying refuge: a refuge that shall not perform what it promised, and what ye presumed of: it it shall fail you then, when it should stand you in stead. So Jer. 7. 4. & 27. 15.

the waters] The land flood, ver. 15.

overflow the hiding place] shall surround your covert: of which, ver. 15. See ch. 16. 4. & 32. 2. a def & of the pronoun: as Ch. 13. 22. Gods judgements shall discover the vanity of your shifts, and ferret you out of all your hiding holes, Jer. 7. 21. & 16. 16. Ezek. 7. 19, & 17. 11, 14. and all your deep designs, and cunning projects, shall be a shed of thatch built on the land, that a shower of hail shall beat down, and the stream of the Land-flood, sweep away with it, Mat. 7. 27.

V. 18. And your covenant with death shall be disannulled, and your agreement with hell shall not stand] Ye shall be destroyed, notwithstanding all the courses, whereby ye suppose you or selves sufficiently secured against death.

Your covenant with death] Of which, ver. 15.

disannulled] Heb. expiated. So Chap. 27. 9. or, as some, daubed over; because the word is so used, Ge. 6. 14. it shall be clean wiped away, as a writing blotted out, and a deed defaced and cancelled: for so it is alſo, when sins are expiated with God, Chap. 43. 25. Col. 2. 14.

agreement] Heb. vision: as chap. 21. 2. & 29. 11. here, rather, provision: as the verb it comes of, sometime signifies, to provide, Exod. 18. 21. See ver. 15 the security, as we use the word, whereby ye make account, that ye have made provision sufficient, to secure your selves from destruction.

with hell] Or, the grave: as ver. 15.

shall not stand] Shall be of no force to secure you: So Chap. 7. 7.

when the overflowing scourge shall pass thorow] Or, for the scourge of the overflowing storm, or, flood, shall pass thorow, or, over the land, to wit, of Judah, chap. 8. 7, 8. and so did Sennacherib with his forces, ch. 36. 1. see ver. 15.

then shall ye be troden down by it] Heb. and ye shall be to it for a treading down: as ch. 5. 5. the scourge, or storm, that ye now scoff at, and the bore of the flood, that ye now make but a jeſt of, shall bear you down before it, with all your supports, and shall tread you down like dirt see ch. 10. 6, ver. 3. The words, entirely may thus be rendred; For the scourge of the surrounding flood, or storm, shall pass thorow the land, and ye shall be troden down by it: or, for when the scourge shall passe thorow ye shall be troden down by it: as ver. 18.

V. 19. From the time that it goeth forth, it shall take you] Heb. From its passing thorow (as Ezek. 5. 17.) it shall take you: as 1 Sam. 18. 30. from their going forth that is, when they went forth: So here, when it passeth thorow, or, As it passeth over, it shall take you: it shall surprize you: as Ezek. 23. 25. though ye say, it shall not come at you, ver. 15. or, it shall take you away: it shall carry you away with it, as the word is used, 1 King. 14. 26. Ezek. 22. 25.

for morning by morning, shall it pass over, by day and by night] Heb. by morning, by morning: as ch. 50. 4. that is, as some Interpreters, very early in the morning: as if he should say, it shall be upon you, ere you are up, it shall surprize you in your deepeſt security, when ye least of all dream of it, as ye ly sleeping in your beds: or, morning after morning; every morning, in a constant and continued course, it shall run over the land, again and again, day after day; and it shall pursue you inceſſantly, without intermiſſion: it shall not suffer you to rest, day or night, Rev. 14. 11. So the phrase is taken, Ezek. 46. 13, 14, 15. and by day, by day; for constantly, continually, every day, Pſ. 68. 19. & 71. 15. It shall break in with that violence, that nothing shall be able to stand before it; and it shall pass over so oft, that there shall be no escape from it. The Hebrew Doctors, some of them, expound it, of Sennacheribs army marching night and day (see Jer. 6. 5.) though not discovered until the morning, in which they entred upon Judea, ch. 10. 28-31. but this is, as many other, one of their groundleſs furmiſes.

and it shall be a vexation, only to understand the report] These words are diverſly understood of Interpreters: for some, by the word report, conceive to be meant, the wholesome doctrines, and serious admonitions, delivered by Gods Prophets to this people, as the word is taken chap. 53. 1. and they render the words, and it shall come to passe, that the commiting, or vexation, at least, shall make them to understand the word, or the doctrine, to wit, now delivered: they shall then, at least, to their wo and smart, understand and beleive, by what they undergo; and endure, the truth of that, which they will not now apprehend: and this suiteth well, with what went before, v. 9. But others, and so moſt of the Jewish Commenters, by report, understand the fame and rumour of the enemies approaches as chap. 37. 7. Jer. 10. 22. which alone should make them to tremble and quake for fear: see Ezek. 21. 7. Hab. 3. 16. and they render the text, it shall be a quaking only, or, it shall make them quake, only to hear the report of it: either the report, alone, shall call them into a fit of trembling; or, the report of it, shall affright them only; but no way conduce to procure any means of escape; and the latter of these, do the Hebrew pauses seem to affect.

vexation] So is the verb rendred, Hab. 3. 7. that shall vex thee. But in other places, otherwiſe; as Eſt. 5. 9. where it is said of Mordecai, that he filled both with grief, and did not move, or stir, to Haman; and Eccl. 12. 3. where the keepers of the house, that is, the hands, or arms, as moſt conceive it, are said to tremble, or shake, in old age: from whence divers render the word, here, no where else found in this form, a trembling, or, a quaking; & some other, a commotion: under standing it of that combustion and confusion that should then be in the land. Yet some other, in regard that another word, in found very ner it, is constantly us'd for a removall, Deut. 28. 25. 2 Chr. 29. 8. Ier. 15. 4. & 24. 9. & 29. 18. & 34. 17. Ezek. 23. 46. supposing this by transposition of a letter only, to be the same with that, render it indeed a commotion, but understand thereby, an amotion rather, a deportation, or removall of them, by captivity, into Babylon. But one of the most curious Jewish Criticks, is of the mind, that those two words come from several roots, However it be, for the peculiar and proper notion of the word, certain it is: that both the terrour that the rumour of the enemies approach should strike into them, and his presence much more, together with the dismal effects of it, as well the commotion in it, as the removal of them out of it, would exceedingly dismay, and feal up unto them the truth of the things, which they formerly made so light of. Job 33. 14. Ezek. 6. 10.

V. 20. For the bed is short, that a man cannot stretch himself on it; and the covering is narrower, then that he can wrap himself in it] Or, For the bedstock is so short, that one cannot stretch out himself on it, and the coverlet too streit for one to wrap himself in. The words seem to contain a proverbial kind of speech; the meaning whereof is that they should be in such streights and distresses, as all their wiles and shifts should not be able either to secure, or succour them in. A similitude borrowed from one that lyeth in bed ease, by reason of the shortnesse of the bed-stock he lyeth on; and with as little warmth, in regard of the scantnesse of the bed-cloaths that should cover him. And the Prophet might, peradventure, have some glance at their beds, on which they were wont to ly flutting at pleasure, with their rich bed-furniture hanging down on either side at large. See Amos 6. 4. Prov. 7. 16. and the like allusion, ch. 14. 11. They seem too streight, that would restrain it to Jerusalem; that before being as a large bed, wherein men might ly and stretch themselves at pleasure, should now be cut short, and streightned in her former liberty and plenty, ch. 29. 23. and those too nice, that would have this passage meant of their affliction by night, as the rest, of what, by day, they were to endure: Those too wide from the Prophets purpose, that would have it to intimate, the final number of those that should be exempted from destruction, as if the coverlet of Gods protection were said to be narrowed, and to reach no further then the City of Jerusalem only: and those no less, that would have it import a reclaiming of them from their idols; that they committed whoredome with as implying, that though the marriage-bed were large enough to hold man and wife, yet it was too streight, to take in an adulterer with them. See ch. 57. 7, 8.

the bed] Or, bed-stock, or whatsoever is laid under one to ly, and take rest on: as Pl. 139. 8. alluded unto, Job 17. 14. ch. 14. 11. yet the word here used, is no where else found.

is short that a man cannot stretch himself on it] Heb. is short from stretching out ones self, that is, is so short, that one cannot stretch out himself on it, or in it: Of the phrase, see on ch. 23. 12. a defect of the pronoun, as ch. 26. 13. for they seem not sufficiently to express the force, or observe aright the use of the word, that render the text, the bedding is to short hang over: the word is no where else found, but one not much unlike it in the same notion with it, Amos 6. 4, 7.

the covering] Of which see ch. 30. 1. here in way of metaphor, or similitude; the coverlet, or such bed-cloaths, as are cast over a man to cover him, or to wrap himself in, for warmth, while he takes his rest, Exod. 22. 27. 1 Sam. 18. 13.

narrower, that that he can wrap himself in it] Heb. is narrow in ones gathering up himself: that is, when a man, because he cannot ly at full length, for the shortnesse of his bed, would fain gather up his body, that he might ly at more ease, the bed-cloaths prove too scanty then to cover him, and to afford him any shelter: they shall have nothing to accommodate them, or relieve them, either under them, or over them, from above, or from beneath. See ch. 24. 17, 18.

V. 21. For the Lord shall rise up, as in mount Perazim] God shall come suddenly and fiercely upon them, as he did sometime upon their enemies, and deal with them, in another manner, then he is wont to do with his people.

rise up] Or, stand up: he will rise, and stand up then, who now seems to sit still, and ye deem will so ever do, Zeph. 1. 12. See chap. 5. 19.

as in mount Perazim] Heb. according to mount Perazim: as he then did, when he there discomfited, and dispersed the Philistines forces before David, wherein the place had its name, 2 Sam. 5. 20. 1 Chr. 14. 16. See the like phrase, ch. 10. 26. & 13. 19.

he shall be wroth, as in the valley of Gibeon] he wroth: as Prov. 29. 9. or, raise himself: as cap. 14. 9 thus, the rather, because it suiteth fitly with the former: as in the valley of Gibeon. Heb. according to the valley of Gibeon, as before: this some refer to the story of the discomfiture of the Amorites before Joshua, Josh. 10. 10. where it is further related, that in the defcent from thence to Bethoron, God flew many of them, with hail stones from heaven, ver. 11. which suiteth well with the storm of hail mentioned here, ver. 17. But others rather deem, that one, and the same story, is in either branch, after our Prophets usuall manner, resp. cted. For the same story that relateth that discomfiture, and dispersion of the Philistines at mount Perazim, withall telleth us; that upon the Philistines recollecting of themselves again, David, by Gods direction, upon a sign given him, of Gods letting out against them, for the second time upon them, put them to flight, and pursued them from Gibeon to Gazer, 2 Sam. 5. 22. 1 Chr. 14. 16. how be it, the Prophet might have an eye to either, that he may do his work, his strange work, and bring to pass his act, his strange act] Heb. to do his deed, his strange deed; and to work his work, his forein work: That is, to effect this heavy doom, and to inflict this dismal judgment, upon the main body of his own people, grown now to such an height of extream impiety and profaneness, ch. 10. 6. called here, his strange act, and a forein work: either because admirable and wonderfull, ch. 29. 14. or because unusual and dreadfull, as Prov. 23. 33. or, because strange with God, as being contrary to his disposition, of himself, enclining rather to mercy, then to wrath, ch. 27. 4. Lam. 3. 33. Ezek. 33. 11. or strange to him, in regard of his people, fighting against those, ch. 29. 23. Jer. 21. 4, 5. & 33. 5. whom he was wont to protect, ch. 37. 35. and to fight for, as at the times pointed to, in the words next before-going; and carrying himself as a stranger, Jer. 14. 8. yea, as an enemy, Jer. 30. 14. toward those, whom he had formerly been as tender of, as any the most affectionate Parent, Father, or Mother is, or can be, of their dearest darling, Deut. 8. 5. & 32. 10, 11. Psal. 103. 13. Ch. 49. 14.

V. 22. Now therefore be ye not mockers, lest your bands be made strong] The Prophet here concludeth his fore-going denunciations, with a serious admonition to those mockers and scoffers at the menaces of Gods Prophets, ver. 13, 14 advising them to forbear, and give over, this their profane and irreligious practice, lest God ty them up the streighter for it, and lay the heavyer things upon them, Lev. 26. 23, 24.

bands be made strong] Bands, for afflictions and streights, Psal. 66. 11. & 73. 4. & 116. 16. an allusion to such bands, as prisoners, and captives, are wont to be bound with, ch. 52. 3. Jer. 30. 8. the bands that God blindeth them with, will be too strong for them to break; and the more they now slight them, the streighter and stronger they are like to prove. See Jer. 28. 10, 11, 13. though some suppose an allusion to those bands, that as sheaves of corn, so bundels of other trash also are wont to be bound up with, to make fewel of, or matter for the fire, Mat. 13. 30. to which purpose, also, they expound somewhat, v. 26 but the Prophet seems not to have arrived at that similitude from husbandry, as yet.

for I have heard from the Lord God of Hosts, a consumption even determined upon the whole earth] I can assure you from God, that he is fully resolved, without further delay, to make an utter riddance of such of you, as so continue, thorow the whole land. See ch. 10. 22, 23.

V. 23. Give ye ear, and hearе my voyce; hearken, and hear my speech] Or, Attend, and hear, what I say. Being to give them further assurance, that God would not always be menacing; but would at length inflict; and withall, to declare the equity and wisdome of God, in the manner of his proceedings, by an argument taken, from the usuall practice of husband-men, in the tilling of their ground, and in the disposing of their grain: he doth by those terms thus reiterated, labour to rouze and stir them up, to a more serious consideration of what he was to deliver to them. So v. 14. See the like, ch. 32. 9. Now the husband-mans prudent, and provident practice, & discreet carriage of his business, is observed and described here, 1, In the preparing of his ground, for receit of seed, v. 24. 2. In the manner of casting in his seed, ver. 25, 3. in the course he takes for the beating out of his grain, ver. 27, 28.

V. 24. Doth the plowman plow all day to sow? doth he open and break the clods of his ground?] Or, will the plowman be all day (that is, continually, as Psal. 44. 22.) plowing, or opening, and harrowing his land? the disjunctive is wanting, as chap. 17. 6. Psal. 94. 16. The verb is, in a notion, of a continued act, or employment, as Ioh. 2. 20. Fourty and six years hath this Temple been built; that is, so long hath it been in building: and the term of continuance, belongeth, as well to the latter branch, as to the former, as Pl. 44. 15. ch. 58. 13. The meaning is, as the husbandman is not always alone any one work, but hath his several times and seasons, for his several employments; he is not always plowing, or harrowing his ground; but when he hath sufficiently opened it, and broken the clods, and levelled the surface of it, he casts in his seed: and when the crop is come to maturity, he thrusts in the sickle, and cuts down the corn, and after thresheth out the grain; and hath his time, as well for these, as for those foregoing employments: so the Lord hath likewise his times and seasons, for his several works and dispensations, as well of judgment, as of mercy; and will not therefore alwaies be admonishing, and menacing, by the ministery of his messengers, but will at length, proceed to execution, and make good his menaces upon those that continue obstinate, and slight the warnings that now are given them, Gen. 6. 3. Ezek. 12. 28. that which before the Prophet warned them of, v. 22. implying, as some conceive also, in those words, that Gods harvest time was now at hand, ch. 17. 5. Ezek. 7. 10, 11. Joel 3. 13. Rev. 14. 13.

break the clods] Whether by rake, or mallet, or harrow, for the word hath no special notation, that may restrain it to any one particular: it came after plowing, Hos. 10. 11. and was, it seems, done ordinarily with some instrument, not unlike our harrow drawn over the land, first plowed, by some beast, Job 39. 10. Thence a field seems to have had its, name in Hebrew, as properly signifying such an one, as is used for tillage, Jere. ma 6, 18. Micha 3. 12.

V. 25. When he hath made plain the face thereof, doth he not cast abroad the fitches, and scatter the cummin, and cast in the principal wheat, and the appointed barley, and the rye in their place?] He doth not plow, plow, and harrow his ground to no purpose; or spend his whole time, and cire out himself, in an endless course, about that one employment, or sit down and proceed no further, when he hath so done; but when he hath fitted his ground for the receit of his seed, he then committeth it to the ground, disposing of each sort of grain, in his several quarter, according to the nature of the seed, and the soil. That which the Prophet illustrates, by a particular recension, of some of the special sorts of grain, and seed, then most in use. Now if it be demanded, how this fifteth the Prophets purpose, to wit, to intimate that God will not be alwaies admonishing and menacing; but will, at length, proceed to execution, since that, howsoever, the breaking up of the ground, and the breaking of the clods, may in the spiritual husbandry, 1 Cor. 3. 9. Not unfitly resemble the pains, that the spiritual husbandman, 2 Tim. 2. 6. the Minister of God, taketh about the fitting of mens souls, for the receit of the spirituall seed, Luk. 5. 8, 11. of Gods word and grace, Jer. 4. 4. Hos. 10. 12, 13. And that threshing, be in Scripture, an ordinary emblem of afflictions, and sufferings, Of which see chap. 25, 10. Yet the sowing of the seed, may seem not so fit to represent Gods execution of judgment; and is both in the places, above pointed to, and elsewhere also, commonly used another way. To this it may be answered, First, that the same similitude, is in Scripture, many times, diversly, yea, contrarily, made use of; Of which, see on chap. 27. 12. & 64. 6, & 66. 14. Secondly, that it is sufficient, that it holdeth in the general, to wit, that as the husbandman is not always about one work, but having dispatcht that which he hath in hand, proceedeth unto that that in his course of employment, is next to be done: so God having for some competent space of time, taken pains, by way of perswasion, and premonition, with his people, doth, in the next place, proceed to that which in the course of his just, and most prudent dispensation is next; to the execution of judgment, with those that will take no warning, but refuse to be reclaimed, and reformed, by the former, 2 Chr. 36. 15-17. Thirdly, the sowing of seed, is not altogether unfit to resemble the execution of Gods judgment, partly, in the scattering of it upon the ground, Levit. 26. 33. Deut. 28. 64. chap. 24. 1. partly, in the throwing of it into the ground, and for a time, as it were, burying it there, Pl 126. 5, 6. Ezek. 37. 11, 12.

when] Heb. if, as ch 4. 4. Iudg. 21. 21.

he hath made plain] By breaking of the clods, that made it uneven and unequal. The word in this form, and thus applyed, is no where else found.

the face] Or, surface of it: as Chap. 27. 6. Eccl. 11. 1.

cast abroad] Or, dispers'e. A word, which I find not any where else used of sowing, save here: but of dispersion, by way of captivity, and discomfiture, very frequently, Deut. 4. 27. Psal. 18. 14. & 144. 6. chap. 24. 1. & 41. 16. Jer. 18. 17. Ezek. 36. 19. and not without some special ground, therefore, in likelihood, made use of here.

fitches] The Hebrew word, here used, doth not signifie fitches, or, tares, no more then the Greek word, so rendred, Mat 13. 25. And there is another word rendred fitches, Ezek. 4. 9. but the seed of a plant, somewhat like to our cockel, called from the blackness of it by the Greeks, Μελάνθιον by the Latines, Nigella, & by some, Gith, Plny lib. 29 c. 17.

scatter] Nor do I finde this word, used elsewhere of sowing, but of sprinkling, blood, or water, for expiation, oft, Exod. 24. 6. Levit. 1. 5. Num. 19. 20. Ezek. 36. 25 and of scattering fire over the city, as a symbole of Gods wrath to be poured forth upon it, Ezek. 10. 2. It suiteth therefore well here; and it fitteth well with sowing, in which men are wont to lay their seed on heaps, greater or less, but to scatter it in building: and the term of continuance, belongeth, as well to the latter branch, as to the former, as Pl. 44. 15. ch. 58. 13. The meaning is, as the husbandman is not alwaies alone any one work, but hath his several times and seasons, for his several employments; he is not alwaies plowing, or harrowing his ground; but when he hath sufficiently opened it, and broken the clods, and levelled the surface of it, he casts in his seed: and when the crop is come to maturity, he thrusts in the sickle, and cuts down the corn, and after thresheth out the grain; and hath his time, as well for these, as for those foregoing employments: so the Lord hath likewise his times and seasons, for his several works and dispensations, as well of judgment, as of mercy; and will not therefore alwaies be admonishing, and menacing, by the ministery of his messengers, but will at length, proceed to execution, and make good his menaces upon those that continue obstinate, and slight the warnings that now are given them, Gen. 6. 3. Ezek. 12. 28. that which before the Prophet warned them of, v. 22. implying, as some conceive also, in those words, that Gods harvest time was now at hand, ch. 17. 5. Ezek. 7. 10, 11. Joel 3. 13. Rev. 14. 13.

the principal wheat] So the most; from a term that hath a notion of principality, and prevalency, Iudg. 9. 22. Hos. 12. 4. Whence Sarah, Gen. 17. 15, 16. and Israel, Gen. 32. 28. And the word so taken, implie a greater care, that the husband-man hath in procuring the choice, for seed especially, of this more noble grain, then about those other of less esteem. How beit, some read it, the wheat in a principal place; as making choice of his chief ground, for his principal grain. And so there is a defect of the particle in, as v. 7. and of the subject, as vers. 4. Others, in meas'ure, as a word neer it signifies, the same with our English, Levit. 19. 35. Ezek. 4. 11. And so it should intimate his discretion, in proportioning the quantity of his grain, to the ground that is to bear it.

the appointed barly] Or, as some, the marked barly. That is, say they, set apart for seed in a lack, with a mark set upon it, for choice grain. But some other render it, the barly in its appointed place, or, the place marked out for it: as alluding to certain marks set up in the fields, to shew how far such and such grain, or seed, should be sowed. The defect of the subject, as before: and this the rather, because the word barly, is in the Hebrew a feminine; whereas the participle, here used, is masculine: the word is no where else found in Scripture. But the Rabbines ufe it, for to design: and a word thence derived, for rows, whether ridges, or trenches, designed for receit of seed.

the rye] So it is rendred, Exod. 9. 32. Howbeit, the plural masculine of it, is after the old Latine, by ours, rendred, fitches, Ezek. 4. 9.

in their place] Heb. in, or, within, its bounds. For the particle, in, is, as before, wanting; and the pronoun is singular, and seems to belong to this last, being masculine; because the word seed, or grain, is such: and because the word signifies a bound or border, some of the Jewish Commenters would have the meaning to be, as if it were said. He will sow his wheat in the principal part, or the middest of his field; but the rye in the verge, or the edges, and borders of it, neither so good, or time, nor so safe. But that seems not so well to suit with the context. The intention of the Prophet seems to be, to shew the husbandmans discretion, in sowing his seed, neither confounding, and mingling his seed, of severall sorts and kinds, one with another, Deut. 22. 9. nor casting them into the same ground; but assigning unto each sort and kind, a several place; and that such, as is suitable thereunto. Thereby implying, also, that God though after admonitions and menaces, he proceed to a further matter, unto execution of judgment; yet he doth that also, with much discretion, according to the divers dispositions of those with whom he hath to deal. Of which also, more after, ver. 27. 28.

V. 26. For his God doth instruct him to discretion, and doth teach him] In these words, thus read, should a reason be rendred how it commeth to pass, that the husbandman carrieth himself so discreetly, and prudently, in these his affairs, to wit, because God hath endued him with wisdom, and discretion so to do, Job 35. 11. as implying, that God would much more do all things, so, himself, who had taught the husbandman so to do. And this, no doubt, is intended throughout the whole passage. But yet there is another reading, that seems more agreeable, both to the words of the text, and to the course of the context: for thus the words lye in order, and run word for word. And he teacheth it out, according to that course, that his God teacheth him. According to which reading, the Prophet heer passeth from the husbandmans discretion in disposing of his seed, after he hath fitted the ground for it, unto his discretion in threshing, and beating it out; propounded in general terms in this verse, together with an intimat on, how, and from whom he learned so to do, but more particularly, declared, in his divers dealing, with divers sorts of grain & seed, in regard of the divers nature, and quality of them, v. 27, 28. And this Expolition I finde approved, and confirmed, by the late learned Annotator.

For] Heb. And. Which here need not be altered.

he doth instruct him] So most, both Jewish, and ours, applying it to God. Yet some of either, otherwise understanding it of the husbandman. Among these, one of ours renders the word, He bindeth it up; conceiving it to be meant of the husbandmans binding his crop up in sheaves and bundles, after it is cut, Mat. 13. 30. But though the word binding come neer to that of chastising, here used; yet they are divers; and it is this, not that, we have here. Again, one of the Jewish Doctors understandeth it of his breaking the clods, to make the ground level, ver. 25, 26. And one of ours, (whom I suppose to come home to the genuine sense of the place, he beateth it out, to wit, in the threshing of it, to sever the seed, o. grain, from the stalk, or straw. The word signifies, first, and properly, to beat: And so would be rendred in some other places: as 1 King. 12. 11. & 2 Chr. 10. 11. My Father did beat you with whips, but I will beat you with hooked scourges. Or, as some of the Jewish Commentators, with brambles. See Judg. 8. 7, 16. Sure the term of chastising fitteth not there: for the complaint was not of any sharp penalties for misdemeanors; but of heavy taxes and burdens, laid on them, for the maintenance of his state. And so may it also be rendred, in divers speeches of Solomon, concerning the correcting of children, by beating them with the rod, as Prov. 19. 18. & 29. 17. and of the use of the rod, in this place of husbandry, see ver. 27. which seemeth, also, to have an allusion, to that manner of chastising children with the rod.

to discretion] Or, according to that course, for the article here is significant. Heb judgment, as according to judgment, Job 32. 2. ch. 32. 1. Jer. 30. 11. for the phrase. But the Hebrew word judgment, is far larger then judiciary proceedings, and is used frequently, for any course, custome, manner, or usage, good or bad. So 1 Sam. 2. 13. the manner, or custome of the Priest was: and, This will be the course, or manner of the King, 1 Sam. 8. 11. So Judg. 13. 13. what shall be the manner of the child? that is, what course is to be taken with him: and, 2 King. 2. 7. what was the manner of the man: that is, what manner of man was he?

his God] That, or which, his God: a defect of the relative, as ver. 12. his God; the husbandmans God, as well as the Statesmans; and the Pesants, as well as the Princes: for they are all, alike, the work of his hands, Job 34. 19. Prov. 22. 2. & 29. 13.

teacheth him] God teacheth the husbandman how to manage his ground, and to sow his seed, as well as the Warrier how to handle his weapon, Psal. 18. 34. & 144. 1. or the Ruler how to sway the Scepter, Prov. 8. 14-16. ver. 6. chap. 32. 11, 16. One of the Rabbines tells us, that his Father thus expounded this v. afe; And he beateth, or breaketh (to wit, the clods) to pieces, and his God exacteth upon it: or, And when he hath by beating broken the clods, he expecteth what time his God will exact upon it, to make his seed come up, having done his endeayour, he expects Gods blessing upon his labours, without which, all would be frustrate, Hag. 1.5,9-11. Zach. 10.1. Jam. 5.5. alluded to, Hos. 10.12. a place not rightly read: this difference of version ariseth from the various use of the word, signifying primarily, to call, Exod. 15.4. Prov. 26.18. then more especially, to call out arrows, to shoot, 1 Chr. 10.3.2. Chr. 26.15. to call forth, or deliver doctrine, direction, or instruction, to teach, Deut. 17.7. Hag. 2.11. and lastly, to call forth, or pour down showers, to rain, or to water, Hos. 6.3. & 10.12. Prov. 11. 25. hence also that ambiguity, ch. 30. 28. But the text, plain and free, of it self, seems over-much squeezed, to force, it to this sense.

V. 27. For the fitches are not threshed out with a threshing instrument: neither is a cart wheel turned about upon the cummin: but the fitches are beaten out with a staff, and the cummin with a rod.] What was spoken in general, v. 26. of the husbandmans cautious & discreet carriage, in the ensuing and beating out of his seed and fore-mentioned particulars, and his various dealing with his several sorts of them. And his discretion and caution, is in two things observed: First, in that he hath gentler ways for the beating out of the tenderer seeds, then those, that he useth about the harder grain. And secondly, that though he makes use of some harsher means, for the threshing out of the harder grain; yet neither doth he keep it continually under the cart, or the hoof; (the means mostly then used) nor doth he suffer it to be bruised, or beaten to pieces, as are the clods, v. 24. and so spoyled by either, v. 28. The intent of the Prophet being to shew that God hath divers sorts of dealing, for divers sorts of Deliquents, according to the nature and quality, either of the offender, or of the offence, ch. 27. 7, 8. and again, that even when he dealeth more roughly, then ordinary, with his own people, being refractory, he doth it not with such rigour, as utterly to destroy them, Ier. 30. 11.

the fitches] Or, gith. See on ver. 25.

a threshing instrument] Not any such, as we in these partsuse; but a kind of sled, or drey, drawn on wheels, flod with iron, be set with spokes, or teeth, which they drew over the corn, to strike out the grain. Of it mention is again, ch. 41. 15. And this was used, for the beating out of their bread-corn, v. 28. the harder sort of their grain, such, as was the wheat, barly, and rye, mentioned, v. 25.

neither is] Heb. and is; the negative, wanting, is supplyed from the former branch: as Deut. 23. 6. Prov. 30. 3. & 31. 3. otherwise, the copulative must go for the disjunctive: and, for or, as Gen. 2. 5, 6. Job 6. 22, 23. See v. 28.

turned about] As it is used to be, in drawing over the corn: these seeds are too tender, to endure such rough usage; and therefore, in stead of the sled, and the wheel, a staff, or flail, is used for the one, the less tender of the two; and a rod, or twig, for the beating out of the other, that cannot fadge so well with the flail: as in chastising of sturdy servants, a cane or a cudgel is sometime used; in correcting of a tender young ling, a twig, or a rod, which we use to lay, will break no bones.

V. 28. Bread-corn is bruised] Thus is the text generally rendred and read; save that some for bruised, read ground: for it must, say they, be ground, before it can become bread: and some, though it be threshed. But neither doth the Prophet here meddle with grinding; nor doth the word signifie to thresh, being read, as it is here, affirmatively, this branch should run directly counter to the close of the verse; where the same word is used, and that withall denied, that according to the received reading, is here affirmed. I suppose, therefore, that the negative is here wanting, to be supplyed from the verse next before, as it was there supplyed, in the latter branch, from the former: so it is in many places of Scripture, Job 23. 17. Psal. 9. 18. & 91. 5, 6. where it is thrice supplyed in two verses, from the first branch of the former verse. Thus then the text would run, For the gith is not threshed with a drey ; nor is the cart-wheel turned about upon the cummin —— Nor is the bread-corn bruised, Or, if that seem better, the disjunctive supplyed will help it as well; and then the text may be thus rendred, For the gith is not threshed with a drey, or is a cart-wheel turned about upon the cummin. —— Or, is the bread-corn bruised. And the defect of the disjunctive is no less frequent. See 1 Sam. 20. 13. 2 King. 9. 32. Job 6. 6. & 8. 11. & 11. 7. & 13. 9. ch. 17. 6. & 38. 14. The meaning then is, the harder grain, such as bread is usually made of, as wheat, barly, and rye, though the drey be drawn over it, and the iron-wheel bruize the straw and stalk of it, which the husbandman doth not so much regard (See ch. 5. 10.) and the beast be suffered to trample upon it; yet is all this carryed so cautiously by him, that the grain is not mauled to pieces, or marred; which he further confirmeth in the words ensuing.

bread-corn] Heb. bread. bread, for corn, where of bread is made, Psal. 104. 15. Eccl. 11. 1. ch. 30. 23. as corn, for bread, that is made of corn, Lam. 2. 12. Zach. 9. 17.

is bruised] Or, beaten to powder : for the word properly signifieth, Exod. 30. 36. & 32. 20. 2 King. 23. 6. and so it is used affirmatively, where mention is made of the enemies of Gods people, Chap. 41. 15. Mic. 4. 13. but so is not the husbandman wont to do, in threshing out of his grain, that especially, which he intends to make bread of.

because he will not ever be threshing it] Heb. for (as ver. 17.) he will not, for ever threshing, thresh it. One reason, why the grain is preserved from being bruized and battered; because the husbandman doth not suffer either the sled to pass inceslantly over it, or the beasts to trample over-long upon it; but when it is once beaten out of the husk, and beaten off from the straw, he then flayeth his hand, and leaveth further threshing : Nor is the husbandman always threshing his corn; nor is God always chastising his people: it would break their hearts, if he should so do, Psal. 103. 9. & 125. 3. ch. 57. 16. Lam. 3. 31, 32.

nor break it with the wheel of his cart, nor bruize it with his horsemen] Heb. and break it : where again, we have either a defect of the negative, necessarily requiring a supply thereof; or, the copulative put in the room of the disjunctive as v. 27. The words may well be rendred, nor shall his cart-wheel break it to pieces ; nor shall his horsemen, or iron teeth, any of them grind it to powder. A second reason, why the grain is not spoyled, because the husbandman is carefull to order the matter, that neither from the beasts hooves, nor from the wheel of the cart, notwithstanding the iron spokes of it, the grain shall receive any such harm, as that eby to be made unuseful. So God, though he exercise his sometime, with harsh and heavy things, Pl. 60. 2, 3. & 66, 11, 12. c. 10. 6. yet he art tempereth the affliction to their strength, Psalm. 103. 13, 14. 1 Cor. 10. 13. and so disposeth things, in his most wise and holy providence, that they shall not, in, or by the same, perish, Ezek. 11. 16. Luk. 21. 16, 18. Rom. 8. 28. Some read the words that his cart-wheel may not break it; nor his iron spokes, bruize it: and then this is given only, as a reason, why he doth not prolong his threshing. It cometh much to one, whether way it be read.

break it] The word is so rendred, Deut. 2. 15. and might well so be also, Jer. 51. 34. a defect of the pronoun as ver. 20.

with the wheel of his cart] Or, his cart wheel; whereof, ver. 27.

nor bruize it] Or, beat it to powder, as before: nor seemeth that to have place here; he will to deal with it after ward in grinding it at the mill, but in not threshing it on the floor; it would not fit with the matter thereby here treated.

with his horsemen] That is, as some, those that guide the sled which the horses draw; or, as others, the hooves of the beasts; either those that draw the drey, or that themselves tread out the corn, Mic. 4. 14. for that manner of threshing was usual also in those parts; whence the Law: concerning the not muzzelling of the Ox, that treade out the corn, Deut. 25. 4. 1 Cor. 9. 9. and so the old Latine. But the word, that signifieth an hoof, though in found somewhat like this; yet is of another form and mould, and riseth from a diverse root. And the Hebrew Criticks tels us, that the word signifieth those irons spokes, or teeth, that the cart wheel was befet with; so called, because they resembled the rowels of horsemens spurs: and they observe here a double Syntax, that which our version followeth; which being admitted, there is a defect of the instrumental particle; as ch. 17. 5. 9. and that which was before exhibited; which if we follow, the word must be taken distributively; because the noun is plural, the verb singular: as Job 12. 7. Joel 1. 20. Howbeit, the learned Annotator would have the word rendred horsemen, to signifie horses, both here, and elsewhere: as ch. 21. 7. 9. & 22. 6. 1 Sam. 8. 11. & 2 Sam. 1. 6. none of which places, yet seem necessarily to evince that notion of the word.

V. 29. This also cometh forth from the Lord of Hosts, which is wonderfull in Counsell, and excellent in working.] The word, Thus, the most suppose to have reference to the discreet, and prudent carriage of the husbandman, in the threshing out of his grain, as proceeding from the same ground with the former, in the eating of his land, and disposing of his seed, thereby implying, that that God, who hath taught him to use such discretion in matters of lesse moment, will much more carry himself most wisely and providently, in matters of greater weight; as well in the execution of judgment, upon obstinate wicked ones; as also, and that more specially, in the chastising of his children: so that, though he proceed in just severity in the punishing of the ones; yet he will have an eye still unto the indemnity of the other. See the like argumentation, Psalm. 94. 10. Yet some other refer the word, to the devastation of the land of Judah, before menaced, v. 2. either by the Assyrian, or by the Chaldean forces, or both; as proceeding from an appointment of God, and the enemy therefore coming, as with a commission from him, ch. 10. 6. Ier. 25. 9. But the former seemes to flow more naturally from the course of the context.

which is] Or, who is, rather; because of a person, a defect of the relative as v. 12, 26.

is wonderfull in counsell] See chap. 9. 6. Heb. maketh Counsell wonderfull: Or, doth is wonderfully in counsell; but the former rather, that is, taketh strange and wonderful courses, according to his secret counsels and purposes, both for the destruction of his enemies, and the protection of his people, Chap. 25. 1. as Psalm 31. 21. he hath made his kindnesse wonderful : that is, he hath done wonderfully out of his kindness, or doth wonderfully kindly. See chap. 29. 14.

and is excellent in working] The copulative is wanting : as chap. 15. 1. Heb. magnifieth, or maketh great, wil dome; or, doth great, or magnificently in wisdome; that is, doth exceeding wisely: as Gen. 19. 19. thou hast magnified thy kindnesse; that is, done exceeding kindly. I render render the word here used, rather wil dome, then working, for which, I never find it used, or then effence, or fubstance, which it seems sometime to import, Job 30. 22. or, the thing it self, as some other have: and Job 11. 6. & Mic. 6. 9. because whatsoever the word may, in those other places, signifie, it seems not to suit so well here: But, true wisdome, or true wil dome, as some; or found wil dome, as others render it: for wil dome, indeed, it is apparently taken, Job 12. 16. compared with v. 13. Prov. 2. 7. compared with v. 6. Prov. 3. 21. where this, and discretion; and Prov. 8. 14. where this, and counsel are linked together. In either branch there seems a defect, not so much of the preposition which our version suggests and supplies; as of the pronoun, expressed in those places pointed to; his counsel, his wil dome : the like defect, Chapter 17. 9. and oft elsewhere; and the common use of the phrase seems here to require it.

CHAP. XXIX.

Ver. 1. VVO to Ariel, to Ariel, the City where David dwelt] In this Chapter is contained a sad Prophecy against Jerusalem; and consequently, the whole State of the Jews, whereof that was the head City, threatning the destitution and destruction of either; yet concluded, as our Prophets usuall manner is, with gracious promises of mercy, and restitution again.

Wo to Ariel, to Ariel] Or, O Ariel, Ariel : as chap. 10. 5. & 18. 1. the word signifieth, a mighty lyon, Gods lyon or a lyon of Gods: as, mountains of God, Psal. 36. 6. and trees of God, Psal. 104. 16. and so it seems taken, 2 Sam. 23. 20. two Ariels, that is two mighty lyons, or lyon-like men : and so also, 1 Chr. 11. 22. but here, in a more peculiar manner, as consecrated to Gods service, is the brazen altar of burnt offerings, called Ezek. 43. 15, 16. not, as some superstitiously Jews, in regard of some imitation it should have to the Lyon in the Zodiack, but because it seemed as a horn, to devour the bodies of those beasts, that were by the fire, continually burning upon it, consumed into ashes, Lev. 6. 9, 12, 13 for there is said to devour, and to be fed with such matter, as those, they consumed, Lev. 3. 11, 16. chap. 5. 24. & 11. 5. So againe, that is as some, because morning and evening some beast was ofe red to it, as to a lyon, for his daily diet. Num. 28. 2-4. It is that, that is here after, ch. 31. 9. called Gods chimney, or furnace, put here, for the Temple: the place of it; the ruine whereof, is here threatned, together with the City of Jerusalem, wherein the Temple stood. And it may well be conceived, as spoken by way of compellation, O Ariel; because the verb, next following, is in the second person, as spoken to, or unto: that either attended it, or reported to it by Sacrifice & the more usuall phrase, the word is reiterated, as, O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, Mat. 23, 37. and so, alfo, would some have the text taken here, as after delivered by way of lamentation : Alas, Ariel, Ariel, as Jer. 13. 27. But I rather follow the former, as seeming better to suit with the words ensuing.

the City] Or, of the city, or in the city: for the particle ir is of various things, as Chap. 28. 7. that belong to it, or are situate in it, Ezr. 7. 17. or, it may be read, following the received version, and to the City, supplying the copulative : as Chap. 22. 6. for the destruction of the city, as well as of the Temple, is denounced, v. 2. and so it would agree fitly with their exposition, who by the Altar, suppose to be meant the Temple, and mount Moriah, on which it stood, 2 Chr. 3. 1. by the city of David, mount Sion, where the Kings Court was, 1 Chr. 11. 7. and so destruction, of both estates, together denounced. But I conceive it rather, to be added, by apposition, in way of explication; O Ariel, that is the city as if he had said, ye ask, what by Ariel, I mean, I tell you, it is the city of Jerusalem, therefore by way of anticipation, before to come, because it was to be made as another Ariel, v. 2. See the like, ch. 14. 10. And the city, put here for the inhabitants of it, whom, in the next branch, he directs his speech unto.

where David dwelt] Or, wherein, or, in which David dwelt: because a defect not of the adverb, so much as of the preposition, and the relative according to the Hebrews usuall syntax, as, 1 Chr. 15. 12. 2 Chr. 1. 4.

dwelt] Heb. encamped: where upon, some render it, which David encamped against, 2 Sam. 5. 6. 7 others, which David fortified; because it is said of the fort of Sion, that David dwelt in it, and called it the city of David, and built round about it, 2 Sam. 5. 9. but the word is used likewise simply, for to dwell, as Neh. 9. 30. Mention is made of David, the rather, partly to mind them of him, from whom they had degenerated : as 1 King. 11. 4, 6, 12. & 14. 8. and partly to let them know, that no such relation, or external priviledge should exempt them, from deserved destruction, Jer. 7. 4, 14. Mat. 3. 9, 10. See chap. 7. 13.

adde ye yeer to yeers; let them kill Sacrifices] Or, proceed ye from yeer to yeer, in procuring, or causing your festival sacrifices to be slain. Keep your yearly feasts, while ye may, ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, for ye shall not keep them long, Exod. 23. 14. Lam. 1. 4. nor shall your vain confidence, in your sacrifices, long continue, Ier. 7. 14, 21. Yet I suppose this no sufficient ground, for their opinion, who hence gather, that this Prophecy was delivered just two yeer before the siege of Jerusalem, by Senacherib, and to extend it self no further, then to that expedition, which some entitling passages seem to countenance.

and let them kill] Or, and let the Priests kill : but the word seems indefinite, let Sacrifices be slain : add ye——let them slay Sacrifice : that is, cause Sacrifices to be slain : as chap. 47. 1. thou shalt not add, they shall not call thee : that is, thou shalt no longer be called : and Hos. 1. 6. I will not add, I will not have mercy any more : that is, I will not continue still to shew mercy : and Prov. 23. 35. I will add, I will further seek after it : that is, I will again seek after it still. See v. 4.

kill] Some of the Jewish Criticks suppose it, to be a standing verb, as they term it, in the form here used, and render the text therefore, let Sacrifices be slain, as the direct Grammatical construction of it; or, as others, whom the old Latine concurs with, your feasts, or sacrifices, shall be cut off, and fail, by occasion of the enemies, either siege, or surprisal of the city, Dan. 11. 31. Lam. 1. 4. & 2. 6. But most take it, for a pailing verb, as in another form, it is used for to cut, or to lop, chap. 10. 33, 34. and those that so take it here, suppose it, to signifie to behead or, to cut of the head of a beast, because the chaldee Paraphrast so useth it, ch. 66. 3. and some of ours to render it here.

sacrifices] Heb. feasts ; that is, festival sacrifices : feasts for beasts slain, and sacrificed at, and in their solemn feasts : as Exod. 23. 18. Psal. 118. 27. for they seem wide, who because the verb is used of lopping, or cutting down of boughes, or branches, chap. 10. 34. & would have by this term understood, not the beasts that were slain; but such boughs, or branches of trees, as at some of their festivals, they were wont to cut down to build them booths and arbours with, or to make use of otherwise, Neh. 8. 15, 16. Mat. 21. 8. Howbeit, their conjecture is not improbable, who deem this prophecy to have been delivered, at the time of some solemn feast : the scope of the Prophet, in this passage, being to check their jollity, and to control their security, and vain confidence, in the sacrifices then offered: so ch. 66. 3. Jer. 7. 21. Hos. 9. 1. Amos 4. 4, 5. & 5. 21, 22.

V. 2. Yet I will distress Ariel, and there shall be heavinesse, and sorrow: and it shall be unto me, as Ariel] For all the jollity ye now make, and enjoy in your festivals, and the safety, and security, that, in regard of the present performances, ye promise to your selves; yet neither shall ye be able, by any force ye can make, to rid your selves out of the streights, that the enemy shall put you into; nor by any rites, performed by you, so to pacifie Gods wrath, justly incensed against you, as to cause him not to joyn with, and assist the adversary, in so pressing, and oppressing you, and your city.

Yet] Heb. And, But so also, chap. 17. 6.

I will distress] Not the enemy onely, but I my self by them, and with them. So they complain, Psal. 66. 11, 12. Lam. 1. 5, 12-15. & 2. 1-8. & 3. 1-17. and so ch. 22. 5. ver. 3, 5.

Ariel] Not the city only, but my temple also, and mine altar, Lam. 2. 1, 6, 7.

heavinesse, and sorrow] There are two words in the Hebrew here, of the same notion, and arising from the same root, as if we should say, mourning, and mourfulness: or, grief, and grievousnesse. And it seems to have been an usual form of speech among them, whereby to express an extremity of grief and heavines. For the same is found also, used, Lam. 2. 5. rendred there, mourning, and Lamentation. See the like hereunto, ver. 14. Such heavinesse they should be in, as in regard of their own present distresses; so for the overthrow, in especial manner, of the temple and the altar, as it followeth there, Lam. 2. 6, 7. Or, as those that restrain this to Sennacheribs invasion; for their brethren slain abroad, in the cities of Judah, chap. 10. 6. & 36. 1.

and it shall be unto me, as Ariel] That this passage hath reference to the city of Jerusalem, before mentioned, ver. 1. is generally agreed. But it is diverfly expounded. Some read it, as in the time past, because (as chap. 64. 5.) it hath been unto me, as Ariel; that is, as a fierce Lion, befet with shepherds, or hunters on every side. See chap. 31. 4. Jer. 12. 8. Ezek. 19. 8. Others, It shall be as Ariel; that is, the city shall be in the same distresses, that the temple, and the altar shall be in. But this seems but a poor exposition; for the city might be in distresse, and yet not the temple: whereas the temple shall be in the head, and heart of the city, that could not be in any distresse; but the city, of necessity, must first be. Others, therefore, the city shall be, on every side, encompassed with slain men, as the altar is wont to be, at some solemn festival, with beasts, brought for sacrifice, and the people that bring them, Psal. 26. 6. & 118. 27. or, it shall be encompassed with slain men, as the altar is wont to be with slain beasts; which they understand of men not slain without, but round about it, by Sennacheribs forces, Psal. 79. 2, 3. Or, lastly, which I take to be the genuine sense, the whole city shall be as an Ariel, as the altar, and the place where it standeth; it shall be all on a light-fire, all full of gore bloud, and the dead bodies of men slaughtered, after the surprisal of it, 2 King. 25. 9. 2 Chr. 36. 17, 19. Psal. 74. 7, 8. Lam. 4. 15.

unto me] Because all this, as before, was shewed, from God inflicted on them for their sin,ch.10.5.So *the Lords flesh,*ch.66.16.

V. 3. And I will camp against the round about,and will lay siege against thee with a mount ; and will raise forts against thee] I will bring in an enemy that shall,on every side,besiege it.ver.8. my self commanding them,as in chief,ver.2.Joel 2.11,25.

will camp] As before,where David encamped,ver.1. against thee] A change of the person ; as ch.1.29.and elsewhere.

round about] Heb. as, or,in manner of a ball,or, a globe.See ch. 22. 18.A phrase,not unusual in other languages : for so they say,a globe of souldiers,in Latine.Or,as some read it,with a ball. The particle, with,as in the next branch,supplyed: that is,say they, with a round camp;for their camps used to be round. Which they gather from a word used,1 Sam.26.5.

lay siege] Or,lye in siege;as Jer.32.3.or,befet thee,as Psal.139.5.

with a mount] Or,as some,a standing ; that is,say they,a tower,or, a gallery,for souldiers to stand upon for assault.For the word,no where else found,hath a notion of standing in it. But that agreeth well enough to a mount. The other seems to come within compass of the next branch;and must be understood collectively, if it be admitted. See Ezek.26.8,9.

V. 4. And thou shalt be brought down, and shalt speak out of the ground, and by speech shall be low out of the dust ; and thy voice shall be as one, that hath a familiar spirit out of the ground, and thy speech shall whisper out of the dust] By these thy distresses,thy former pride shall be pulled down,Levit.26.19.ch.3.11-17.& 5.15 and thou shalt not talk feornfully and carry thy self presumptuously,and insolently, as now thou dost,ch.28.14,15.but shalt be glad,in submiss,and bate manner,to petition the enemy,ch.10.3,4 fulfilled in part,as the Rabbins observe, in Ezekiah's message to Sennacherib, 2 King.18.14. and his messengers speech to Rabshakeh, 2 King.18.26.

thou shalt be brought down,and speak out of the ground] Heb. thou shalt be laid low,shalt speak out of the ground,or,from off the ground ; and afterward,out the dust : that is, by an Hebraism, thou shalt speak demissly or, dejectedly from off the ground,and out of the dust.Like one that lyeth on the ground,in the dust;as poor prisoners, and captives are wont to do, chap. 47. 1. & 52. 2. For the phrase, see on ver.1.and the like also,Hof.9.9.They have made deep, have corrupted them selves: that is,They have deeply corrupted themselves.And 1 Sam. 2.3.a place parallel to this,do not multiply,speak not so proudly,that is, speak no more so proudly.

be low] Be abated,and abased.See both words,this, and the former,likewise together,ch.2.6.& 5.15.

as one that hath a familiar spirit] Who used to mutter their spels, or give out their answers,in a low and obscure manner,many times, not intelligible. See ch.8.19.

out of the ground] Alluding,it may be,unto those caves and holes, out of which the Devil, sometime,inspired his agents, and uttred his oracles.

whisper out of the dust] Heb.peep, or, hiss,chap.8.19.Like the hissing of a serpent out of his hole,Jer.46.22.

V. 5. Moreover the multitude of thy strangers, shall be like small dust and the multitude of the terrible ones shall be as chaff,that passeth away,yea,it shall be at an instant,suddenly]All thy helps,and strength, either from abroad or at home,be they never either so many, or so mighty, shall fail thee, shall stand thee in no stead ; for they shall like dust,or chaff,be also suddenly blown away,as with a whirlwind. Yet the Jewish Commenters,whom some of ours also follow; understand all this,and what followeth, ver. 6 not of the Inhabitants of Jerusalem,but of the Assyrians,that beleagured it.And of these,some expound it of the numberless number of them, and the swiftness of their approach,Job 27.16.Ezek.26.10.Others, of their strange dispersion,and sudden destruction.To which purpose,see ch. 17.13.See the like, chap. 41. 15,16. But the context seems to run the other way.

small dust] An emphatical expression : for the substantive itself, signifies small dust,distinguished from duſt, in general, Deut.28.24. and the adjective, properly, ground to powder,Numb.16.12.See ch. 40.15.such as every puff of wind,soon dispersseth,Psal.18.42.

thy terrible ones] Some, thine oppressors,applying this,as strangers, before, to Sennacherib's forces ; as ch.25.4. Others, thy tyrants, or, visitors : understanding it of those great ones, among themselves, that domineered over the meaner sort, and in whole might, being also military men,they much confided, h 28.14,15.

as chaff that passeth away] Not able to stand before the wind,Psal. 35.5.See Lam.1.15.

it shall be at an instant suddenly] Or, for an instant. Some expound it of the help and relief, that foreign forces, or others, besides their own ; should afford them, which should not last long, but be suddenly blasted, Jer.37 7.Others,of their affliction and distress, that it should in an instant be over, ch.17.14.Others, of the enemies expedition, in the execution, of Gods judgments upon them, chap. 28. 19.& 30.13.Jer.4.22.& 6.26 & 15.8.and this seems most probable.

V. 6. Thou shalt be visited of the Lord of hosts, with thunder, and with earthquake,and with great noise,with storm and tempest, and the flame of devouring fire] In a most dreadful and direful manner will God execute his judgments upon thee, as if heaven and earth conspired together, and all the elements concurred to the working of thy ruine. This some understand of the destruction of the Assyrian forces, by the ministery of an Angel : of which, see ch.30. 27, 28,30,31.Others,of the destruction of Jerusalem,by the Chaldeans, ch.14.17,18.Lam.1.12,13.& 2.1,5.see the like expressions,Psal.11. 6. ch.13.13.

thunder] Psal.18.12-14.Rev.8.5. earth-quake] 1 Sam.14.15.Psal.18.7.ch.2.19,21.Rev.16.18.

noise] Heb.voice : as Exod.20.18.Rev.8. 5. thunder Gods voice, Psal.29.3-9.great noise, or voice,great cracks of thunder, Psal.77.17, 18.see ch.30.30,31.

storm and tempest] Or,stormy tempest : see ch.4.9. both joyned, as here : to Amos 1.14.Nah.1.3.

flame of devouring fire]ch.5 4.& 9.5.& 26.11.& 30.30.Lam.2.3.

V.7. And the multitude of all the Nations, that fight against Ariel, even all that fight against her,and her munition, and that distresse her shall be as the dream of a night vision.]This verse, and the next,some expound of the frustration of the vain hopes that Sennacherib had conceived of surprising Jerusalem, which suddenly vanished away, like a dream when a man awaketh,Iob 20.8.Psal.73.20. See ch.17. 13,14.others of the eagerneſse, and infatiableneſs of the Chaldeans, in the pursuit and execution of their cruelty,against, and upon Gods people : see ver.8.

all the Nations] As some,the Assyrians and their associates,c.10.8, & 17.13. as others,the Chaldeans,and their complices, 2 King. 24. 2.Jer.1.15.

a night vision.] Heb. vision of the night, Iob 4. 13. & 20. 8. & 33.15.

V. 8. It shall be, as when an hungry man dreameth, and behold he eateth ; but he awaketh, and his soul is empty: or, as when a thirsty man dreameth, and behold he drinketh ; but he awaketh, and behold he is faint, and his soul hath appetite : so shall the multitude of all nations be,that fight against mount Zion] The Prophet here more particularly declares, what manner of dream it was,that he intended, ver. 7. such an one,wherein a man being hungry and thirsty, hath some imaginary refreshing and satisfaction,while he is asleep, which vanisheth and proveth nothing at all when he awaketh. So did Sennacherib's dream, that he fed himself with, concerning the surprisal of Jerusalem. chap.10 10, 11.& 36.18-20. & 37.10,12. But the similitude forsooth no less fitly, with the Chaldeans insatiable cruelty, and thirſt after blood, when they might seem to have been glutted with it, that they were still no less greedy of it,then a man, thirsty, is of drink, for all that which he seemed to have drunk in his dream, 2 Chr.36.17.Jer.51. 35. most apparently verified in the spiritual Babylon, which though drunk again and again, with the blood of Gods servants ; yet unto drunkenneſs, still addeth thirſt, Deut.29.19.Rev.17.6.& 18.24.

he awaketh,and his soul is empty] Or, when he awaketh, his soul is empty,as Prov.6.12.ch.40.31.*his soul,*or himself : he is still empty; he is never a whit fuller,for all he did eat in his sleep : so my soul,for my self,Psal.57.4.empty : as,Ezek.24.11.

his soul hath appetite] He is as eagerly desirous of drink,as before ; though in his dream,he seemed to have drunk largely : see the same phrase,Psal.107 9.

so shall the multitude be] So it shall be with them ; as ver.7.

mount Zion] Jerusalem : as Psal.48.11.ch.3.ver.17.

V. 9. Stay your selves, and wonder, cry ye out, and cry] The Prophet having given warning of those heavy judgments of God, before mentioned, doth in the next place complain of, and wonder at the strange stupidity, and deep security, of those among his people, that no whit regarded what had bin threatned;but did still,as freely, as ever, abandon themselves unto all sensuality and excesſ : see the like, ch.5.11,12.& 22.12,13.& 28.5-15.

Stay your selves,and wonder.] The Prophet here, as most Interpreters take it,turneth his speech unto the pious party, inviting and inciting them,to admire at,and lament for the obstinate perſistance of a great party among them.The words are by some read, They delay (Psal.119.60.to wit,to return unto God, by humiliation and reformation,Ier.13.27.Jaud wonder ye at it ; a defect of the pronoun ; as ch.28.20.For those that render them,wonder,and wonder,as Hab. 1.5.that is,wonder exceedingly,or,again,and again,mistake the latter word,being deceived with the affinity,that it hath in sound with the former.

cry ye out, and cry,] So some other versions , but the former word is never found in that notion ; but constantly, in a signification of delight,or sport, Psal.94.19.& 119.16,70.ch.11.8.& 66.12.and some other therefore render it, They take their pleasure, or sport it (as Iob 21.10,12.Amos 6.3-6.1 Tim.5.6.Iam.5.5.)but cry ye out ; lamenting their folly, Ezek.9.4. Howbeit, some would have both this,and the former, to be spoken unto the worse party, reading the words;

Stay still, and be stupid; riot and revel it : yet not seriously, but in way of derision ; as Eccl.11.9.or, of them,as others, who thus render them, They have blinded themselves, and are blind : as chap. 6. 10.& ver.10.But the words here,and there,are not the same : There is in both branches, a pleasant tune of words, which our English cannot so fitly expreſs ; some what like, as if it were said, They stay, but stare ye, they riot, but roar ye : but the words of staring and roaring,will not so well fit here.

they are drunk, but not with wine ; they stagger,but not with strong drink]They are dulled in their understanding, lulled asleep in their sinful practices,unsteady in their courses,as is one, as men drowned in drink ; and by reason thereof,in a deep,or dead sleep ; so ch.19. 14.See the same phrase in another sense,ch.51.21.

but] Heb.and,as ver.8,13.

not with wine]This is not so much ; or,not only with wine ; but with a spirit of stupidity, which God in his just judgment hath cast them into, v.10. see the like, Deut.5.3.Jer.7.22.Hoſ.6.6.the negative is not absolute,but comparative : for to drunkenneſs and sensuality, they were, also,excellively given,ch.28.7,8. there is in either branch a defect of the preposition : as chap. 28. 28. expreſsed, chap 28.7.

staggers] As ch.24.19.or,stray ; as Gen.4.14.Jer.14. 10. but here the former rather.

V.10. For the Lord hath poured out upon you,the spirit of deep sleep, and hath closed your eyes :] One ground,and cause of their extream stupidity and security,is here rendred ; to wit, for that, in his just judgment, for their wilful obstinacy, God had given them up unto a further degree of stupidity and blindneſs : by withdrawing that light from them, against which they had rebelled, Iob 24.13. chap. 63.10.it is a just thing with God,when men wilfully wink, to dash out their eyes,Ioh 3.2. & 9.39——41.Rom.1.18, 28. 2 Thes. 2. 10——12.

the Lord hath poured out] See the like, ch.19.14. and the Apostles allegation of this place,Rom.11.8.

poured out] As the word is used, Exod.30.9.Hoſ.9.4.yet the Jewish Doctors would have it rather here rendred, covered : as the notion of the word is,chap.25.8.& 28. 20.& 30. 1. that it may answer the word used in the close of the verse. But the notions here, and there, are divers: for here the allusion is to some soporiferous potion, or medicine, that being minisired to a man, or sprinkled upon him, so as to bedew him, casteth him into a deep sleep: whereas, there is to some film, that groweth over the sight, or some veil,that covering the eyes,hinders the sight,that there is an eye to,ch.19.14. (a place parallel to this)to this latter,ch.25.7.

upon you] A change of the person,as v.3.

the Spirit of deep sleep] Or, a Spirit : for there is no article in the text. In Hebrew there are three several words : whereof one signifies to slumber, chap.56 10. Psal.132. 3. another, to sleep, Psal.76. 5. and 121.4.a third,to be in a deep sleep, Iudg.4.21.Psal.76.6. and thence the word here used, and Gen.2.21.& 15.12.1 Sam. 26. 12. Iob 4.13.& 33.15.Prov. 19. 15. the Apostle useth a word, wherewith the ancient Greek rendred it, which properly indeed signifies compunction, according to the notion of the verb, whence it is regularly derived : but the Authors of that version,as they coined many words, after an unusual stamp : so it is not unlikely, that they did the like with this, deducing it from a word, that signifies night, the time of sleep,thereby to expreſs the word here used.

hath closed your eyes] The word here used in the first light form, signifieth to shut ones own eyes,ch.33.14.in the first grave form,anothers,so here.See ch.6.10.

eyes]Nor of the body, but of the mind ; as Num.24.17.Deut.28. 2,4.Psal.119.18 Iph.1.18.

the Prophets,and your Rulers,the seers hath he covered]This heavy judgment of obduration and execation, hath not befallen the meaner and common sort of people only : but the principal ones, also,in either State,as well Ecclesiastical,as Civil, that should have been as lights and guides to others.

the Prophets] To wit,the false ones;yet so called,because they pretended and professed themselves to be such.so Jer.5 31 & 6.13.

and your Rulers,the Seers] Heb. and your heads, the Seers ; which some expound, even your chiefest,or principal(to wit,in your account) Seers : Head,for chief : as Exod 30.23. 1 Chr.12.18. Seers, for Prophets : as ch.30.10. others,and your Rulers,the seeing ones : that is, the wiseſt and prudenteſt of them,ver. 14. Heads, for Rulers : as Numb.1.16. seeing,for understanding : as Prov.20.12. or, your Rulers, the Seers,because the Prophets, in those distracted times, took upon to rule and govern,Jer.5.31.& 26.8.

hath he covered] he hath covered them, with that mist of spiritual blindneſs and darkneſs, Mic.3.6,7.v.14.or, as I suppoſe, the words should be rendred, the eyes of the Prophets,and of your Princes, together, with the Seers, hath he covered,ch.25.7. the word eyes,is supplyed from the foregoing branch:the like whereunto,see Iob 22.24.ch. 58.13.Dan.4 33, Rev.11.15.

V. 11. And the vision of all is become unto you, as the words of a book that is sealed] A sad effect of this dreadful judgment : to wit, that all Gods warnings and messages, delivered to them by his Prophets , should no more be regarded by them : nor they conceive any understanding or benefit from them ; then a man, though he can read,by a book, or letter rendred to him, so long as it is sealed up : or,a man that cannot read, whether it be sealed,or unsealed.

the vision of all] To wit, of all Gods Prophets, whom he sendeth on messages to you : or all their messages and sermons, ch.1.1.or, every vision,that is,all teachings:as Prov.29.18.

of a book that is sealed] As books some time were,Dan.12.9. Rev. 5.1.or, of an epistle,or letter:as 2 King.5.6 & 10.1. Jer.29.1. for such were commonly,as now,so then,sealed,1 King 21.8.Eſt.3.12,13.& 8.8.as deeds and evidences also were, Ier. 32. 11. See there which some suppoſe here alluded unto.

which men deliver to one that is learned] Heb. which they give it : (a familiar and frequent redundancy, in that language : as Psal. 1. 4.) which they give(that is, which is delivered,or given : as Gen. 40. 15.Rev.4.19.to ver.12.)to one that knoweth a book,or a letter : that is skilfull in the book,or letter,that is able to read it, or on it: a knowing man,for a skilful,or cunning man,Gen.25.27.1 Sam.16.16, 18.1 King.5.6.

saying,read this,I pray thee] Heb.word for word, cry this : as ch 40.6.Zach.1.16,17.but it is used,also,commonly for reading, Deut. 31.11.Neh.8.3,8.Ier 36.6,23.because in reading, the voice is wont to be lift up,that it may be the better heard,by those,for whom, or to whom, ought is read. Hence the Reading among the Jewish Criticks,distinguished from the Writing, when the letter of the text is read otherwise,then it is written:and thence also,the Turks Alcaron, or Law, hath its name.

and he saith,I cannot, for it is sealed] For neither book, nor letter can be read, unvill the seal be broken up, Rev. 5. 2-5. the whole sentence may thus be rendred : which when it is delivered to one that can read,saying,read this, I pray thee : he saith, I cannot,because it is sealed, See ch.8.16.& 28.25.

V. 12. And the book is delivered to one that is not learned, saying, read this,I pray thee : and he saith,I am not learned] Or, And when the book,or letter is delivered to one that cannot read : saying,read this, I pray thee:he saith, I can not read.So they of our Saviour, How knoweth this man letters, having not learned them ? Ioh.7.15. and of the Apoſtles,it is said,they were illiterate men:that is,not trained up in School-learning,Act. 4.13.

delivered to] Heb given upon : but so the particle is used, Iosh.2. 1 Sam.2.11.

that is not learned] Heb. that knoweth not to read : and so afterward,I know not to read : that is, I cannot read,knoweth not, for cannot : as Ier.8.12.

V. 13. Wherefore, the Lord said, For as much, as this people draw neer me with their mouth,and with their lips do honour me,but have removed their heart far from me : and their fear towards me, is taught by the precept of men] Another cause, or reaſon is here rendred, of Gods so severe proceeding in judgment : as before, their stupidity, senſuality, and security, ver. 9. 10. so now their meer formality in Gods service and Worship, which they frequented and performed, only in regard of humane, either tradition, teaching ; or authority maintaining and enjoyning it:see Mat.15.8.Mat.7.6.

Wherefore] Heb. And : as ch.8.1.or, Moreover,as ver.5.

Draw neer me with their mouth] worship me in hypocriſy, not in sincerity, with the outward man, and disposition of body : but not with the inward man,and affection of mind,ch.48.1,2. & 58. 2, 3. Ier.12.2.Ezek 14.3,4.& 33.31.*mouth,*for mouths:and heart,for hearts: as ly,for lyes,ch.28.15,and for precepts, for precepts.

but their heart] Heb.and : as ver.9.

their fear towards me] That is, worship of me,fear,for worship : as 2 King.17.32,33.

is taught] Is taught them:a defect of the pronoun:as ch.13.8,15.

by the precept of men]Either their religion is not according to my mind : but according to mens devices, consisting in the observation of humane traditions, Ier.7.31.Hoſ.5.11.Mat.15.3,9.Col.2.22. or, all their devotion under their religious Kings,was not hearty,but for their command only.2 King.23.22,26.2 Chr.27.2. Ier.3.10.

of men] Not sent by God,not taught of him,lay lome,Ier.23.16, 17,21,22.but it seems to be more large,as was before shewed.

V.14. Therefore, behold I will proceed to do a marvellous work amongst this people,even,a marvellous work and a wonder] A strange judgment denounced against them,for this their hypocriſie, and formality : so far,from being pleasing or acceptable to God, that it is most odious and abominable in his sight,ch.1.11-15.& 66.3.

Behold]As ch.26.11.& 28.16.

I will proceed]Heb. I will add,as v.1.ch.7.10. the syntax seems irregular,both here,and ch.38.5. the verb being of the third person : the like whereunto,the Iewish Criticks observe,Psal.62.Ezek. 9.8; Now,this to salve,some of them,render the words, I am he that will add. Others suppoſe it a participle,or a noun,as one of the same making,Psal.16.5.thou art maintaining,or the maintainer of my lot:see on chap.28.16.

to do a marvellous work] Heb. to do, or deal marvellously as Iudg. 13.19.chap.28.29. Ioel 2.26.

amongst this people] Heb.with this people.

even a marvellous work] The word, even, being not in the original, is here needleſs : the word is, according to some, a verb: and then the text runs thus. I will further deal marvellously, dealing marvellously:that is, I will deal exceedingly marvellously: such like repetitions,see ch.24.3,16,19.but I take it,rather,for a noun;because I find it so used,2 Chr.28.8.and the word coupled with it,there prefixed,here annexed annexed, seems to require it. So taking it, the words may well be rendred, I will deal marvellously with this people, by a marvellous thing, and a miracle: for the word work, is not in the Hebrew text.

a marvellous work, and a wonder] The words are two of the very same notion, and derived from the same root, or verb, even that here used, and may, for variety, be rendred, a marvellous thing, and a miracle, both used, and joyned, to expresse, more emphatically, the exceeding strangeness, of that God intended to do. See the very like, ver. 2. whether this so marvellous and miraculous businesse, be the infatuating of their wise counsellours, and turning of their wisedome into folly: as 2 Sam. 15. 21. or, the strange change and alteration, in the land and State, v. 17. is not certain.

for the wisedome of their wise men shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid] Their wise men, and great Politicians, whole counsels they to much rely upon, accounting them as oracles, 2 Sam. 16. 23. shall be infatuated; and all their prudent, and provident plots and projects come to nought, chap. 19. 11-14. v. 15, 16. c. 31. 1, 2. Jer. 49. 7. Obad. 8. Rom. 1. 22. 1 Cor. 1. 19, 20. & 3. 19, 20. This the more strange; because done with that people, whose governours God had promised to endow with wisedome; but now threatens, for their unthankfulnesse and misdemeanours, to deprive them again of it: see ch. 28. 3. 21.

for] Heb. and; as chap. 20. 17. Howbeit, the copulative may well stand; and the meaning then be, that all the wisdome and policy, which their Statesmen, the wisest of them, shall use to prevent, or avert this strange act that God intendeth, shall be utterly frustrate, ver. 16.

the wisedome] Their State-skill, together with all their deep projects. v. 16.

shall perish] As Jer. 18. 18. & 49. 7. Mic. 4. 9.

shall be hid] Heb. shall hide it self: as chap. 45. 15. hiding thy self: but the reciprocal form, is sometime used for the passive, Num. 1. 46. Judg. 20. 15. either shall not appear, and shew forth it self, whether for confusion, and uncertainty, what to act or devise, chap. 19. 14. or for distraction and fear, to deliver their minds freely, Amos 5. 13. Or, shall be covered over with that mist, or veil of stupidity, and blockishnesse, that God threatned to involve them in, ver. 10. or, shall depart from them; as Gen. 31. 49. when we shall be hid: that is, shall have departed, and be absent one from another. So Joh. 12. 36. he departed, and was hid: That is, absented himself from them; or, shall vanish away, and perish, be utterly lost: as some take the word, Prov. 28. 28. It seems the same with the former branch, in other terms, and the Prophet may well be deemed, in the use of the word, to have an eye to what follows, ver. 15. of their contriving and plotting things so closely, as to conceal them from God himself: as if he had said, Ye make account, to have your counsels hidden from God; and by his just judgment, they shall so be hid, that either they shall never come to light, or shall be utterly frustrate, and vanish away, if they do.

V. 15. Wo unto them, that seek deep to hide their counsel from the Lord; and their works are in the dark, and they say, who seeth us? and who knoweth us?] These words may well be read by way of compellation, O ye, that hide your counsel too deep for the Lord, whose doings are in the dark, and that say, Who can see us? or who can know us? The persons, here spoken of, seem those scoffing Statesmen, that derided all that the Prophets spake; and by their wiles and shifts, made account that they were sufficiently, able to secure themselves, whatsoever should come, or howsoever it should fare with others, Ch. 28. 14, 15. 22. Nor is it unlikely, but that they would promise the like security unto others, with whom they were in esteem, as great wisards of State: but as God, before, threatned to infatuate them, and turn their wisdome into folly: so he now further telleth them, that albeit, their devices and designs be so cunningly contrived, and so closely and covertly carried, that, in their conceit, they seemed to be deeper, and more abstruse, then God himself was able to descry and discover; yet they should no more be able, either to conceal themselves, and their plots, from him, or to bring to effect, ought, that he intended to crosse them in, then the potters clay is able to keep out of his sight, when he hath it in his hand, or to mould it self into any other frame, then he is pleased to work it to.

Wo unto them] Or, Ye. Of the compellation, see Chap. 10. 5. & 18. 1. Of the change of the person, see Job 18. 4. and Chap. 30. 19.

that seek deep to hide their counsell from the Lord] That is, as some, that take counsel in secret with themselves onely, not consulting with God, or seeking to him for direction, or assistance, chap. 31. 1. But the words seem rather to intend somewhat else; and they lye thus in the text, that make deep from the Lord, to hide counsel, where there are two Hebraisms, which being opened, will much clear the text. The former is, in making deep to hide: for to make deep to hide; is nothing else, but to hide deep, as, to make deep to dwell, is, to dwell deep, Jer. 49. 8, 15. See also, chap. 31. 6. The latter is, in making deep from the Lord: for, to make deep from the Lord, is, to make too deep for the Lord: to wit, to descry, or discover: as, deep from hell, or, the grave, long from the earth: broad from the sea: that is, deeper then hell, or, the grave: longer then the earth: broader then the Sea, Job 11. 8, 9. The meaning then is plain, conceived according to their intent, or conceit, concerning their own contrivances: that think, or make account to hide your counsels so deeply, that God himself cannot see them. So of Nabal his servants, He is a son of Belial, from to speak, or, speaking to him: that is, He is such a son of Belial, that one cannot speak to him: as our version well rendreth it. 1 Sam. 25, 17. See also, chap. 23. 1. There is, in the words, a metaphor, taken from the practice of those that dig deep to hide ought, that they would not have found out. See Prov. 20. 5. Job 12. 22. Psal. 64. 6.

their works are in the dark] Or, whose doings are in the dark, in secret, out of sight: as things that are flowed, or done in dark places cannot be seen without light, Psal. 11. 2. & 64. 2, 4. Job 24. 13-17. as if any darkness could hide from God, or any secret place exclude his eye-sight, Job 34. 21, 22. Psal. 139. 11, 12. Prov. 5 21. & 15, 3, 11.

and say, Who seeth us? and, who knoweth us?] Or, who can see? or, who can know us: That is, can descry, or know what we do. Meaning that none could, no not God himself, Job 22. 11-14. Psal. 10. 11, 13. & 64. 5. & 94. 7. the future, for the potential: as Job 38. 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 37. and the copulative for the disjunctive: as Judg. 11. 31. Job 31. 5, 7, 9. ver. 16.

V. 16. Surely your turning of things upside down, shall be esteemed, as the potters clay] Heb. Your turning upside down, (as 2 King. 21. 13.) or rolling to and fro, (as Hos. 11. 8. or, changing, and turning into new shapes, (as Exod. 7. 15. Levit. 13. 3. Num. 10. 6.) if as the potters clay it shall be accounted. But the particle, if, is, in Scripture, oft used, not as a conditional, but as a note of affeveration, and assurance: as Prov. 3. 34. & 23. 18. So the Hebrew writers here expound it. Howbeit, I conceive the word rendred if, to be, here, rather an interrogative: as oft it is, Job 8. 3. & 11. 2. & 17. 2. & 39. 27. and the negative omitted oft, in such forms of interrogation, (that which hath not hitherto, by any, been observed) ought to be supplyed. So 1 Sam. 2. 27, 28. Did I not appear to thy fathers house? and did I not choose him? and did I not give to thy fathers house? Job 20. 4. Knowest thou not this of old? where our version hath supplyed it. And Job 21. 4. Is not my complaint to man? where our version hath omitted it. See more hereof on Jer. 31. 20. And so the words may be rendred. Shall it not be accounted, as the potters clay? or, as clay to the potter? as if he had said, Yes undoubtedly, it shall. So this, in sense, comes fully home to the former: as the like twofold version, Psal. 63. 6. And the meaning either way rendred, Your turning of things upside down, to conceal your intended courses, as men whelm a dish, or vessel, to keep what is in it, to under it, out of sight, Mat. 5. 15. or, that which you roll up and down in your thoughts, devising how to contrive it, with the greatest cunning, and probability of succesle, to that purpole, casting it now into one frame, and then into a another shape, until you have moulded it to your mind: lyeth as open to God's eye, as the fashion of the pot of clay, doth to the potter, when he hath it before him, upon the wheel: and he is as able to quash it all, as the potter is to mar and alter the fashion of the vessel, when the making of it likes him not, Jer. 18. 3, 6. & 19. 9, 10. Job 12. 22. & 26. 6. Psal. 33. 10, 11. Prov. 15. 19. Heb. 4. 12, 13. Yet there want not that render it, Your turning, or, contriving of things, is, as if the clay were accounted the potter; or, as if the potter were repined at the clay. And as others, again, o your perverseneſs! as if the potter were accounted no better, or no other, then the clay. But the former seems more natural; and is the more received, both with Jewish, and other writers.

for shall the work say of him that made it, He made me not? or shall the thing framed, say of him that framed it, He hath no understanding?] Or, is some render it; for it is as if the work should say of the workman, He made me not; or the thing framed, should say of him that framed it, He understandeth me not. That is, your vain imagination in supposing that you can conceal ought that you do, or devise from God, is even, as if the vessel, framed by the potter, should, if it could speak, say, that he is ignorant of the fashion of it, and by consequence deny, that ever he made it. For sure, if they did believe that God made them, they could not but withall conceive, that he cannot be ignorant of ought, in his own work, Psal. 33. 15. & 94. 8-11. & 139. 1-5, 13-15. 1 Chr. 28. 9. Amos 4. 13. See ch. 45. 9, 10.

for shall the work say] Or, for, it is, as if the work should say. See the like concise forms. Josh. 2. 12. Esth. 2. 20. ch. 18. 3. & 54. 9. & 55. 9. Howbeit, the particle is used for an interrogative, ch. 36. 19. and may so be here.

of him] Heb. to him. So ch. 23. 5. & 27. 2.

or] Heb. and: so ver 15.

the thing framed] The word is applyed to the frame of mans, both body and soul, Job 17. 8. Psal. 103. 14. and to the imaginations of mans heart, Gen. 6. 5. Deut. 31. 21. 1 Chr. 29. 18. Properly, potters work; but used, more generally, for any kind of frame, Hab. 2. 18.

of him that framed it] Or, of its potter. The word before used, to keep to the comparison; So ch. 64. 8.

he hath no understanding] Or, he understandeth me not. He knoweth not what my fashion is: Applyed to man, in regard of God, he knoweth not what I think or do, Psal. 94. 7. The pronoun is to be supplyed, from the branch before going ing; as chap. 58. 13. See the like defect, Job 16. 8, 9. and 29. 11.

V. 17. Is it yet not a very little while, and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitfull field, and the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forrest] Heb. Lebanon shall return to Carmel, and Carmel be counted for a wood, or a forest. This some expound of a general devastation of the land; that mount Lebanon, being a place stored with goodly tall cedars, should become like Carmel, a place that had much earable ground, her cedars, and other tall trees being felled, and the Carmel of it, that is, their earable land, and places planted with vines, and other fruitful trees, should be so over-grown with shrubs, & wilde plants, no man dressing, or manuring them, that they should seem to be as a forest. That, lay they, which was effected by Sennacheribs army, over-running the whole country, ch. 6. 23, 24. & 37. 24. and came to pass, within a short time after this Prophecy. See ver. 1. And the letter of the text seems to look this way. Yet others expounds it parabolically, that the proud, lofty ones, like the cedars, should be pulled down; and low, and lowly ones, like the plants of Carmel, should be exalted: which, some of them, suppose fulfilled, in the breaking up of Sennacheribs Camp, what time, the proud Assyrians were jabafed, and the Jews, in a very low condition, advanced, Chapter 10. 12, 18, 34. Others, in the Chaldean invasion, when the great ones, were either slain, or carried captive, and the poor sort onely spared, 2 King. 25. 6, 7, 12, 18, 21, Chap. 2. 12, 13, 17. & 6, 15. 17. & 7. 21, 22. & 40. 5. Luk. 1. 52. & 18. 14. See ver. 20, 21. Others again, refer it to the times of the Messias, as importing a rejection of the Jews, and calling in of the Gentiles, that the Gentiles, who had been as favages, or as wild forests, fraught with barren and fruitless trees, should by spiritual managing and manuring, become orderly and fruitful; whereas the Jewish people that had been managed, and manured before, should grow wild and favage then. Now those all that thus expound this paſſage, seem to make it rather a commination, indeed then a promiſe, whereas, both by what here enſueth, as alſo by Chap. 32. 15. where the very same is repeated, it appeareth, rather, to be a very gracious promiſe, of the great fertility and fruitfulneſs, that God would abundantly bleſſe their land with, upon the reſtitution of their State, either after the Aſſyrian devaſtation, chap. 37. 30, 31. or after the Babylonian deportation, Ier. 31. 12. or both: ſee chap. 4. 2. So great, as ſome expound it, that the wilde places, that now lay foreſt-like, untilled, ſhould become as fertile, as thoſe places that are, at preſent, manured, and yield the moſt fruit; and thoſe places that are now moſt fertile, ſhould then ſo abound with fruit, that they might well be reckoned, but as wilde woods, in regard of what then they ſhould be: Or rather, as with the Jewiſh Commenters, I conceive it, that the woodly, like Lebanon: that yielded nothing but matter for building and fuel, ſhould then be tilled; as Carmel, to yield grain and fruit, affording plenty of food; and ſhould then be bleſſed with corn, and fruitfull trees, that they ſhould ſeem to be as a wood. See Pſal. 72. 16. This I ſuppoſe to be the firſt, proper, and literal ſenſe of the words: which if any yet deem further, to intimate the abundance of graces, in the Kingdome of Chriſt, I ſhall not contend with him. See Chap. 30. 25, 26. & 32. 15. & 35. 1, 2.

a very little while] Heb. a little ſmall; as ch. 10. 25. and it may ſeem to have reference to the Aſſyrian invaſion, and the conſequents thereof both here and there, albeit, that ſome paſſages before, v. 2. ſeem to reach further.

Lebanon] Of this mountain; ſee on ch. 2. 13. It is ſometime uſed for lofty, and ſtately places and perſons, as there; and ch. 10. 34. Jer. 22. 23. but here for wild, and untilled places, as appears by chap. 32. 15. where that is termed wilderneſs, that is here called Lebanon.

ſhall be turned into] Heb. ſhall return to. He ſeemeth to allude to their turnings, and windings, v. 16. which ſhould be frivolous, and fruſtrate; and to foretel, for the comfort of the faithful, another manner of turning, and change, that God himſelf would work for his; without any plots, or projects of theirs.

a fruitful field] Heb. Carmel. The word, primarily, ſignifies a green, or full: as ſome, ear of corn; Levit. 2. 14. & 23. 14. 2 King. 4. 42. From whence, grounds earable, or cornfields; are thought to have been ſtiſt ſo termed; though afterward it were enlarged to ſuch lands, as were not ſowen with, or ſet apart for corn onely but tilled, and manured for other purpoſes, and planted with vines, figs, trees, or olive-trees, and the like: oppoſed therefore, to woods and foreſts, or wilderneſſes; that were ſuffered to run wilde, or to lye waſte, and were ſtored onely, with fruitleſs trees, Cant. 2. 3. Chap. 10. 18. & 16. 10. and 32. 15. 16. and 37. 24. And in regard of much ground of that nature, lying on, and about them, ſome places in the land of Iudah and Iſrael, had that name; in more ſpecial manner: appropriated unto them, Joſh. 15. 15. & 19. 46. chap. 33. 9. See Chap. 10. 18.

ſhall be eſteemed as a foreſt] Heb. ſhall be accounted for a foreſt. Or, be counted a foreſt: Shall ſeem to be ſuch.

V. 18. In that day, ſhall the deaf heve the words of the book, and the eyes of the blind ſhall ſee out of obſcurity, and out of darkneſs] Our Prophet here, after his uſual manner, beginneth to cloſe up his Sermon with matter of comfort, in the better information: and reformation of ſome that had been ignorant, and averſe, v. 18. the confirmation, and abundant conſolation of the godly, v. 19. the confuſion, and deſtruction of thoſe that had wronged and oppreſſed them, ver. 20, 21. the vindication of them from their former ſhame and reproach, v. 22. the propagation, and enlargement of the Church by converſion of many proſelytes, ver. 23, 24. All which ſeem to have been, in part, made good to that people, in thoſe times, but was to be more plentifully fulfilled, in the Kingdom of Chriſt.

In that day] When theſe afflictions before-mentioned ſhall befall this people: as Ch. 2. 7. & 4. 1. or, after the time, that theſe afflictions have befallen them, and the Land and State reformed by them, the obſtinate wicked ones being deſtroyed, and the reſidue reclaimed & refined, ch. 1. 25, 28. as ch. 4. 2.

ſhall the deaf hear —— and the eyes of the blind ſhall ſee] This ſome expound, of thoſe wilfully blinded, and obſtinate prophane ones before-mentioned, v. 10. 15. that howſoever now they neither believed, or regarded ought, that by Gods Prophets was foretold them; yet when things foretold were now fulfilled, they ſhould be conſtrained to take notice of, and to acknowledge the truth of them Chap. 26. 11. Ezek. 2. 5. & 6. 10. So it ſhould be matter, not of mercy ſo much, as of judgment. But others, and ſo the moſt, rather underſtand it of a gracious work upon the ſouls of many, that being poſſeſſed with ſpiritual deafneſs, and blindneſs before, ſhould then, by the help of the Spirit of God, co-operating with the Miniſtery of his Meſſengers, cured, and recovered of thoſe their former maladies, and taken into Gods meſſages, conceive them aright, give all credit, and yeeld all obedience thereunto, Joh 33. 14.——16, 23---26. Chap. 35. 5. Luke 4. 18. John 9. 29. Act. 26. 18. Eph. 1. 18. Rev. 3. 18.

hear] To hear, both here, and elſe-where, in Scripture, is not barely to give one the hearing, as we uſe to ſay; as Chap. 6. 9. & 42. 19, 20. Mat. 13. 14, 19. Act. 22. 12. but to here with attention, with underſtanding, with belief, with obedience, Deut. 6. 3, 4. & 26. 17. 1 Sam. 15. 22. Mat. 13. 9. Acts 26. 14. Heb. 4. 2. of the book] Or, letter; as v. 11. which this paſſage hath an eye to either of Gods law; as Deut. 6. 6. & 31. 11. Joſh. 1. 8. or the meſſage of Gods Prophets, more ſpecially related to in that place. See ch. 30. 20, 21. neither ſhould they be then, as a book, or letter ſealed up, as before they had been, v. 11.

ſhall ſee out of obſcurity, and out of darkneſs] That is, coming out of obſcurity, or a miſt (ſee Chap. 8. 22.) and out of the dark. See the like defective ſpeech, Pſ. 45. 8. Ch. 38. 17. being brought out of that ſpiritual miſt and darkneſs, wherein they were before involved, ch. 9. 2. & 25. 7. & 49. 6. Luke 1. 77-79. & 2. 32. Col. 1. 12, 13. 1 Pet. 2. 9. Yet thoſe that apply this to the obſtinate, partly, by darkneſs, underſtand that darkneſs, that they endeavoured to hide their projects in ver. 15.

V. 19. The meek alſo ſhall encreaſe their joy in the Lord] The ſincerely, godly, and faithful ones, ſhall have abundance of joy & comfort, having being eſcaped and ſurvived thoſe grievous calamities, and being freed from the oppreſſion of thoſe ungodly great ones now rooted out, who were formerly a terrour to them, ver. 20, 21. Pſalm 58. 10, 11. and 68. 1-3. Chap. 35. 1. 10. and 66. 10, 11. Acts 9. 31.

The meek alſo] Heb. And the meek; as ch. 22. 9.

meek] Such are the ſincere godly; though, therefore the rather, meanly eſteemed in the world, Pſalm 25. 9. and 37. 11. Mat. 5. 5. Gal. 5. 23. therein conformable to Chriſt their head, Mat. 11. 29. & 21. 5.

ſhall encreaſe their joy] Heb. ſhall add joy: to add to, for to encreaſe; as ch. 26. 15. they ſhall have joy upon joy, abundance of joy, ch. 61. 10. Joh. 15. 11. Phil. 4. 4. 1 Pet. 1. 6, 8. 1 Joh. 1. 5. a defect of the pronoun, as ch. 13. 22.

joy in the Lord] Or, through the Lord joy: for ſo ly the words in the original; through him, that is, by means of his mercy, and goodneſſe ſhewed to them (as ch. 26. 13.) they have much joy: and ſo it Importeth the cauſe, or means, whereby they attained unto this their joy, Pſ. 21. 1, 2. or they have much joy, that is, abundance of ſpiritual joy; as implying the ground, or the ſubject matter and quality of it; Pſ. 32. 11. & 63. 11. & 97. 12. Phil. 3. 1. the order of the words ſeems to lead to the former.

and the poor among men ſhall rejoyce in the holy one of Iſrael] the ſame, in effect though in other terms, with the former.

the poor among men] Heb. the needy; (as chap. 25. 4. & 32. 7.) of Adam, that is, of men, or mean men. See chap. 2. 9. the poor of men, as the wife of women, Prov. 14. 1. that is, the wife among women: and the poor of the people, for the poor among the people, Exod. 23. 11. or, the poor of men, that is, the pooreſt of men; as the baſe of men, that is, the baſeſt of men; Dan. 4. 17. and the bad of the Heathen, for the worſt of them, Ezek. 7. 24. See chap. 14. 30. the moſt poor and needy, even of the meaner ſort of men, that were formerly ſpoyled, and made a prey to the great ones, Chap. 3. 14, 15. for among them alſo, God hath his, and hath a ſpeciall care of them, Pſal. 9. 18 & 10. 14, 17, 18. & 12. 5. and 40. 17. Matth. 5. 3. and 11. 5. Luke 6. 20. 1 Cor. 1. 26. 29.

V. 20. For the terrible one is brought to nought] Thoſe are deſtroyed, that were before a terrour to them, v. 5. ſee ch. 16. 4. and the scorner is consumed] The crew of the scorners and mockers is wasted away. See Chap.28.14,22.

and all that watch for iniquity are cut off] Heb. watchers of iniquity, that study how to do mischief, Psalm 36.4. Mich. 2. 1. and watch opportunity to put it in execution, as wilde beasts ly in wait to prey and spoil, Psalm 10.9. Jer.5.6.

V. 21. That make a man an offender for a word] The verb in its first light form signifies, to sin; in its first weighty form, to expiate, or take away sin, Num.19.19. Psalm 51.8. in its second light active form, first, and properly, to make one sin, himself, Eccles. 5. 6. or some other, 1 Kings 14.16. & 15.30. so most frequently; but sometime, also, in a less proper sense, to make one guilty; either by accusing, or condemning, as guilty, be it rightfully, or wrongfully. Now of this use of the word, albeit, I meet not, as yet, with any instance in Scripture, save this here only; yet I doubt not, but that it may well be warranted; first, by the use of another of the like notion, that signifies properly, to make wicked: but is thus very frequently, and familiarly taken, Deut.25.1. Job 9. 20. & 10. 2. Prov. 7.15. chap. 50.9. & 54. 17. and secondly, by the common use of its opposite; which signifying properly, to make just, Dan. 12.3. Yet is most commonly used, for to acquit, assoil, pronounce, or defend as guiltless, and free from offence, Exod.23. 7. Deut. 25. 1. 1Kings 8 . 32. Job 27. 5. Psalm 82. 3. Chap.50.8. See ch. 5. 23. where the condemning of one unjustly, is said to be a taking of his righteousness from him: Nor do we in any other sense use the word justifie; nor the Apostles in their writings, that word otherwise, for the most part, that answers the Hebrew term, Rom.3,28. & 4.2 & 5. 1. & 8.33. Gal.2.16. Now in regard of the two-fold notion, and use of the word, some taking it here, in his first & proper sense, would have the false Prophets meant, who by their words and lies, made men to sin, Jer.23.16. 17. 26, 27. Ezek. 13. 10,19.22. But the Prophet seems not here to be dealing with such, save as they might also be evil instruments, in the bad practises here spoken of; and the most therefore, both Jewish, and ours, understand it of great oppressours, and other wicked ones, their complices; or herein like them, that for a word slipping, from a man unawares, or some speech of his, perverted and misconstrued by them, would be ready to question him, molest him, bring him into trouble, and either procure, or pronounce a sentence and doom against him, as a delinquent, Jer.18.18. & 20 10. Mat.22.15. and 26.61. Luke 11.53,54.

and lay a snare for him, that reproveth in the gate] A Metaphor from the practice of Fowlers, that set springs and gins for birds, Psal.91.3. Prov. 6,5. and so do these, for Gods prophets, their Teachers, devising which way to ensnare them, and create trouble to them; yea, take their lives from them, out of their extream malice, and deadly hatred, that they bear them, for their seasonable and wholesome reproofs, which they cannot abide, Mat.22.45, 46. and 22.15,16,18. and 26.3,4,14-16. and 27. 18. Luke 23. 2. Acts.9 29. and 23.24,25.

that reproveth in the gates] That is, in publike; for the gates of their cities, were places, wherein there was usually much confluence of people; in regard, that both matters of Judicature, and other publike affairs, were there commonly transacted, Deut. 17. 5. and 21.19. and 22.15, 24. 2 Kings 7. 17, 18, 20. as also, the gates of the Temple, were places of much concourse, 1 Sam.2.22. 2 Kings 20.4. Jer. 26. 10. for which cause, the Prophets, also, delivered Gods messages in the gates sometimes of the Temple, Jer.7.2. sometimes of the Kings house, and of the City, as well as in the Temple, Jer. 17. 19. and 22.2. and I rather, therefore, concur with those, that render the words according to our version here, and lay a snare for him, that reproveth in the gate; then with those, that would have them read, they lay a snare in the gate, for him that reproveth: especially finding the very same elsewhere, they hate him that reproveth in the gate, Amos 5.10.

and turn aside the just for a thing of nought] That pick quarrels against men and in judgment, prosecute and cast them, being otherwise guiltless: either for matters of no moment, or worth (as 1 Sam. 12.21. or for things that are not for nothing (as Job 6.18.) without any weighty or just cause, Ps.69.4,5. or, as others, that by vain and frivolous pretences, and falshoods, turn aside, or cause to go the wrong way, the cause of the righteous; as ch.41.29. Of the word, see ch.24.10.

turn aside] Heb. make to decline; and in matter of judicature, it is applyed sometime to the party questioned; sometime to the carriage of his cause: when to the party questioned, it importeth to wrong him, and, causelesly, to cast, or condemn him, Prov. 18.5. it is not good to accept the person of the wicked, or to overthrow, or depress, or cast the righteous in judgment: and ch 10. 2. to turn aside, or force aside the needy from judgment: and again, they turn aside the poor in the gate, from their right, Amos 5.12. & Mal. 3. 5. that turn away the stranger, to wit, from his right: when to the cause, or the course of Judicature, it implyeth, a perverting of the right, and even carriage of the business, Exod. 23. 6. Thou shalt not pervert the Judgment of thy Poor in his cause: and cursed be he that perverteth the judgment of fatherless, stranger, or widow, Deut. 27.19. and, To turn aside, or pervert the right, or judgment of a man, Lam 3. 35. and Prov.17.23 A wicked man taketh a gift out of the bosome, to pervert the ways of Judgment: to which purpose, that also seems to be intended, Amos 2. 7. of perverting, or turning aside the way, or course of the meek: to wit, by oppressing and over-swaying them in matter of Judicature. All which laid together, induceth me to conceive, that as there is an ellipsis, or defect, of the word Judgment, signifying a judiciary proceeding in that injunction, Exod.23.2. Thou shalt not speak in a cause declining, or turning aside to great ones; that is, to make Judgment declined, or to turn it aside (for that that word is to be supplyed there, appeareth by ver.9. above related) so that in most of the places, if not all, before produced, where the person alone is mentioned, the same word is to be supplyed not by annexing it, as our version doth, Amos 5. 12. and Mal. 3.5. to the close of the sentence, but by inserting of it in the body of it, that pervert, or turn aside the poor, and the stranger, that is, the judgment of the poor, and the stranger, and the like: as it is expressed, Deut.27.19. & Lam.3. 35. the word may well be rendred, according to the native notion, and proper use of it; either to divert, or turn aside; and then it is a metaphor taken, either from the forcing of man or beast, out of his course or way; as it is used of Balaams beating his asse to turn her aside again, Num.22.23. & Ps.125.5. those that turn aside to crooked ways: and chap. 30.11. go out of the way, turn aside out of the path; and so it is, to cause a diversion from a direct way, and straight line of Justice and Equity, in the carriage of a mans cause: or it may be rendred, to depress, or over-sway; as it is used oft, for to encline, or bow down, Gen.24.14. Ps.31.2. Prov. 5.1. & 7.21. Amos 2. 8. and so it may be in allusion to the use of a ballance, such as Justice is wont to be deciphered, holding in her hand, that which seems glanced at, Psal.58.2. as being an over-sway, ing, or swaying down the ballance of judgment or justice the one way, the wrong way, (whereas it ought to hang eaven and levell) to the prejudice of the guiltlesse party. A learned Annotator rendreth the words a new way, they make the just to decline into the wast, or desart; that is, by setting snares for him, in the gate, so that he cannot (without hazard of life) enter the city, they enforce him to betake himself unto waste places, and to live as an exile in the Wildernesse, as David wished he could; Psal.55.7. Jeremie, that he might, Jer.9.2. yea, as David, and others, sometime were constrained to do, 1 Sam.24.1. & 26.3,19,20. Heb. 11. 38. and indeed the word here is applyed sometime to waste places, but not put for them. See Jer.4,23. but the received version seemeth the genuine, and more familiar.

V.22. Therefore, thus saith the Lord, who redeemed Abraham, concerning the house of Jacob; Jacob shall not now be ashamed: neither shall his face now wax pale] The reproach and contempt which Gods people formerly endured, and the fears and terrors that they were formerly exposed unto, what by the adversary from abroad, or by the great ones, that oppressed them at home, shall be utterly removed, chap.25.8. & 54.4. & 61. 7.

Therefore] Considering how they have been formerly wronged, as well at home, as from abroad, verse 20, 21. Psalm 12.5.

thus saith the Lord] As ch.51.22.

who redeemed Abraham] Or, rescued and delivered; so is the word ordinarily used, 2 Sam. 4.9. 1 Kings 1 .29. Psal.55.18. & 107.2. that called him from, and brought him out of an Idolatrous place and people, Gen. 12.1. Job 24.2,3. though that Abraham himself, ever was an Idolater, doth not thence appear: or, that rescued him out of, and preserved him from many dangers and distresses, that he was exposed unto, and might have otherwise bin surprized with, by means of those strange people of severall Countries, through which he travelled, and among whom he sojourned, Gen.12.3. & 15.1. Ps.105.12 14,15. See Gen.48.16.

concerning] Heb. unto: See ch.37.33.

the house of Jacob] The Jewish people, his family descended from him their father, ch.2.5.

Jacob] This some understand of the person of Jacob: Jacob, who if he were alive, would be ashamed to see his children fallen from God, shall now have no cause of any such shame. But by Jacob, is here meant, rather, Jacobs Posterity, the house, or Family of Jacob, before mentioned. See ch.9.8. & 14.1.

not now] As formerly, ch.7.2. & 30.5.

be ashamed] Heb. blush, Ezra 9.6. Jer.6.15. for shame, Psalm 44.15.

his face wax pale] Heb. white: for though the verb be no where else in Scriprure read; yet the nouns derived from it, are elsewhere found, and so signifie, Dan.7.9. Est.1.6. & 8.15. pale, for fear, Jer.30.6. though some make this the same with the former, understanding both of shame, and Joel 2.6. blackness, or swartness of face, is made an effect of extream fear.

V. 23. But when he seeth his children, the work of mine hands in the middest of him, they shall sanctifie my name, and shall sanctifie the holy one of Jacob, and shall fear the God of Israel] To the removall of their former reproach, shame and fear, is a further blessing added, that should much enhance their forementioned joy, v.19. the consideration of a large encrease of an holy issue, that God should blesse his Church with, not such ignorant, formal, and profane ones, as it consisted of formerly; but an understanding people, new moulded, bringing honour to his name, and serving him sincerely, according to his Will and Word; for whom it shall have abundant occasion of blessing of God, for blessing it with such encrease.

But] As Chap.2. 6. yet some, For, as Chap.28,27. and of these, some some thus render the words, For he seeing, or in his sight, his children, the work of my hands in the midst of him, shall sanctifie my name: and the reading seems not improbable. Howbeit I never find, this form so used in an absolute notion.

when he] That is, Jacob himself, say some; as ver.22. but I suppose it taken, both here, and there, for the Posterity of Jacob; the Jewish Church and State, considered, as a body. For howsoever it be true, that the Church of Professors consisteth and is made up of those particular persons, that professe the true service of God in Christ; and the Church of sincere faithful ones, is constituted of those particular persons, that are truly converted, and sincerely sanctifyed; yet as the one, or the other make up an entire body, whether political, or spiritual; so is the Church, consisting of those particular persons of either sort, said to be, as a mother to them; and those particular persons that make up that body, are said to be, as children unto it, ch.54.1. & 60.4,5. Gal.4.26,27.

seeth his children] As of Christ, he shall see his seed, Chap. 53. 10. or his children in his sight, as before, his children, the true race of Jacob, Psa.24.6. Gal.6.15,16. that walk in the steps of faithful Abraham, John 8.39. Rom.4.12.

the work of my hands] Psal.138.8. ch.43.21. & 60.21. Eph. 2. 8. the regenerate, John 1.13. James 1.18. 1 Pet. 1. 3,23. a kind of new creature, Psal.51.10. 2 Cor.5.17. Gal.6.15.

in the middst of him] With him, or among him: as chap.19.1,3. for he speaketh here of Jacob, as there of Egypt: of either, as of a body, for Sate: which sheweth, that by Jacob, here cannot be understood the person of Jacob, but his Posterity.

they] To wit, Jacob: before, he; now they: a passage from number to number; as ch.14.1. whereby the term appeareth to be collective; unless we follow the latter mentioned version.

shall sanctifie my name] Vhey shall honor me for this favour, and by their religious carriage, sanctifie my name, which, by the profane, and irreligious demeanour of others, had been so exceedingly defiled, and polluted among them before, Ezek.20.39,41. & 22.26. & 36.20. Amos 2.7. Mal.1.6,7. Rom.2.24.

and shall sanctifie] Or, yea, they shall sanctifie, as ch. 3. 9. because it is but a repetition of the same thing, for the more vehemency. Howsoever there want not some, that distinguish them, reading the text, when he seeth his children—sanctifying my name, or how they sanctifie it; then shall they sanctifie, &c. but the words run more easily the other way.

and shall fear] Serve and worship, with fear and reverence, Psal. 2. 11. & 5.7. Hos.3.5. Heb.12.28.

V.24. They also that erred in spirit shall come to understanding; and they that murmured, shall learn doctrine] Such as were untractable, and unteachable before, shall then become pliable, and voluntarily yield themselves to the word of Gods Prophets, and the work of his Spirit, as ready and willing to be instructed, and new moulded by either, Psal.110.3. ch.11 6-9. ver.18. Rom.6.17.

that erred in spirit] That were possessed, and led away by a spirit of errour, as all are by nature, Psal.58.3. & 95. 10. ch. 53. 6. until the Spirit from above be powred forth upon them, chap.32.15. to illighten their minds, Eph.1.18. 2Cor.4.4. Heb.6.4. & 10.32. and to lead them into all necessary saving truth, Luke 1.79. Ioh.14.26. & 16. 13. 1 John 2. 20, 27.

shall come to understanding] They shall not be like those, that either refuse to be taught, and to learn ought, Psalm 35. 31. & 82. 3. Jer.9.6. or are ever learning, but never attain to any degree of sound knowledge, chap.28.9-11. 2 Tim.3.7. Heb. 5. 12. Hebr. shall know understanding: as Pro.4.1. that is, shall have understanding; as the like is rendred, Job 38.4. or, shall be able to understand; as Neh. 10. 28. every knowing understanding one: for so the text there is, every one able to understand; as in the same chap. ver. 3. understanding to hear, for able to hear with understanding: to know for to be able, as chap.28.11.

they that murmured] Such as were formerly ready, out of discontent and impatience, or out of a crosnesse of spirit, and untoward disposition, 1 Tim.2.25. to be ever, and anon, repining at, and murmuring against the passages of Gods providence, and messages of his ministers, Exod.16.2. & 17. 3. Num.11.1. Deut. 1.27. Psal. 116. 25. 1 Cor.10. 10. Some apply it unto the Jews, that murmured at the calling, and coming in of the Gentiles, Matth.20. 11. Luke 15. 28-30. Acts 11. 2, 3. & 13.45. & 22.21,22. as 1 Thess. 2.16.

learn doctrine] The word signifies, properly, such a Lesson, or instruction, as is by teaching, received from another. The word is used, Deut.32. 2. Job 11.4. Prov.1.5. & 4.2. & 16. 23. where it is sometime rendred learning, and it is so called, because in teaching and learning, there is a kinde of giving and receiving, Prov.1. 3, 4. & 8. 10. & 9.9. Yet some of the Criticks would have it, properly, to signifie a pleasant, and delightful speech, that easily findes acceptance, because used of the harlot, (whose lips drop like an honeycomb, and her language is smoother then oyl, Prov.5.3.) Prov.7.22. where it is rendred, fair speech. To which purpose they alledge also, Prov.16.21, 23. So it should be, that which the Apostle calleth an acceptable speech, or, a lesson worthy of all acceptaion, 1 Tim. 1. 15. & 4.9. But the former reason seems the sounder. See Luke 8. 13-15. Acts 2.41. & 8. 14. & 11.1. & 17. 11.

CHAP. XXX.

Vers. 1. WO to the rebellious children, saith the Lord, that take counsel, but not of me, and that cover with a covering, but not of my Spirit, that they may add sin to sin] It was the usuall manner of the Jewish State, and people, and that sometime, under the better sort of their Kings, when they were annoyed, or invaded, or expected some such matter from some neighbouring nation, or other, instead of staying themselves upon God, and his protection, as, by his Prophets, he advised them, to seek for succour and assistance to some foreign State, to the Syrians, against the Israelites, 2 Chr. 16. 2, 3. to the Assyrians against the Syrians, 2 King. 16. 7. Hos. 5. 13. & 7. 11. & 12. 1. to the Egyptians against the Assyrians, one while, Chap.20. 5, 6. 2 Kings 18. 21, Hos. 12. 1. against the Chaldeans, another while, Jer. 2. 18,36, & 37. 5. Ezek. 29. 6,7. In this kind they were faulty, as well in Esays, as in Jeremies time, by fleeing either into, or unto Egypt, and seeking shelter there, or succour thence. Against those that were thus delinquent, doth the Prophet, principally, bend himself, both in this chapter, and in the next. In the former part of this chapter, he reproveth them sharply, first, for taking courses of their own, to secure themselves, and confiding therein, without seeking to God: withal, shewing what the success and issue of such their courses should be, ver: 1. 7. And secondly, for their opposing of Gods Prophets, that disswaded the one, and forewarned them of the other, ver.8.14. and standing out wilfully, against those advices, that, by them, God had given, for their indempnity and safety, verse 15, 17. In the later part, he passeth for the comfort of Gods people, to gracious promises. First of protection of his faithful ones, in those troublesome times, verse 18,19. Secondly, of future favours, upon their reformation and amendment, v.2-26. and the destruction of the adversary, by whom they had been afflicted, and streightned, ver.27-33.

Wo to] As chap.29.15.

the rebellious children] Children, because of the Jewish nation, Gods adopted people, and professing themselves so to be, Deut.32. 6,9. chap.1.2. and 43.1. and 44. 1,2. and 64. 8. Jer. 3. 4, 5. rebellious, or refractory, or unruly: (as Deut.21.18. Hos.4. 16. where a backsliding heyfer, seems no very fit epithet) because refusing to be ruled by God, and obstinately addicted unto waies and courses of their own, Deut.32.5, 15. chap.1.2. and 63, 10. and 66.3. Jer. 3. 14. and 5.23.

that take counsel, but not of me] Heb. to make counsel, or in making counsel: that is, holding a consultation: as noting that wherein they shewed themselves to be such: as chap. 3. 8. Heb. and not of me: and so in the next branch; and chap. 29. 13. that consult, but will not have God of their counsel, Josh. 9. 14. refuse to consult with him, as their duty was to do, chap.8. 19.

that cover with a covering, but not of my Spirit] Heb. to cover: or; in covering, (as before) with a covering; as chap.22.17,18. The same word, chap.25.7. and 28.20. that take courses to secure themselves, other then I, by my Spirit, direct them unto. See ch.4.5. & 28.15. & 29.15.

that they may add sin to sin] Heb. sin upon sin: as 2 Chron.28. 13. Ezra 10.10. That is, thereby adding sin to sin. Of which manner of speech, see on chap.3.8. and Jer.7.18. adding sin to sin, that is, proceeding, and going on still in sinful courses: as chap 29.14. or proceeding from one sinful course to another: and heaping up excesses one upon another: as chap 29.19. Numbers 32.14. Whereas by their wicked ways, they had before provoked me unto wrath, instead of seeking to me, by repentance for the same, they add to their former evil carriage, a new sinful course, by ways of their own, contrary to mine admonition and advice, endeavouring to shift off, or shelter themselves against my judgements, ready to sieze on them, for their former sins. See somewhat the like, 1 Samuel 12.19. Luke 3.19,20. Those that refer this to the times of Zedekiah, expound it, adding to their treachery and perjury, in rebelling against the King of Babel (in regard whereof, also, they would have them here termed rebellious) Ezek.17.13,15. by distrust of God, and confidence in humane helps. But whether the word translated rebellious, will so well sort with this exposition, I am somewhat doubtful: of the application of the Prophecy, to those times, more anon. Mean while if we shal descend to particulars, we may as well expound the adding of sin to sin; their adding of sin, in seeking aid now from Egypt, against the Assyrians, to their former sin, in seeking the like from Assyria, against the Israelites, and the Syrians, 2 Chr.28.16. But I conceive the words to be more general: as the like, Deut.29.19.

V. 2. That walk to go down into Egypt, (and have not asked at my mouth) to strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharao, and to trust in the shadow of Egypt] In these words, the Prophet more particularly, declareth what the counsel and course was, that he condemned in them, and for which he denounced a wo against them verse 1. to wit, their running into Egypt, and relying on that State for shelter and safegard. Now this, many of our Interpreters turn over to Zedekiahs time. And it is true, that in those daies both before the surprizal of Jerusalem, they sought to Egypt for succour, Jerem. 37. 7. Ezek.17.15. as also after it, upon the death of Gedaliah, they fled thither for shelter, Ier. 43. 4-7. But the Prophet seems rather to bend his speech against those of his own times, who under Ezekiah, also were faulty in this kinde, to wit, in having recourse unto Egypt, and relying on it for safety and assistance, against the Assyrian forces; as appears plainly, ch.20.5,6. see there. Nor doth ought appear to me, in this whole Sermon, concluding with the fall of Sennacherib, as all grant and agree in, that may not very fitly, accord with those times.

walk to go down into Egypt] That is, journey, or, travel (out of their own land) to go into Egypt; as 2 Sam.19.10. Am come down to meet the King. The word walking, applyed usually to travellers, Gen.32. 1. and that of descending, or going down; as here; so Gen. 26.2. chap.52.4. of passing from place to place, without any special reference to the situation of places, or any peculiar notion of descent included, Judg.15. 8. 2 Sam.19.26. See Chap.38.8. And there is no necessary implication therefore (which the Rabbins would have) of their land, being higher than the land of Egypt. Into Egypt it is not unlikely, that many fled out of divers parts of Judea, upon Sennacherib's irruption; and no less probable, that from some of the principal in the Sate, if not not from Ezekiah himself, some message also, was sent thither, and motion made for aids from thence, ver. 4. when it appeared, that the Assyrian, by the presents sent him, would not be appeased, 2 King.18.13-17.

and have not asked my mouth] Or, but (as ver.1.) ask not counsel of me, or, consult not with me, what they should do; as Josh. 9. 14. either by Priest; as 1 Sam.23.9,10. or by Prophet; as 1 Kin.22.7. See 2 King.1.3.

to strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharaoh] Or, by the strength; as Psal.78.26. A defect of the Pronoun; as chap. 13. 8, 15.

the shadow] That is, the covert. Of which ver.1. shadow, for protection; as Judg.9.15. Eccles.7.12. Cant.2.3. Anetaphor, taken either from hens, or other fowl that secure their young, by over-shadowing them with their wings, Psal.17.8. & 91.1,4. Mat.23. 37. or from goodly fair trees, that afford thelter against heat and storm, unto man and beast, that come under their spreadings, Lam. 4.20. Ezek.31.6 Dan.4.12,14.

V. 3. Therefore shall the strength of Pharao be your shame, and the trust in the shadow of Egypt your confusion] Or, And your trust (a defect of the pronoun; as Psal.45.3.) in the shadow of Egypt your ignominy, or, disgrace; as Psal.71.13. Heb. And the strength of Pharao, &c. as Jer.1.17. & 6.11. Or, For the strength, &c. as chap. 13. 8. 16.2. rendering a reason of wo denounced, ver.1. to wit, The ill success of these their counsels and courses: which should turn all to their confusion and shame, when they should by experience, finde to their grief and smart, that they were altogether unable to do them any good, verse 5. See Chap. 20. 5,6. & 36.6. Jer. 37. 7. & 38. 22.

V. 4. For his Princes were at Zoan; and his Embassadours came to Hanes] Or, as some render it, when (as Joel 2. 20.) his Princes had been at Zoan, and his Embassadours had arrived at Hanes: his Princes, and his Embassadours: That is, say the Jewish Commenters, either the Kings, or the peoples. Some of the chief about the King, sent in embassage to the King of Egypt, to crave his assistance against the Assyrian; as they before had sent to the Assyrian, to obtain peace, 2 King.18.14. but such as forry success in the one, as in the other ch.3 3. See the like of Hoshea, 2. King.17.4. See also ch.57. 9. & Hos.12.1.

Zoan] A famous City in Egypt. See chap.19. 11.

came to] Heb. touched at. Or, reached into; as Psal. 32. 7.

Hanes] Another City of Egypt, called also, Tahapanes, Jer.2.16. See more of it there. And Tahpanhes, Jer. 43. 3, 8.

V. 5. They were all ashamed of a people, that could not profit them nor be an help, nor profit, but a shame also, and a reproach] When they came into Egypt, they sped so ill, that they returned with nothing but shame and disgrace; and so was fulfilled what was foretold, v. 3. Spoken here in the wonted prophetical strain, as a thing already past and done.

They were all ashamed] Heb. Each, or every one, (to wit, of those that went, or were sent, saith the Rabbin; but we may well adde both of them, that were sent, and of those also, that sent them) was ashamed. So the word is most frequently used, in an immanent, or standing notion, Jer.2.26. & 8.9,12. & 10.14. & 48.20. & 50.2. Ezek.9.12. Joel 1.10,12. Zach. 9. 5. & 10. 11. Nor see I therefore, why some late learned Interpreters should render it here in a transitive, or passing sense; He (that is, the King, say they,) shall shame them all; that is, all his people, or all those of Jerusalem. Though the verbbe sometime found in an active use, but then modly, if not wholly, in a notion, not of shaming, but of drying up, as Psal.74.15. Ezek.17.24.

that could not profit them] A defect of the relative, as chap. 10.2. 3. Heb. will not, or, shall not profit. But the future is oft used potentially. So 1 Sam.12.21. Jer.2.11. Yet some render it, would not profit them. Pfammeticus then King of Egypt, say they, would not break with the King of Assyria, whom he had formerly made peace with; and refused therefore to afford them any succour, or assistance against it. But these are meer conjectures, having no ground from story facied, or other. More likely it is, that the Egyptian King, who ever he were, that then was, either durst not, by seeking to succour them, provoke so potent and prevalent a King as the Assyrian then was, having surprized, and carried captive, the other ten Tribes before; or if he made any attempt, it came to as little effect, as the aid that was afterward, out of those parts, sent to the suppose and succour of Zedekiah, Jer. 37. 7. See verse 7.

nor be an help, nor profit] Heb. nor for help, nor to profit. Beginning a new branch, not coupled to the former; as if he had said more fully, with supply from the former; of a people, I say, neither fitted for help, nor able to be any way useful to them: and not that alone; but that would be a foul shame, and disgrace unto them, in not answering their expectation, Chap.20.6. So Jerem. 2.36.

V.6. The burden of the beasts of the South: Into the land of trouble and anguish, from whence come the young and old lion, the Viper, and fiery flying Serpent, they will carry their riches upon the shoulders of young asses, and their treasures upon the bunches of camels, to a people that shall not profit them.] The Prophet proceeds to tax their extream folly, in taking so much pains, and undertaking such toilsom and dangerous journeys, through the desarts of Arabia; to transport their goods and treasure into Egypt, either there to secure them; or thence to procure, and hire aids, from those, that should not be able to stand them in any stead.

The burden] Some, as these words, would begin a new Sermon, because the several prophecies, many of them, to begin: as chap. 21.1,11,13. but the continuation of the subject matter: and the sequel of the context, is such, as affordeth no probability for any such conceit. By the word, some would have understood, a burdensome prophecy: as chap.13.1. and so the Greek, rendring it, a vision. But others rather take it in its proper sense, for a burden: as chap. 46.1. a place parrallel to this.

of the beasts of the South] Some, for the beasts of the South: that is, a burdensome prediction, for those brutish persons that toil and moil like beasts, to convey their goods to them, from whom there is nothing, but mischief and misery to be expected. And there is another word indeed, frequently used for brutish men, that signifies a beast, Psalm 73.62. & 92. 6. Prov.12.1. & 30. 2. Jer. 10. 10,14. but that here is used very seldom so, if ever, for those two places, Job 18.3. Eccles.3.18. duly weighed, come not home here. By beasts of the South, therefore others understand, the beasts hereafter mentioned, that carryed their chattels and treasure into Egypt, which lay South from the land of Judah, Jer.13.19. said here to be a burden to them, as the Babylonian Idols were to the Beasts that bare them away, chap.46.1. Some would have the word burden, taken here absolutely, rendring the text. As for the burden of the beasts of the South: or, that travel Southward: and the like construction is found, Psalm 18.30. & 104. 17. Hos.9.11. But the text may be read, admitting a trajection, not unusual, and joyning it with the carriages after-ward specified, a burden for beasts, travelling Southward, or bound for the South, shall they carry, to wit, their riches, &c. See the like trajections, Job 23.9. & 35. 11. Psal. 17. 7, 13. & 89. 50. & 90. 11, & 140. 11. chap. 29. 22. & 41,17. Jer. 5. 18.

into the land of trouble and anguish] Heb. into a land of affliction or, distress and anguish, Prov.1.27. that is, as some, into Egypt, alluding in the former word to the name thereof, where with it hath some affinity in the Hebrew: and minding them of what hard usage they had there formerly found, Exod.1.11,13,14. Deut. 4. 20. & 16. 3. and what onely they might be sure from thence to expect. But others read the words, by, or through a land of affliction and anguish: for so also is that particle oft used, as Gen.22.6. & 13.17. Est. 9. 2. psalm 19. 4. chap.37. 29. 34. & 42.3. that is, through that vast Wildernesse, that lay between the land of Judah and Egypt, which they passed thorow before, when they came thither from Egypt, and which they then found to be such, as is here related: see Deuter. 8.15. & 32. 10. Jerem. 2. 2, 6. Yet some conceive, that in these terms, is described that narrow passage, or neck of land, lying between the red Sea, and the midland, by which they were to passe, ere they could enter into Egypt: but hereof there is no great probability, that neck of land being not so narrow, as should cause any such difficult passage, as the prophets words here imply.

from whence come the young and old Lion, the viper, and fiery flying Serpent] Heb. the Lion, and Lion from them, that is, from those parts: or from which parts: the positive for the relative, as Job 3. 3,15. Jer.2.6. and a defect of the verb, as 2 Kings 6. 32. Rom.4.7. Now all this, divers Interpreters apply also to Egypt, expounding the words, some of the beasts, that were there adored, some of the wild Beasts and Serpents that abounded in Africa, and those parts of it, that neighboured upon Egypt. Others, again, not of any beasts, but of the Egyptians themselves, people, in condition, like to such beasts, and that should unto them prove such. See chap.11. 6. 8. But to run to allegories, where a plain and proper sense, even offereth it self, is unsafe: that such creatures as these were very rife, as well in the deserts of Arabia, as of Africa, cannot be doubted, much less denied. See Deut. 8. 15. Of their way to Egypt, I conceive all this to be spoken, as not onely tedious and difficult for want of needful accommodations, but as dangerous also, in regard of such harmful creatures as these, abounding in those parts, and from thence also, infesting the countries neer to them.

the young and old lion] There are two words here used, which both signifie a lion; but with some difference, as is supposed; whether the one, a young; the other, an old one, as our version rendreth them, is uncertain. But of the several terms, wherewith lions are in Scripture designed, see the notes on Job.4.10.

the viper] Or, as some, the Basilisk; a Serpent so called, from a word that signifies, as some say, to hiss, Chap.42. 14. but the word there signifies, rather, to cry out, as a woman in travel: and another thence derived, the Rabbines are said to use, not for the hissing of Serpents; but for the bleating of sheep; it is found also, Job 20.16. chap 59.5. See there.

the fiery flying serpent] Such as were in the Wilderness, that the Israelites passed thorow, in their way to Canaan, Num.21.16. Deut. 8,15. See chap.14.29.

they will carry their riches] Or, chattels, so termed; because mens strength seems to ly in their wealth. These they carryed into Egypt, some in likelyhood; that fled their Country upon the Assyrians approach, there to secure them: see Chap. 15. 7. as those alsans approach, there to secure them: see Chap. 15. 7. as those also, no doubt did, that fled into Egypt, upon the dispersion of the forces of the Captain of Gedaliah, for fear of the Chaldeans, see Jer.43.5-7. Others, sent by the State, to procure help and aids against the Enemies invasion.

upon the shoulders of young asses] Heb. shoulder: as Chap.46. 7. the place that burdens bear most upon, Gen.49.14,15. ch. 10. 27. of young asses; of much use in these parts, as well for burden, as for saddle, Gen.32.15. & 49.11. Judg.10.4. & 12.14. Ch. 32. 24. see chap.21.7.

and their treasures] Which some would distinguish from their chattels, and restrain to their Coin or Bullion; but the one term is of as large extent, as the other: see Chap. 2. 7, & 23. 18. & 45.3.

upon the bunches of camels] Heb. bunch: the word is no where else found in Scripture; and those Jewish Criticks do but dally with us, that would have it so termed, because when galled with burdens, it was healed with honey; in regard that the words that signifie either, arise from one root: the word is rather, by some other of them, deemed to be an Arabick term, for that camels, with the Arabians, were of more use ordinarily, then with any other people, Chap.60, 6, 7. Jer.49.29.32. they had, some kinde of them, one; some, two bunches apiece, and were very useful for carriage, in regard of the great weight they were able to bear; but especially with those that were to travel through waste places, because they would continue long without water: see Chap. 21. 7. from this their bunched body, arose that proverbial speech, of driving, or drawing a camel thorow a needles eye, Matth. 19.24. instead whereof, the Jewish Rabbines have another not unlike it, to thred needles with Elephants.

to] Heb. upon: but to also used, Chap.29.12. See ver. 1.

a people that shall not profit them] Or, cannot: as verse 5. a defect of the relative; as verse 5. of the pronoun; as Chapter 29.19.

V. 7. For the Egyptians shall help in vain, and to no purpose] Heb. And; as verse 3. in vain, and to no purpose. Heb. in vanity, and inanity: vanity, even that which cannot profit, Jer. 16. 19. and a weffel of inanity, or emptineffe, Jer. 51. 34. that hath nothing but wind in it; both here conjoined, to shew what manner of relief or succour, it was like to be, that the Egyptians should afford them. Yet hence it appeareth, that somewhat they attempted; as that from them, somewhat was expected, from chap.29.5,6. So Jer.37.7,8.

Therefore have I cryed, concerning this, Their strength is to sit still] Or, Therefore do I cry unto her. Either I the Lord (the Prophet now speaking in the person of God, as verse 8.) Or, I Esay, do give them warning, and foretell them, with as much earnestneffe as I can; as Prov. 1. 24. Chap. 58. 1. & 65. 12. in the name of God, and by command from him; that it is their wiseft course, and will prove their sureft strength, quietly and patiently to rest, and to depend upon God, his protection and assistance, and not run to and fro, hunting after forein helps, either from Egypt, or any other, v. 15. Chap 28. 12. Jer. 3. 18,36. Hos. 5. 13.

concerning this] That is, concerning Egypt, and seeking to her for aid; as some of the Jewish Commenters: so is the particle used Chap.29.16. or, as other of them, to her, to this City Jerusalem; or, to the daughter of my people, as the Prophets use to speak, cha. 22.4. Jer.4.11.

Strength] Heb. Rahab: a name given to Egypt, as is commonly supposed, from her power and pride: see Chap. 51. 9. which term, the Prophet, is by some, deemed here the rather to use; as implying, that this course, which he here adviseth them unto, would be a better and surer means of strength to them, than any that Egypt was able to afford. Yet can I not easily assent to the learned Annotator, who would have the text thus rendred; Therefore have I called here (that is, Egypt) Rahab hem shabeth. I have given Egypt this name, which signifieth, Rahab is a cessation; the Egyptian power is ceased.

to sit still] Not neglecting any lawful means of defence, which they are no where forbidden to do (save where God determined to give deliverance by miracle, and to manifeft his might the more, enjoyned a waving of them, Judg.7.2.8,16, 17.) nor condemned for so doing, 1 Kings 20.22. 2 Chro 14.6.8. & 26.9-15. & 32. 2-6. but not seeking assistance from other strange people, contrary to this charge herein given them by God; but relying upon him, as able, by such means, sufficiently to secure, as it pleased him, to assign, or afford them, 2 Chr.32.7, 8. Some think that there is an allusion here, either to the words of Moses, Exod. 14. 14. or of Jehaziel, 2 Chro.20.17. stand still: the word still being not in the text here is added, to make the sense, to us, more plain. However, hence it seems to me, to appear, that this Prophecy hath not reference to Zedekiahs time, for there, albeit, they were admonished, that Egypt should not relieve them: yet were they not advised, as here to sit still, but to go out, and yield themselves unto the enemy, Jer. 38.2,17,18.

V. 8. Now go, write it before them in a table, and note it in a book, that it may be for time to come, for ever, and ever.] The words of God to the Prophet, by whom, having forewarned them of the evil, that they would bring upon themselves, by looking abroad, and advised them of the sureft course, that they could take for their own security and safegard, he now willeth him, to put in writing, what he had delivered unto them, that it might remain, as upon record, for a testimony against them, of their disobedience and distrust.

go] See chap.20.2. So Gen.11.3. Jer.35.12. & 50.5. for there is, no necessity, as some would have this term intimate, that the Prophet should be abroad, when God set him this task, and that he was willed to get him home to accomplish it.

write it] This Prophecy, or that which followeth, ver.8. but the former rather: see chap.8.1.

before them] Heb. with them. This some conceive, as if God commanded the Prophet to go out of his house, and commit to writing openly, in some publike place, in the view of the people, what he had before by word of mouth delivered: which conceit, crosseth that, which was by some others, over curiously picked out of the term before going, of Gods sending the Prophet home to do it there. Others, that God enjoyned him to write is, having not yet published it, to be read with them, in their presence. I conceive, that it may well be rendred, write it on a table to be with them: that is, that it may abide among them, to mind them, when these things now foretold them, do accordingly fall out, what they had been warned of before. For I cannot conceive with those, who suppose it meant, not of the people: but of other his prophecies, that this should be written together with them, as Jeremy was enjoined to write all his former prophecies, or the substance of them at least together: and after, to add some other thereunto, Jer. 36. 2, 32. However, both in the former, it: and in this them, the pronoun is put for the noun, as chap.17.10.

in a table] Or, on a table: as Exod.32.15, 16. to be hung up, or fastned to the wall, or to a post, or pillar, as Laws and Decrees were anciently, in some publike place, where every one might take notice of it: so Hab. 2. 2.

note it in a book] Heb. delineate, or describe it on a book, as ch. 49.16. Ezek.4.1. engrofs it in a book, that it may remain upon record, for a monument to posterity, as on a table before, for them at present: so Deut.31.19. Job.19 23,24.

for time to come] Heb. for an after day. So Prov.31.25.

V. 9. That this is a rebellious People, lying Children, Children that will not hear the Law of the Lord] Or, For it is a rebellious People: either declaring the subject matter, that was to be recorded; or, the reason, rather, why God would have it to be recorded, as Deu. 31.19,20,21,27. the pronoun, for the verb substantive, as ch.43. 10. Ezek.3.5.

a rebellious people] Heb. a People of rebellion: as Children of rebellion, Num.17.10. and, as house of rebellion, Ezek.12.2. See Deu. 31.27. chap.48.8.

lying children] Either faithless and dissembling; or false and counterfeit children, such as carry not themselves as children, nor answer the expectation of him, by whom they have been adopted, Deut.32. 5,20. chap.1.4. & 57.4. & 63.8,10.

that] A defect of the relative: as ver.5,6.

will not hear] Endure to hear, Psalm 58. 4,5. Jer. 6. 10. or, hearken to and obey, chap. 28. 12. Jer. 6.16,17. & 44. 16. Zach.7 11,12.

the Law of the Lord] The Commandement of God, delivered by Moses, as some, forbidding them to return into Egypt, Deu. 17. 16. & 28.68. ch.31.1. or rather, the instructions and admonitions of Esay, and other Gods messengers sent unto them, v. 10. see chap. 1. 10. & 5. 24.

V. 10. Which say to the Seers, see not, and to the Prophets, prophecie not unto us right things, speak unto us smooth things, prophecy deceits.] That forbid Gods messengers to preach unto them, unlesse they will preach such things to them, as please them, and sooth them up in their sins, by promising peace and prosperity to them, though they go on in their sinful courses. See Mic.2.6.11. a place parallel to this: and Jer. 11.21.

the Seers, see not] The same with the next branch, only the terms divers, in sound, and letters; but in sense and notion the same: see chap.1.1. & 2.1.

right things] Heb. straits, agreeable to equity, Amos 3. 10. chap. 59, 14. they desired not to have the truth of God, or their duty to

God,

God, taught, or told them: such teaching was too harsh for their tender ears; it crossed their corruptions: nor could they endure to have those courses contradicted, which themselves had pitched upon, or were addicted unto; not to hear God's judgements denounced against them, for their persisting in the same, Jeremy 43. 2. hence that scoffing demand, what is the burden of the Lord? Jerem. 23. 33.

smooth things] Heb. smoothnesses; as Psal. 12. 1, 3. that is, flatteries; Sermons of peace, prosperity and pleasure; and that strain the false Prophets therefore wholly addressed themselves unto; because they saw it pleased the people, chap. 56. 10. 12. Jer. 4. 10. & 6. 14. & 8. 10. & 23. 17. Ezek. 13. 10, 18, 22. hence that smoothing, or flicking of their tongues, Jer. 23. 31.

prophecie] Heb. see, deceits] Or, illusions, Job. 16. 3. not that they so termed them, but that they were so indeed, Jer. 5. 31. & 23. 16, 25, 26, 32. Ezek. 13. 7, 8.

V. 11. Get ye out of the way, turn aside out of the path] Take another course, then that ye now do; be not so strict, and precise in your preachings, Mich. 2. 6. the same thing in divers terms.

cause the holy one of Israel to cease from before us] Or, from us; as chap. 21. 15. & 31. 8. & 37. 6. talk not so much to us of the holy one of Israel, (a term then very rife in the mouth of Gods messengers; chap. 1. 4. & 5. 19, 24. & 10. 20. & 12. 6. & 17. 7. & 29. 19, 23.) molest us no more, with so many messages from him: see Job 21. 14. Some render the words, make the holy one of Israel turn out of the way, that he may cease from before us; that the and we may not meet, to trouble us in our way, but we may walk as we list: but this seems a little too much strained.

V. 12. wherefore thus saith the holy one of Israel] He proceedeth to foretel what for this their extream impiety should befall them; and he maketh his introduction unto the denunciation of it, with that title that scoft at, and desired not to hear, ver. 11.

Because ye despise this word] Ye set light, by the word of warning, admonition, and advice now given you, from God, by the mouth of his messenger, v. 7, 15.

and trust in oppression, and perverseness, and stay thereupon] Ye trust to your shifts, and your means, compassed by wrong dealing, thereby making account to secure your selves. See Chap. 28. 15.

oppression] Or, as some, fraud: see Psalm 62. 10. and chap 33. 15. Howbeit, some learned Criticks suppose the word here used, by a transposition of letters, to be put for another word, that signifieth perverseness; the rather, because this, and the next, are found both joined, as here, together, Prov. 2. 15. and the like transposition is found in many other words; as in that for a sheep, Lev. 14. 21. & 17. 3. in that, for a garment, Exod. 22. 9, 23. and others.

perverse[s] Heb. a perverted, or crosse way, or course, it is rendred froward, Prov. 2. 15. & 3. 32. & 14. 2. a defect of the subject; as vile, for, wite grapes, chap. 5. 24. burning, for burning fire, Jer. 36. 22. untempered, for untempered Morter, Ezek. 13. 11. such crosse courses, by which they departed from God, (as the word importeth, from whence it cometh, used Prov. 3. 21.) leaving him, and his advice, to cleave to courses of their own, ver. 11.

stay thereupon] Trust thereunto, as of strength sufficient to support you; a metaphor taken from a staff, wherewith a man stayeth himself up: see chap. 2. 1. & 10. 20. & 50. 10.

V. 13. Therefore this iniquity shall be unto you, as a breach ready to fall, swelling out in an high wall, whose breaking cometh suddenly at an instant.] The ground of the denunciation was in verse before-going; the subject matter of it followeth in this, and the next. The shifts and devices that you trust to, shall all fail to pieces, and your selves perish irrecoverably together with them.

this iniquity] This your vain confidence, and the wealth so gotten (Luke 16. 9.) which you trust to, ver. 12. Psal. 52. 7.

as a breach ready to fall] Heb. as a rupture (Neh. 6. 1. Job. 16. 14.) falling, so perishing, for ready to perish, chap. 27. 13. but here rather, threatning a fall, as some render it; because the rupture, or breach, cannot be said properly to fall: or, as others, a rupture of a falling wall, or a wall ready to fall, supplying the word used, Psal. 62. 3. another then that which hereafter followeth, as the flower of a fading plant, Chap. 28. 4. a defect of the subject: see v. 12. This your insolency, and arrogancy, is but a fore-runner of your fall. Pro. 16. 18. & 18. 12.

swelling out] As blains. or blisters, do on mens bodies, which are hence so termed, Exod. 9. 9, 20. the latine termeth it bellying wall, whence the proverb, take heed of overcharging a wall with a belly, because such are prone to burst.

in an high wall] The less able to stand for the weight it beareth, and the more dangerous in its fall, Mat. 7. 27. I suppose they sit here beside the cushion, who conceive in these words, an allusion to be unto men cusht to pieces, by the fall of a wall; as 1 Kings 20. 30. Luke 13. 4. See Psal. 62. 3.

whose breaking] Or, breach: that is, rending asunder in the fall, for the former rupture within, and the giving out thereupon, before mentioned, go both of them, before the fall, and foreshew what would ensue.

suddenly at an instant] Chap. 29. 5.

V. 14. And he shall break it, as the breaking of a potters vessel that is broken in pieces, he shall not spare, so that there shall not be found in the bursting of it, a sherd to take fire from the hearth, or take water withall from the pit] All your plots and projects; and all the stayes ye trust to, shall be so quaint and dasht to pieces, that nothing shall come of them, that may do you any service, or be in the least manner useful to you, much less yield you that security that you expect from them.

he shall break it] He, that is, God, say some; the enemy, say others, true of both, but neither here needful, the word being taken indefinitely: he shall break it, that is, it shall be broken and that is enough to expresse the Prophets mind: so ch. 9. 6. Jer. 13. 6. Amos 4. 2. Mic. 2. 4. Hab. 3. 17.

it] That is, the iniquity, v. 13. that ye trust to, and all the designs that ye build thereupon, chap. 29. 16. howbeit, some refer it to the wall before-mentioned v. 13. which when it falleth, is with the fall of it so shattered and battered, that it is with it, as with an earthen bottle that is burst all to shivers.

as the breaking of a potters vessel] Heb. according to the breach (as chap. 13. 19. or, as with the breach (as chap. 22. 17, 18.) of a bottle of the potters: as Jer. 19. 1. as an earthen bottel, when it falleth to the ground, or is thrown upon the pavement, is wont to break all to shivers, so as it cannot be pierced together, or made up again see Jer. 19. 11.

broken in pieces] Or, to shivers, Mich. 1. 7. with Chapter 27. verse 9.

he shall not spare] Or, which one spareth not: to make the connexion the clearer, a defect of the relative, as v. 5, 6, 9. which a man the owner of it, or other, hath no regard to, what becomes of it, or throweth away, on purpose, to break it: or, that is not spared, no regard being had to it, as before.

so that] Heb. and, as chap. 10. 19. Jer. 14. 19.

there shall not be found] Or, there remaineth not; as Chap. 13. 15.

in the bursting of it] Or, among the shivers, or broken pieces of it, to wit, of the bottle.

a sherd] Job 2. 8.

to take fire] As Prov. 6. 27. & 25. 22. whence the name of tongs, to take fire with Exod. 35. 3.

The hearth] for which another word, Psal. 102. 3. Both from burning, chap. 33. 14.

To take up] This word is used, of liquor, (as the former of fire) Haggai 2. 16. to draw out, in this notion no where else found.

the pit] Made of purpose for receit of water, Jer. 14. 3. from an Ethiopick term, saith one, that signifieth to gather together, Mat. 13. 2. & 18. 20.

V. 15. For thus saith the Lord God, the holy one of Israel] Or, Thus said, This is the advice, that God, whom ye list not to hear named, gave you: see ver. 11, 12.

In returning, and rest shall ye be saved; in quietnesse and confidence shall be your strength] Your onely means of strength and safety is by resting quietly on God, and trusting to his protection, and not seeking for shelter, or relying upon reliefs from abroad, v. 7.

in returning] Or, by returning, to wit, unto God, by repentance, Jer. 3. 1, 12, 14. & 4. 1. Or, as some rather, by quietnesse: for it is a noun, not a verb: and howsoever the verb of returning, be commonly used of repenting: yet doth no noun, or verbal thence deduced, signifie repentance, in Scripture, as by almost a general mistake, is commonly imagined: the one, to wit, teshuhah, is used of other returns, of the times of the year, 2 Sam. 11. 1. 1 Kings 20. 22. of speech, in way of answer, Job 2. 34. & 34. 36. from journey home 1 Sam. 7. 17. of return by repentance, in Scripture no where: howsoever, the Rabbines do commonly so use it, as where they say, that it was one of those seven things, that were made before the world began: the other, to wit, Meshuhah, in which the mem is no preposition, but a meer ministerial, or formative letter, is never used, as the Hebrew Criticks, but in way of reproof, and is so far from signifying repentance or conversion to God, that it ever importeth aversion from, or rebellion against God, Jer. 2. 18. & 3. 22. & 5. 6. & 8. 5. & 14. 5. Hos. 11. 7. & 14. 5. and the reason is, because the verb whereof both come, signifies, as well to turn from, as to turn to, yea in one form it is no otherwise used then to turn away, and revolt, chap. 57. 17. Jer. 3. 14, 22. & 8. 5. & 31. 22. & 49. 4. or, to turn away, and make to revolt, chap. 47. 10. one place only is ambiguous, Pro. 1. 32. where some render this word, aversion: others, and so the most of the Jewish, ease, or rest: and this, the rather, because tranquility followeth: from whence also, some fo render the word Shubah (no where else found) here, where it is joined with two other words of the self-same notion, and cometh very neer home to the term of sitting still, ver. 7. to which also the use of the verb, whence it cometh, is by good Writers deemed in many places to incline, as among others, Psalm 23. 6. I shall sit quietly in the house of God, Num. 10. 36. at the sitting down of the Ark, Cause to rest, O Lord, the many thousands of Israel, and Psalm 23. 3. he quieteth my soul, or maketh me to rest, and Jer. 30. 10. & 46. 27. Jacob shall rest, and be quiet and at ease, where it is joined in both places, with the same word, that this is knit unto here. Yet some other interpret it, of turning from their purpose, of seeking, or sending to Egypt. But that of rest, and keeping quiet, seems best to sort with the shall ye be saved] Or, may ye be saved; in a potential notion, this is the onely way of safety for you, if ye be content to embrace it.

in quietnes[s] See chap. 7. 4. confidence] In trusting to God, and depending upon him, 1 Chr. 1. 20. 2 Chr. 13. 18. & 16. 8, 9. Psalm 34. 22. & 37. 40. & 125. 1. ch. 26, 3, 4. See the contrary chap. 7. 9.

strength] As verse 7. though another word here used.

and ye would not] Or, yet ye would not; as ch. 29. 2. Ye would not accept of Gods gracious offer, nor follow his advice: see Pro. 1. 25. Mat. 23. 37.

V. 16. But ye said, No; for we will flee upon horses; therefore shall ye flee: and we will ride upon the swift; therefore shall they that pursue you be swift.] Ye make account to secure your selves better another way, to wit, by posting apace upon swift beasts, if any enemy appear, out towards Egypt; but this shift of yours will not stand you instead: for your Enemies will be too swift for you, they will pursue you, and overtake you, before you get thither.

But] Heb. And; as chap. 29. 13.

Ye said] Or, ye say: Ye think with your selves: as Psalm 14. 1.

No:] We will not so do, Jer. 6. 16, 17. & 44. 16.

for] Or, but: as chap. 39. 23.

We will flee upon horses] Heb. horse; as afterward, a swift one, escape by help of them: see Hos. 14. 13. yet none render it, we will flee to horses, as to a people, ver. 1. 6. to the help of horses, which Egypt was stored with cap. 31. 1. to Psa. 20. 7. but the branch following, carries it rather, the former way; swift beasts, as he sometime said, being for flight, rather than for fight.

flee ye [shall] This tome refer to Zedekiahs flight, Jer. 39. 4. Others, to the flight of Captain John with his Complices afterward into Egypt, Jer. 43. 5, 7. But it is not unlikely, but that many of them also, so endeavored to do upon Sennacheribs approach: though some expound it, ye shall flee indeed, that is, ye shall be carried captive, and exiled: and it is true, that in Greek and Latine, flight is used, for exilement enforced: but not so, I suppole, in Hebrew; and the next branch goeth the other way.

on swift ones] Heb. on a light, that is, swift one; as chap. 19. 1. swift, for swift beast, or swift horse, as some, to make the gender agree, a defect of the subject, as verse 23, 13. and swift one, for swift ones; as before, horse, for horses; and breath, for breaths, as Jon. 4. 11.

they that pursue you shall be swift] The enemy shall make after you, and march you, if not exceed you in swiftness: so that the swiftness of your horses, be they never so swift, shall not stand you in any stead, chap. 5. 26. Jer. 4. 13. Lam. 4. 19. Hab. 1. 8. Psalm 33. 16, 17. Amos 2. 14, 15.

V. 17. One thousand shall flee at the rebuke of one: at the rebuke of five shall ye flee] A small company of the enemy shall be able to put you all to flight: see Deut. 32. 30.

shall flee] Supplyed out of the following branch: see the like, chap. 13. 15. & 18. 7.

the rebuke] Not verbal, but actual, the assault, or onset: as Psa. 76. 6. yet seldom in this notion used, but of God: but here made choice of, to shew what a small matter should then dismay them, and cause them to turn the back to the foes, notwithstanding all their confident conceits at present.

five] A small and inconsiderable number, Lev. 26. 8.

shall ye flee? Or, shall ye all flee: for that seems to be supplyed: as 1 Sam. 30. 8.

until ye be left, as a beacon upon the top of a mountain, and as an ensign on a hill.] That is, as most understand it, untill a very small remnant of you be left, being, though Gods mercy, reserved, after that the main bulk and body of you, hath, through Gods just judgment, been cut off and destroyed, chap. 1. 9. & 6. 13. & 10. 12. & 17. 6, 9. & 37. 32. But I suppose rather (for he speaketh not here of killing and destroying, but of chasing and putting to flight) the meaning to be, that they should be so diperled, that they should not be able to valley, or bring their troups into a body again, or to be any considerable company of them, in any one place together; but that they should, being scattered one from another, be found straggling, here one, and there another, as a beacon, or the like, that standeth alone on some hill by it self. Hither belongeth that of remaining out against an enemy one way, and fleeing seven ways before him, Deut. 28. 7, 25.

left] Either left alive, escaping: as Chap. 17. 9. and so Luke 17. 34, 36. or for sale, left alone, without company: as ch. 1. 8. & 6. 13. each one shifting, as in such flight, and fighting, for himself.

as a beacon] Heb. a mast, chap. 33. 23. Ezek. 27. 5. but here used for such a tall pole, as our may-poles, resembling a mast, erected on an hill, or set up in some eminent place, for some special publike use, as from thence to give warning of the approach of some hoft le troops or the like: for it seems but weak, that some here have, of setting up the mast of a ship on some foreland, where the ship had it felt mis-carryed: nor is it so probable, that hereby should be understood, a tree bereft of branches or boughs: or, a tree, or two, left for marks, or sladers, or seamarks, or way-marks, when all the rest of the wood about it, hath been felled; on the top Heb. head: as chap. 2. 2. & 17. 6.

as an ensign on a hill] Of which, see on chapter 13. 2. But in this place it seems to intend no other, then such as was in the former branch intimated 16 it is used, Num. 21. 8. of the pole, on which Moses pitched the Serpent of brass: an emblome of solitatiness in this place.

V. 18. And therefore will the Lord wait, that he may be gracious unto you; and therefore will he be exalted, that he may have mercy upon you] Here beginneth the later part of this Sermon, containing matter of comfort, for the constant, and convert faithfull, laid down in gracious promises, referred to two heads; the one, concerning the deliverance and restitution of Gods people, v. 18-26. the other, concerning the destruction of the Assyrian, their enemy, verse 27-33.

And therefore] Or, Yet therefore; as chap 29. 2. or, And yet, or Notwithstanding: as chap. 51. 21. Jer. 16. 14. & 30. 16. for all this, it it have reference to what went before: or, therefore; for this end if it have reference to what followeth; in all that God doth in this kind, he intendeth nothing but grace and mercy unto those that he hie, either that continue still faithfull to him, or are reclaimed and amended by these judgements upon them: see 2 Chro. 15. 3, 6.

will the Lord wait] That is, as some, he respites, and suspends the execution of judgement, as present, expecting your reformation and repentance, that he may not proceed in rigour against you, Gen. 6. 3. Jer. 3. 12. & 8. 4-6. & 26. 2, 3. Ezek. 18, 31, 32. & 33. 11. 1 Per. 3. 20. 2 Pet. 3. 9. or, as others rather, he will stay and delay the putting an end to these troubles, for some time, expecting a seasonable time to shew mercy, when men being humbled and amended by them, are fitted for the receit of it, chap. 10. 20. & 17. 7, 8. & 27. 8, 9. verse 22. This the rather, because the waiting afterward commended, hath relation hereunto. For as for those that take it transitively, as some of the Jewish Doctors do, the Lord will make to wait, that is, will cause you to wait and depend upon him, they seem to force the text aside, out of its plain path.

will he be exalted] That is as some he will keep aloof, for a time, until the season of shewing mercy come, Psalm 10. 1. but I find not where the word is so used, rather God, who seemed so sit still, and not regard what was done, while the enemy prevailed, will at length raise up himself, and advance his own name, both in the destruction of the enemy, and the deliverance of his people, Psalm 46. 10. Chap. 33. 10.

upon you] That have kept constantly with him, or have sincerely returned to him, ch. 1. 27. & 59. 20.

for the Lord is a god of judgement] Judgement, is in Scripture taken, sometime, for a strict, severe, and exact execution of justice on Delinquents, as chap. 28. 17. And so is God, a God of judgement, in regard of obstinate wicked ones, Exod. 34. 7. Psalm 146. 7. cha. 5. 16. and so some would have it here. Sometime, again, it is put for moderation and discretion; as Psalm 112. 5. such as God useth in the chastisement of his children, opposed to wrath, or rage, rather, and rigour of Justice, chap. 27. 8. Jer. 10. 24. and 30. 11. and so it is here to be unerstood. He is a God, that doth all things with wildom, moderation and discretion, especially in his carriage towards, and dealings with his children. See chap. 28. 24, 29.

Blessed are all they that wait for him] While he waiteth to shew himself gracious unto them: That are content to wait quietly, depending upon him for deliverance, not running out, this way, and that way; and seeking by indirect courses, to relieve, or secure themselves; but expecting it from him, when to him, it shall seem seasonable to send it, Psalm 33. 20, 21. and 40. 1. 1 Chr. 8. 17. and 28. 16. and 49. 23. Daniel 12. 12. Hab. 2. 3. Zeph. 3. 8.

V. 19. For the people shall dwell in Zion at Jerusalem: thou shalt weep no more] He proceedeth to shew wherein God would be gracious, and mercifull to them, to wit, in making Jerusalem a place of refuge, and safegard for them; and upon their supplication to him, in returning such gracious answer, not by verbal promises onely, but by actuall performances, as should put an end to all their, both fears and tears. See chapter 37. The words may be read, For a People in Zion shall sit still, (as verse 7. or sit quietly, and safely (as Psal 23. 6. See verse 15.) and in Jerusalem; as some render it. See chapter 10. 12. A Company of Gods people, that either before, were abiding in Jerusalem, or repaired thither out of other parts of Judea, upon the Assyrian invasion, for shelter and succour, shall through Gods gracious protection, sit there in safety, chapter 37. 35. Or, which I conceive to be the genuine sense; For thou the people (I mean) of Zion, that abide, or dwell in Jerusalem, shalt weep no more. Of which Change of the person, see 1 Kings 22. 28. Job 17. 10. and 18. 4. Which last is a fit parallel to this, thus read; and sheweth that such interchanges are found, as well in the Indicative mood, as in the Imperative, to which, some Grammarians would restrain them. It is word for word there, Tearing his soul in anger, shall the land for thee be left? For, O thou that tearest thy self in thine anger, shall the Land for thee be left? and here, People in Zion shall dwell, or, abideth in Jerusalem: Thou shalt not weeping, weep; for, O thou people of in Jerusalem: Thou shalt not weeping, weep; for, O thou people of Zion, that dwellest, or, abidest in Jerusalem, thou shalt no more weep; weep. People in Zion, for people in Zion: As mountains in Gilboa, for mountains of Gilboa, 2 Sam. 2. 21. The defect of the relative, here supplyed, is so common, as nothing more. See ch. 28. 22, 26, 29. ver. 5, 6, 9, 14. That of the copulative, usuall also, (as Chap. 17. 14. & 27. 4.) is not here material; because it varieth not in this regard, either the sense, or the syntax. See Chap. 10. 24.

thou shalt weep no more] Heb. thou shalt not, weeping weep; as Jer. 22. 20. As formerly thou didst, Chap. 33. 7. See Chap. 25. 8. & 35. 10.

he will be very gracious unto thee, at the voice of thy cry; when he shal hear it, he shal answer thee] See the complement hereof, 2 Chr. 34. 20, 21. ch. 37. 4, 6, 7, 15, 21, 22, 35, 36.

he will be very gracious unto thee] He, the Lord; as v. 23. Heb. will dealing graciously, deal graciously with thee. The word, so repeated, hath an emphasis in it, as before.

at the voice of thy cry] Heb. of thy crying, as ch. 57. 13.

when he heareth it] Heb. as (that is, so soon as) he heareth it. Or, so soon as he heareth: for the Hebrew Criticks suppose the pronoun to refer to the person hearing, not to the thing heard: but then there must be a defect of the word it, to be supplyed, as ch. 28. 20, 28. and oft elsewhere.

he will answer thee] Heb. he hath answered thee. The present tense for the future, as ch. 20. 1. & Mic. 7. 8. he will grant thy request: do what thou requirest, for thee: as Ps. 118. 5. & 143. 1. See ch. 58. 9. & 65. 24.

V. 20. And though the Lord give you the bread of adversity, and water of affliction, yet shall not thy teachers be removed into a corner any more, but thine eyes shall see thy teachers] The effect followeth, both of the distress that God had brought them into, and of his gracious deliverance of them, out of it again: (as Ps. 66. 11, 12.) to wit, that they should then look after, and attend to their teachers, who should freely admonish them, which they had formerly refused to do, ver. 20, 21. and succease their former idolatrous courses, abandoning, and abolishing whatsoever had any relation thereunto, v. 22.

And though the Lord give you] A defect of the discretive; as, Job 19. 26. Though others render it, The Lord indeed will give you. And some of the Rabbines. And when, or after that the Lord hath given you: and thy teachers shall not be removed. See the like construction, Ruth 2. 9. Howbeit, because the words are, by some, deemed to contain matter of promise, rather then menace; they read them far otherwise then our version, and the most, exhibite: the Belgick version thus, And the Lord will give you bread in adversity, and water in affliction. The particle, as oft, wanting. So ch. 26. 8, 18. Jer. 5. 7. and 11. 23. That is, he will in your greatest streights, supply you with some competency of necessaries, 1 Kings 17. 6. Psalm 33. 19. and 34. 10. See chap. 33. 16. And this I should rather incline to, the syntax being familiar, and suiting well with the context, then that which another learned writer exhibiteth, I will make your adversity bread, and your affliction water: I will make your afflictions to be as food to you. But the frequent use of the proverbial form, seems much to strengthen the received reading.

bread of adversity, and water of affliction] Or, bread of straights, and water of affliction; for oppression, which our margent hath, forteth not so well here. It seems to have bin a proverbial form of speech, importing short and sory fare, or diet. Such as those use to have allowed them, that are shut up in prilon; and such as those are put to, in time of a siege, that are pinched up in some city, especially when all the country about them hath been plundered, and spoiled by the enemy; the case of Samaria, 2 Kings 6. 25. and of Jerusalem, as in the Chaldean siege, Jer. 38. 9. & 52. 6. Albeit, not so extream in the Assyrian invasion, Chap. 1. 27. and 36. 1, 12. Of the phrase, see Deut. 16. 3. 1 Kings 22. 27. 2 Chr. 18. 26. Mean while they seem to run far beyond the mark, that put this off to the Maccabees times: and those that would alter the received construction, because the word water, is not in a contract, but in an entire form, might have observed, that so it is also, in those places of the sacred story pointed to, where the syntax is, without contradiction, the same.

yet] Heb. and. But so Chapter 29. 20. verse 18. Howbeit, in this place, it may seem to be more fitly (if at all here expressed) rendred, then, as Chap. 24. 3. See the beginning of the verse.

shall not thy teachers be removed into a corner any more] The word, here used, and no where else found, (as many other in this Prophet, which maketh his writings the more difficult) is derived from one that signifieth, sometime the wing of a fowl, ch. 10. 14. Sometime the skirt of a garment, Num. 15. 38. sometime, the corner, or border, the utmost part of a land, ch. 11. 12. Hence divers expositions of the word in this place, some rendring it, as our version, driven into corners. But such kinde of corners, or hidden and secret places, the word seems not to signify. Others, driven away, or run away into remote parts; which they understand of seeking after foreign people for relief, Proverb. 17. 24. Others, by teachers shall not hide their faces with the skirt of their garment; as men are wont to do, that they may not see them, or be seen of them, whom they regard not, or by whom they are not regarded, 2 Kings 3. 14. Others, lastly, they shall not flee from thee, but stay by thee; they shall not be on the wing, either driven, or called away, and removed far from thee, Psal. 55. 6, 7. And this most follow, as implying, that though God kept them in streights, and held them to hard meat, for some space of time, yet during that time they should not want of his Prophets, Esay, and others, to instruct them. This is true, but I conceive it not to be the Prophets meaning in this place; wherein he seems rather to relate how it should be with them, when by this hand of God that had been upon them, they were now reclaimed, to wit, that their teachers should not be inhibited, & thrust away by them, as formerly they had been, v. 10, 11. for those words, any more, do evidently relate to what had before time been with them. And I shall crave leave to add a further notion, which I suppose may have place here. I took away, saith the Assyrian, the wealth of the world, like eggs out of a birds-nest, and none durst move the wing against me, ch. 10. 14. in allusion whereunto, to wit, to the manner of fowls, which with the wing are wont to strike at, and put by the hand, that offereth to take eggs, or chickins from under them, the Prophet here making use of an unusual word, might say, Your teachers shall not be winged,) as divers, but in another sense, render it) that is, wing-beaten, (as cudgeld, for beaten with a cudgel) thrust aside, and put away, by such as distasto what they deliver. But this I submit to the judgment of others.

thy teachers] That is, say some, Ezekiah, and his godly Princes, that let them, at first, into the good way of God, 2 Kings 29. 5-12. & 30. 2, 5-9, 12. Others, Esay, and the other religious Priests and Prophets. But because there is an ambiguity in the word; and it is used, sometime, for vain, that is, cast forth and fled abroad, Joel 2. 23. sometime, for an archer, that sendeth out shafts, 2 Sam. 11. 24. sometime, for a teacher, that poureth out, and distilleth doctrine like rain, Deut. 32. 2. Chap. 9. 14. Prov. 5. 13. Some of the Hebrew Commenters, (nor want there that concur with them) would have the meaning to be, that their rain should not be restrained, or kept from them, that the ground being watered, they might then again have plenty, instead of that scarcity, which they were afflicted with before. And because it might be objected that the word is plural: whereas neither his, nor another of the same linage, are in this notion ever found, but singular. This, to put by, they observe, that the verb which it is joyned with, is singular: and that there may be an irregularity in the form of the word. But the words next following, ver. 21. carry it the former way. And as for the incongruity of the number, it is a thing so common, as nothing more, in a distributive way, to joyn a noun plural, with a verb singular; thy teachers, for any one of them. So Exod. 17. 12. Est. 9. 23. Ps. 73. 7. Joel 1. 20. And the speech is emphatical, not any of thy teachers, but he never so mean, shal be slighted, rejected, or disregarded by these. Besides, that the blessing of rain, and seasonable showers, comes after spair, ver. 23.

but] Heb. and: as ch. 28. 7.

thine eyes shall see thy teachers] Thy rain, say some; but of that, before: and thy rain, is a phrase unusual in Scripture. This most expound, of having with them, and enjoying their teachers. And the word, seeing, in Scripture, is not seldom so used, Psal. 34. 12. ch. 29. 23. & 33. 17. Jer. 17. 6. So that they should not complain of a want of them, as in some ages they have done, Psal. 74. 9. Amos 8. 11, 12. Howbeit, I conceive the meaning here to be, (delivered, in way of opposition, to their wonted carriage) that they should look after their teachers, with due respect and regard, whom they had looked away from, and rejected before. Your eyes see, is an emphatical phrase in Scripture, Gen. 45 12. Josh. 24. 7. But it is here yet more emphatical; Thine eyes shall be seeing; thou shalt be frequently, yea, continually eying of them, & looking after them, as those on whom ye depend for instruction, and direction, as 2 Chr. 20. 21. Ps. 123. 1, 2. So Solomon admonisheth his son, never to have his eyes off his precepts, Prov. 3. 21. & 4. 21.

V. 21. And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee, saying, This is the way: walk ye in it, when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left] These words also, as the former, are, by most, understood of a promise of direction, that God would afford them, by his Word and Spirit, in the time of their afflictions, before mentioned, ver. 20. And they suit well with that direction, whereby God is wont, in all estates, so to guide his, that they may walk evenly, and uprightly, in those waies, that tend to heaven and happiness, Ps. 25. 9, 12, 14. Chap. 35. 8. & 59. 21. Joh. 16. 13. Yet I adhere rather to those who conceive this to be spoken of the new disposition, and demeanure of Gods people; who as they should have their eyes now set upon their teachers, whom they expected instruction from, Luk. 4. 20. so their ears should be ready to hearken to, and follow such directions, for the ordering of their lives, as from them they should receive. See ch. 29. 18.

shall hear] Hearken to: which before they refused to do, ch. 18. 12. v. 9. 15.

a word behind thee] Alluding to a Pedagogue, saith one that following the children, whom he hath charge of, calleth to them, and mindeth them of the way, when he seeth them going out of it, To a Shepherd, saith another, that driving his sheep before him, whistleth them in, when he seeth them ready to stray.

this is the way] The right way. The way that ye should go, Psal. 25. 9. Jer. 6. 16.

when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left] Heb. when ye right hand it, and when ye left hand it. But, and, is here for, or; as Job 31. 5, 7, 9. It seems to have been a proverbial form of speech, by the common use of it, Gen. 13. 9. and 24. 49. 1 Sam. 6. 12. 2 Sam. 2. 22. & 14. 19. Job 23. 9. chap. 9. 19. & 54. 3. Taken from passengers, that journey on the road, or the Kings high-way, leading to some place of note, whither they are bound; which they must not leave, but keep precisely to it, because if they go out of it, over hedg or ditch, they trespass upon, upon those, into whose lands they break, or on whose ground they tread; if they strike into any lane, or by path, on either side, they cast themselves behind hand in their journey; and unless they get timely into it again, are not like to attain the place they intend, Numb. 20. 17. Deut. 2. 27. It is, both here, and elsewhere, applyed to the strait way of Gods precepts, whether laid down in his law, in general, or delivered in special, by the mouth of his messengers; which is precisely to be observed, with out declining any way from it, Deut. 5. 32. & 17. 11, 20. & 28. 14. Josh. 1. 7. & 23. 6. 2 Kings 22. 2. 2 Chr. 34. 2. Prov. 4. 27. They keep that course, the Gentile directeth us to, by his word. See Job 23. 10-12. Psal. 18. 21, 22. & 119. 1, 33-37, 101, 102, 128.

V. 22. Thou shalt defile also the covering of thy graven images of silver, and the ornament of thy molten images of gold] Another effect of their change, and argument of their amendment; the defacing of their idols, with all their appurtenances, Deut. 7. 5. 2 Kings 23. 4, 8.

defile] Not only convert them to a prophane, or common use, as some would have it; (there is another word for that, Deut. 20. 6. 1 Sam. 21. 4.) but use it in a disgraceful manner: as Deut. 9. 21. 2 Kings 18. 4. So 2 Kings 23. 8, 13. 24.

the covering] The plates of silver, or leaves of gold, or the like, wherewith their images were overlaid, being not all of mally metal: so Exod. 38. 17, 19. Num. 16. 38, 39. See Chapter 40. 19. Jeremy 10. 4, 9.

of thy graven images of silver] Or, thy silver graven images. See Chapter 2. 20. both for this and the next. Graven images, and molten ones, put here for images of all sorts; as Deut. 27. 17. chapter 42. 17.

the ornament] Or, coat: Vestment garment; as Exod. 28. 5. & 39. 5. Which was oft-times of very rich and costly matter, as was that made all of beaten gold, which Denyse, the Sicilian tyrant, took off from an image of Jupiter, and gave him a cotton coat instead of it; affirming that the other was too heavy for Summer, and too cold for winter, this more suteable for either season. Cicero de natur. Deo. lib. 3. and Valer. Maximus, lib. 1. c. 1.

thou shalt cast them away, as a menstruous cloth, thou shalt say unto it, Get thee hence] Thou shalt hate and abhor, not onely thine idols themselves, but whatsoever had any relation to them, and testifie the sincerity of thy conversion to God, by the abandoning and abolishing of them, See ch. 27. 9.

cast them away] Heb. disperse, or scatter them; being broken and torn to pieces. See Jer. 22. 28. Exod. 32. 20. 2 Kings 23. 4, 6, 12.

as a menstruous cloth] Heb. one sick of her infirmity, Lev. 12. 2. & 15. 33. There is, therefore, a defect of the substantive in regiment: as chap. 17. 5. & 41. 24. supplyed, chap. 64. 6. and to be supplyed here, that it may answer to the word cast, or, scatter, before. Thou shalt reckon it, as a most abominable thing, and accordingly dispole of it, or deal with it.

unto it] them, before; it, now: that is, to each of them. None so rich, or spacious, that thou shalt desire to retain, Deut. 7. 25. For the syntax, see the like, Job. 12. 7.

Get thee hence] Go out, or, Be gone. A speech of indignation, and detestation, Mat. 4. 10. & 16. 23. Get ye gon, I have nothing further to do with you; there is a divorce between you and me. An allusion it may well be to somewhat of that kind, wherein the word is used, Deut. 24. 2. Jer. 3. 1. See Hol. 14. 8.

V. 23 Then shall he give thee rain of thy seed that thou shalt sow thy ground withall; and bread of the encrease of the earth, and it shall be fat and plenteous] As they shall manifest the sincerity of their return to God, by the destruction of their idols: so shall God declare his reconcilement unto them, by blessing their tillage, with a rich and plentiful return of encrease: see ch. 37. 30. 2 Chr. 31. 10. see also, Ezek. 34. 26, 27. Joel 2. 23, 24.

Then] Heb. And: as ch. 24. 23. when they do the one, then will God do the other, Hosh. 2. 17, 21. 22.

shall he] Or, will he; the Lord: the pronoun, for the noun: as v. 19. Exod. 34 28. 2 Kings 2. 5, 4.

give the rain] Or, give rain, Deut. 28. 3, 4, 11, 12.

of thy seed] Or, for thy seed, or to thy seed; to water it, and bring it up: the rain of thy seed, for rain for thy seed: as the rain of your land, for rain for your land, Deut. 11. 14.

and bread] Or, and he will give bread: supplying it from the former branch: as Prov. 9. 7. see 2 Cor. 9. 10. or, and to; thy bread; referring this also to rain; rain for thy bread, that is, for thy breadcorn: as Iob 28. 5. ch. 28. 28. 2 Cor. 9. 10. and this, the rather, to carry on the tenour of the content the more cavenly; thy bread, as thy seed: the pronoun thence supplyed: as Psalm 45. 3.

of the encrease of the earth] Or, from the revenew of the ground: for so is the word rendred, chap. 23. 3. and signifies whatsoever comes out of the ground.

and it shall be fat and plenteous] Or, that it may be, to make it so: as chap 8. 21. Mal. 1. 9. Heb. fat, and fat: for both words have a signification of fatness, that is, exceeding fat: which applyed to corn, or grain, doth intimate the richnels, fulnes, fairnels, and weightiness of it; and consequently, argueth it the fitter for food, and able to give the stronger nourishment: for so Gen. 27. 28. 39. Deut. 32. 14. the fat of the kidneys of corn, and fat pasture, 1 Chr. 4. 40 & Ezek. 34. 14. thus, fat, though both Gods footsteps dropping down fatness, Psalm 65. 11.

in that day shall thy cattel feed in large pastures] God will afford plenty of food, and of all needfularies, not for man alone, but for beasts also: not for your selves onely, but for your cattel, Psalm 36. 6. & 65. 12, 13. & 104. 13-15. & 147. 8, 9. This branch, or right, belongeth unto the next verse; as being jointly with it, concerning provilion for their eattle.

in that day] At the same time, as chap 28. 5.

Shall thy cattle feed] That is, each of them: for the noun is plural, the verb singular, as chap. 26. 19.

in large pastures] Heb. in a pasture enlarged: being not pent up, and straightned, as, in the time of the siege, they had formerly bin: the word signifies, sometime, a lamb, or vain rather, see chap. 16. 1. (where taken collectively, as here) Plain 37. 20. so called of striking and skipping, 2 Sam. 6. 14, 16. as lambs, or rams, are wont to do, Psalm 114. 4, 6. sometime a pasture, wherein cattle use so to play and sport themselves, Psalm 65. 13. especially, when having bin pent up before, they come now to be enlarged, in pasture where running at large, they may range freely, and disport themselves at pleasure, and having scope enough, they may feed the more plentifully and battle the better: See ch. 15. 17.

V. 24. The oxen likewise, and the young asses, that eat the ground shall eat clean provender, which hath bin winnowed with the shovel, and with the fan.] As their grain shall be rich, so it shall be very plentiful, which both seldom concur: there shall be so great abundance of it, and such plenty of provilions, that the labouring beast shall eat, as pure corn, as men are usually wont to feed on themselves or such, saith one, as at other times they used to reserve for their Steeds: see Psalm 72. 16.

oxen, and young asses] Both these they used in eating their grounds ch. 32. 20. though they might not draw both together, Deut. 22. 10. alluded to, 2. Cor. 6. 14.

clean provender] So some of the Jewish Writers on this place, affirming the word, in Arabick, to signifie corn, good and pure: though others say, that in that language it is used for a small kind of pease, which the Latines call cicer, whereof Cicero had his name; We Chich pease, or Chiches. Others render it, savoury, or well relished, because it cometh very neer to that word, that signifies, leaven, or leavened. Others again, sharp, because the word hath some affinity with that which we call vinegar. The word being no where else found, becometh, here, therefore, the more ambiguous: but what corn, or grain should have to do with leaven, or vinegar, I am not able to conceive; let me add what, peradventure, may with some be deemed, as likely as either of these: the root from whence it cometh, signifieth sometime, to use basely, or to oppress: whence an oppressor, or one that dealeth harshly, Pl. 71. 4. and one oppressed, or harshly dealt with, ch. 1. 17. which word, and this, differ but in one letter; and that letter, in either, wherein they differ, admitteth a mutual interchange. I suppose therefore, it may well signifie corn, beaten and threshed out of her flothing is cut off: a notion of oppression, or hasty usage ch. 25. 10. Amos 1. 3 Hob. 2. 11. and Deuteronomy. 21. or being out of grain, (called a shaffling of it, ch. 28. 26. By the word then here used, I understand corn threshed out from the ear, or the straw: for of the cleannels of it, from the chaff, or other trash mixed with it, comes after in the winnowing; so the meaning should be, that their beasts should eat, not chaff, or straw, as they used to do, chap 11. 7. & 65. 25. nor corn in the ear, or husk with the straw, or beaten ear, but mixed full with baser feed, that had grown among it, or other like trash, as when they tred the mow, they might do Deut. 25. 4. but grain threshed out from the ear, and straws and winnowed from the chaff and duft, accurately dreffed, as if it were for themselves to eat at their own boards: which way soever it be taken, there is a defect of the subject, clean provender is savoury, or sharp: or threshed, for such grain, or grain so used; as shaffling, for shaffling corn, ch. 17. 5 provender] Or, as some render it for provender: or, instead of provender: the word belil here used is so taken allo, Job 6. 5. & 24. 6; (though they have another word besides, for provender, more frequently used, Gen. 24. 25, 32. & 42. 27. & 43. 24. Jud. 19. 19. & hath it it a notion of commixtion, or confusion; as Babel coming from the same root hath ; and provender is so termed, because it confisteth commonly of divers sorts of corn, or pulse, mingled together, as in our horse-bread: of the grain, not severed as yet from the chaff: in regard whereof, our Prophet, who is wont to be very accurate in the choice of his words, may seem the rather here to have used it.

that hath bin winnowed] The word signifieth prim arily to disperse, or scatter, Lev. 26. 33. Job 18. 15. Prov. 15. 7. and then to winnow, Ruth. 3. 2. Jer. 21. 2. because in winnowing, and the chaff is dispersed, whence that proverbial form of speech, as chaff before the wind, Ps. 35. 5.

with the shovel, and with the fan] The former word is no where else used, in regard whereof, the signification is the lesse certain: but our Jewish masters tell us, that it signifieth a shovel: so called, because by it, the corn is lift, or cast up against the wind, to sever the chaff from it: and some of them suppose a two-fold manner of clensing corn intimated, either both severally used about the same grain, as passing through two dressings, the one, first by the shovel, and the second after by the fan: or the one used at sometimes, & the other, at some other times, as occasion and opportunity was: and then the text should be rendred, by way of disjunction, with the shovel, or with the fan; either with the one, or the other: as Chap. 17. 8. Others make but one sort of dressing implied, performed, partly, by the shovel, wherewith the grain is cast up; and partly by the fan, or sceven, that receiveth it from the shovel: the latter word derived from the verb here used, is found, also, Jer. 15. 7.

V. 25. And there shall be upon every high mountain, and upon every high hill, rivers and streams of waters, in the day of the great slaughter, when the towers fall] A prolecution of the former promise, of a plentiful measure of seasonable showers, for the watering of their Land, to make it the more fertile and fruitful, ver. 23. the want of it (not the abundance of it, as with us oft) being the ordinary cause of dearth in those parts. Deut. 28. 12, 13, 14. 2 Sam. 21. 1, 10. 1 Kings 17. 1. & 18. 5. Jer. 3. 3. & 5. 24. & 14. 2, 3. Amos 4. 7. 8. The meaning then is, that God would send them such a rain of liberalities, as it is Psalm 68. 9. such a large and liberal quantity of it, that the higher grounds shall run down with floods and streams of it, wherewith both themselves, that are wont to be dryeft, and the lands below them, should be abundantly watered, Judg. 1. 15. Ps. 104. 10. & 133. 3. for, I suppose them to be so wide here, who following a Jewish Commenter, understand all this of storms and tempests, that should fall upon the Assyrian forces, quartering upon the hils near to Jerusalem: see v. 30.

high] Or, lofty: as ch. 2. 15.

mountain] Of Judah, Ezek. 36. 8-12.

high hill] Heb. I fted up: as ch. 2. 12.

rivers and streams of waters] Or, rivers with streams of water. (For though the word be in a plural form, yet the notion of it is singular, as Chapter 1. 30, 39.) floods divers ways (so the word properly signifieth, Gen. 10. 25. (streaming down with water: see Chapter 44. 4.

in the day] At, or after that time, as ch. 4. 1, 3. the time more particularly defigned; when it should thus be, to wit, after the overthrow given to Sennacherib, Ch. 37. 30.

of the great slaughter] That God shall make of the enemies of his people, that had put them to such straights before in the Camp of Sennacherib, Chap. 37. 37. See the like, chap. 34. 5-7. Ezek. 39. 17-20. Rev. 19. 17, 18.

when the towers fall] Towers, properly great ones: for thence have they this name; and from thence arifeth some variety of reading, 2 Sam. 22. 51. & Psalm 18. 50. put here for great ones in State and place: as Chap. 2. 15. Sennacherib's great Princes, that fell, no doubt, many of them, among the reft of his forces, ch. 10. 8, 33. See v. 31. Though many refer all this to the slaughter of the Babylonians, by the Medes and Persians, Chap. 13. 15-18. & 14. 21. and the fall of Babels ftately Towers, Jer. 50. 27, 30. & 51. 25, 40, 53, 58. But the following discourse from vers. 27. carrieth it strongly the other way.

V. 26. Moreover the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be seven fold, as the light of seven days] This passage most of the Jewish Interpreters expound of the days of Messias, after the slaughter of Gog and Magog, Ezek. 39. And many of ours herein swerve not much from them, understanding it, some, of the great glory of the Church here upon earth, in the times of the Gospel, being mightily enlarged, and with spiritual endowments abundantly enriched, ch. 11. 9. Joel 2. 28, 29. Mat. 28. 28, 29. Mar. 16. 15, 16. John 7. 38, 37. Acts 2. 17, 18, 23. the lustre whereof should be such, that it should far exceed the brightnels of the celestial luminaries, ch. 24. 23. or should far surpass that, which in fore-going times it had, 2 Cor. 3. 7-18. See chap 32. 15. & 60. 17. others, of the glorious condition of the Church triumphant in heaven, chap. 60. 19, 20. Mat. 13. 43. 1 Cor. 15. 40, 43. Rev. 21. 10-23. But I rather concur with one of those Jewish Commenters, and some others of ours, who conceive it to be meant of the great joy and gladnesse, that the people of God, coming out of those straights, that before they were held in, and freed from those fears that formerly enthralled them, should now be surprized with, and possessed of, upon their sudden and unexpected deliverance, out of those their grievous distresses, by the destruction, in an instant, of those forces, that lay so neer them, and prefsed so hard upon them, that there seemed no possibility of escape: see ch. 17. 14. & 37. 3. v. 29. light is commonly put for joy and gladnesse, Est. 8. 16, 17. Ps. 9. 11, 12. & 112. 4. darkness, for grief, heaviness, and dread, ch. 8. 22. & 9. 1, 2. & 50. 10. Amos 5. 18, 20. and as when men are in much grief and fear, the heavens themselves are said to be darkned, and the sun to be set with them, c. 13. 10. Ezek. 32. 7. Amos 8. 9. so are the heavens, and those heavenly bodies said to shine forth, more then ordinarily, bright upon persons and people, when they are taken with extraordinary joy; which then commonly most exceeds, when their dangers and distresses have bin extraordinary great, and their deliverance out of them, very sudden, ch. 58. 10.

Moreover] Heb. And, as ch. 29. 5.

the light of the moon] There is another word more commonly used for the moon: this here, and ch. 24. 23. given to her from her whitenesse, that is, brightnels and beauty, Cant. 6. 10. and save in these places, is not found.

as the light of the sun] That is, as fome, constant, not variable, with full and wane; but rather, for splendor, equall to it, which it otherwise cometh far short of: 1 Cor. 15. 41. nor is the word, for the sun, here, the common name of it; but a term given it from its heat, accompanied with light & lustre, Job 30. 26. 28. Pf. 19. 4. Cant. 6. 10. ch. 24. 23. no other found, save in that of Job, then the former.

as the light of seven days] Wherein the World was made, and man stood, say fome, as being now restored to its original excellency, much eclipsed by mans fall. But neither was there any sun the three first of those seven days, Gen. 1. 16, 19. Nor is the time of mans fall certain, and the Prophet plainly expounds himself, and theweth his meaning to be, that the day-light should, though their excess of joy, seem such unto them, as if seven days of bright sun-shine, were put all into one; a certain number for an uncertainties Gen. 4. 15. Job 5. 19. Pf. 79. 12. ch. 4. 1.

in the day that the Lord bindeth up the breach of his people, and healeth the stroke of their wound] When God requireth again those breaches that the Assyrian had made in the State of the Jewish people, ch. 37. 30. & 38. 6.

in the day that] Or, when: as Gen. 3. 17. Ruth 4. 5.

bindeth up the breach of his people] As a wound is wound up, to close it, Luk. 10. 34. or bones that have bin broken, or disjoynted, being set again, are bound up, that they may fasten the better, chap. 3. 7. Hos. 6. 1.

breach] As v. 13. c. 7. 6.

healeth] A metaphor; from the curing of a disease or wounded body, to the restoring and feeling of a distracted and distressed State: so ch. 19. 22. & 57. 19. Jer. 33. 6.

the stroke of their wound] Or rather, the wound of their stroke; or their wound of stroke, that is, the wound made in them, that is, in their State, by a stroke: for the latter word, of frequent use, signifies a stroke. Ch. 14. 7. & 27. 7. rendred a sore, chap. 1. 6. the former a wound, though no where else found, yet the verb, whence it is derived, signifying to wound, Job 5. 18. Pf. 68. 21. and the affix, though annexed to the latter, yet in construction, ordinarily hath reference to, and goeth with the former: of which, see on chap. 2. 20. Two words, much of the same sense, or notion, are here joyned together, as here: So Num. 14. 5. Deut. 8. 15. & 32. 13. Pf. 145. v. 9.

V. 27. Behold, the name of the Lord cometh from far, burning with his anger, and the burden thereof is heavy] At this verse beginneth the last part of this Chapter, concerning the destruction of Sennacherib, and his forces, and the great joy that Gods people should have thereupon. With the same, are divers Chapters and Sermons concluded: as chap. 10. 33, 34. & 14. 24, 25. & 17. 12-14. & 31. 8. 9. & 33. 13, 14. In this verse, and the next, is God described, as coming like some Potentate in State and Pomp, but withall, in much fury, and indignation, furnished with instruments of torture and torment, to execute an heavy doom, either upon some rebellious people of his, own, or upon some robbers, that from other parts, breaking in upon his people, have made much havock of them, and spoiled a great part of their country.

Behold] See the like entrance into the same subject, Chapter 10. 33.

the name of the Lord] That is, the Lord himself; as we use to say, the Kings Majesty, for the King himself. So Psalm 20. 5. & 116. 13. chap. 18. 7. & 50. 10. or, as fome, God worthy of all renown, and praise; name, for renown: as Gen. 6. 4. & 11. 4. or his power, to be shewed in the execution of justice and vengeance, Pf. 99. 3. chap. 59. 19. Mal. 1. 14. or, so cometh, that the very name, or fame, of his coming, daunteth his foes, Jer. 6. 24. but the first is the plainest and the best: nor was there any fame of his coming, before he came.

cometh from far] That is, as fome, cometh suddenly, unexpected, while he is deemed yet to be far off; Pf. 10. 1. Amos 6. 3. as men oft that have bin travelling return from remote parts, when they are thought to be far off, and are, least of all looked for, Mat. 24. 44. Mar. 13. 34, 35. or, as others, from heaven, whence he sent his Angel to destroy the Assyrians, ch. 37. 36. a place remote from the earth, Pf. 103, 11. See ch. 13. 5.

burning with his anger] Or, at the nose: so the word signifies properly Pfal. 115. 6. Ezek. 8. 17. applyed to God, by a figurative speech taken from man, whom anger putteth into an heat, and such heat discovereth it self, usually, in that part. See ch. 13. 13. Or, his nose, or anger, burneth. Heb. burning.

and the burden thereof is heavy] Heb. heaviesse, as Prov. 27. 3. his anger, where so ever it lighteth, will prove heavy, that is, grievous, as Gen. 50. 10. or heaviesse, that is, grievousnesse it self, as chap. 21. 15. & 42. 25. most grievous; and there is then a defect of the pronoun, as chap. 27. 9. or, as our margent, following therein, the Hebrew Commenters, and some others, and with grievousnesse of flame: for so the word is sometime used, for a lifting up of fire, by flame and smoak, Judg. 20. 38, 40. and, as some, also, Jer. 6. 1. he cometh fuming at the nose with fire and smoak, See Pfal. 18. 8. or knitting this, to the latter version of the former, his nose, or face, burneth, or burning, and (as Jer. 17. 4, 10, 11.) with a grievous flame.

his lips are full of indignation, and his tongue as a devouring fire] Or, is as a devouring fire, Exod. 24. 17. fire from his mouth. Pfal. 18. 8. see Pfal. 50. 3. & 97. 3.

V. 28. And his breath as an overflowing stream] Or, is as a stream, or flood ever flowing. Heb his spirit: Spirit, for breath: either of fire to confume, as Dan. 7. 10. or, of water, to drown, as ch. 28. 15, 17, 18. Rev. 12. 15. for the Prophet passeth from one simil. tude to another, as ch. 28. 17. and again afterward in this verse.

shall reach to the middle of the neck] Or, that reacheth to the middle of the neck, a defect of the relative; as v. 14. Heb. that divideth unto the neck, or by the neck; as the same particle is used, Ezr. 10. 17. that reaching unto the neck, divideth by it, the upper part, to wit, the head, yet above water, from the rest of the body remaining under water; a type of a dangerous, and almoft desperate condition, chap. 8. 8. In which place, yet because the King of Assyria is said so to over-flow the land of Judah; some, therefore, conceive the words to be spoken of by him, reading the words, as a flood, or stream, over-flowing him, that divided to the neck, that is, over flowing him, totally, over head and ears, as we say, who did lately, with his forces, overflow the whole Land and State of Judah, even to the neck, so as no part of it, save Jerusalem, the head City, seemed to be above water.

to sift the Nations with a sive of vanity] Heb. to shake to and fro, as chap. 11. 15. & 13. 2. here more specially, as corn is shaken and tossed to and fro in a five, Luk. 22. 31. but the use of a five, ordinarily, in such case, is to shake out the drosse, or lesser and lighter seed, and retain the full and weighty grain, Amos 9. 9. but this sifting, the Prophet telleth us, should be another manner of sifting, a sifting with a sive of vanity; such a sifting, as did shake to and fro, what was sifted in it, till it came even to nothing; to drive them to nothing, by that, whereby he only purgeth his own people, ch. 27. 8, 9. or to sift them in such a five, as retaineth nothing, but letteth all run thorow, to make an utter riddance of them. See somewhat the like in a allusion to fanning, Jer. 4. 11. the word rendred, a five, is no where else found in Scripture; in regard whereof, some of the Jewish Criticks question the signification of it, and would have it to signifie rather, some part of the horse harnesse, because of the bridle that followeth: but they produce no proof, for such use of it; and beside what we before observed, of the Prophets passing from one trope to another, the word is oft found, thus used, in the Jewish Doctors; as in that of one of them, concerning four sorts of Scholars, or hearers, some like to a funnge, that sucketh all in alike, some like an hour-glasse, or water-glass (such as anciently they were) that taketh in at the one end, and putteth out at the other (alluded to, Heb. 2. 1.) some, like a wine-bag, that letteth go the wine, and keepeth only the dregs; (he might as well have said, a bolter, that bolteth out the flour, and keeps in the bran) some, to a five, that letteth go the trash, and keepeth in the corn.

and there shall be a bridle in the Jaws of the people, causing them to err] Or, and to be a bridle, or a snaffle; that it may run in the same tenour, with the branch next before it; or, as fome, with reference to the former words, as a flood, or a stream over-flowing to the neck——and as a bridle, causing to err, or wander in the Jaws of the people: to wit, before-mentioned, turning the remainder of them this way, and that way, as he pleaseth, Jam. 3. 3. or forcing them out of the way, that they desired, and intended to go, (their purpose being to Jerusalem) and enforcing them in a scattered manner, wanding some one way, some another, to make what haste they could home to their own country again, ch. 37. 7, 29, 33, 34, 37. See 2 King. 6. 19. Job 12. 19, 24. Pfal. 107. 40.

a bridle,] or a snaffle as fome: there are two words used, Pfal. 32. 9. this here, and that other, chap. 37. 29. where our translators render this bridle: as also, Job 3. 11. & 4. 13. that bit, which seems most probable: because said to be put, between the lips, into the mouth: see there: so that this seems to signifie properly, a bridle, or rein: that is a snaffle, or bit: but this used here, as that there, to comprehend both.

V. 29. Ye shall have a song, as in the night, when an holy solemnity is kept, and gladnesse of heart, as when one goeth with a pipe, to come into the mountain of the Lord, to the mighty one of Israel] In the midst of the relation, of the destruction of Sennacherib and his forces, is this passage inserted, foretelling the great joy, that Gods people, thereby, delivered from their former fears and afflictions, should conceive, and express thereupon, to wit, such as they used to have at their solemn festivals, when with much mirth and musick, they repaired to the Temple, and spent the night also, in singing and chanting there.

ye shall have a song] Heb. the song shall be to you. That is, as fome; Then shall ye have a song: supplyed for the better connexion; as Job 9. 35. Or, as other, this shall be a song unto you: conceiving the article to be put for the pronoun. But I suppose it is never so used; with reference to any other thing, fave that which the word, whereunto it is joyned, importeth. I should therefore thus render it, Such songs, or singing, then shall ye have. Song, for songs: as 1 Kings 4. 32. or singing: as 1 Chr. 6. 31.

as in the night, when an holy solemnity is kept] Heb. as a night, or, according to a night of sanctifying a festival. That is, according to the singing that is wont, in such a night, to be used. For the word of singing, is to be supplyed, here, from the former branch: as chap. 16. 5. (see the note there) and in the next member the like. By night, some understand here the night, before the festival day, because their festivals began at even, Exod. 12. 18, 42. Lev. 23. 32. Others, the night following the festival day: in which they made merry, with junkess after supper, and past the night with all manner of mirth. Of some solemn night-wakes that they used to have in their festivals, see on chap. 12. 3. The Jewish Doctors hence gather, that it was a Paschal night, wherein Sennacheribs forces were defeated and destroyed. Which that it was done in the night time, is certain; 2 Kings 19. 35. but that it was the Paschal night, is their groundless affertion. Nor is it likely that that night, wherein the deed was done, was so merry a night with them, being not as yet informed of it.

gladnesse of heart] That is, heavy gladnesse; as Cant. 3. 11. Jer. 15. 16. When a man is glad, as we say, at the heart, our heart shall rejoyce, Pfal. 33. 21. & 105. 3. Such joy doth God require of us in his service, Deut. 16. 12, 14. & 28. 47. Neh. 8. 10-12. chap. 58. 13. See Pfal. 81. 1, 2.

as when one goeth with a pipe] Heb. as, or, according to one going, or, travelling, (as ver. 2. Jude. 5. 10.) or, journying with a pipe. That is, like the gladnesse of one that is going with musick to Gods house which they used to cheer up themselves with by the way, the journey, sometime, being long, 1 Sam. 10. 3, 5. Pfal. 42. 4. & 122. 1.

a pipe] The word signifies any sort of wind-instrument, pierced, or, bored, thorow, whereof it hath its name) as those made of wood, or metal, or hollow, so as it may be blown thorow, as those of cane, and the like. Put here for any sort of musical instruments; because such they used in the way, as being lightest for carriage, and readiest at hand, for use. See ch. 5. 12.

to come into the mountain of the Lord] Or, to go unto the mountain of the Lord, as the particle, (for change the rather here made use of) is used, Gen. 11. 4. ch. 9. 8. so ch. 2. 3. unto, not, into, to mount Sion, Pf. 84. 7.

the mighty one of Israel] Heb. to the rock of Israel. So is God frequently stiled, Deut. 32. 3, 30, 31. 2 Sam. 23. 3. Pf. 78. 38. Howbeit, by the rock of Israel, some understand Sion, the rock, on which the Temple stood: and it should then be, as oft the same thing, in other terms. But the former may well stand: for they went to meet with God there, Exod. 23. 14, 17. Pf. 41. 12. & 63. 2.

V. 30. And the Lord shall cause his glorious voice to be heard] The Prophet returns to prosecute the relation of the overthrow of the Assyrians, in a rhetorical description of the manner, how it was done.

his glorious voice] Heb. his voice of might, or magnificence, or majesticalnesse. That is, his mighty, or his magnificent, and majestical voice. For the word seems to be used in either of these notions, Job 37. 22. Pfal. 21. 5. & 29. 4. & 96. 6. & 104. 1. And by it is the thunder signified, called the Lords voice Pfal. 29. 3, 5, 7-9. and his mighty Pfal. 29. 4. and 68. 33. & powerful Job 26. 14. and stately voice, Job 36. 4. From hence also, are also from the passages ensuing, it may be deemed, that though the judgment inflicted upon the Assyrian Camp, was put in execution by the ministery of an Angel, Chap. 37. 36. Yet it was not executed in a secret and silent way, as that destruction of many thousands, in Davids time, by the pestilence, 1 Chr. 21. 14. 16. or, as that slaughter made of the first-born, throughout all Egypt, Exod. 12. 12, 23, 29. Heb. 11. 28. but by raising a mighty storm and tempest, accompanied with dreadful thunder and lightning, wherein so many thousands of Sennacheribs souldiers miscarried. See the like, Pf. 18. 12-14. & 77. 17-18. ch. 29. 6. Zach. 9. 14, 15. This seems rather to be here intended, then as some, an allusion to the voice of a Commander, exciting, and encouraging his forces to fight, Joel 2. 11.

and shall shew the lighting down of his arm, with the indignation of his anger, and with the flame of a devouring fire; with scattering, and tempest, and hailstone] A further description of that horrible and hideous tempest, wherewith the Assyrians were surprized.

and shall shew the lighting down of his arm] The word rendred, lighting down, is supposed to signifie, sometime, descension, though there be no clear place produced for it: sometime, rest, and so it is oft used, Job 17. 16. Prov. 29. 9. Eccl. 4. 6. & 6. 5. Nor do I see why it may not well be so taken here; as Damascus is said to be the rest, or resting place of Gods wrath, Zach. 9. 1. God will in a most conspicuous manner, cause his revenging power (that is, his arm, here; as chap. 48. 14. & 52. 10.) to light on, and to rest upon them. See Ver. 32.

with the indignation of his anger] Heb. in indignation of anger. Two words, much of the same notion, joyned together, as before, ver. 26. Ch. 7. 4 & 13. 13. Lam. 2. 3. 6. to expresse an exceeding wrath, manifested in this their destruction. God will do it, as in a most conspicuous, so in a most fierce, and wrathful manner; that it may be seen, both who doth it, and in what manner it is done. See chap. 26. 11.

and with the flame of devouring fire] As chap. 29. 6.

[scattering] Or, as some, lightning: so termed, because it pierceth into, and violently rendeth, and breaketh asunder. For the word seems to have in it a notion, not so much of dispersion, as of diffipation, or breaking to pieces; as chap. 27. 9. And hence comes the word, for an hammer, that breaketh things to pieces, Ier. 51. 20.

haiſtones] Heb. ſtone of hail]; Stone, for, ſtones; as Hab. 2. 11. See Josh. 10. 11. chap. 28. 2. Pſal. 18. 12. Thus also it is, by some, deemed, that God diſturbed the Egyptian at the red-ſea, with a ſtorm of the like condition, with that here deſcribed, Exod. 14, 24.

V. 31. For by the voice of the Lord ſhall the Aſſyrian be beaten down, which ſmote with a rod.] Or, By the voice of the Lord ſhall the Aſſyrian be terrified; or, affrighted, ch. 20. 5. & 31. 4, 9. Mal. 2. 5. Spoken of Sennacherib, eſpecially, who though not ſlain, as preſent, yet was ſo affrighted, with what he heard and ſaw, that he durſt not ſtay by it. ch. 31. 8. & 37. 37. Or, if of his army, rather, broken in pieces, and diſſolved; as Ch. 7. 8. which at length, alſo, befel himſelf, ch. 37. 38. See ch. 31. 8. & 33. 3.

which ſmote with the rod.] Whom God uſed as a rod, to chaſtiſe his children, chap. 10. 26, 20. a defect of the relative; as ver. 14. 28. Or, as others, with the rod will he ſmite him: that is, God will ſmite him; or, he ſhall be ſmitten: as ver. 14. 23. See chap. 30. 24. with the rod of iron, that ſhall break him to pieces like a potters veſſel, Pſal. 2. 9. The text will bear either: and this latter liketh well with what followeth, ver. 32.

V. 32. And in every place where the grounded ſtaff ſhall paſs, which the Lord ſhall lay upon him, it ſhall be with tabrets, and harps.] Heb. Every paſſage of the founded ſtaff, which God ſhall make to reſt on him, ſhall be with tabrets or, drums, and harps.

grounded ſtaff.] The rod ſpoken of, ver. 31. which ſhall not paſs, ſlightly over them, giving of them a wipe onely by the way; but ſhall be fixed and founded; as chap. 28. 16. it ſhall ſtick ſurely by them, as a rod, or ſcourge, that enters into the fleſh, and makes therein a deep impreſſion.

ſhall lay upon him] Or, make to reſt on them. The word being collective, ver. 31. it ſhall not be, as with Gods own people, on whom the rod doth not reſt, Pſal. 125. 3. but it ſhall ſtick by them, and reſt on them, till it make an end of them, Zach. 9. 1. ver. 31. Yet there want not, that expound this of the rod, wherewith, by Gods appointment, the Aſſyrian had ſmitten them, that in all ſuch places, there ſhould now be much joy, ver. 29. See more on the next clauſe.

with tabrets, and harps] This paſſage is exceedingly perſtered with variety of expoſitions: ſome by the tabrets and harps, underſtand thoſe ſacrifices, which were offered with ſome kind of ſolemn muſick, Numb. 10. 10. Pſal. 81. 1, 2. to that purpoſe, drawing in hither from the next branch, the word of ſhaking, which they apply to the ſhake-offerings, Levit. 8. 30, 34. or to the lifting up of the hand in prayer, Pſal. 141. 2. and ſo the ſenſe ſhould be, that the Aſſyrian ſhould be fought with, and prevailed againſt, by ſacrifice and prayer, 2 Chr. 32. 20, 21. Others, that the Angels ſhall exceedingly rejoyce, and make melody, that they were ſent upon ſuch an employment; and hither they ſtrain the ſhaking, after mentioned, as implying the agitation of the hand, in the uſe of hand-inſtruments. Others, of Gods coming to battle againſt the Aſſyrian, in a triumphant way, as being ſure of victory before hand, and going forth to fight in ſuch manner, as conquerers uſe to be entertained, when they come home from fight, as conquerers. Judg. 11. 34. 1 Sam. 18. 6. Others, of the publike joy and triumph, that ſhould be in all places, when this miraculous overthrow ſhall be given, and wrought, as was after the overthrow of the Egyptians in the red-ſea, Exod. 15. 20. Pſal. 66. 6. ſo 2 Chr. 20. 28. Pſal. 59. 10. & 68. 25. &c. 31. 4. And this ſhould ſeem cline to, but that this whole verſe ſeems to run ſtill upon the diſtreſs, and the overthrow it ſelf. Others, therefore, of thoſe, that by muſick and inſtruments ſhould ſeek to avert the rod of God, and either the dread, or the ſmart of it, as Kings affay oft to do, that God will ſit, in a furious manner, upon ſuch. Others, laſtly, ſuppoſe that as we now uſe drum and fife, ſo the Jews, and other Eaſtern people, in thoſe dayes, uſed tabret and harp, in battle: And that thereunto the Prophet ſhould here alude, as intimating that with tabrets and harps, indeed; but other, then ſuch as they uſed, to wit, thunder and lightning, and ſtorm and tempeſt, and haiſtones, inſtead of ſuch, would God come to war againſt them, ver. 30. and the very noiſe of his warlike drums, and military muſick alone, ſhould be ſufficient, both to diſmay and to deſtroy them, v. 31.

and in battels of ſhaking will he fight with it] Or, againſt them: battels of ſhaking. That is, ſay ſome, by a kind of inverſion, agitations of war: thereby underſtanding the enemy, who had deſtroyed Gods people, and whom God would now deſtroy. Or, as others, rather, battles, wherein God will ſhew his power, by ſhaking them to nothing in the fierce of wrath, before ſpoken of, ver. 28. which ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors ſuppoſe here alluded to. Or, with the lifting up, and ſhaking of his hand over them, ch. 11. 15. & 19. 16. (in another manner againſt the Aſſyrian, then he formerly ſhook his hand, at Jeruſalem, chap. 10. 31. which may here be glanced at, as another of them intimates) will he fight with it, that is, as ſome, with the rod, before ſpoken of, ver. 31. Or, as one of the Rabbines, with the Aſſyrian camp. Or, with her, that is, with Aſſhur, or, Aſſyria: for the names of countries, are commonly feminine in Hebrew: See ch. 15. 1. Some render it, with them, or againſt them; as Exod. 14. 25. Pſal. 55. 18. & 66. 2. that is, with the Aſſyrians, ſuppoſing the word reflectively taken, ver. 32. and the country put for the people. See ch. 31. 8, 9. The whole verſe may well be rendred, as one of the Jewiſh Commenters well obſerveth; And it ſhall be, that in every paſſage of the ſtaff, (that is, in every place, where eby it paſſeth) which God ſhall cauſe to reſt on them, with tabrets and harps, and warlike ſhakings, will he fight againſt them.

V. 33. For Tophet is ordained of old, yea, for the King it is prepared; he hath made it deep, and large] The Prophet cloſeth up this prediction of the Aſſyrians overthrow, with a rhetorical relation of what manner of place God had prepared for the execution of them, and in what manner, therein, they were to be deale with. That which ſome underſtand, only of their deſtruction, here; others, of their torment, only, hereafter, in hell. A middle ſort of the former, but not without reference alſo, to the latter; with whom I concur.

Tophet] Heb. Topheth: With addition of a letter; which is not therefore alwaies, a note of honour, or reſpect, as ſome have ſaid. But it is, ordinarily, elſewhere ſecond, Tophet. And it is the name of a place, in the valley, lying on the South-ſide of Jeruſalem, Ioſh. 18. 16. ſometime belonging to one Hinnom, then owner of it, and after him to a ſon of his, and his poſterity; in regard whereof, it is called ſometime, the valley of Hinnom, Hebrew, Gehinnom: whence the Greek, Γέεννα, and the Latine, Gehenna. Sometime, the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, 2 Chr. 33. 6. & Ier. 7. 31. both Ioſh. 15. 8. & 18. 16. And ſometime, the valley of his ſons, 2 Kings 23. 10. In this vale, ſtood Tophet, wherein the Idolatrous Jewes uſed to burn their children, in ſacrifice to an Idol, called Molor, Levit. 20. 2. 2 Chr. 28. 3. & 33. 6. And it had that name from the drums, or, tabrets, that their Idolatrous Prieſts uſed to beat upon, at the time of their abominable ſervices, to drown the ſhrieks and cryes of the poor ſacrificed children. For it ſeems but a fancy, which one of the Rabbines here hath, that it ſhould be termed Tophet, from a word ſignifying to rejoice, or ſeduce; becauſe every one that is ruffled by his own concupiſcence, (Jam. 1. 14.) goeth down thither. But this place, was by Joſias, in deteſtation of the horrid acts therein committed, not deſtroyed onely, but defiled, 2 Kings 23. 10. Made a common laſtall for the city, where dung and filth lay continually reaking; and it became afterward, a common place of burial, for the meaner ſort, eſpecially, of the people; and perſons (as ſome ſay) executed by the hand of juſtice, which were not, ordinarily, ſuffered to be unburied, Deut. 21. 23. Alſo it is, by ſome affirmed, that where ſuch were burnt, who by the law, were to ſuffer that kind of death, Levit. 21. 9. And further, that in ſome notorious crimes, the bodies of the perſons executed, were thither thrown out, as to the ſcalar, Germonie, at Rome; and there day without burial; as to Jehoiakim was threatned, Jer. 22. 19. until the fleſh being rotted and waſted, the bones remaining of them, were there burnt: alluded unto, as they ſuppoſe, in the Gehenna of fire, (for ſo the words are) as a higher degree of judgment or penalty, in capital crimes, Mat. 5. 22. 23. And it is uſed, as in the writings of the Rabbines, ſo in the Scripture of the New Teſtament, for Hell; whereof it is a type, not unlike, Mat. 18. 8, 9. & 23. 15. Mark 9. 43, 44. But what is ſpecially meant by, Tophet, here, is queſtionable; among thoſe eſpecially, that underſtand it of ſome place, wherein this execution was done hereupon earth. Of theſe ſome are of opinion, that in the vale of Benhinnom, this execution was done; the Aſſyrian camp, as great part of it, lying thereabout; or that there the lews buried, or burnt the carcaſes of them, as Ezek. 39. 11, 14. but this is of no certainty, nor great probability. See on ch. 37. 36. Others therefore underſtand it of a tropical Tophet, a place that ſhould be as a Tophet to them; that wherſoever they ſhould be encamped, when Gods executioner ſhould come to do his office with them, and to execute his matters down upon them, that place ſhould prove ſuch a Tophet to them, as the Prophet here deſcribeth. See ch. 66. 24. and ſee of Ariel, ſomewhat the like, ch. 29. 2.

ordained] Fitted and furniſhed, as ch. 31. 5 of old] Heb. from yeſterday: which phraſe is uſed, ſometime, for ſome ſhort ſpace of time paſt, as here, but of yeſterday, Iob 8. 9. thou cameſt but yeſterday, 2 Sam. 15. 20 ſometime, without any ſuch reſtriction, as 1 Sam. 10. 11. thoſe that knew him yeſterday; that is, in time paſt, or before-time: and ſo here. Howbeit, that fancy of the Jewiſh Doctor is too nice, who breaſuſe the phraſe, in Hebrew, of a thing paſt, runneth commonly in thoſe words, yeſterday, and the third day, paſt, Gen. 31. 2, 5. Exod. 4. 10. & 5. 7, 14. Ioſh. 4. 18. would have have here by yeſterday, meant the ſecond day of the Creation, on which they hold that hell was made, which had as yeſterday, indeed before it, but no third day. But to let paſs the groundleſneſs of the conceit, he might have found the phraſe uſed ſingle, as here, ſo elſewhere, in the places above recited, & Mic. 2. 8. So alſo, Heb. 13. 8.

for the King] For the King: which being underſtood of hell-fire, there is no ſcruple of it; or, if of ſome place of deſtruction here on earth, in general, then his Temple proved his Tophet, chap. 37. 38. But he eſcaping that tempeſt, that ſwept away ſo many thouſands of his army, the queſtion is, how it is ſaid, to have been prepared for him. To evade, rather then to aſſoil this, ſome would have the words read, not prepared for the King, but prepared by the King: and the old Latine ſo renders it ſome, by the King, underſtanding God, that great King, Mal. 1. 14. the King of the whole world, Pſal. 47. 7. Others, King Ezekiah, who, ſay they, had purged that place, and voided it of thoſe ſuperſtitious and idolatrous inſtruments and ornaments, that it was packed and peſtered with before, among thoſe other traſh and abominations of the like kind, which he is ſaid to have taken away, 2 King. 18. 4. and ſo made it a fit place to receive the Aſſyrian carcaſſes: not that he intended any ſuch thing, in ſo doing; but that, by that work of his, it was made as fit for ſuch an uſe, as if it had bin of purpoſe therunto deſigned. See the like, Mat. 26. 12. But of ſuch uſe of the particle, there is no example. Others therefore, retaining the received, and right reading, underſtand it, for the King, that is, for the forces he bringeth with him, and in whom he haſtains loſs, being thereby, both diſappointed of his purpoſe, and much weakned in his power; as David ſuffered deeply in the damination of his people; and it is ſaid, therefore, to be done to him, 2 Samuel. 24. 12-15. or, as others, underſtanding the word collectively, King, for Kings, as Proverbs 25. 3, 4, 5. for thoſe Kings that ſerve under him, and thoſe his Commanders, not the commanders as Kings, Chap. 10. 3. 33. See Chap. 31. 8, 9.

he hath made it deep and large] Heb. he hath deepned, he hath broadned: that is, made it deep, and broad; capacious enough to receive as many as are deſigned to it, a deſect of the perſon agent herein, Ezekiah, ſay ſome; Others, God. It may be underſtood indefinitely, it is made deep and broad enough, as verſ. 14. a deſect of the pronoun, as Chap. 28. 20, 28. of the copulative, as chap 27. 4.

the pile thereof is fire, and much wood] Heb. the pile thereof fire and much abundance. See the like, Ezek. 24. 9-10. he ſeems to allude to thoſe piles of wood, that were uſed and ſpent there, in their cruel and inhumane ſacrifices, or in the burning of bodies, and other abominable things there, when it came to be for either purpoſes employed.

the breath of the Lord, as a ſtream of brimſtone, doth kindle it] See v. 28. he ſeems to allude to that ſhower of brimſtone, wherewith Sodome was deſtroyed, Gen. 19. 24. & Pſ. 11. 6. beſide that all lightning is of a ſulphury ſavour; any ſudden deſtruction is compared to a great fire, that in an inſtant conſumeth any combuſtible matter. In ſomewhat the like manner is the deſtruction of Sennacheribs Army, deſcribed, ch. 10. 26-18.

Verſ. 1. WOe to them that go down to Egypt for help] This Chapter containeth another Sermon, or Prophecy, of the ſame ſubject with the former; and conſiſteth, partly of a ſevere denunciation of deſtruction to thoſe that were ſtill obſtinately bent to ſeek ſuccour from abroad, from Egypt eſpecially, and relied upon humane helps, ver. 1-3 and partly, with a gracious promiſe of protection from God, unto all thoſe, for their comfort and encouragement, that ſhould conſtantly reſt on him, or ſincerely return to him, v. 4. 7. together with a prediction of the Aſſyrians overthrow, verſ. 8, 9.

V. 4. For thus hath the Lord ſpoken unto me] Or, Howbeit, or Notwithſtanding: as ch. 9. 1. Job 5. 7. becauſe here beginneth the comfortable part of this Prophecy; the gracious promiſe of protection. Albeit, that God intendeth thus to deſtroy both the Egyptian aids, and thoſe that ſeek to them, for ſuccour, againſt the Aſſyrian; yet will he not ſuffer the Aſſyrian to ſurpriſe Jeruſalem: but he will protect it, againſt him, and deſtroy him. The like introduction, ſee chapter 21. 16.

Like as the lion, and the young lion, roaring on his prey, when a multitude of ſhepherds is called forth againſt him, he will not be afraid of their voice, nor abaſe himſelf for the noiſe of them: ſo ſhall the Lord of hoſts come down to fight for mount Zion, and for the hill thereof] God will protect Jeruſalem, no more regarding the multitude of the Aſſyrian forces, then ſome fierce lion, in the prime of his ſtrength, will to fight for mount Zion] That is, for Jeruſalem,ver.5. Zion, the principal part of it, the place of Gods ſpecial reſidence in his Temple,and the Kings in his Palace,both there ſituate put for the whole City,ch.1.8.& 37.35.Some read the words,againſt Zion;as ch. 29. 3. Hoſ.8.1.and the initiall particle ſo taken, as our Engliſh renders it, would carry it that way, as rendring a reaſon of what was ſaid, v.3. of the Egyptians helping,and the Jews holpen by them, both falling together : but the verſe next following,ſheweth evidently, that the meaning is not againſt,but for,or in the behalf of it;as the prepoſition is oft uſed alſo,v.5.and elſe-where,1 Chr.6.49.& 29.21. Lam.5. 17,18.Ezek.27 30.where,againſt thee,is againſt the ſenſe and drift of the place.

for the hill thereof]The hill,or knole on which that city then ſtood: the words here uſed,rendred mountain, and hill,are of the ſame ſignification,ſaith a Jewiſh Critick,differing onely in quantity; the latter,the leſs. For mountain,and hil,with us,though in common uſe, it may ſeem alſo ſo to be:yet if we regard the originall, they differ, but as a Latine term,and a Saxon only, both importing the ſame thing:and that therefore,which is rendred a mountain here, is, elſewhere,rendred an hill,Pſ.1.6.& 15.1 & 68.15,16. but what is here termed an hill,may wel be rendred,a knole.For though Sion be termed a mountain, or an hill, in regard, either of the lower part of the city,ſtanding on the ſide of it,Pſ.48.2.or in regard of the valley that lay beneath it,yet the riſing, or higher ground, on which both the reſt of the city,and Sion it ſelf ſtood, may well be termed, rather,a knole,then an hill,in regard of thoſe far higher hils that encircled it, Pſ.125.2.See Jer.17.3.

V. 5. As birds flying ; ſo will the Lord of hoſts defend Jeruſalem] Another ſimilitude, whereby the Prophet illuſtrateth Gods working,for the protection of his people:the former intimated his power and ability to do it,this,as ſome his ſpeed and alacrity,to the doing; or, as others, rather, his affection and ſedulity in the doing of it.

As birds flying]As Fowl are wont to flie, either to their neſts with all ſpeed,when they perceive their young ones to be in ſome danger, or deſcry any making towards them; ſo will God come ſwiftly and ſuddenly to reſcue and deliver his, Pſalm 18.10. (the flight of Fowl being an embleme of ſwiftneſs, Deut.28.49. Hoſ.8.1.) or, about their neſts, fluttering over their young ones, to ſuccour and ſhelter them, when any offer to ſeize on them ; and flying to and fro on every ſide, to keep thoſe off, what they can, that come to annoy them: ſo will God hover over thoſe of his,that truſt in him, and depend upon, to ſave and ſecure them;and over Jeruſalem, in particular,to protect it:in ſuch manner beſtirring himſelf, that the enemy ſhal,on no ſide,find opportunity to aſſault it,Deu.32,12,Pſ.91.1, 4.and it may well be deemed, that the Prophet herein alludeth, to what the Aſſyrian had boaſted; that he had ſeized upon the Kingdoms of the earth, as a birds neſt, and none durſt wag the wing at him,ch.10.14. but he ſhould find it otherwiſe there, when he came to Jeruſalem, ch.37.33.

will defend Jeruſalem] The word properly ſignifieth, to fence, and ſo to defend, by fencing a place round about, as a vineyard,ch.5.2,5. or a garden, Cant.4.12. which, from thence, hath its name:ſo Pſalm 34.7 & 125.2.Zach.2.5 See chap.37. 35.Zach.9. 15.& 12.8.

defending,alſo he will deliver it]Heb.defending, and he will deliver: a defective ſpeech; for in defending,he will defend and deliver: of which form of ſpeech,ſee further,on ch 59.13.he wil aſſuredly defend,and by defending, deliver it: a defect of the pronoun,as ch.28. 28.& 30.33.

and paſſing over,he will preſerve it] Or,rather, (tranſplacing the copulative,thruſt out of his right place, and ſupplyed needleſly, in a wrong one)paſſing over, he will paſs over, and deliver it, or cauſe it to eſcape. For the word is of the very ſame notion with the former; that is, he will aſſuredly ſo paſs over, as to ſave, and deliver the city;and withall, to defeat and deſtroy thoſe that encamp againſt it, or intend evil to it,as he did ſometime in Egypt,when he ſlew their firſt born,Exod.12.12.for thereunto,the word uſed here,ſeems to allude:though ſome would have it import no more, then ſuddenly, as in a paſſage. But the former, is the rather juſtly deemed here to be intimated,becauſe the word is no where elſe found in Scripture, uſed in that notion; but concerning that act of the Angel, in Egypt, of which it is thrice uſed there, ver. 12, 22, 26. it is uſed, alſo, but once only of an aſſault, 1 Kings 18. 26. which not unfitly, alſo, may be applyed to Gods dealing with the Aſſyrian Camp; by aſſault whereof, he ſaved the city, ch 37.36, 37.

V.6 Turn ye unto him, from whom the children of Iſrael have deeply revolted] The Prophet having propounded to them, Gods gracious promiſe of preſervation and protection, doth now ſhew them, what courſe thoſe that had revolted from God, and failed in their loyall carriage to him,muſt now take,if they deſire to have a ſhare in the promiſed protection,to wit by returning to him,from whom they had withdrawn themſelves;which he,therefore,here exhorteth them to.

Turn ye]Or, Return:as Jer.3.1.& 4.1.that it may anſwer to Revolt; ſome read it,They ſhall return:to wit,moved by the miraculous, both overthrow,and delivery:and ſo verſ.7.but the form of the verb will hardly bear it.

unto him from whom]Heb.unto whom,or unto which: which ſome expound with ſuch ſupply,as our text hath; as deſigning the perſon, whom they were to return to: a defect of the antecedent: as Ruth. 2.9.2 Chr.1.4.and of the prepoſition:as ch.18.7.& 32.2.& 52.2. Others,rendring it,according to that which,or according as;underſtand it,of the manner, or meaſure of their return : as your revolt hath bin deep and great;ſo let your return be proportionable thereunto: and indeed,ſo is the particle oft times uſed,Eſt.3.15. Pſal. 119. 91. 154.

the children of Iſrael]Not the ten Tribes;though true of them,Hoſh. 9 9. as if they were, by their example, warned,and admoniſhed to do better, Hoſh.4.15,16.but the people of the Jews,as v.5. 11, 16. many, if not the main of them, and too many of the chief among them,had herein bin faulty,ſee v.1,2.ch.30.1. and ſome, therefore, read this,as in the vocative,Return, according as you have deeply revolted, O ye children of Iſrael: which term, he giveth them, not to grace them,but to mind them,what they boaſted to be, and to tax, and ſhame them, for not anſwering the honour and worth of that title, but diſgracing the Stock they came of, by degenerating from him, whoſe name they bare. So Chap.7.13.& 48.1.

have deeply revolted]Heb. have deepned revolt; and there is the like phraſe,ch.7.11.as alſo, not unlike, uſed in the ſame argument, Hoſ 5.2.& 9.9.This they had done,as by other enormities, ſo by their ſeeking to Egypt,and relying on an arm of fleſh,v.1,2. which is a revolting from God,2 Chr.16.7.Jer 17.5. In the word of depth, ſome think there is an alluſion to the depth of their plots and projects; and digging deep, as imagining to conceal them, even from God,ch.29.15. It may well have ſome glance that way;but withall, it is not unlikely,that the Prophet had a purpoſe to mind them,both of the grievouſneſs of their defection and delinquency, and of the greatneſs,alſo,of the danger, that thereby they had plunged themſelves into; as being ſunk ſo deep in revolt, that unleſs they did riſe, and get up again the ſooner, by ſpeedy and hearty repentance, returning unto God, from whom they had revolted, they were like ſuddenly to periſh,without hope of recovery.See Pro.9.18.& 22.14. & 23.27.of the change of the perſon, they have revolted, for ye have revolted,See ch.29.15.& 30.19.v.7.

V.7 For in that day,every man ſhall caſt away his Idols of ſilver,and his Idols of gold, which your own hands have made unto you, for a ſin] Many Interpreters underſtand this of the ſerious,and ſincere repentance,and return of idolatrous perſons unto God,teſtified by the breaking,and abandoning of their Idols,as chap.27.9. & 30.22. Some,upon the Aſſyrian invaſion,and before his overthrow, and of them, ſome conceive a reaſon to be here rendred, of what was formerly merly ſaid,they ſhall return,v.6. Others of them,reading the words, when in that day ; or For in that day. Wherein men ſhall do thus, then will God ſtay his hand from proceeding further in judgment againſt his people,and turn it againſt the Aſſyrian,v. 8.chap. 10.12. and ſo it ſhould come in,as an argument,to induce to repentance,in hope of ſuch an iſſue. Others after his overthrow, being by that ſtrange work of God, convinced,as of his power and providence;ſo of their own former ſin and folly, & returning now from their Idols, to their only true and living God,ch.10.20.& 17.7. But others,rather,whom I herein concur with, expound it, as fore-telling, what would befall all thoſe, that perſiſted in their Idol-worſhip,and reſting on any other helps, ſave God, and his alone ; that then they would caſt away their Idols, when by woſull experience,they ſhould find,to their coſt and ſmart, that neither their Idols, nor their humane helps,were able to ſtand them in any ſtead. So underſtood, it is the ſame,with what he had before,ch.2.20.produced here,as there alſo,to perſwade to return ſpeedily to God,and to give over reſting on ſuch ſorry ſhores,as are not able to ſupport them,ch.1.31.& 2.20. 22.

every man] Heb. a man; but ſo, chap.9 20. here, the rather, becauſe the verb is plural : whereas, chap. 2. 20. it is ſingular: but there is another word for man, and that, alſo, there collective.

ſhall caſt away]ſo ch.2 20. but the ſame thing, here intimated, by a word, that ſignifieth properly, to diſpiſe,or ſet light by: ſo it is rendred,ch.33.8.Amos 5.21.and becauſe things of no account, are uſually refuſed,rejected, thrown away;and the like; hence it comes, that it is rendred ſometime,refuſe,chap.8.6.ſometime,reject, 1 Sam. 15.23.ſometime,caſt off:as ch.5.24.ſo here, & ſo ſpernere in Latine, a ſe ſpernit procul.

which your own hands made for you] See ch.2 8.and of the change of the perſon,v.6.

for a ſin]Or,for ſin. To commit that moſt hanious ſin of idolatry.For ſo it is,chap.2.20.to worſhip,inſtead of the true God. So of the golden calf, Moſes,I took your ſin,that is, the idol,wherein you had ſo grievouſly tranſgreſſed,Deut.9.21. Or,as a learned writer of ours, and the rather, becauſe there is no prepoſition in the text, of ſin,with reference to the word hands;which your hands of ſin; that is, your moſt ſinfull hands, had made for you. Of which manner of ſyntax,that author produceth divers examples, Exod.26.21. Levit. 6.10.2 Sam. 22. 32. Pſalm.35.19. & 71.9. Lam 4.17. Ezek.16. 27.

V.8. Then ſhall the Aſſyrian fall with the ſword, not of a mighty man,and the ſword,not of a mean man,ſhall devour him]As God will deliver Jeruſalem, ſo will he deſtroy the Aſſyrians, by the miniſtery of an Angel, that intend, and attempt to deſtroy that city, having over-run the whole country,round about it,already;and cauſe their King,for fear, to retire to his own country,with ſuch ſcattered ones as are left him,ch.36 1,2.& 37.36, 37.

the Aſſyrian]Heb. Aſhur,as ch.10.5.the name, both of the country and people;here put for the King of Aſſyria,who is ſaid to fall,and yet to flee;to fall in his forces;to flee in his own perſon.See ch.30.31,32. & 37.36,37.

fall] Be ſlain; as 1 Kings 22. 20. Pſalm 63. 10. Luke 21. 24.

with the ſword]Or,by the ſword;as Pſ.63 10. not of a mighty man, or a mean man.(See of the terms,chap.29.)Not of any man,one, or other;(which of Sennacherib himſelf cannot be ſaid, who was ſlain by his own ſons,chap.37.38.)but by an Angel, to whom a ſword is here given;as 1 Chr. 21.16,30.Not that he uſed any ſuch material weapon,but to expreſs his commiſſion, and power to do execution; as the Magiſtrate is ſaid to bear the ſword,Rom.13.4.And Gods power put in practice, by taking vengeance on his enemies, is called his ſword, Chapter 34. 4,5. and a mouth to devour with, is given to this ſword, as to the material one, Deut. 32. 42. ch.1.20. Jer. 21.7.

but he ſhall flee from the ſword]Or for fear of the ſword. Heb.from before,or from the face of the ſword as chap.21.15.Jer.35.11. ſeeing his forces defeated and deſtroyed, he ſhall, for fear of the like,likely to befal him, if he ſtay by it, betake himſelf to flight or, as ſome render it, ſupplying the note of ſimilitude, which they ſuppoſe to be wanting, both here, and ver. 9.he ſhall flee, as *from the ſword:*as if men with ſwords drawn,were purſuing him. There is a redundancy in the Hebrew,that hath ſome emphaſis in it,which our Engliſh cannot well expreſs : He ſhall flee himſelf,or for himſelf. Which though in ſome other like forms, it may ſeem to have no ſuch weight; as Exod. 18. 27. Yet here ſeems to be,as if it had been ſaid, He ſhall flee for his life ; as of Elias it is ſaid, 1 Kings 19. 3.

but]Heb.and;as ch.29.13.

and his young men ſhall be diſcomfited] Thoſe of his forces that remain, and eſcape that hideous ſtorm, wherein ſo many were ſlaughtered.For of thoſe,that fell in it,before.

his young men] His choice young men ; properly , as Chap. 40. 38.

ſhall be diſcomfited] The Hebrew word, here uſed, is ambiguous. It may ſignifie, they ſhall be unto tribute: or they ſhall become tributary. And ſo ſome here, according therein with the old Latine, expound it ; becauſe ſo it is moſt commonly uſed,Gen.49.15.Deut. 20.11.Joſh.16.10.& 17.13.Lam. 1.1. And this expoſition to make good,ſome ſay,that ſome of them purſued,and ſeized on, were made captives. Others,ſuppoſing that to be too much forced; and for that the Aſſyrians were never tributary,in thoſe times,to the Jews, they deny this to be ſpoken of Sennacherib and the Aſſyrians, in Ezekiahs reign,and would turn it,wholly,to the Kingdom of Chriſt. But the Prophecy is too clear to be ſo ſhifted off. And as for thoſe,that would have it underſtood of the Aſſyrians becoming tributary,ſometime after,firſt,to the Chaldeans, and then to the Medes and Perſians,they ſtray too far from the ſtory,here intended.Others,therefore, render it, They ſhall be unto melting; for that is the proper notion, and common uſe of the root, and the ſignification of another word ſpringing from it,Pſ.58.8.So the meaning is,either their multitude ſhall melt away; as 1 Sam. 14.16. or their hearts ſhall melt within them;as Joſh.2.11.& 5.1.& 7.5.and they ſhall faint for fear;as chap. 10.18.

V.9. And he ſhall paſs over to his ſtrong hold,for fear] The word, here uſed, ſignifieth, properly a rock,c.32.2. and in the next places any ſtrong hold, or fort : becauſe ſuch were uſually built upon rocks, and from their ſuch ſituation,receive much ſtrength. See on chap. 16.1. And for that to ſuch places, in time of trouble and danger, men are wont to retire,and therein much to confide: (Prov. 18.10, 11.)Hence by a metaphor, that is called a mans rock, wherein his ſtrength conſiſteth,and whereunto he truſteth, Pſalm. 18.2 & 31. 3. and 42. 9. Some therefore, here, render the words, his rock, that is,his ſtrength,ſaith one; his forces which he confided in, ſaith another, ſhall paſs away,that is,ſhall fail, for fear ſhall periſh; as Job 34.20,& 36.12.But others,taking the words in a ſenſe neerer to the native uſe of it,read the text, ſome, His rock for fear he ſhall paſs by,underſtanding by rock,a ſtrong hold,ſituate in the frontiers of his countrey;or as ſome,his ſtrong holds,collectively,and indefinitely; which for fear he ſhould not dare to ſtay in,but paſs by, to arrive at ſome ſurer place of retreat,as to Niniveh.Of which others underſtand the words, and read them, as our Engliſh hath them,To his ſtrong hold,for fear he ſhall paſs over:that is,to Niniveh, his chief city,and of greateſt ſtrength,never thinking himſelf in ſafety,until he gat thither,ch.37.37.Thus the wicked fleeth, where none purſueth,Prov.28.1.

and his Princes ſhall be afraid of the Enſign] Some read the words, his Princes ſhall be afraid of flight : That is, as ſome with the old Latine, Shall flee with fear: or, as others, ſhall be terrified with the flight of their King. And it is true, that the word here uſed, hath in ſound,ſome affinity with that of flight; whence ſome ambiguity,ch.59.19.but never ſo ſignifies,voweled,as here. Our verſion, therefore,is by moſt ſound Interpreters,and by the Jewiſh,generally,here maintained and approved. Howbeit, by being afraid of the Enſign, ſome underſtand here, that they ſhould be ſo affrighted, that if they eſpied but an enſign on ſome watch-tower, by the way, (as ch.30. 17.)though within their own country, they ſhould be afraid , as if ſome troops of ſouldiers were purſuing them : or, that they ſhould be afraid, as men are wont to be, when they do indeed ſee an enſign,with ſome hoſtile forces making towards them; Suppoſing the note of ſimilitude to be here wanting, as before; ver. 8. Others, that they ſhould be ſtricken with fear, at the ſight of thoſe wonderous ſigns,and miraculous works,that God had wrought for his people. Or rather, (for I finde not this word any where ſo uſed)of the Enſign, or Standard, that God,by his Angel, had lifted up, in the ſlaughter of their fellows: for this is ſpoken of ſuch of them, as had eſcaped,and ſurvived the bitter brunt of that battle, in which the Angel came down, as with Gods Standard, againſt them.See Exod.17.15-16.& ch.59.19.

ſaith the Lord,whoſe fire is in Zion,and his furnace in Jeruſalem] Whoſe reſidence is at Jeruſalem; where his houſe is,and fire continually kept burning on his altar, in it, Levit. 6.13. which he alſo therefore will protect,ch.37.35.or, who there hath his furnace and his fire, to burn up his enemies , and the enemies of it,Lev.10. 2.,Num. 16.25.Pſal 21.9. Zach.2. 5.

fire]Or,hearth;as ſome render it,Ezek.5.2.Or, flame;as others, ch. 50.11.

furnace]Or,oven;as it is rendred,Lev.2.4.Hoſ.7.6,7.or chimney,as ſome render it.Lam.5.10. and ſo may not unfitly be here expreſſed, if the alluſion be to houſe-keeping.

CHAP. XXXII.

Verſ. 1. B*ehold a King ſhall reign in righteouſneſs, and Princes ſhall rule in judgment*] Whether this Chapter be a new Sermon, or Prophecy, diſtinct from the next before, or belong to it, and have dependance upon it, as well it may, yet is not ſo clear. That the former part of it , containeth a deſcription of the righteous and religious Government of Gods people , under Ezekiah, moſt concur.In the latter part of it, is a denunciation of judgments to be inflicted on Gods people,for ſome ſpace of time, v. 9.14.with a promiſe of a removal thereof, after that time expired; and reſtitution of them to their wonted eſtate, ver.14.19. Some ſuppoſe, the Prophecy to have been delivered in Ahaz his dayes, foretelling the happy entrance of Ezekiah, his pious ſon, after the deceaſe of his ungodly father. Others, in the time of Ezekiahs reign, foretelling what manner of government should be in the State, now better purged, and setled then ever before, after the overthrow given to Sennacherib, and the deliverance of them from that distress, that his invasion had put them to, with reparation of the damage, that had thereby accrued unto them. See v.10.

a King] That is, Christ, say some, the King of his Church, Psalm 2.6. Or, Ezekiah, as the Jews generally, and most of ours so Chap.33.17. Yet a type of Christ, as before him, David, Ezek. 34.24.

in righteousness] As Hos.10.12. or according to justice: that is, justly, righteously; as the like, Lev.19.15. Ps.9.8. see Joel 2.23. where the same is: yet some render it, to justice: that is, to do justice: and after to judgment, or to right: that is, to execute judgment, or to do right: but the former seems the plainer.

Princes shall rule] There is a particle in the text, which the Jewish Criticks deem redundant here; as it is, questionless, in some places else-where, 2 Sam.3.30. 1 Chr.3.2.& 26,17. Psalm 9.17.& 12.6. Yet some Interpreters thus express it, as for Princes, they shal rule, as Eccl. 9 4. chap.59. 11. See verse 2.

Princes] Those under Ezekiah, the inferiour Magistracy being now purged, and well ordered; and such as Shebna was, ch.22.15. being either removed, or reformed. See ch.1.26.

in judgment] Or, according to judgment, or right. See ch.1.27. not unjustly, by oppression, extortion, bribery, and iniquity, as formerly, ch.1.23.& 60.18.

V.2. And a man shall be, &c.] The great benefit that shall hereby redound to the people, to wit, the righting and relieving of al those that have bin wronged or oppressed, set forth by divers elegant and pregnant similitudes.

a man] This some restrain to Christ: Others, to Ezekiah, the King before mentioned, v.1. and the like is said of Solomon, Psalm 72.2,4,12-14. a type, also, of Christ: and they read the words, And that man, as conceiving a defect of the article, according to the like, Acts 17.31. 1 Tim.2.5. But that seemeth, both a groundless, and a needless supply in this place. The word man, being here put indefinitely, or distributively: as Chap.13,14.& 31.7. and hath reference to the Princes before spoken of, as the Jewish Writers well observe: and so the particle in the former verse, if the course of the context be well weighed, is not wholly without weight, the text being thus rendred, as for Princes (to wit, governing under the King, 1 Pet.2.13, 14.) they shall rule according to right; and, not the King alone himself, but) each one of them (also under him, shall be, such as is here describ-ed; a man, for each one, or any one, is most frequent in Scripture, ch.2. 20.& 3.5,6.& 9.20.& 19.2.

as an hiding place from the wind] Heb. of the wind: that is, such a place of covert, as may protect man, or beast, from, or against the violence and injury of wind and weather. See the next branch: the word is no where else found, save here, in the singular form, and in the plural, 1 Sam.23.23. where it is rendred, lurking places.

and a covert from the tempest] Heb. a covert of a tempest: a defect of the preposition, either from, as Chap. 18.7. & 52.2. or against, as Psalm 53.5. Chap.25. 4. tempest of wind, or water, extraordinary, either in showers, or deluges, ch.4.6.& 25.4. See Ps.32.7 & 119.114. ch.28. 17.

as rivers of water in a dry place] Or, as streams, (Heb. divisions, as ch.30.25.) of water in a place of drought. Heb. in drought, or driness: a defect of the noun regent, as chap.25.5 Ps.63.1. as streams of water in such a place, which not onely moisten the parched ground, & make the place more pleasant and fertile, ch.44.3,4. but are a mean, also, of much refreshing to the thirsty passenger, ch.41.17-19. & 43. 19,20. See Joh.4.10,14.& 7.37-39.

as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land] Shadow, for relief, succour, or shelter, Chap. 4.6. & 25.4. because, against the scorching heat of the Sun, the shade affordeth much refreshing, whether from trees, and plants, where such are, 1 Kings 13.14. Jon. 4.6. or where they want, from some high hill, or rock, overlooking the plain.

in a weary land] As ps.143.6. Prov 25.25. where it is rendred, thirsty: see ch.20.12.& 29.8. where men are weary of travelling through heat and drought, John 4.6. Mat.11.28.

V. 3. And the eyes of them that see, shall not be dim] Or, closed, as chap.29. 10. he hath closed their eyes. Which some understand, of spiritual sight restored by the pure, and clear preaching of the Gospel, in the Kingdom of Christ, chap.29.18. and 35.5. Acts 26.18. 2 Cor.4.6. Eph.1.18. opposed to the judgment threatned, Chap 6 9. & 29.10. and that complaint of the condition of his people, chap.42. 19,20. or, as some rather render it, shall not look another way? as, look away from me, Iob 7.19. chap. 22.4. and look away from him, Job 14. 6. they shall not look another way, when holy things are tendered to them, and wholesome admonitions, are pressed upon them, as their manner formerly had bin? and as those are wont to do, who have that presented to their view, which they list not to look upon. See Psalm 18.22.& 119.37,117. or, they shall not now look aside after their idols, and other frivolous stays, which they then relyed and rested on, refusing to look after their only true stay, Chapter 31 1. but they shall now look unto God, and rely upon him, Chapter 10.20.& 17.7,8. and this latter reading, seems to suit, very fitly, with what followeth in the next branch. But whether way we take it, it is not to be doubted, but that in Ezekiah's days, it was fulfilled in those, who by the judgments of God, then inflicted on the land, and sanctified to them, were refined and reformed, Chap.48. 10. See chap.30.20.& 35.5. The meaning is, that his people (for those, here, are they, that See, or, as the word is, the Seers: as ch. 42. 20. not the Prophets, as ch.30.10.) who had the light of Gods Word shining brightly among them, and his judgments conspicuously manifested to them, should not now wilfully turn their eyes aside from them, or shut them wilfully against either, as those, Chap. 26. ver.11.

and the ears of them that hear, shall hearken] Heb. attend: as ch.21. 7.& 28.13.& 48.18. they that before refused to hear any Word of God, or message from God, or to hearken to any advice given them by his Prophets from him, ch.28.9-12. shall then attentively hearken, to what is, from God, spoken to them, and readily yeeld obedience thereunto, ch.29.18. See ch.30.21.& 35.5. They seem to carry it too far, and to narrow it no less, that restrain it to the peoples attentive hearing of Christ, Mat.7.28. Luke 4.22.

those that hear] As before, Gods people, that had Gods Word among them, and continually sounding in their ears, ch. 42. 20.

V.4. The heart also of the rash shall understand knowledge] Heb. hasty: so also, ch.35.4. such as were heady and inconsiderate, as fond and foolish persons usually are, shall then be better advised, and by attending to the Word of God, come to understand aright the Will of God. See Prov.1.2-7.& 2.2-5. Heb. understand to know, or unto knowledg: When men so hear, that they understand what is spoken; and by understanding, attain to sound knowledg, Neh.8.3,8,12. not like those, ch.6.9. Mat.13.19. 2 Tim.3.7.

and the tongue of the stammerers shall be ready to speak plainly] Men, by their religious speech, and communication, at which they did but stammer, when they assayed ought before, shall now manifest the inward alteration and change of their hearts, Mat.12.34,35. or their language, that was before rude, harsh, savage, barbarous, unsavory, unpleasant, shall now be pure, pious, like the language of Gods people, seasoned with grace, and pleasing in Gods ear, Prov.15.26. ch.19.18. Zeph.3.9. Eph.4.29. Col.4.6. See ch.35,6.

stammerers] See chap. 28 11. for this word, no where else found, and that there used, differing but in a letter, have neer affinity in notion, also, the one with the other: and there is in the word, here, an allusion, either unto those, that out of a naturall defect, cannot speak without stammering; or to those, that speaking in some barbarous language, seem o so to do, unto those that understand them not, 1 Cor, 14. 11.

be ready] Heb hasten; make hast: as ch.51.14. a good haste, or speed, far differing from the hastiness, or headiness, of inconsiderate persons, taxed in the branch before going; and implying an inward readiness of heart to vent it self, in such sanctified communication, as is here imported.

to speak plainly] Heb. to speak neat, elegant, or cleer words, or things: a metaphor taken from the cleerness of the ayr, in dry and fair weather, ch. 18.4. and a defect of the subject, as Gen.42. 30. hard, Psalm.12.4. great, Prov.5.10. right, for hard, great, right, words or things.

V.5. The vile person shall be no more called liberal, nor the churl said to be bountiful] The Prophet, in these words, further describeth the happy and well-setled condition of the Jewish State in those times. Some understand the words, as if the meaning were, that men having, in those dayes, the spirit of discerning, should be able to distinguish between good and evil; yea, between good and bad men, Rom 2.18. Phil.1.10. 1 Cor.12.10. 1 Iohn 4.1. Acts 8. 23. Others, of the sincerity and ingenuity of the times, that neither the false Prophets should sooth men up, any more in their sins; nor others, for fear or favour, flatter those that were in power and authority, the richer sort, and the great ones Psalm 49.18. chap.5.20. Ezek.13. 22. But the most, and best, that in the State reformed, and established, by Ezekiah, after his delivery from the Assyrian Invasion, and the recovery of his health, from that deadly Disease that soon after surprised him, chap.38 5,6. having assurance given him from God, both of the continuance of his life, and of his reign in peace; base minded, and evil affected persons should not be now raised, and advanced unto places of honour and dignity, as in his Father Ahaz his time, too many had bin; whereof, also, some had continued their places, in the former part of his reign, the State being, as yet, unsetled; nor he able, by reason of wars with his neighboring adversaries, to do as otherwise he would: see Psalm 12.8. Prov. 28.22, 28.& 29.2.

vile person] The word is, in Scripture, commonly used for a fool: as Deut.32.6. where wise, and it, are opposed: as also, in that speech of Abigail, excusing her husbands uncivil and churlish behaviour towards Davids messengers; Nabal is his name, and folly is with him, 1 Sam.25. 25 his name sheweth what he is, and so some render it here. Howbeit, in the native signification of it, it may seem to import, as our English well rendreth it, a vile person, a man of no worth: like a withered flower, or leaf, or branch, or plant, of no reckoning or esteem, ch.28.1,4.& 64.6. See ch.14.19. & 27.11. and both foolish and wicked ones (of whom, also, it is in the Proverbs of Solomon, especially used, and they may well go for the same) are persons of no worth, Prov. 10. 20. But in this place, being opposed to a word, that hath a notion of liberality in it, it seems rather to import tenacity and niggardliness; and our ancienter versions therefore render it, one of them, a niggard; another, a foolish niggard: and it may well be, that the Prophet had a glance at the story of Nabal, 1 Sam. 25. and that the very name of Nabal, was among them, in those daies, as with us, to this day, used as a by-word, or a nick-name, for a niggard: and that the Prophet, the rather, made choice of it here; because this, and the other its opposite here, found somewhat alike, as they lie together in the text; as if he had said, alluding to the names of men, in use formerly; Nabal shall not be Nadab, or Nadib: for such allusions to names are found in Scripture: as Psa.144.4. Adam is like Abel; and all Adam is all Abel, Psa. 39. 5, 11.

shall no more be called] That is, shall no more be, to be called; for to be: as chap.61.3.& 62.11. Mat.5.9. Luk.1.32, 33. such shall no more get up, and creep into such places, as those titles belong to. Heb. it shall not be called to him liberal; or liberal shall not be called to him; for he shall not be called See the like. Prov.16.21. chap.1.26.

liberal] The word, indeed importeth freenesse, liberality, ingenuity; as appears by Exod.25.1.& 35.5. Psalm 68.9. & 110. 3. and is used commonly in Scripture, for a Prince or a Lord, Mal.1.8. Prov.17.7. & 25.7. Psalm.118,9.& 146. 3. because such persons should so be, Prov.19.6. as the word, Lord, with us, also, in its first original, is said to import: and the term among the Greeks, commonly given to great Potentates, implyeth as much, Luk.22.15 And so, I suppose, the intent of the Prophet here is, that no Nabal shall be a Nadib; that is, no niggard, or base-minded fellow, a noble man, or a Prince. Our ancienter translations render it, gentle; A Niggard shall not be called gentle. Had they said, No niggard shall be called, or shall be a gentleman, they had come well neer home to the mark.

nor the Churl said to be bountiful] Heb. and to the Churl it shall not be said bountiful: such a word, or term, shall not be given him: it shall not be his title, or his stile. So chap. 19. 18. & 61.6. & 62. 4. See also Job 34. 18.

Churl] The word here used, and not else-where found, seems to be much, if not altogether the same, in sense with the former: the original of it, is uncertain; one of the Jewish Criticks saith, it comes of a word, that signifieth, to contain, as a measure doth, and consequently to measure, ch.40.12. 1 Kings 7.26. and would have it import one that doth all things, as by weight and measure, taking and keeping account of every trifle, and not parting with a grain, or a crum, above weight or measure, such an one, as with the Greeks is termed, μικρολόγος & Κυμινοπρίστης, one, as we say, that will cleave an hair. Another of them, though not unwilling to derive it from the same root, but in another notion, as it signifieth, to contain, that is, keep in, Jer. 2. 13. & 6.11. Yet, rather, fetcheth it from another of no unlike notion, that signifieth, to restrain, and shut up in prison, which is thence, also, so termed, ch.42.7. Jer. 32. 7.& 37.4. and so it should have, in it, a notion of tenacity; and denote one that hordeth up his treasure, and keepeth it with him, as imprisoned. A third saith, it signifieth one that hath those words rife in his mouth, mine own to my self: alluding therein, to a saying they have among them, fom Esau's words, to his brother Jacob, Gen.33.9. of four sorts of men: the first, of those that say, Mine thine, and thine mine: and that is, the way of the world, or the way of tradesmen: the second, that say, Mine mine, and thine thine: and that is the middle sort, Esau's way. The third, that say, Mine thine, and thine thine own: and that is the Chasids (they might have said the Nadibs) the bountiful mans way. The fourth, that say, Thine mine, and mine mine own: and that is the wicked mans way. Now either he meant it of the second, and then the Cilay should not be so bad, as the Nabal, as his fellow Rabbi holdeth: or of the fourth, and then the one may well be as bad as the other, as, in likelihood, there is little difference between them the Prophets manner, being very frequently to deliver the same thing in divers terms. See chap. 57. 1.

bountiful] Or, magnificent, as some; who with the Jewish Critick, supposing this to go a step beyond the former, render that munificent, this magnificent. It is no where else found, save Job 34.19. where some would have it rendred wealthy, because they find needy there opposed to it, and the abstract form of it, Job 36.19. wealth. But they should consider, that it is there coupled with Princes, and the needy opposed to either. And I suppose it, therefore, to be as well as the former, a title of honor; and concur with those, who in their versions, exhibite the noble, in the one place, and thy nobility, in the other. The words of the Prophet, I conceive should be rendred, to express his mind aright, nor shall any Churl have the title of a Lord, or the like; the Hebraism, being adjoyned in the margent; and to a Churl it shall not be said, Lord; for so it is pointed in the text: he shall not be saluted by, or graced with any such title of honor. For how the word should come to signifie bountiful; or, as some would have it, but in the better part, prodigal: to have it a degree above liberal, I see not: nor do I well understand, what should move some Translators of great note, to render it noble, in Job; and liberal here.

V.6. For the vile person will speak villany] In this verse, and the next, I conceive a reason rendred, why such should not, nor indeed ought to be, admitted into place of office, or honor; to wit, because persons so affected, would but grosly abuse their places, and the power that should be conferred on them, by vertue of their places, to their own disgrace, and the wrong of others. Yet some read the word, as a continuation of the former Sentence, But he shall be called (supplied from the fore-going verse, as Job 14. 5. & 24. 19.) vile, or fool, that speaketh villany, or folly, Chap. 9. 17. men shall be accounted such as their words and dealings declare them to be, Mat. 12. 33. 37. Joh. 8. 39, 44. 1 Joh. 3 7, 10. But the former better agreeth with the genuine sense of the fore-going sentence; and the text yeeldeth it of it self.

will speak villany] His communication will be correspondent to his inward base disposition. See Chap. 9. 17. but here more specially applied to the words and speech of persons, in place of authority, and in exercise of their power, Prov. 30. 15. Hos. 4.18. Mic. 7. 3. whom such manner of speech worst beseemeth, Prov. 16. 10. & 17. 7.

and his heart will work iniquity]. That is, will devise and contrive it; for that is properly the work of the heart, Psa. 64. 6. So Mic.2.1. the work is ascribed to the heart, because there it is forged, and from thence it proceedeth, Mat. 15. 9. Some read it, and whose heart worketh iniquity, as before.

iniquity] Which in all men is inexcusable, but in Judges, and place of Judicature, most abominable, Psalm 58. 1. 2. & 82. 1, 2. Prov.17.15. & 24.23,24. & 28.21.

to practise hypocrisie] Or, in practising (as Chap 3.8. & 10. 2.) prophaneness, or abominable wickedness, as the word commonly, yea, universally signifies. (See Chap 9.17. & 33.14.) and as the next branch intimates.

and to utter error against the Lord] Or, and in uttering error, as some, of, or concerning the Lord; which they expound of delivering and teaching false doctrine: and the particle here is sometime so used, as Job 42.7. but the Prophet speaketh not here of Ministers, but of Magistrates, and their giving unjust sentence, and passing erroneous dooms against the Word and charge of God. See Chap. 28. 7. the particle is used for against, as here, so Chap. 23.11. Thus, rather, I take it; then as some of the Rabbines, of impious speeches, concerning God and his providence; such as, Psalm 14.1. & 53.1. & 10. 11. 13. & 94. 7. for these are usually in their hearts, not in their tongues, in their minds, not in their mouths.

to make empty the soul of the hungry, and he will cause the drink of the thirsty to fail] Or, in making empty the soul of the hungry, and in making the drink of the thirsty to fail, as before, or, and in that he maketh, &c. by unjust courses bereaving them of those means that should maintain them, and so causing them to starve, Chap. 3. 14. 15.

make empty] A metaphor from emptying of vessels: as if they pluckt their bread out of their bodies, and their meat out of their bowels, as Job 20.15,20,21. Jer.51.44. or kept them from being satisfied, by withdrawing that from them, wherewith they should have been filled: as a river, or pool, is emptied, by deriving or diverting the streams that should feed it, Chap. 19. 5, 6.

make empty the hungry] For by emptying to make hungry, or to starve. See the like, Chap. 24. 10.

hungry soul] That is, person, Psalm 107. 9. but this phrase maketh the speech here more emphatical.

the drink of the thirsty] Not which he hath, but which he needeth, and would have, which he wanteth and desireth.

he causeth to fail] By withdrawing that from him, which should procure it him when he thirsteth: or, by such means, bringing him, as to hunger, so to thirst, and to perish by either, Chap.5,13. Amos 8.13. See the contrary, Chap 33.16.

V. 7. The instruments also of the Churl are evil] Heb. And the churl, or, the Churl also, (as Chap.29.19.) his instruments are evil. Where by instruments, some of the Jewish Commenters understand, weights and measures, as if the meaning were, that such would use light weights, and scant measures, Amos 8.5. (though there the shekel is heavy, because, by it, they took their money) Mic. 6. 10, 11. supposing that thence also, such had that name; and the meaning to be, that such an one would forbear no evil course to enrich himself. But the Prophet speaketh not here of merchants, or tradesmen, but of Princes, and men in place of authority and judicature. Others, therefore, rather by instruments, conceive to be meant, such under-officers, or adherents, as corrupt Judges and great ones, do, ordinarily make use of by them, as instruments to negotiate with those, that have causes before them, or suits to them, or to help to bring about, and put in execution their wicked and unjust designs, Prov.13.12. & 19.12. Amos 4.2. Zeph.1.9. Or, as some of the Jewish Doctors, such slights, and artifices, as persons so affected, are wont to use, for the perverting of judgment, and either bringing about, or smothering, and setting some fair and colourable pretence, upon their unjust and wrongful courses Mic.2.1,3. & 7.3. Yet some would have it, he shall be called, or accounted, a churl, or, a niggard, whose instruments, that is, courses, are evil. See before, on v.5.6. There is an elegancy of speech in the original, which our English cannot express: as if it were said, The tolemans tools are evil, or the like. The churl his instruments, as a Ruler his servants, Prov.29.12. See ver.1.

he deviseth wicked devices] Heb. he consulteth, that is, contriveth; as Chap. 23. 8. He will alwayes be contriving some mischiefe or other, Psalm 36. 4. The latter word, in its original, original, signifies a thought, or deſign, in general; but is for the moſt part, uſed for ſome wicked thought, deſign, or device, and that not projected, or plotted only, but practiſed; any vile, and abominable, either project, or practice, Lev. 18. 17. & 19. 29. & 20. 14. And there was ſmall reaſon for the Jewiſh Critick, hence to collect, that the Cilay, here mentioned, is not ſo bad as the Nabal; becauſe the one is ſaid to deviſe, and contrive, whereas the other is ſaid to do, and to utter. v. 6.

to deſtroy the poor] Or, the afflicted; as the word properly ſignifies, but uſed for poor; becauſe ſuch more expoſed to affliction and oppreſſion, then others, Pſ. 102. title, ch. 3. 14.

with lying words] Heb. words of falſehood; as Jer. 23. 32. or matters of falſehood: as words of iniquity, for matters of iniquity, Pſ. 65. 3. and a word, or matter of falſhood, for a falſe matter, Exod. 23. 7. By falſe ſuggeſtions, or wrongful dooms, to overthrow them in judgment, whom they ought to right and relieve, ch. 3. 12-15.

even when the needy ſpeaketh right] Heb. judgment; as v. 1. Or, and by ſpeaking againſt the needy in judgment. A defect of the particle, againſt, as ver. 2. of in, as Pſ. 9. 16. Or as ſome, ſupplying the verb from the former member, and to deſtroy, or ſpoil judgment, when the poor ſpeaketh, not regarding what he ſaith; ſo ſome, not improbably.

V. 8. But the liberal deviſeth liberal things; and by liberal things ſhall he ſtand] So the moſt render it, and it is oppoſed to what was ſaid, v. 6. of the wicked. Some read the words, but he ſhall be called liberal, or munificent, that taketh liberal, or munificent courſes and perſiſteth in the ſame. I conceive rather, that they ought thus to be read: But the Prince ſhall take ingenuous courſes, and by ingenuous courſes ſhall he be eſtabliſhed, Prov. 12. 9. or and for ſuch courſes ſhall he ſtand; as Dan. 11. 31. The Prince, or the Lord, or the honorable man in thoſe times (in diſpoſition of heart & minde, anſwering his name) ſhall carry himſelf ingenuouſly, & honourably, forbearing, and abhorring ſuch baſe and dithonourable courſes, as the perſons, before deſcribed, uſually take & follow; and he ſhall not only take ingenuous and honourable courſes, himſelf, but uphold and maintain others, alſo, in the like.

V. 9. Riſe up ye women, that are at eaſe; hear my voice, ye careleſs daughters, give ear unto my ſpeech] The Prophet in theſe words, maketh entrance into his enſuing diſcourſe, in the latter part of this Chapter, concerning thoſe troubles that were to come, before the eſtabliſhment of the State, in manner before deſcribed, with an earneſt exhortation unto thoſe, whom it ſpecially concerned; wherein, or, by the excitement, rouſing up themſelves from, and ſhaking off that ſecurity, that at preſent poſſeſſed them, to attend diligently thereunto. See the like, in the like caſe, ch. 28. 23.

riſe up] Either awaking out of your deep of ſecurity: as Eph. 5. 14. Or, riſing from your beds, on which ye lye at eaſe, repoſing your ſelves, as 2 Sam. 11. 2. or, without ſpecial reſpect to any ſuch preſent poſture or diſpoſal, ſetting other matters aſide, liſten ſeriouſly to what I ſay: as Numb. 23. 18. for of riſing to give reverence to Gods word, as Judg. 3. 20. ſeems not ſo well to fit here.

ye women] and daughters. Theſe two terms, ſome underſtand here properly of the weaker ſex; as Chap. 3. 16, 17. The Prophet directing his ſpeech to them more ſpecially, becauſe they lived moſt at eaſe, and feeneſt, at preſent, moſt ſecure, as wanting that fore-ſight, that the other ſex employed in State-affairs, oft times hath; as alſo, for that being as deeply faulty in ſome things, as the men, they were to ſuffer alike with them, in the troubles of the times, and were leſſe able to endure hardſhip, Deut. 28. 30, 32, 41. 2 Chr. 36. 17. Ch. 3. 16, 17. Others think, that the men of that State, are ſo ſtyled here, for their effeminate carriage, and woman-like diſpoſition. See Chap. 3. 12. & 19. 16. Others, laſtly, ſuppoſe that thereby is meant, the Towns and Cities of Judah, (for this Prophecy ſeems not to deal with Samaria; though ſome carry it over thither) which are commonly, in Scripture, compared to women, and were as daughters to Jeruſalem, the mother city, and the preſent, enjoyed much tranquility and peace, together with her, who neither alſo is here excluded. See the common phraſe, Joſh. 15. 32, 36, 41, 43. Lam. 3. 51. And I take them both for the ſame: for I ſuppoſe that too nice, which ſome here have, who by women would have underſtood the greater cities, by daughters, the leſſe. Howbeit, I ſuppoſe it as was in the firſt place propounded, to be directed to the women, the court-Ladies eſpecially; and by them to the men. See Ch. 3. 16.

careleſs] Heb. confident. Alluding to their vain confidence, for which they are ſo frequently taxed, Chap. 30. 12. and 32. 1.

V. 10. Many days and years ſhall ye be troubled, ye careleſs women] So ſome read it, expounding it of the Babylonian captivity, which was to laſt for many years, Jer. 25. 11. The words are in the Hebrew, Days above a year; as Job 23. 2. or, Days upon, or unto a year; as chap. 29. 1. or, (ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks would have it) Days in, or beſide a year; as Chap. 7. 2. that is, as ſome, two years: a year upon a year, dayes, for a year: as Exod. 13. 10. Numb. 9. 22. but dayes, and a year, are here put as diſtinct things, which in thoſe places is not. Some therefore would have it read, A year of days above a year, as 1 Sam. 27. 7. which yet would amount to no more then the former; as 2 Samuel 13. 23. & 14. 28. Others, days over and above a year; that is, ſome ſpace of time more then a yeara few dayes, ſay ſome; as Gen 24. 55. more then a few, ſay others; but within two years; as 2 Chr. 22. 15, 19. But the main doubt here is, whether the term of time, here deſcribed, concern the entrance into the calamities, here foretold, or the continuance thereof with them. Some ſuppoſe the former, and hence gather, that this prophecy was delivered about the twelft year of Ezekiahs reign, ſome two year before the Aſſyrian invaſion, when all ſeemed quiet, and well grounded for future firm peace, the neighbouring adverſaries ſubdued, and both Church and State ſetled, 2 Kings 18. 7, 8. 2 Chr. 32. 1. Others ſuppoſe, rather, the meaning to be, that this calamity, cauſed by the Aſſyrian incurſion, under Sennacherib, ſhould continue for more then a year, very neer two; but ſhould within that compaſs, be circumſcribed. And indeed that ſo it was, may appear by computation of the times: for in the fourteenth year of Ezekiah, Sennacherib invaded the land of Judah, 2 Kings 18. 13. and not long after his departure, Ezekiah being at deaths door, had with promiſe of recovery, and of ſecurity againſt the Aſſyrian, or any other adverſary, a leaſe-patol of his life, made him from God, for fifteen years, then to enſue: and ſealed ſolemnly both, with a ſtrange and unheard of miracle, chap. 38. 1, 5, 6, 8. Now Ezekiah reigning but twenty and nine year in all, 2 Kings 18. 2. there cannot well be two entire years, between the thirteen years before the acceſſe of Sennacherib, and the other fifteen after his departure. And I concur therefore with thoſe, who conceive, in theſe words, to be contained, a juſt limitation of that calamitous time, that laſted duting the abode of the enemy in their land. See the like ambiguity, Chap. 16. 14.

for the vintage ſhall fail, the gathering ſhall not come] The enemy entring your land, ſhall make havock of all, and ſo overſpread the whole country, Chap. 7. 19. & 8. 8. that ye ſhall have, neither opportunity, nor ability to get ought in, of the fruits of the earth; as no doubt, while the Aſſyrian forces continued among them, little vintage or fruit-gathering could be had with them. See Ch. 17. the vintage ſhall fail] The vineyards ſhall, either be ſpoiled by the enemies, ere the time of cutting the grapes; or then ſuffered upon by them.

the gathering] Of other fruits, Mic. 7. 1. whence the feaſt of gathering, when their fruits were all gathered in, Exod. 23. 16. and 34. 22.

V. 11. Tremble ye women that are at eaſe, be troubled ye careleſs ones: ſtrip ye, and make ye bare, and gird ſackcloth upon your loyne] Break off your ſecure, and retchleſs courſes, and betake your ſelves to lamentation, and humiliation. See ch. 22. 12.

women that are at eaſe] See v. 9. But women is not here in the text: yet not unfitly inſerted, as ſupplyed from v. 10 before; the adjective is here alſo feminine.

ſtrip ye] Of your better rayment, and ordinary apparel, as in time of mourning they were wont to do, Exod 33. 5.

make ye bare] See ch. 20. 2, 3.

gird ſackcloth] An emblem of mourning, being the ordinary mourning weed. See Ch. 15. 3. and though wanting here, yet well ſupplied from ch. 22. 12. It is made a badge alſo of a mean condition Chap. 3. 24. Howbeit, I concur not with thoſe, that ſuppoſe here intimated, a fitting of themſelves for ſervile employments, as being to be taken captive by the enemy, and made drudges. Who alſo therefore render the words without ſupply, gird up your loins; as Luk. 12. 35. See Chap. 47. 2. But the particle, upon, which they obſerve not, intimateth a defect to be ſupplyed, of that where with they were to be girt.

V. 12 They ſhall mourn for the teats, for the pleaſant fields, for the fruitful vine] The cauſe and ground of the Lamentation before preſcribed them, the ſpoil, and loſſe of their pleaſant and fertile lands and grounds; the pleaſure they had wont to take in them, and the fruit and benefit that they received from them.

They ſhall mourn] Or, Men ſhall mourn; or Lamentation ſhall be made. Heb. mourning: they ſhall be, that is, mourning ſhall be: the participle put indefinitely. The word is uſed for mourners, as ſolemn burials, Eccl. 12. 5. See further on the next word.

for the teats] That is, as moſt, for their fertile fields and vineyards which as teats, yeelding abundance of milk, nouriſhed and fed them: whence their land was ſaid to flow with milk, Ezek. 20. 6. as others, for want of milk in their teats to nurſe their poor infants with, Lam. 2. 11. & 4. 3, 4. But one of the Jewiſh Doctors, whom I rather here concur with, reads the words, Beating upon their breaſts: teats, for breaſts: as we uſe the word breaſts, for teats: and ſo render it, Chap. 28. 9. the uſual manner being in ſolemn mournings, and much heavineſſe, to beat upon their breaſts. See Mic. 2. 7. Luke 18. 13. and the word here rendred mourning, is moſt commonly in the Latine verſion, expreſſed by a term, that properly ſo ſignifies. So the text would be rended, There ſhall be beating upon the breaſts. So rather, then with a learned Writer, as an epithet of the word teats or breaſts, for the mournful breaſts, as, dry breaſts, Hoſh. 9. 14. Of the word teat, ſee on ch. 28. 9.

for the pleaſant fields] Heb. fields of deſire, or delight. See Ch. 2. 16. Jer. 2. 7. for them, that is, for the ſpoil, want & loſſe of them: as c. 14. 11. for wine, ſee Lam. 4. 9. there is a pleaſant affinity of ſound here, between the words rendred teats & fields: which our Engliſh cannot expreſs.

for the fruitful vine] vine, collectively, for vines: as ch. 24. 7. See the like uſe of the particle, 2 Sam. 11. 26. Zach. 12. 10.

V. 13. upon the land of my people ſhall come up thorns and briars, yea, upon all the houſes of joy, in the joyous city] At theſe words the Prophet ſeemeth, cloſely, and (as we may ſo ſay) abruptly to paſſe from the relation of that ſpoil of the Country, that for ſome ſhort time ſhould be very ſhortly made of it, by the Aſſyrian invaſion; unto the prediction of a far greater and more general devaſtation, and of far longer continuance, that in future times ſhould further befall their land, in the Chaldean invaſion; under Nebuchadnezzar, deſcribed in this verſe, and the next. So that it is, as if the Prophet had ſaid, I told you before of ſome trouble that would befall you for a year and a day, (as we uſe to ſay) or for dayes, not a few after the years end: but I am now further to acquaint you with a far greater calamity that hereafter will befall your whole country, and ſhall laſt longer, by much, then that. See the like paſſage from the deſtruction of Judahs two adverſaries, the Kings of Iſrael and Syria, to the invaſion of Iudah it ſelf, by the King of Aſſyria, without any expreſſe connexion, ſo much as a copulative, as in this place. chap. 7. 16, 17.

my people] As ch. 22. 4.

thorns and briars] As ch. 7. 23, 24. & 34. 13. Hoſ. 9. 6.

yea] Or, alſo: as a Iewiſh Critick here expounds it: and ſo moſt take it; as alſo ſome of ours render it, chap. 15. 9 & 16. 8. Not your land only, but your pleaſant houſes, and Palaces, as well in the city, as the country, ſhall undergo the like ſad and rueful condition, being both alike waſted, and with the like overgrown. Howbeit, ſome render it, burning: as it is taken, ch. 3. 24. underſtanding it, of the burning of the houſes and Palaces of Ieruſalem by the Chaldeans, 2 King. 25. 9. 2 Chron. 36. 19. Neh. 1. 3. & 2. 3. Some take it for a cauſual particle, as relating the procuring cauſe of this miſchief, becauſe over all the houſes of mery ment the city dwelleth, or rejoycetb, becauſe ſhe is ſo full of nothing but revelling and exceſſe, ch. 5. 11-13. & 22. 2, 13.

houſes of joy] Or, pleaſant, or merry-houſes: ſo termed, either becauſe they took much delight in them; as Sion is ſaid to be the joy of the whole land, Pſal. 48. 2. Whence ſome would have Temple and Palace, both ſituate on that mount, here to be meant; or, becauſe they were at preſent full of mirth, and merriment in them, as misdoubting no trouble neer. See ch. 13. 12. Amos 3. 15. Briars and brambles ſhall grow in the waſte places, where ſuch houſes had before ſtood, but were now by the enemy either burnt down, or defaced and demoliſhed: as ch. 13. 22.

in the joyous city] Or, the revelling city. For the words ſeems to import here, as elſewhere, ſome exceſſe; as ch. 5. 15. he that revells it: and, chap. 24. 8. the noiſe of the revellers is at an end. By the city thus termed here, Some underſtand Samaria; and of that land, ſome of the Iewiſh Commenters underſtand all this. But that ſeems not to probable. Others, even of them alſo, underſtand Ieruſalem; unto whom the ſame term is given, and her inhabitants taxed for their faultineſſe herein, chap. 22. 2, 13. Others take it more generally, in a collective ſenſe, city, for cities: as chapter 25. 2. and underſtand by it, in general, the ſeveral cities throughout the whole land of Iudah. See the ſame term alſo uſed, Zephan. 2. 15.

V. 14. Becauſe the palaces ſhall be forſaken, the multitude of the city ſhall be left] As if he ſhould ſay, no marvel if thoſe places be with ſuch truth overgrown, when they are wholly abandoned by thoſe people, that did formerly therein abide.

Palaces] Heb. Palace. The Kings houſe burnt down by the Chaldeans, 2 Kings 25. 9. or if taken collectively, for Palaces, ſuch goodly and ſtately buildings, as were more like Princes Palaces, then private mens dwellings, ch. 13. 22.

forſaken] Or, as the Tygurine, and ſome other, diſjected, diſſipated, deſtroyed, as they ſuppoſe alſo the word to be taken, Ezek. 31. 12. See ch. 33. 23.

the multitude] Or, noiſe: ſuch as a multitude makes, ch. 31. 4. See ch. 22. 2. Lam. 1. 1.

ſhall be left] See ch. 6. 11, 12 but there ſeems here an inverſion of the words: the multitude of the city ſhall be left, for, the city ſhall be left of its multitude: for that is ſure the meaning, not, that a multitude ſhall be left in the city. See the like, ch. 37. 10.

the forts and towers ſhall be for dens for ever] As the faireſt buildings ſhall be demoliſhed, ſo the higheſt towers and ſtrongeſt forts ſhall be diſmantled, and lye waſte, as well the one, as the other.

the forts] Or, as ſome render it here, the citſſe. For the word is ſingular, (which our tranſlators deemed to be taken collectively, as the Iewiſh Commenters alſo take it,) and is elſewhere rendred a tower, 2 Kings 5. 24. and, a ſtrong hold, Mic. 4. 8. it ſeemeth to have been the proper name of a place within Jeruſalem, about Mount Sion, in which many dwelt, and was encompaſſed with a wall. See 2 Chron. 27. 3. & 33. 14. Neh. 3. 26, 27. & 11. 21 in all which places, the name Ophel, is in our verſion retained; and ſo I conceive it may well be here, and then it muſt be meant of Ieruſalem; though the ſame term be uſed of a tower or fort about Samaria, 2 King. 5. 24. Howbeit, there want not ſome learned Criticks, who ſuppoſe the word Ophel, ſo ſignifie dwelling houſes, cut out of the rocky ground, uch, as much about Jeruſalem was, and ſo called of a word, that ſignifies cloudy and dark, not as Jerome ſaith of the tower Ophel, becauſe it reached to the clouds; but becauſe they were obſcure and dark. But this I ſuppoſe to be a very groundleſs and improbable conjecture: beſides that the word that ſignifies miſt, or darkneſs, ch. 29. 18. is of another root. This Ophel, and ophel a miſt, differ as much, as Aba father, and Ab, a cloud.

towers] Heb. towre, or watch-towre. See ch. 23. 13. & Jer. 6. 27. Yet the word there uſed, coming neer to our Beacon, differeth in a vowel from that here uſed, & no where elſe ſo read: that it may ſeem to have been, as the former, the name of ſome other, place thereabout, that which Jerome, from ſome Jewiſh Doctors, avoweth; but on what ground; I wot not: for in their Commentaries we now commonly have, I find it not.

for dens] Or, caves: as chap. 2. 19. 1 Sam. 13. 6. but here dens; becauſe ſuch intended, as wild beaſts uſe to lurk and lodge in; and thoſe that conceive the word ophel to ſignifie ſuch houſes, as was before ſaid, ſuppoſe that the wild beaſts now took up their lodgings in thoſe ſtony caves, ſo cut out, which men had before inhabited. But of that before.

a joy of wild aſſes] That running at large, Job 39. 5. Jer. 2. 24. ſhall there play and diſport themſelves, where people uſed to take their pleaſure, and make merry together before; for thereto he alludeth here. See ver. 13.

for ever] That is, for a long time: for about ſeventy yeers; if the Prophecy be of the Babylonian captivity, Jer. 25. 11, 12. Dan. 9. 2. for the word here uſed, doth not alwaies import an everlaſting perpetuity, but ſome long ſpace of time only. See chap. 14. 20. & 15. 4. And the Doctors critical obſervation, as well here, as elſewhere, taſteth, that would have the word here uſed, where it is full written, as here it is, to ſignifie eternity.

a paſture of flocks] Places for ſheep and goats to graze on. See chap. 17. 2.

V. 15 untill the Spirit be poured upon us from on high] This Sermon as others, both before and after, the Prophet concludeth with gracious promiſes of the reſtitution of Gods people, being purged, by their foregoing afflictions, and Gods ample benedition upon them. See chap. 30. 4.

untill the ſpirit be poured upon us] Untill God be pleaſed to ſend forth a gracious gale of his ſpirit, that breathing mildly and gently upon us, may reſtore all to a flouriſhing eſtate and condition again with us. See, Pſal. 104. 30. chap. 44. 3. Some refer it unto the reſtitution of them, from their long thraldome in Babylon. See Ezek. 37. 5, 6, 9, 10. 14. Others, (among whom alſo ſome of the Jewiſh Maſters) to the times of the Meſſias, and the plentiful effuſion of Gods Spirit in thoſe dayes. See Joel 2. 28. Zach. 12. 10. Act. 2. 17, 18; 33. I will not deny, but that it may comprehend either. Yet I ſuppoſe, it withal includeth, and was in part fulfilled in Ezekiahs time alſo, and the reſtitution of the Jewiſh State after the defeat of Sennacherib; and the words following imply as well a temporal change, as a ſpiritual, though this typified by the former. And there may ſeem alſo ſome alluſion, by way of oppoſition, to another kind of ſpirit before poured upon them in judgment, Chap. 29. 10. or to ſuch as that rather, Hag. 1. 9. as for thoſe that expound it of the Spirit of judgment and burning, Chap. 4. 4. I cannot accord with them, becauſe that ſeems to imply a fore-going work in the purging of the people; and fitting of them for what is promiſed in this place.

be poured] So the word is uſed, Gen. 24. 20. Ch. 53. 12. Howbeit, becauſe the word ſignifieth ſometime, and moſt commonly to make bare, ch. 3. 17. ver. 11. ſome render it ſhall be made bare, that is, revealed, or in a conſpicuous manner poured out, as ch. 30. 30. & 52. 10. & 53. 1. But this ſeems ſomewhat over nice.

from on high] From God above, Pſalm. 18. 16. & 102. 19. & 144. 7. or from Chriſt, reſiding now in heaven, Act. 2. 33. & 3. 21. Eph. 4. 8, 11.

and the wilderneſſe be a fruitful field, and the fruitful field be counted for a forreſt] Or, and then the wilderneſs ſhall be a fruitful field, &c. as ch. 30. 29. This ſome expound of the equality that ſhould be among them, after their return from the Babylonian captivity, the greater and wealthier, for being then brought low, and the meaner for made eaven with them; to which purpoſe, alſo they apply that, chap. 40. 4. But the words ſeem rather to import a general fertility, that ſhould be in all places throughout the land; of which, as alſo of other expoſitions of this paſſage, ſee on chap. 29. 17. ſee alſo Ezek. 34. 26, 27.

the wilderneſs] Or waſte: ſuch as divers were in the Land of Iudah, 1 Sam. 17. 28. & 23. 15, 25. & 24. 2. Chap. 35. 1. & 40. 3. Mat. 3. 1.

be counted for a forreſt] That is, be as a foreſt: as chapter 40. 15.

V. 16. Then judgment ſhall dwell in the wilderneſſe, and righteouſneſſe remain in the fruitful field] Heb. And judgement. There ſhall be upright dealing, and due execution of juſtice, without partiality, in all parts of the land: ſee v. 1, 2. Jer. 31. 23. ch. 60. 21. The whole land being deſcribed by a diſtibution of it into two parts, the wilderneſſe (conſiſting of Woods and Plains, on which their cattel, great and ſmal, were kept, 1 Sam. 25. 15, 21. Luk. 15. 4. & many towns & habitations were neer to them, & upon them, as Zacharies, Lu. 1. 39, 40. &c.) & the Carmel, conſiſting of ſuch grounds, as were either eared and tilled for corn and grain, or planted with vines olives, and other fruitful plants; opposed here, to the wildernesse: of which, see more, on chap. 29.17. For those seems to stray far from the Prophets mind, who by judgment understand here, Gods vengeance executed upon the Assyrians, by justice his goodnels, and mercy to the Jews. See ch. 1.27 & 33. 5.

V.17. And the work of righteousnesse shall be peace, and the effect of righteousnesse, quietnesse, and assurance for ever] The fruit and benefit that shall redound to the state and people, by this due execution & observation of justice, to wit, that they shall enjoy a constant tenour of peace, prosperity, quietnels, and assured safety. See Pf. 72.2,3. Rom 14.17. Jam 3.18. The same thing, in effect, is in both branches implyed.

peace] That is, prosperity: whereof peace is both a procuring cause, Pf. 122.7 & 133.3. and a principal part, Pf. 119.165. Ch 26 3. & 48. 18. & 54.13. & 66.12.

quietness and assurance]Or, confidence. See ch. 26.4. & 38.26. which may well be referred, not onely to the setled tranquility, that they shall, then enjoy, living both free from fear of war, and hostile incursions from abroad, and from jars and broils at home amongst themselves; but a religious composure of mind also, resting quietly now upon God alone, and depending on him, with confident assurance of protection from him, Chap. 10.20. & 17. 7. See chap. 30. 15.

for ever]ch. 26.4. See ver. 14. as long as Ezekiah lives, say some, ch. 33.6. & 39.8.

V.18. And my people shall dwell in a peaceable habitation, and in sure dwellings, and in quiet resting places] A further description of that security and safety, that God shall in those times afford his people, in the several places of their abode, Lev. 26.5, 6. ch. 4.5. & 26.1, 3. & 33.20. Ezek. 34. 25-28.

a peaceable habitation]Heb. an habitation (as Exod. 15.13.) or, a fold (as 2 Sam. 7. 8.) of peace, as a land of peace, Ier. 12.5. and an habitation of righteousnesse, Ier 31.23.

sure dwellings] Heb. dwellings of assurances, or confidences, that is, of most assured confidence: such as where a man is, or may be fully sure of safety and rest secure. See Prov. 1.33.

V.19 when it shall hail coming down on the forest, and the city shall be low in a low place] Those that thus render the text, knit this passage to the end of the verse before going; and indeed if it be thus read, it makes out no entire sense; as it were said, they shall sit safe, when it haileth on the forest: or as Some; however, it hail, when the forest goes down, and the cities abroad are ruined. Others to make the sense entire, render it, But it shall hail, when it falleth upon the forest, or when it daily hail, it shall come down upon the forest, and the city shall be brought very low, or be utterly abased. They that read the text thus, either way, expound it, some, of the ministery of the Gospel thundering upon the consciences of wicked cast-aways, and throwing them, at length, down into hell; 2 Cor. 10.4-6. Hebr. 4. 12. & 6.4-8. & 10. 26-29. Matthew 11. 23. Others, of Gods judgments, that should now be bent against, and spent upon the wicked of the world, poured forth upon those that live without the pale of the Church, and should ruinate their cities: or, as some, dividing their whole country into Foreſts, or Woods, not peopled; and city, places replenished with Inhabitants (as the land of Judah before into land, wild and tilled, ver. 15.) it shall (as that Plain where Sodom stood, Gen. 19.24.) be all utterly destroyed: or, as some other again, their country, that is as ful of towns and cities, as a foreſt is of trees, shall be totally ruined. See Joh 10.11. Pſal. 11 8. chap. 10.33. 34.8. 28.2,17. & 30.30. There is yet another reading with those, that apply this to Jeruſalem; they say they, shall Gods people enjoy this peace and safety, when God hath hailed upon the forest (that is, upon the land of Judah, wherein much woody ground was) and laid the city very low, that is, pulled down the pride of Jeruſalem; this being the end for which God brought in the enemy upon them, not to destroy, but to humble them, Chapter 2. 12-17. & 3.16. & 5.15. & 29.4. And thoſe be the chief expoſitions, that moſt Writers of note do give of this verſe; from all whom, I muſt crave leave to dilent; and reading the text aſounder, to deliver mine own thoughts of either branch a part, according to ſome hints given by two of the Jewiſh Commenters; the one, concerning the former; the other, in the latter.

when it shall hail coming down on the forest] Heb. And it ſhall hail, or be ſhall hail in deſcending on the foreſt; or as others, in the deſcent of the foreſt. Which, whether way we read, will come all to one. But ſome ſuppoſe the word rendred, in deſcending, or in deſcent; to be, not an infinitive, with a particle prefixed, but one entire word, a noun femine, ſignifying hail: of which form, they give divers inſtances; and theſe thus read the words, And it, or he, ſhall hail with hail the foreſt: the meaning whereof, one of them very fitly giveth, That God will preſerve the fruits of the earth for them, that they ſhall not with ſtorm and tempeſt be ſpoyled; and will therefore, in his providence, ſo diſpoſe occurrents of that kind, that when ſtorms of hail come, they ſhall light on the wilde waſte or foreſt, where it can do little hurt, and not on their corn grounds, or vineyards, or the like, where it might do much miſchief, Pſ. 78.47.& 105. 32, 33. and the Prophet might well allude unto the diviſion that God made with that hideous judgment between the land of Goſhen, and the reſt of Egypt, Exod. 9.22-26.

and the city shall be low in a low place] That is, as moſt here take the Hebrew phraſe, with abaſing be abaſed: as chap. 22.18. or utterly abaſed, chap. 26.5. But they that thus render it, obſerve not the article prefixed to the word here uſed: and only cut ſhorter by the mid vowel here, then elſe-where; which as it ſometh not ſo well with the word abaſing, for which it is no where uſed (though the verb it cometh of, be commonly ſo taken) ſo it is always joyned with it, when it ſignifies (as it always doth) the low ground, or the vale, diſtinct both from the hill, Deut. 1.7. Joſh. 9.1.& Jer. 17.26. and from the plain too, 2 Chr. 26. 10. whence the cities of the lower grounds, or the vale, oppoſed to thoſe ſituate on the upper grounds, or the hills, Jer. 33.44.& 33.13. I render the words, therefore, after one of the Jewiſh Scholiaſts, the city (that is, cities, as chap. 25.2,3.) ſhall be low, or beneath in the low grounds, or in the vale, that is, as the few right-ly underſtands it; Such ſhall be the tranquility and the ſecurity of thoſe times; and through aſſurance of Gods protection, ſo faſe and ſo fearleſs ſhall they be, that they ſhall neither need, nor deſire to build upon the hills and higher grounds only, that were places of greater ſtrength, and better able to hold out againſt an enemy, Judg. 1. 34, 35. but ſhould build Towns and Cities in the low grounds and the vale, where they might ſeem to be more expoſed to peril and damage, by the irruption of any adverſary, and indeed ſhould be, if any ſuch ſhould invade the country, 2 Chr. 28.18. See 2 Chr. 20, 29, 30. & 32.22. ſo that in this paſſage, is a note of the ſecurity foretold and promiſed, v. 18.

V.20. Blessed are ye that sow beside all waters, that send forth thither the feet of the ox and the asse] The laſt benefit here fore-told and promiſed, is Gods bleſſing upon their labours, in earing and tilling their land, in cauſing it to return them a large and liberal encreaſe, chap. 30.23,24. See ver. 15. And this is well ſubjoyned to what went before: for the cities ſituate in the lower grounds (men, in times of peace, regarding wealth, more then ſtrength; and revenue, then defence) were much better watered, and the grounds about them commonly more fertile, as we ſee it with us alſo, then thoſe above upon the higher parts of the hill. God therefore promiſeth, that as they ſhould have opportunity, to till thoſe rich and well watered grounds, ſo by his bleſſing upon their labours therein, they ſhould receive rich crops from them, that ſhould make them happy men, Lev. 26.3-6. Deut. 28.3,4,8. Pſ. 144.13,15. If any further, ſuppoſe hereby to be typified, Gods ſpiritual husbandry in the miniſtery of the Goſpel, accompanied with his bleſſing, to the great joy and comfort of his Miniſters that labour therein, Mat. 13.8,13. Luk. 8. 8. 15. 1 Cor. 1.6 —— 9.& 9.9,10.1 Theſ. 2.19,20.& 3.8,9. of which opinion, I find moſt to be; I oppoſe them not. Yet deem this to be the firſt, proper, and genuine ſenſe; which, thoſe that wave, decline the purpoſe and intention of the Prophet in this place.

beside all waters]So the particle is uſed, Exod. 14.9. Pſal. 106.7.& 137.1. Eccl. 11.1. where that is, at leaſt, alluded, that is here intended, ſo wit, that grounds well watered, yeeld much encreaſe, ch. 35.6, 7. Howbeit, I ſuppoſe none, either neceſſity, or probability, of that which ſome imagine, that the Prophet ſhould have any ſpecial eye here to the waters of Egypt, and the fertility of that Soil, ch. 19.7, & 23.3.

sending thither the feet of the ox and the asse] Putting in theſe labouring beaſts to eat the ground, and fit it for receit of ſeed, Pſ. 144. 14. See c. 30.24. or, as ſome, to feed on the corn grown up, but green ſtil, as an ordinary herbage, in regard of the great plenty of it, not turning them out into the common or waſte, but ſending them alſo into the field. See ch. 7. 25.& 30.24. or to keep it down, when it begins to grow too rank; as in marſh grounds, new broken up, eſpecially, is with us not unuſual: Either of theſe, better then that of the aſſe, to bring in the corn, and the oxe to threſh it out, Deut. 25. 4. What dreams the Jewiſh Dotards fetch out of theſe words, concerning their two Meſſiaſes; the one, of the houſe of Joſeph, the oxe, Deut. 33. 17. the other, of the houſe of Judah, the aſſe, Zach. 9.9. themſelves, for the ſame, well deſerving the title, that Jacob gives Iſachar, Gen. 49. 14. See on ch. 11. 13.

CHAP. XXXIII.

V.1. WOe to thee that spoilest, and thou wast not spoiled; and dealest treacherously, and they dealt not treacherously with thee: when thou shalt cease to spoil thou shalt be spoiled; and when thou shalt make an end to deal treacherously, they shall deal treacherously with thee] This Chapter of the ſame nature and ſubject with the next before-going, conſiſteth of three heads, artificially enterwoven, one within another; the diſtreſs of Gods People, their delivery out of it, and the deſtruction and overthrow of the adverſe party. In the entrance, the Prophet directeth his ſpeech to the enemy, foretelling & forewarning him, of what ſhould befal him, to wit, that as he had made a ſpoil of others, and dealt perfidiouſly with them, when he had no juſt cauſe given him, to deal in that manner with them; ſo when the time ſet him for power and liberty ſo to do, ſhall expire, he ſhould in like manner, as with others he had dealt, by others alſo be dealt with himſelf.

woe to thee] Or, O thou: as chap. 10. 5. & 18.1. Thou the Chaldean, Nebuchadnezzar, as ſome, Chap. 14.4.& 21.2. Hab. 2.

5, 8. or, as others rather, the Aſſyrian, Sennacherib. See v. 8.

and thou wast not spoiled]Or, when thou wast not ſpoiled: as chap. 30. 20. when others did not ſpoil thee, Ier. 34. 1. Zach. 12.2.

and dealest treacherously]Heb. art dealing treacherouſly. So did Sennacherib with Ezekiah, 2 King. 18.14-17.

and they dealt not treacherously with thee]Or, when (as before) thou wast not treacherously dealt with. See the like form of ſpeech, ch. 53. 2. Gen. 40.15. Iob 19.26. But here may a doubt be made: for did not Zedekiah deal treacherouſly with Nebuchadnezzar, when he rebelled againſt him, 2 Kin. 24. 20 ? and Ezekiah the like with Sennacherib, when he rebelled alſo againſt him ? 2 Kings 18.7.] anſwer, Zedekiah indeed did ſo, becauſe he was ſet up by Nebuchadnezzar, and had ſworn allegeance to him, 2 Chr. 36.13. Ezek. 17. 15-19. and hence it may be gathered, that Nebuchadnezzar is not here intended. But of Ezekiah, it cannot be ſo ſaid: for neither was he, by the Aſſyrian, advanced to the Crown, nor doth it appear, that he ever engaged himſelf to him, though his Father. it ſeems, upon the aſſiſtance by the Aſſyrian afforded him againſt the Syrian and Iſrael, to continue amity with him, had agreed, for ſome yeerly contribution to be made him, which Ezekiah, at his coming to the Crown, refuſed to make good; and is therefore ſaid to have rebelled againſt him, b cauſe he refuſed to be under that heavy yoke of contribution any longer; which how great it had bin, may appear by that vaſt ſum that Ezekiah ſent to make his peace again with him; and which, though by Sennacherib accepted, yet perfidiouſly he proceeded ſtill in hoſtile manner againſt him, 2 King. 18. 14-17.

when thou shalt cease to spoil] When thy time, by God prefixed, is once expired, thou ſhalt be bereft of thy power, and others ſhall ſpoil thee, So of the Babylonian, Jer. 25. 12, 14. Hab. 2. 8. as thou haſt formerly dealt with others, ſo ſhall others deal with thee, Judg. 1.5. Jer. 50.16. Mat. 9.1. Rev. 13.10.& 16. 6.

shall deal treacherously with thee] That is, ſay ſome, the Chaldeans ſhall deal treacherouſly with the Aſſyrians; and the Medes and Perſians afterward with the Chaldeans. For the former branch of ſpoiling, it may well be granted, that as the Aſſyrians ſpoiled Gods people, ſo the Chaldeans ſpoiled the Aſſyrians ſpoiled Gods and Perſians in like manner ſpoiled the Chaldeans. But for treacherous dealing, though the Chaldeans, before ſubject to the Aſſyrians, (ſee 2 Chron. 33.11.) might in ſuch kind be faulty, yet it appears not, how the Medes and Perſians ſhould come to be charged with diſloyalty toward the Chaldeans. It ſeems rather meant of Sennacherib, againſt bonds of Allegiance, as well civil as natural, ſlain by his own ſons, ch. 37.38.

V.2. O Lord be gracious unto us; we have waited for thee: be thou their arm every morning, our salvation also in the time of trouble]A Prayer conceived, in the perſon of Gods faithful people, intreating him, that ſince that they did by faith and patience depend upon him, expecting what iſſue he would be pleaſed to give, in the time of thoſe preſent troubles, he would vouchſafe ſuch ſucceſs and deliverance, as to other of his, he had formerly in the like caſes afforded, Pſ. 9. 10. & 18.4,5.& 44.1,2.Sec. ch. 26.16.

we have waited for thee] See ch. 8.17.& 25.9.& 26.8.& 30.18. Pſ. 22.4,5.

be thou their arm every morning] Thus read, it ſhould be a paſſage from perſon to perſon: as ch. 1.29. See ver. 4. or, as ſome would have it relating to the perſon of the Church, as a mother preſenting her children in her arms unto God their Father, to be taken into his protection; but it may better be read, be thou, who waſt their arm every morning, our ſalvation alſo]a defect of the relative, as ch. 30.5, 6, 9.

their arm] Their mighty and powerful ſupport, ſuccour, and ſafeguard, Pſ. 89.21.& 136.12. Jer. 17.5. an arm to them, that is, to our fore-fathers, to thy people in times paſt, Pſal. 18.4,5.& 44.1. the pronoun, for the mountain Gen. 14.13. Exod. 34.28.

every morning]Heb. by mornings, that is, ſpeedily or conſtantly: as Iob 7.18. Pſ. 73.14.& 101.8.& 143.7. Lam. 3.22.

V. 3. At the noise of the tumult the people fled; at the lifting up of thy self the nat ons were scattered] Or, as Some, conceiving it to be a continuation of the former prayer; Let the people flee, let the nations be ſcattered: as Pſ. 68. 1,2. As others, they ſhall flee, they ſhall be ſcattered: as a prediction of the overthrow to be given to the Aſſyrian forces, conſiſting of ſundry nations that ſerved under Sennacherib, in way of anſwer to the peoples Prayer, 2 Chr. 32.20,21. But the manner of the Prophets is to ſpeak of things future, as paſt.

at]Heb. from: as noting the cauſe, or ground of their flight and diſperſion. So Pſ. 18.1,2,15.

the noise of the tumult] That was in the Aſſyrian Camp, upon the deſcent of the Angel, ch. 30.30, 31.& 31.8, 9. & 37.36, 37. of the word here uſed, See ch. 29.5 & 30.4.

the lifting up of thy self]As a Judge, ſay ſome, to ſit on the bench; or rather as a warrier in fight, rouzing up himſelf, and liſtir g up arm & hand to ſmite his foe, Pſ. 118.16. See v. 10. In both branches, is implyed how eaſily God is able to overthrow his adverſaries; his bare voice, or hand lift up, is enough to do it, without ſtriking any ſtroke, ch. 30.31.

V.4. And your spoils shall be gathered, like the gathering of caterpillars: as the running to and fro of locusts, shall he run upon them]One effect of the overthrow, by the Angel, given the Aſſyrians, to wit, the ſpoiling of their camp, deſerted by them, falling into the hand of the Jewiſh people. So v. 23.

your spoils]Heb. ſpoil: as Deut. 22.14. that is, as moſt, the ſpoils of the Aſſyrians, that left and loſt them, unto whom the Prophet now bends his ſpeech; as ch. 8.4. Zach. 14.1. Yee ſome, Your ſpoil, that, of you the Jews, becauſe they became owners of it: as Davids ſpoil; or prey, 1 Sam. 30.20. though they ſeem to go out of the way, that underſtand it, of the ſpoils taken by the Aſſyrians, from the Jews, ch. 10.6.

like the gathering of caterpillars] The word is ſaid to ſignifie a kind of worm, in ſhape like a locuſt, but without wings; joyned therefore with the locuſt in it. King. 8.37. Pſal. 78.46. and is to called of a word, that ſignifieth to devour, or conſume, Deut. 28.38. becauſe they make ſpoil and hawock of all that is green, where they come, Exod. 10.15. Pſal. 105.35. Joel 1.4.& 2.25. Some therefore expound it, Your ſpoils ſhall be as eaſily gathered, as the caterpillar devoureth herbs and graſs. See v. 23, 24. Others, Ye ſhall be pillaged, and left as bare, as locuſts and caterpillars uſe to leave the places where they have been, Joel 2.5. Others, Ye that as locuſts and caterpillars, have deſtroyed and pillaged others, ſhall now be deſtroyed, and laid on heaps your ſelves, and your ſpoils gathered together, as ſuch vermine are wont to be. See Exod. 8.13,14. chap. 17.11. Howbeit, ſome ſuppoſe an alluſion to thoſe holes, wherein ſuch vermine lodge themſelves, and lay their eggs, in winter, where they may eaſily be taken up together, and ſo deſtroyed; and ro eggs taken in a neſt, are ſpoils compared, ch. 10. 13,14. Yet this ſeems not to be ſo probable in this place.

like the gathering]As ſuch uſe to be gathered: a defect of the note of ſimilitude as ch. 28.1. expreſſed, Mic 7.1. or, with the gathering: as ch. 22. 22. either comes in ſenſe to the ſame.

as the running to and fro of locusts, shall he run upon them] The word rendred locuſts is uſed generally, elſewhere, for ditches made to receive water, 2 Kings 3.16. Jer. 14. 3. And ſo both ſome of the Jewiſh Writers, and the old Latine, here, alſo, render it. The Rabbine expounding it of the noiſe that the Jews ſhould make, going out to ſpoil the Aſſyrian Camp, like the noiſe of water, running down into ditches, ch. 17.12,13. Others of the Aſſyrians gathered together into the vally of Topher, as locuſts or caterpillars ſwept into a ditch, there to be covered with earth, and deſtroyed, ch. 30. 33. But the moſt deem it, a Syrian term, ſignifying locuſts, and with little alteration, ſo alſo uſed, Amos 7.1. Nah. 3. 17. And ſo taking it, ſome expound it, of the Aſſyrians, like locuſts, over-running the land, and laying it all waſte, before the defeat given them, Joel 2. 2,3. Others, of the Angel falling in upon the Aſſyrian Camp, and routing it as a company of locuſts do upon a ground, which they ſudrouting it as a company of locuſts do upon a ground, which they ſudderly depaſture. Pſ. 105.34,35. Others laſtly, of the people pillaging the Aſſyrian Camp; and running to and fro in it, and among the ſpoil they there meet with, as men, fay ſome, that run up and down, to gather up the locuſts; or, as others more probably, as the locuſts themſelves run to and fro in the corn. Joel 2. 7. So the words would be read, as they are in the Hebrew; According to the running, to and fro of locuſts running among it: or, by thoſe that after the manner of locuſts running to and fro, ſhall run to and fro among it; to wit, the prey, or ſpoil, in the foregoing branch mentioned. See the like phraſe, Chapter 1.7. and 13.19. a defect of the preposition noting the efficient: as Chap. 26.9. So in the next verſe.

V.5. The Lord is exalted]Or, will be exalted, ver. 10. He will in glorious manner manifeſt his might, and gain much honour to himſelf, not onely by the overthrow of his enemies. Ch. 2. 11, 17. & 12.4.& 59.19 but yet further, alſo by the reſtitution of his people, and ſetling them in a well-ordered, and ſtately grounded State again, ver. 5,6.

for he dwelleth on high] In the higheſt heavens; from whence he is able to pour down civil unavoidable, on the heads of thoſe whom he hateth, Pſal. 2.4,5.& 11.4, 6. & 33.10,11,13. & 93.4.& 115 3. chap 24.18. and 57. 15. But the words may, according to the Hebrew, be well thus read; For he that dwelleth (Heb. that is, dwelling: as Chap. 57. 15.) on high, will fill Zion with judgment, and right eouſneſs: and thereby gain abundance of honour to himſelf, Pſ. 99 2. 4,5.

he hath filled Zion with judgment and righteousnesse]Or, he will fill Zion, that is, Ieruſalemjas Ch. 30 19. ver. 15. with judgment, ſay ſome, executed upon the enemy, and righteouſneſs, that is, goodneſs; as Pſ. 112.7.& 103 17 2 Cor. 9.9.10. or, faithfulneſs, in performance of his promiſes; as 1 John 1. 9. to his people, Chapter 1-27. Or, rather, with due execution of juſtice and judgment, in the State now refined, and reſtored to its ancient purity, ch. 1.21,25,26. See ch. 32.1,16.

V.6. And wisdome, and knowledge, shall be the stability of thy times, and strength of salvation] Or, The ſtability of thy times, and ſtrong ſafeguard alſo ſufficient, ſhall thy wiſdom and knowledge be: the pronoun ſupplied from the former words, as ch. 58.13.)O Ezekiah: for to him the Prophet here directeth his ſpeech; as for telling by what graces in him, and his exercise thereof, the State should, in setled peace and safety, be establihied, during his days.

wisdome and knowledg] See ch. 11.2.2 Chr. 1. 10.

the stability] So the word is used, Exod. 17. 12.

of thy times] As Pf. 31.15. The time of thy reign, ch. 39.8.

strength of salvation] That is, saving strength, or strong safeguard. Heb. salvations: that is, all manner of, or all sufficient salvation; as 2 Sam. 22.51. Pf. 28. 8. The words may well thus be rendred, Thy wisedom and knowledg (that is, thy wise, and prudent carriage) shall be, (that is, shall procure to thee; as John 12. 50. & 17. 3. Rom. 7. 7.) for thy times, (during thy days, chap. 39. 8.) firmnes of strength of salvations, that is, firm, strong, and allsufficient safeguard. See the like continuation of regency, ch. 10. 12. & 25. 12. See also of this settlement of the State, under Ezekiah, ch. 32. 17. 18.

the fear of the Lord is his treasure] Or, shall be. Heb. It. The pronoun for the verb substantive; as Pf. 44. 4. Eccl. 1. 5, 10. Eſt. 7. 5, ch. 43. 10. 25. The true fervice, and worship of God, Hoſ. 3. 5. Heb. 12. 28. shall be as dear unto him as any treasure, Pſal. 19. 9, 10. & 119. 72. or shall bring wealth to him, and enrich him, Pf. 111. 2, 3. & 128. 1, 5, 6. Prov. 14. 26. & 15. 6. See Ezekiahs zeal in ſetling, and advancing the true worship of God, 2 Kings 18. 3-6. 2 Chr. 29. & 30. & 31. and the great wealth that God endowed him with, 2 Chr. 32. 22, 23, 27. 29.

V. 7. Behold their valiant ones shall cry without; the Embaſſadors of peace ſhall weep bitterly] The Prophet, the more to amplifie and magnifie the greatnes of Gods goodnes in the delivery of his people, which he comes afterward to relate, v. 20. and to ſhew the opportunity and ſeaſonableneſs of it, maketh way thereunto, by declaring the great difficulties, and deep diſtreſſe they were in, until it pleaſed him to ſend it: which is here two waies laid forth; Firſt, by the uneffectual iſſue of all means uſed, to pacifie the over-powerful enraged adverſary, v. 7. And ſecondly, the ſpoil and waſte he had made of the whole land, none being able to make head nor place to ſtand out againſt him, ver. 8, 9.

the valiant ones] The word Ereſ, here only uſed, and not elſewhere, in Scripture, cometh neer to the word Ariel, chap. 29. 1. and accordingly, many here diverſly expound it. For firſt, becauſe the altar is ſometime termed Ariel, Ezek. 43. 15. therefore ſome take Ereſ here regarding the words, Behold their Ereſ ſhall they cry without: that is, the Aſſyrians, in mockery, Behold their altar; intimating, that their ſacrifices thereon offered, ſhould now ſtand them in no ſtead. Others, becauſe Ariel is ſometime put for Jeruſalem, and the Temple, wherein the altar ſtood, Chap. 29. 1, 2. do by Ereſ, underſtand that city, and Temple alſo, reading the words thus, They ſhall cry for their Ereſ, that is, for their city, and for their Temple, and altar there, to ſee them ſo diſtreſſed, or deſtroyed. See ch. 29. 1, 2. Others again, becauſe Ariel ſignifieth a mighty Lion, or a Lion of God, and is put ſometime, for a mighty, or a Lion-like man, 2 Sam. 23. 20. thus render it, each moſt valiant among them ſhall cry out: the noun ſingular taken collectively, or diſtributively, and joyned with a verb plural; as Chap. 26. 19. But the moſt, (and that moſt probable) ſay, the word ſignifies an herald, that uſeth to cry aloud like a lion, Chap. 21. 8. Dan. 3. 4. and whoſe ſpeech carrieth power with it, as ſpeaking in the perſon of his Sovereign, whoſe meſſenger he is, and delivering his minde and meſſage, Prov. 19. 12. & 20. 2. Eccl. 8. 4. And hence the word is uſed among the Talmudiſts, for an Angel, whom that name is given to, both in Hebrew, the very word uſed in the next clauſe) and in Greek becauſe they are Gods meſſengers, Pſal. 103. 20. & 104. 4. Heb. 1. 7, 14. So like the words here, may well be read and rendred, their meſſengers, underſtanding thereby, either thoſe that Ezekiah, and the State, ſent with preſents, unto Sennacherib, at firſt to ſtay him, if it might be, from proceeding further, as miſdoubting that he had not power ſufficient to oppoſe him, Luke 14. 31, 32. See 2 Kings 18. 14. or thoſe other, that afterward he ſent to parley with Rabſhakeh, when the Aſſyrian forces were now come neerer the city, Chap. 36. 3.

cry] cry out. Through extremity of grief, as a woman in travel, Chapter 26. 17. becauſe they could not obtain that for which they were ſent, to wit, any terms of peace without rendition, ch. 36. 15, 1. 6.

without] Either without the city, whither they were ſent to meet with Rabſhakeh, Chapter 36. 3. or, abroad openly in the ſtreets, not able to conceal their heavineſs; but coming into, and paſſing along the city, with their garments rent, in mournful manner ch. 36. 2. 22.

the Embaſſadors of peace] Not that brought tidings of peace; as ch. 52. 7. (for they could not ſpeed in their Treaty) nor, as ſome would have it, that laboured to have peace, upon any terms, made with the Aſſyrian, complotting, and complying under-hand with him; as of Shebna, ſome ſurmiſe; (ſee on ch. 22. 15.) but thoſe which were ſent with commiſſion, to entreat of peace if, on any terms reaſonable, it might have bin compaſſed.

weep bitterly] Heb. with bitterneſſe. A defect of the prepoſition; as v. 9. See ch. 28. 4.

V. 8 The high-ways lye waſte, the wayfaring man ceaſeth] As in dangerous times, in a land peſtered with ſouldiers, forrein forces eſpecially. few dare travel to and fro; and thoſe that dare, by neceſſity, enforced ſo to do, ſhun the common roads commonly, as the moſt dangerous, and betake themſelves to blind & leſſe beaten by-ways, Judg. 5. 6.

the wayfaring man] Or, paſſenger. Heb. paſſing by the way, as Job 21. 29. Lam. 1. 12. & 2. 15.

ceaſeth] Heb. reſteth: for thence the Sabboth, becauſe thoſe that reſt, ceaſe from work, Gen. 2. 2, 3. So ch. 14. 5. & 24. 8.

he hath broken the covenant] He, that is, the people of Judah, ſay ſome, have broken their covenant with God, and now ſuffer for it, God, by the enemies ſword, revenging the breach of his covenant, Lev. 26. 15, 25. Others, God himſelf, of whom the people complain, as not keeping the covenant he had made with Abraham and David, Pſalm 89. 28, 34, 39. But it is rather, the enemy Sennacherib, that he ſpeaketh of, who had received from Ezekiah, in way of compoſition, the ſum by himſelf aſſigned him, and yet ſtill proceeded in hoſtile manner againſt him, 2 Kings 18. 14, 17. See on v. 1.

he hath deſpiſed the cities] Or, he ſcorneth cities: both by ſurpriſing and lacking of them, and by inſulting over them, ch. 10. 9, 10, 14. & 36. 1, 19, 20. So Hab. 1. 10.

he regardeth no man] Neither any man, high or low; nor God neither, ch. 10. 8, 14. & 36. 8, 9. So Hab. 1. 10. he regardeth none, either to keep faith to them, or to make ſpare of them; but breaketh faith with them, and maketh havock of them, ch. 10. 7. v. 1.

V. 9. The earth mourneth and languiſheth] Or, The land mourneth, it languiſheth : being over-run by the Aſſyrian forces. See chap. 24. 4.

Lebanon is aſhamed, and hewen down] Or, Lebanon is aſhamed, as bereaved of her trees, cut down for the ſervice of Nebuchadnezzar, to make warlike engines for his ſieges: ſee ch. 14. 8. & 37. 24. it is hewen down; which of the trees is proper, of Lebanon it ſelf, not ſo: Or, as ſome, it is withered away: which being ſpoken of trees cut down, is not ſo fitting, as others, it languiſheth: but that we had in another word before. I ſuppoſe, we may well render it, it is decayed. The word is no where found, but here, and chap. 19. 6. where it is rendred withereth; but may as well there alſo be, is decayed.

Sharon is like a wilderneſs] Sharon, the name of a fertile and pleaſant region, lying in the tribe of Gad, beneath mount Lebanon, and adjoyning unto Bathan, as appeareth by 1 Chr. 5. 16. (howſoever ſome would place it in Ephraims portion, and ſome in Zebulons) there had David his herds of cattel fed, 1 Chr. 27. 29. which argueth the fatneſs of the Soil, and the roſes of Sharon were in requeſt, Cant. 2. 1. which argues the pleaſantneſs of the place. See ch. 35. 2.

Baſhan and Carmel ſhake off their fruits] They have the fruit and leaves of the trees growing on them, ſhaken off, and beaten down by the enemies rude ſoulditry: the word is uſed afterward, v. 15. or they are as waſte, as a tree that hath fled fruit and leaves, ch. 1. 30. deſpoiled of all the fruit that the rich ſoil with them yeelded, like a fig-tree that caſteth his untimely figs, when it is ſhaken with a ſtiff wind, Rev. 6. 13. Yet ſome render the word bray, or roar, becauſe of the lions roaring; it is uſed, Jer. 51. 38. and the Talmudiſts uſe it, for the braying of an aſſe. or a camels: of a waſte howling wilderneſſe; but in another ſenſe Moſes ſpeaketh, Deut. 32. 10. The former ſeems better here.

Baſhan and Carmel] Two other places, not unlike the former: of the former; ſee chap. 2. 13. 1 Chr. 5. 12, 16. Pſal. 22. 8. Of the latter, ſee ch. 10. 18. & 29. 17. Jer. 4. 26. Now becauſe Sharon and Bathan were not in the land of Judah, but in ſome of the other tribes: Some would have them here to be put figuratively, not for thoſe particular places, but as Carmel is oft uſed, for places in Judah, like unto, and of the ſame condition with them; which though it be not improbable; yet it is not unlikely, that thoſe places ſuffered much from that vaſt army of the Aſſyrians in their paſſage. However, the Prophets ſcope is to ſhew, that the land was generally laid waſte, as chap. 1. 7, 8. & 10. 18. For as for thoſe, that ſuppoſe the whole land, by the four boundaries of it, here deſcribed, Libanus on the North, Sharon on the Weſt, Baſhan on the Eaſt, Carmel on the South; I doubt whether their Geography can be made good or no. I ſhould concur rather with thoſe, who ſuppoſe, that by theſe places, Sennacherib made his way into Judea: for Carmel, ſaith Tacitus in his hiſtory, lib. 2. ſtood between Iudea and Syria. See. Pliny l. 5. c. 19.

V. 10. Now will I riſe, ſaith the Lord: now will I be exalted: now will I lift up my ſelf] Now will I ariſe, to help and deliver my people, when they are in theſe inextricable ſtreights, ſee v. 2. Then it is moſt ſeaſonable for God to ſtrike in, when all ſeems given up for loſt and gone, when all humane helps and hopes utterly fail; mans extremity, being his opportunity, Pſ. 12. 3, 4. & 12. 5. & 78. 65. & 119. 126. ch. 37. 3. & 59. 16. See ver. 3, 5. ch. 30. 18.

V. 11. Ye ſhall conceive chaff, ye ſhall bring forth ſtubble :] Your frivolous projects & deſigns, wherewith ye Aſſyrians grow great, and whereof you promiſe to your ſelves great matters, ſhall all be fruſtrate, and unable to produce ought: it ſhall be, as if ye had ſown chaff inſtead of grain, and ſtubble had come up in it inſtead of corn: ſee ſomewhat the like expreſſions, Job 8. Pſal. 7. 14. Prov. 22. 8. ch. 59. 4. chaff and ſtubble, for light ſtuff of no worth, or combuſtible matter; ſuch as any puff of wind may ſoon blow away; any ſpark of fire fire ſuddenly ſet on a light flame, ch. 5. 24. & 41. 2, 15, 16.

Your breath, as fire ſhall devour you] Or, your ſpirit is as a fire, that ſhall devour you: a ſupply of the note of ſimilitude in the one, as v. 4. of the relative in the other, as v. 1.

your breath] Or, ſpirit, as Job 15. 13. the fire that you have blown and kindled, to burn others with, ſhall conſume your ſelves, as Dan. 3. 22. or, your wrath and rage againſt God and his people, breathing out reproaches and blaſphemies againſt either; or, the haughtineſs of your hearts, or ſtoutneſs of your ſtomacks, ſhall prove your own overthrow, your own ruine and confuſion; and ſhall be, not as wind only, to blow away all your vain projects, but as fire to devour your ſelves, (Ier. 5. 13, 14.) by incenſing the wrath of God againſt you, and procuring, from his hand, your utter deſtruction, ch. 10. 11, 12, 16, 17. & 37. 3, 4, 23, 29, 36. Pſ. 76. 10, 11. The Jewiſh Doctors, ſome of them, reading the text, ya your ſpirit the fire ſhal devour you, thence gather, that the Aſſyrians had their inward vitals burnt up with the ſtroke of the Angel, their bodies ſtill ſtanding bolt upright. But that is one of their groundleſs ſigments.

V. 12. And the people ſhall be as the burning of lime] Heb. burnings of lime; that is, as chalk that is burnt to make lime: ſee chap. 27. 9. Some read it, as if they were caſt into lime kils, as 2 Sam. 12. 31. but ſo large a ſupply needs not; that of the note of ſimilitude is ſufficient, as v. 11. ſo here, and in the next clauſe.

as thorns cut up ſhall they be burnt in the fire] Or, with fire, as Jer. 22. 8. as thorns not growing, or green, that are not ſo eaſily kindled, but cut up, and fear, that will ſoon take fire, and are burnt oft times in the ſame place, where they lye, or if not there, elſe-where: ſee 2 Sam. 23. 6, 7. Pſ. 80. 16. ch. 27. 4, 11. By theſe ſimilitudes, he deſcribeth that fatal blaſt, wherewith ſo many thouſands were ſuddenly ſmitten in the Aſſyrian Camp, and deſtroyed, as if they had bin burnt up with fire, ſee ch. 10. 16, 17. & 30. 27, 28 30, 33.

V. 13. Hear ye that are afar off, what I have done; and ye that are neer, acknowledg my might] God, by the Prophet, calleth upon all people, far and neer, to take notice of, and ſeriouſly to conſider of this remarkable judgment of his, executed upon the Aſſyrians: for ſo ch. 8. 9, thereby alſo implying, that the vengeance taken on them ſhould be ſuch, and ſo notorious, that it ſhould be talked of far and neer, ch. 59. 19.

acknowledg] Or, take notice of, Heb. know: ſee ch. 1. 3. Ier. 3. 13.

V. 14. The ſinners in Zion are afraid: fearfulneſſe hath ſurpriſed the hypocrites] What the ground of this fear ſhould be, or who they be that ſhould be thus ſurprized with it, is much queſtioned. Some, and ſo the moſt, underſtand the words of the wicked inhabiting Jeruſalem, thus ſurprized and poſſeſſed with fears and frights; either upon the acceſſe of the Aſſyrian, miſtruſting Gods promiſes, and miſdoubting his power, as not able to protect them againſt ſo potent an adverſary, that by fire and ſword carried all away before him: as Chap. 7. 2, 9. or being terrified with apprehenſion of that dreadful execution done upon the Aſſyrians (as Pſalm 119. 119, 120. Hab. 3. 16.) and complaining of Gods rigor and ſeverity, with Cain, Gen. 4. 13. and fearing leſt the like vengeance ſhould light alſo upon them. So Num. 16. 34. 1 Sam. 5. 10, 11. & 6. 19, 20. Others would have it ſpoken of theſe wicked ones, the Aſſyrians, for their cruelties in Jeruſalem, ſuch ot them, as had eſcaped, and ſurvived the great overthrow of their countrymen and complices, encitingone another in all haſt to be done, as there being no ſtaying by it, or ſtanding out againſt ſuch a God. So the Egyptians, Exod. 14. 25. But this ſeems not to ſuit well, either with the words of the text, or with that which after enſueth. I rather therefore take the words the other way, and concur with the firſt.

in Zion] In Jeruſalem: as ver. 5. by, or about Zion, is too harſh here.

are afraid] Or, ſhall be afraid: as v. 5, 6, 7.

fearfulneſſe hath ſurpriſed] As Pſ. 48. 6. or ſhall ſurprize them, as before.

hypocrites] Or, prophane, or ſlagitious ones. See ch. 9. 17. & 24. 5. Thoſe prophane, that derided and jeered Gods Prophets formerly, when theſe judgments were by them foretold and denounced, ch. 22. 13. ſhall now, when they perceive the enemies approach, and fear that which before they would not believe, much of it fulfilled, ſhall then be clean out of heart, and at their wits end.

who among us ſhall dwell with devouring fire? who amongſt us ſhall dwell with everlaſting burnings] That is, as ſome, with God, who is a conſuming fire, when he is once incenſed; and whoſe wrath once kindled, burns without flint or end, Deut. 4. 24. & 9. 3. & 32. 22. Pſ. 89. 5. & 89. 46. Heb. 12. 29. or rather, as others, with the Aſſyrian forces which like a conſuming fire waſted and devoured all before them, as thoſe locuſts, Joel 2. 3.

who among us] The words, or thoughts, at leaſt, of thoſe diſtruſtful wicked wretches, and in the text therefore ſay they, or the like, would as a ſupply, be inſerted: as Job 8. 18. Neh. 13. 25. ch. 22. 13, & 26. 19.

who among us ſhall dwell] So the particle is uſed, Ezra. 1. 6. for among, or of. But more commonly, yea, moſt uſually, it hath another notion with it, and is rendred, for us, Pſ. 124. 1, 2. with Rom. 8. 31. chap. 6 8. ver. 21. and ſo the beſt of the Jewiſh Commenters here take it; reading the words who will gather for us? for to the word rendred, dwell, ſometime ſignifieth, as Pſalm. 56. 6. and 59. 3. and 104. 2.

In this Prophecy, thrice together in one verſe, Chap. 14. 15 and that there, as alſo in the Pſalms, uſed of warlike preparations. They therefore conceive the meaning to be this, Who is able to ſtand for us, and to gather forces together ſufficient to make head, and to protect us againſt ſo great an army, as the Aſſyrian bringeth with him, that hath already over-run, and laid waſte the whole land? chap. 36. 1. I ſhall add one other reading, and to leave it. The word, here uſed, ſignifies, oft times, alſo to fear; as Job 19. 29. Pſ. 22. 23. & 33. 8. Hoſ. 10. 5. So I conceive it may be here taken, and the words thus rendred, who of us can but fear a devouring fire? ſuch as the Aſſyrian army is. The negative ſit interrogations is oft times implyed, and to be ſupplyed; as Job 20. 4. and 21. 4. wherein ſee on Jer. 31. 20. Thus read, the context would moſt clearly, and cavenly run.

with devouring fire] The word with, is not in the text: and againſt, may be ſupplyed, as well, as with. as Pſ. 35. ch. 32. 2. a devouring fire, is attributed to the enemy here, as to the ſoldiers, Joel 2. 3. Yet I doubt whether any alluſion be here, (as ſome conceive) to that fained fire, (adored, anciently, by many people, in thoſe parts, as having ſome kinde of deity) that was carried before their Kings. Of the Perſian Kings, ſee Xenophon, in the life of Cyrus, lib. 8. and of the latter Roman Emperors, Herodian, in Commodus, and in Pertinax.

everlaſting burnings] This thoſe that underſtand the paſſage of God, expound of thoſe everlaſting burnings in hell-fire, Matth. 3. 12. & 25. 41. Mark. 9. 44. Yet with ſome alluſion unto that fire, that burnt night and day upon the altar, Chap. 31. 9. Levit. 6. 2. in which place another word of very neer affinity to this, is uſed. Howbeit, the word it ſelf, properly ſeems to ſignifie an hearth, on which fire is made, ſo it is rendred, Pſal. 102. 3. no where elſe found, ſave here and there: and ſome therefore here ſo render it, hearths of perpetuity, that have fire ever on them, or never lin burning. And this others underſtand, alſo, of the Aſſyrians fury, and rage, that was never ſatisfied; but as the fire that hath never enough, Prov. 30. 16. was inceſſantly ſpoiling, and making havock, of countries and people, Ch. 10. 7. See ch. 14. 6. So hatred of antiquity or perpetuity, for invetcrate hatred, or hatred long continued, Ezek 25. 15. See chap. 32. 14. Yet neither do I conceive any alluſion here to any ſuch eternal fire, as they termed it, which, at firſt, kindled from heaven, was continually kept burning on their everlaſting hearths (as they ſtyled them) among the Magi in the Eaſtern parts, ſome ſmall portion whereof was born anciently, before the Aſian Kings, as Antmian reporteth, l. b. 23. which way ſoever the words be rendred, whether, who among us can abide, or dwell, (to wit, in ſafety) or, who among us can continual burnings? or who can gather forces for us againſt ſuch? or who can but fear ſuch? they may well be the words of prophane and wicked perſons diſtruſting Gods providence, and power to defend and protect them againſt the Aſſyrians: as if they ſhould ſay, The Prophets tell us, that God will protect this city, and deliver it out of the hands of the Aſſyrians, and we need not therefore to look after any aids from abroad: but who is there among us, that is able to raiſe forces ſufficient to withſtand them? or who is there of us, that can do other then fear, or that can promiſe himſelf ſafety; when he ſeeth all the land on a light fire about him, againſt one that continually burns up all before him? A learned late Writer, would have the context thus cut out, who of us ſhall abide? the fire devoureth, who of us ſhall abide the burnings are everlaſting. But I ſuppoſe, he walketh herein by himſelf.

V. 15. He that walketh righteouſly, and ſpeaketh uprightly: he that deſpiſeth the gain of oppreſſions, that ſhaketh his hands, from holding of bribes: that ſtoppeth his ears from hearing of blood, and ſhutteth his eyes from ſeeing evil] The Prophets anſwer to thoſe diſtruſtful perſons queſtion; declaring who they are, that need not on ſuch occaſions be diſmayed, but may confidently reſt on God, with hopeful expectation of aſſured protection, and undoubted ſafety; nor ſuch indeed as they were, but ſuch as were truly religious, and made conſcience of their wayes: of whom he giveth a large deſcription and potraiture to life in this place. See ſomewhat the like, Pſ. 15. & 24. 4.

walketh righteouſly] Liveth ſoras Pſ. 26. 11. & 119. 1. mans life and converſation being in Scripture compared to a way, and a walk, Pſ. 1. 6. Eph. 2. 10. & 4. 1. 17. & 5. 8. Heb. in righteouſneſſes, in a continued courſe of righteouſneſſe, and juſt dealing of all ſorts, Pſ. 106. 3. ch. 56. 1, 2. ſpeaketh uprightly] Heb. executeth, or uprightneſſes. See ch. 26. 10. & 45. 19.

deſpiſeth] As 1 Sam. 15. 23. ch. 30. 12. or, refuſeth: as ch. 7. 15. 16. (ſee ch. 31. 7.

gain of oppreſſions] Or deceits: but that rather, as Pro. 28. 16. gain, by ſuch courſes gotten: as Ier. 6. 9. the mammon, or wealth of unrighteouſneſs, by unjuſt means procured, and compaſſed. See ch. 30. 12.

that ſhaketh his hands from holding of bribes] That is, as ſome, if a bribe chance to come into his hand, he ſhaketh it off, as Paul did the viper, Acts 28. 3, 5. or rather, he ſhaketh his hands from receiving, (as it is rendred, Prov. 4. 4.) or taking hold of (as Prov. 5. 5. & 28 17.) of a gift, or a bribe: as Deut. 16, 19 when it is offered and tendred to him; for it is not ſo much the holding or keeping of it, (which Judas himſelf durſt not do, Mat. 27. 3, 5. it burnt like a ſpark of hell fire in his hand) but the taking of it, that the godly keepeth his hands free from.

from hearing of blood]Heb. bloods; that is, murther, cruelty, or any courſes, or counſels tending thereunto; any the leaſt motion to ſuch purpoſe, he endureth not to hear, See ch.1.15.

ſhutteth his eyes]ch.29.10.

from ſeeing of evill] The very ſight of evil in others is an eye-ſore to him, Pſ.119.158. Hab.1.3,13.2. Pet.2.7, 8. or, he carefully ſhunneth ſuch objects, by the ſh, ht whereof, he may be enticed, or induced to any evil, Job 31.1. Pſal.119.37. Mat.5.28.

V.16. He ſhall dwell on high, his place of defence ſhall be the munitions of rocks: bread ſhall be given him, his waters ſhall be ſure] The man deſcribed, as before, ſhall be as ſafe, as if he were in a fort impregnable, not to be taken by any force; and ſufficiently furniſhed with ſtore of proviſions to hold out any ſiege.

on high] Heb. in heights, or high places, chap. 58.14. ſuch as are commonly deemed moſt ſafe, Pſal.18.33. he ſhall be as ſafe, where-ſoever he be abiding, though his dwelling place be in the vale, as if he were ſeated on the higheſt rock, or hill, that is. See ch.32. 18,19.

his place of defence ſhall be the munitions of the rocks] Or, his high place, or high fort, as the word properly ſignifies. See Pſal 9.9. chap. 25.12.]ſhall be rocky holds; either founded on a rock, Mat.7.24. or cut out of a rock, chap.22.16. See both joyned togeather, Pſ.18.2,& 31.3. impregnable, not for height only, but for ſtrength too; ſuch as rocks are, Judg.15.8,& 20.45. Job 39. 28. Prov.30.26.

bread ſhall be given him]Heb. his bread ſhall be given. Such bread; that is, ſuch proviſion (ſee 1 Kings 4.22. Neh.5.14.) as he ſhall deſire, or ſhall have need of, (as ch.32.6.) ſhall be afforded him, 1 King. 17. 6. Jer.37.21.

his waters ſhall be ſure] Or, his water, (for the word is in notion, ſingular, though in form plural. See Chap.3.1.) that is, his drink; (for that was in thoſe parts, the uſual ordinary drink, Gen.24. 13,14,18,19. Joh.4.7,9,11.) ſuch as he ſhall have need of, ſhall not fail him. See the contrary, Job 6.15.20. Jer. 14.3.& 15.18. Chap. 32. 6.

V.17. Thine eyes ſhall ſee the King in his beauty, they ſhall behold the land that is very far off] A further benefit and bleſſing, that ſuch ſhould enjoy the ſight of their King, and State, ſeled in proſperity and glory; and liberty to travel abroad unto the remoteſt parts of the land, without danger or diſturbance, in ſafety.

ſee the King] That is, God, ſay ſome, in beatifical viſion, Job 19.26, 27. Mat.5.8. Heb. 12. 14. 1 Joh. 3.2. or Chriſt coming in glory, with comfort and joy, Mat. 16.27, 28.& 24.30. Acts 1.11. Rev. 1. 7. But the courſe of the context carrieth it to King Ezekiah, whom after the defeat of Sennacheribs forces, the perſons above deſcribed, v.15. (unto whom the Prophet now turneth his ſpeech) ſhould]behold, not dejected, and in a ſubmiſs and low manner ſtooping, and ſeeking to an inſolent tyrant, 2 King.18.14.ch.10.4.ver.7,8. nor in ſack-loth, and mourning weeds, as before in time of their diſtreſſe, Chap.37.2,3. but reſtored to his former ſtate and dignity, yea, raiſed up to a far greater degree of honour and magnificence, then he ever in any former time enjoyed, 2 Chr. 32. 22, 23, 27-29.

they ſhall behold] They, that is, thine eyes; (it is no change of the perſon, for the word is feminine, ſhall behold, or ſee, that is, viſit; 2 Sam.13.6. behold, would do better in the former branch; ſee, in this.

the land that is very far off]Heb. the land off far diſtances. Jer.8.19. that which ſome underſtand of Embaſſadors repairing to Jeruſalem out of countries far remote, 2 King.20.12,14.2 Chron.32.22 23.ch. 39.1,3. but that the text will not well bear. But the meaning is, ye ſhall not now remain mured up in Jeruſalem, or in any other place of defence, as formerly, not daring to ſtir out for fear of being inap-ped up and ſurpriſed by the enemy, ver.8. Lam.5.9. but ye ſhall be at full liberty to look abroad, and to travel ſafely and quietly all over your land, to the remoteſt parts of it, Pſalm 31.8. and 119. 45. Yet there want not thoſe who underſtand all this ſpoken, not to the juſt, before deſcribed; but to ſome great ungodly one, and in particular to Shebna, as telling him, that the day ſhould come, when he ſhould ſee his Soveraign, whom he now ſcorned and vilified, as a petty Prince, in regard of Sennacherib, (ſee ch.8.6.) in great ſtate and magnificence, when as himſelf ſhould be either exiled, or carried captive into a ſtrange country, as was alſo foretold of him, chap. 22. 18. But the former ſuiteth much better with the tenour of the Prophets ſpeech.

V.18. Thine heart ſhall meditate terrour: where is the Scribe? where is the receiver? where is he that counted the towers?] This ſome underſtand of their terrours and affrightments that they were in, while Sennacheribs forces were maſters of the field, and they were now p ſparing to fortifie the city againſt his approaches; as foretelling in what diſtractions they ſhould then be, for the preſent, chap.22.7 11.& 37.1,2. Others, of their calling to mind, afterward, and with ſome delight now conſidering, what fears they had formerly been poſſeſſed with, and what ſpeeches among thoſe diſtractions had fallen from them; or inſulting, as ſome think, over the enemy, now overthrown and diſperſed, and demanding of Sennacherib, what is now become of his great officers, that he made uſe of in his camp; and this ſeemeth to be not improbable. Though I do not concur with thoſe, who ſuppoſe this, and that of the Apoſtle, 1 Cor.1.20. to be of one and the ſame ſenſe; which to make good, the old Latine Tranſlation hath moſt unreaſonably ſtrayed here from the text.

where is the Scribe] The words, as ſome, of people full of diſtraction, asking where is this officer, and that officer, to look after his charge. See ch. 22.7-11. or, as other, demanding where the enemies officers now are. See ch.51.13. and thus far it is not unlike to that, 1 Cor.1.20. See ſomewhat the like alſo, ch.19.12.

The Scribe]of the Scribes office among the Jews, See chap.36.3. the old Latine renders it, the lettered, or learned man: as the word is uſed of Ezra, Ezra 7. 6. But it ſeems to have bin the title of ſome Officer in the Camp: ſome would have it to be one of the Counceil of War: Others, one that kept a record, and took account of the captives. I conceive it rather to be ſuch an Officer, as the Muſter-maſter is with us.

the receiver] Heb. the weigher: nor, as the old Latine; he that weigheth the words of the Law. But the tribute-gatherer, or the pay-maſter, ſo called, becauſe they both received money by weight, Gen. 22.16. Jer. 32. 9.

he that counted the towers] Or, counteth, or ſurveyeth, or ſurveyed: he that ſurveyed the towers, or other parts about the city, as ſome, how to make the city moſt defenſible, by ſlighting ſome of them, and ſtrengthning the reſt, ch. 22. 10. or, as others, rather, ſuch artiſts and engineers; or others, in the Aſſyrian Camp, as took notice of ſuch forts, as were to be aſſaulted, to conſider what courſes were to be taken for the more eaſie and ſpeedy ſurpriſal of them: as alſo, of what towers and galleries were to be raiſed and uſed for the taking of any fort or city: ſee on ch.26.1.v.20. For the old Latine tranſlator is here moſt ridiculous, rendring it, the teacher of little oxen; whereas the word ſignifieth, a great tower, or fort, a tower, or fort, from its greatneſs ſo termed: whence the diverſity of reading, 2 Sam.22.51.& Pſal.18.50. Howbeit, ſome underſtand all this, as the words of diſcontented perſons, deſpairing of any likelyhood or poſſibility, of maintaining a ſiege againſt Sennacheribs forces; there is neither order taken, nor proviſion made, for the defence of the city; nor ſouldiers to muſter, nor money to pay them, nor forts wherein to lodge them. But I concur rather with thoſe, that underſtand them of the Aſſyrian Officers.

V. 19. Thou ſhalt not ſee a fierce people; a people of a deeper ſpeech then thou canſt perceive; of a ſtammering tongue, that thou canſt not underſtand.] Or, as ſome, Look not upon ſuch a people; conſider not the Aſſyrians, what a fierce and rude people they are, as Shebna, and ſome others, tell you, whereby to affright you, as if you could not but fall into the hands of ſuch, and be at their mercy, if ye ſtood out againſt them. But the received reading agreeth better with the ſcope of the context; as promiſing deliverance from the Aſſyrians, and giving them aſſurance, that they ſhould not return to meet them again. ſee ch.38.6.

not ſee] Within the walls of Jeruſalem, ch.37.33. or, not ſee them again within thy land, after thou art once rid of them, as Exod.14. 13. thou ſhalt no more be vexed with ſuch cruel ſtrange people, they ſhall have no more acceſs to thee, ch.16.4.

fierce] As of a fierce countenance, Deut.28.50. Dan.8.23. yet ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks render it, a barbarous people, Pſ.114.1. by the change of a letter, the like whereunto they give inſtance of, in a word uſed for a chamber: and others of them deem it, a forrein term, of no family in their language.

of a deeper ſpeech then thou canſt perceive] Heb. of depths of lip from hearing; or more then to hear: depths or profoundities: as Prov.9. 18. depths, or profoundities of lip, for ſpeech or language, deep, profound, or not intelligible, as Ezek 3.5,6. lip, for language, as Gen.11. 1. Zeph.3.9. from hearing, that they cannot be heard or underſtood: of the phraſe, ſee on chap.23.1.& 28.20. to hear, for to underſtand: as ch.36.11. whence alſo it appeareth, that the Jewiſh people did not commonly underſtand the Syrian tongue, which bot h the Aſſyrians and the Chaldeans ordinarily uſed, Dan.2.4 the pronoun, though not amiſs ſupplyed, yet is not in the originall; ſo, Job 15, ver. 7.

of a ſtammering tongue]Or, ridiculous, or barbarous, rather: ſuch, ſay the Jewiſh Doctors here, as all languages are, beſides the Hebrew; as the Greeks had the like eſteem of all languages, ſave their own, Rom. 1. 14. yea, ſuch as any language ſeems to be unto him, that underſtandeth it not, 1 Cor. 14. 11. See ch. 28. 11. Deut.28. 49,50.

thou thou canſt not underſtand]Heb. whereof underſtanding is not: for there is a want, not of the pronoun only, as before, but of the relative alſo, as v. 1.11,20.

V.20. Look upon ZION, the city of our ſolemnities] See how ſafe, and whole, Jeruſalem is ſtill, notwithſtanding all the vain and preſumptuous vaunts and menaces of the inſolent enemy, that he would to thus, and thus, unto her, chap.10.11. ſo Pſal 48.12,13. walk round about Zion, and tell her towers; mark well her bulwarks, and her palaces: and ſee if any one of them be wanting, or any breach, or flaw, made in any one of them, for all the enemies might, multitude, and boaſtings, ch.37.33. See ver.16.

Zion] Jeruſalem, as ver. 5.

the city of our ſolemnities] Or, ſolemn aſſemblies, or meetings, which were there held. See chap.1.14.& 14.13.

thine eyes ſhall ſee Jeruſalem a quiet habitation] Free from thoſe diſturbances, wherewith ſhe was formerly diſquieted, Chap.30.17,18. Pſ.128.6.

a tabernacle that ſhall not be taken down]Or, removed, as ſome render it: the word is no where elſe found. But a learned Writer referre th it to an Ethiopick root, that ſignifieth to bear, as a beaſt doth man or burden, Mat.21.7. Mark 11.2,7. The city is compared to a Tabernacle, as ch.54. 2. yet not like to that Tabernacle made by Moſes, which was from time to time taken down, and removed from place to place; as they journied in the Wilderneſs, Numb. 4.5. and 10. 17. but as the Temple built by Solomon, that ſtood conſtantly firm and fixed, Pſ.78.69. a type of the ſafety and ſtability of the Church, Pſ.46.5.& 48.8.& 125.1. Mat.16.18.

not one of the ſtakes thereof ſhall ever be removed, nor ſhall any of the cords thereof be broken] No one tower, or palace, or part of it, ſhall be in the leaſt degree impaired. See above, Pſ.48.12,13. an alluſion to thoſe cords, wherewith the curtains of the tent, or pavilion, ſupported with a pole, pitched in the midſt of it, being faſtened unto pins, or ſtakes, driven into the ground, do keep them tight, and ſo help to uphold it, ch.54.2.

not one of the ſtakes thereof ſhall be removed] Or, no ſtake whereof ſhall be removed. Heb. the ſtakes thereof ſhall not go: the noun is ſingular, the verb plural; which juſtifies, not one, in our verſion. See Ch. 26.19. and to make to go, is to remove, Job 19.10. as, to go, here, to be removed, plucked up, and pulled out of its place; the poſſeſſive, for the relative, as v.21. Exod.18.20. Job 3.3. Pſ.11.4.

ſtake] Or, pinne: the word properly ſignifies a nail, or a pin, ſuch as we uſe to hang things on, chap.22.23, 25. Ezek. 15.3. then ſuch pins, or ſtakes, or what matter ſoever, as were uſed about tents, Exod.27 19. Judg.4.21.

for ever] As ch.13.20.& 25.8.

nor ſhall any of the cords thereof be broken]Or, and whoſe cords ſhall none of them be broken. Heb. and all the cords thereof ſhall not be broken: all not, for not any: as Ezek 18.21,24. See v.14.

V. 21. But there the glorious Lord will be unto us a place of broad rivers, and ſtreams; wherein ſhall go no Galley with oars, neither ſhall gallant ſhip paſs thereby] In this verſe and the next, the Prophet ſheweth by whoſe powerful ſupport and ſafeguard, the city ſhould attain and enjoy this conſtant and aſſured ſafety, by God alone, and his proviſion of it, Chap.26.1,3. Pſal.46.5.& 48.8. Zach.2.5. compared here to a broad river, that is of much uſe and ſtrength to a city; but withall, of ſo ſtiff and ſtrong a current: that neither ſhip or galley, of any enemy, ſhall be able, with help of wind, or oars, or both, to get up thereby to it, to moleſt or annoy it, and the Prophet ſeems to allude to, and meet with the conceit of thoſe, that thought meanly of Jeruſalem, becauſe it had no ſuch great river neer it, as Nineveh and Babylon had, which the Aſſyrians boaſted of, and to which he is compared, ch.8.7. or ſuch an one as Egypt had of Nilus, wherein they ſo much confided, Ezek.29.3. but alſnall rivelet, or two only; which though they might afford waterſufficiene for the city, Pſal.46.3, 4. Yet they had no great breadth of channel, to bear any great veſſel, or raiſe with any ſtrong ſtream, nor could afford much ſtrength or defence to the city. See Chap.8.6. But God, ſaith the Prophet, ſhall inſtead of ſuch a river, as Euphrates, or Nilus, afford more ſecurity and ſafety unto us, then any ſuch river did, or could do unto them; he will himſelf be ſuch a river to us, ſo broad, and of ſo ſtrong a ſtream, as neither the King of Aſſyria, nor any other enemy ſhall be able to paſs. See Ezek. 47.5. or, as ſome expound it, he will make this city and land as Meſopotamia, that was environed with the branches of the one, as Egypt that was fenced and fed, and enriched with the ſtreams of the other.

there the glorious Lord will be unto us] Or, as ſome render it, the Lord will be, (or, will appear, will ſhew himſelf) glorious, or magnificent for us; becauſe the Epithet is not wont to go before his maſter, or owner, in the Hebrew: or, will do gallantly for us; for ſo the word is afterward here rendred, to wit, in the overthrow of our enemies.

a place of broad rivers and ſtreams] Or, as ſome, in place, that is, inſtead of ſuch rivers and ſtreams as Eccl. 3.17. a defect of the copulative, as Ch.31.13. Heb. broad, of hands, or ſpaces; as the word is uſed, ch.22.18. Pſ.104.25.

wherein ſhall go no vaſſey with oars] Heb. no ſhip of oar ſhall go in it, Or the ſyntax, ſee on v.20. ſhip or oar, for, bark, veſſel, or galley, rowed with oars. See Ezek.27.5,6,26,29. ſhall go, that is, paſſe: as Pſ.104.26. there go the ſhips.

nor gallant ſhip] The term given before to God. God, as he hath done gallantly for us, in our preſent delivery; ſo he will for the future, ſo engage himſelf for our ſafety, that no enemy of what power ſoever, ſhall be able to approach us, to diſturb our peace, Pſ.91.4. 9, 10.

V. 22. For the Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our Law-giver, the Lord is our King, he will ſave us] God alone hath intereſt in us; to him alone we belong; and ſo long as we continue loyal to him, our Soveraign, and walk according to the Laws, by him preſcribed us, we ſhall be ſure of his protection and ſafeguard, Deut. 26. 17-19. & 30.19,20.& 33.12,26-29. Pſ.81.8,9; 13-15. ch.48.17-19.

our Judge] To right us againſt thoſe that wrong us, Pſal.7.6,8, 11.& 9.4.& 26.1.& 75.7.& 94.2. he ſeems to have ſome reference to thoſe Judges, that God raiſed up for the reſcuing of his people out of the hands of their oppreſſors, Judg. 2. 16. Acts 13.20.

our Law-giver] Heb. ſtatute-maker, Gen.49.10. a title given to God more eſpecially, in regard of his people, unto whom he had preſcribed ſuch ſtatutes and ordinances, as he had not to any other, Pſ. 147. 19.20. See Deut. 33.2, 21. Jam. 4. 12. of the term, ſee chap. 10.1.

our King] He, and not the Aſſyrian, who yet hath formerly tyrannized over us, ch.26.13. and would ſtill ſo do. See Pſ.44.4.& 74.12. & 89.18.

he will ſave us] As a Soveraign protecteth his ſubjects, that continue loyal to him, and live according to his Laws, Pſ.7. 8.& 72.4, 12-14. See ch.25.9.

V. 23. Thy tacklings are looſed; they could not well ſtrengthen their maſt; they could not ſpread the ſail] The Prophet here returneth again, to foretel the defeat given to the Aſſyrian forces; whereof ſomewhat before, v.3. addreſſing his ſpeech unto them, or to Sennacherib their chief Commander, and he compares his vaſt army, here, to a great gallioun, in diſtreſs at ſea, and ſo inceſſantly purſued and driven with furious blaſts of boiſterous winds, that the is not able to bear ſail, or keep up her maſt, and cannot therefore but miſcarry: and this reſemblance he may the rather ſeem to have made choice of, becauſe he had ſpoken before of goodly great ſhips, with top and top gallant, v.21. See ch.2.16. So that it is as if he had ſaid, Your ſhipping, O Aſſyrians, is, or ſhall be, wrecked; ye have miſcarried, or ſhall miſcarry, as by ſhipwrack. See Pſalm 48.7.

Thy tacklings are looſed]So the old Latine, and divers other latet verſions; but that ſignification of the verb here uſed, is queſtioned; nor is there any place produced, where it is ſo uſed. The margent hath it; They have forſaken thy tackings; and ſo ſome other, they ſhall leave thy tackl ags, or thy tackings ſhall be left; they ſhall be let go, and give over, by thoſe that ſhould manage them; an argument of evident danger, and great likelyhood of wrack approaching, when the marriners, as deſpairing of ſafety, give over the managing of their tackle, and leave the ſhip, to ſhift, as it may, for it ſelf. Act 27.30,40. And the word here uſed, doth not unuſually ſignifie ſo to leave, or give over, Exod.23.11. Judg.6.13.1 Sam. 10. 2. Pſal.27.9. Prov.17.14. Chap.2.6. But ſome other render it, with the ancient Greek, Thy tackings are ſplit or broken; or, that which followeth thereupon, they are diſpated, driven to and fro with the wind, or thrown about againſt the ſhip, as they conceive the word to be uſed. Chap.32.14. Ezek.31.12. See ch. 16.8. which way ſoever we take it, it ſeemeth oppoſed to that which he had ſaid before of the city, compared to a tent, that no ſtake, or cord of it, ſhould be ſtirred, verſe 20. whereas of the enemies army, compared to a ſhip on the other ſide, he ſaith, that no maſt or tackle of it ſhould hold. For I cannot accord with thoſe, that of tent, or pavilion, expound this whole paſſage: by maſt, in the next branch, underſtanding the pole pitched in the midſt, to bear it up. See ch.30.17. and much leſs with that, which a learned Antiquitor exhibiteth, who renders it, as ſpoken to Sion, Thy ſorrows are leſt: thou haſt no longer cauſe to be ſorry: that the word ſignifies as well pains, as cords, Job 21.17. Pſ. 18.4.& 116.3. is undoubted; but how that ſuiteth here, appeareth not.

they could not well ſtrengthen their maſts] They, that is, the tackings, which failing, the maſt cannot ſtand.

well] Heb. ſay ſome, the ſtrightneſs of the maſt: that is, they could not keep the maſt upright: ſuppoſing the word here uſed, to be a noun ſubſtantive; but it is hard to find a place where it is ſo uſed. Others make it not a noun, but an adjective and render it, they could not hold, or keep the maſt ſtraight, or upright: and the word indeed ſeems ſo to be taken, Gen.42.11,19. Prov.15.7. Eccl.8. 10. nor do they miſs of the true ſenſe of the place, that here ſo underſtand it. Yet, becauſe (as was intimated on ver. 21.) the adject ve is ſeldome ſet before it's ſubſtantive, in Hebrew: it is conceived rather to be an adverb, here, as our Engliſh Tranſlators took it, when they rendred it, well: as alſo, it oft eſſe-where ſignifies well, or right, Exod. 10.29. 1 Kings 7.9. Ier.8.6. & 23. 10. for, as for the reſt, it would have it a note of ſimilitude, thought I be commonly ſo uſed, 1 Sam. 7.9.11 Pſ.1.4. Yet that hath no place here; as little in mine apprehention that, which the ſo-ſeven-toned learned Writer ſug geſteth, the baſis of the maſt, that is, ſaith he, of th. ſtandard, whereon the banner was to be diſplayed in the field; which God ſhould cauſe ſuffer to be fixed, much leſs the banner to be upon it diſplayed: but the Prophet ſeemeth to be here in a diverſe reſemblance could not ſtrengthen]Heb. they ſhall not ſtor, they could not, or they ſhall not be able to ſtrengthen, or hold faſt, or keep from: the indicative form, in a potential notion: as Num.23.10 Deut.4.28. Neh. 6.6. Job 9.3.& 14.4. Eſt.5.14. ch.10.19.& 26.18. Dan.3.15. with 17. ſo alſo in the next branch.

they could not ſpread their ſail]Heb. the ſign, or ſtag, or enſign, as the word moſt commonly ſignifies, and ſo divers Interpreters, after the old Latine, here render it; underſtanding the word, ſome, of a ſtag, ſet on the top of a tent, or pavilion, to ſhew whom it belongeth to: Others, of the the banner diſplayed in fight in the field: Others, of the ſtag on the top of the maſt of a ſhip, which none of them, ſeem to fit well here. And others, therefore, laſtly, after the Chaldee Paraphraſt, with the Jewiſh Commenters, render it, as ours, here, the fail: the meaning of the words being, that their tackle was all so spilt, and torn, and dissipated, as well those that should keep the mast upright and steady, as those also, that should hold and guide the sail; that neither mast nor sail could do them any service; and their ship therefore destitute of all such necessary furniture, must needs be swallowed up of the Sea.

Then is the prey of the great spoyl divided] Or, then shall the prey (as Gen. 49.27.) of a great spoyl be divided. The spoil of the Assyrians Camp, after the defeat given them, and their sudden flight thereupon, ch. 32.8, 9. divided among the Jewish people, as the Syrians, 2 King. 7.16. and of those of Moab and Ammon, 2 Chr. 20.25. and, as after a wrack of some great carvel, or carick, laden with abundance of rich commodities, the coasting people are wont to seize on such of them: as on drift, some floating to the shore: see v. 4.

prey of a great spoil] Or, as some of the Jewish Criticks, prey, and much spoil, or spoil in abundance: see ch. 9.7. a defect of the copulative: as ch. 3.1. See 2 Chro. 28.8.

the lame take the prey] Or, shall take the prey. Heb. prey, or prey on the prey, as ch. 10.6. Ezek. 38.12, 13. the lame shall do as the lepers did, 2 Kings 7. 8. The weakest and most impotent shall be able enough to make spoil of them; as the Jebusites bragged that they could do with David and his, 2 Sam. 5.6, 8. or, shall among the rest, seize on the prey, when the enemy is fled and gone, Pl. 68.12. ch. 37. v. 36, 37.

V. 24. And the Inhabitant shall not say, I am sick] No one Inhabitant of Jerusalem, shall have cause to complain of any infirmity, contracted by the siege or invasion of Sennacherib; their health, or ability of body, shall not (as by long and straight sieges is usual) be in the least degree impaired: See Psal. 105.37. Others, the weak shall take heart; or, they shall have incolumity, health and strength, restored to them, Psalm 103.3. chap. 35.6. But the former is, I take it, more agreeable to the scope and drift of the Prophets discourse.

the inhabitant] To wit of Jerusalem, v. 20. inhabitant, for inhabitants: as Chap. 5.3. Yet here rather distributively, then collectively, as there the inhabitant shall not say, for no inhabitant shall say: see v. 21.

I am sick] As 1 Sam. 30.13. or feel pain: as Prov. 23.35. or am weak: as Judg. 16.7, 11.

The People that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity] Or, the People dwelling therein, being discharged of iniquity: for so it runneth word for word in the Hebrew. Discharged, or disburdened of iniquity: as Psalm 32.1. or, as it may well be rendred, having iniquity taken off them; or, from them, 2 Sam. 12.13. Psalm 103.12. being by the hand of God upon them, refined and reformed; and God, upon their repentance, now reconciled unto them, Chap. 1. 25. 27. and his wrath, by their sinnes formerly incensed, remitted wholly, and removed, ch. 38.27. & 43.25. & 54.7-10. & 57.17, 18. Jer. 31.34. a defect of the pronoun: as ch. 13.15.22.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Vers. 1. Come neer, ye nations, to heare, and hearken, ye people; let the earth hear, and all that is therein, the world and all things, that come forth of it] Whether this Chapter, and the next, belong to the Prophecy, or Sermon, recorded in the foregoing Chapter; as some would have it, or contain another several one, is not altogether so certain. Yet the former seems not improbable. Howsoever, this Chapter, for the subject matter of it, agreeth much with Chap. 24. and the next, with Chap. 25, this being a prophecy of the destruction of the enemies of Gods people: the next, of the restitution of the Church. And this he maketh entrance into, by a summons of all Nations, yea, of all creatures: as Chap. 1.2. to take notice of, and consider, what he was about to do. as with one Nation before, ch. 33.13. for now to all of them that had bin enemies to his people, implying thereby, that what was here denounced, did nearly concern them all, and the several places of their abode.

all that is therein] Heb. the fulnesse thereof: as chap. 42.10. Psal. 24.1.

the world] The habitable world: as Mar. 16.15. or, the world that yeeldeth ought (as the word properly importeth) for the food, and use of man or beast, opposed to the waste that is altogether barren, and devoid of ought, such as that, Jer. 17.6.

all things that come forth of it] Heb. all the off-springs, or proceeds of it, ch. 22.24, & 42.5.

V. 2. For the indignation of the Lord is upon all nations, and his fury upon all their armies] Or, will be against: as Gen. 40.2. & 41.10. God intendeth to proceed in wrath and vengeance against all those Nations, that had bin enemies to his people, tor, as some, all the wicked of the world, in generall. But these seems to enlarge it over-much; as well, as those on the other side to over-narrow it, that restrain it to the King of Assyria, and his subjects or adiocates. See ch. 24.1. & 26.21. Joel 3.2. v. 8.

indignation] Or, boyling wrath; for the word properly signifieth a bubble. Hos. 10.7. (where it seems not so well rendred scum: froth, were better there, then scum-for which another word is, Ezek. 24. 6, 11. Such as are wont to rise on the top of the water, when the pot boileth upon the fire, ch. 64. 2.

fury] Or, fervent wrath, from a word, that signifieth heat. Pl. 19. 5. & 39.3. whence the sun is so termed: ch. 24.24.

all their armies] Heb. each army of them, that have waged or do wage war against his people. See ch. 24.21.

he hath utterly destroyed them, and hath delivered them to the slaughter] or, he will utterly destroy them, (make an anathema of them. Josh. 6.17, 21. See ver. 5.) and will deliver them (Heb. give them, as Jer. 15.9. unto slaughter. He hath passed such a doom of destruction upon them, as sure to be put in Execution, as if it were executed already. ch. 14.26, 27. Joh. 3.18.

V. 3. Their slain also shall be cast out] To be devoured by birds and beasts, (the multitude of the slain being such, that they shall want either person to bury them, or places to bury them in; or, people in detestation of them, casting their corps out to lye and rot above-ground, Jer. 7.33, 34. & 22.19.) as themselves had formerly dealt with Gods people, Pl. 79.2, 3. Jer. 34.20.

and their stink shall come up out of their carcasses] Heb. and their carcasses, the stink of them shall ascend, or go up: a nominative put absolutely: as Psal. 18.31. & 104.17. See Exod 8.14. ch. 66.24. Amos 4.10. Joel 2.20.

and the mountains shall be melted with their blood] They shall run down with streams of blood, as with water, chap. 30.25. as if they were even dissolved into blood. See chap. 64.2, 3. nor need we, with some Interpreters, by mountains, understand here heaps of carcasses, piled up like hills, as those that Sampson made of the Philistines, Judg. 15.16. It is an hyperbolical form of speech, used in like manner of great plenty, of any thing coming from the mountains, and the plants there growing, or the beasts there grazing. So, the hills shall flow with milk, Joel 3.18. and, the hils shall melt with wine, Amos 9.13.

V. 4. And all the host of heaven shall be dissolved, and the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll, and all their host shall fall down: as a leafe falleth from the vine, and as a falling fig from the fig tree] So great shall their fear and terrour be, and so strange and dreadful the judgments of God inflicted upon them, that the whole frame of the creature shall seem to be dissolved, and the world to be at an end. See the like, ch. 13.10, 13. & 24.21. Rev. 6.13, 14. Yet neither do I concur with those, that understand these words of the general dooms-day, though such things then shall be, 2 Pet. 3.10, 11. no more then those in the Revelations are to be so understood; many things, in the course of the context, both there, and here, being, that they cannot so be meant, and much lesse with those, who suppose no more to be meant, then the thickning and darkning of the ayr, by such abundance of foggy vapours and exhalations, ascending from the gore-blood and putrified carcasses, and the production of divers meteors, consisting of such, that shoot to and fro, like stars, and fall at length to the ground. The one go to far, and the other fall far too short. It is the manner of Gods Prophets, in their descriptions of some extraordinary judgment, to set it forth in such colours, as if they were deciphering the face of that last universal judgment, whereof, such are, in some sort, resemblances and fore-runners. See Dan. 7.9, 10. Joel 3.12-16. as, on the other side, the restitution of Gods people after some grievous calamity, and long affliction, is wont to be shadowed and set forth in such terms, as have caused many to be mistaken in them, conceiving no other, then the general resurrection, at the last day, to be therein described. See Chap. 26.19. Ezek. 37.2, 13. Dan. 12.1, 2.

shall be dissolved] Heb. pine, or waste away, Lev. 26.39. Ezek. 24.23. & 33.10. Zach. 14.12. See ch. 3.24. & 5.24. the verb is plural, because the noun is collective. See 2 Pet. 3.10.

rolled up as a scrole] Heb. as a book. and so Rev. 6.14. alluding to such books, as were then in use, called rolles, or volums. See Chap. 8.1. so that as it could not be seen what was written in those books, when they were so rolled up; no more should the stars now, as they might formerly, when the heaven was spread abroad, Psalm 104.2.

their host] The Stars, Rev. 6.13.

a leaf falleth] Or, as leaves fading, fall: as ch. 64.6. Jer. 8.13. for so the word properly importeth; as the leaves of a vine, when they are withered fall. See ch. 1.30. & 28.1.

as a falling fig] The like defect of the substantive, see ch. 28.4. where a fading, is for, a fading plant: such green figs as come first; but are shed after a while, when others begin to put forth. See Rev. 6. 13. The old Latine, and some of our versions supply leafe; or leaves, from the former branch, but the gender is feminine, which help to strengthen (as also doth that of the Evangelist) the former, but some would have it taken neutrally, as is the feminine oft in Hebrew, and then it may include both.

V. 5. For my sword shall be bathed in heaven] A description of the great slaughter that shall be made, ver. 2. and the persons that shall be slaughtered.

my sword] Spoken in the person of God: his sword, for his power manifested in the execution of justice, Deut. 32.41. Jer. 50.35-37. Ezek. 21.3, 9.

bathed] Embrued in blood: as Jer. 46.10. Heb. drunk: as Rev. 17.6. or soaked, see v. 7. or satisfied: as Pl. 36.8. Rev. 7.19. Jer. 31.14, 23. v. 6. ig in heaven] According to a decree past concerning it in heaven, Pl. 119.89. See v. 16. Though some of the Jewish Commenters read it, my sword in heaven, or, that is in heaven, shall be made drunk. Which is yet more probable, then what another of them hath, of slaying the great Potentates first, that sit aloft, as in heaven, chap. 14. 13, 14. and after that, the inferiour ones, that sit tar below them, as on the ground, Psal. 113.7, 8. See chap. 24. 21. or, what some of our, following the old Latine, that readeth the words in the time past, My sword hath begun to rage, as drunken men use to do, Prov. 20.1. in heaven, that is, in my Church, among mine own people, Ezek. 9.6. 1 Pet. 4.17. (tyled heaven in Scripture, Rev. 4.1. & 12. 1. and thence shall descend to those without the Church, called the earth, Rev. 12.12. See Jer. 25.15, 16, 18, 29.

behold it shall come down upon Idumea, and upon the people of my curse, to judgment] The people and persons, whom this sword is to make slaughter of, are more specially the Edomites, and together with them, such other nations, as were destinated to destruction.

come down] From heaven: as ch. 30.30. Rom. 1.18.

upon] come down upon, for, coming down light upon: as Exod. 19.20. The Lord descended upon the Mount, for descending, abode on it. Of which manner of speech, see ch. 13.12. & 38.17.

Idumea] Heb. Edom, that is, Esau. See Gen 25.30. & 36.8. here put for his posterity, and their country. See ch. 21.11. as the Meadites, ch. 25.10. so hereand Chap. 63, 1. the Edomites are marked out, as two of the principal enemies of Gods people. See Pl. 137.7 Lam. 4.21.

and upon] Or, even upon: as Ezra 1.8. if the Edomites be in this latter branch also intended. See v. 6.

the people of my curse] Heb. cherem, Josh. 6.17. Greek, anathema, 1 Cor. 16.22. it signifies a thing devoted to destruction, Deut. 7.26, 27. See v. 2.

V. 6. The sword of the Lord is filled with blood, it is made fat with fatnesse] An intimation of a very great slaughter.

sword of the Lord] As Jer. 47.6. See ver. 5.

is filled] Or, shall be filled with blood, shall drink its fill of blood, v. 5. ch. 15.9.

it is made fat with fatnesse] Or, it shall be fatted with fat; it shall eat abundance of fatta resemblance taken from some greedy glutton or other ravenous creature, that hath gotten, and eaten his, or its fill of fat beasts.

and with the blood of lambs and goats, with the fat of the kidneys of rams] Or, even with, &c. for he relateth more particularly what blood, and fat, before, he meant.

of lambs, goats, and rams] Men of all estates and ranks: but these seem here mentioned, as of the meaner sort; for the greater sort followeth, ver. 7. and it seems somewhat overnice, that some have of the common people, Priests, and wealthy ones. Howbeit, it may well be questioned, whether the word carim, translated lambs, might not rather be rendred, bell-wethers: as it is by some, not amisse rendred, leaders of the flock, or sheep, 1 Sam. 15.9. to the souldiery especially, the words seem to have reference: as Ezek. 39. 18. & Rev. 19.18. and to those, that had some command among them. See on ch. 16.1.

fat of the kidneyes] Which they lye enwrapt in, Levit. 3.8. Deut. 32.14.

for the Lord hath a sacrifice in Bozrah, and a great slaughter in the land of Idumea] What he called a slaughter before, ver. 2. and hereafter again, he now calleth a sacrifice. For the word signifieth as well to slay, as to sacrifice, Gen 31.54. 1 Sam. 28.24. 1 King. 1.9, 19. However, there seems an allusion here, to the beasts offered in sacrifice, whose blood, and fat, was reserved, as for God, unto whom they were sacrificed, Levit. 7.23-27. See ch. 1.11. Deut. 32. 38. & to those solemnities, in which so great abundance of them was slain, 1 Kings 8.63. 2 Chr 29.31-35. & 30.24. to which some also add, as implying what Gods vengeance executed on his enemies, and on the enemies of his people, is as pleasing to him, as any sacrifice whatsoever, ch. 1. 24. Jer. 46.10.

Bozrah] The Edomites chief city, chap. 63. 1. Jer. 49.13. 22. so termed, not, as the Greeks, who by an invertion of the letters, call it, Byrsa, as if it had its name, from an ox hide, that should encompass the ground it flood on, being cut out into thongs; (for the word is the same, with the name of that place, of which they tell us such a tale,) but from the fortifications and strength of it, bearing that name, as the word importeth, chap. 20. 15. & 25.2. & 27. 10.

Idumea] As v. 5.

V. 7. And the unicorns shall come down with them, and the bullocks with the bulls] The great Potentates, and mighty Commanders, by these greater cattle, and wilde-beasts, resembled, shall be pulled down, and slain, as well as the rest, Psalm 22.21. Jer. 50.27. Rev. 19.18.

unicorns] Not such horned creatures like horses, as our Painters usually portray, or wilde asses, which some tell us of, with one strait horn in the fore-head. Whereof, see Aristotle, in his history of living creatures, l. 2. c. 1. Elian, l. 4. c. 52. & l. 16. c. 20. & Pliny, l. 8. c. 21. & l. 11. c. 37. for such in these days, no where found, are deservedly deemed figments: and the horns we have, called thi- ceras horns; are well known to be the horns, not of land beasts, but of sea creatures; one, the principal of them, kept, as a royal monument with us, taken out of the head of a vast-bodied creature, found dead, and floting in the Sea; another of less note, broken off from the head of the like sea-creature, that had run it thorow the ships timber, and there left it behind her; but as some guess the rhinoceros, a vast beast, for shape, not unlike to the Elephant, whom he is reported to fight with, but instead of his trunk, furnished and armed with an horn, of no great length, rising from his nose, as engrafted on it, (whence he is so termed) and slanting somewhat back toward the head of the beast; whereof cups are made, and set in silver of no great size, nor slightly esteemed only for rarity: and this way most of our Interpreters go; from whom our margent here rendreth it, rhinoceroles. But other stick at its, for two reasons especially: First, because this beast is not found, but in India, and in the remotest parts thereof: nor is it likely, that it was commonly known among the Jews, as this creature appeareth to have been, by the frequent mention of it, Num. 23.22. Deut. 33.17. Job 39.9, 10. Psalm 22.21. & 29.6. & 92.10. and that bred also with them, as may seem by Psalm 29.6. and again because, (to let pass what is said of his nature, but horns, Deut. 33.17.) the beast is mentioned; is elsewhere spoken of, as having goodly, lofty, and stately horns, Deut. 33.17. Psalm 92.10. which of the Rhinoceros cannot be well said. Some, therefore of the Jewish Writers, suppose it to be that, which the Latines term Bubalus, the Italians, Bufalus: with us, some a bufale, some a buffes from whom; again, some of ours, somewhat dissenting suppose it rather to be that kind of wilde ox, which the Latine Writers call Pyrus, partly, because they find this in Scripture joyned commonly with oxen, and bulls, whereby they conceive it to be some beast of that kind, Deut. 33.17. Psal. 22.12, 21. & 29.6. and partly, because that, as this is of special note for strength, Num 23.22. for horns, Psal. 92.10. and for untameable fierceneſſe, Iob 39.9, 10. so these, are all reported also to be in the thrus eminent. For besides his remarkable strength, and bigness, wherein some of them are reported not to come much short of elephants; his horns are said to be so large, that drinking cups, & vessels rather, of great capacity are made of them; and withal, his untameable fierceneſs to be such, that being taken in pits, they will be slain sooner, then mastered; and though coming into mens hands very young, they will rather be starved, then tamed. See Cesar of the French war, l. 6. & Pliny, l. 8. c. 15. & l. 21. c. 9. but this of the thrus, and that former of the Bubalus, may well be reconciled, if we shall observe what Pliny inform us, that the name Bubalus was among the common sort of people, given to the thrus, even in his dayes. See on ch. 51. 20.

come down] An allusion to beasts struck down, and laid along by the hand of the huntsman or the butcher.

with them] Together with the meaner sort, mentioned v. 6. See Psl. 68.30.

bulls] The word is used for such as are of most excellency and eminency in their kind, whether of horse, Heeds, as we term them; & so Iudg. 5.22. Ier. 8.16. & 47.3. or, neat, bulls, and so heretas also, Psalm 22.12. & 59.13. & 68.30. Ier. 50.11.

and their land shall be soaked with blood, and the dust thereof made fat with fatnesse] That which was before said of the sword, employed in the slaughtering of them, verse 5. 6. is here said of the ground, receiving the blood, and the fat of the slaughtered. See verse 5.

their land] The Edomit. s Country, verse 6.

soaked] Heb. drunken, saith our margent: but the word is used for watering, in a plentiful manner, Psalm 65.10. Prov. 11.25. Chap. 55.10. and 58.11. watered with abundance thereof, as with water.

the dust thereof] Heb their dust: as, their land.

made fat with fatnesse] Cloyed, and thickned with fat, See verse 6.

V. 8. For it is the day of the Lords vengeance, and the yeer of recompences for the controversie of Zion] It is the time that God hath appointed for the righting and avenging of wrongs done by them, to his people.

the day of the Lords vengeance] So ch. 63.4. for they strain the words exceeding far, or pervert it rather to a clean contrary sense, that would have it found, nothing but matter of love, and kind affection and retribution of good in lieu of evils and afflictions, formerly sustained, see ch. 61.2.

the yeer of recompences] Or, retributions; as, the days of retribution, Hos. 9.7. taken in the worse sense, for retribution of penalty, for wrong done: as chap. 35.4 & 59.18. Ier. 51.56.

for the controversie of Zion] The controversie that he hath against your for the wrongs that ye have done her, as, the quarel of my covenant, Levit. 26.25. for the quarel that I have against you, for the breach of Covenants, Zion, for Jerusalem: as ch. 1.8. and Jerusalem, for the whole State of Judah, ch. 33.20. whereunto the Edomite had from time to time been very injurious, and done them much mischief, Psalm 137.11. Lam. 4.22. Ezek. 25.12. Amos 1.11. Obad. 10. See ch. 45.24, 25 & 47.3, 6. Mic. 7.9, 10.

V. 9. And the streams thereof shall be turned into pitch; and the dust thereof into brimstone, and the land thereof shall become burning pitch] A rhetorical description of extream devastation; in way of allusion allusion to the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, Gen. 19. 24. Deut. 29. 23. Rev. 19. 20. & 20. 10.

V. 10. It shall not be quenched night nor day, the smoak of it shall go up for ever] This devastation of Idumea shall last long, as of cities burned down, the smoke, embers, and ashes, do a long time continue. Sec Jer. 7. 20. Rev. 14. 11. & 18. 18. & 19. 3.

from generation to generation, shall it lie waste] That is, for many generations. See v. 17.

it shall lye waste] Heb. be wasted: as chap. 60. 11. shall be opened, for, shall stand open; and Neh. 1. 3. is broken, and are burnt, for, continue broken and burnt.

none shall pass through it, for ever and ever] Heb. ever & ever. See the like note of extream desolation, Chapter 60. 15. Jerem. 9. 10, 12.

V. 11. The cormorant and the bittern shall possesse it; the owl also, and the raven shall dwell in it] Such creatures, only, as haunt waste places, shall be, and abide there. See the like, ch. 13. 18-22. & 14. 23. Zeph. 2. 13, 14. Rev. 18. 2.

cormorant] Or, as some, the Pellicane; it is reckoned among the unclean birds, Deut. 14. 17. Levit. 11. 18. and noted for one, that keepeth in waste places, Pf. 102. 6. Zeph. 2. 14. It seems, to be a Water-fowl, and is supposed to be so termed, for swallowing down fish, shell fish especially, till by the heat of his gullet, or stomack, being in a manner concocted and made to open, he then casts up again, and so picks the fish out of the shell. Aristotle, history of living creatures, l. 9. c. 10. Pliny, l. 10. c. 40. Tully, of the Deity, l. 1.

possesse it] So, he will make it a possession, ch. 14. 23.

the owl] An unclean fowl, Levit. 11. 17. Deut. 14. 16. So called, because it shunneth the clear day-light, and flyeth abroad, in the evening, or twilight; as the adulterer doth, Job 24. 15. it is rendred, the great owl, in Levit. & Deut. See v. 12.

raven] An unclean fowl also, Lev. 11. 15. Deut. 14. 14. that feedeth upon carcasses and carrion, Prov. 30. 17. Rev. 19. 17, 18.

dwell] Instead of the former Inhabitants, ch. 13. 21.

and he shall stretch out upon it, the line of confusion, and the stone of emptiness] He shall by line and level, be designed and laid out, to be an horrible desolation, and a waste wilderness: and in vain therefore for them, to attempt the restoring of it again, Mal. 1. 4. a metaphor taken from the manner of Masons and Workmen, who when they are to take down some part of a building, are wont, by line and level, to mark out how far, or how much of it, is to be pulled down. See the like, 1 King. 21. 13. Lam. 3. 8.

he shall] God shall, or, taking the word indefinitely, such a line shall be stretched out upon it: as ch. 22. 8. & 33. 1.

stones] Or, plummet, or, level, as we call it, from the Latine, Libella, a stone, plummet, or other weighty thing, hanging on the line, or cord, to keep it tight and strait, Zech. 4. 10. See also, ch. 28. 17. & Amos 7. 7, 8.

confusion and emptinesse] The words are the same, used of that confused and formless shape of the lower part of the world, in its first production, Gen. 1. 2. See ch. 24. 10. Jer. 4. 23.

V. 12. They shall call the Nobles thereof to the Kingdom, but they shall not be there, and all their Princes shall be nothing] There shall be none of their Nobles or Princes left, to take the Government upon them, if it were offered unto them. See ch. 3. 6.

They shall call, the Nobles thereof to the Kingdom] The particle to, is not in the text, and some therefore read it, The Kingdom shall call the Nobles thereof; to wit, to afford conduct, or defence to them: but the noun, and the verb, so joyned, agree neither in number, nor person, and that particle is oft wanting, ch. 23. 5. Pf. 45. 7. Hoiwbeit, the like irregular syntax is in the next verse. And a learned Writer renders it, The Nobles thereof shall call for a Kingdom, when there is none there; that they might, under a King, enjoy their honours and places: so is the copulative used, Jer. 34. 1. Nch. 2. 13. Job 21. 22. 34.

nobles] The word properly signifies white ones, Eccl. 10. 17. Jer. 27. 20. so called, because such are wont to go in white, that is, fair, goodly, and gorgeous apparel, Eccl. 9. 8. Luk. 7. 25. Rev. 3. 4. & 7. 9, 13, 14.

and] Or, as some, according to that latter reading, but: as ch. 29. 13.

nothing] As chap. 40. 17. & 41. 12. or, none: as Amos 6. 10. 2 Sam. 9. 3.

V. 13. And thorns shall come up in her Palaces, briers and brambles in the fortresses thereof] As in the places where such buildings formerly stood, when they ly ruined, is wont to be, chap. 32. 13, 14.

And thorns shall come up] Or, thorns also: as ch. 32. 7. Some render it, a multitude of thorns, because the noun is plural and masculine; the verb singular and feminine.

in her palaces] The particle in, is wanting: as chap. 26. 8. and 28. 7.

And it shall be an habitation of dragons] Ch. 13. 22. & 35. 7. Jer. 9. 10, 22. & 49. 33. & 51. 37. noted for abode in wastes, Job 30. 29. Mal. 1. 3. of the word, see ch. 27. 1.

and a court for owls] As if he had said, owls shall keep court there, alluding to the courts, that were usually before great mens houses, 2 King. 20. 4. See ch. 35. 7.

owls] Or, ostriches, as some would have it, see Lam. 4. 3. Heb. daughters of the owl, as it is commonly almost, generally fyled: as Levit. 11. 16. Deut. 14. 15. and elsewhere: it may be, because less then those other kinds, mentioned, ver. 13, 14, 15. This, and the Tanain, in the branch next before, are found joyned together, ch. 43. 20. as creatures, both abiding ordinarily in the Wildernesse.

V. 14. The wild beasts of the desert, shall also meet with the wild beasts of the Iland] Heb. Zijim, and Ijim: of which, see chap. 13. 21, 22.

and the satyre shall cry to his fellow] Or, his mate, v. 15. one to another: as Gen. 31. 32, 49. See ch. 13. 21.

the scrich-owl also shall rest there, and find for her self a place of rest] There being no body to disturb her, chap. 17. 2. Jer. 7. 33.

scrich-owl] Or, night-raven: our margeat, night monster; some of the Iewish Doctors would have it to be a Camelion, that liveth by the ayr: Others of them, an evil spirit, that haunteth waste places (Mat. 12. 43.) and our old Latine rendreth it Lamia, fome what to that purpose; but the doting Talmudists tell us, that it is the name of Adam's first wife, made of the same mould with him; before Eva, Gen. 1. 27. who because she would not be ruled by him, ran away from him, and became an evil spirit; whereupon also they write on a parchment, which they fasten over the door of the new married couple, Adam Evah, aut Lilit. The word is no where else found in Scripture: it seems, by the name, to be some night bird, for as another of the like kind, ver. 11. was so called of the evening, so is this, as being a night-haunter, of the night.

rest] Or, rest her. Heb. make to rest; or, place her rest: the word is in like manner used, ch. 51. 4. Jer. 31. 4.

a place of rest] Heb. rest, simply: as Gen. 8. 9.

V. 15. There shall the great owl make her nest, and lay, and hatch, and gather under her shadow] What creature this should be (the word being no where else read) the Jewish Doctors agree not: some of them would have it the same with that rendred a bittern, ver. 11. (concerning which, see on chap. 14. 23.) because the names differ but in a letter; and that such, as enterchangeth in Chaldee forms, especially, oft with the other. But other of them, deny that, and say it is another kind of bird: nor is it probable, that the Prophet should mention the same twice. Our old Latine, following the Greek rendreth it, an hedge-hog: some other, an owsel, or her fellatriches, supposed, by some, to be in Latine, called merula. The word having no known stem, or stock, it is hard given any certain, sentence of it: for whereas some would have it so termed, of stepping, or hoping, Cant. 2. 8. the radical letters agree not, they differ as much, as ox, bully; and ox then: Howbeit, in the Arabick, the word of leaping, or skipping, is said to be so written, as this here, with ox: whence, in Avicenna, is found the name of a serpent, so called, because it is wont to spring up from the ground, to fasten upon man or beast; which some therefore suppose to be here meant. That whith might seem very probable, the words coming so neer, the one to the other, kippor, and kippozah, but that the text seems not so willing to admit it, ranking this among Fowls; and describing the manner of her breeding, and brooding her young, in terms particular to that kind. I should suppose, therefore, if I may be so bold, to deliver my conjecture in so doubtful a business, that the Serpent mentioned by Avicen, had its name from the Fowl here spoken of, and the manner of its motion.

lay] Heb. deliver: so ch. 66. 7.

gather] brood, her young ones, Mat. 23. 37.

under her shadow] Her wings that shade and protect them, Pf. 91. 1 Mat. 23. 37.

there shall the vultures also be gathered] Meet and flock together, as about a carcass such are wont to do, Matth. 24. 28. Luke 17. 37.

vultures] It is found among the unclean Fowl. Deut. 14. 13. and and with the name a little altered, Lev. 11. 14. where the old Latine rendreth it, the kite: some other, the faulcon, so called of its swift flight, Deut. 28. 49 Jer. 48. 40. & 49. 22. but the ancient Greek, as our here, and there, a vulture: so called of its colour, because black as ink. Jer. 36. 18.

each one with her mate] Heb. a woman, and, or with, her friend, or familiar, Exod. 11. 2. Jer. 9. 20. a defect of the particle: as Pf. 5. 4. See ver. 14, 16.

V. 16. Seek ye out of the book of the Lord, and read] Look into the book of the Law, fay fome, wherein thefe courfes are recorded; or, as others, when the day cometh, of the execution of this judgment, take the book of this Prophecy into your hands, and read over this paffage; and fee if any of thefe be found wanting there: or, thefe fhall as certainly be found all there, as if they were, by name, entred each of them into a roll of record: and there you might be fure to find them, could ye but have the fight of that book. Such like phrafes, alluding to rolls and regifters, are frequent in Scripture, Exod. 32. 32, 33. Pf. 56. 8. & 69. 28 ch. 4. 3. Mal. 3. 16.

no one of these shall fail] Either of the feveral kinds: as Mat. 4. 23. Luk. 11. 42. or of the whole number, and tale of each kind, entred into Gods lift: as ch. 40. 26.

none shall want her mate] There fhall none of them be alone: but ftore ftore of each kind, ver. 14. or, none fhall be without her mate, that they may there breed, and replenish the Country with fuch kind of wild creatures: as Gen. 7. 2. Heb. a woman, or each one, and her familiar, they shall not visit: that is, misse, or want, as the word of visiting is ufed, Num. 31. 49. 1 Sam. 25. 15. in regard whereof, fome render it, a woman, and her mate, they fhall not misse: that is, neither the one, nor the other, fhall be found miffing, either in Gods roll, by thofe that can come to the fight of it, or in the countrey defigned unto them; and fo it fhould, in effect, be the fame with the former.

for my mouth it hath commanded, and his Spirit it hath gathered them] An emphatical redundancy of the pronoun added to the noun: as Chap. 8. 13. & 48. 6. Or, my mouth, it is, that hath commanded (or given order to have this done) and his Spirit it is (whofe mouth commanded it) that will gather them together, there to inhabit: the pronoun, for the verb fubftantive: as Eccl. 1. 5, 10. Chap. 43. 10, 13. a defect of the relative, as Chap. 33. 1, 11, 19. and a paffage from perfon to perfon, as ver. 5, 6. Chap. 33. 4, 6, 17. he hath given out a commiffion for it; and as by a fecret influnce will bring them together, as he did fometime to Noah, Gen. 7. 9. See Chap. 10. 6. Joel 2. 11.

V. 17. And he hath cast the lot for them, and his hand hath divided it, unto them, by line] Or, he will cast the lot for them, and his hand will divide it to them by line. He will fhare it out to them, and divide it among them, as an inheritance, whereof many are coheirs; or a poffeffion, wherein many are joynt purchafers, is wont to be divided by line and lot, Pfal. 16. 5, 6. Mic. 2. 5. the line being firft ufed for the meeting out of the parts; and the lot, for affigning of each one, out of the parts fo fet out and bounded, his fhare: fo was the land of promife fhared, Num 26. 53-56. Joth. 13. 7. & 14. 1, 2. & 18. 4, 6. which the Prophet may feem to allude unto, to wit, that as God had by line and lot, divided the Canaanites country to his people: fo he had, in like manner, divided the Edomites land unto thefe wild and favage creatures, to inherit and poffeis it for ever, or for many defcents; for fo it followeth.

they shall possesse it for ever, from generation to generation shall they dwell therein.] Heb. to generation and generation, that is, for many generations: as chap. 60. 15. See ver. 10.

CHAP. XXXV.

Verf. 1. The wilderneſs, and the ſolitary place, ſhall be glad for them; and the deſart ſhall rejoyce, and bloſſome as a roſe.] This Chapter, and the former, are, queſtionleſs, two parts of one, and the ſame Sermon, and have coherence evident enough, the one, with the other; that being of the dreadful deſtruction of the enemies of Gods people, and the utter deſolation of their lands: this, of the joyful and glorious reſtitution, exaltation, and exaltation of Gods people, thereupon enſuing, and oppoſed thereunto. So chap. 14. 1, 2. & 25. 1-9.

wilderneſs] The land of Judah, that had before, by the enemy over-running it, been made like a wilderneſs, Chap. 1. 7. & 8. 23, 24. & 14. 17. & 32. 12-14.

ſolitary place] Or, waſt. Heb. drineſs, that is, land of drineſs, or droughts; as Pfal. 63. 1. chap. 32. 2. & 14. 18. and there may be in the word, an alluſion to the name of Sion, thence derived. See Jer. 30. 17.

ſhall be glad for them] For the judgments of God, executed upon her malicious enemies, and her deliverance from their cruel oppreſſions, Pſalm 48. 11. & 58. 10.

the deſart ſhall rejoyce] Shall revive, recovering of her former devaſtations, and look as with a cheerful and pleaſant ſurface again, Pſalm 96. 12. & 98. 8. chap. 51. 3. & 52. 9.

bloſſome] Or, flouriſh: for the land or ground is not ſo properly ſaid to bloſſom, nor the roſe neither, Pſal. 72. 7. chap. 27. 6. Hoſ. 10. 4.

as a roſe] Cant. 2. 1. ſo as a lilly, Hoſ. 14. 5. where the ſame verb is uſed.

V. 2. It ſhall bloſſom abundantly, and rejoyce even with joy and ſinging.] As the land, ſo the State alſo (for by the recovery of fertility and pleaſantneſs to the land, is ſhadowed out alſo the flouriſhing condition of the State. See Chap. 4. 2.) ſhall have a new face, ſhall put on a new habit. Whereas it was penſive and mournful before, it ſhall now abound with joy, Pſal. 126. 1, 2. ver. 10. Chap. 61. 10. whereas formerly it was in a dejected and ſueful condition, it ſhall now flouriſh exceedingly, and be more glorious, then before theſe calamities befell it. See on Chap. 33. 17.

bloſſom abundantly] Heb. flouriſhing, flouriſh: as Levit. 13. 12. but to another purpoſe there.

rejoyce even with joy] Heb. exult, even with exultation, or, as ſome render it, even with exultation, ſhall it exult: a defect of the particle: as Chap. 33. 7.

and ſinging] Or, and ſinging it ſhall ſing; for the verb is an infinitive, and implieth, frequently, a defect of the indicative, or, imperative, or rather includeth either of them in it, Exod. 20. 8. where the word is, Remembring, for, Remember remember, Eccleſ. 9. 11. I returned, and ſeeing, for, ſeeing ſaw again. So Ezek. 1. 14. Jer. 14. 5. ſinging ſing, for ſing abundantly. So Pſal. 132. 16. See Jer. 31. 12. & 51. 48.

the glory of Lebanon ſhall be given unto it: the excellency of Carmel, and Sharon] It ſhall now be, for ſtatelineſs; like Lebanon, a mountain full of lofty Cedars, for wealth and beauty like Carmel and Sharon, two places of ſpecial note, for fertility and pleaſantneſs. See Chap. 24. 6. & 29. 17. & 32. 15. & 33. 9.

they ſhall ſee the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God] Either his people ſhall ſee it: ſo Chap. 33. 17. & 52. 8. & 66. 18. or men ſhall ſee it, others alſo ſhall ſee it, and take notice of it, as well as they: as Pſal. 98. 3. Chap. 40. 5. or taking the word infinitely, the glorious majeſty and power of God, ſhall be moſt conſpicuouſly ſhewn and ſeen, in the deſtruction of the enemies of his people, and the overthrow of their lands and ſtates; ſo in vindication of his people, delivery of them from their former diſtreſſes, and raiſing them to ſuch a flouriſhing and glorious eſtate, that were in ſo great contempt before. Chap. 33. 5, 10. & 48. 5. & 59. 19.

V. 3. Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees] The Prophet having before declared, both what judgments God intendeth to inflict on the enemy; and unto what eſtate he is reſolved to raiſe up his people: hereupon he encoureth them to hearten and encourage one another, Gods Miniſters eſpecially, the weak and feeble-hyded ones, with faith and patience; to expect the fulfilling of theſe gracious Promiſes, Heb. 12. 12.

weak hands] Hands relaxating down, Job 4. 3. See chap. 13. 7.

feeble knees] Knees, for feebleneſs, ready to fall. So the word imporreth, Job 4. 4.

V. 4. Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be ſtrong, fear not] Be not out of heart, or diſmayed, in regard of your preſent preſſures, Chap. 40. 1. & 43. 1. fearful] Heb. haſty: as Chap. 32. 4. prone to fear; oppoſed to confidence, Chap 28. 16.

behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompence; he will come, and ſave you] God will, ere long, come to execute judgment on your enemies, and to work your deliverance.

behold] as Chap. 30. 27.

your God] Whom your enemies jeer you with, demanding where he is or what is become of him, Deut 32. 37. Pſal. 42. 3. & 115. 2.

will come] Though it ſeem long before he come, as the Phyſitian to the Patient, that lieth in pain; and relief to thoſe that are in diſtreſs, Pſal. 6. 3. & 10. 1. & 13. 1. and the wicked think he will never come, Chap. 5. 19. Zeph. 1. 12. yet he will ſurely come, and that ere long, Chap. 30. 27. & 40. 10. & 66. 15. Hab. 2. 3. Heb. 10. 37.

with vengeance] To take vengeance on your enemies and oppreſſors, Chap. 34. 8. & 59. 17, 18. a defect of the particle with, both here, and in the next: as Chap. 34. 15.

recompence] Or, retribution. See Chap. 34. 8.

he will come, and ſave you] Or, when he cometh, he will ſave you: as Chap. 30. 20. Ruth 2. 9. See Chap. 33. 22. & 50. 1. performed, and made good, in part, in many gracious deliverances, at ſundry times, from divers grievous calamities, from the Aſſyrian yoke, and from the Babylonian bondage, Chap. 37. 3. & 38. 6. Jer. 30. 8, 10. but perfectly fulfilled in Chriſt, Chap. 9. 5, 6. Mat. 1. 21.

V. 5. Then the eyes of the blind ſhall be opened.] The great and manifold benefits, comforts, and bleſſings, that by thoſe deliverances, ſhould accrue to Gods people, as well ſpiritual, as corporal:

Then] When by the foregoing afflictions, Gods people being now fitted for mercy, God ſhall be pleaſed to afford it, Chap. 1. 25. & 4. 2, 4. & 48. 10.

the eyes of the blind ſhall be opened] They that were before moſt ſtupid and brutiſh, ſhall now evidently ſee what affection God beareth to his people, what care and regard he hath of them, Pſal. 58. 11. & 126. 3: or, thoſe that were ſpiritually blind before, ſhall now, being illightened, ſee, conceive, and underſtand, both the myſtery of godlineſs revealed in Gods Word, and his mercy and goodneſs manifeſted in his works, Pſal 34. 8. & 107. 43. & 119. 18. See Chap 19. 18. & 32. 3. & 42. 7. & 43. 8. fulfilled, corporally, in cures wrought by Chriſt, Mat 9. 27. & 11. 5. & 12. 22. & 20. 30. & 21. 14. Joh 9. 6. 7. ſpiritually, in the Miniſtery of the Goſpel, by the efficacy of his Spirit, Act. 26. 18. 2 Cor. 4. 6. Eph. 1. 18. Rev. 3. 18.

and the ears of the deaf ſhall be unſtopped] They ſhall now liſten to the Word of God ſpeaking in his book, and by his miſſengers; that had no liſt to hearken unto either, before, Chap. 29. 18. & 30. 20 21. & 32. 3. & 50. 5. Pſal. 40. 6. Joh 13. 16. fulfilled in Chriſts time, both corporally, Mat. 11. 5. Mat. 7. 32. and ſpiritually, Act. 2. 37, 41. & 8. 6, 14. & 13. 42, 48. & 16. 14.

opened] There is a pleaſant conformity between this term and the former; which our Engliſh cannot expreſs.

V. 6. Then ſhall the lame man leap as an Hart] Even thoſe that are lame ſhall get up, and go forth, to ſee the overthrow given the enemy, and gather ſome part of the ſpoils, Ch 33. 23 24. or men ſhall be cured of ſuch ſpiritual defects, in their ſouls, whereby they were diſabled unto ſincere, upright, conſtant, and cheerful walking in Gods ways, Jer. 6. 16. fulfilled in Chriſts time, both corporally, Mat. 11. 5. & 15. 30. & 21. 14. Joh. 5. 8, 9. Act. 3. 2. & 8. 7. & 14. 8. and ſpiritually, Rom. 6. 4. & 8. 1. Gal. 5. 25. Eph. 2. 8.

as an hart] As men are wont to leap and ſpring up, upon finding ſuch creatures occasion of joy, Luk. 1.41,44. Act. 3.8. or, walking both nimbly and steadily, in the good wayes of God, Psal. 18.33. & 119.32. Heb. 12.13.

and the tongue of the dumb sing] Those that have leaft tongue, or had no tongue at all, to ought that is good, Mat. 12.34. yet shall then, for joy, sing, and chant out the praises of him, that had done so great things for them. Chap. 26.1. & 32.4. ver. 2. fulfilled in the times of the Gospel, both corporally, Mat. 9.32,33. & 12.22. & 15.30. Luke 1.64. and spiritually, Mat. 21.16. Luke 2.20. & 19.37. & 24.50. Acts 3.8,9. Rom. 15.11. Col. 3.16.

for in the wilderneſs ſhall waters break out, and ſtreams in the deſart.] One main ground of their joy, and their singing for joy, the great alteration that shall be, for the better, in the Jewish land and State. That which was a waſt wilderneſs before, shall now be a well watered, and consequently, a fruitful and pleasant place. See ver. 1,2. Chap. 30.23,25. & 33.15. A type of the spiritual watering, whereby such persons and places become fertile and fruitful, that were barren of all grace and goodneſs before, John 7.38,39. 2 Cor. 3.6-8. See the like promise to another purpoſe, chap. 43.20.

ſhall break out] Heb. ſhall be cloven; that is, shall flow out from the earth, being cloven. So Pſalm 74.15.

V. 7. And the parched ground ſhall become a pool, and the thirſty land ſprings of water; in the habitation of dragons, where each lay, ſhall be graſs with reeds and ruſhes] The same thing in other termis.

parched ground] Heb heat, chap. 49.10. or, ſcorching heat, for it hath affinity with two words, that ſignifie to ſcorch, or, burn: ſcorching heat, for, ground scorched with heat; as in the next branch, thirſt, for, a land of thirſt; a thirſty land: as also, Deut. 8.15. and, drineſs, for a land of drineſs; a dry land, ver. 1. The word, save in two places, this, and that other, is not found.

ſhall become] Heb. ſhall be for, or, unto: as chap. 32.15. See chap. 41.18.

ſprings] As Chap. 49.10.

the habitation of dragons] Whose abode is in waſt places. See Chap. 34.13.

where each lay] Heb. her couch, or reſting place: as it is rendred, Prov. 24.15. Jer. 50.6. where they, or each of them, lay. See the like form of ſpech, chap. 2.20. 2 Kings 5.13.

graſs with reeds and ruſhes] So the particle is uſed, Ezra 1.1. Jer. 19.13. or rather, a court for reed, or, cane, and ruſh: for either word, though collective, yet is ſingular. The word here uſed, doth ſignifie, most commonly, graſſe, chap. 15.11. & 40.6, 7. but sometime, alſo, a court. or, large open place, wherein graſs usually groweth. So in another form very frequently; but in this alſo, ch. 34.13. and so here.

reed] Or, cane: for so the word is; and as yet remaineth in Greek, Latine, ours, and divers other languages. See ch. 19.6. & 36.6. & 42.3.

ruſh] That useth to grow in moist and miry places, neer to pools and plasties, Job 8.11.

V. 8. And an high way ſhall be there, and a way; and it ſhall be called the way of holineſs; the unclean ſhall not paſs over it; but it ſhall be for thoſe:] Having related the flourishing condition of the land and State with Gods people, in the words before-going; because all that were of little worth, unleſs it might be quietly enjoyed, and were to continue such: he addeth here another benefit, that Gods people should be blefſed with, to wit, peace and safety, chap. 32.18. & 33.20. described here by freedome of paſſage from place to place, ch. 33.17. and the exclusion of such as might annoy or diſturb, chap. 29.20. & 32.5,6. & 33.19.

ſhall be there] In the lands of Gods people.

an high-way, and a way] A common road way, and a cauſey the one for man, with beasts and carriages; the other, for foot paſſengers: or, a cauſey, and a way; that is, a way caſt up: for so the word here, and no where elſe found, importeth. a cauſey, or, caſtway: as also another of the same family doth, more commonly used, chap. 7.3. & 40.3. & 49.10. both coming from a word that ſignifies to caſt up, chap. 62.10. Jer. 18.15. in wayes uſed for firmneſſe and ſureneſs. Of the form of ſpeech, see chap. 4.5. Howbeit, I suppoſe the word, or words here uſed, to be taken collectively, for ways, or cauſeys; as chap. 40.3. the wayes shall not be neglected and lie waſt, as formerly they did, chap 33.8. Lam. 1.4. but shall be kept in due repair, and fitted for the conveniency of paſſengers, who shall travel freely and safely by them.

it ſhall be called] Or, it ſhall be ſimply: See on chap. 32.5. & 62.12.

the way of holineſs] Or, a way of holineſs, that is, an holy way; as hill of holineſs, for an holy hill, Pſalm 15.1. and city of holineſs, for an holy city, chap. 48.2. or, the way of the Sanctuary, the way of the Temple: so it is called, as a place of holineſs, Pſalm 20.2. Ezek. 42.14. See ver. 10. or, the way of men of holineſs, that is, of holy men: a way, for such alone, to walk or travel in, a type of the way to heaven, Mat. 7.13,14. holineſs, for holy men; as peace, for peaceable men, Pſalm 120.7. charity, for charitable, Prov. 10.12. righteouſneſs, for righteous, as moſt, chap. 41.2.

the unclean ſhall not paſs over it] Or, by which the unclean ſhall not paſs: the positive, for the relative; as chap 30.6. & 47.4. unclean people, that is, strangers, such as the Assyrians, Syrians, Ethiopians, and Egyptians, shall have no more access to the land of Judah, to paſs to and fro in it, as formerly, Lam. 1.10. nor shall the paſſage to Gods houſe be peſtered with uncleane perſons of their own, the State being now refined and reformed, chap. 1.25, 26. & 60.21. & 62.12. Revel 21.27.

but it ſhall be for thoſe] To wit, for those Saints, or holy ones. See ver 9. the pronoun, for the verb substantive, as Eccl. 1.5, 10. Job 28.28. the pronoun, for the noun, as chap. 33.2. Heb. and, for but; as chap. 29.13. or, and, tor for; as chap. 29.14. and so some here, but reading the words another way, thus; for he ſhall be with them (as ver. 7.) or ſhall be to them, to wit, a guide; he shall accompany them, conduct, and guide them, as he did the Iſraelites in their travelling to Canaan, Exod. 13.21,22. & 33.14 17. that they may neither miſs their way, nor miſcarry in it, Pſalm 23.3,4. & 25.8,9. & 119.130. Luke 1.79. And a learned late Writer, notwithſtanding the paſſe, taketh in hither from the next branch; but he ſhall be walking the way with them; He, that is, God, shall go along with them, and accompany them in their way. Howbeit, I encline rather to the former reading, for that which followeth, v. 9.

the way faring men, though fools, ſhall not erre therein] The way ſhall be so plain, and easie to find, being a cauſey caſt up, and so ſtrait, and right on, without windings and turnings, such as other croſs ways are wont to have, Pſalm 125.5. Prov. 2.13, 15. that even the ſimpleſt that are (of whom it is made a note, that they know not the way to the city, Eccl. 10.15.) ſhall not miſs of it, or, through want of skill, stray from it, eſpecially having such a guide at hand, as occaſion is, to direct them, chap. 30.21. & 59.21.

the way faring men] Heb. one going, or walking the way, or in the way; as chap. 63.2. taken collectively.

though fools] Heb. and, which those that go the laſt way above-mentioned retain: but ſo, chap. 41.5. or, even fools, as chap. 1.6. therein] Wanting; as, thereof, chap. 27.9. So Deut. 8.12. Jer. 6.16.

V. 9. No lion ſhall be there, nor any ravenous beaſt go up thereupon; it ſhall not be found there] The plainneſs of the way, and freedom from men ill-diſpoſed and ill-affected, was before: here is now ſecurity given, in regard of fierce or ravenous beasts, that might annoy paſſengers, and either deſtroy, or diſturb them, in their paſſage to and fro.

no lion] This paſſage some expound of men, for fierce and ravenous diſpoſition, like to such wild creatures, as chap. 11.6.9. but of such, he seems to have spoken before. Others, of the Devill, that roaring Lion, ravenous Wolf, and red dragon, 1 Pet. 5.8. John 10.12. Rev. 12.3.9. but it seems rather, as the words found, and as Job 28.8. conceiving it to be understood of the removal, or reſtraint of such noiſome and noxious creatures, as use to grow numerous in those places, that through want of inhabitants lie waſt, Exod. 23.29. and had so done in many places of the land, in all likelihood, during the time of the foreſaid preſſures, where the inhabitants had, by the enemy, been driven from their dwellings: but it is here ſaid, that now they should be rid of such, and no longer infeſted with them: ſee the like promiſe, Lev 26.6.

nor ravenous beaſt] Heb. ravenous of beaſts: the word properly ſignifieth, a burglar, one that breaketh into houſes, to rob and ſpoil, or murder and miſchief, Ezek. 7.22. & 18.10. Hoſh. 4.2. Mic. 2.13. more generally rendred, robbers, Jer. 7.11. alluded to, John 10.1,8,10. here uſed, for any ravenous creature, ſuch, among wild beasts, as theſe are among men: ravenous, or ravener (for the word is ſubſtantive) of beaſts, that is, not one, that in a ravenous manner maketh havock and ſpoil of other beaſts; (though ſuch commonly so do;) but one among beaſts, that is ſo qualified, or that ſo practiſeth; as, choice of fires and cedars, is not the choice that others make of cedars; but the choice ones among them, chapter 37.24. Jeremiah 22. verſe 7.

ſhall go up thereon] Or, ſhall paſs along thereby: for ſo the word is oft uſed, without ſpecial notion of aſcent, 2 Sam. 2.1. & 5.19,20. chap. 36.10. See chap 38.8. Howbeit, the word may ſeem to have somewhat more then ſo in it here; and to have some reference to the condition of the way before-mentioned, being ſaid to be a cauſey, or a way caſt up, and ſo raiſed to some height, ver. 8. as if he had ſaid, that though wilde beaſts might lurk in some by-places out of the way; yet none of them ſhould be ſo bold, as to come upon the cauſeys, to impeach travellers in their paſſage.

it ſhall not be found there] Or, it ſhall not be there: as chap. 13.15. & 51.3. none of those ravenous creatures ſhall haunt the high-ways, as Judg. 14.5. 1 Kings 13.24. Prov 26.13. alluded to, Jer. 5.6.

but the redeemed ſhall walk there] The wayes ſhall be free and ſafe, for those that God hath reſerved for himſelf, and delivered out of the fore-going ſtreights and diſtreſſes. Sec v. 8.

but] Heb. and, as ver. 8.

redeemed] Or, reſerved, reſcued, delivered; as Pſal. 107.2. chap. 51.10. & 62.12. & 63.4.

walk] Or, go, travel; as ver. 8.

there] Or, therein; as Deut. 8.12. wanting in both places: but here ſupplied from the former branch.

V. 10. And the ranſomed of the Lord ſhall return, and come to Zion with ſongs, and everlaſting joy upon their heads] Those that God ſhall have delivered, either from the Aſſyrian Invaſion, or the Babylonian bondage, both types of the ſpiritual deliverance of Gods people by Chriſt, ſhall with expreſſions of much joy, repair after their their wonted manner, to the ſet place of Gods ſolemn ſervice, being freed from their former tears and fears, and ſetled in an eſtate of continued joy and ſafety.

ranſomed] The word is in ſignification the ſame with that uſed, v. 9. as appeareth plainly, both here, and chap. 51.10,11. the word ſignifieth firſt, and properly, to redeem, or buy out; as Exod. 13.13. & 34.20. Num. 18.15-17. Job 5.20. but it is commonly uſed, in a more general notion, for reſcuing, or delivering out of danger or diſtreſs, by any means or courſe whatſoever, Deut. 9.29. 2 Sam. 4.9. Pſalm 55.18. & 34.22. & 78.42. chap 29.22.

ſhall return, and come to Zion] ſhall return from captivity, or come back from thoſe places, whither they had fled formerly for fear of the enemy. See Chap. 1.27. and 10.22. or ſhall return and come, that is, ſhall again return (after their wonted manner, as the phraſe is uſual, Gen. 26.18. Pſalm 78.41. Mal. 1.4.) to Zion, that is, to Jeruſalem, where there was no free paſſage before, as chap. 23.20. or to the houſe of God, the Temple there ſituate; as Pſalm 84.7. Chap. 2.2.

with ſongs] Or, with a ſinging noiſe; or, with a noiſe of exultation: ſo the word properly ſignifies, Chap. 14.7. & 48.20. ver. 5.1.11. See ver. 2. either with ſuch mirth as they repaired with to their ſacred ſolemnities. See Chap. 30.29. or with ſolemn ſongs, penned on purpoſe for their preſent deliverance, Pſalm 32.7. Chap. 26.1. & 38.9,20.

and everlaſting joy upon their heads] Or, and with everlaſting joy. See Jer. 2.37. or, and everlaſting, joy ſhall be upon their heads; the verb wanting, as Chap. 51.11. ſupplyed, as Chap. 61.7.

everlaſting joy] Or, laſting joy, Heb. joy of an age, or of perpetuity, as Chap. 61.7. joy of long continuance here, Chap. 32.17. and to all eternity hereafter, John 16.22.

upon their heads] Heb. head; as Chap. 51.11. on the head of each of them, as a precious crown, 2 Tim. 4.8. James 1.12. Rev. 2.10. & 4.4. & 7.9. or a garland, ever green, and never fading, 1 Pet. 1.5. & 5.4.

they ſhall obtain joy and gladneſs] Abundance of joy, chap. 51.3,11. fulneſs of joy, in the light of Gods favour; manifeſted in theſe, and the like gracious works wrought for them; but much more compleat, in the immediate enjoyment of his glorious preſence hereafter: the one being, as a type or ſhadow, to a fore-runner, and earneſt of the other, Pſalm 4.7. & 16.11. & 89.15,16. & 126.2. 1 Pet. 1.8. 1 Joh. 1.5.

and ſorrow and ſighing ſhall flee away] The former griefs and groans, proceeding from their heavy foregoing preſſures ſhall utterly vaniſh, and be clean forgotten, as if they never had been, Chap. 25.8. & 30.19. John 16.21. Rev. 21.4.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Verſ. 1. NOw it came to paſſe in the fourteenth year of King Ezekiah, that Sennacherib the King of Aſſyria, came up againſt all the defenced cities of Judah, and took them] The relation of Sennacherib's Invaſion of the land of Judah, together with the deliverance of the city of Jeruſalem, and the deſtruction of a great part of his army, and the ſhameful flight of himſelf with the reſidue, and the murther of him, at home, by the hands of his own ſons; is here inſerted, out of the records, in the books of the Kings, and Chronicles, in this Chapter and the next; both to clear ſome of the foregoing Prophecies, and to confirm, and ſeal up the truth; both of the predictions therein contained, of thoſe evils that were to befal the Jewiſh Nation, for their ſins; as alſo of the promiſes delivered in them, concerning Gods protection and deliverance of his faithful people among them, and of the comminations of the deſeat and overthrow therein denounced, againſt their adverſaries, chap. 10.& 14.24,25. & 17.12-14. & 24. & 25. & 30-35. See the like relations, to the like purpoſe, inſerted in the Prophecies of Jeremy, Chap. 39.& 52. And this ſtory, ſee 2 Kings. 18.13. & 19.& 2 Chr. 32.

Now] Heb. And; as 2 Chr. 36.22. chap. 7.1. for with the copulative, the Hebrew oft beginneth new narrations. So Exr. 1.1. Neh. 1.1. Jon. 1.1.

it came to paſs, that] Heb. it was: with a defect of the particle carrying on the relation: as Chap. 7.1.

in the fourteenth year] About eight years after the ſuppreſſal of Samaria by Salmaneſer, and the deportation of the ten Tribes. See 2 Kings 18.10,13.

Sennacherib] Heb. Sancherib. Herodotus, who maketh mention of him, lib. 2. calleth him, Sanacharib.

King of Aſſyria] This Sennacherib ſeemeth to have ſucceeded Salmaneſer in the Aſſyrian Empire, either immediately, as moſt think, or mediately, as may well be deemed, Sargon coming between. See Chap. 20.1. Herodotus ſtileth him, King of the Arabians, and Aſſyrians; not of the Arabians only, as Joſeph the Jew miſelates him, lib. 10.c. 1.

came up] A term uſed of military expeditions. See chap. 7.1.

againſt all the fenced cities of Judah] In purſuit of the Conqueſt, that his prede ceſſors had made, Salmaneſer of Saimaria; and Sargon of Paleſtina, (Chap. 20.1.) he attempted now againſt Iudea, upon pretence of the contribution with-held by Ezekiah, which unto Tiglath-Pilſer had, in former times, been paid in yearly, by Ahaz his Father, 2 Kings 16.7-9. & 18.7.

and took them] That is, either took the moſt of them, not all ſimply, (for ſome of them he had not yet taken: See Chap. 37.4,8.) but all in a manner, ſome few only excepted, that ſeemed as nothing, in compariſon of the reſt: as thoſe unverſally and frequently taken, ſee Chap. 6.6.7. Jer. 6.2.8. and 9.2. or, he came up againſt them all, and took them, for, he came up againſt them all, with a purpoſe to take them: as, Balak aroſe, and warred againſt Iſrael, for, roſe with a purpoſe to war againſt Iſrael, Iosh. 24.9. againſt whom yet he never actually warred, Judg. 11.25. his purpoſe was to ſurprize them all, whatſoever the iſſue were: and this way that ſeems to look, and to lead, that we find, 2 Chr. 32.1. where it is ſaid, that he encamped againſt the fenced cities, and thought to take them to himſelf. Howbeit, the former ſeems to ſuit better, both with the matter of the ſtory, and the drift of the relation. Otherwiſe, no mention ſhould be of the taking of any. Beſide, that his purpoſe, there mentioned, may have a more ſpecial reference, not ſo much ſimply to the taking of them, as to the taking of them, to himſelf, that is, to have, and hold them, as his own; wherein he fell ſhort of what his intent and purpoſe was. And he nameth expreſly, the fenced cities, both here and there: as Chap. 25.2. to intimate the general over-running, and ſubduing of the whole country before him. For thoſe of leſs ſtrength muſt of neceſſity yeeld, when thoſe of defence were unable to hold out. See chap. 33.8.

V. 2. And the King of Aſſyria ſent Rabſhakeh from Lachiſh, to Jeruſalem, unto King Hezekiah, with a great army] See 2 King. 18.17. 2 Chr. 32.9.

the King of Aſſyria] Sennacherib, 2 Chr. 32.29.

Rabſhakeh] 2 King. 18.19. mention is made of two others joyned with them, to wit, Tartan (of whom, ſee alſo, chap. 20.1.) and Rabſaris, (of which name, ſee Jer. 39.3.) but those other two are here omitted, and notice is only taken of Rabſhakeh; either because the principal man, in the Commiſſion, though laſt named, in the relation; or, as is moſt likely, becauſe he was the principal ſpeaker, and the beſt skilled of them, it may be, in the Iews language, 1 King. 18.19. whether the term Rabſhakeh; be the proper name of the man, or the title of his place; (as of Rabſaris is deemed) importing the Chief- Butler, or, Cup-bearer to the King; is not very certain. For as for the Jewiſh tradition, that he ſhould be an apoſtate Iew, (which ſome of them gather, becauſe he ſpake their language, ver. 13. and becauſe they rent their garments, upon his blaſphoming, v. 22. whereof ſee more there; weak grounds to build that conceit upon) and that he ſhould be the Prophet Eſays ſon, in relation to whoſe apoſtacy, the Prophet ſhould name his other ſon, that continued loyal and conſtant to his fathers God, and in his faith, Shear-jaſhub, Chap. 7.3. it may juſtly be deemed, as many other of the like, a fancy of their own framing.

from Lachiſh] A city of Judah, (of which, ſee Iosh. 10.3,32. & 15.39.) againſt which he lay encamped, 2 Chr. 32.9. and where Ezekiahs meſſengers found him, when they came to him, and there made an agreement with him, 2 King. 18.14. contrary whereunto, he now ſends Rabſhakeh from thence with forces, either to ſeize on him, or to beſiege him.

to Jeruſalem] The head city of the kingdom, (ſee chap. 1.1.) which unleſs it ſhould, upon the ſight of his vaſt army, and his ſummons ſent with it, ſurrender, he was reſolved to beſiege.

with a great army] Heb. heavy. So alſo, 2 King. 18.17. See Chap. 32.2.

and he ſtood by the conduit of the upper pool, in the high-way of the fullers field] Of this place, ſee on chap. 7.3. & 22.9.

V. 3. Then came forth unto him] By the Kings appointment, ver. 21. whom they had ſummoned to a parley, 2 King. 18.18. it being neither honorable, nor ſafe, for him, to go out to them himſelf in perſon.

Then] Heb. And: as chap. 30.19.

Eliakim Hilkiahs ſon, who was over the houſe,] Or, high-ſteward, advanced now to that office, which Shebna formerly held, as was by this Prophet foretold ſhould be, Chap. 22.20,22.

and Shebna the Scribe] Or, Secretary, who had been over the houſe, or high-ſteward, before, Chap. 22.15. and this ſeems to be the firſt ſtep to his utter down-fall, foretold, and threatned, ch. 22.19. of the office, ſee 2 King. 4.3. Beſides, hence it is not improbably conjectured, that this man Shebna, was either a ſtranger born, or of baſe and ignoble birth, for that there is no mention at all made of his parentage, when as of the other two, the one before, and the other after him, there is. See Chap. 22.16.

and Joah Aſaphs ſon, the Recorder.] Or, Remembrancer: it ſeemeth to have been an office, not unlike to our Maſter of Requeſts. See 2 Sam. 8.16. alluded unto, ch. 62.6.

V. 4. And Rabſhakeh ſaid unto them, Say ye now to Hezekiah, Thus ſaith the great King, the King of Aſſyria; what confidence is this wherein thou truſteſt:] He begineth this meſſage, that he would have them deliver, from his Maſter, to Ezekiah, with his Maſters lofty title, The Great King; which the Aſſyrian Kings then arrogated, as having the largeſt extent of any known Monarch, and the Chaldean kings took up, after them, having diſſolved their Empire; (but indeed is the ſtile beſt beſeeming him, who is abſolute Lord, and King of heaven and earth, Pſ. 47.2. & 48.2. Mal. 1.14.) thereby to terrifie King Ezekiah, as afterward to affright his people, ver. 13. And his main drift throughout his whole ſpeech, is to ſhew, that Ezekiah, could not have any ground of hope, to be able to stand out against so great a Potentate, as his grand Master was, either from any power of his own, or from any other to be expected from abroad, either from man, or from his God.

I say (saist thou) (but they are but vain words) I have counsel and strength for war] In these words, his intendment seems plain to be this, to upbraid him with vanity, and condemn him of folly, if he suppose himself able to match, much more, if to out-go his Master, either in policy, or in power, being so defective in either: but the manner of speaking, being very concise, maketh the sentence not so clear.

I say (saist thou) These words, saist thou, must of necessity be supplyed, if we retain the reading, which the text here exhibiteth. But in the History of the Kings, 2 King 18.20. it is, not, I say, but, Thou saist, the letters the same, and the points or vowels also, all save one; and this if we follow, no supply at all will need. Thou saist, that is, thou mayst say, peradventure; though it be folly for thee so to do: an indicative form in a potential sense: as Num.23.10. Neh.6.6. Est. 5.14. Job 37.23. Chap.26.9,18. Yet some would have it spoken by Rabshakeh in his own person, or in the person of his king, I say, it is but a vain thing, for thee to say, or think thus, or thus: or, as some of our former versions; I said, surely, though it is in vain words: supplying that of truth, from ver.4. But I rather take it to run here, as in the story whence it is taken.

but they are but vain words] Heb. a word of lips; that is, say some, a word, that cometh from the lip only; that which he could not speak from the heart; as being conscious to himself, of his own deficiency in either: so it should be, not unlike that, ch.29.13. of honouring God with the lip, and not with the heart: but it seems rather to import vain and windy words, and the lip, to be opposed here, not so much to the heart, as to the hand: words without fruit, or effect; and may well be rendred, matter of lips, idle talk onely; for the word, word, in Hebrew, doth often signifie matter; as it is also rendred, Prov.16.20. and 25.2. So Prov.14.23. the word, or matter of lips, is opposed to the labour of the hands; and profit, or advantage, said to come of the one; nothing but want to proceed from the other: and, a man of lips, Job 11.2. is put for, a talkative man; for one that talks much, but performs nothing. Nor can I accord, therefore, with those, who by a word of lips, here understand eloquence; because lip seems to be put, not for Language alone, as Gen.11.1. Zeph.3.9. but for fineness of Language, Job 12. 20. yet so the Geneva version, rendring the text, I say, surely I have eloquence; as spoken in the person of Ezekiah: the use of the phrase carries it the other way, rather.

I have counsel, and strength for war] The words thus read, are spoken as Ezekiahs, intimating a conceit, that he should have of his own sufficiency, for such requisites as were needful to wage, and maintain war with. But some of our former versions render the words, thus, but counsel, and strength are for war; as spoken by Rabshakeh, (but scoffingly) in way of advice to Ezekiah, not to rely on vain words, that would stand him in no stead; but to consider seriously what want he had, as well of good counsel, as of forces and arms, being both alike necessary for war. See Prov.20 18. and 24.6. Luke 14.31. And there want not those, who read the whole passage in one continued tenour. Thou sayest (that is, thinkest, imaginest, with thy self) that counsel, and strength for war, are but a matter of words, that is, as easie to be had, as words are; or, as others, that thou by thy lips alone (or by thy eloquent prayer) is counsel, and strength sufficient for war: as if instead of these, he relied upon prayer. So the Jewish Doctors. But these expositions seem over-forced.

Now in whom doest thou trust, that thou rebellest against me?] If thou hast not a fond conceit of thine own sufficiency herein, what other aid or power from abroad, is it, that thou reliest upon? that thou dareſt offer to withdraw thy self from mine obedience, whose Predecessors, thy father before thee acknowledged, 2 Kings 16.7. and 18.7.

V. 6. Lo thou trustest in the staff of this broken reed, on Egypt; whereon if a man lean it will go into his hand, and pierce it.] Having endeavoured to beat him, or scoff him off, rather, from confiding in any policy or power of his own: he now labours to take him off, from expectation of any sure assistance from abroad. If he think of any foreign forces, it must be from Egypt; but Egypt was more like to hurt, then to help; for that was her wonted guise. Which he setteth forth, by a resemblance taken from a bruised, or broken cane, which if a man lay hold on to sustain him, when he is in danger of falling, will not only fail him, but maim him, with the sharp toothed shivers of it, running into his hand.

to the staff of this broken reed] Thus he termeth Egypt, a staff, being an emblem of stay and support, (see chap. 3.1.) because she professed and promised support and succour to other people. See on Chap.18.1. and 20.2. and 31.1. And reed, or cane, rather; (for the Hebrew word here used, is the very same with our English; whence also by the Greek and Latine, it descended unto us) in way of allusion, partly, to those paper-canes; for which Egypt, abounding in them, and supplying other countries, far and neer, with them, was famous; (see on ch.19.6,7.) and partly also, to such canes, as men commonly used for walking-staves; as we also do, at this day, and the weaker sort, for support. See on ch.10.20. and 50.10. but withal, to a broken, or a bruised one, as the word is rendred, where from broken, it is distinguished, Chap.42.3. and therefore unable to help, or uphold, Chap.20.6. and 30.5,6. For whereas a learned late Writer would have rendred it, not broken, or bruised, but frail; though, as we read it a reed, it may carry the better colour; yet if the word be aright rendred, not a reed, but a cane; though the Hebrew word comprehend both, (because not of reeds, but of canes, are flaves made) it will appear not so fit: since that the failing of it, as also the maiming of it, is here attributed, not to the matter of it, because a cane, which being firm and entire, would afford stay sufficient; but to the affliction of it, because bruised and battered, and scarce able, therefore, well to sustain it self, much less to support another.

so is Pharao King of Egypt to all that trust in him,] Not only, not helpful, but prejudicial and harmful. So had he been to Sathaia, 2 Kings 17.4,5. and so he proved to Gods people, Chap. 30.3. and 31.3. See Ezek.29.6,7.

V.7. But if thou say to me, We trust in the Lord our God: Is it not he, whose high places, and whose Altars Hezekiah hath taken away, and said to Judah and Jerusalem, Ye shall worship before this Altar?] Having endeavoured to take him off from his confidence in man, and in Egypt by name; wherein, a party, at least, among them, had been very faulty, as appears, Chap.30.1,6. and 31.1,2. He now striveth to shake him off from his hold of, and trust in God, as one whom he had exceedingly wronged, in abridging his service, and restraining it to one place, which yet was no other thing then God himself had enjoyned, Deut.12.11,13,14. nor were those high places and altars, that he took away, the most of them, other then high places assigned to idol-service, 2 Kings 18.4. and for those other in which the true God was served, it is noted as a defect in his son Manasses reformation, in his latter, and better dales, that they were not utterly removed, 2 Chr.33.17,

But if thou say] Heb. And (which may here well stand) if (as Deut.12.21.) thou shalt say: as Jer.5.19.

said to Judah and Jerusalem] 2 Chron.32.12. commanded Judah and Jerusalem, (that is, the Inhabitants of either) saying.

before this altar] 2 Chr.32.12. before one altar, to wit, that in the Temple at Jerusalem, Chap.31.9.

V.8. Now therefore give pledges, I pray thee, to my Master the King of Assyria; and I will give thee two thousand horses, if thou be able on thy part to set riders upon them.] Since that thou neither hast power sufficient of thine own to withstand my Masters forces, nor hast hope of help, either from God, or man; thy best course is to come to agreement with my Lord, and give him security for thy future fidelity, and performance of what he shall further require of thee; which if thou do, I will undertake he shall furnish thee with more horses, then thou canst find men to mannage: Or, to let thee know thine own weakness, do but give me good security, and I will deliver thee two thousand horse, upon condition, that thou shalt furnish them with Riders, and do the best thou canst with them; or, if thou canst not, that then thou re-deliver them, and thy self together with them; or lastly, as others, engage thy self in fight with my Masters forces, and I will furnish thee with two thousand horse, to come forth with into the field, if thou hast but as many Riders for them, as daring him to fight, and offering him, in scoffing manner, some helps, if he could, and dust undertake it.

Now therefore] Heb. And now; as Chap.30.3. Yet some retaine the copulative here.

give pledges] Or, hostages. Heb. mingle thy self; as Ezr.9.2. Psalm 106.35. Prov.20.19. & 24.21. and the word, in the original, is very general, and may as well signifie compound, or make agreement. Which some therefore understand of yeelding himself into the hands of Sennacherib, on such terms, as he should propound to him, and engaging himself for the making of them good, as ver. 16. Others, of giving security, for the horses hereafter mentioned, or laying a wager upon them, because of undertaking by suretiship, the word is oft used, Prov.6.5. and 11.15. and 17.18. and others, of joyning battel, wherein two adverse parties are mingled either with other; because another word of the same notion is very commonly so used, Deut.2.5,19,24. 2 Kings 14. 10. Dan. 11.25.

I pray thee] The word here used, as also that which answers it, the same with it, both in Greek and Latine, is a particle, either of asseveration and assent, Gen.18,21. or of incitation, and putting on, Psalm 118.2.4. or, of obsecration and entreaty, Gen.18. 30,32. and hereafter, ver.11. for this place controlleth those Jewish Criticks, who affirm, that perpetually it signifies now: it is here used, in the second notion, not in the third; for Rabshakeh would scorn to stoop so low, as to pray, or to entreat; and would rather therefore be rendred, go to, then I pray thee.

and I will give thee two thousand horses] Either my Master will furnish thee with horse, for thy use and honor, if thou yeeld thy self to him: or, I my self, will at present, out of my own troops, afford thee such a number of them, to do the best thou canst with them.

if thou be able on thy part to set riders upon them] Implying, that he was not able to find so many among all his souldiery, that were expert and able riders. And the old Latine therefore rendreth it in the negative; and, or, but thou wilt not be able to set riders on them. Which howsoever it is by most Interpreters deemed such a thing, as might probably be true; for that, say they, their Kings were forbidden to multiply horses, Deut.17.16. and the land of Judah was not so fit, either for the breed of them; for which cause, they stored themselves much with horse, out of Egypt, and other lands, 2 Chron.1.16. & 9.28. or for the use of them, being hilly, in war; and few therefore among them had any great skill in horsemanship. Yet it seems rather to be an Allyrian brag and jear, setting light by Ezekiahs forces, in regard of his Masters, and withall, covertly nipping them, for their sending of supply to horses to Egypt, Chap.31.1. as if he had said, they should not need, if they would be ruled by him, to send so far for horses, he would furnish them neerer at hand, with a greater number then they could well tell what to do with. See ver.9. for though Egypt might have the greater plenty of horse, and be, in some respects, the fitter for breed of them; yet was the land of Canaan well stored also with them, as appears by the multitude of charets, there recorded to have been continually, which could be of no use, without horses. See Josh.11.4. Judg.4.3,13. as also by the number of them that Solomon kept, though he had many, also from other parts, as what King or Country hath not, though never so well stored it self, 2 Chr.1.14. & 9. 25. yea, the Land in these very times, is said expressly to have been full of horses, and of charets in abundance, chap.2.7. nor were their Kings inhibited to keep store of horse, sufficient for the defence of themselves, and the State: but that they should not give their mind wholly to multiply horses, or heap up treasure (for the charge is, concerning both, the same) as if their chief strength consisted in either, Deut.17 16,17. Psa.20.7. & 33.16,17. Prov.21.31.

to set] Heb. give: but to the word is commonly used, for to put, or set, Exod.25.12,21,26.30. Jer.6 27. and it is the rather used here, in reference to the former branch, as if he had said, if thou canst find Riders, I will find thee horses.

V.9. How then will thou turn away the face of one captain of the least of my Masters servants?] How then, being so sorrily furnished, art thou able to defeat any one of my masters least and lowest commanders? much less to deal with all his forces.

How then] Heb. And how; as Dan.10.17.

wilt thou] Or, canst thou: the future is oft potential; see Jer.2.23. or, durst thou, to wit, offer once to attempt it; as ch.10.14. Jer.2. 23. Zach.1.21.

turn away the face] Or, turn back the face; as, turn back the battel, chap.28.6. and the phrase implieth a defeat, a causing to turne back without effect, as in suit, 1 Kings 2.16. Psalm 132.10. so in fight.

of one] Or, of any one: one, for any one, as Job.14.4. Matth.18. 10.

of the least of my Masters servants] As implying, that the least of them was able to command, and to furnish, far more then so. See chap.10.8.

and put thy trust on Egypt for charets and for horsemen?] While his relieft on them that can do thee no good, but much harm. See ver.6.

and put thy trust] Some disjoyne this branch from the former, rendring it, but thou puttest thy trust: but it runs better, as we have it, and would yet more smoothly, if it were, while thou trustest: for so the particle is used, and rendred, Esth.2.1. Psalm 146.2. and so would be, 2 Kings 11.25. and he vexed Israel, while he reigned over Syria.

charets] Heb. charet; see chap.21.7. & 22.7.

V.10. And am I now come up without the Lord against this place to destroy it? the Lord said unto me, go up against this land and destroy it.] The more yet to dishearten Ezekiah and his people, by cutting off all hope of help from above, he pretendeth, that he came by command, and commission from God. And it is true, that such a business was determined, and past, in Gods secret disposition, ch. 10.6. but that was more then he ever once dreamed of, or had any intent to execute, ch.10 7.

come up] Come up, Or, go up: as 1 Kings 22.12,15. military terms: Heb. ascend: see ver.1.

without the Lord] The name Jehovah, as we now read and render it, Exod.6.3. Psalm 83.18. or, that Son of foure letters, that is, four lettered name, as the Jews style it, which that answers to, is here twice used; whereby it appears, that the same (notwithstanding the superstitious conceit, and groundless assertions, of not Jews alone, but some of ours also, to the contrary, concerning it) was in those times in use, and commonly known; and that, not unto Gods people only, but unto other nations also. Rabshakeh names it six several times in his speech, ver.7. here, and ver.15, 16. see also, Gen.22.30 Exod.5.2.

and destroy it] This concerning the city, God had not determined; much less ever signed him any such commission: see ch.37.33,35.

V.11. Then said Eliakim and Shebna, and Joah unto Rabshakeh, Speak, I pray thee, unto thy servants in the Syrian language, for we understand it; and speak not, in the Jews language, in the ears of the people, that are on the wall.] In these words is related a piece of that submisse and dejected carriage, foretold, chap.10.4.

Then] Heb. And; as ver.9.

said] The verb is singular, because delivered but by one of them, though in the name of the rest also: See verse 12.

I pray thee] Of this particle (for so only it is) see ver 8. and on chap.28.3. it is rendred oh, Gen.18.30,33. and so would rather be here, then, I pray thee; the rather, the speech running as in the person of no one of them, but them all.

thy Servants] Too meane a phrase, for a Kings Messengers: But to Ahaz himselfe, before; I am thy Servant, 2 Kings 16. 7.

the Syria language] Heb. Aramite, Ezra.4.7. Dan.2.4. by all which places (this and those) put together, it appears, that this language was in ancient times most generally spoken, being in ordinary use under those three great Monarchies, the Allyrian, the Chaldean, and the Persian: and it is that, wherein some part of the old Testament was penned; which we commonly, but causelesly, now call Chaldee; when as the Scripture it self, terms it Aramit, or Syriack, nor was it indeed more the Chaldean, then the Persian or Assyrian language, though termed, Dan.1.4. the tongue of the Chaldeans; because spoken with them at Babylon, and in the Kings court especially; in regard whereof the Jewish children, being to attend the King there, were to be taught it.

we understand it] Heb. hear it; as Gen.11.7. & 42.15. & 42.23. So chap. 33. 19. The Courtiers and States-men understood it, having for, and by negotiations learned it, and been acquainted with it, though the common sort of people then did not, chap.28.11. & 33.19. howsoever, in proceis of time, after their returne from the Babylonian captivity, and in the dayes of our Saviour, when it was more corrupt, and had further degenerated from the Hebrew, which it had more affinity with before, it grew common among them, and is in that regard called the Hebrew tongue, in the New Testament, because then commonly spoken with them, Joh.19.13,17. Act.21.40 & 22.2.

Speak not in the Jews language] The Hebrew, their native language, Neh.13.24.

in the ears] For, in the hearing: as Ch.5.9. & 22.14. Jer.36.6.

of the people] Herein they bewray overmuch timerousness, and diffidence; thereby occasioning the adversary to be more peremptory with them.

upon the walls] Where the Souldiers lay, and whither the people did, in likelihood, upon this occasion flock, many of them, to view the King of Allyria's Embassadors, and to hear (if they could) also, what their message might be.

V.12. But Rabshakeh said, Hath my Master sent me to thy Master, and to thee, to speak these words?] Upon the discovery of their difficence, manifested in the request they made to him, he carrieth himselfe the more arrogantly and insolently toward them; and endeavours to move the people to mutiny, whom he perceived them to be jealous of, partly by menacing them with a straighter siege, and partly, by putting them out of hope of being able to hold out; and partly, by promising them very faire conditions, that the King his Master would afford them, if they yielded themselves up to him, v.16,17.

to thee] Hence it appears, that the former request, though conceived, as in the name of them all three, yet was delivered by one of them only, as the foregoing speech was uttered by Rabshakeh alone, though two other were also joyned in commission with him: see ver.2. And it may be surmised, to have been a motion of Shebna's own contriving of purpose, suspected to comply with the enemy, thereby to give them some hint of the peoples disposition, and occasion, by these meanes, to work further upon them.

Hath he not sent me to the men that sit upon the wall] Heb. not to the men? with the note of interrogation only; the supply is from the former branch; the like whereunto, see 2 Chr.10.11. Job 14.5. & 22.24. Chap.10.5. & 30.29.

that sit] That is, are, or abide upon the wall] expecting the issue of the treaty: So Deut 9.2. 2 Sam.7.18. (for it is not to be imagined, that David conceived that to humble and solemne a prayer, sitting) Ier.39.14. & 40.5 6.

that they may eat their own dung, and drink their own piſſe with you] This he speaks to affright the people with expectation of a straight siege; such as that threatned, Ezek.4.9,12,15. and as Samaria sustained, 2 King.6.25. Not that they were then in any such extremity; but that so they should be compelled to do, unleſs they yielded up the city.

dung and piſſe] The Jewes, because they account the words here used by Rabshakeh, no very cleanly termes, never read them, but two other in the roome of them; in like manner they deal, not with Rabshakehs onely, but with the Holy Ghosts language, 2 Kings 10.27. where they substitute another in the roome of one, derived from the former of these, importing a common draught: Instead of the latter, they read the water of the feet: of which form of speech, see on chap.6.2. & 7.20. from Deut.28.56 57. and I find the very same used by Pliny, l. 30. c. 7. the water that runs by, or between the feet.

V.13. Then Rabshakeh stood, and cryed with aloud voice in the Jews language] Then: Heb. And, as ver.11. Rabshakeh stood: litted himſelf, self, as much as he could (for he was standing, before, v.2.) being not now to parley with them, that stood on even ground with him; but to speak unto them, that were aloft on the wall; and cryed aloud, together with his body raising also his voice, that it might reach to the whole multitude of them, or to as many, at least, as might be. See ch.33.7.

and said, Hear the words of the great King, the King of Assyria] See verse 4.

V. 14. Thus saith the King, Let not Hezekiah deceive you: for he shall not be able to deliver you] As he dealt before in his speech, addressed to the King, by his messengers, so now in his parley, directed to the people, he laboureth to perswade them, that neither their King, nor their God, should be able to deliver them, if they stood out against his Master.

to deliver you] Out of his hand; As it is, more fully, 2 Kings 18. 29.

V. 15. Neither let Hezekiah make you trust in the Lord] That which he both did himself, 2 Kings 18.5. and endeavoured to make his people also to do, 2 Chr.32.6. 8.

saying, the Lord will surely deliver us] Heb. will delivering deliver us; as Exodus 5. 23. 1 Samuel 30. 8. So also, 2 Kings 18.30.

the city shall not be delivered into the hand of the King of Assyria] This he might well assure them of; for God, by his Prophet, had before promised as much, ch.31.4,5. & 33.20.

delivered into the hand] Heb. given into the hand: that is, the power; as 2 Kings 18. 29, 30. Jer.15. 2 1. & 26. 24. and so, deliver out of hand, that is, from the power, v.19.1 Kings 18.29. Dan.3. 15,17.

V.16. Hearken not to Hezekiah; for thus saith the King of Assyria, Make agreement with me, by a present, and come out to me, and eat ye every one of his own vine, and every one of his own figtree, and drink ye every one the waters of his own cistern] He would bear them in hand, that their condition should be no way impaired, but bettered, rather, by yeelding themselves up to his Master. For they should quietly enjoy what they were possessed of at present, (which unlesse they came out, and compounded with him, they could not do,) and when he should see good to remove any of them into some other place, he would feast them in a land, in all respects, as good as their own.

make an agreement with me by a present] Or, seek my favour by a present. Heb. make with me a blessing; or deal with me, by a blessing: a blessing, for, a gift, or present as Gen. 33. 11. Josh.15.19.1 Sam.25. 27.2 Kings 5.15.

come out to me] Yeild your selves up to me. So 2 Kings 24.11.Ier. 38.2,17,18.

and eat] Or, and ye shall, or may eat. For that is the use of the imperative, in such kind of speeches. So Gen.42. 18. Do this, and live, that is, if ye do this, ye shall live: as Luke 10. 28. Romanes 10. 5. See the like, Psalm 37. 25. dwell for ever, 2 Kings 18. 32, live, and dye not. Ye shall freely and quietly enjoy each one his own, if ye do, as I advise you.

every one] Heb. a man: as ch.9 20.

of his vine, and of his fig-tree] That is, the fruit of his vine, and the fruit of his fig-tree: as ler. 5.17. these plants and fruits mentioned, because most common in those parts for food and refreshing. See 1 King.4.25. Mich. 4. 4. Zachary 3. 10. put here for all commodities and conveniencies, as well for necessity, as for delight.

and drink] Or, shall, or, may drink: as before.

the waters of his own cistern] Or, the water (see chap.1.22.) of his own pit: as Leviticus 11. 36. Jeremiah 14. 3. such as they had usually neer unto their houses, for store of water, that they might have it, upon all occasions, ready at hand, alluded unto, Prov.5.15.

V. 17. Untill I come, and take you away to a land like your own land] Untill I see good to remove you hence, as Salmanesser did your brethren of the other ten Tribes, 2 Kings 17. 6. and 18.12. This being the manner of Conquerors, in those times, to remove the natives of a land conquered, into some other countrey, placing others in their stead, to keep them the quieter, and to put them out of hope, by rising, to recover their own again.

take you away to a land] Heb. take you to a land, for take you, and carry you unto a land: a defective, or comprehensive speech, including two several notions in one term. So Gen. 29. 9. take me(for, take, and bring me) two kids, Num.11.16. take them (for, take, and bring them) unto the Tabernacle, Prov. 25. 22. take coals (for, take, and heap coals) on his head, Ezek. 17. 5. he took (for, he took, and placed, or set it) by great waters, Hos.12.3. he took them(for, he took, and carried them)on his arms. So the words would there be rendred. See of the like, chap. 38. 17,21.

a land of corn and wine, a land of bread, and vineyards] A land that hath plenty of these commodities; as the land of Canaan had, Deut.8. 8. 9.

wine] Heb. new wine, or, sweet wine, Chapter 24.7.

V. 18. Beware lest Hezekiah perswade you] A defective speech, See the like Gene. 3. 22. Deuter. 8. 12. Job 36. 18. Ier. 51.46.

perswade you] Or, seduce you; or beguile you, as Jeremiah 38. 22.

saying, the Lord will deliver us] See on v.15.

Hath any of the Gods of the Nations delivered his land out of the hand of the King of Assyria?]Either this King, or other his predecessors.ch.37.11,12, 19.

V. 19. Where are the Gods of Hamath, and Arphad ?] What is become of them? See Chapter 37.19.or, Where were they, to wit, when they should have saved those that served them? but indeed could not save themselves. See Chap. 47.1.

Hamath and Arphad] Of these places, see ch. 10.9.

where are the gods of Sepharvaim?] See 2 Kings 17.24. whereby it appeareth, that this place (and so in likelihood the other also here mentioned) was not subdued by Sennacherib, (though he vainly arrogate the subduing of them to himself, verse 20.) but before his time, by Salmanesser, or some other of his ancestors.

and have they delivered Samaria out of my hand?] Or, or have the gods of Samaria delivered it out of my hand? or could they deliver it, &c. the copulative in a disjunctive notion: as ch.17.8. the indicative in a potential: as Job 37.23.v.9. and a supply from the former branches, as ch.10.5.

V. 20. Who are they amongst all the Gods of these lands, that have delivered their land out of my hand, that the Lord should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?] He boasteth arrogantly of what had been done by others, (see verse 19.) and impiously yoaketh the living God with dumb idols, as of no more power then they. So Chapter 10.15.

have delivered] Or, could deliver: as ver.19.

V.21. But they held their peace, and answered not a word; for the Kings commandement was, saying, Answer him not] But. Heb. And: as v.7.they held their peace; both the Kings Messengers, and the People also, 2 Kings 18.36.

not a word] Or, ought: as Jer. 26.2. not that they said, nothing at all to him; for to what end then went they out, but that they made no answer to these his vain glorious vaunts and blasphemous menaces: the king having before hand given them instructions to the contrary, as well wotting that to debate, and argue thereabout with him, would but encite him to further outrage. See Prov. 9.7,8. & 26.4. Amos 5.13.

the Kings commandement was] Heb. it, for, was: the pronoun for the verb substantive: as ch.34.16. & 43.10,13.

V. 22. Then came Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, that was over the household, and Shebna the Scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph the Recorder, to Hezekiah, with their clothes rent, and told him the words of Rabshakeh] Heb. And: as v.12.See v.3.

with their clothes rent] Heb. rent of clothes: as 2 Sam.13,31.& 15. 32. Jer.41.5. See the like Syntax, Chap.63.1. Either in the detestation of the blasphemies uttered by Rabshakeh; as the High-Priest on the like pretence. Mat.26.65. or, out of perplexity of mind, and extremity of grief, arising as well from the consideration of their own distress, as of the dishonour also done unto God: for this renting on such occasions was very usual, Gen.37.34.2 Sam. 1.11.& 3. 31.& 13.19. Joel 2.13 Ier.ch.37.1. The Iewish Doctors would hence gather, that Rabshakeh was a Jew by birth: because say they, the Jews manner was not to rent their clothes, upon the hearing of any blasphemer, unlesse he were a Jew. But neither doth it by the text appear, that they tare their clothes at that very time, when he so blasphemed, but rather afterward, when they were come away from him: nor is there any good ground brought to prove such a restraint of that their demeanure: and the Apostles practice may seem to control it, Acts 14.14. See of Rabshakeh, further before, on v. 2. and of the heavy plight of these messengers, ch. 33.7.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Vers. 1. AND it came to passe, when King Hezekiah heard it, that he rent his clothes, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the Lord] This Chapter is the same in substance, with 2 Kings 19. It relateth Ezekiah's carriage upon the report of Sennacheribs message, delivered by Rabshakeh, ver. 1-5. Gods gracious answer returneth thereupon, verse 6, 7. A second message of Sennacherib sent in writing, ver.8-13. what Ezekiah did therewith, v.14-20. Gods second answer thereupon, v.21-35. The destruction of Sennacheribs hoast, by an Angel, v.36. of himself, by his sons, ver.37,38.

it came to pass, that] Heb. it was, —— and: as Chapter 3. 2.

heard it] A defect of the pronoun: as ch.31.5.v.9.

rent his clothes] In token of extream grief: as his messengers before him, ch. 36. 22.

covered himself with sackcloth] Heb. sackes which God by the present judgment, called for, chap. 22.12. a further expression of inward regret, humiliation, and repentance, 1 King.21.27,29. Ion.3.6. this being the usual mourning weed in those times. See Chap. 15.3.

went into the house of the Lord]Unto the Temple, to pray there where God had promised to hear, 1 Kings 8.18,19.& 9.3. 2 Chr.7. 15,16. (as Heathen people and Princes used in such cases for such purposes, to repair to the Temples of their gods, Chap. 15.2. & 16.12.) and to perform that office in person himself, which he required in his behalf, and in the behalf of the whole estate, from the Prophet Esay and others, v.4.So 2 Chr.20.3,5,6.Est.4.16. Ion. 4.6,7.

V.2. And he sent Eliakim, who was over the household, and Shebnah the Scribe, and the Elders of the Priests, covered with sackcloth unto Isaiah, the Prophet, the son of Amoz] He rested not in his own performances, but sends to request the assistance of others Gods Prophet more especially, in prayer. See Jer.21.1,2. So Paul himself, Rom.15.30.2 Cor. 1.10,11. Eph.6.18, 19. Col.4.3.2 Thess. 3.1.

Eliakim, and Shebna] Two in chief place about him, See chapter 36.3.

the Elders of the Priests] As those other two of the chief in the civill State; so those in the Ecclesiastical, called the Elders of the people, Numb.11. 16.1 Sam.15.30.chapter 3.14. called also the Elders of the congregation, Levit.4.15.and, of the land, 1 Kings 20.7.and, of Judah, or Israel, in general, 2 Chr. 5.4. & 34.29. So the Centurion procured the Elders of the Jews, to repair, in his behalf, to Christ, Luke 7.3. covered with sackcloth] In mourning apparrel. See verse 1.

Isaiah the son of Amoz] See chapter.1.1.

V. 3. And they said unto him, Thus saith Hezekiah, This day is a day of trouble, and of rebuke, and of blasphemy] A day, for, a time: as ch.26.1.

of trouble] Or, distresse, or streights: as chapter 33.2.

rebuke] Whereby God rebuketh us for our sins: as Job 33.19.Psl. 39.11. Hos. 5.9. or, taunting, and reviling, wherewith the enemy taunteth and reviileth both God, and us, verse 4. Hab.2.1. and so rather here.

blasphemy] Or, provocation, Ezekiah 35.12.or contempt, or reproach, Neh.9.18,26. See Chapter 5.24.

for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth] We are in great distresse and extream difficulties, out of which we are by no means able to wind our selves; resembled here by the condition of a woman that hath hard labour, hath been long in fore travel, but cannot be delivered, her own strength being quite spent, and that the gooth with so feeble, that it cannot work for it self, to procure, or further its own delivery. See ch.26, 17,18.

birth] Heb. breach, or breaking place: the mouth of the matrice; the neerer whereunto, the fruit of the womb approacheth, the stronger and sharper the pains are. So the word I rather suppose to signifie, with the most part of the Jewish Interpreters, then as some other of them, who would have it to be the stool, spoken of, Exod.1. 16. See ch.66.9. Hos.13.13.

V.4. It may be the Lord thy God will hear the words of Rabshakeh, whom the King of Assyria his Master hath sent to reproach the living God, and will reprove the words which the Lord thy God hath heard] It may be God, though not in regard of us, who by our sins have deservedly brought these evils upon our selves, yet in tender regard to his own honour and Majesty, which these wicked wretches thus abuse and insult over, and will do so much more, if they prevail further against us, will beinduced to shew mercy unto us, and vindicate his own honour, by delivering of us. The argument that Gods own people were wont anciently to plead with, in the like cases: See Num.14.13-16 Josh.7.9. Psalm 74.18,23.& 89.50,51.& 115.1,2. and God himself professeth oft times to have had special regard hereunto, in the sparing of his people, Deut.32.26,27,36 38. verse 35.ch.48.11.Ezek.20.8,9,13,14,22.& 36.20,21,22.

the Lord thy God] Not only the God whom thou worshippest, or servest, as his servant at large: as Dan.3.17.18. but the God whom thou in a more special manner belongest unto, as his Prophet. So 1 Sam.15.21.1 Kings 17.1.

will hear] Not that he doubted whether God had heard him; for he could not be ignorant (of what he also afterwards implies) that there is in every place, as an eye of God seeing, Prov. 15.3 so an ear of God hearing, as well bad, as good, Psalm 94.7,9.but to hear, is here to take notice of, and to make it by some special sign, or work, to appear, that he so doth, Psalm 4. 1.& 65.5. & 86, 17 for when God forbears to right the wrongs offered to his people, and indignities done to him: he, he seems, in the eyes of flesh and blood, not to hear, or to regard either, Psalm 22.1.& 44.23,24.& 94. 7.ch.40.27.& 49.14.

and will reprove the words] Will convince them of folly and vanity, by shewing, that he can do, what they say he cannot do, ch. 36.20. as he convinced Nebuchadnezzars words, by delivering his three servants, Dan.3.15,17. So the word is used, Job 6.25,26. And so the Chaldee here taketh it, and some of the Jewish Doctors. But the words may be referred to the King of Assyria, and his messengers, their language; and read, as thus knit, to the former, to reproach the living God, and to taunt us, or and to taunt, (simply, to wit, the living God, as before,) with the words that the Lord hath heard. See verse 3. and this way, besides some of the Rabbines, go, the ancient Greek Interpreters, the old Latine, and divers others. So some take the word, as Job 15.3. and so there is a defect, of the particle instrumental; like that, Psalm 17.13, 14. so of the other before the verb infinitive, to taunt, but supplyed from the former branch. Which yet also will not need if with one of the Jewish Commenters, whom a learned late Writer therein secondeth, we render the text, and hath evinced, or demonstrated, (endeavoured at least to so do) by such words, as the Lord hath heard. So he supposeth the word to be taken, Gen. 24. 14, 44. and 31. 42.

wherefore lift up thy prayer for the remnant that is left] Wherefore. Heb. And: as ch.29. 13.

Lift up prayer] Because voice, heart, and hand, are wont all to be lift up in earnest prayer, 2 Chron.32.20.Psalm 141.2.Lam. 3. 41.

thy prayer] Not without good ground required of Gods Prophet, whole office it is as well to be the tongue of Gods people, by prayer to God for them, 1 Sam.12.23.as to be Gods mouth to them, by delivering his word to them, ler. 15.19.Mal.2.7.Acts 6. 4. a defect of the pronouns: ch.30.23.

for the remnant] For a great part of the land was surprised and spoiled by the enemies forces already. See Ch. 33.8.and 36.1.over, and besides the ten Tribes, gone before into captivity, 2 Kings 17.6.& 18.11. which (some suppose also here respected; but see v 32.

that is left] Heb. that is found: that is still in being. So 2 Kings 25. 19.

V. 5. So the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah] Heb. And, (as 2 Kings 3.9.the servants of the King, (as also v.1.) his courtier before mentioned, verse 2.

V. 6. And Isaiah said unto them; Thus shall ye say, unto your Master; Thus saith the Lord, Be not afraid of the words which thou hast heard, wherewith the servants of the King of Assyria have blasphemed me] Thus shal ye say, or Thus say: as the imperative for the future, ch.26.16.for the future for the imperative: as Gen.32.4.1 Sam.11.9. of the words] Heb. from the face of the words. So 2 Chr.20.15.& 30.17. thou hast heard] By the report of thy messengers, v.1. and I much more immediately by my self, verse 4.

the servants] The word here used, is, in his native sense, a name of age, and signifieth a boy, or a youth, Gen.37.2.& 41.12. Chap. 5.5.& 7.16. & 8 5. but because such are usually under the government, and the command of their Elders, hence both it, and the words in Greek and Latine, anfwering it, are used as terms of state & condition, for a servant, Judg.7.11.1 Sam.9.22.Est. 2.2.Acts 4.25. in both notions together, it is found used of one, and the same person, 2 Kings 9.4. the young man, the Prophets Servant, (so the words would there be rendred) one that attended upon Eliseus, as Eliseus did upon Elias, 2 Kings 3.11. In the latter notion it is here taken: yet it may well be here, not without some privy nip; when God useth this term of ambiguous notion, that might as well import his boys, as his servants, instead of that used else-where of them, 2 Chron. 32.16.

blasphemed] Or, reproached as it is rendred, Numb.15.30 ch.43. 28.& 51.7.or reviled because this, and reproaching, are distinctly used, Majesty, which these wicked wretches thus abuse and insult over, and will do so much more, if they prevail further against us, will beinduced to shew mercy unto us, and vindicate his own honour, by delivering of us. The argument that Gods own people were wont anciently to plead with, in the like cases: See Num.14.13-16 Josh.7.9. Psalm 74.18,23.& 89.50,51.& 115.1,2. and God himself professeth oft times to have had special regard hereunto, in the sparing of his people, Deut.32.26,27,36 38. verse 35.ch.48.11.Ezek.20.8,9,13,14,22.& 36.20,21,22.

the Lord thy God] Not only the God whom thou worshippest, or servest, as his servant at large: as Dan.3.17.18. but the God whom thou in a more special manner belongest unto, as his Prophet. So 1 Sam.15.21.1 Kings 17.1.

will hear] Not that he doubted whether God had heard him; for he could not be ignorant (of what he also afterwards implies) that there is in every place, as an eye of God seeing, Prov. 15.3 so an ear of God hearing, as well bad, as good, Psalm 94.7,9.but to hear, is here to take notice of, and to make it by some special sign, or work, to appear, that he so doth, Psalm 4. 1.& 65.5. & 86, 17 for when God forbears to right the wrongs offered to his people, and indignities done to him: he, he seems, in the eyes of flesh and blood, not to hear, or to regard either, Psalm 22.1.& 44.23,24.& 94. 7.ch.40.27.& 49.14.

and will reprove the words] Will convince them of folly and vanity, by shewing, that he can do, what they say he cannot do, ch. 36.20. as he convinced Nebuchadnezzars words, by delivering his three servants, Dan.3.15,17. So the word is used, Job 6.25,26.

Isaiah, and shall bear a rumour] Of this rumour, see v.9. though some would have it meant, of the tydings brought him of the slaughter made in his Army, verf.36.

and he shall return to his own land] See verf.37. that which also he began to do, upon the former report. See v.8.

and he shall fall by the sword in his own land] That is, he slain with it: as chap 31.15.see the complement, v.38.

V.8. So Rabshakeh returned] Heb. And; as ver.5. Whether he went back with that great Army, wherewith he came before Jerusalem, rusalem, chap.36.2. some make it a question: there seems to me no likelihood, that he should so do, because it appears not, that he returned to his master, for any other end, save to acquaint him, what issue his parley had with them of Jerusalem, and to receive instructions how to proceed further with them; for which purpose, his own return, with some small retinue, was sufficient: nor was his Masters second message likely to take any effect with Ezekiah, when the forces were withdrawn, that did formerly affright him.

and found the King of Assyria warring against Libnah] This Libnah was a royal city, having a King of her own, before the Conquest of Canaan, Josh.12.15. after the conquest whereof, it fell by lot to the tribe of Judah, Josh.15.42. & was one of those cities, which out of that tribe were assigned unto the Levites, Josh.21.13. It had some time revolted from Judah, under Joram, 2 Kings 8.22. 2 Chron.21. 10. but was, it seems, after recovered again, though by what King of Judah, is uncertain. It seems to have been situate not far from Lachish, Josh.10.31.

for he had heard that he was departed from Lachish] From whence he had before dispatched him, with two other Commanders, and a great part of his army, unto Jerusalem: though whether having first taken it (as most conceives, and seems not unlikely) or no, is not expressed. But concerning the occasion of his removal from thence to Libnah, divers conjectural reasons are rendred. Some say, he cause Libnah stood more towards Egypt, thereby to stop the passage of any aid from thence. Others, that he might make towards Tirhakah, that was coming against him. I suppose rather, to make his approaches neerer to Jerusalem, with the residue of the forces which he retained still with him. So that as Joshuah, moving from Jerusalem-ward, and clearing the coast before him, went from Libnah to Lachish, Josh.10.29,31. So Sennacherib making onward toward Jerusalem, went from Lachish to Libnah. Mean while those of ours are very wide, who make Libnah here to be Pelusium, a city of Egypt, misled by Joseph the Jew, who in the tenth of his Antiquities, Chap.1. misrelateth this story, affirming, that Sennacherib having taken all the cities of Judah and Benjamin, save Jerusalem only, sent Rabshakeh, and some other with him, to take in Jerusalem, but went himself, in person, into Egypt, where lying in siege before Pelusium, news was brought him of the Ethiopian forces coming against him, to aid the Egyptians: for fear of whom, breaking up his Camp there, and returning into Judea, he found his forces lest in those parts, destroyed by the plague. Which relation varieth much from the sacred story, as that Author too oft doth.

V.9. And he heard say concerning Tirhakah, King of Ethiopia, he is come forth to make war with thee] To wit, Sennacherib lying before Libnah, had such tydings brought him, whether true indeed, as those that came to Saul; and diverted him from the pursuit of David, 1 Sam.23.27,28. or raised upon some vain and groundless surmise, as befell the Syrians sometime at the siege of Samaria, 2 Kings 7.6. is not certain. Whether of the twain it were, certain it is, that it put him into thoughts of leaving Judea, and withdrawing of his forces thence, with what speed he might.

Tirhakah] The Greeks and Latines call him Tharaks, and Tarachus, and Eusebius telleth us, that he was an Ethiopian, but King of Egypt, which seems not so well to a cord with the words of the Prophet in this place; he seems to have been the same with that, Ethiopian King, of whom Strabo speaks in his Geography, lib.2 and 15. by the name of Tearchon, or Tarchon: for that termination, the Greeks use much in proper names, whence Tefnas, Tafon, 2 Mac.2. 24. and Sarne, Sargon, Chap.20.1. Josephi, more corruptly then any other, unless his copies be corrupted, calleth him Tharsices, or Tharsicus.

King of Ethiopia] Not of Egypt, as Eusebius, and some other from him. Heb. of Chush: whereof see, on chap.11.11.

he is come forth] Or, gone out: a term used commonly of warlike expeditions, as 2 Sam.2.13. & 11.1. Psalm 60.9. chap.42.14. Ier.4.7.

to make war with thee] Either by coming to assist the Iewes, as chap.20.5,6. or by invading the Assyrians own country in his absence, while his principal forces were in foreign employment; which seems the more likely of the twain, because it put him into thoughts of looking home.

and when he heard it, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying] Yet before he would withdraw his forces that lay before Jerusalem, or depart the country, as he was resolved to do, he thought good to make tryal whether Ezekiah, whom by the somewhat over-base demeanour of some of his messengers (see ch.36.11.) and his own former submiss carriage (2 Kings 18 14.)he surmised to be well neer utterly quailed, would, upon a second summons, suddenly give all up, or no.

and when he heard it; he sent] Heb. and he heard, and sent. The like structure, see Ruth 2.9. chap.30 30.& 35.4. and the like defect of the pronoun, ver.1.

messengers] Whether the same, that before, or some other, is not certain: the latter more likely; but the message the same.

saying] Not by word of mouth, but by writing: see ver. 14. as Zachary, yet speechless, wrote, saying, Luke 1.63. whence an ancient Father, proveth writing to be speaking, against those of his times, who deemed their subscriptions no denial of their Christian profession.

V.10. Thus shall ye speak unto Hezekiah, King of Judah, saying,] The instructions given by him, to his messengers, are related, as spoken to them; but were indeed delivered to them in writing, to be delivered by their hands to Ezekiah, as a letter from him, though not directed to him, as if he scorned to grace him, so much as to write to him; but had sent him only a copy of the instructions, that he had given his messengers, whereby he might sufficiently understand his mind. See ver.14.

Let not thy God, in whom thou trustest, deceive thee, saying, Jerusalem shall not be given into the hand of the King of Assyria] See cha. 36.14,15.

thy God] As if he were the God of that nation alone, and had a finite and circumscribed power, exercised only among that people. So the Syrians speak of God, 1 Kings 20. 23. and some such conceit, the Iewish Doctors suppose, that Jonas had, Ion.1.3.

V.11. Behold thou hast heard what the Kings of Assyria have done unto all lands, by destroying them utterly; and shalt thou be delivered?] See Chap.36.19,20. & 10.13,14.

destroying them utterly] See chap.11.15. them, that is, their Inhabitants: so ver.18:

V.12. Have the Gods of the Nations delivered them, which my fathers have destroyed? Or, could the Gods of the Nations, whom my fathers destroyed, deliver them? See on chap.36 20.

as Gozan] A City of the Medes, so called of the river, beside which it was seated, 2 Kings 17.6. & 18.11. by Ptolomy termed, Gauzanata.

and Haran] A City of Mesopotamia, called also, Charran, Gen.11.31. Act.7.4. it is joyned with Eden and Assur, Ezek.27.23. and by Lucan, is termed, an Assyrian city.

and Rezeph] A city of the same region; in Ptolomy, called Resapha.

and the children of Eden which were in Telassar] Children, that is, Inhabitants, or Natives; as chap.11.14. Ier.2.16. of Eden, a region in Mesopotamia; or, as some, in Chaldea, but the former name, seems sometime to include also the latter. (See Acts 7.2. with Gen.11. 31.) so called from the delightsomness of it: for the word, it self signifies delicacy, or delight, Psalm 36.8. Chap. 47.8. in the Easterne part thereof was that pleasant Garden, or Paradise seated, wherein our first parents at first were placed, Gen. 2. 8. See Ezekiel 27. 23.

Telassar] Some, with one of the Chaldee Paraphrasts, would have this to be Resen, a city mentioned, Gen.10.12. Others, that Seleucia, of which Strabo, lib.11. Some remains of the ancient name of it, seem to continue in the term, Thelda, found in Ptolomy; and Thilutha, mentioned by Marcellinus, l.24. a place of great strength, situate on an Island, in the midst of the river Euphrates: which yet, whether so called, as some would have it, or if it were Tell-Assur, that is, a bank, set to keep out the Assyrian, may deservedly be doubted: nor want those, who suppose it to be the same with Elassar, Gen.14.1. Of the term Tell, in the name of this, and divers other towns and cities, see on Ier.30.18.

V.13. where is the King of Hamath, and the King of Arphad, and the King of the City of Sepharvaim, Henah, and Ivah?] Before he spake of their Gods, now of their Kings; whom their Gods, or Idols rather, could not save: nor can I accord with that learned Critick, who would have Melec, here, to be the same with Moloc, not a King, but an Idol. See Chap.36.19. and of Hamath, and Arphad: See chap.10.9. & 11.11. 1 Chr.18.9. Ier.49.23.

Henah and Ivah] These two, though omitted, chap. 36. 19. yet were before mentioned also in the first message, 2 Kings 18.34. what places they were is very uncertaine, little mention being made of them, save in this Assyrian Embassie. Some resemblance of the one of them, to wit, of Hena, some deem to be found, in the term Ingilene (for the last letter of it, the Greeks express oft, by G. see on chap.1.9.) the name of a territory bordering upon Mesopotamia, whence the Heretikes, called Angelici, are by some deemed to have had their denomination. See Epiphanius, Hæresie, 60. though some other suppose it to be Ange, a city of Arabia the fertile, mentioned by Ptolomy. The other of them called Ivah here, seemes to be the same with that, which is termed Avah, 2 Kings 17.24. which some would have to be the land of the Avits, who dwelt sometimes in the Philistines country, until driven from thence, they seated themselves, as they think, in Arabia, the desart. See Deut.2.23. for as those Avits, mentioned, Josh. 13. 3. divers, both of Iewish Writers, and ours, deem them to be no other, then the Hivits, Exod.23.23. one letter being put there for another.

V.14. And Hezekiah received the letter from the hands of the messengers, and read it:] Hence it appears, that the message it self, was sent to him in writing; though it be not unlikely, that the messengers, as occasion was, would, by words of mouth, be pressing the same things. See ver.9,10.

letter] Heb. books; 2 Kings 5.5-7. Ier.29.1. in the plural, as here, 1 Kings 21.8. 2 Kings 10.1. & 20.12.

went up] Because it stood on high, and they went to it by degrees, Chap.2.3. Ezek.40.6. or, simply went thither, as ver.1. See Chap.7. 1,6. So Chap.28.22.

and spread it before the Lord] Not that God might read it, as himself had done; as if otherwise he could not have notice of it, or were not sufficiently acquainted with it already; but that by the tender of it thus, as before Gods face, he might express the earnestness of his desire, that God would be pleased to take special notice of it, and to induce him the rather so to do. A learned Interpreter rendreth it, and he read it before the Lord: and a word, almost the same with that here used, differing onely in the diverse placing of a point (as Sibboleth, and Shibboleth, Judg.12.6.) signifies sometime, to expound, Neh.8.8. whence some have thought, that the Pharisees had their name; but neither is that here used, nor is either of them found used for to read.

V.15. And Hezekiah prayed unto the Lord, saying] Heb. before the Lord: as Psalm 4.2.

V.16. O Lord of Hosts, God of Israel] See Chap.1.9. & 17. 6. & 45.15.

that dwellest between the Cherubims] Who dost in a conspicuous manner, exhibite and manifest thy self, in thy Temple, as in thy Palace, the place of thy residence among thy people, and in it, more specially, upon thine Ark, therein placed, as on thy Throne, or Seat of Estate, where thou wilt be convened, and sought unto; and from whence thou hast promised to hear, and to help, Exod. 25. 22. Num. 7. 89. 2. Chron. 7.15. Psalm 20.2,6. & 68.28,29. & 80.2.

dwellest] Heb. sittest, as on thy Royal Seat, or Chair of Estate; as 1 Kings 1.13. Psalm 9.4. or dwellest, as on thy Palace, 2 Sam.7.2. Psalm 132.13,14.

between the Cherubims] Or, Cherubim, or Cherubs; for one note of plurality sufficeth. See Seraphim, Chap.6.2. The word Cherub, is of doubtful, both original, and signification. Some suppose, that both this, and the word Seraph, do in the first place signifie those celestial spirits, that minister unto, and attend upon the most High, the Soveraign Lord of heaven and earth; and it seems to be, not improbable, for what other could, or should be those so termed? Gen.3.24. Ezek.10.3,8,9. Though I conceive not on what ground it should be affirmed, as by some it is, that either of their knowledge; or the abundance of it, they should be so termed, there being somewhat indeed in the word, that may signifie abundance, nothing that hath any notion of knowledge. But the word here, as also in the story of the furniture of the Sanctuary, and elsewhere, is most commonly used, for certain symbolical images, whereby those celestial Ministers, were in a bodily shape represented, 1 Sam.25.18, 19. & 26.1,31. 1 King.6.23,32,35. That they had a resemblance of some living creature, cannot be doubted. For mention is made of their wings, Exod.25.20. 1 King.6.24. And some would have them to have been winged Calves, or oxen; because that which is called, the face of a calf, or an ox, Ezek. 1.10. is called the face of a Cherub, Ezek.10.14. Others, and so most of the Iewish Doctors; suppose them to have been, as we decipher them, like winged boys: and their Criticks, some of them, would have them so termed, from the particle of similitude; and the word rabes or rabia, that signifies a boy: for the figure they give them, it is not improbable; but for the notation of the word, there is little likelihood of it: the word though in Chaldee and Syriack, so signifying, yet in Hebrew never so used. Nor do I suppose, that any instance of the like composition can be produced. The first letter seems radical, and the word to have been deduced from some Hebrew root, though now unknown. That seems more probable, that some other have, who suppose, that by a transposition of letters, (whereof many instances may in the Hebrew be given,) the word Cherub, may be deduced from the word Rechab, that signifies a chariot, both, for that the Cherubs, or Angels, are called Gods chariots, Psal. 68. 17. and God is said to come riding on a Cherub, as a Prince, or Commander on his horse, or in his chariot, Psal.18.10. and that the name of a chariot, is expressly given to the Cherubs, here mentioned, 1 Chr.28.18. for they are those two that stood fixed on the lid of the Ark, called the Propitiatory, Exod.25.18,19. from whence God spake to Moses, Num.7.89.

dwellest between the cherubim] The word between, is not here in the Text, nor in any of those places, where this phrase is used, 1 Sam.4.4. 2 Sam.6.2. 2 King.19.15. Psal.80.2. So that it is no more in the text, then that sittest the Cherubs, or, dwellest (that is, inhabitest) the cherubs; sittest on them: as he is said, to stand over them Exek.10.18. or, to abide among, or between them, as he is said, to speak from between them. Num.7 89,9. a representation of his Majestical presence, among his glorious Troops in heavenland I should choose rather to render it, that resideth, then (as the Greeks and Latine) that sitteth; because the Ark, on the lid whereof these Cherubs were fixed, is called Gods footstool. Psal.99.5.

ye thou art the God, even thou alone, of all the Kingdoms of the earth] And, not of ours only, as Sennacherib supposeth, ver.10. Ch.10. 10,11. See Psal.103.19. and Nebuchadnezzars confession, Dan.4. 17,32,34,35.

thou hast] Heb. thou he: the pronoun for the verb substantive: as Chap.9.15. & 43.10 13. ver.19.

thou alone] Deut.6.4. Psal.86.10. Chap.43.10,11.

thou hast made heaven and earth,] The peculiar character of the true God; whereby he is distinguished from all counterfeit gods, Psal. 96. 5. & 146. 6. Chap. 42. 5. & 45. 24. Jer. 10. 11, 12. & 32.17.

V.17. Incline thine ear, O Lord, and hear; open thine eyes, O Lord, and see,] Hear their words, and behold his letter, ver.14. that is make it by some act and work to appear, that thou hast heard the one, and seen the other, and taken notice of either. So Dan.9.18. See on ver.4.

Incline thine ear] A metaphor taken from those, that bow down the head to listen to such as speak to them, from below, and in special manner therefore attributed to God, whom, as sitting aloft in the highest heavens, Chap.57.15. & 66.1. we speak unto, from here below, Eccl.5.2. so Psal.31.2. Dan.9.18. yet is it used more largely for as God is said to incline his ear unto us, so are we said to incline our ear, also, to him. See Chap.55.3.

and hear all the words of Sennacherib, which hath sent to reproach the living God] Or, who hath sent: because it is spoken of a person. Or, and of him, whom he hath sent, as some render it, to wit, of Rabshakeh, Chap.36.1. ver.4. See 2 King.19.16. but the former seems the better, because it needs no supply, nor is any defect apparent: for Rabshakeh's words were his Masters, delivered in his name, ch.36.4. beside, that Ezekiah in this clause seems rather to have respect to the contents of the present letter, then to the words of the former message, which he laid open to God before, ver.1.4. The words may be read, wherewith he hath sent to reproach the living God, see ver.4.

V.18. Of a truth, Lord, the Kings of Assyria have laid waste all the Nations, and their Countries] Heb. Verily, Lord, &c.

all the Nations] Before mentioned. So it is, 2 King.19 17. but the Hebrew text here hath it, all the lands; lands, for nations of those lands, as it is more fully expressed, 2 Chr 32.13,17. So ver.11. See Chap.66.8. And there is in the words, a fylleptical, or comprehensive forme of speech; whereby two divers notions, are in one word comprized; the one expressed, the other implyed, and to be supplyed, to make the sense up entire; when it is said, have laid waste nations and countries, for, destroyed the nations, and laid waste their countries. See the like, Exod 20.18. they saw the thunderings, and the lightnings, and the sound of the trumpet, for, they saw the one, and heard the other, Luke 1. 64. his mouth opened, and his tongue that opened, this loosed, 1 Cor.3.2. I made you drink milk, not meat; for, drink milk, eat meat, 1 Tim.2.12. I permit not a woman to teach, but to be in silence; permit not the one, command the other, 1 Tim.4.3. forbidding to marry, to abstain from meats; inhibiting the one, enjoyning the other.

and their countries] Heb. countrey, or land, taken collectively, for countries, or lands; or distributively rather, for the countrey and land of each of them.

V.19. And have cast their gods into the fire] Heb. giving, for, giving have given: a defective form, as Chap 59.13. that is, have surely given, or cast; (as the more usual phrase is, Judg 1.8. & 20. 48. Psal.7.47. in all which places, yet there is an hypallage, or a kind of transposition) their gods (that is, their idols: as Psal. 96.5.) into the fire: as David dealt with the Philistines gods, 2 Sam.5.21. giving into the fire, for, casting into the fire: as Ezek.15.4,6.

for they were no gods] Heb. they no gods, for, they were no gods: the pronoun for the verb substantive: as ver.16. no gods, 2 Chron. 13.9. Gal.6.8.

but the works of mens hands, wood, and stone, therefore they have destroyed them.] So Psal.115.4. & 135.15. Chap.40.19, 20. & 44. 12-17. Ier.10.3,4. Dan.5.4,23. He mentioneth those, the rather, of the baser matter, because those the enemy less regarded, and therefore burnt them; whereas they made booty of those that were of that more precious, chap.46.1. See Jer.43.12.

V.20. Now therefore, O Lord, our God, save us from his hand] Heb. And now: as Chap.36.5. behold, for power: as chap.36.15, 18. do thou that for us, that then gods could not do for them, ver.12.

that all the Kingdoms of the earth may know that thou art the Lord, even thou, only.] Psal.83 18 Chap.59.19. See ver.16. thou, thou only: as, thee, thee only, Psal.51.4. the gemination makes the sentence the more vigorous.

V.21. Thus Isaiah the son of Amoz sent unto Hezekiah, saying] Heb. And: as Chap.36.22. sent, in likelihood, by some messengers, that the king had sent unto him, as before, ver.2. to understand whether he had any further word of answer from God. See Jer. 37.17.

Thus saith the Lord God of Israel] So stiled here, in way of opposition to those forry gods, of other nations, as before, ver.16.

whereas thou hast prayed to me against Sennacherib King of Assyria] Or, what thou hast prayed unto me for, against the King of Assyria, I have heard: so it is, 2 Kings 19 20. and the word here used, though of more general extent in the use of it, yet in its original, having a notion of judicature in it, whence the ambiguity of it, Psa. 106.30. signifies properly, such a prayer, wherein a man, though in all submiss and lowly manner, doth as it were desire the case with God, and plead the equity of that, which he sueth unto him for. Such are those of Moses, Num.14.13 19. of Joshuah, Josh.7.7.9. such are divers in the book of Psalms, Psalm 7.8. & 10. & 13. & 74. & 88.& 89.& 115. and such is this of Ezekiah; and the word therefore is very significantly here used; as also againe, Chap. 38. 2. Some joyne the words thus to the former, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, to whom thou hast prayed. See the like syntax, chap. 49.23.

V.22. This is the word which the Lord hath spoken concerning him:] In way of answer to thy latter prayer, ver.15-20. or, as some, This is the thing (word, for thing, as Eccl.8.3.) that God commandeth, to be returned in way of answer, to him; but this seemes to be overstraitned.

concerning him] Or, against him; as Ier.49.1,7.

The virgin the daughter of Zion hath despised thee, and hath laughed thee to scorn; the daughter of Jerusalem hath shaken her head at thee] Or, the Virgin, daughter of Zion, despiseth thee, and derideth thee; the daughter of Jerusalem shaketh the head at thee. Some understand the words, as spoken, not of the Inhabitants of Jerusalem, scorning and deriding Sennacherib; but of his scoffing and scorning them, thus rendring the text, He hath despised thee, and mocked thee, O virgin daughter of Zion, he hath shaken his head at thee, O daughter of Jerusalem. But the text will not bear it; for the pronouns are masculine, the verbs feminine.

virgin daughter of Zion] Some suppose the term of virgin to be here given unto the city of Jerusalem, because she had not hitherto been surprised or forced by any forreign power. But neither is that true; for Joash, King of Israel, took it, and pillaged it in Amaziah's reign, 2 Kings 14.13,14. nor doth it seem to be the true notion of this title, being given to other places, whereof that cannot be said: Howsoever the Jewish Criticks say, that it is always to be so taken, where it is applyed to place or people. Others, therefore, would have it given to the Jewish people, the Inhabitants of Jerusalem, as to Gods Church, which he had as a chast virgin espoused to himself, chap.54.5. Hos.2.19,20. 2 Chron.11.2. Rev.14.4. and had as great care of, as any man or woman had of a darling daughter, abiding yet under their wing, chap.49.15,16. Zach. 2.5, 8. but considering, the same term is given, even by this Prophet also, to other people; as to Sidon, chap.23.12. and to Babylon, chap.47.1. I suppose, it would rather be rendred, damsel, a term given to those states as in beauty, bravery, fatelinesse, and delicacy, resembling a damsel of noble birth, and according to her parentage, curiously edu.ated. But of the title, fee more, on chap.1.8. & 23.12.

daughter of Jerusalem] As before of Zion: for the place it self, or the Inhabitants of it; as Ier.4.13. Sion, and Jerusalem, the same, as chap.1 27. for as for thole, that by the daughter of Sion, would have understood the people of the upper city, by the daughter of Jerusalem, the people of the lower city, it is over-nice; nor accordeth with those other places of the Prophet, where both termes are likewise used, chap.2.3. & 4.3,4. & 10.12,32. & 24.23. & 31.4,5,9. as also is that of a learned Writer, who by the daughter of Babel, Zach.2.11. would have understood the region or territory of Babylon, whereof Babel was as the mother, because inferiour towns are commonly called daughters, in relation to their mother city, Iosh. 15.31,36,41.

shaken her head] Heb the head, as Psalm 22.7. they shake the head: which yet is more fully, 1 Sam 109.25. and Lam.2.15. they shake their head: and so is not amiss here rendred, he shaketh his head: but then her should be in a diverse character, to note a defect of the pronoun, as Deut.25.12. and as ver.23. As he sometime shook his hand, in menacing manner, at her, chap.10.32. so shall he shortly shake her head in scorn and derision at him: see Jer.18.16. Mat. 27.39.

at thee] Heb. after thee: When instead of thine hands, wherewith thou beganst that thou wouldst do great matters, verse 24. thou shalt be glad to betake thy self to thine heels, and to turn thy back to her; a fe.ret-gird at his shameful flight, ver.37. 2 Chron. 32.21.

thee] Sennacherib it is, whom he speaketh unto, but calleth not by his name, as not vouchsafing to name him.

V.23. whom hast thou reproached and blasphemed?] Or, reviled; fee ver.6.

and against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted up thine eyes on high?] Dost thou well know, and consider with thy self, who it is, against whom thou dost so insolently advance thy selfe: fee Exod.5.2. & 9.16,17.

and] Or, or; as chap.36.19.

exalted thy voice] In big words, and presumptuous language: though alluding, it may be, also, to Rabshakehs loud crying, chap. 36.13. Heb. the voice: as chap.13.2. a defect of the pronoun, as ver. 4.22. supplyed, chap.40.9. & 58.1.

lifted up thine eyes on high] A lofty look, a signe of an haughty heart, chap.2.12. & e on chap.10.12. otherwise, the phrafe is used in no evil fenfe, Gen.19.22. chap.40.22.

even against the holy one of Israel] In blaspheming his name, taunting his people, and traduc ng and difgracing his Annointed: fo Exod.5.2. & 9.17. Psalm 2.1,2 & 74.19.and 89.51. of the ftile given to God here, fee on chap.1.4. Some end the interrogation at voice, and read the reft of the verfe, by way of enunciation: as fhewing either wherein, or against whom he had carried himfelf fo infolently, in that thou liftest up thine eyes on high; or, thou haft even lifted up thine eyes on high, against the holy one of Israel: and fo the infertion of even, in our verfion, fhould be needlefs, which yet is very frequent, ver.16.20. chap.41.12. & 43.10,11,25. the copulative being put for that; as chap.22.20. or, even; as chap.27.1. But the received reading feems the better, becaufe more agreeable to the manner of our Prophet, whofe common cuftome is to expreſs the fame thing, by divers notions, laid down in diſtinct branches, as in this very argument, chap.10.12. befides, that it fuiteth not fo well, to fay, thou exalteſt thy voice, in that thou liſteſt up thine eyes: or, the queſtion, being of the former, to return anſwer to it by the latter.

V.24. By thy ſervants haſt thou reproached the Lord] Heb. By the hand of thy ſervants: as Exod.35.29. chap.20.2. Jer.27.3. it is, 2 Kings 19.23. thy meſſengers. See chap. 36.2. and verſe 4, 14, 17.

and haſt ſaid] Or, in that thou ſaiſt, for that uſe of the copulative doth not amiſs here fee on verſe 23.

By the multitude of my chariots, am I come up to the height of the mountains, to the ſides of Lebanon:] Or, With the multitude of my chariots. I have with my chariots, not with my foot forces only, got over the higheſt mountaines that lay in my way, and I have brought them all ſafe over the tops of the hills, notwithſtanding the great number of them (a matter of no ſmall difficulty) partly, by cutting out, and levelling of ways for them, where the grounds were rough and rocky, (a practice alluded to, chap.40.3,4.) and partly, by felling of luch trees as obſtructed their paſſage. So did Xerxes make way for his Army through Athos, in his expedition againſt Greece, Herodote, l.7. Annibal over the Alps, into Italy, Livy, l.21. Veſpaſian in his march towards Jeruſalem, over the mountains of Judea, Joſeph of the Iewiſh war, l.3.c.11. which mountains ſeem to be by the Aſſyrian alſo here ſpecially intended, together with thoſe in his way thither, and chiefly thoſe about Jeruſalem, that ſeemed to make the acceſſe thither the more difficult, Pſalm 125.2.

the height of the mountains] Or, the higheſt mountains, or hils; as Pſal.95.4. and as afterward, the talleſt of cedars, for the talleſt cedars; and the choice of fivers, for the choiceſt fivers.

the ſides of Lebanon] One of the famouſeſt mountains in thoſe parts, mentioned, as one of the limits of the promiſed land, Deut.3. 25. & 11.24.

and I will cut down the tall cedars thereof, and the choice fire trees thereof;] Or, I will cut down the talleſt of his cedars, and the choiceſt of his fivers. Heb. talleſt's, as Chap.10.33. Ezek.31.5, 10.) and choice: as Jer.22.7 either to clear his way for his army to paſſe, or to furniſh him with timber, for works and lodging. See chap. 14. 8. the meaning ſeems to be, that nothing could, or ſhould hinder him in his paſſage toward, and his approaches to Jeruſalem, which he principally aymed at. Howſoever, as he threatens to hew down Lebanon here; ſo God threatens elſewhere to hew down his Lebanon. See chap.10.33, 34. and ſo accordingly did, verſ. 36. But the words may well be rendred, in the time paſt, I have cut down, &c. and ſo the next, I have entred, &c. as the foregoing words were; thoſe enſuing, alſo, ver.25. for nuns for he ſeemeth in this whole paſſage to vaunt of what he had done.

and I will enter into the height of his border, and the forreſt of his Carmel.] This paſſage is ſomewhat otherwiſe read in the book of Kings, 2 King.19.23. and the readings compared, will afford us the more light, whereby to finde out the right meaning of the text. What is here termed mrom, that is, height, or high place, rather: as Chap.26.5. is there called mlom, that ſignifieth an lone, Gen. 42. 27. Exod 4.24. or, a lodge, or lodging, Chap.10.29. Ier.9.2. by both which terms, is, undoubtedly, the ſame thing meant; and ſomewhat it muſt be, about Mount Lebanon, or, appertaining thereunto: and I conceive it to be no other, then the tower of Lebanon, ſituate on the Eaſtern ſide thereof, with its proſpect towards Syria, Cant.7.4. called an high place; becauſe it ſtood aloft, and was high built, of purpoſe, to overlook the country before it: and a lodg, or lodging, in regard of the garriſon, that being a frontier place, was, for the ſecurity of the place, lodged in it: though it is not improbable, that the Aſſyrian might alſo, in way of contempt, ſo term it; as a place, in his reckoning, of no more ſtrength, or worth, then a ſory lodg, in a park, or garden. See of Jeruſalem, chap.1.8. and of ſome other lands, Chap.24.20. In both places it is ſaid to be the high places; or, lodge, of it's end; (ſo, rather then borders; for which the Hebrews have another word) becauſe it ſtood at one end of the mountain, looking toward Damaſcus, the head city of Syria, that lay Eaſtward from Iudea, Chap.7.8. & 9.12. our Engliſh renders it, lodgings; as taken collectively, and intending not ſome one, but ſuch forts and holds as were on the frontiers thereabout ſituated, for the better ſecurity of the adjacent parts: not is this interpretation altogether inprobable: but admitted there, it ſhould have been accordingly, high places, here; the words following, in both places the ſame, are by divers good Interpreters, otherwiſe rendred, then our verſion hath them, nor, and the forceſt of his carmel, but (as the Hebrew points, though by the Iewes themſelves, here not obſerved, lead unto, diſtinguiſhing between the two laſt words,) his foreſt, and field or fruitful field: as the word is rendred, chap. 32.15. it is word for word in the Hebrew; and I will go, or, have gone, (gotten up) unto the high place of the end thereof, foreſt, field, or fertile field thereof: as if he had ſaid, having felled his trees, and ſo made paſſage for my army, I will march, or, have marched, with it, to his high garriſon tower, and ſo through his foreſt, to the fertile tile fields that lie below it. I am not ignorant, that the Iewiſh Intrepreters here underſtand by Lebanon, the land of Iudea; ſo called, ſay they, becauſe it is the higheſt ground in the world: (which ed, ſay they, becauſe it is the higheſt ground in the world: (which what ground they have for I know not: but know it certainly to be untrue) by the tall cedars and fivers, the great men of the land: as Chap.2.13. by the high place, or lodging, the Temple, Gods dwelling, Pſalm 78. 69. & 132. 13, 14. as alſo, that divers of our Writers tread in the ſame track; ſome conceiving the land of Iudah to be meant here, likened to Lebanon, for height and ſtatelineſs; to Carmel, for fertility and pleaſantneſs. Others, by Lebanon, underſtanding Iudea; by the foreſt, the wilder part of it; by Carmel, the manured; by the lodge, or inne, as they render it, Jeruſalem: and that Jeruſalem ſeems, ſometime, to be in Scripture called Lebanon, or to be likened, at leaſt, to it, appeareth, Jer. 22. 23. Zach.11.1. But that which I have before delivered, ſeems to me to be the genuine ſenſe of this place.

V.25. I have digged, and drunk water] The text, 2 King.19.24. is ſomewhat fuller, I have digged, and drunk ſtrange water; that is, ſprings of water, where none appeared, and which had beene formerly unknown. He boaſteth of his power and policy, that could find out means, to furniſh with water, ſuch a numerous army, as emptied the pools, and dried up the rivers where-ſoever they came. The Jewiſh Doctor, as he wideneth it too much, ſo, withal, he extenuateth it not a little, when he would have the meaning to be, I undertake no work, but that I finiſh; as thole, that wanting water, dig, till they find what to drink: of digging for water, ſee on Gen.26.18-22. Num.21.17,18. Pſal.84.6. and of furniſhing with water, beyond expectation where none to be had, that where-by God, at ſundry times, hath manifeſted, and is wont to magnifie his power, and his providence, and wherein this vain boaſter profeſſeth himſelf able to do ſtrange matters; See Exod.17.1-6. Num. 20.1-11. Judg.15.18,19. 2 King 3.17,20. Neh.9.20. Pſalme 74. 15. & 78.15,16. & 107.35. & 114.8. Chap.41.17,18. & 43.19, 20.

and with the ſole of my feet have I dried up all the rivers of the beſieged places] As if his army had been ſo great, that with their feet alone, they were able to dry up all the pools and rivers wherefoever they came; not unlike the Syrians vaunt of his forces, that he brought men more then enough, with him, to carry all the duſt of Samaria away in their ſkirts, 1 King.20.10. as alſo to what the Greeks report of Xerxes his army, that they ſhould drink whole rivers dry at a dinner. Juvenal, Satyre 10. See Herodote, lib.7. and Juſtine, lib.2.

with the ſole of my feet] as Pſal.57.6. or, foot ſteps, as Pſalm 85. 14. that is, wherefoever I ſet footing, as Joſh 1.3. I do with the multitude of men and beaſts, that I bring along with me, drink all dry. So ſome of the Iewiſh commenters. But other of them, rather, I dry up all with the very footing of them. And he ſpeaks it, as if the rivers were dried up in a trice, ſo ſoon, as he ſet but the ſole of his foot on them; as Iordan was divided and dried up ſo ſoon, as the plants of the Prieſts feet, that bare the ark of God, touched the water thereof, Joſh.3.15,16. For it ſeems to come after that of the Aſſyrians boaſting, that ſome would have the meaning to be, that he dried up great rivers, incloſed with high and ſtrong banks: as Cyrus did Gyndes and Euphrates, Herod. *lib.*1. Jer.50 38. to make them fordable for his forces.

have I dried up all the rivers] As the Pſalmiſt, of God, Thou diedſt up mighty rivers, Pſal.74.15. See Chap.42.15.

the rivers of the beſieged] Or, fenced, or, incloſed. Heb. rivers of feſtion, ſieges, or, incloſure. See Chap.19.6. that is, either ſuch rivers and ſtreams, as running beſide cities, make them the more difficult to beſiege, and the better able to hold out a ſiege. Or, ſuch waters derived from ſome river, into pooles and encloſures, made for that purpoſe. Some Iewiſh Criticks would by the word here uſed, underſtand Egypt; becauſe the name in Hebrew comes neere unto it: as it be ſhould brag that he had dried up the rivers of Egypt, which God threatens to do, Chap.11.15. but that another of them, not undeſervedly, controlleth the whole paſſage: ſome render in the future, I will dig and drink waters, and with the ſole of my feet, dry up all the waters of the ſiege; as aiming at Ieruſalem, and the preparations made by them, to furniſh themſelves with water, expecting a ſiege, Chap.22.9,11. and the courſes taken by them to keep his army from water, by obſtructing the ſprings that might afford it them, 2 Chr.32.3,4. He boaſteth therefore, that their endeavours, in either kind, ſhould prove but loſt labour; he would dry up all their ſtore, and provide water ſufficient for his forces, by digging deep, and bringing of ſprings to light, where none had ever been ſeen, or dreamed of before. And this ſo well ſuiting with the ſtory it ſelf, would not lightly be rejected. Howſoever the words be rendred or read, the ſcope of this his vain vaunting, is to imply, that no place had been, or could be able to hold out againſt him, who was able, by his power and policy, to overcome all difficulties, to level mountains, and dry up rivers, for the freer paſſage of his forces, and yet to furniſh them, alſo, with all neceſſary proviſions, where they were moſt unlikely to be had.

V.26. Haſt thou not heard long ago, how I have done it, and of ancient times, that I have formed it?] Hitherto was Sennacherib brought in vaunting of his owne deſignes and doings; now God turneth his ſpeech again to him, controlling him for his folly. And as he told Ezekiah, that he could not but have heard, what his anceſtors, the Kings of Aſſyria, and he himſelf alſo had done, ver. 11. So God demandeth of him, whether he had not heard from his Prophets, to whom he had revealed it, and by whom he had formerly publiſhed it, c.48.3. That God had in his ſecret counſel, deſigned all thoſe things to be done by his progenitors and himſelf, both concerning other nations, and concerning his own people, which he fondly arrogates to his anceſtors, and to himſelf, Deut. 32. 27. Chron.10.13. Whereas He and They, were all but Gods inſtruments therein, and had never, without him, been able to do what they did. See Chap.7.17,20. & 10.5,6,15. & 20.4. So many, both of the Jewiſh Commenters, and ours. But divers other, go another way, reading the words, Haſt thou not heard, that I long ago did it, or, made it, and, or, that of ancient time I framed it? Applying the note of time, not to the Aſſyrians ear, but to Gods act & expounding the text: Some, of the works that God had formerly done for his people, ſuch as the Aſſyrian king, here, vaunted of, in making a paſſage for them throu.h the red ſea, Exod. 14.21,22. and through Iordan, Ioſh 2.10. & 3.16. but this is more then not ſo probable. Others, of the city, and State of Ieruſalem, which he had founded and eſtabliſhed, Pſal.48.8. & 78.68,69. & 149.2. Chap. 14. 33. & 22.11. And this ſeems very probable.

long ago.] Heb. after from. It is uſed ſometime of place, 2 Chr. 26.15. Ezr.3.13. ſometime of time paſt, as here, and 2 King.19.25. to come: as 2 Sam.7.19.

how] Or, that: a defect of the particle, as Pſal.55.2. Chap. 10. 12.

I have done] Or, I made: as Chap.44.2. & 46.4.

it] Or, this, as Pſalm 109.27. as having reference to the thing, either ſpoken by Sennacherib, or done by God, Chap.41.20. or, her; that is, the city of Ieruſalem. Of which before, ver.22. though not naming her here; but ſpeaking of her, as the only her that God regarded. See Ier.33.2.

of ancient times] Heb, from dates of priority, or, antiquity; as chap. 33.7. that is, from eternity, ſay ſome, underſtanding it of Gods purpoſe, Chap.25.1. In former times; long ſince, ſay others, underſtanding it of his work, Chap. 44.2. For thole lewiſh maſters do but triffle here, that tell us of the Meſſias, and Ieruſalem, made before heaven and earth; and of Tophet, made for Sennacherib on the ſecond day of the world. See Chap.30.33.

formed it] Or, framed it. The word is taken from the potters act and art, in framing of earthen veſſels; Ier. 18. 3, 4,6. that is, ſay ſome, decreed, determined, that it ſhould be done; as Chapter 14.24,26. Acts 2.23. & 4.28. Eph.1.11. 2 Tim.1.9. 1 Pet.1.20. As the potter conceives in his mind before-hand, the fathion of that which he intendeth to frame. See Chap. 26. 3. & 29.16. Others, framed, and effected by mine own might, without help of nature, or humane art, or force; as Gen.2.6.8. Chap.45.18. But as others; rather, formed, or, framed her. This city and State, the framer whereof, he is in a more ſpecial manner, by this Prophet, oft faid to be, Chap.43.1,21. & 44.2,21,24. and 64.8.

now have I brought it to paſs, that thou ſhouldſt be to lay waſte fenced cities, into ruinous heaps] What I formerly purpoſed, ſhould be effected concerning thoſe nations and cities, which I would have deſtroyed, that have I now done by thee, Chap.24.1,10,12. & 25. 2. & 26.5. & 27.10. Or, as others, reading the words, by way of interrogation, And now ſhould I bring it to be laid waſt, and fenced cities to be ruinous heaps? or, to be ruinous heaps, as fenced cities? Should I ſuffer this place, which I ſo framed, to be laid waſt, and deſtroyed by thee, as if I had founded it to no other end? See chap. 45.18. and that thou ſhould do with it, or the cities belonging to it, as thou haſt done with ſome others, verſe 18. See Ier. 33. 2,6.

have I brought it] Or, ſhould I bring her to that paſs? A potential ſenſe: as Chap 26.9.

that thou ſhouldſt be to lay waſt] Or, that it, or, ſhe ſhould be laid waſt. Heb. and, (for that; as Chap.16.12.) thou, or, it, or, ſhe (for the ſecond perſon maſculine, and the third feminine, or neuter, are in this ſomthe ſame) ſhall be to lay waſt, or, into waſtſides, or, deſolations, (for ſome make it a noun as the like word, Pſal.55.19. & 74.3. or, that thou ſhouldeſt be to lay waſt, or, it waſt: for ſo the words alſo may well be rendred; and the want of the pronoun is very rife, Chap.31.5. ver.22.

to lay waſt defenced cities into ruinous heaps] That is, to lay waſt, to lay waſt defenced cities into ruinous heaps: by bringing them, or by laying waſt, to bring them, to ruinous heaps: To lay them waſt in that manner, that they become ruinous heaps.

A defective form of ſpeech; ſuch as ver.18.

ruinous heaps] Or, heaps over-grown; to wit, with graſs, weeds, ſhrubs, and other like trath, as waſt places are wont to be. So the word not elſwhere found, ſave Ier.4.7. is deemed to imply, from a word of the ſame nonion of neer affinity with it. See Chap.27.10.& 32.14. 1 Macc.4.38.

defenced cities] Either of other nations, Chap 25.2. or, of Iudah and Ieruſalem, (ſee Ier.34.1.) whereof, though he took many, yet he razed them not, Chap.47.10. or, as the defenced, cities, to make this city heaps, (Pſal.79.1.) as ſome other, ſo ſerved by him, which albeit the Chaldeans were after ward ſuffered to do, M c 3.12. yet the Aſſyrian never did. The note of ſimilitude ſupplyed, as ver.27.

V.27. Therefore their inhabitants were of small power; they were dismayed, and confounded Heb. And; as ver.20. So read, it renders a reason why those cities were by the Kings of Assyria, so surprised and ruinated, to wit, because the inhabitants of them had no power of hand, or courage of heart to withstand them: and therefore they were so enfeebled and disheartned, because it was God that brought that evil upon them: so Exod.23.27,28. Josh. 2. 11,12. & 5.1. Howbeit, it may as well be read, Whose inhabitants. And they, for, whose; as, and he, for, who; Mal. 3. 1. compared with Mat 11.10. and so it proceeds to relate the condition of the persons, as well as of the places, that had, by the Assyrians, been subdued.

of small power] Heb short or, shortened of hand; as chap. 50. 2. & 59. 1.

they were as the grass of the field, and as the green herb on the house-tops, and as corn blasted before it be grown up] An extream weakneslie and feeblenesse; or a soon and sudden destruction, or both, by divers lively resemblances copiously described.

as] A defect of the note of similitude: very common in Scripture; that yet needed not to have been supplied, save in the first branch, See the like, Psal. 11.1. Chap.40.6. Mat.6. 30. that is easily trodden down by the foot, not of wild beasts only, 2 Chr.25.18. but of the least, and feebleſt cattle. See chap.26.6.

the green herb on the house-tops] Or, green tender herb; as it is rendred, Deut.32.2. Job 38.26. or, tender grass; as 2 Sam.23.4. Prov. 27.25. grass; simply, Gen 1.11,12. Job 6.5. Chap.15.6. Jer.14.5. herb; as here, Psal.37.2. Chap. 66.14. It is deemed, properly, to signifie the first putting forth of ought that springs out of the ground, as the former; the same when it is come to some growth, as the green herb: so Psal.129.6.

corn blasted before it be grown up] Heb. blasting before standing; as standing, for, standing corn, (of which defect, see on chap.17.5.) so blasting, for, corn of blasting; that is, blasted. The abstract, for the concrete, as chap 35.1.7. the word most commonly is supposed to signifie a table ground; for which purpose, a dry Soil is wont to be preferred before a moyst. It is here only used for blasting, by the Hebrew Criticks therefore deemed, through the change of a letter, to descend from another root, that signifies to blast, Gen.41.6, 23. and the word indeed used, 2 King. 19. 26. is apparently so: Whence it is also manifest, that either the Scribes pen slipt here in a letter, (the letters of either word being much alike) or, that both words though differing in a radical letter, were used for one and the same thing. Howbeit, a late learned Writer, retaineth the word here in that other sense, rendring it, as a land, or arable ground, before corn, to wit, to be sown in it, while it lieth fallow. But the other term here used, signifieth properly corn, not as sown, or sprouting out, but standing; got to height, and expecting harvest; and the parallel place in the story, requireth to take it the other way.

Ver.28. But I know thine abode, and thy going out, and coming in, and thy rage against me] I am well acquainted with thy doings at home, thine enterprises abroad, all thy counsells, all thy cousses; and take notice of thine insolent carriages against me.

I know] Not, as I know the wayes of the righteous, by way of approbation, acceptation, and esteem to give a good issue to them, Psl. 1.6. but by a general notice of them; in that they neither are, nor can be concealed from me, Psa.94.11. & 139.1-4. and by a special notice, also, that I take of them, in due time to deal with thee, for them, as, for them, thou deservest to be dealt with, Jer. 17. 10. & 48.30. Hos.5 3. Amos 5.12.

thine abode] As Gen.24 55. or thy dwelling; as Jer.9.6. as we say to one, that takes overmuch upon him; we know where you dwell, Sir: or, thy sitting: as Psa.139.2. Lam.3.63. thine abode at home, and what thou dost there, because opposed to business abroad: so Deut.6.7. & 11.19.

thy going out, and thy coming in] As Deut. 28. 6, 19. Psalme 121.8.

thy rage against me] Heb. thy raising up of thy self (in a raging manner) against me: the verb is not found any where in this emphatical and reciprocal form, save in this argument: the preposition signifying usually unto, is used here for against, as Chap. 33. 11. el, for al, as Jer.47,7. & 50.7,26,29. & 51.1. So in the next verse.

V.29. Because thy rage against me, and thy tumult is come up into mine ears] Heb. Thy raging; or, raising up of thy self: as v.28. the verb infinitive, for the noun.

thy tumult] The word here used, doth most usually signifie tranquility, Job 12.5. chap.32.11. & 33.20. but here, and 2 Kings 19. 28. tumultation, as springing from another flock; whence the word, that signifies a tumultuous noise, chap.13.4. & 17.12. & 66.6. and is framed with a reduplication of the last letter, to imply an intention of the thing thereby signified. Howbeit, some of the Jewish Commenters would have the word taken in his common sense, reading the words (which they suppose defective) with supply from the former branch, and, or even, the rage of thy tranquility, that is, thence arising, or thereby procured; as Prov.1.32. but this seemes over-nice, and a nicety needless; not unlike the conceit of those that would deduce the word in this sense, of noise and tumult, from that, of ease and tranquility, because ease and tranquility, is wont to breed pride and insolency, Jer.48.11.

is come up] So Psalm 74.23. the noise of thine adversaries, the tumultuous noise of those that rise up against thee, goeth up continually. See 2 Chron.28.9. Ezr.9.6. Jon.1.2.

into mine ears] It makes so loud a cry, that I cannot but hear it, and take notice of it. So Gen.18.20. chap.5.9. Jam.5.4. See ver. 4.17.

I will put my hook into thy nose, and my bridle in thy lips, and I will turn thee back, by the way, by which thou camest.] Because thou ragest and ravest on this wise, like some great unruly fish, or some fierce wild beast, or some head-strong horse, I will take thee with my hook, or, I will ring thee, and bridle thee, and lead thee whither I list, turn thee about, and make thee go the way thou wouldest not, turn thee back from the place thou principally intendest, and with shame and confusion return thee to thine own home. So chap. 30.28.

hook into thy nose] Alluding either to a fish-hook, wherewith fish taken, are drawn which way the fisher-man pleaseth, Job 41.1. Ezek.29.4. & 38.4. Amos 4.2. or to such rings as men put into the noses of bears and bufales, to keep them in, and over-matter them with; Ezek.19.4,9. or, to a chain, or collar, put about the neck of a dog, or some other beast, with a cord, or leash fastened thereunto, whereby to lead him, as some of the Jewish Masters would have it; but the mention of the nose, seems not well to admit it: and the most of them go to the first way; I should rather the second.

my bridle in thy lips] My bridle, or snaffle, or bit; as it is rendred, Psa.32.9. where, from bridle, it is distinguished; and the Jewish Doctors affirm it to be an instrument made of iron to put into beasts mouths; in thy lips, that is, in thy mouth; wherewith to rein and restrain thee, and to keep thee within compass, as the rider doth the horse with bridle and bit, whereby he hath him at command, Psa.32.9. & Prov.26.3. chap.30.28. Jam.3.3.

V.30. And this shall be a sign unto thee;] God now turneth his speech from Sennacherib, whose dimission, or mittimus, he had now signed, ver.29. as his mission, and commission before, chap.10.6. unto Ezekiah, whose faith to confirme, in the assured expectation of of his speedy delivery, he confirms his prediction and promise of it, with a sign, though of a thing afterward to ensue. See on chap.9.6. and the like, Exod.3.12. I am not ignorant, that some, both of the Jewith Writers, and others, suppose, that Sennacherib should upon the report of Tirhakahes coming against him, withdraw his forces from Jerusalem, go forth to meet him, pass into Egypt, having spent two years in that expedition, return again to the siege of Jerusalem, and receive that fatal discomfiture there, and so it should be, a figure antecedent, not subsequent, to the main matter, to be thereby assured. But these things are spoken without any ground of story, sacred, or other; nor seem to suit so fitly with the relation of the Pen men of Scripture, either here, or in the other holy records, 2 Kings 10, and 2 Chr 32. See ver.36.

ye shall eat this year that which groweth of it self; and the second year, that which springeth of the same; and in the third year, sowye, and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof.] A figne of this nature, God was pleased to assign them, not only thereby, to allure them of further indemnity from the Assyrian, and deliverance out of their present difficulties and distreſs, but to encourage and comfort them also, against those distracting thoughts, that might arise in their minds, concerning neceſsary provisions, for them and their families, when the siege should break up, the land being so wasted by the Assyrians, and such spoil made of all, as by an enemy is wont to be, in a country that is not his own, chap.1.7. for God hereby engageth himself, to provide for them, that from those very returnes of their land, that it should of it self yield, notwithstanding the havock that the enemy had made, and the want of liberty and opportunity to till and manage their grounds, they should have food sufficient, both for the present yeare, and the next.

ye shall eat] That is, thy people, the Inhabitants of Jerusalem and Judah, shall eat, that is, have food sufficient to sustain them, as chap.65.3. Heb. eating, a defective speech: for eating, ye shall eat: see the like, chap 59.13.

this year] Heb. the year, as Ier 28.16. so, the day, for this day; or, to day, as Ier.1.10,18.

that which groweth of it self] So is the word used, Lev.25,11. where it is enjoyned, that in the Sabbatical year, or yeare of cessation, or intermission, they should not till their grounds, nor prune their trees, nor reap the encreaſe of the one, nor gather the fruit of the other, but let all lie common, and eat out of the field onely from hand to mouth, as we say, that which came up of its own accord, either forth of the ground, by grain and feed, the yeare before, shed; or from off their trees, without any husbandry used about them; God engaging himself, by promise, so to bleſse them with encreaſe, the fore-going year, that the proceed of it should afford store sufficient, both for that yeare, and the next also, until the harveſt time came, of what had been that yeare sowne, and the gathering of their fruits from the trees, that year dressed, Lev.25,20-22. Now hence hence some gather, that the fourteenth year of Ezekiah (for in that year it was that Sennacherib invaded Judea) was a Sabbatical year, and that should be the reason, why that year, they should feed upon such things, as the ground, unmanaged, should yeeld. Others, that not this year, but the next, was the Sabbatical year; and that this yeare being hindred from tilling and sowing, by the enemies invasion, and the land therefore affording nothing to sustain them, but what the ground of it self yeelded; and the next year being a Sabbatical year, wherein, by the law, they were inhibited to eat, or sow ought, they must for that year feed on that which sprang up, from what came of it self the year past. Others drive off the Sabbatical year, one year further, to the sixteenth of Ezekiah, the hindrance from tilling and sowing, say they, being in the fifteenth, from the enemy; in the sixteenth, from the law. To examine strikly those differing opinions; and compute exactly the Sabbatical years, from the first observation of them, unto these times, is a matter of much difficulty, and would require a far longer discourse, then these Annotations will admit. Sufficient it is, that God here promiseth, that for two yeares together, they should have a competence of sustenance from that, of it self, notwithstanding the great waſt that the enemy made of it, and the fruits of it. See Judg.6.3-5.

that which springeth of the same] This to be the meaning of the word, here used, is generally, in a manner, agreed: howsoever the Rabbines, some of them, add frivolous fables of fruit-trees, by miracle suddenly shooting up again, and bearing fruit, where the enemy had cut them down; and of corn, in like manner, where it had been burnt down by the enemy, as also, Popish Commenters, in favour of their old Latin version, of their feeding the second year on apples, and the like, only. The word is no where else found, but here, and (with a transposition of letters, the like whereunto, is in other words also observed) in 2 King.19.29.

sow ye] Ye shall have liberty, without either impeachment from the enemy, or inhibition, otherwise, to sow, and reap freely, and quietly to enjoy the fruits of your lands and labours, Psa.128.2. of this use of the imperative form, see on chap.36.16. The words imply a plenty of provisions, that their land, then tilled, should afford them, with much comfort and cheerfulnes to be enjoyed by them, Deut.8. 7-10. chap.65.13. See chap.4.2. & 30.23-25.

V.31. And the remnant that is escaped of the house of Judah, shall again take root downward, and bear fruit upward.] From the promiſe of a blessing more then ordinary, upon their land, he passeth to the like, concerning the State, and themselves; That albeit, they had been much diminished and impoverished, by the Assyrian invasion, yet those that remained of them, having escaped the Assyrian sword, should thrive and prosper; & the State that was thereby so shrewdly shaken, that it seemed ready to fall to the ground, should be setled again, and restored to the same, or to a better and more flourishing condition, then it enjoyed before those broils. See the like promiſe, chap.27.6. and the complement of it, 2 Chr.32.22,23.

the remnant that is escaped of the house of Judah] Heb. the escaping of the house of Judah that remaineth, or, is left; ch.4.2. & 10.20. Ezr.9.15.

shall again take root] Heb. shall add to root, as ch.10.20. & 27.1. to root, for to take root, as ch.40.24. Jer.12.2. a metaphor from plants or trees, that being sorely shaken, and loosned with violent winds, yet settle, fasten, and take firm hold again at the root.

downward] As trees, which the lower they shoot down with the root, become the more firme. See Virgil, of the cyclus, a kind of Oke, in his Poems of Husbandry, l.1.

bear fruit upward] Shall become so conspicuous like a tree laden with fruit, that to other people abroad, their thriving and prosperity shall appear, Chap.4.2. & 60.21,22. & 61.3,9.

V 32. For out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and they that escape out of mount Zion] There shall be a certain number of people, who having escaped the Assyrians sword and hand, by repairing to Jerusalem, and continuing there in safety, shall, when the siege is broken up, and the enemy gone out of the land, return in peace to their former possessions, and wonted places of abode, and be setled again in them. See the like, Jer.4.5. & 34.11. & 37.11,12.

go out] Either to view the enemies camp, now left, and to gather the spoils of those that came to spoil them: so some, as Cha.13.23, 24. or, rather, to return to their own dwellings again, from which, for fear of the enemy, they had fled; and others of the city, to their lands and possessions abroad, which, for fear of the enemy, before, they durst not do, Chap.33.17.

a remnant] A small company remaining, in regard of those multitudes that had miscarried in the troubles of the times. Chap.1.9,& 10.21,22. & 17.6.

they that escape] Heb. an escaping: as Ch.10.20. ver.31.

the zeal of the Lord of hosts shall do this.] This God will do, out of a due regaid to his own glory, and a fervent affection of love to his people: as Chap 9.7. ver.35. Ezek.36.5.

V.33. Therefore, thus saith the Lord, concerning the King of Assyria] Heb. unto the King of Assyria: as in the next words, unto this city: but so is the particle used, also, ch.29.22.

He shall not come into this city] Heb. unto this City: as Josh. 8. 5. though it be used also for into, as 2 King.7.12. but here rather, unto; he shall not so much as come at it, much lesse enter into it, and surprize it; as he made full account to do. For the truth is, Sennacherib never came himself, in person, to Jerusalem, though he sent men and messengers thither. See Chap.36.1,2. ver.9 34.

nor shoot an arrow there] Nor shoot so much as an arrow into the city, to annoy, or hurt any there; or to strike down those, that, for defence, might appear upon the walls, though it is not unlikely, that his army lying before it, and neer unto it, would be exercising of their archery. Heb. and he shall not: and so afterward thrice repeated; adding much vehemency and vigor to the sentence.

nor come before it with shields] Heb. with shield: not that his army came thither unarmed; or without shields for defence, with swords and weapons of offence only: but that either he should not in person so present himself with his guard of shield-bearers, (whereof, see 1 King.10.16,17. 2 Chr.9.15,16. & 12.9-11.) or with his forces, so furnished, to make any assault upon the city. Some learned, conceive by shields, to be meant, here, a kind of military frame, consisting of a great number of shields joyned together, somewhat like the tiling, or shingling of a roof, by the Latines called testudo; because their shield resembled a tortesses shell, under the covert whereof, being thereby secured against shot of arrows and stones, that might be cast down upon them, they made their approaches to the walls of cities besieged, or assaulted. Of this see Livy, l.44. Ammian, l.26. and Vegetius, l.2.c.16. But whether this device were so ancient, as these times, or no, may be doubted.

nor cast a bank against it.] So 2 Sam. 20. 15. or, mount; as it is sometime rendred, Jer.6.6. Ezek. 4.2. so the Chaldee here understands it: and the notation of the word may seem to carry it this way. For it comes of a word that signifies to cast up: and it is used, commonly, of the casting up of earth, to make a causey, or cast way: thence so termed, Chap.62.10. of the ule thereof, in war, and siege of cities, see Hab.1.10. Howbeit, the Hebrew Doctors, (whom divers of ours follow, rendring it, nor discharge an engine,) affirm it to be an engine; such as the Romanes call balista; wherewith they used to cast great stones, with much violence, either against the walls of cities and forts besieged, or into the forts and cities themselves: to this purpose pertaining, Jer.6.6. where mention is, of cutting downe wood to make such withal; and Ezek.17.17. where towres are joyned with them, from the tops whereof, they used to discharge them. Of the engine, see Ammian, l. 23. and Vegetius, l. 4. c. 22. See of the like, 2 Chron. 26. 15. The word is here in the singular number, as those, also, of arrow and shield, before; though collectively taken to make the speech more emphatical: he shall neither shoot arrow into it, nor come with shield before it; nor discharge engine against it: and it is alwayes joyned with a verb, that signifies to pour out, which helps to confirm this latter opinion, concerning the right signification of it: it hath its original from being lift up: its construction, from the use of it, in throwing, or pouring out stones and the like. See, besides the places already cited. Ezek.21.27. & 26.8. Dan.11.15. and there seems to be a defect in the phrase to cast, or, pour out the bank for, to pour out stones with the ballist: as, to throw out, or shoot the bow, for, to shoot arrows with the bow Psalm 78.9. Jer. 4. 29. out term of discharging, doth very fitly expreis it.

V. 34. By the way that he came, by the same shall he return] So verſ.29. A proverbial form of speech, having in it an intimation of some attempt, without issue, or of labour in vain. He shall go as he came, and lose all his labour: as Jer.14.3. But it seems here to import some what more; to wit an ignominious return. with some few scattered troops, thorow those countreys, by which he had marched in great state, with such a gallant and numerous army, before. See ch.10.8.& ver.14,15,37.

and shall not come into this city, saith the Lord] or unto: see verſ.33. The same thing is repeated, and Gods own word again given upon it: he began with it, and concludeth with it, and firms to it, to give the stronger assurance of it; he auſe it might seem a thing most improbable, almost incredible, that Sennacherib, having so great an host with him at Libnah, not many miles from Jerusalem, and a puissant army before Jerusalem, yet should not so much himself, as come thither: for what could be imagined, that should stay, or hinder him from so doing? And they much diminish the force and weight of Gods words, when they render them he shall not come into this city: besides both the prime and most proper use of the particle, ain and short of that, which the story it self holds out.

V. 35. For I will defend this city to save it] Heb I will shield, (for thence of cometh the word shield, used, ver.33.) or, fence, (for thereof, also, cometh the name of a garden, as a place fenced, and enclosed, Cant.4.4.) this city, to save it (see 2 Chr.32.22. that which is called no other fence, without them, could effect. See Psalm 5. 12. & 32. 10. Zach.2.5.

for mine own sake] In regard of mine own glory: which this insolent varlet endeavours so to obscure and deface: so elsewhere, I wrought for my names sake, Ezek. 20. 9, 14, 22, 44. & 36.22,32. See ver 32.

and for my servant Davids sake] See chap.9.1. & 38.5. To these thereby his entire and constant affection to David, and high esteem of him, in doing good to, & taking care of the safety and welfare of his seed, for him, Exod.20.6 & 34.7. (see Ruth 2.20.1 Sam. 22,22,23.2.Sam.9.3.) and to make his word and promises good unto him, concerning the establishment of his house, 2 Sam.7.11,15,16.

my servant] The style that God is wont to give unto those, whom he will there by shew, in more special manner,to affect and respect: as to Moses, Num.12.7,8.to Job, Job 1.8 & 2.3.& 42.7,8. to David, most frequently, 2 Sam.7. 5, 8. 1 King. 11. 13, 36, 38. See the same promise and paffage with this, 2 Kings 20.6.Ch.38.6.

V.36.Then the Angel of the Lord went forth,and smote in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred and fourscore and five thousand] The complement of that which had been more then once before threatned, Ch.10.12,16-18,33,34.& 14.25.& 30.27-33.& 31.8.& 33.23.

Then] That is, as many Interpreters, some two year after the prayer of Ezekiah, and Gods promise, by Esay, concerning the deliverance of his people, ver.35.For they suppose, that Sennacherib, having upon Tirakahes rising againft him, withdrawn his forces out of Judea, and spent two years in the conquest of Ethiopia and Egypt, returned back to Jerusalem, to renew the siege of it, and then received this blow. See ver.30.But these be meer furmises; for which no good record of antiquity, is produced: and the course of the relation being carried on in this manner,by a continued thred, without interruption, both here, and in the sacred history elsewhere, 2 Chron. 32. 20, 21. seems not to admit any such distance between the one, and the other. Yea, the expresse words in the book of Kings, putteth the matter, in mine apprehenfion, out of all doubt. For the Pen-man of that book, or that part of it, wherein this story is recorded, having related Sennacheribs first messiage, together with an army sent unto Jerusalem, from Lachish, 2 King.18.17.the return of his messengers, back from thence, unto Libnah, whither, from Lachish he had removed, Chap.19 8.then the tidings brought him of the Ethiopians againft him, ver. 9. and his second messiage thereupon, by letter, unto Ezekiah, ver. 10-14. (all which must needs be, before any expedition into Ethiopia, or Egypt,) Ezekiah's prayer, presently, upon the receit of the letter, ver.14-19.and Gods gracious answer, by Esay, thereunto, ver.20, 34. he subjoyneth immediately to prevent all misiake in this kind, and excluding all conceit of any long delay in the execution of what God,by the Prophet,had promised; And it came to passe in that night, that an Angel of the Lord went out, ver.35.What night,but the very next after the messiage, by the Prophet, sent from God? Thus the links of the story are so close clasped together, that there is not the least gap,or flaw left,for any such disjuncture of time, to be forced in, without breach made in the chain it self.In the Hebrew, both here, and there,it is,And:as ch.36.3,9,11.

the Angel of the Lord] Or,an Angel of the Lord:not an evil spirit; as yet some;they are no where so fyled: but one of those blessed spirits, that are of Gods souldiery; which he is wont to make use of, as well for the protection of his people, as for the destruction of his and their enemies,Gen.32.1,2.2 King.6.14-17.Pf.34.7.& 68.17.& 103.20,21.Heb.1.14.

went forth] From heaven, where these glorious Troops attend on Gods Majesty, Matth.18. 10.Luke 1.19.or, from the Lord, that sent him, 2 Chr.32.21.So chap.30.27.or, went forth, in a warlike manner about this work. For it is a militiary term,2 Sam.11. 1. See ver.9. and so some make it,Gen.10.11.

and smote] With plague and pestilence, fay some: as 2 Sam. 24. 15,17.so, not Berosus, as some misiake it; but Joseph the Jew, l. 10.c.2. faith, that Sennacherib returning from the conquest of Egypt, found his army thus consumed with the pestilence: but that seems not so likely, because the noysomeneise of such a malady, would have infected the whole country; with thunder and lightning, fay other: which is not altogether improbable. See chap.30. 30.or, with an hidden combustion, that scorched and killed them. See ch.10.16,17.which,fay some of the Jewish Writers,did so consume their bodies to ashes, that neither the land might be annoyed with their carcasses, nor the people troubled with interring them;& yet neither burnt their garments,(no more then the fire did, that slew Aarons sons,Levit.10.2,5)nor defaced their ornaments, that the people might enjoy their spoils.See ch.10.16.& 33.23.

In the Camp of the Assyrians]As some, lying before Libnah,where Sennacherib himself,with a great party of it was,ver.8.Others, set down before Jerusalem, whither no small body of it had been sent to beleaguer it,while the residue stayed at Lachish,ch.36.2.there being no mention or probability of the departure of it, as yet, from thence;though it be not unlikely, that some such matter was intended,had not this sudden blow prevented it: & here some proceed so far,as to particularize the place, where this blow was given; some affirming it to have been in the valley of Jehoshaphat,2 Chr. 20.25, 26.Joel 3.12.Others in the valley of Gehinnom,Josh.15.8.ch.30.33. But these are meer uncertainties: I suppose the slaughter was made, as well in the one part of the camp,as in the other,as well in that before Jerusalem,as in that also before Libnah. Nor was the distance of place between the one,& the other; such as could impeach the dispatch of that execution,by an Angel, in an instant, when as within so short a space of time,an Angel, in likelihood, slew all the first born, throughout the whole land of Egypt,Compare ch. 30.27, 30-32.with this place,& Exod. 12.12,29.with Heb.11.28 & 1 Cor. 10.10.what God is said to do in the one,an Angel is said to do, in the other:because by the Ministery of an Angel it was done.see c.31.8. an hundred and fourscore & five thousand]A great slaughter indeed, as it is termed, ch.30.25.and a slaughter of great ones, there termed towers; for so it is said, 2 Chr.32.21. The Lord sent an Angel, which cut off all the mighty men of valour, and the Leaders and Captains in the Camp of the King of Assyria. Rabshakeh, in likelihood, with his Companions; among the rest.See ch. 10. 16, 33. where these great ones are called his glory,his lofty boughes,and his tall trees: as the meaner fort of them,that make up this reckoning,his thorns, and his thickets, ver. 17. 34. for I cannot believe what some of the Jewish Masters groundlesly gather from that passage in the Chronicles, that this whole number should consist only of the former. This story and remarkable passage of Gods providence, the Devil hath endeavoured to obscure and deface,(as many other of the like nature,recorded in Scripture,)partly,by displacing of it,and partly, by blending of it with idle fictions of his own: this to effect, he hath made use of the Egyptians,who,therewith,to gain estimation to themselves & their idols,relate, that Sennacherib invading their country,Sethon a Priest of Vulcan,who was then their King, being upon some disgust deferred by his souldiery, and in regard thereof, in great distreise, betook himself to his idol, before whom having deplored his present condition, he fell into a sleep, wherein his god appearing to him, willed him to arm such of the common people,as were willing to follow him,& go out the next day against the enemy with the:& he should be sure to do wel enough. This oracle given him,his god the night following,sent a multitude of fieldmice into Sennacheribs Camp, consisting of Assyrians and Arabians that gnawed asunder,all their bow-strings, and lether thongs of their quivers and their bridels; by which means on the morrow, finding themselves thus disarmed,they were enforced to flye; and by the Egyptian(though raw)forces,fell many of them in their flight. So Herodote,l.2.from the reports of the Egyptians to him,when he was among them,by whom also he was shewed an image,said to be that Sethons,with a mouse in his hand, and this motto adjoyned to it; Let men learn devotion, by looking on me. And thus, as Sennacherib would have ranked the true God among heathen idols: as no more able to save his people, then they were, those that feared them:so hath the Devil,by them,endeavoured to detract from him the honour of this admireable work, and to attribute it to their idols.

they were all dead corpses] Yet not all simply, but all in a manner: the main body of the army, and the most of the great ones: for some, with Sennacherib himself, escaped. See ch.17.14.

V. 37. So Sennacherib King of Assyria departed] He was not destroyed then,with the rest of his forces: God reserving him as to be destroyed at home, by his own sons, to surviving the losse, to see the power of that God, whom he had set to fight by. The like have some deemed of Pharao, becausc he is not expresly mentioned, as perishing together with his Troops:Exo.14.18.& 15.4,but we have elsewhere,as well clear Scripture against Pharaohs escape,Psal.136. 15.as for Sennacheribs escape here,see Job 21.30.

and dwelt at Nineveh] the strong hold, that, for fear of the sword, he fled to; no where staying by the way,as no where thinking himself in safety, until he got thither. See chap. 31. 8, 9. or. and sate down at Nineveh, 2 Sam.7.1. & 11.1. kept himself quiet there, and went out to war no more. So some of the Jewish Commenters, not amisse: his losse was so great, as he could not soon recover: his shame such,as he had no list to look much abroad. See 2 Chr.32.21.

Nineveh] The chief City of Assyria,built there by Nimrod,Nephew to Cham, by his son Cush: after that out of the land of Shinar,or Chaldea,where he was first seated,he had broken into the country of Athur, the son of Sem; and is in Scripture constantly termed Nineveh, Gen.10.11,12. 2 King. 19.36. Ion.1.2. & 3. 3,4,6,7,7. & 4.11.Nah.1.1. & 2. 8. & 3. 7. which name, also, is sometime found in prophane Authors; as in Ptolomy, l.8.c.6.Sect.5. and in Ammian, l.18.c.9.Howbeit, the most Historians, both Greek and Latine, call it, Ninus and Ninus, and report it to be so named, from a King of that name, who first founded it, which is directly contrary to the records of holy Writ. And indeed, who seeth not that Ninus, or Ninus, are no other then Nineveh, moulded into a Greek and Latine form? and it is not improbable, that the Ninus, they write of,was no other then Nimrod, for some of them make him the first King of the Assyrians. See Diodore, l.2.c. 1. who is said to have been the first that, by war, invaded any neighbour country; country; (see Justine, l.1.) which is as much in effect, as of Nimrod, Moses reporteth, Gen.10.10,11. where the word used, is observed to imply no less. See on ver. 36. Howbeit, the word Nineveh, may, to some, seem to come nearer to the Greek Ninuas, or Ninyas, which they say, was the name of their Ninus his son. See Diodore, ibid. c. 21. and from him, might Nimrod be deemed to have given Nineveh that name; as Cain called the city that he built, by the name of his son Enoc, Gen. 4. 17. if it could be made to appear, that Nimrod had any son of that name. But it is more probable, that from the name of the City, the Greeks, at first, forged the names both of the father, and the son. The like whereunto, both they, and other Writers are wont to do, when the names of cities and countries, are such, as they find no other certain, or probable ground of, to fasten them on some one man of note, or other; who sometime bare that name, that either founded, or forced them, and so became Lord of them; as by a multitude of instances might easily be shewed. Nor can I therefore be induced to concur with that learned Writer, who presuming, not Nimrod,but Chus, the father of Nimrod to be Ninus, suppoleth, that Nimrod building this city, called it, not by his own, but by his fathers name Nineveh, as Ninaveh,that is, Ninus his habitation, or dwelling place, since, neither is it the manner of those oriental tongues, to put the governing word, after the governed; nor doth it appear, that either Cush, or Nimrod, were either of them, so anciently known by the name of Ninus. Nin, indeed,or Non,we read to have been the name of Jothra's father, Exod.33.11. Num.13.9. 1 Chr.7.27. and, Nin, for, a son, or for illue. we find, Gen.21.23. Job 18.19.Esay 14.22 but neither do we any where find Nin, to be a proper name of any one, or other; nor either Nun, Non,or Nin, to have been the name either of Cush, or Nimrod, or, of any of Chams posterity;and consequently, not of the first founder of Nineveh.

V.38. And it came to pass, as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch his god, that Adrammelech, and Sharezer his sons smote him with the sword] Thus was he referved, as Pharao, in the slaughter of the first-born, Exod.12.30. to see the deliverance of Gods people, and the destruction of his own; and then to be slain at home by the hand of his own sons, in the Temple of his god, who was not able to save him, as the God of Israel had his, from the evil that he threatned, and had intended against them,who also had foretold this his end. See ver.7.

worshipping] Heb. bowing himself: as 2 Kings 5.18.

of Nisroch] Of this idol, save in this story, we find no mention in Scripture; nor that hitherto hath been observed by those, that have made diligent search into the monuments of antiquity in this kind, elsewhere. It may seem to have been the Sun, whom,most of those Eastern people, chiefly adored, under divers names, Ezek.8. 16. and may seem to have been so termed from his circular motion, whereby he traverseth the heavens, between the two tropicks, from a word of that notion. Jer.8.23. For as for the conceit of a learned Writer, who would have it to import a God of soft, or tender, flight; answering to the Greek Ἀσθενὴς θεὸς, unto whose Temple, therefore, as to a Sanctuary, Sennacherib should flee for succour; it neither hath ground in story, and is too far fetched; and as little probability carrieth that of another, who would bring Nisroc up to Roe, found in Shadrac, Dan.1.7. which (saith he, but without proof) in the Babylonian language, signifieth, the Sun. Joseph, l. 10.c.2. calleth this idol, Arafee.

Adrammelec] The name of an idol, which those of Sepharvaim adored, 2 King.17.31. the word signifieth a magnificent King; both titles given to the true God,Chap.33.21,22.and their manner was, as to give unto their idols, the titles of the true God: so to impose the names of their idols, on their children, or on those whom they would honor, and had in esteem. See on Chap.39.1. Dan. 1. 7. & 4.8.

Sharezer] An Assyrian name, composed of Shar, and Ether; from whom, it give to me life, also, among Gods people: as appears, Zach.7 2. Joseph in his Antiquities, corruptly calleth him Seleucar.

his sons] These words here written, are read, but not written, 1 King.19.37. and are very remarkable, much conducing to aggravate the dismal end of this impious and insolent miscreant, having his life taken from him, by those who had received his from him. Divers causes, the Jewish Commenters relate of this their unnatural attempt and deed: which, because they seeme to be but fabulous fictions, such as they are nothing sparing of, I forbear to rehearse. See Chap.33 1. Joseph saith they were his two elder sons; but without ground.

some him with the sword] That is, slew him; as Deut.20.13. See ver.7.

and they escaped into the land of Armenia] So that the murther of the tyrant, by his own sons, for the present, went unpunished; no justice being done on them, for the death of him, that had unjustly,himself, done so many to death. See Judg. 1. 5. 1 Sam. 15. 33.

Armenia] Heb. Ararat; on the mountains whereof, the Ark, wherein the whole flock man and beast was enclosed, rested after its floting so long to and fro, when the deluge was abated, Gen.8.4.

and Esarhaddon and his son reigned in his stead] Of this Esarhaddon, there is mentioned also, Ezr.4.2. whence it may appear, that sometime after, he rene wed the attempts of his Ancestors, against the land of Israel. For he further emptied that country of its natives, by Salmaneser their left, and peopled it with some Colonies of his own, who there profess to have been brought thither by him, therein professing what Salmaneser had in part done before him, 2 King.17.4,24. and it is not unlikely, but it was he allo, who after Ezekiahs decease, by his forces, under the command of others, (for it appeares not, that in person he did it,) re-invaded Judea, took Manasses prisoner, and carried him to Babylon, which was,it seems, as yet subject to the King of Assyria,2 Chr.33.11.But he is thought to have been the last of that Monarchy. Some suppose him to have been the same with him, whom Ptolomy calleth Assaradinus; and the names, indeed, come very neer. Others would have him to be him, whom the Greeks call Sardanapalus;because the Assyrian Monarchy ended in him: nor are this name and that of Esar-haddon, much asunder. For Sardanapalus, is no other, then Esar (or Sar,) -haddon put, a compound of those three simples; the last whereof, pal, or, pil, or, pul, or, puls; (for they come to all one,) is found in those Assyrian and Chaldean names, (for it is common to both,) sometime single, as in Pul, 2 King.17.19. sometime prefixed, as in Pul-eser, 2 King 15.29. sometime inserted, as in Nabo-pol-assar, mentioned in Ptolomy; sometime annexed, as in Esar-Haddon-Pul, or, Pul, whence Sardanapalus.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Vers.1. IN those daies was Ezekiah sick unto death.] This story, of Ezekiah's sickness and recovery,a remarkable monument, both of the uncertainty of all outward prosperity, and how soon and suddenly our greatest joys may be blasted; as also, of Gods, as well power, as pitty, in being able to bring back from the threshold of death, and so doing Psalm 9.13. is recorded also, in 2 King 20.1-7. 2 Chron.32.24.

In those daies] That is, fay the Jewish Writers, three daies, before that slaughter made in the Assyrian Army: for on the third night of his sickness, that, fay they, fell out. But if Ezekiah then lay sick of so dangerous a disease, how could he, with Sennacherib's letter, go up to the Temple? Chap.37.14. when as it is apparently implyed, that by means thereof, he was restrained from acceise to Gods house, ver. 22. Some of ours would have it to be in Sennacherib's absence, while he was in employment against the Ethiopians and Egyptians: concerning which, see on Chap. 37. 35. from 2 Chron.32.20,22. and the reason they render is from ver.6. where deliverance from, and defence against the King of Assyria, is promised: whereby it appeares, fay they, that this sickness did precede that deliverance. But this may easily be avoided: for the promise there seems to be, and well may be, of a continued preservation and protection, for the future. See on the place. Others, therefore, after Joseph the Jew, in his Antiquities, l.10.c.3. hold, that this sickness befell Ezekiah, shortly after Sennacherib's defeat, and departure thereupon. Nor doth the computation of Ezekiah's years and reign, any way controll this. For in Ezekiah's fourteenth year, Sennacherib invaded Judea;and having received a submiss message and moneys, according to his own demand,from Ezekiah, sent notwithstanding his Army, a great part of it, unto Jerusalem, supposing it would be suddenly, upon the very sight thereof,delivered up to him. This his Army had not long lien there, but that Rabshakeh,who at his access thither, had prefently summoned the city, receiving no such answer, as he looked for, returned to his Lord,whom he found dissodged from the place where he left him;& upon tidings brought him of the Ethiopian Kings expedition, sending a letter back to Ezekiah, to try what might be done, before his Camp were broke up: and Ezekiah, upon receipt of it, seeking by renewed suit unto God, that was from God, by the Prophet promised,which,without longer delay, was the very next night performed. Now all this might very well have been accomplished within the fourteenth year of the reign of Ezekiah,especially if the invasion were made about the beginning of the year: but allowing for the dispatch of them some good part of the fifteenth; and this sickness following very shortly thereupon the reckoning of fifteen years ensuing, will well consist with twenty nine of his reign fully compleat. Of the phrase it self, see ch.4.1,2. Jer.3.16,18.

sick] What kind of disease this was, is not certain: some deem it to be that which we call the plague. Thus much only appeares, that that it was some disease, accompanied with a malignant Ulcer, ver. 21. Much more uncertain it is, for what special cause it was, that God pleased thus to exercise him, about which, many are pleased to deliver their conjectures,some improbable; as those, who suppose it was to chastise him for not marrying before. But neither doth it appeare, that he was not before married; nor is any set terme of time defined in the Law, at which men ought,in those times, to enter into that estate; nor do we read of any, that were chastised for leading a single life. Others, somewhat more probably,to keep him from being lifted up, after so great, and sudden, and strange a deliverance,that which mans nature is too prone unto:see 2 Chr.26.16

Cor.12.7.)and Ezekiah himself was,not long after,overtaken with, 2 Chron. 32. 25. or to correct him, for coming short in thankfulnes, answerable to so high a favour ; that which he was sometime after found somewhat defective in, 2 Chron. 32. 25. or, thereby further to refine him, and fit him for such favours, as he meant further to confer on him, chap.1.25.2 Cor.4.16. Heb.13.10,11.or thereby to enure him, to depend constantly upon him, and keep closer to him ; considering what need he had of his continual support, 2 Cor.1.9,10.or lastly, to withdraw his heart and affections from the things here below, and to cause them to mount up, and aspire more unto heaven, 2 Cor. 5. 1, 2. And these, or some of these, or some other, not unlike these, might God have an aim at, in this passage of his providence : but which, or what, in particular, is no easie matter for any mortal man to divine. See Job 10.2. Rom. 11.33,34.and it is lafest for us, therefore, to be sparing in defining ought therein.

unto death] The disease being such as was deadly in its own nature. See Joh.11.4.Phil.2.27.

add Isaiah the Prophet, the son of Amoz, came unto him, and said unto him ; Thus saith the Lord]being sent unto him from God,not so much to give him a visit, as to deliver him the message hereafter related.

Set thine house in order] Command, Or, Give charge concerning thine house : as ch.45.11.& 48.5.As if he had said ; make thy Will, and dispose of thine estate,that there may arise noquestion or controversie about it,after thy decease.

for thou shalt die, and not live] Heb. thou art dead ; no better then a dead man, as sure of this disease to die, as if thou wert already dead. So Gen.20.3. Joh.3.18.Rom.8.30.Yet a secret reservation there was,though the sentence seemed peremptory, to humble and to try him ; as in that of Nineveh, Jon.3.4.See Jer.18.7,8. Ezek.3.18.

die, and not live] As, live,and not die, Ezek.18.21. and,not dy,but live, Psal.118.17. an emphatical form of speech, onely ; not, as some of the Rabbines fondly and falsly expound it ; Thou shalt dy, in this world,and not live in the next.

V. 2. Then Hezekiah turned his face toward the wall, and prayed unto the Lord] Then, to wit, after this message delivered to him, and the departure of the Prophet that brought it. See on ver. 4. Heb. And;as ch.37.36.

turned his face to the wall] As he lay in his bed, not out of fullesnne's and discontent,as Ahab, because he wanted of his will, 1 King. 21. 4. nor because he could not endure to behold the face of Gods Prophet, that had brought him so sad a message, as Eliseus telleth Joram, 2 King.3. 14. (for the Prophet departed, when he had done his errand) but, as some conjecture, because the Temple stood from his house on that side, toward which, they used in their private houses to pray.1 King 8 35,48.Dan.6.10. and so the Chaldee Paraphrast expresly renders it. As others, that being sequestred from the company of those about him, and having withdrawn himself from such variety of objects, as might in his devotions distract or disturb him, he might with the more privacy, the more intention of mind, and the more freedom and fervency of Spirit,address himself unto God. See somewhat the like, 1 King. 18. 42. and the contrary upon a diverse occasion 1 King 8.14. where it is rendred, and the King turned his face about ; and so the word properly signifies. They fweet were much from the simplicity of the text, who by wall,would have the heart,here meant,because the walls of the heart are mentioned. Jer 4 19 prayed] Of the word here used, See on ch.37 21.

V. 3. And said remember now O Lord,I beseech thee, how I have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart ; and have done that which is good in thy sight.] Thus Gods Servants, in an humble and modest manner, dare appeal, even to God himself,for the sincerity and integrity of their hearts, and for their serious care,and sedulous endeavour, to please him and to approve themselves and their courses unto him, Job 10. 7. & 23. 10-12. Psal. 7. 3-8.& 18.22 23.and do plead sometime the same unto God, as expecting,therefore, favour and mercy at his hands ; not in regard of any matter of merit in them,or of reward, deservedly for the same due to them;for they acknowledg all that they do,or can do, to be but duty,and due debt,Luk.17.10.Rom.8.12.1 Joh.2.6.) but in regard of his gracious promises freely made thereunto, Psal.5.12.& 7.10 & 33.18,19.& 34.15,19,22 & 37.39.40 & 91.1-16.See Neh. 5.19.& 13.14.31.Pl.26.1 9.& 86.2.& 119 22,31,38,94.

Remember] So Nehemy,in the places above-cited ; and the Psalmist, Psal.25.6 7 & 18.32.& 89.5. Not that God can forget ought, much lefs any good,that is done by any,or for any of his, Heb.6.10. but then he is in a special manner,said to remember either person, or performance, when by some act of mercy,or bounty, exhibited to the one,or for the other,he maketh it to appear, that he taketh notice of minderb,and accepteth of either.So Gen.8.1 & 18.29. & 30. 22.See the like,ch.37 4,17.

now] The same word that was used before,ch.36. 11. and might better be rendred, I pray thee,here, then there. The words run thus in the text ; I beseech thee, O Lord, remember, I beseech thee. For the word repeated, is with very little difference the same, Ana, and Na, and of the same notion usually; and there is the very same repetition found twice in one verse, in the Hosanna, Psal.118.25.

whence some, too much addicted to Jewish sopperies, would have Ana, to be one of the names of God ; because it is joyned both here, and there, with Jehovah ; and the Jews so use it in their prayers.

How] Heb. that ; as ver.7.

I have walked] Heb. I have made (that is entured, or accustomed) my self to walk I have studiously and carefully applied my self to to live, and to behave my self. So Gen.24.40. or, I have constantly to converse,and carried my self ; as Lev.26.12. 1 Sam. 12.2.Pl.26.3.See of Ezekiah,2 King.18.5 6.

before thee] As in thy sight, Gen.5.22.& 6.9.& 17.1. Psal.16.8. & 119.168.Luk.1.6.

with a perfect heart] Or, an entire heart ; when the heart is not divided between God and the creature, or between God,and some false God, but is entirely set upon him ; though a man may have his failings in some things,as Ezekiah also,and some others had,to whom yet this commendation is given. See 1 King.8.61. & 11.4. & 15.3,14.2 Chron.25.2.whereas of some other,it is said,that some good things they did,but not with an entire heart,2 Chr.25.2.See of Ezekiah,2 Kings 18.6.

have done that which is good in thy sight] Heb. the good in thine eyes, as Jer.26.14 that which hath been acceptable and well-pleasing to thee, and accepted of thee, 2 Chron.29.2. as that is said to be evil in Gods eyes, that he millikes and disallowes, Gen. 38. 10. 2 Sam.11.27.ch.6 5.12. fo that is faid to be good in the eyes of God, that he liketh and allowcth, Lev.10.19.Deut.6.18. 1 Sam. 3. 18. 1 Chron.18.13.

and Hezekiah wept sore] Heb. wept with great weeping,as 2 Sam. 13.36. This grief of Ezekiah, thus manifested, is supposed, to have proceeded, partly, from an apprehension of some displeasure, that God had conceived again him ; in regard whereof,he should be taken away fo soon, and so suddenly, after so great a deliverance, as one deemed unworthy to enjoy the blessed fruit and comfort of it, as befell that Nobleman for his unbelief, 2 Kings 7. 2, 19, 20. partly, from a foresight and forecast of such danger and disturbance, as might befall Church and State ; much out of frame, both when he came to the crown ; and much distracted and disjointed again by the late Invasion, should he then be taken away, before either were again well setled ; especially, since that he had then no Son to succeed him ; and the want of an Heir-male (many, in regard thereof, taking occasion to pretend title to the Crown) might be a means of producing much distraction in the state : for his son Manasses, that succeeded him, was, as yet unborn ; as appeareth by his age, when he came to the crown ; for he was but 12. years old at his fathers decease,2 King.21.1.whereas his Father lived fifteen year after this sickness,ver.5.

V. 4. Then came the word of the Lord to Isaiah ; saying] A speedy return of a gracious answer,agreeable to those free promises,ch.58. 9.& 65.24.

Then] Before he was gone out into the city, or unto his own house, while he was yet in the Kings house ; for he was not yet gone out into the middle court ; or, as some read it, gone out of, to wit, the Kings house, which had three courts within the utmost wall, or compass of it ; one,next to the chief house ; another,next the street; and a third between those other two : (See 1 King.7.8. & Jer. 36. 12.& 37. 15.) which Esay had not yet entred, being still in the first, or at least, was not gone out of, when this message came to him, 2 King.20.4.where the reading is court ; but the writing is city;because,fay some of them,the Kings Palace was as a city;and the courts thereof,as the streets of a city. And they render this, as one reason,why God was pleased to return such an answer,by the same messenger,so speedily, ere he were gone out of the Kings court, 2 King.20. 5. that it might not be known and divulged in the city ; that a doom of death had, from God, been passed upon their Sovereign, which might have produced some evil consequences among the people. This is not improbable. Whereunto we may add,that God hastened his answer, that he might not hold his dejected servant over-long in affliction of mind,anxiety of Spirit, and solicitous suspence ; and by the same messenger,by whom he had sent the former, to give the stronger assurance of the certainty of it ; which might have bin more questionable,had the message come by any other,and that the same party might,to others abroad, relate joyntly together,both the one,and the other.So dealt he with David:he sent Nathan to him,at the same time,ere they parted, both to convince him of his sin, and the hainousnes of it:and withal, upon his humble confession and acknowledgment thereof, to assure him of pardon,2 Sam.12.ver.12,13.

V. 5. Go, and say to Hezekiah] Return, or, Go back 2 King.20. 5. Heb.here.Going go:as Jer.13.1.& 28.13.

I have heard thy prayer:] See ch.37.4,21.

I have seen thy tears;] Taken special notice of them, and taken them to heart : as Exod.3.7.See Psal.56.8.Though the Prophet had neither heard the one,nor seen the other:yet God,in Heaven,had; Psal.34.15.

behold, I will add to thy days fifteen Years] I will not onely recover thee of thy present disease, fo that thou shalt be able, within three days, to go abroad again, 2 King. 28. 5. But I will over and above that, allure unto thee a lease of thy life,for fifteen years longer ; such a favour,as we never read the like, afforded unto any other of his servants, though very high in favour with him. See Gen. 27 1. Psal.39.4. and no marvell, therefore, if it be ushered in with a note of attention, and serious consideration : behold[see ch.7.14 & 37.7.] and sealed,being an unusual grant, with an unwonted miracle, ver. 8.

I will add.] Heb. I am adding : or, I am he, that will add : as ch.29.14.

to thy days] That is,to the days,fay some, that were formerly allotted thee in my secret purpose, Job 7.1.& 14.5.as if Gods counsels were not fixed,ch.25.1 & 26.3.to the days;that in the course of nature,he might have attained to, fay others, but could not have attained,had he been given up to the violence of this present disease, Job 15.32.Pl.55.23 See 1 Sam.26.10.but the meaning is plain, to those years, that he had lived already.

fifteen years] The one half,in likelihood,and it may be precisely, of the whole time of his reign : For this is, not without ground, deemed to have fallen out, about the fourtieth year of his age, and the fifteenth year of his reign : for he was full twenty five year old, when he began his reign : and full twenty nine he reigned, 2 King. 18. 2. 2 Chronicles 29. 1. fo that the fourtieth of his age, and fifteenth of his reign, are in part, at least, co-incident : In part, I fay, because they might have divers beginnings,and expirations accordingly.So that half the time of his reign,he enjoyed peace and tranquility,without interruption : see ver.6,15. chapter 39.6.

V. 6. And I will deliver thee, and this city out of the hand of the King of Assyria ; and I will defend this city] Hence some infer, that this sickness of Ezekiah befel him, before the dissolution of the Assyrian camp.But of that there is no necessity, in regard of ought here spoken. See on ver.1.The promise before made to them,in the time of their distress,by the Assyrian forces, chap.37.35.is again here renewed, to give Ezekiah assurance, not of his life onely to be prolonged,but of peace and tranquility to be continued unto him, together with it. For Ezekiah might have some doubt, lest Sennacherib, though having fo great a blow given him : yet might in some space of time, recover himself again, and either he, or some of his successors, might return to molest him, and the state again, out of a desire to be revenged for the former discomfiture : and that after his decease appeareth to have been, in some fort, effected, 2 Chron.33.11.Now this to meet with, and to ease Ezekiahs mind of all such misdoubt and dread : God promiseth to continue this his protection, both of him and his city : and to safeguard them, against whatsoever power and King of Assyria should be able to raise, or make against either. That which Sennacherib made account was more then God could do, Chapter 36. 20. & 37. 10, 11. Ezekiah prayed for, well knowing, that he could, chapter 37. 20. and God by promise engaged himself to do, for the present, there, chapter 27. 21, 25. for the future, also, here. See 2 Chron. 32. 22.

V. 7. And this shall be a sign unto thee from the Lord,that the Lord will do the thing that he hath spoken] Ezekiah had craved a sign for the strengthening of his Faith, verl. 22.and the sign here mentioned, being put to his choice, 2 Kings 20. 8, 10. Thus is God content, in mercy and goodnes, to comply with mans infirmity, and condescend to his weaknes : and as the nurse leading the little child, to stoop down to us, when the short hand or arm of our feeble faith, is not able to reach to his, 2 Chronicles 32. 24. See Genesis 15. 8-18. Judges 6. 36, 40. Chapter 7. 11, 14. and 37. 30.

that the Lord] The pronoun relative,for the demonstrative particle,as ver 3.

will do the thing] Heb.word : as Gen.20.10.& 21.11.

V. 8. Behold] See before, ver.5.

I will bring again the shadow of the degrees, which is gone down in the Sun-dial of Ahaz, ten degrees backward] Heb. I am bringing, or do bring again : as ch.3.1.& 44.2 5.Jer.29.3.4.

the shadow] Made by the Sun,and the Sun,consequently, together with it;as in the next branch is expressed.

of the degrees] Marked upon the surface of the diall, to shew the progresse of the Sun, and the proceese of the day together with it.

which is gone down] Or, by which it is goae forward. See more hereof on the next branch.

in the Sun-dial of Ahaz] Heb. in the degrees of Ahaz, (that is,in the dial which King Ahaz, Ezekiah's father, had for publike use erected, in some open place, about his palace, marked out with a certain number of lines, or degrees, such as before,) in the Sun, or with the Sun ; on whose motion the shadow with the progress, or the regress of it, wholly depended ; the particle may be taken the latter way, as well as the former : as 1 Sam. 1. 24. Hos. 5. 6.

So the Sun returned ten degrees,by which degrees it was gone down] By the Sun, some here would have understood the shadow which the Sun made on the Dial ; because it is said to have gone back by so many degrees, as it had gone forward on Ahaz his Dial. And some hence would infer,that the course of the universe was not inverted,or altered ; but the shadow,only,upon the dial ; called here the Sun, as the windows are so called, by which the Sunshine is let in, Jer. 15. 9. but neither can it well be conceived, how the shadow made by the sun,should go backward, or fo ward, without the sun ; nor could forraign people, in remote places, have taken notice of it, had no alteration been in the course of the universe. See chap.39.1. nor is any such thing found,as is intimated in that place of Jeremyi nor is it necessarily to implyed in the text, that the Sun went forward, or backward, on Ahaz his Dial, either here, or, 2 King. 20. 9-11. where there is no mention of the Sun,but of the shadow onely. Though it be true, that the retrograde motion of the Sun, appeared by the shadow upon the Dial : for there may well be a transposition of the words in the text, as our English hath conceived it, or the text be otherwise expounded, as shall afterward appear.

returned] Or, went back ; as is more fully before expressed,so many degrees, as it had already gone foward. Which some suppose to have been done in an instant ; and then the day so much longer then ordinary, by so much of it,only, as was already spent. Others are of the mind, and so the most, that the Sun went back in his ordinary pace, and then the day must be twice so much longer then ordinary : as much time being spent in his return to the point,at which he rose ; as much more in his coming back to the point, from whence he had returned.

ten degrees] What space of time was by each of these degrees described and limited out, is uncertain. Some would have them whole entire hours ; ten of fuch twelve,as are meantioned, Joh. 11. 9. and then should that day have been, if the Sun went back suddenly, two and twenty hours long ; if an ordinary pace, (as they seem to hold) thirty two hours long. But against this is objected ; First, that if it had been of this latter and larger size, it had been longer then that,when the Sun stood still in Joshuah's day:for that was no longer then two days,at most ; a day of four and twenty hours, Josh.10.13.whereas this should be,within four hours,as long as three days : and yet of that day, it is said, that there was none like it before,or after it, Josh.10. 14. 2 Neither size will fit with the choice that Ezekiah was put to, of having the Sun go ten degrees forward,or backward, 2 King.20.9, 10. For if they were ten the hours, the sun was already within two hours of setting ; and could not go, therefore, above two such degrees forward ; nor by above two hours (which his going forward must do) hasten the night. Others, therefore, conceive these degrees to have been but half hours ; and that is the opinion most received ; and so the day should be of seventeen hours, if the Sun retired in an instant. And so some define it;or of twenty and two hours,(two only short of Joshua's day)) if he kept to his pace:for ten degrees,that is,five hours of the day were past, what time this miracle was wrought. So that it was about their fift hour compleat our, eleven. Ten degrees,that is, five hours were spent in his regress,and as many in his renewed progress,unto the point from which he retired. All which put together, make twenty two hours. Yet there want not those,that allow each degree but a quarter of an hour, and so enhaunce the number of them on the diall ; from twenty four to fourty eight : so the day should be cut shorter by five hours, at least. But it is not very probable, that the day should be minced into so many small threds on the Diall. The Jewish Doctors tell us, (but that is one of their tales) that the day was shortned, just so many degrees at Ahaz his death, as it was lengthened at Ezekiah's recovery.

by which degrees it was gone down] Heb in the degrees,or, by the degrees which it had gone down. And according to our reddition of it,therefore, should be a transposition of the words in the text, by the degrees which ; for, by which degrees. Some following the order of the words,as they lye in the text,render them,in the degrees : and expound them, in the Dial, thence inferring, what above is related. And it is true,that in the foregoing words; the dial of Ahaz his fetting up, is called, Ahaz his degrees : by a Synecdochical form of speech,whereby the part is put for the whole,because it consisted of a gnamon:or,index,and a table,or plane,marked with those degrees. But the word is there without the article : whereas it there, as in the beginning of the verse, with the article prefixed : and is to be taken,therefore,rather for the degrees themselves, wherewith the motion of the Sun was measured,and discovered upon the Dial,And the words therefore may well be rendred,by the degrees which it (to wit,the Sun)had proceeded.

it was gone down] This if we take the word strictly, and understand it of the Sun : it should imply, that the Sun was then in his declination, and that it was past high-noon, or mid-day, fo many hours, as those ten degrees made up. So he should return, not to his morning point, but to his Zenith, or meridian, where in Joshuah's days he stood still, Josh.10.13. But this seems not so likely. Some understand it of the shadow on the Dial; supposing it to have been like our sun-dials, against some wall, whereon the shadow descended, as the Sun gets up, and ascendeth again, as the Sun declines and goes down. So the miracle might commence from some part of the fore-noon, according to the degrees spent, and past, from the Sun-rising. But the Dials seems to have been no mural, or vertical, but an horizontal one. And some of the Jewish Writers tell us, that it consisted of an half circle, whereon those degrees were signed with an index, or style, situate in the midst thereof; the shadow whereof, falling upon the verge of it, shewed, how, by degrees, the day went away. And to meet with such doubts, the plainest way, is, to expound the word rendred, gone down, not strictly of declination, or descention, but of progress, simply considered, without any notion of ascent, or descent properly so termed. So ye may finde it used, Judg. 11. 37. & 15. 11. 1 Sam. 23. 6.2 Sam. 23. 21. 2 Kings 8. 29.Jer. 18.2. & 22. 1. and so it may well be rendred here, which it had past; or, by which it had gone forward.

(as Job 4.21.) and is carried away from me, (in a forcible manner; as one is carried away)into captivity: for ſo the word properly ſignifies, in this form no where elſe uſed. I am bereaved of my continuance, or abode here, by the violence of my diſeaſe; as one that is, in hoſtile manner, forced out of his dwelling place; it being as ſoon and ſuddenly thrown down, and I ſevered from it, as a ſhed, that a ſhepherd ſetteth up for his ſhelter, and removed, from place to place at pleaſure, ch.24. 19.Jer.4.20. So again, ver. 13,13. His meaning is, as ſome, I have ſhortned my life, or provoked God to ſhorten it, by my ſins,as Gen. 38.7,10.See ver.17. or, as ſome other, my life is cut off by me, that is, by God, ſome occaſion, by me, given him ſo to do, though the doing of it be fore againſt my will,as of Judas, it is ſaid,that he purchaſed a field with the reward of iniquity, Acts 1. 18. though purchaſed, by the Priеſts, not by him, with the money wherewith they hired him,Matth.27.6,7. I ſuppoſe it is to be referred rather to his eſtimation and account of himſelf. I made no other account, but that my life would be ſo cut off. I ſhould bring it ſuddenly to an end. See ver. 10.2 Cor. 1. 9. The word rendred, cut off, is no where elſe found in Scripture:(though in the Chaldee Paraphraſt, ſometime) only a noun derived from it, that ſignifieth cutting off, Ezek. 7. 25. and the name of a beaſt, chap. 14. 23.& 34.11.

he will cut me off with pining ſickneſs:] He, (that is, God) will cut me off,(as Job 6. 9.) or, I ſhall be cut off; (the word being taken indefinitely; as ch. 21.9. & 17.13.& 22.8, 9.) with pining ſickneſs: ſo ſome, becauſe the word ſeemeth of a root, that ſignifieth, to attenuate: whence alſo this name is given to the poorer and meaner ſort of people, Jer. 40. 7. & 52.15. but others render it, from the thrum; becauſe ſome Jewiſh Criticks hold it, to ſignifie thoſe thin and looſe threds, that hang dangling down at the end of the web; whence it is uſed alſo for locks, becauſe they reſemble ſuch, when diſhevelled eſpecially, Canticles 6, 7. and ſo the metaphor from the Weavers manner of doing, is ſtill continued.

from day, even to night, wilt thou make an end of me.] Heb. from day, unto night: that is, as ſome, from morning, to evening, (as Gen. 1. 5.) thou wilt continually and unceaſſantly purſue me, untill thou haſt made an end of me; or, this very day, before night come, thou wilt diſpatch me. See Job 4. 20. there is a paſſage from perſon to perſon; as chap.21.10.& 25.5, 6. & 31.7. Amos 9.1. and ſome would have inſerted, I ſaid; as ver.10, 11. but that is needleſs.

V.13. I reckoned until morning] Heb. I ſet, or put, or propounded to my ſelf (as the word is uſed,Pſal.16.8.& 119.30.)I thought within my ſelf, till morning, or while yet morning was, that is,as ſome expound it; I made account, over-night, that I might live until morning; as others, rather, I made account, that the morning were over, that an end would be made of me; that I ſhould not live, either the morning, or the day, at leaſt, (as morning is taken, Gen. 1. 5.& 19 and.

that as a lion, he will break all my bones:] So moſt Interpreters take it, as a relation of what his thoughts were, and what he made full account of, that this would betide him ere morning were over. Yet ſome render them; But as a lion he, or, it broke all my bones. Whereas I had conceived ſome hope of holding out till the next day, my diſeaſe, or God by it, did ſo grievouſly handle me in the night, as if ſome fierce lion had cruſht all my bones to pieces: that that hope of mine was utterly daſht and quailed. Of the ſimilitude, ſee Jer. 50. 17. Lam. 3, 4. ſore pains are by the breaking of bones oft expreſſed; Job 7.15, Pſalm 6.2.and 51.8.Prov.14.30.and 17.22.

from day, even to night, wilt thou make an end of me] See the ſame, ver.12. From this iteration of the ſame thing again, ſome gather, that Ezekiah was two days in this extremity; that in the former verſe, is expreſſed his firſt days thoughts; in this, his ſeconds: But this obſervation is of no great certainty. It may rather intimate the fixedneſs of his thoughts, and the vehemency of his affection thereupon.

V. 14. Like a crane, or a ſwallow, ſo did I chatter: I did mourn as a dove] This, ſome apply to his prayers, as very quick and ſhort, by reaſon of his pains. Others underſtand it of his ſpeech, ſo ſuſpended, with the violence of his diſeaſe, and the exceſſe of his grief, that he was not able to utter any articulate voice: as Pſalm 77.4. but this his prayer recorded, ver. 2. doth ſufficiently controll. The meaning ſeems to be, that his pains and grief, both joyned together, did wring from him ſuch ſighs and groans, in the bemoaning of himſelf, as might well be compared to ſuch kind of noiſe, or mournful ſounds, as theſe Fowls, or their young ones, or their dams, when their young are taken from them, are wont to make.

a crane, or, a ſwallow] The connexive particle is not in the text: in regard whereof, the old Latine make them but one Fowl, rendring it, the ſwallows young, or young ſwallow; and the Greek, likewiſe one only, a ſwallow: but the defect of the particle, as well in the copulative, as in the diſjunctive notion, is frequent. See chap. 5.6.& 17.6,14.& 27.7.& 28. 24. and that they are the names of two ſeveral Fowls, and both ſuch as change their abode with the Seaſon of the year, appears from Ier.8.7.

crane] The word is Sus, or Sis, as the Jewiſh Criticks require to have it read,which howſoever moſt of the Jewiſh Maſters affirm to ſignifie a crane; ſome rendring the reaſon thereof, becauſe it is a tall fowl

Fowl, and goes upright, like an horſe, who bears alſo the former name; Yet there want not, (whom I rather herein accord with) that conceive it, to ſignifie a ſwallow, ſo termed from her note, or the noiſe the makes, not unlikely expreſſed, by the word Sis. And I the rather hereunto encline, becauſe of the Egyptians fable of their Iſis, that was turned into a ſwallow. See Plutarch, of Iſis, and Oſiris, and Symachus here ſo renders it.

a ſwallow] The Hebrew word is Agur, or Gnagur, (as ſome pronounce it) both here, and in Jeremy, not elſe-where found, which ſome of the Jewiſh Writers would have to be a ſwallow; ſome, the crane: Yet others rather ſuppoſe it to be a crane; which from the apie. Yet others rather ſuppoſe it to be a crane; which from the Greek γέρανος, we ſo term. Wherеunto they are the rather induced; becauſe not only the Greek comes neer it, but the Latine, Grus, comes in a manner full home to it. And again, for that by a tranſpoſition of letters, in the holy language very uſual, (ſee ch 36.16, 30.) it ſeems to come from the word Avog, or Gnavog, that ſignifies to bray, as Deer do when they want food, either paſture, or water, Joel 1.20. to whoſe voice, which a cranes, rather then a ſwallows, reſembleth, doth the Pſalmiſt compare his groaning after God,uſing the ſame term of either, Pſ 42.1. chatter] Aloud and apace, as thoſe Fowls, in parting with, or miſſing their young; or peep,as their young ones do, when they miſs their dam, or want meat. Of the word,ſee ch.8.20,and 10.14.and 29.4.

mourn as a dove] So chap.59.11.Ezek.9.16. the mournfull and doleful tone, that Turtles and Doves have, is well known. See of the word,rendred mourn, ch.8.20.Ezek.2.10.and of his mourning, v.3.

mine eyes fail with looking upward] Toward heaven, to God, for eaſe and relief, 2 Chr.20.12.Pſ.123.1,2.

fail]Heb. are exhauſt, or ſpent: as Job 28.4. ch.19.6. a metaphor from rivers drawn dry, the vigour of them is waſted; my ſight faileth. So Pſ.6.7.& 31.10.& 38.10.& 69.3, & 119.82,123. But ſome of the Jewiſh Commentators render it, are lift up;according to a word of the ſame Original, from another root, Prov.26.7.this, if we admit, there needs not apply: but neither is the word any where found ſo uſed; nor is that other word agreed on, ſo to ſignifie, in that place of the Proverbs; nor doth the root it comes from, ſignifie to lift up, ſimply, but to draw up, uſed properly of water, out of a well or pit, Exod.2.16,19.alluded to,Prov.20 5.& Pſalm 36.1,3. compared alſo, with Pſalm 40.2. I chooſe therefore rather, to ſtick to our verſion; only rendring it, as the former, in the time paſt; mine eyes failed, or were exhauſt, with looking, or while I looked upward: a comprehenſive, or complicated kind of ſpeech, whereby two diverſe notions are enfolded and wrapped up in one word. So Pſ.89.33,34.thou haſt profaned his crown to the ground; that is, profaned it, by caſting it down to the ground; as it is afterward there expounded: ſo ch. 14.12. how art thou cut down to the ground? for, hewed down, and laid along on the ground; and ch.21.9.her Gods hath he broken unto the ground, for, hath he broken and caſt down to the ground.See further on v.17.

O Lord I am oppreſſed] Heb. it oppreſſeth me; to wit, my diſeaſe: it is ſo ſtrong upon me, that it preſſeth me down beyond my ſtength, Pſalm 32. 3, 4. & 38. 2,4, 6.2 Cor.1.8. Here I ſuppoſe would fitly be inſerted, I ſaid; oft wanting, and ſupplyed; as Nehem.9.25. Job 8.18.chap.22.13.and 26.19. See ver. 10,11.

undertake for me] He compareth his diſeaſe to a Bayliff, or Serjeant, that, from death, as a mercileſſe exactor, had ſo attached him, and taken ſuch hold on him, that unleſs God would be pleaſed to undertake for him, as his bayl or ſurety, or to reſcue him, at leaſt, there was no means for him to eſcape. See ſomewhat the like, Job 17.3, Pſ. 119.122. where the ſame word is uſed; yet ſome render it, oeſe me; and the word ſignifies, indeed, ſometime, to be ſweet, pleaſant, or pleaſing, Pſalm 104.24. Prov.3.24.& 13.19. Jer. 31.26. Mal.3,4. but never actively, to ſweeten, nor any where, to relieve,or eaſe. Others of ours render it, weave me out; for,becauſe they find a word of the ſame family with this, to be uſed for the woof, Lev. 13. 51. and ſome alluſions to weaving, went before, verſe 10,12.they ſuppoſe the verb here uſed, may ſignifie to weave; and the former ſimilitude therein profecuted; as if it had bin ſaid: though this diſeaſe would cut off the web of my life before it be compleated; yet Lord be thou pleaſed to weave it out ſtill, and lengthen it to its due period. But this ſeems ſomewhat too far fetched.

V.15. What ſhall I ſay: he both both ſpoken to me, and himſelf hath done it] This paſſage, Some, make part of Ezekiah's former complaint; but as checking himſelf therein, and intimating the finfulleſſe of this complaint, and the unlikelyhood of ſpeeding in his former requeſt: as if he had ſaid: to what end do I thus bemoan my ſelf in vain, and ſpend words to no purpoſe:it is God that hath paſſed a doom of death, and what he hath doomed, he will do: and there is no either debating the matter with him, or murmuring againſt him, or reſtraining him from what he intendeth to do. So Job 9.12,32.& 11.10.& 23.13,14.Pſ.39.9.c.29.16.or,to what end, do I ſeek to him, to undertake for me, when it is he himſelf that doth it? But others, at the fore going verſe, end his complaints, and relations of his ſad and forlorn condition, and at this, begin his narration of Gods unexpected mercy and goodneſs to him, in revoking his former doom; returning a gracious meſſage in the room of it, and, accordingly, accomplishing it: as if he had ſaid, according to ſome, what I ſaid, he ſpake, and did. What I requeſted of him, for the prolonging of my life, he promiſed to do,and accordingly did. Or, as others, what ſhall I ſay? What ſhall I make more words, in way of relating my then fad condition? like that of David, to Mephibosheth, 2 Sam. 19.29.Or, how can I ſufficiently, in any words, expreſſe Gods goodneſs toward me? like that of David, to God,Pſal.106.2.& 116.12,& 139.17,18.he hath both ſaid, and done it? both promiſed me recovery, and accompliſhed what he promiſed; 2 Kings 20.5.

he hath both ſpoken] Heb. and he hath ſaid, as Jer. 17.16.& 32. 44.

unto me]Or, concerning me, as chapter 36. 7. either concerning my death,as ſome,or, concerning my recovery, as others, rather.

himſelf hath done it]Heb. he hath done, with a defect of the pronoun, it- as chap. 44. 23. though ſome; to exclude any ſuch ſupply, bring in a new pronoun,expreſſed in the text, after the verb:which yet will not ſo well do here: becauſe the neuter, commonly, is feminine.

I ſhall go ſoftly all my years, in the bitterneſs of my ſoul] So thoſe that underſtand the fore-going branch, of the meſſage, or doom, of death: I ſhall, hereafter, have no joy of my life: I ſhall go drooping all my life long. But this ſeems not to be his meaning: For what hope, or expectation, could he have, of living years, that deſpaired of holding out a day to an end? See v.12,13. Others, therefore, render it, I will be thinking on this favour that God hath ſhewed me, all the days of my life, as long as I live, v.20.Pſ.34.1.& 116.2. or, I ſhall paſſe the reſt of my life peaceably and quietly, after this bitter brunt is once over, v.6.ch. 39.8.

go ſoftly] That is, penſively: ſay ſome: as one oppreſſed with extremity of grief. So Ahab, 1 Kings 21.27. Or, ſoftly, that is, deliberately, or conſiderately, ſaith a Rabbine, as men uſe to do, that are ſeriouſly thinking on ſome weighty matter,: (to which purpoſe, the old Latine, I will reckon up to thee) As minding Gods mercy herein ſhewed him, and confeſſing to, or praiſing his name for the ſame. Or, rather, ſoftly: that is, quietly, and chearfully: as the word is uſed, alſo, ch. 42. 4. boing no where elſe foundras thoſe are wont to do, that march in ſtate, ſaith one: as a Nurſe, that leadeth a child gently by the hand, ſaith another, from the uſe of it, in the Talmud: rather, as men are wont to walk leiſurely, where they fear no danger of ſurpriſall: contrary to the manner of thoſe that are frighted, or poſſeſſed with fear,ch.28.16.Jer.46.5. & 48.9.

in the bitterneſſe of my ſoul] Whereof, verſe 17. ſo Job 7. 11. and 10. 1. or, after my ſouls bitterneſſe, when it is paſt, and Gone. So is the particle found uſed, Chapter 18.4. See Chap. 53. 8.

V.16. O Lord, by theſe things men live: and in all theſe things is the life of my ſpirit: ſo wilt thou recover me, and make me to live] That is, as thoſe that admit this reading: By thy promiſes and performances of the ſame, is the life of man prolonged, and mine among the reſt, whom thou haſt reſtored to life and health, Deut. 8. 3. Mat. 4.4. See ch. 64. 5. And this ſenſe the words will very well bear. Yet they are by divers, divers other ways rendred, by ſome, thus: Other men may live beyond theſe years, that thou haſt now aſſigned me, but among them all the life of my ſpirit, by miracle thus continued to me, hath this advantage above theirs, that thou wilt maintain it in health and life that is, in vigorousneſs to the laſt. By others, it is thus read: Beyond theſe years, that thou by ſome meſſage, aſſigneſt them, men may live, and among them all, ſo may the life of my ſpirit be produced:and I hope, therefore, or entreat thee, therefore; that thou wilt yet, releive and quicken me. By others again, unto all theſe, that ſhall live in time to come, beyond theſe years, ſhall the life of my ſpirit be made known, how thou haſt made me to ſleep, and quickened me: brought me to deaths door, and raiſed me up again. By ſome laſtly to let paſs the reſt, in theſe, yea in all theſe troubles of divers ſorts, threatning death, ch. 37.3.& 38. 1. Yet, doth the life of my ſpirit live: thou haſt made me to ſleep, (or, rather, recovered me,) and revived me. The former require too many ſupplements to make them up: this laſt, leaſt of any.

wilt recover me]Or,haſt recovered me: reſtored me to health and ſtrength:ſo Job 39.7.is the word uſed:and as ſome alſo, Pſalm 1.26. 2. Some render it, thou haſt made me to ſleep,underſtanding thereby, ſome, (as above)the ſleep of death, Pſalm 13.3. ſome, natural reſt: as if he had been diſtempered, through want of ſleep, which God had been afterward pleaſed to afford him, Pſalm 127. 2. Ier. 31. 26. but the word ſignifies, ſometime, indeed, to dream, Chapter 29. 7,8. and ſo moſt take it, Pſ.126.1.never to ſleep.

make me to live]Or,made me whole,as v.9.or,kept me alive:as Exod. 1.17.

V.17. Behold] See what a sudden change here was. So Chapter 17.4.

for peace I had great bitternesse] Or,upon my peace (as chap.30.6.) or, after my peace, (as Jer.52.31.) came great bitternesse. Not long after my deliverance from those difficulties, I had been in by the Assyrian King, and his forces, when I made account, that now I should enjoy peace and rest, this grievous affliction then suddenly surprised me.See ver. 1. fo Job 23. 18. & 30.15.Ier.8.15.& 14.19.

for peace]That is, instead of it, as Gen.11.3.or presently upon it, or after it; 2a Gen. 7. 4.Heb. unto; as Gen.50.21.whence some would expound it, My bitterest afflictions became salvation to me; that is, they turned to my good,Pf.119.67,71. Rom. 8.28.Heb.12. 11.but the former seems the founder.

great bitternesse]Heb.bitter bitternesse, or, bitternesse bitternesse, for abundance of bitternesse, or, bitternesse upon bitternesse; grief upon grief: fo, justice justice, for, exact justice, Deut.16.20. peace peace, for, perfect peace, ch.26.3. bitternesse, for, matter of grief and vexation,as v.15.1 Sam.22.2.Ruth 1.20, 21.

but thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption] Heb. and (tor, but, as chap. 29. 13.) thou hast loved my soul from the pit of corruption:a concile,or comprehensive form of speech, compriling two notions in one term ; whereof, the one is expressed, the other is suppressed; but implyed, and to be supplied in the version, that the sense may be entire ; fo Pfal.118.4.the Lord answered me in largeneſs, for the Lord answered me,and fet me in a large place, or, fet me at large, enlarged me. Jer. 46. 27. I will save thee from afar, for, I will save thee, and bring thee back; or,in safety bring thee back from a far country; Acts 27. 44. they were saved to the shore, that is, they were saved, and brought, or, brought in safety unto the shore; fo 1 Sam.7. 2. they lamented after the Lord; that is, with lamentation, they looked, or fought after him; 2 Corinthians 5. 2. Ye have not mourned, that he might be taken from among you, that is, out of grief, or in mournful manner, endeavoured, or taken a courſe, to have ſuch an one caſt out of your ſociety;as it followeth, there, ver.13.ſee here,before,ver.14. and after,v.21.as alſo, ch.1.4.

love]The word here ſignifieth a propenſion,whereby a mans ſoul is ſtrongly carried toward ſome party, whom he is exceedingly taken with : ſee Gen.34. 8 it is frequently uſed, of Gods love to his people, Deut. 7. 7. & 10.15.& 21.11. and of them to him. Pſalm 91.14.

my ſoul] For,me;as Pſ.3.2.& 116.7,8.& 119.25.

from the pit] The grave, Pſalm 30.3. & 103.4.the word here uſed ſignifies as well deſtruction, as a pit; whence ſome ambiguity in that latter place; and that which is here called the pit of corruption, or conſumption, is, Pſal. 55. 23. called the pit of deſtruction ; the ſame word being there uſed in the latter place, that is here in the former.

of corruption] Or, conſumption. The word it comes of, ſignifies to waſt,and wear away, as garments, over long worn, uſe to do, Deut. 8.4.& 29.5.Pſal.102.26. ch.50.9. it is applied to mens bodies alſo, and the parts thereof, Jam. 18.12. Pſalm 32.3. Lam.3.4.attributed here to the grave:becauſe it conſumes and roteth mens bodies, as old clouts and rags rot,or,conſumes them, till they be not;as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks, Pſal.72.7. where this very woud is uſed; another term of the ſame notion,ſee ch.10.25.where with that conſumption,the Aſſyrian is, in wrath, threatned, from which, Ezekiah is here, out of love, delivered.

for thou haſt caſt all my ſins behind thy back] Thou haſt no more minded, regarded, or taken notice of my ſins, which might juſtly have cauſed thee to deny me this favour ; then as if thou haddſt caſt them behind thy back; a borrowed ſpeech, taken from the manner of men, who are wont to caſt behind their back, ſuch things as they liſt not to look on, have no regard of, nor deſire to mind, or remember, Pſal 16.22.& 50.17.ſee ſome what the like expreſſions,Pſ. 85. 2. Chapter 43. 25. Jeremiah 31. 34. Micael 7. 19. we know the common by-word of the wallets, or, two parts of the wallet; the fore-part, into which we put other mens faults, and the back-part, into which, our own. But we muſt ſet our ſins before our face, if we would have God to caſt them behind his back,Pſ. 50.21. & 51.3.

V.18. For the grave cannot praiſe thee. death cannot celebrate thee] The deceaſed cannot perform thoſe offices any more, whereby thou art honoured ; thy name celebrated, and the glory publiſhed and propagated here on earth, among the ſons of men, Pſalm 6. 5. & 30. 9. and 80. 18. and 88. 10-12. and 115. 17, 18. the grave,for,the buried;and death,for, the dead:as circumciſion,for, the circumciſed, Rom.15.8.Gal.2.9.Phil. 3.3.the ſame thing repeated in divers terms.

cannot praiſe thee]Heb.will not,or, ſhall not confeſs thee;as Pſ.6.5. & 105 1.Mat 11.25.and fo ver.19.the indicative form,in a potential notion ; as chap. 26.18.ſo in the next word, and the next branch.

celebrate] Or, praiſe, thence , hallelujah : the firſt , and laſt word of divers Pſalms ; Pſalm 106. & 146-150.Rev.19.1,4,6.

they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth]Dead bodies laid up in the grave, can neither ſee, nor expect : neither take notice of, nor look for thy faithfulneſſe and truth, in the performance of thy gracious promiſes,Eccl. 9.4-6,10.

they that go down into the pit] So the word is uſed, Gen.37.22,24. Exod 21.33.ch.14. 15.19. and why ſome ſhould here render it, a ciſtern, I ſee not : for the phraſe,ſee Pſ.88.4.Ezek.26.26.& 31.16.& 32.24, 25.

V. 19. The living, the living he ſhall praiſe thee, as I do this day] They that ſurvive, and they alone can, and each of them ſhould : the repetition is emphatical ; as the like, Pſalm 51.6. & 76. 7. this being the principal end to which men ſhould live, and for which they ſhould deſire life, Pſalm 80. 18. & 102. 21.& 115.18.118. and 119.17,88, 175.Rom.14.7,8. Phil.1.20,21. See v.22.

as I do] A defect to be ſupplyed, from the former branch; as I now praiſe thee ; as Job 14. 5. 2 Chron. 10, 11. Chapter 30. 29.

the father to the ſon ſhall make known thy truth] To tranſmit the memory thereof unto poſterity, Pſ.78.3,4.& 145.4. Joel 1.3. . The ſyntax is, as 2 Sam.3.30. Jer.40. 2.

thy truth] Thy faithfulneſs in the performance of thy promiſes,as v.18.Pſ.15. 1.

V. 20. The Lord was ready to ſave me] Of his readineſs, ſee v, 4. Heb. The Lord to ſave, a defective form: as,the ears of the people were to the book, Neh.8.3. and, thy ſervant to thy ſeed, or ſervice, Pſalm 119. 38. that is, attentive to the one, and devoted to the other.

therefore we will ſing my ſongs to the ſtringed inſtruments, all the days of our life, in the houſe of the Lord] As at preſent he praiſed God, by his Hymn, penned to that end, on purpoſe ; ſo he doth, by ſolemn promiſe, further engage himſelf ſo to do, as well in publike, as in private. as long as he liveth:ſo Pſalm 34.1.& 104 33.The memory of Gods mercies ſhould abide with us, when the act of them is over : as the ſent of the civet doth in the box, though the civet it ſelf be gone, Pſalm 105. 5. and 119. 93. & 145.7.

will ſing] The word properly ſignifies to handle, or play upon ſuch an inſtrument as is managed by the hand. See on chapter 23.16.

my] Becauſe more ſpecially concerning me ; or the ſong ſung to them, compoſed by me : though ſome ſuppoſe the ſad here, to be no pronoun, but a paragogical production of the word only, and then there will be no my, in the text. See ſome what the like, Jeremiah 22.14.Lamentation 1.1.and Pſalm 50.10.ſo Hab. 3.19.

ſtringed inſtruments] Or, hand-inſtruments, rather:for the word is more general. We find in Scripture, their ancient muſical inſtruments reduced to two heads, the Nechiloth, Pſalm 5.and the Neginoth, Pſalm 6. the Nechiloth, were wind inſtruments, ſuch as were managed by wind, or breath, as pipes, fifes, flutes, trumpets, cornets, and the like : ſo called, becauſe they are pierced, or bored thorow, and made hollow, to receive and tranſmit the wind, or breath, that produceth the ſound. See ch. 2. 19. & 30.29. The Neginoth were hand-inſtruments,ſuch as were managed by the hand, not the ſtringed only,whether touched with the fingers, as lute and harp: or ſtruck over with a quill, as the cittern, or with a bow, as the viol,but ſuch, alſo, as are ſhaken to and fro, as the cymbal, or beaten, whether with hand, or ſtick, as the timbrel, ſo called, from the fore mentioned word, that ſignifies to touch, ſtrike, or play upon any ſuch kind of inſtument, whether without ſong, or ſinging thereunto, 1 Sam 16.16,17, 23. & 18. 10.& 19. 9. 2 Kings 3.15. Let them take a lump of figs, and lay it for a plaiſter upon the boil] Whether this plaiſter,according to Gods appointment, by the Prophet preſcribed, had any power or vertue in it, to help forward the cure intended, is much queſtioned. Some think that it had not,no more then the clay, that our Saviour tempered, to open the mans eyes with, that was born blind,Ioh.9.6,7.uſed,only,to intimate the cure, and to enhaunce the miracle, the cure being accomplished by ſuch means, as had, of themſelves, no power to produce it. Others ſuppoſe,that it might have ſome natural power, to put forward the thing intended ; for that they find in good Authors, that figs are held uſeful, either for the diſſolving, or ripening of ſwellings; and thoſe alſo, that are with ſome malignity accompanied. See Celſus,lib.5.ch.28.& Pliny,lib.23.chap.7. Againſt which,ſome except again,that figs are deemed ſo, where no ulcer is, as here there was. But whether any ſuch efficacy were in the plaiſter, or no, certain it is,that the cure was miraculous,and the effect,in a way, extraordinary; that Ezekiah brought ſo low, by ſo violent a diſeaſe, as himſelf deſcribeth it, ver. 13, 14. and an ulcer of that malignity, ſhould with the uſe of ſo ſlight a remedy, be ſo raiſed up, and recovered,that he ſhould be able within three days, not to riſe from his bed,or ſit up only,but without danger to go abroad, 2 Kings 20.5. God would have him, and others,hereby,learn,not to neglect the means, when God either enjoyns, or affords them,for their good, corporal,or ſpiritual, that they may not by tempting him, bereave themſelves of the benefit that they might have reaped by them,See 2 King.5.10-14.Mat.4.6,7.& 22.4,5,8.Luk.7.29. & 14.16-24.Acts 27.24,31,31.

CHAP.XXXIX.

Verſ. 1. At that time Merodach Baladan,the ſon Baladan king of Babylon, ſent letters,and a preſent to Hezekiah] This ſtory is recorded alſo,2 Kings 20.12-19. briefly touched with ſome aſperſion upon Ezekiah,concerning it,2 Chr.32.25,26,31.It is here inſerted to make way, and give ſome light unto ſome enſuing Prophecies, concerning the Babylonian captivity, and the deliverance from the ſame.

At that time]Shortly after Ezekiahs recovery,2 King.20.7.

Merodach]This was the name of one of their idols,Jer.50.2. As it was an uſual thing among Gods people, to inſert ſome of Gods titles into the names of their children; ſo the manner of the Heathen people, was to impoſe their idols names on their ſons, favourites, and followers Hence Merodach, here,and Evil-Merodac,2 King.25.27. See Dan.1.7.& 4.8.As alſo,Rom.16.1.14,15 1 Cor.1.12.Phil.2.25: 1 Theſſ.1. 1. His name at large is ſuppoſed to have been, Merodac-ben pad, whence Mardokempadi, in Ptolomy. So his idol, Merodach ſhould be but a part of his name; as Nebo, another of them, ch.46.1.of his fathers,or as ſonic his grandfathers; Nabo natſar,of his ſons, Nabo-pol-aſſar;and of his ſons ſon, Nabu-chadnat ſar. For that learned man ſeems to be miſtaken, who conceives this Merodach, to be Nabopoſſar, who underſtanding that ſo many degrees the Sun went back, in Ezekiah's Dial, began thereupon to divide the day into hours. Nor do I finde, where the Author he cites, ſaith ought of the latter ; and he is expreſly againſt the former. I might add, that this croſſeth the relation of the Rabbines, of Merodacs being acculfomed to eat the third hour of the day, and then ſleep to the ninth,and that on the day that the Sun went thus back, he found it morning ſtill, when he awaked. But the one ſeems to be as Authentick as the other.He is called Berodac,2 King.20.12.whether by a ſlip of the ſcribes pen, the letters being much alike : or by a change of the letter, in common ſpeech, is uncertain. But ſo Dimon,for,Dibon,ch.15.9.And this mans nephew,as is ſuppoſed,commonly called,Nebuchad nezſar,is in Jeremies Prophecies, oft termed Nebuchadnezſar,Jer.25.1.9.& 37.1.& 39.1.Some would have Merodac,to be a common name to the Kings of Babylon;as Pharaoh,anciently,to the Egyptian Kings,and Ptolomy,in latter times;Candace, to the Ethiopian Queens:Acts 8.27. and Ceſar,to the Romane Emperors,Acts.25.10,12.But hereof is no great probability, nor any good proof made.See on Jer.50.2.

Baladan] So called, by his fathers name, then added, it may be,to the former,when he came to ſucceed him. The name is found mentioned, by Berofus, a very ancient writer of the Chaldean affairs,Joſeph,antiquities,lb.10.ch.3.It is a compound name of Bel,or Bal, one of their deities, chap. 46. 1. (found alſo in Bel-ſhatzar, Daniel 5,1.) and Adan; found likewiſe in Nabuzar-adan, 2 Kings 25.8.

Baladan the ſon of Baladan]As Bartimeus, the ſon of Timeus,(if we may compare Kings and beggers, together) Marke 10.46. added here, it may be, to diſtinguiſh him from ſome other of that name His Father, or grandfather (Saune put for Nephew, as Dan.5.18,. 22. ſome ſuppoſe,to have been Nabonaſſar,mentioned by Ptolomy, from whoſe reign the Chronologers uſe to draw their computations of thoſe times; yet not to have been ſo called, until he came to the Kingdom, but Beladan,or, Baladan, by his native name before:contrary to that which is ſaid of his ſon. They walk by themſelves, that would make,either the father,or the ſon, a Mede. for he had heard that he had been ſick,and was recovered] The occaſion of this embaſſage,is, in part, here related,(he had heard of his ſickneſſe)to congratulate his recovery, 2 King.20.12. He had heard alſo of the defeat given by miracle, to the Aſſyrian forces ; and of the miracle granted upon Eſay's prayer, for the confirming of Ezekiahs faith, concerning his recovery,2 Kings 20. 11. and in regard of the one of theſe two, in likelihood, of the latter, he is ſaid alſo to have ſent to enquire,2 Chr.32. 31. Which yet no way favours their fancy,who would have the ſhadow only to have gone back on Ahaz his fun dial, the Sun holding his ordinary courſe ſtill in the skie: for he ſent not to enquire, whether ſuch a thing were done or no, (which in his own country they could not but ſee and obſerve)but whether, upon ſuch an occaſion,it had been done, and at such an ones request. And for the former, the like seems to be imployed; where it is recorded, that upon that defeat, presents were, from forraign Princes, sent to Ezekiah, 2 Chr. 32.21,23. He sent, in like likhood, therefore, the rather, partly, out of his satisfaction to the King of Assyria, of whose overthrow, and power, and repute, thereby clipt, and eclipsed, he was glad; and partly, also, out of a desire to curry favour with Ezekiah, and entertain amity with one, who appeared, hereby, to be highly in favour with so powerful a God, as could, on that wise, command, both in heaven, and on earth. That which one of his lineage, also, was enforced to confesse, Dan. 4.35.

was recovered] Heb. grown strong again.

V. 2. And Ezekiah was glad of them] Being over-much taken with, and somewhat puffed up with so solemn an embassage, from a Prince so remote, and of no small power, with whom he had never had any commerce, or entercourse before. And there may seem to have been two special causes of this his affection; his repute and his profit. For he deemed it, a matter of no small repute and honour to him, that the report of what had befallen him, and God had done for him, should flye so far abroad, and that hereby occasion was minisired, to make his state and wealth further known, to such a Potentate, as he was. And again, he might suppose, that compliance with such an one, might turn to his advantage. For the Babylonian might be induced to attempt somewhat against the Assyrian, whom he perceived that he bare no good affection unto, if he should be offering, at any time, to molest him again. Certain it is, that some touch of elation and finister affection was in it. See 2 Chr. 32.25,31. and see David's like infirmity, or, as himself termeth it, folly, 2 Sam. 24.4 10. Instead of what is here said, He was glad of them, or on them; is read, 2 Kings 20.13. with change of one letter, he heard of them, or on them: which may minister suspition of some slip of a pen, in that place; as in Beradac, above See v. 1.

and shewed them the house of his precious things, the silver, and the gold, and the spices, and the precious ointments, and all the house of his armour, and all that was found in his treasures; there was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominions, that Hezekiah shewed them not] Some of the Jewish Writers say, that Ezekiah did this, not of his own accord, but at the request of the Babylonian Embassadors, who desired the sight of them. And therefore understand those words, that are read, 2 Kings 20. 13. as they expound them, & ours render them, He hearkened to them: the condescended therein to them. This is but a meer conjecture of theirs. But howsoever, by the illue, it appears, that there was some spice of vanity, and ostentation, in it; which afterward he smarted for, 2 Chr. 32.25.

his precious things] Or, his spicery: or odoriferous drugs. The same word is found, with little difference, in letters interchangeable, Gen. 37.25. & 43.11. And it seems to be derived, from a word that signifies to pound, or, beat to powder; because such drugs and spices, are wont to be so dealt with, to make confections of them, Exod. 30.34-36. Howbeit, some of the Jewish Doctors would have it a more comprehensive term, and to signifie, as ours, in the text, render it, any precious thing, of what kind soever. Which some, the rather, encline unto, because mention is made, afterward, of spices, apart. But the one word, may be here used of odoriferous drugs, the other, of spices, for other uses. And so the old latine seems to distinguish them, interpreting the former, spices, or drugs, the latter, odors, as the Greek, perfumes prettious ointment] Heb. good oyl; as Ec. 7.1 So c. 57.9. in his house, nor in all his dominion] Heb. and, or; (as ch. 36.19.) in his whole dominion. The sight whereof, when they were there, and report of what they had seen when they came home, might, in likelihood, prove a bait to the Babylonians, enciting them, in succeeding times, to attempt the gaining of so rich and flourishing a kingdom. For Babylon, in likelihood, was not in those times, so goodly, and stately a place, as afterward: Nineveh, at that time, being the great city, Ion. 1.2. & 3.2,3. the chief seat of the Assyrian Monarchy, c. 37.37. by the ruine whereof, was Babylon raised.

V. 3. Then came Isaiah the Prophet unto king Hezekiah, and said unto him; what said these men? and from whence came they unto thee?] By these questions, and that other, v. 4. The Prophet not coming on his own head, but sent on Gods errand, as Nathan to David, 2 Sam. 12. 1. would draw from him a relation of his own inconsiderate act, and make way by his answer thereunto, to the message, which, from God he was to deliver unto him.

And Ezekiah said, they are come from a far country to me, even from Babylon] So it is said of Babylon, Jer. 4.16. And Ezekiah seems the rather to mention the remoteness of the place, from whence they came, as implying, that he could, in common civility, do no less, than shew all the kindness, and afford the best and ampleit entertainment that might be, to those that had come so long a journey, on so kind and friendly an embassage. V. 6. Behold the days come, that all that is in thine house, and that which thy Fathers have laid up in store unto this day, shall be carried to Babylon] A sad message, and such as might well quail and quel all the joy that Ezekiah had of this so gloring and well pleasing an embassage, fulfilled, partly, in his son Manasses his days, 2 Chr. 33. 11. but principally in the days of Jehoiakin, and Zedekiah, 2 Kings 24. 12-16. & 25.6-21. God, thereby, shewing how deeply he detesteth pride and vain glory, and how severely he, sometime, chastiseth it in his own, even his dearest, and best beloved. See 2 Sam. 24.10-13. Not that this failing in Ezekiah, was the main cause of this grievous evil, here foretold; but to intimate that what he had unadvisedly done, should help to whet them on to the doing of it; and by the acquainting of him with it, to fad his soul, and give him occasion, thereby, to humble himself for his folly therein: which, accordingly also he did, 2 Chr. 32.26.

V. 7. And of thy sons that shall issue from thee, which thou shalt beget, shall they take away; and they shall be eunuches in the Palace of the King of Babylon] This is news yet sadder, and more heavy then the former: a mans sons are much dearer to him, then his substance, and their welfare, then his wealth: this was the worst tidings that came last to Job, Job 1.18,19. See also, 1 Sam. 8.11.13. and the Prophet delivers it, in variety of terms, (as God to Abraham Gen. 21.1.) thy sons, that shall issue from thee, and whom thou shalt beget; the more to move affection, and to make the deeper impression.

whom thou shalt beget] Either immediately, as Manasses, 2 Chr. 33.11. or, mediately, as those his issue, and thine by him, of the blood Royal, 2 Chr. 36 6,10,20. Dan. 1.3,4.

CHAP. XL.

Vers. 1. Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God] In the afore-going Chapter, was an hint given of the Babylonian Captivity. And by the subject matter of the ensuing Prophecies

Chap.xl. phecies, it may appear, how fitly the story, therein related, was inserted. For the subsequent Sermons are generally, most, if not all of them, concerning that their Captivity, their delivery out of it, and the restitution of their State and Church, in after-times; but so, that they reft not in that, but reach still further, unto the spiritual delivery of Gods people, from the far more direful thraldom under sin and Satan, by the Messias typified, the advancement of his Kingdome, and enlargement thereof, by the subduing and bringing in of those nations, that had formerly been enemies thereunto. The Sermon, in this Chapter contained, the Prophet maketh entrance into, with a promulgation of Gods purpose, concerning his peoples deliverance; the approach thereof, he commands, for their comfort, to be published to them, by his messengers, ver. 1-5, 9-11. and the undoubted certainty of the performance of it, notwithstanding all obstructions and difficulties lying in the way, is confirmed; first, from the stability of Gods Word, illustrated by the sicklenes and frailty of all humane excellency, ver. 6-8. Secondly, from the immensity of his power and efficacy, illustrate by the feebleness and vanity of all creatures, idols hence, illustrate by the feebleness and vanity of all creatures, idols especially, ver. 12-20. and concluded with a tart check to idolaters, for their impious presumption, verse 21-26. and a gentle reproof of Gods people; for their diffidence of support and deliverance, verse 27-31.

Comfort ye] It is the speech of God by the Prophet, directed first to the Prophets, that were to live in the time of the Babylonian Captivity; as did Jeremy, Ezekiel, and Daniel; and secondly, also, to those holy persons, endued with a prophetical Spirit, that lived neer our Saviours coming in the flesh; as Zachary, Luke 1.67. Simeon, and Anna, Luke 2.25, 26. and to the Apostles, likewise, and their assistants, that were to publish the glad tidings of salvation by Christ, not to the Jews only, but to the Gentiles, Acts 13.23,33,46,47. It is redoubled, to add the more emphasis to it: as verse 9. Zeph. 2. 1.

my people] Whom I have not utterly cast off, or forgotten; though for the present, I may seem not to regard, v. 27.

saith your God] Heb. will your God say; and so divers Interpreters, not amiss, as foretelling what charge and instructions God would give, in those times, to his Ministers and messengers, for their dealings with his people.

your God] Who will shortly shew himself so to be, ch. 14.1. ver. 10. Rom. 3.29,30. & 10. 12.

V. 2. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem] Heb. Speak to the heart of Jerusalem; as Gen. 24. 3. & Hos. 2. 24. Jerusalem, that is, Gods people, ver. 1. those that sometime dwelt there themselves, or are the issue of them; that have special relation to Jerusalem, either that below, or from above, Galat. 1.26. So verse 9. chap. 51. 17.

cry unto her] Publish, proclaim it; as ver. 6. So Dan. 3.4. Ion. 3. 2, 4.

that her warfare is accomplished] The word here used, doth signifie, sometime, a set term of time, Iob 14. 14. Sometime, service in generall, whether military, or other, Num. 4.23. & 8.24. sometime, a set term of service, Iob 7. 1. and so here; the set term of her service, or servitude, as verse 2. Heb. fulfilled; as Gen. 29.27. Acts 21. that the time, which was by God prefixed, for the continuance of her captivity and servitude, under the Chaldeans, is now at an end. See Jer. 25. 12. & 27.7. Dan. 9.2. and so that the term likewise prefixed for their servitude, though of another nature, under the Law, is now expired, at the bringing in of the Messias, Gal. 4.1-4.

that her iniquity is pardoned] Gods wrath is pacified and appeased towards her, and he reconciled again to her, having for Christs sake, in whom satisfaction is made for the sins of all Gods people, forgiven, and forgotten all those her transgressions, that were the procuring causes of her captivity, Chapter 43. 25. Jer. 31.34. Dan. 9. 24. Romans 3. 25, 26. Hebrews 9. 15, 26. Hebrews her iniquity is accepted; or, the punishment of her iniquity: as the word is used, Gen. 4.13. an allusion to those sacrifices, or sacred rites, used for expiation of sin; which being accepted, the sin is said to be expiated, Lev. 1.4.

that she hath received of the Lords hand double for all her sins] Not that satisfaction was by any of their sufferings made unto Gods justice for their sins, that nothing could do, but the blood of Christ alone, Heb. 10.4-10. much lesi, that they had suffered more at Gods hand, then by their sins they had deserved; for they confess, that God had punished them far beneath their iniquities, Ezra 9.13. Lam. 3. 22. but that the hand in a large measure been chastised by God for her transgressions, endured so much to the full, as he deemed fit to be inflicted, Pl. 80.5. double, for, abundantly, as ch. 61.7. Jer. 16.18. & 17.18. Rev. 18.6.

V. 6. The voice of him that cryeth in the wilderness] Or, This shall be, or, Let this be the voice of him, that cryeth in the wilderness. This shall be, or, Let this be the subject matter, that shall then be proclaimed. Yet the Prophet may seem here to speak of it, as if in a Prophetical rapture, at present, he heard it. So ch. 13.4. & 66.6. Jer. 4.15. 19,21,31. & 31,1,5.

of him that cryeth] Collectively, of those that are sent out to publish the return of Gods people from Babylon, unto their own country again; and of those, likewise, that give warning of the Messias his coming, of John the Baptist more especially, Mal. 4. 5. Matthew 11. 14. Mark 1. 2, 3. Luke 1. 76, 77. John 1. 22,23.

in the wilderness] The wastes that lay between Babylon and Judea; as implying the place where this cry should be made; to the people, that dwelt neer at hand thereabout; and so the text runneth, both in the ancient Greek version, and in the Evangelists, who seem to have followed the same, Mat. 3.3. Mar. 1.3. Luke 3.4. John 1.23. which yet, as in respect to the accomplishment of the Messias, so it hath a more special relation unto the wilderness of Judea, where John Baptist's Father lived, and wherein he began his preaching, Luke 1.39,40. 80. Mat. 3.1. Mark 3.1,4. Howbeit, some, regarding the points of distinction in the Hebrew, refer this clause to the words following, and making them part of the cry, read the text in this manner.

In the wilderness prepare ye the way of the Lord] It is a figurative speech, borrowed from the practice of great Princes and Potentates, who when they are to remove from place to place with their train and attendants; or to lead military forces into foreign parts, are wont to send their harbingers before, to survey the Coasts, and with the help of pioners going along with them, or the inhabitants of places adjacent summoned in to assist them, to clear the way from obstructions, and facilitate their passage. See on Chapter 37. 24. and see the like, Chapter 62.10.

In the wilderness] Because in such places, there being ordinarily no beaten roads, the wayes are usually over-growni, and uneaven, and the passages commonly obstructed. And it hath an eye to those waste and desart places, that Gods people were to pass by, in their return from Babylon, into their own Country: as Chapter 41.18,19. and 43.19,20. but withal, alluding to their travelling in former time, through the wilderness, from Egypt, to Canaan, Num. 10.33.

prepare ye the way] Not that the people of the countries, by which Gods people were to passe, in their return from Babylon, should be called in, to clear and fit the way for them: but that their passage home, should, by Gods providence, and his good hand upon them, be made as easie and expeditious for them, as if such a thing had been done. See Cyrus his Proclamation, how well it suiteth herewith, Ezra 1.3,4. and the effect of it there, ver. 5,6. See also, Ezra 7.7-28. 8.21-23,31,32. spiritually, the way is prepared for Christs coming, by ridding mens hearts of those mystical thorns and thickets, briers and brambles, of evil concupiscence and corruptions, wherewith they are either by inbred vitiosity, or by practice and custome of sin, wholly over-grown, Ier. 4.4. Hos. 10.12. Heb. 6.8. that which is a special manner was performed by the Ministery of John, Mal. 4.5. 6. Mat. 3.1,2,7-12. Mark 1.4. of the Lord] By which Gods people may passe under his conduct; as formerly, to the land of Canaan, Exod. 13.21,22. Num. 9.17-23. Ps. 68.7. ch. 58. 8.

make streight in the desart an high-way for our God] The same thing in other forms repeated.

make streight] Or, even, or both; make it straight, and lay it level, that they may not be compelled to fetch tedious compasses about, and wind to and fro, to avoid the uneave nesse of the way. See ch. 26.7.

an high-way] Or, causey, a way cast up for the more convenient passage. See ch. 35.8.

V. 4. Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be laid low; and the crooked shall be made streight, and the rough places plain] Luk. 3.5. The way shall be made even and easie, for their more convenient and commodious passage, all impediments & obstructions being remedied and removed, ch. 11.15,16. & 42.16. & 45.11. Zach. 3.7. The words may be read, as spoken by way of injunction, that so they may run in one tenour with the former, ver. 3. Let every valley be raised, and every mountain and hill taken down, or laid low, made even and level with the other, as much added to the one, as is taken from the other, that there may be an equality; as 2 Cor 8.14. (because hill and dale make the passage more troublesome and tedious) and let the crooked way, or place, be made a streight one, and the rough places plain. Howbeit, what God willeth to be done here, he saith, he himself will do, that is, cause to be done, Chapter 42.16.

the crooked] To wit, place, way or, passage: a defect of the subject, as ch. 34.4. Ezek. 13.15. the word may signifie perverse, as we render it, Ier. 17.9. or crooked, as our version hath it; and as another word, in Ier. 31.22. and so both the Greek, and the Evangelists, call it, Luke 3.5. Yet the word, in its native notion, signifieth a supplanting place, or passage (for so the verb it comes of, is constantly found used, Gen. 27.36. Hos. 12.3. Ier. 9.3) such a way, as men are subject to trip and stumble in, as rough and stony ways commonly are: see ch. 63. 10.

streight] Heb. streightnesse; Psalm 45. 6. or cavernesse, as Psalm 26.12. for the word most commonly signifieth a plain, Deut. 3.10. & 4.43. Josh. 13.9,16, 17. the abstract for the concrete, or a defect of the regent: streightnesses, or cavernes, for a place of streightnes, or cavernes; that is, a streight, or uneven place, a plain: so also, chap. 42.16. Zach. 3.7.

rough places A defect of the subject, as before: the word here used, comes from a verb, which, as most think, signifies to lift up, Exod.

28. 28. & 39.21. where alone it is in Scripture found: whence a noun commonly rendred elation, or pride, Pfal.31.20. and another uſed by the Jewiſh Doctors, for a ſtone, or pebble, that lying higher then the ground, or path, makes the way rough and uneaven; and the Jewiſh Doctors therefore expound the word here, or places rough or rugged with hillocks, clods, ſtones, or other eminences, that make it uneaven and troubleſome to travellers. Only one of them would have the verb in Moſes ſignifie, to joyn, or bind together, and the ſubſtantive, in the Pſalm, a combination; ſand the adjective, hills joyned one to another. But the ormer, as the more received, ſo ſeems the more probable.

plain] Or, a plain, as we uſe the word ſubſtantively: for the word ſignifies properly, a vale, or a plain, Geneſis 11. 2. Deuteronomy 11.11. Chapter 48.18.& 63.14. this clauſe may well be the ſame, in effect, with the branch next before-going: the ſum of all is, that all impediments and incumbrances, great or ſmall, ſhould be removed.

V. 5. And the glory of the Lord ſhall be revealed, and all fleſh ſhall ſee it together] Or, That the glory of the Lord may be revealed, and all fleſh may together ſee it. So ſome, as rendring a reaſon, why all this preparation is required, that the Lord may generally be ſeen coming in pomp and ſtate. But the clauſe annexed, confirms the received verſion. The meaning is, that Gods power manifeſted in the deliverance, reduction, and reſtitution of his people, ſhall be ſo conſpicuous, that not they alone themſelves; but others alſo of all ſorts, ſhall ſee it, and take notice of it, Pſal.126.2. A typical reſemblance of Gods majeſty, and glory manifeſted in Chriſt, for the ſalvation of all his, Joh.1.14. Sec Pſal.97. 6.ch.33.13.& 66. 18.

all fleſh] That is, all the Elect, fay ſome, as all fleſh, for the whole Jewiſh Nation, Ier. 45.5. but the word ſeems more generall; and to import all Nations, as well Gentiles, as Iews as Ioel 2.28.

ſee it] A defect of the pronoun; as Jer.17. 6. and ſo in the next clauſe.

for the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken it] And it ſhall certainly therefore be effected, how improbable, or impoſſible ſoever, it may ſeem in mans ſight. So Chapter 1. 20. and 58. 14.

V. 6. The voice ſaid, cry.] Heb. A voice ſaying. which ſome render in the future, A voice ſhall ſay, which they underſtand of a voice of Chriſt, ſpeaking to his Apoſtles, and ſuggeſting unto them what they ſhould preach. Others, in the preſent: There is a voice, that ſaith; which yet they expound, as ſpoken prophetically of the time to come. But we need not decline the received verſion; the Prophet relating a charge, that God had by an inward voice, in viſion given him. Howbeit, I ſhall rather render it, A voice, then The voice, partly, becauſe there is no article in the text; and partly, to diſtinguiſh it from the voice before-mentioned, vet.3. See the like, Rev.14.13.

And he ſaid, what ſhall I cry] He, that is, the party unto whom the voice came, and that charge was thereby given, demanding what it might be, that he was to proclaim: the Prophet Eſay himſelf, as I conceive it: for the Prophets manner is to ſpeak in the third perſon, of themſelves. So chap.2.1. Howbeit, the conceit of that Jew is moſt frivolous, who ſuppoſeth the Prophet, as repenting him of his over-forwardneſſe in offering to be ſent, before he knew what his errand would be, chap.6.8. was now grown more wary, and would firſt know what it was, that he was thus to publiſh. But this vain conceit of ſo unſuitable a diſpoſition to ſo heroical a ſpirit, as this our Prophet was endowed with, I ſhould not mention, but that I find it, to have taken with ſome great ones.

All fleſh is graſſe, and all the goodlineſſe thereof is as the flower of the field] The ſubject matter of that which he was to proclaim: which to make the text, therefore, the more clear and entire, ſome inſert, And he, or it (to wit, the voice) ſaid, cry. The like ſupplies, ſee Neh.11.25. Job 8.18. Pſal.27.8. But the queſtion is, to what end, or upon what occaſion this Sermon of mans frailty, is here enjoyned to be made. Some would have it done, for the fitting of men to receive Chriſt, and the doctrine of ſalvation, by Chriſt. And, indeed, the ſerious conſideration of mans own infirmity and impotency, notwithſtanding all his naturall endowments and excellencies, to ſave himſelf, or to afford ought that may conduce thereunto, is a ſpecial means to induce, yea, enforce him, to go out of himſelf, and to make him willing to ſeek for ſalvation by Chriſt. But the ſcope of God, by the Prophet, in this place, ſeems rather to arm and confirm the hearts and minds of Gods people, againſt ſuch doubts and diſtruſtful thoughts as might ariſe within them, or be ſuggeſted to them, in the time of their captivity, concerning the impoſſibility of the foregoing promiſe, of the releaſement & reſtitution, eſpecially, conſidering the great power of the Babylonians, under whom they were captives: which to remove and blow away, the Prophet is willed to proclaim, that not the Babylonians alone, but all the men in the world, were they put all together into a body, were but graſſe, and all their might and excellency, no other, then as ſome goodly and beautiful, to look upon, Mat.6.28,29. but tender and fading flower, that cannot endure ſo much as the leaſt puff of wind; ſuch as God is able, with a word of his mouth, to defeat and deſtroy, yea, with the leaſt blaſt of his breath, to diſperſe and blow clean away. And ſo it hath reference to the cloſe of the foregoing diſcourſe: for the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken it, ver.5. that which alſo it returneth unto, in the end of this paſſage, as being the main end intended in it; but the word of our God ſhall ſtand for ever, v.8.

All fleſh is graſſe] So Pſ.37.2.& 90.5,6.& 92.7. & 103.15.ch.37. 27.1 Pet.1.24.

fleſh] Man, or Mankind, Gen. 6.12, 13. ſo verſe 5. But in the word here, is an intimation of mans infirmity and frailty: as Gen.6.3. Pſ.78.39.ch.31.3.Ier.17.5. and ſo it is uſed of Chriſt, Rom.8.3. Heb. 5.7.

is graſſe] That is, is like graſſe, is as graſſe; as in the next branch, is as a flower: a defect of the note of ſimilitude; as Chapter 28. 1. and 33. 4, 11. but it is that, that makes the ſentence more emphatical; as if he ſhould ſay, he is not like graſs only, he is no other then graſſe, with God eſpecially. So, not like vanity only, Pſalm 144.3. but vanity it ſelf, Pſal.39.5.& 62.9. not as a wind, but a wind that paſſeth away, and returneth not, Pſalm 79. 39. See the like, Job 7. 7. and 8. 9, 14. So verſe 7.

and all the goodlineſſe thereof] The Hebrew word properly ſignifieth, benignity, bounty, or goodneſs, Proverbs 20.6. and becauſe that is a thing, that uſually maketh men deſirable, and to be had in eſtimation and repute, Prov.19.20. hence it cometh to paſs, that the ſame word is uſed for grace, or gracefulneſs, or glory, as it is here rendred in the ancient Greek, and by the Apoſtle, 1 Pet.1.24. See Exod. 33.19,22. where the one is deemed to be expounded by the other: and there appeareth, therefore, no neceſſity of altering the text, as ſome would do. The word ſeems to import, whatſoever natural endowments, may make men to be had in admiration, or eſtimation, with others, as perſons of eminency, and ability to effect great matters. And one of the great Jewiſh Maſters obſerveth it, to be ordinarily uſed for any excellency, or eminency, either in good, or in evil. See Pſal.16.3. See alſo of mans vanity, ch 2.22. Thoſe, that preſſing the propriety of the word, underſtand it to be meant of piety, or moral goodneſs, I conceive to go beſide the intendment of the Prophet, in this place: as well as the Jewiſh Commenters, who expound it of the Gentiles, the enemies of Gods people eſpecially, all whoſe goodneſs, ſay they, is but ſin; (not unlike that, Rom.14.23.) or, if they had done any good, yet it periſhed, & was not regarded, in regard of the wrongs that they did to Gods people, Ezek.18.24. or the good that they intended, or do to any, dyeth with them, when they dy. Pſ. 146.4.

as the flower of the field] Or, as a flower of the field: as any one of them, the tendreſt, and of leaſt continuance or vigour ſo Job 14. 2. Pſ.103. 15.

The graſs withereth] Pſalm 37.2. and 90.6. and 102.4. Chapter 15.6.

The flower fadeth] Chap.28.1,4. James 1.10. and ſo doth man and all his excellency, together with him, Pſ.49.17.& 73.19,20.& 146.4.

becauſe the Spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it] Or, when the breath of the Lord bloweth upon it: The flower fadeth, if but the wind blow upon it, Pſalm 103.16. James 1.11. called Gods breath, Pſalm 147.18. whence ſome of the Ancients do ſo underſtand that. Gen.1. 2. man, and his excellency, is all like wiſe blaſted, if God do but blow upon it, ver.24. Hab.1.9. who, as with a word, with a breath, he made and created all things at firſt, Gen.1.2. and 2.7. Pſalm 33.6. and when they are ruined, can raiſe and renew them again, Pſ.104. 30. ſo with a bare blaſt of his breath, he can much more diſſipate, & blow clean away, both the creature it ſelf, and whatſoever might or power it is able to make, Job 34.14,15. Pſ.104.29. Dan.2.34,35. Zach.4.6,7. Some expound it of the Spirit of God, diſcovering the vanity of all humane excellency. But that ſeems not ſo much intended in this place.

ſurely the people is graſs] Or, ſurely all people, (as all fleſh, before, v.6. ſupplyed, as 1 Sam. 30.8.& chap.30.17. and as the like, chap. 58.13.) are graſs. And the Babylonians therefore and your mightieſt adverſaries whoſoever. So Pſ.39.5. ſurely every man, or all men, in his beſt, or ſureſt, his moſt ſetled eſtate, is all, or altogether vanity ſee ver.6. Some reſtrain it to Gods people; as if the meaning were, that even in them, by nature there is no preheminence above others: but if they have any, it is of Gods free grace only, Rom.3.9. but this ſeems to narrow the text over much, and to be beſide the ſcope of the Prophet.

V.8. The graſs withereth, the flower fadeth; but the word of our God ſhall ſtand for ever] This ſome underſtand of the Jewiſh People: that, howſoever through humane frailty and mortality, many of them might dy, during the time of the captivity, and ſo periſhing, not partake in the promiſed delivery, yet Gods promiſe, ſhould be fulfilled, and remain firm to the reſidue, Rom.3.3.& 9.6.& 11.1.5. But the meaning, rather, ſeems to be, that men being but frail and infirm creatures, their plots and projects might miſcarry, and their attempts and deſigns be fruſtrate; but Gods Word and purpoſe, in whatſoever he ſpake or promiſed, ſhould be ſure to ſtand firm, and take place, maugre all the oppoſitions that man might make againſt it, Pſ.33.10,11.& 119.89.91. ch.14.26,27.& 55. 10,11. Dan.4.35. Mat.5.18. Mar.13.31. The Apoſtle Peter applyeth it it to the work of regeneration, wrought in the ſoul by the miniſtery of the Word, 1 Pet. 1.23, 24, 25. So John 8. 51. 2 John 2.

ſtand] Firm. See chap.7.7.

V. 9. O Zion, that bringeſt good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain] Or, O thou that bringeſt, or telleſt good tidings to Zion, get thee up into an high mountain. The former reading ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters follow; and the moſt of ours underſtanding the text; they of Jeruſalem, as being the head-city, from whence theſe good tidings were to be divulged unto the whole country, round about: ours, alſo, of the glad tidings of ſalvation by Chriſt, from thence to be publiſhed unto other people abroad, Chap. 2.3. Luk.24.47. Rom.10.18. But they conſider not that the meſſage, or tidings, concerning the diſſolution of the Jewiſh captivity by Cyrus, at Babylon, was not to come abroad from Jeruſalem, but to be carried from Babylon thither. The latter reading, after the Chaldee Paraphraſt, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, and after the old Greek and Latine, ſome of ours alſo admit and approve. And according to it, thoſe are called upon, that were by publike authority to be employed about the divulging of the edict made by Cyrus, for the freedome of gods people from their long and tedious captivity, and the liberty granted them for return into their own country; as 2 Chron. 36. 22, 23. Ezra 1. 1, 2. or any other that were to goupon the like errand, to get up into places of eminency, from whence they might beſt be heard, to acquaint as many, as might be, with this comfortable news. So chap. 52. 7. Nah.1.15.

Zion] The ſame here with Jeruſalem; as chapter 1. 27. and 37.32.

that bringeſt good tidings] The word, here uſed, is in a feminine form. That which ſeems to have miſled many, in applying it to Si on; becauſe the names of Cities are, in Hebrew, feminine. But the feminine form is uſed, in Scripture, ſometime with a maſculine notion; Eccl.1.1,12. The Preacher (a feminine form) the ſon of David, king of Jeruſalem: and this very word, Pſalm 68.11. The Lord gave the word, and great was the company (out of women-preachers, though the form be feminine, but) of thoſe that publiſhed it. And ſo the Greek, in the maſculine, rendereth it here. For the reaſon of the phraſe; there is a twofold figure in it; a threefold, I might ſay: there is, firſt, an Ellipſis, or a defect of the ſubject; as, ſtanding for, ſtanding corn, Chap. 17. 5. fadeing, for, a fading plant; ch. 28.4. And the word wanting, to be ſupplyed, is a feminine, to wit, nephteſh; however, not ſimply, as it ſignifies, a ſoul; but as by a Synechdoche, or comprehenſive form of ſpeech, it is put, and that very frequently, for a perſon, Gen.12.5.& 14.21.& 46.26. Rom. 13. 1. 1 Pet.3.20. This ſupplyed, there will appear to be a Periphraſis, or a circumlocution in it, as a preaching perſon, for, a Preacher: ſo a publiſhing, or, reporting party, or perſon; for, a publiſher, or, reporter. The word good, is not in the text; nor, neceſſarily, implyed in the word; though it be in that which the Greek here uſeth; for the word ſignifies ſimply and indefinitely, to report, or publiſh ought, without any ſpecial notion of good or evil, 2 Sam. 18. 19.20. Yea, it is uſed of one that brought very bad tidings of the loſs of the Ark, 1 Sam.4.17. Howbeit, becauſe it is more frequently uſed of glad ſom meſſages, 1 Sam.31.9.1 King.1.42. Jer. 20. 15. And it muſt of neceſſity be ſo rendred, 2 Sam. 4. ſo. the reading may well be here retained; though, thou that bringeſt tidings, were ſufficient: the ſubject matter of the meſſage, being not, in the preſent paſſage, expreſſed; as it is, chap.52.7. The word here is ſingular as there alſo, but taken collectively; and ſo comes home to that in the Pſal.

get thee up] Heb. aſcend thee. A redundant elegancy, yet having ſome emphaſis in it; as Gen.12.1.

into the high mountain] Or, into an high mountain. Alluding as ſome, to the ſituation of Sion, ch.2.2.& 14. 13. But that was formerly reje-cted: & others therefore conceive, that there is a reſpect had to their ſentinels that were ſeated, commonly, (as our beacons) on the top of ſome high hill; which ſuch as brought tidings of publike concernment, were wont to repair unto; and there having by ſome ſign, ſet up, or called people together, to publiſh to them what news they brought, or meſſage they came with. So chap.42.11.& 52. 7. Apparent it is, that men uſe to get up into ſome eminent place, that deſire to be heard of many, Deut. 27. 12, 13. Judg.9.7. 1 Samuel 26.13,14. Jerem.20. 22. ſo did our Saviour, Matth.5,1.

O Jeruſalem, that bringeſt good tidings,] Or, O thou that bringeſt good tidings to Jeruſalem, as before.

lift up thy voice with ſtrength] Or, ſtrongly, Pſal.29. 4. 1 Chron. 25.5. Joh.3.5. Cry with all thy might, as loud as thou canſt, that as many as may be, may hear thee, having a double advantage from the height of the place, from whence thou ſpeakeſt, and from the ſhrilneſſe of thy voice: ſo ch.58.1.

lift it up] A redupli cation emphatical; as ver.1. and a defect of the pronoun: as ver.5.

be not afraid] Make no ſcruple or doubt of publiſhing it, though the tydings ye bring may ſeem never ſo unlikely to be credited; for it is certainly true, and ſhall be undoubtedly made good, chapter 35.4.

ſay unto the Cities of Judah,] The ſomerime Inhabitants of them (as Jer. 11. 12.) though, at preſent, driven from them, and diſperſed here and there: but to the cities, the rather, becauſe they were to be repaired, and re-edified, upon their return to them. See ch 44.28.

Behold your God] Your God with whom the heathen have ſo oft, and ſo long twitted you, during this time of your captivity, as unable to relieve you, Deut 32.37,38. Pſal.42.3.& 115.2. Ezek.36. 20. and of whom your ſelves have had ſome doubtfull thoughts, as if he did not regard you, but had clean forgotten you, ver. 27. chap.49. 14, is now at hand, ready to ſhew forth himſelf, to their conviction, and your comfort, Deut 32.39. So chap.12.2.& 25.9.& 41.27.& 52. 6. As it hath reference to the Meſſias, Behold he that was to long before promiſed, and hath ſo long been expected, is now, at length, exhibited, Hag. 2.7. Zach.9.9. Mal.3.1. Luk.1.15.30. Act. 13.32,33. or, as ſome, behold that Ieſus, whom you denied, and crucified, but is riſen again from the dead, received into heaven, and ſet there at the right hand of the father, the ſame is your God, Act 2.23,32-36.& 2.14,15,20,21. But the former ſeems to fort better with the type here firſt intended.

V.10. Behold] As ch.35.4.& 62.11. Zach.9.9.

the Lord God will come with ſtrong hand] As chap 8.8. Exod. 13. 3. Ezek.20.33,34. and ſo there ſhould be ſuch a defect of the ſubject as before, ver. 9. and ſo moſt of the Jewiſh Commenters on the place take it. Howbeit, becauſe the word here is Maſculine, whereas the word for an hand, in Hebrew is feminine; howſoever one of them would ſalve that incongruity, by a place, Exek. 2. 9. where a Maſculine relative hath reference to it) the text is by one, (that herein diſſenteth from the reſt, whom ſome of ours alſo follow) read; The Lord God will come againſt the mighty, or ſtrong one; that is, taking the word collectively; as the like, Jer.9. 23. Amos 2.14. againſt the mightieſt, and moſt powerful enemies of his people, whether temporal, as the Babylonian, or ſpiritual, as Satan; ſo is the particle uſed, Exod.14.25. and 20.15. Num.12.1. See chap. 49.14,25. Luk.11.21,22. Col.1.13. Heb.2.14. 1 John 3.8. But a late Writer ſuppoſing the particle to be here redundant; as elſewhere, rendeth the words, The Lord will come ſtrong. See on ch. 26.4.

and his arm ſhall rule for him] Or, his arm ſhall rule over him; that is, prevail againſt him; to wit, the mighty one before-mentioned; his power, Chap.51.5.& 53. 1. of it ſelf ſufficient fully to effect his own work and will, Pſal. 115.3.& 135.6. chap.59.16. ſhall overcome and overſway all oppoſition, chap.41.2.& 59.16. Rev.6.2. I ſuppoſe the term lo, that is, him, or to him, may well be here an elegant redundancy, as oft it is, Exod.18.27. he went to him. See ch.59.16. and before ver.9.

his reward is with him] So chap.61.11. he cometh with a recompence of mercy and bounty, unto all thoſe that have faithfully adhered unto him. conſtantly depended upon him, and patiently expected his appearance; for their delivery from their foreſpalled thraldom, Pſal.9.18.& 18.11. chap.28.16.& 30.18.& 64.7. Ier.31.16. and of wrath and fury unto thoſe, that have been the afflicters and oppreſſers of them, chap.35.4.& 59.18.& 66.15. Pſal.31.23. The Apoſtle hath the like of Chriſts coming to judgment at the laſt day, Rev.22.12.

his reward] This ſome refer to the Rewarder, the Lord, called his, becauſe to be given or rendred by him, Pſ.62.12. Rom.2.6. Others, to the rewarded, the mighty, or ſtrong, before ſpoken of, as called his, or their reward; becauſe to be received by him, or them, Pſ. 28.4. But the paralel place to this, ch.62.11. not admitting this latter, carrieth it ſtrongly for the former.

with him] He comes furniſhed with rewards of either kind, to be preſently rendred without further delay, Mal.3.17,18.& 4.1,2. Howbeit, I ſuppoſe that over-nice, that one of the Iewiſh Doctors hath, who expounds this paſſage of Gods freenels in working for his people, that he is not like other ſhepherds (for a ſhepherd he is compared to, ver.11.) that keepeth theep for hire, Hoſ.12.12. Zach. 11.12. but he teedeth his freely, his hire is all with himſelf, he bringeth it with him, he demandeth nothing from them, Chapter 43. ver.25.

and his work before him] This ſome refer to the mighty ones, as before; whoſe wicked works for which God will recompence them with wrath, are ſaid to be, in Gods ſight, known to him, and obſerved by him, whatſoever they may ſurmiſe to the contrary, Pſal. 94.5-11. Chap 66.18. Others, to the perſons to be rewarded in general; but by work, underſtanding recompence for work, as Chap. 49.4.& 62.7. Pſal.28.4. Ier.25.14. and ſo this paſſage ſhould be the ſame with the former. But others, laſtly, refer it unto God himſelf; his work, that is, the work he cometh to effect for the deliverance of his, is before him, it lyeth open to him, ready to be accompliſhed by him, there lying nothing in his way, that may any way impeach his free paſſage to it, or progreſs in it. See thee like phraſe, Gen.13.9.& 47.6. Pſ.5.8.

V.11. He ſhall feed his flock like a Shepherd] The office that God in Scripture doth uſually make choice of, whereby to decipher his ſedulous and tender care of the good and welfare of his people, Pſ. 23.1.& 77.20.& 78.52.& 80.1. applyed in more ſpecial manner to the Meſſias, Ezek 34 23. and owned by him, under the title of the good Shepherd, Ioh.10.11,14. called alſo the great Shepherd, Heb.13. 20, and the chief Shepherd, 1 Pet.5.4.

he shall]Or, will; as before, will come: and so after, will gather, will lead.

feed] Under the term of feeding, (being of large extent) is comprized all necessary attendance and acommodations, conducing to the safety and welfare of a flock; as provision of pasture, protection against rapine, preventing of straying, cure of such maladies, relief of such infirmities as sheep are wont to be subject unto, and the like. see Psalm 23. 1-4. Ezek. 34. 2, 4, 11-16.

he shall gather the lambs with his arm]Or, as some, into, or in his arms; that is, bring them together, and take them up in his arm: a concise speech, such as ch.38.17, 21. Jer.13.6.& 36.21. and, arm, for arms; as Ps.10.5. he will have a special care of dealing charily with weak and feeble ones, supporting their infirmity. So Chap. 42. 3. Matthew 11.28.

and carry them in his bosome] Or, lap: as chap.49.22. when they are wearied with travelling: a defect of the pronoun; as chap. 30. 2.

and shall gently lead those that are with young] So some of the Jewish Criticks take the word here used, as signifying such as have been covered by the male, from a word, used, Gen.31.12. Some other of them, that give suck, 1 Sam.6.7.10, Psalm 78.71. because hence the word signifying a sucking-childe, Chap.49.15.& 65.20. the same is found used, and likewise diversly rendred: as 1 Sam. 6.7, 10. Psalme 78.71. So Gen.33.13. where, see Jacob, how chary of over-driving such; and as chary an hand would God cause to be had, in bringing his people home to their own countrys, fitted with all convenient accommodations, for their safety by the way, Chapter 60. 4, 9. and 66. 20. Ezra 1.6. See how chary, also, Christ was of over-charging his novices with ought, that they could not yet well brook, Mat.9.14, 17. Joh.16.12. and Paul therein imitating him, 1 Cor.3.1, 2.

V.12. Who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand?]Because it might be suggested, or supposed, that though no power of man were able to hinder God from working so strange, unexpected, and as little believed a work, for the delivery of his people; Yet their gods might be able to cross him, in that his intending design; the Prophet inviteth them to the serious consideration of Gods infinite and inconceiveable power and essence, such as neither any counterfeit deity is able to imitate, nor any creatures skill is able to expresse. See the like, Proverbs 30. 4.

who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand?] Or, who can measure the waters (that is, the sea, Gen.1. 10.) in his fist? the word is used for an handful, 1 Kings 20.10. Ezek.1. 3.19. and the indicative is oft used potentially, in Hebrew. See Num.23.8 10. Jer 2.23.32. Dan.3.15. with 17. who can? he, and he only, in whose hand are the depths of the earth, which together with the water, make but one globe, Ps.95.4 and in whose fist, the whole air, that environeth either, is inclosed; as Agur, Prov. 30.4.

and meted out heaven with a span] Or, or (as ver.13.) can (as before) mete out heaven with his span? a defect of the pronoun; as Job 39.21. the word is used, 1 Sam.17.4. Ezek.43.13. it is a borrowed speech, taken from builders and carpenters, that use to mete out their work, sometime by rule, and sometime, also, by hand, ch.44. 13. See ch.48. 13.

and comprehendeth the dust of the earth in a measure?] Or, or can comprehend (as before) the dust of the earth (that is, the main body of it, as cha.26.19. Dan.12.2.) in a measure, or in a tierce; as the Hebrew word intimateth, derived from a term, that signifies three, for notation correspondent to the Latine triental: it seems by the use of it, Ps.80.5. to have been a drinking, or quaffing cup, as well as a measure; of what capacity it was, our Jewish Masters tell us not: some of them say, it was a great measure, and cite the Psalmist, not improbably, to that purpose, so termed, because it contained as much as three lesser. Other of them say otherwise, that it was no great measure; but it was so termed, because it contained a third part, only, of a greater vessel, or cask: and the one sort, therefore, would have it, there, to comprehend the three captivities, Iehojakims, Jehojacins, and Zedekiah's; the other, to resemble their abode in Babylon, as but a third part of their sojourning in Egypt. Thus they leave us in meer uncertainties. I suppose it to have been used for a cup, with the former, of capacity more then ordinary; and by the notation of it, a cup of three, as containing so much, as might well make three draughts: or so much as three of those cups, that they were ordinarily wont to drink at one draught: but for a measure, or vessel, to mete out materials, whether liquid, or solid with; to have been among those that were reckoned of the least ordinary size; that might well be deemed a sorry measure to deliver earth out by, or other like trash, yea, or matter of more worth, that yet might be reputed of a deep and large size, either to offer a man to drink of, or to enforce him to take down, when the liquor is very unpleasant, and such as he likes not: it must here, of necessity, to import no such great vessel, that it may, with some proportion, answer the fist, and the span. Nor can I, therefore, so easily accord with that learned man, who would have it to signifie the third part of an Epha, as the Seah is said to do; (see Chap. 27.8.) because by a word neer unto it, that measure is in the Ethiopick language expressed, Mat:13.33. The old Latine rendreth it, with three fingers: which would suit well with the former, if there were any good for it; but none appeareth.

and weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance]Or, and weigh out the mountains by a beam, and the hills in scales, or in a ballance? there are two words here used, which, say our Jewish Masters, signifie two sorts of engines, or instruments, used for the weighing out of commodities, or wares, the one for greater quantities, the other for lesse: but that is somewhat too generall. And I suppose they have no other ground for it, save because the mountains are said to passe the one, and the hills the other: they are both found together, Prov. 16. 11. where the words are rendred, a just weight, and balance, but would rather be a just beam, and balance: the former word, save in those two places, no where else found, is, by some of them, said to signifie (and that not improbably,) such a beam, as is used to weigh commodities, by hanging of a stone, or other weight at the one end, and the materia1 that is to be weighed, at the other, it being marked with certain notches, or figures, whereby the certain stint of the weight may be discerned, such, I am told, that they use oft with us, to weigh hay in the field: the latter word more common, and used after again, verse 15. seems to answer the Latine bilanx; whence our balance, and is so termed, from the two scales, hanging at either end, which from the similitude of them, the Latines call dishes, the Hebrews, ears. The meaning is, that God can as easily lift up the highest and greatest mountains that are yea, all of them together, great or small, as a man can do any ordinary weight, at a beam, or in a scale.

V. 13. Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord; or being his Counsellor hath taught him?] Or, who directed the Spirit of the Lord: or taught him? As there is none that can do ought of the things before-mentioned: so was there none assistant to him by way of aid or advice, in the creating and constitution of these creatures at the first, nor needs he any such help or direction, for the contrivance or execution of ought that he determined to do.

directeth the Spirit of the Lord] The word signifieth, sometime, to mete out, as ver.12. sometime, to direct, or carry a thing evenly, as mens works are, when they are cut out by rule, and squared by line and level. So Ezek.18.25, 29 and 33.17, 20. and so most here take it: sometime, to weigh out, as Job 28.25. or, to ponder, taken metaphorically: and by weighing, or pondering of things, to explore, or examine them: or, by searching into them, to attain to an exact knowledg of them: as by weighing of things in the balance, or at the beam, men come exactly to know their weight, Psal.62.9. Dan. 5.27. So it is taken, *Prov.*16.2.& 21.2.& 24.12. So the ancient Greek by the Apostle retained, Rom.11.33.1 Cor.2.16. rendreth it here, who hath known the Lords mind? Who can so dive into his secret thoughts, or purposes, as to come to discover what he intendeth to do, or by what courses he meaneth to carry on what he intendeth? And this way also divers go. Howbeit some of the Jewish Doctors, to bring in the four elements, by Spirit here understand the air, as it seems to be taken, Prov.30.4, and as for the wind, Joh. 3. 8. And because the verb sometime signifieth, also, to dispose, or, establish, 1 Samuel 2. 3. they expound the words, who hath ordered, or setled the air? or, who is it, that meeteth, or weigheth out the winds? Job 28. 25. And there ending the question, they make the answer to it, the Lord. But this nicety rents the text too much assunder. Either of the former is probable enough.

or]Heb. and; as ver.12. so ch. 17.8.

being his Counsellor] Of his counsel or of counsel with him. Heb. the man of his counsel, or his man of counsel; as Psal.119.24. There is a defect, either of the particle, as Rom.1.29.1 Pet.2.4. which the Apostle expresseth by the verb-substantive, or of the note of similitude, as v.6. So some; who read, who as his Counsellor? supplying, also the relative from the former branch; as the Greek, and the Apostle also doth, Rom.11. 34. There is an allusion to such counsellors, as Kings use to have about them, and which they cannot well want, 1 Chron.26.32. and 27.33. Prov. 11.14. and 24.6. See Chap.3.3. and 9.6. See the same term in another sense, Chap. 46.11.

hath taught him] Heb. made him to know; as Exod.18.16. Prov. 22.19. Ezek.20.11. Hath instructed him in ought, or acquainted him with ought that he was ignorant of before: or shewed him what he should do, or how he should do it. See Iob 21. 22.& 36. 22, 23.

V. 14. With whom took he counsel, and who instructed him, and taught him in the path of judgement? and taught him knowledg, and shewed him the way of understanding?] Or, with whom doth he consult, that he may (as Josh.24.9. Mal.1.9.) instruct him; (Heb. make him to understand, as Psal.119.27.) and teach him the course of judgment; (how to carry himself judiciously in his affairs, or uprightly, in execution of Judgment) or (as ver.13.) may teach him knowledg, and acquaint him (Heb. cause him to know) (the way of understanding? Hebr. understandings: as Ps.78.72. which some expound of variety and multiplicity of understanding: and so such plurals, sometime, seem to import, 2 Sam.22.51. Psalm 18.50. Prov.1.20. but yet sometime they seem to extenuate and diminish; as this very term, chap.27.11. and so here, understandings, not for all manner, but for any manner of understanding. See the like, ver.29. It is, in effect, the same, only somewhat enlarged, with the former, ver.13. implying, that God, in no work of his, receiveth any instruction, or direction from any, as earthly Kings and Potentates are wont to do from their Councellors, whom, in State-matters of great moment, or neer concernment, they usually confer and consult with, 2 Chron.30.2. Est. 1.13.

V.15. Behold the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance.] This is added, to shew the invalidity and inability of any humane power, to oppose God in his purposed work, or in the least manner, to obstruct any passage of his providence: and withall, to encourage his people, not to fear any might or malice of man: but to rest stedfastly, with full confidence of heart, upon him, for the making of his promises good unto them, chap.51.7, 8, 12. Psalm 60.11, 12, and 62.8, 9. and 146.3-6.

the nations] As Some, the Chaldeans, your Lords and Masters, at present, chap.26.23. Or, rather, all nations, they, and others, (as before, ver.6, 7. and after, ver.17.) are all of them put together.

as a drop of a bucket] That hangeth on it, or falleth from it, in the drawing of it up; or that stayeth behind, when the water or liquor is poured out, and yet minisheth not the measure: the former word is no where else found; the latter only, Numb. 24. 7.

they are counted] All one here, with, they are; as it is in the former branch: so ch.29.17.& 32 15.& v.17.

As the small dust of the balance]or, as the powder of the balance: such as hangs on the scale, and yet altereth not the weight; or stayeth stil in it, after the spice weighed in it, is poured out; as a thing of no considerable worth, or weight: the word (in this notion no where else found) comes of a root, that signifies the breaking of clods to small dust, 2 Sam.22.43. Ps.18.42. or the beating of spices to fine powder, Exod. 30.36.

Behold] In way of admiration, as before. So Chapter 29. verse. 14.

he taketh up the Iles as a very little thing.] Or, he taketh up, and throweth away (for the word includeth both: see ch.63.9. with Jer. 16.13.& 22.26.) the Iles (the Lands or Countries, as c.41.1.) as powder: the word signifieth any thing beaten very small, or thin, Exod. 16.14. Lev.16.12. thin, or beaten thin, for thin powder, or powder so beaten: a defect of the subject, as ver.10. expressed, ch.29.5. The old Greek, by mistake of a letter, rendreth it, he casteth them out as spittle; and the letters, by reason of the neer affinity of their figure, are taken the one, oft, for the other. See 1 Chr.1.6, 7, 30, 41, 50 Jer.2.20. & 15.14. See also, v.12.

V.16. And Lebanon is not sufficient to burn; nor the beasts thereof sufficient for a burnt offring]Or, a sacrifice; so called, because it ascendeth, or goeth up, upon the altar, Psal.51.19 (for they narrow it too much, that render it, an whole burnt offering, from which it is there distinguished) rather then as some, because it goeth up all into smoke, Psalm 37. 20. Judg. 13. 20. The meaning is, no creature, or matter, is sufficient to furnish a service of God, answerable to his infinite greatness; though all the beasts, harbouring in that spacious forest of Lebanon, should be slain, and all the wood growing on it, felled to fire them with, it would come far short of a sacrifice, proportionable to his greatness unto whom it were to be tendred. See cha.66.1. and of Lebanon, see Psalm 29.6, & 104.16. ch.3.13.& 37. 24.

V.17. All nations before him, are as nothing; and they are accounted to him lesse then nothing, and vanity] See Dan.4 32. for the former; Ps.62. 9. for the latter.

before him] In his sight; as Job 26.6. or compared with him; as Gen.2.18, 20.

are counted to him] Either are so deemed by him, or are so in reference to him. See on ver.15.

nothing, and vanity] Or, nothing, or, vanity; and, for or; as ver.13. less then nothing, or a thing of nought; a thing of no shape, or worth, or use. The word is used of that rude, confused and shapeless mass, out of which the creature were afterward formed Gen.1.2. applyed to things stripped of all their beauty, state endowments, & furniture, and reduced to extream desolation and confusion. See Chapter 24. ver.10.

V. 18. To whom then will ye like n God?] Heb. And (as Chapter 28. 2, 20.) to whom will ye make God like? what humane creature, or counterfeit diety, can ye imagine to be any thing like such an infinite and almighty essence, Ps.89.6, 8. and 96. 4, 5.

or what likenesse will ye compare unto him?] Heb. and (as ver.13.) what similitude will ye set him up? Or, fit him with? it may well be understood of Images, made to resemble and represent God, Act.17.29. albeit the word be used also of furnishing a table, ch 65.11. and of setting battle in array, 2 Sam.10. 17. the former whereof, might well suit with verse 16 the latter, with ver.17. but that the term of similitude will hardly admit either. The scope hereof seems to be, not onely to disswade them from attempting to resemble God, by any visible shape or figure, Deuter. 4. 12, 15-19, 23, 25. or to strengthen them against the idolatry, though never so pompously set out, that they might be tempted unto, in Babylon, chap 44 21. Jer.10.1-13. Dan.3.1, 2. but chiefly, and principally, to confirm their faith, and to settle their minds in an hopeful expectation of their deliverance from God, according to his gracious purpose and promise, ver. 2. by setting forth, as his infinite might and majesty, so, the meannes, basenes, emptiness, and nothingness, of men or idols, or ought else whatsoever, that might enter into competition with him, or offer to make any opposition against him. See cha.46.5. Jer.10. 6.

V.19. The workman melteth a graven image?] Having laid forth Gods unconceiveable might, majesty, and immensity, he proceedeth now to discover the vanity, basenefs, and imbecility of idols. See the like, ch.41.6, 7.& 44 9, 20.& 46.6, 7. Jer.10.3-5, 8, 9. Ps.115.4-8. and 135.15, 18.

workman] Or, brasier, or founder; the word is a very general term. See of it, on Chap 3.3. See also, verse 20. Chapter 41. 7. and 44.11-13. but here, more specially, one that worketh in metals; as 1 Kings 7.14. 2 Chron.24. 12. Chap. 44. 12. and 54.16.

melteth]Or, casteth; as ch.44.10. So their gods must pass the fire, before gods they can be.

a graven image]He melteth some metal, either brass, or some such baser stuff, because they will not be at the cost to have it all of massie Gold, or silver; which being melted, he casts into a mould, and so maketh an image of it, to be further graven and polished, before it go to the Goldsmith to be gilded, or overlaid with gold: so that in the words, there is a kind of anticipation, he melteth, or casteth a graven image, that is, metal to make an image, that being melted shal be graved: so chap.44.10. See of the like, chap.24.10. and 44.9. and 47.2.

and the Goldsmith]Heb. the finer: as it is rendred, Prov.25.4. and the like, Mal.3. 2. or founder: as Judg. 17.4. See ch.41.7. the term, though not so general as the former, yet comprehends founders of all sorts: though those more specially, that are employed in the finer sort of metals for the making and refining of them. So ch.46.6. Jer. 10.9, 14 & 51.7.

spreadeth it over with gold]Exod.39.3. beateth out gold into thin leaves, or plates: and therewith over-lays and covers what the other had produced and polished, thereby to add the more shew and state unto it, ch.46.6. Jer.10.9.

and casteth]Heb. is burning, or melting chains, that is, silver to make chains, as before.

silver chains] Heb. chains of silver (as, gods of gold and silver, Dan.5.4. for golden and silver Gods) therewith to adorn it, as 1 Kings 6.21. or to fasten it unto some post or pillar, or some staple driven into either, that it may not fal or stir, but stand fast and steady, bolt-upright, ch 42.7.& 46.7. Ier.10. 5. for of such chains, also, is the word used Ezek.7.23. Nah.3.10.

V.20. He that is so impoverished, that he hath no oblation chooseth a tree, that will not rot: he seeketh unto him, a cunning work-man, to prepare a graven image, that shall not be moved] The poorest man that is will have some god, or other, wooden one, rather then fail of one, Chapter 44. 14, 13. Deuteronomy 28. 64. and is so sottish and senselesse, as to imagine, that a silly Wright, of a sorry piece of wood, is able to make him a god, Chapter 46.6. Jer.10 3.

so impoverished, that he hath no oblation]Heb. impoverished, or penurious of oblation: it is a word, in this form, no where else found; but one neer it, for a poor man, Eccl.4 13 & 9 15.16. another for penury, or scarcity, Deut.8.9. Howbeit, because the word is here in an entire form, not such as is in regiment usual, some would have the text rendred, he that is impoverished doth for an oblation choose a tree that will not rot. But this another excepting against, as not regarding the pause at oblation, rendreth it, he that is in danger voweth an oblation. So the word is used in another form, for to be endangered, Eccles.10 9. and with the Rabbines (saith he) frequently. I adhere to the first, reading the words with a more familiar supply, To him that is impoverished, an oblation is. There is no man so weakned in his estate, but he will have some offering or other, he will find somewhat to furnish himself with, in this kind.

oblation] Such as they offered toward the building of the Sanctuary, Exodus 25. 2. and 30. 13. hath nothing of any great value to lay out upon, or confer toward the making of his idoll.

chooseth a tree that will not rot] Or, makes choice of some wood (as Deuteronomy 4.28.) that will not rot: such as the Cypres is said to be, much used, therefore, for such purposes. Theophrast, lib.5. ch.5. Pliny, lib.16 ch.40, 41, 42. See chap. 44.14. a defect of the relative; as Chapter 33. 19. and so in the next branch.

cunning]Heb. wise: as ch.3.3.

Workman]Wright, Carpenter, or Carver: the word was before used, for one that worketh in metal, vers.19. here, for one that worketh in timber, as also, ch.44.13.

a graven image]Or, a carved one rather, because of wood: not of stone, or metal.

that shall not be moved]Or, may not stir, being fixed and fastned to the wall, or some other sure stay. See v.19.

V. 21.

V.21. Have ye not known? Have ye not heard? Hath it not been told you from the beginning? have ye not understood from the foundations of the earth?] The Prophet, in these words, is generally deemed to turn his speech to Gods people, as charging them with extream stupidity, if having not only the light of nature, and the sight of the creature, as other people had; but the Word of God, also, and the Story of the creation, and the administrations of God therein related, and registred, they should yet entertain such base conceits of the diety, as those Heathen idolaters did; so chap.41.8,9.& 44.21. howbeit, I suppose, that he still persisteth in dealing with the Heathen Idolaters, whose folly, and stupidity he was laying forth before, ver. 18-20. admiring their blockishnesse and brutishnesse, if they never took notice of, or had never heard ought concerning God, or were not able by the very frame of the creature, though they had never heard word of him, to conceive a diety that had given being thereunto, and the infinite power and wildome of him that had so done, Ps.8.3,4.& 19.1-3.Rom.1.19 25.

Have ye not known?] Or, Do ye not know? as Ps. 14.4. & 82 5.& 92.6.ch.44.18.Heb. will ye not know? as taxing their wilful and affected ignorance: so Psal.36.3 & 82.5.2 Pet.3.5. yet the future may be put for the present; as 2 Sam.3.38.2 Chron. 32.13. so in the next clause, Heb. will ye not hear? for, have ye not heard? did ye never hear? ought of those strange passages of Gods providence, wrought for his people; the report whereof hath gone abroad unto other nations far and neer, Exod.15.14-16.Num.14.13,14.Josh. 2.10,11.ch.59.19. 2 Chr.32.31.

from the beginning] Being understood of Gods people, from the time that they first were a people, or that God severed them to himself, ch.41.9.& 44.2.or, if of other people, also, from the very beginning of the world; the notion of a deity being engraven in mans heart, at first, and by tradition also propagated and transmitted unto Posterity. Hebrews from the head: as Chapter 41.4.

have ye not understood from the foundations of the earth?] The particle from is not in the text: nor doth the ancient Greek, or old Latine, therefore, own it; which divers Interpreters, therefore, following, read the words, have ye not considered the foundations of the earth? Or, do ye not understand the foundations of the earth? To wit, that they were made, or laid by God, Pf.102.25. But our English versions, all of them, admit it, and its oft omitted, where it is to be supplyed, as ch.18.7.& 32.2.& 52.2. here to be fetched in from the clause next before-going, for explication, see Rom.1.20. the best Comment upon this place.

V.22. It is he that sitteth upon the circle of the earth] Or, as the margent hath it, Him that sitteth; as continuing the sentence, understand, or consider him, from the foundations of the earth, who sitteth: or, as some of our former versions, that he sitteth 1 or, that it is, he who sitteth; as ver. 28. upon the circle of the earth; or, above the circle of the earth: as Gen.1.20. as Soveraign Lord and Ruler of it, having heaven for his throne, and the earth for his foot-pace, Chapter 66. 1. as, the circle of the earth, here: so, the circle of the deep, or the Sea, Proverbs 8. 27. and the circle of heaven, Job 22.14.

and the Inhabitants thereof are as Grasshoppers] Or, as locusts: as the word is rendred, 2 Chr.7.13 where it appeareth to be one of the creatures that made havock of their grain, which Grasshoppers are not wont to do: and it seems, therefore, to be some kind of locusts (from which yet it is distinguished, Lev.11,22.) or of some other kind very neer unto it: such they are, even the greatest Giants, and the mightiest of them, in regard of God, as the Israelites seemed such to the Sons of Anak: Num.13.33.

that stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain] Psalm 104. 2.ch.42.5. such curtains, as their tents did ordinarily consist of, Exod. 26.1. Cant.1.5.ch.54.2. Some render it, as a Canopy: the word no where else used, some would have to signifie a fan, or this fleet, or veil; because it cometh from a word, that hath a notion of thinneſſe. I suppose it rather to signifie a thin skin, or film: because tents were usually made of skins, Exod.36.19. and a word very neer to it, of the same stock, is used for a film, or thin skin, overgrowing the eye, Levit. 21.20.

and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in] Heb. to sit in: as a general in his pavilion, 1 King.20. 12 or, to dwell in, as his Palace, Pf. 11.4.& 33.13,14.& 123.1.

V. 23. That bringeth the Princes to nothing] Or. That bringeth (Heb. giveth, as Chapter 41.2.) Princes (for there is no article in the text) to nothing. See Job 12.21.Pſal.107 40.Chapter 41. 11.

he maketh the Judges of the earth as vanity] the Judges, that is, the Rulers, Judg.2.16.Act.13.20.as vanity, or, a thing of nought. See v.17.ch.44.9.

V.24. Yea they shall not be planted: yea, they shall not be sowen: yea, their stock shall not take root in the earth] Heb. Yea, they have not been planted, yea, they have not been sowen, yea, their stock hath not taken root in the ground. Which some render in the present tence, they are not planted, nor sowen, nor doth their stock take root. Which they diverſly expound, some applying it to idols, as having not so much firmneſſe, as trees, or plants, that are set, or sowen, and take deep rooting in the ground; which these do not. Others, of Princes and Potentates, before spoken of, as like not to trees, or plants, such as before: but as grasse, that is neither set, nor sowen, but cometh up of it self; nor taketh any deep root, as trees do, and is therefore soon and suddenly gone, Psal.37.2.ver. 6-8. But I see no cause, why we should alter the tense that the text exhibiteth. Which one of the Jewish Commenters understandeth, as that which may be said of them, Surely, they were never planted, nor sowen, nor did their stock ever take root: alledging to that purpose, Job 8. 18. and the sense, indeed, is no other: but the words may be rendred, as thus depending on the former; he so bringeth them to nothing, that they are, as if they had never been planted, as if they had never been sowen, as if their stock had never taken root in the ground: albeit, like goodly oaks, or cedars, they seemed to have taken such deep rooting before, that they could not easily be stirred, much less removed, or plucke up by the roots, Pf.37.35,36.Ezek.31.3-14. Job 18.16,17,19. the particle is thrice repeated, to add the more vehemency to the sentence; as the like, Gen.43.8.Ezra 8.21.ch.41.26.& 48.8.See the like syntax, and supply also, ch.10.15. Job 39.16. supply likewise, Jud.9.30. and the contrary expreſſion, Job 14.9. especially, if the term, there used, be (as some learned would have it,) a verb, not a noun.

and he shall also blow upon them, and they shall wither] Or, yea, let him but blow upon them, and they shall wither; or, for he doth but blow upon them, and they are withered. Heb. and he hath even blown upon them, and they shall be dryed up, or, withered. See the like, both matter, and model of speech, Pſal.103. 16. the copulative, for the causative: as v.26.See before, v.7.

and the whirlwind shall take them away as ſtubble] A bare blaſt of Gods breath blowing upon them, shall be sufficient, not to blast them only, and cause them to wither away; but to blow them away, also, like ſtubble, or chaff, with a whirlwind, chap.41.2,15,16.Job 15.30.

V.25. To whom then will ye liken me, or ſhall I be equal?] Or, That I ſhould be like him; as Prov.26.4.and, for, that: as ch. 53.2.See v. 18. ch.46.5.

ſaith the holy One] God, who is holiness it self; and none holy as he, 1 Sam.2.2.

V.26. Lift up your eyes on high] To the heaven, to the starry sky, ch. 51.6.Job 35. 5.

and behold who hath created theſe things] Heb. and ſee; that is, conſider: as 1 King.20.7.Jer.2.19,31. who it is that created theſe, to wit, the ſtarres, that numberleſſe hoſt, (Gen.15.5.) which there ye ſee; and who is, therefore, far more excellent, then they, and of an infinite power, that was able to create them, Geneſis 1.14,18. and 2.1.Job 26.13.Pſalm 8.3. and 19.1,2. and 136.7-9. and 148. 3-5.

*that bringeth out their hoſt by number*s;] Who it is, that bringeth out their hoſt by tale; that muſtereth them, and keepeth a liſt of them, as a General, or Commander, doth of his Souldiers, and bringeth them forth, every one, in his due place, as a chieftain drawes out his souldiers on a training day, into the fields, each one in his proper rank and ſtation, Job 38. 37. Pſalm 104. 19. and 147.4.

he calleth them all by names] Heb. by name; and so it would be rendred, as Exod.33.17.I know thee by name; for as for that, Pſ. 147.4. it is not aright rendred, he calleth them by their names; it is in the Hebrew, he calleth names unto them, that is, he gives them names; or, impoſeth names on them: the same Syntax, that is, Gen. 2.20. and 26.18.

by the greatneſſe of his might (for that he is ſtrong in power) not one faileth] By reaſon of his infinite power and greatneſs, he hath another manner of command over his heavenly hoſt, then any Commander hath over his companies; some of theirs may fail them: when they ſhould appear before them, or attend upon them: it is otherwise with his; they appear each one constantly in his place, ready at all to do ſervice to God, his General, in whatsoever he ſhall pleaſe to aſſign him unto, Judg.5.20.Pſalm.148.8.cha.37.36.& 48. 13.

for that] Heb. and: as Pſalm 60. 11. Chapter 64. 5. So v.24.

not one] Or, no one; or, not any: to wit, of them, as ch.34.16.Heb. man faileth not; man, for, each, or any one: as Exod.25.20. Chapter 41.28.

V.27. How ſaiſt thou, O Jacob, and ſpeakeſt thou, O Iſrael?] Hitherto the Prophet had bent his diſcourſe againſt the fottiſh folly, and brutiſh ſtupidity of Idolaters, in their vain conceits concerning their baſe idols, and their ridiculous practices about them. Now he turneth the ſtream of his debate unto Gods own people, taxing them as perſons that had bin taught better things, for their diſſidence and diſtruſt, either of Gods care of them, or power to relieve them, or both: Jacob, and Iſrael, for those of his poſterity: as chap.29. 22, 23.

My way is hid from the Lord?] God looketh not after me, nor taketh notice of those things that do befall me, no more then as if they were concealed from him, and were hidden from his ſight. So Gen.4.14.Pſalm 31.22.& 94.7. Howbeit, in Scripture, the term of being hid, doth oft import difficulty, and imply ſomething hard to be done. So Deuteronomy 17.8. If a matter be hidden from thee; that that is, be too hard for thee to decide. Jeremiah 32. 27. Is any thing hidden from me? that is to hard for me to do? So alſo, Geneſis 18.14. & Jeremiah 32.17. and it may likewiſe be ſo here underſtood, My way is hidden from God, or is too hard for God; that is the course to be taken for our delivery out of captivity, is a matter too difficult for God himself to effect: we account it a thing altogether impoſſible: Yea, this very word ſeems ſo to be taken, Job 3.23. to a man, whoſe way is hidden, that is, involved in ſuch difficulties, that he cannot poſſibly get out; for ſo it followeth, whom God hath hedged in: See Lamentation 3.7. Hoſea 2. 16. whether way we take it, they are the thoughts and imaginations, even of Gods own people, in the time of their captivity. See the one, Chapter 49.14.and the other, Ezekiah 37.11. the latter I rather follow, because of what followeth, verſe 28,29.

my way] Not the courſe that I take; but that is taken with me: not, what I do, but what I endure: as, my wrong, Geneſis 16.5. See Jeremiah 51.35.or, the courſe that is to be taken for me, or with me, for the effecting of my deliverance.

and my judgment is paſſed over from my God] He regardeth not my cauſe, nor to right the wrong done me. So Job 27. 2. and 34.5.

my judgment] That is, my cauſe, my right, as Pſalm 9.4. Lamentation 3.59.

is paſſed from my God] Or, paſſed away from my God: as Jeremiah 8.13.or, it is ſo paſt, that God cannot redreſſe it: it is a cure too hard for God himſelf; for in ſuch a notion is this propoſition often uſed: See the places pointed to, in the former branch; ſpoken by them, as not expecting ought in this kind, from him: and that either ſuppoſing that he did wholly neglect them, or doubting of his ability, in ſome ſort, to relieve them; their State being ſo low, and their condition ſo deſperate; for that ſome ſuch tang, and taint, theſe their complaints were touched with, appeareth by the anſwer returned thereunto, v. 28,29.See Ieremiah 30.12, 13.

V.28. Haſt thou not known?] Or, Doſt thou not know? as 1 Cor.3. 16.& 6.9,15,16,19. Are ye yet to learn that which you have been ſo oft told and taught? Or, as our Saviour to his Diſciples, Matthew 15.16. Are ye alſo without underſtanding?

Haſt thou not heard?] See verſe 1.

That the everlaſting God, the Creator of the ends of the earth fainteth not, nor is weary?] That God as he created the world at the firſt, ſo he ſtill rules and governs it, and all things in it, from the one end of it to the other, without toil or travel, Job 28. 24. Pſalm 9.7,8. John 5.17. and is able therefore, having all power, both to deliver you, when he ſeeth good, Chapter 63. 1. and, mean while, to ſupport and ſuſtain you, to keep you from fainting and failing, be ye of your ſelves never ſo feeble, or, far ſpent, verſe 29, 31. Philip 4.13.

that] A defect of the particle, as Chapter 4. 3.

the everlaſting God] Heb. God of perpetuity, or eternity: as Geneſis 21.33.See Pſal. 9,10.& 10.16.& 90. 2.& 102.12. Chapter 26.4.

creator of the ends of the earth] Maker and ruler of the whole world, from the one end to the other, Chapter 41.5.

he fainteth not, nor is weary] As men do oft, when they have over-wrought themſelves, Judges 4. 21. 1 Samuel 29. 10. 2 Samuel 21.15. Chapter 44.12. the words may well be rendred, he is neither tired nor toiled; for that is the proper ſignification of either word.

there is no ſearching of his underſtanding] His wiſdom in the Government of the world, and in the diſpenſation and diſpoſition of events and occurrents, concerning the creature, is ſuch, as is beyond the reach of mans hallow capacity, Pſalm 147.5. Chapter 55. 8,9 Romanes 11.33.

V. 29. He giveth power to the faint; and to him that hath no might, he encreaſeth ſtrength] He maketh his might to appear in mans weakneſs, 1 Corinthians 1.17,18. 2 Corinthians 12.9. enabling thoſe to do, and endure any thing, Philip 4.13. Coloſſians 1. 11. who, of themſelves, are able to do nothing, John 15.5. 2 Cor. 3. 5. and 4.7. and 10,4, 6.

to the faint] Or, the weary one, or the tired, Chapter 50.4. Jeremiah 31.58. 64.

no might] Heb. mights: as verſe 26. but there, mights, for, abundance of might, or might of all ſorts; but here, mights, for, any might at all: as underſtandings, for, any underſtanding at all. Chapter 27.11. thus thoſe plurals, that uſually have a notion of abundance and exceſs, yet ſometime have on the other ſide, (which few obſerve) an intimation of ſcarcity and want: but this moſt in the negative. See Chapter 26.18.

increaſeth ſtrength] Gives abundance of ſtrength. Hebrew multiplyeth ſtrength, or, maketh it to abound: as of glory, Daniel 11.39.

V. 30. Even the youths ſhall faint and be weary, and the young men ſhall utterly fall] Such as are of greateſt might and ſtrength, and are best able therefore, to endure labour and travel, and to hold out in ſuch works as they are employed about, yet ſhall faint and fail, when weak and feeble ones, by God aſſiſted and ſupported, ſhall ſtand faſt by it, and hold out to the laſt, Pſalm 33. 16. Amos 2.14. See the like frame of ſpeech, Pſalm 34.10.

even the youths ſhall faint, and be weary] Or, The youths may be wearyed and toiled, for the particle, even, (Heb. and: as chap er 11. 6.) is joyned to the former verb, and the latter verb hath a notion of toilſome labor, Geneſis 31.42.ch.49.4.& 62.8.& 65.23.and both here ſeem potential, as theſe alſo, Pſalm 34.10.

young men] Or, choice youths, for that is the notation of the word; expreſſed alſo, Jer.48.15.1 Sam. 9.2.

ſhall utterly fall] Heb. ſhall ſtumbling ſtumble; that is, ſhall be ever and anon ſtumbling: as ſolid, faint and feeble, or toiled and tired out, are wont to be, it is diſtinguiſhed from falling, Pſalm 27.2. ch.8.15. though it may here include both; by or the antecedent implyed the conſequent, as Pſalm 107.12. chap 59.14.

V.31. But they that wait upon the Lord] Heb. And: the copulative for the adverſative; as chap. 36. 12. they that with patience and tranquility of ſpirit expect his ayd, and the performance of his promiſes in their due ſeaſon, Pſalm 40.1.and 130.5,6.ch.8.17.& 28,16. & 30.18.

ſhall renew their ſtrength] As Job 14. 7. & 29. 20. Eccle. 8. 1.or, change: as Geneſis 35.2.& 41. 14.chap.8.10. they ſhall have a new ſupply of ſtrength, enabling them to bear up, and hold out, when they ſeem to be clean ſpent, Pſalm 37.26.& 103. 3 2.Cor.1 8, 9.& 4.8 10,16.& 12,9,10. a defect of the pronoun poſſeſſive: as Chapter 33. 22.

they ſhall mount up with wings, as eagles] Finely, that flye ſtrongly, and ſwiftly, and that build and ſoar aloft, Deut.28.49 1 Samuel 1.23. Job 39.30. Proverbs 23.5. Jer.49.16. Hoſea 8.1. They ſhall as eaſily overcome, and get over all difficulties and obſtructions, that encounter them in their way, as if they had wings to flye over them, Exodus 19.4. Deut.32.11. Rom.8.35,37. Rev.12.14.

with wings] Heb. with feather. So the word properly ſignifies, Pſa. 68.13.& 91.4. but here, feather, for, wings; and wing, for, wings, as Pſalm 55.6. Ezekiah 17. 3.

they ſhall run, and not be weary; and they ſhall walk, and not faint] Or, they ſhall run, and not be wearyed; they ſhall walk, (that is, proceed, or, go on,) and not be toiled. See verſe. 28, 30.

CHAP. XLI.

Verſe 1. KEep ſilence before me, O Iſlands] Whether this Chapter joyned to the former, make up one Sermon, or be an entire diſcourſe of it ſelf, is not generally agreed; ſure it is, that it is much of the ſame argument with the former. For in it God foreſtelleth, by his Prophet, that it may not be aſcribed to any other, what he intendeth to do, for the reſcuing and reduction of his people; challengeth the falſe gods to do, any of them, the like; and both them, and their worſhippers, to hinder him in the execution of it, if they can, with all the power that they are able to make.

Keep ſilence before me] Heb. to me; that is, Keep ſilence, and hearken to me, or, with ſilence hearken to me. Of ſuch defective, or comprehenſive forms of ſpeech, ſee on chapter 38.17,21. God ſtanding up to debate his cauſe, by his Prophet, againſt the enemies of his people, with them, and their idols, directeth his ſpeech to them, rather then to their idols, that were as well deaf, as dumb, Pſalm 115.5,6. and as the manner of men is, where they are about to ſpeak, unto multitudes eſpecially, Job 29.9,10. and 33.31,33. Acts 21. 40. requireth ſilence, that he may be heard. So Chapter 48, 14,16.

O Iſlands] Or, Lands; as Chapter 20.6. and 40.15. Ye people of ſeveral countries. So after, verſe 5. yet ſome would have the Ilanders and borderers on the Sea-coaſt, intended in this branch; other people in the next: But I ſuppoſe the ſame perſons intimated in either.

and let the people renew their ſtrength] Let the nations make all the power they can, for the ſupport of themſelves, and their idols, and to hinder, if they be able, the work that I foretel, and intend to effect, for the delivery of my people. Of the phraſe and deſect of the pronoun in it, See on chapter 40. 31.

the people] That is, the Jewiſh people, ſay ſome, of whom, cha 41. 31. but the word is plural, and never uſed, but of Nations of divers lands, chapter 17.12,13.& 43.9. & 49.1.

let them come neer, then let them ſpeak, let them come neer together in judgment] That we may parly, and debate the matter together: as ch.1.18. they ſhall have free liberty to ſpeak, and ſay what they can for themſelves they ſhall not be ſtay'd that they were condemned unheard. So verſe 21. chapter 45.20.21.and 48.14,16.

V.2. who raiſed up the righteous man from the Eaſt] The moſt Interpreters, following the Chaldee Paraphraſt, and the main ſtream of the Jewiſh Commenters, underſtand this paſſage of Abraham. Though ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors interpret them of the Meſſias; with whom, ſome of ours, alſo, therein accord. Howbeit, I ſuppoſe that the things here ſpoken, are meant of Cyrus, that was to deliver Gods people out of the Babylonian thraldome, and to reſtore them, to their country and former freedome again (though a type of Chriſt, and of ſpirituall freedom, from the thraldom of ſin and Satan, by him atchieved,) to whom whatſoever is here ſaid, doth moſt exactly agree. See Chapter 44. 28. and 45.1.

drew neer, and came] Not to God, to appear before him; but to take counſel together, how to ſecure and ſave themſelves,as Joſhua 10.1-4.& 11.1-5.

V. 6. They helped every one his neighbour,and ſaid every one to his brother, Be of good courage] They endeavoured to hearten and encourage one another to hold out, and ſtand to it, in hope of help from their idols.So Exodus 14.5,6,9. 1 Samuel 4.6-9. Pſalm 64.5.

V.7.So the Carpenter encouraged the Goldſmith] The Workmen, whoſe employment is about making idols,were right glad, and ready to take hold of the opportunity to be ſet on work about the forging and coining of new Gods; loath, with Demetrius, to have idolatry go down, and their trade to grow out of requeſt, Acts 19. 24.27.

the Goldſmith] Or, Finer, or Founder. See Chapter 40.19. and 46.6. And ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors ; howbeit, ſome other of them, by the former, underſtand the Founder ; by the latter , the workman , that overlayeth it with plates ; as Chapter 40. 19.

and he that ſmooth eth with the hammer]The gold or ſilver plates, that the idoll is to be overlaid with, Chapter 40. 19. Jeremiah 10. 9. a defect of the inſtrumentall particle ; as Pſalm 17.13,14. yet ſome render it without any ſuch ſupply. See the next note.

him that ſmote the anvill]Or,as others,he that beateth out the metal on the anvill. But the former word, in Hebrew, is a noun,not a verb; and ſignifieth not a ſmiter, but ſmiting as another of the ſame ſame ſtock, Prov.18.6. & 19. 29. and thence a term for an hammer, Judg.5.26. the latter word no where elſe in Scripture found, for an anvil (though the Jewiſh Doctors , ſome of them, ſo expound it ; and, ſome other of them, an hammer) cometh of a word, that ſignifieth, to ſhake,or diſturb,and trouble, Gen.41.8. Pſal.77.4.Dan. 2.1,3. whence a term for a bell,Exod.28.33,34. but it is moſt commonly and frequently uſed for a courſe,or a turn,Gen.18.32. Joſh. 2.1,3. whence a term for a bell,Exod.28.33,34. but it is moſt commonly and frequently uſed for a courſe,or a turn,Gen.18.32. Joſh. 6.3. Some,therefore,of the Jewiſh Commenters, read this paſſage thus;the Carpenter encouraged the founder,or,the meta ſmith that ſmooth eth the hammer,for ſmiting on the anvil, or, for ſmiting by turns. And to confirm this , they call in the Chaldee Paraphraſe, from whence they gather, that the former word patiſh,ſhould ſignifie an hammer of the greater ſize; a fledge, the latter, to wit, paam, one of a ſmaller ſize; it being,ſay they,the manner of Workmen, to make uſe of the greater, for the beating out of their work at firſt, and of the leſſer,afterward,for the poliſhing of it. Whereas, other of them would have the former word to ſignifie the leſſer hammer; and the latter, the bigger: that which it more agreeable to the words of the text, wherein the former ſeems to be the poliſhing hammer. See Chap. 44.12. But the truth is, the Chaldee ſeems not to take the word paam,for any hammer at all,either bigger,or leſs, but expoundeth it by the word zimna, that anſwereth to paam, as it ſignifieth ; a turn, or courſe. It uſeth a word, indeed, withal, that in the Writings of the Talmudiſts, imports an hammer, of any ſort or ſize indifferently, whither one to beat iron out, or one to crack nuts with; as by the places, out of their diſcourſes produced, appears. But that ſeems to appertain to the expoſition of the fore-going word holem. Nor do I find any place alledged, either out of ſacred Scripture, or Talmudical Writer, wherein the word is taken,either for hammer, or anvil. I ſuppoſe,therefore,that this paſſage may well be thus rendred, and the ſmoother with the hammer, the ſmiter by courſe ; that is, he that poliſhed the work, him that wrought as the forge. Heb.ſmiting,for a man of ſmiting; a ſmiter,or one that ſmiteth, as men of deviſion for deviders: ſuch as uſe to deride, Prov.29.8. Chap.28.14. a defect of the ſubſtantive regent. Of the like whereunto, ſee on ver. 2. However, thus muſt their gods be handled and hammered, ere they can attain their Deity.

ſaying, It is ready for the ſodering] It is ſufficiently beaten out at the anvil; it is now time to put the parcels of it together,and to faſten, with ſoder, the joynts one to another. Or, as others, rather, more agreeably to the original, ſaying, of the ſoder (ſo is the particle uſed,Chap.38.15.) or, of the ſodering, (the word is no where elſe uſed, but for joynts,or junctures, in the plural , 1 Kin. 22.34. 2 Chr.18.33.) It is good, the pronoun, for the verb ſubſtantive , as ver.4. It is well ſodered, the joynts are well faſtened one to another.

and he faſteneth it with nails, that it ſhould not be moved.] They faſten with nails, either the frame of plates joyned together with ſoder, unto the wooden ſtock underneath it, that the joynts may keep the faſter, and hold the firmer together, (as the Jewiſh Commenters underſtand it) or the image, it ſelf, to ſome wall, poſt, or pillar, that it may ſtand faſt, in the place aſſigned it, and neither fall, nor be ſtirred ; as moſt of ours take it. See chap.40.19. and 46.7.

he faſteneth] That is,ſome one of them,or others; the verb taken indefinitely, as Gen.48.1. he told(that is,one told) Joſeph.

faſteneth it] The idoll; ſuch as is mentioned , Chapter 40. 19. the pronoun , for the noun , as Chapter 33. 2. and 35. ver.8.

that it ſhould not be moved] Or, that it ſtir not ; a defect of the particle, as Pſalm 93. 1. It is not to be omitted, that ſome or ours read the whole paſſage, from ver.5. hitherto, not as ſpoken in way of relation, what the enemies of God,and his, did;but delivered, by way of permiſſion , and provocation ; as if it were ſaid, Let them, when at the ſight of theſe things, they begin to be troubled, draw neer, and convene ; let them aſſiſt and encourage one another : let the idolmakers joyne together , and conſpire to make their work as firm as they can. See the like, chapter 8. 9, 10. Let others conſider, and judge of it.

V.8. But thou Iſrael art my ſervant , Jacob whom I have choſen,the ſeed of Abraham my friend.] From the idolatrous Pagans,God turneth his ſpeech to his own people , endeavouring to confirm and ſtrengthen them, againſt all fear from the adverſe party, undertaking to ſecure them, and make them ſucceſsful againſt all that ſhould oppoſe them.

But] Heb. And: as ver.8.

thou Iſrael art my ſervant] Or,rather, thou Iſrael my ſervant: or, who art my ſervant: and ſo forward, in way of compellation,and deſcription of the party ſpoken to, unto ver.10. of Iſrael and Jacob:ſee ch.40.27. whom I have choſen] To be a peculiar people to my ſelfe, Exod. 19.4,5. Deut.7.6. Pſalm 135.4. Heb. whom I have choſen that; a redundancy in that language uſe , Pſa.1.4.& 144. 8. the like is in the next verſe.

the ſeed of Abraham] His Poſterity: as Pſalm 105 6. 2 Cor. 11. 22. whom God for his ſake regarded, Deuter.7.7. and 9.27. and 10.15.

my friend] So 2 Chr.20 7. Jam.2.23. whom I freely loved,Deut. 4.37. and who entirely loved me,Gen.22.12. and with whom I was pleaſed to enter into a ſolemn league of amity, as well defenſive; as offenſive, Gen.12.2,3. & 15.1,18. & 17.2,7. Thus is God a friend, even to his friends ſtille, as well as to himſelf, Exod.20.6.Pſa 37.26. & 111.13,14.

V.9. Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth.] Heb: whom I have taken thee; as before,ver.8. The word, Thou, is here needleſs: there is,as a redundancy in the pronoun,ſo,a defect in the verb : entire and full, it is thus , whom I have taken, or took, and brought from the ends of the earth, or, from the lands end; as Pſa.72. 8.v.5. to wit, in Abraham,their Progenitor, in whoſe loins they then were, (as Judg.2.1.God is ſaid to have brought them out of Egypt, in their Parents,then all deceaſed,Num.14.29 31.) and whom God took and brought from the land of Chaldea, unto the land of Canaan, in which alſo, afterward, he feeled his feed, Joſh.24.2,3. Of the ſupply, ſee on Chap.38.17,21. and ſee the like,Gen.27.9. Jer. 30.16. yet it followeth not hence, as ſome would infer, that Abraham was the party mentioned before, ver.2. for the ſequel is of no neceſſity. And the next branch doth exclude the expoſition of thoſe, who would underſtand this, of the bringing of the Iſraelites out of Egypt. Nor do they ſeem to go leſs wide, who, either with the Jewiſh Doctors , underſtand this paſſage of the deliverance of them from the captivity of Babylon, a place far remote from their own home,Chap.39.3. Jer.30.10. Or,ſo ſome of ours, of the Elect, called out of all parts of the world,by Chriſt, Chap.56.6,7. Matth. 8.11.

and called thee from the chief men thereof] So is the word uſed, Exod.24.11. and it ſignifieth great ones, chief, or choice men ; ſo the word, as obſerved, and fet apart from others of leſs reckoning : as the word, whence it cometh, importeth, Gen.27.36. Num.11.17. Eccl. 2. 10. a borrowed term, from things that are kept cloſe and ſafe under the arm-holes , Ezek.13.18. Jer.38.12. meant of Abraham, whom God called out of Chaldea, from the great men there allied to him, or among whom he lived, Gen.12.1. Joſh.24 2,3. So rather, then as ſome, from the great men , their hard maſters in Babylon, chap.26.13. & 43.14. Or, as others, of the Elect called, when the great ones are paſſed by , Matth.11.5,25. 1 Corinth. 1. 26,27.

V.14.Fear not]As before,v.10,13.Repeated again and again, to confirm them against the consideration of their powerful enemies, and their own weak and low condition.

thou worm Jacob] That art such in the eye and estimation of thine enemies,who trampled upon thee,as such a contemptible creature.See Job 25.6.Psa.22.6.

and ye men of Israel]Or,as some render it, ye few men: and so the ancient Greek:but then it should be, men of number; as Gen.34.30. Deut.4.27.Jer.44.28.Others,ye dead men,that are as dead men, ch. 26.19.Ezek.37.11-14. and so the old Latine. But they mistake the vocal point,for men, and dead men,in Hebrew,differ but in a vowel. Yet had they said mortals, it had not been much amiss, See on ch. 2.9.

I will help thee] Or, I help thee : I am thine assistant, verse 10,13.

saith the Lord, and thy Redeemer, the holy One of Israel] Or, even thy Redeemer:that is,deliverer, and rescuer. So is the particle used, chap.40.30. See chap.54.5.

V.15.Behold] As Chap.7.14.ver. 11.

I will make thee a new sharp threshing instrument, having teeth] Heb. I have made thee like unto such a cart, or sled, as they used to thresh out their harder grain with. Of which, see on chap. 28. 25,28. (the note of similitude is wanting, as chap.40.6.)a new one : and in that regard, the stronger, and sharper, being neither worn, nor blunted with use: as 2 Samu.21.16.

sharp threshing instrument] Two words are here used : the former whereof, morag, signifies a sled, in general, 2 Sam.24.22.1 Chr.21. 23. not found elsewhere: the latter, charuts, more peculiarly such an one, as was used, commonly, for threshing out of corn,chap. 28. 25,28. as also, sometime, to torture men with, 2 Sam. 12. 31. Amos. 1.3. so called from a verb that signifies to cut, yet not, as cut, as some would have it : though the form be passive: and it is so, when taken for a ditch, Dan. 9.25. but of cutting, because it cutteth the straw, in threshing out of the grain : nor is it an adjective, as our version maketh it, rendring it sharp, but a substantive, either joyned to the former, by apposition, as his fellow, in way of specification, as a damsel,a virgin, Deut.22.28, a woman,a widow, 2 Sam.14.5.a woman, an harlot, Judg.11.1.a man, an eunuch, Act.8. 28. and so here, a sled, a threshing one : or, ruled by the former, as Ioel 3.14. the valley of the threshing, or, of the threshing sled: or, as some there render it, of concision, or cutting : and so here, a sled of cutting : or threshing, that is, a cutting or threshing sled. to distinguish it from other sleds, that are used for other purposes.

having teeth] Heb. a master, or owner of mouths:as, an owner of wing,for a winged fowl; or one that hath wing, Prov.1.17.and an owner of horn, for an horned creature, or one that hath horns,Dan. 8.6.months, for teeth, or the like : here a sled, whose wheels are furnished with iron-spokes, or teeth, as we commonly term them, chapter 28.28.Amos 1.3.as a sword of mouths, for a double edged-sword. Psalm 149.6.Prov.5.4.and a two-mouthed, for , a two-edged sword,Heb.4.12. and to fall on, or by, the mouth, for the edg of the sword ,Genesis 34 .26. Exodus 17 .13.Luke 21.24.

thou shalt thresh the mountains] I will make thee able, not to withstand only, but to over-master, subdue, and destroy all thine enemies, (see Judg 6.7.2 Kings 13.7.chapter 25.10.Amos 1. 3.) be they never so great, or, strong, so lofty, or mighty, chapter 2. 14. Zach.4.7.fulfilled, as in many glorious victories, as well as deliverances, at sundry times vouchsafed Gods people, after their return from captivity,Zach.2.5.& 12. 2,3,6 so principally, and more fully accomplished in the reign of the Messias.Dan.2.34,35,44,45.2Cor. 10.4,5.

and shalt beat them small]Or, to small dust, or powder. So the word properly signifieth, Exod. 32. 20.& 30.36. 2 Kings 23.7,15. chap.29.5.thou shalt thresh them in another manner then corn is wont to be threshed. See chap. 28.28.See also, Matth.21.44. a defect of the pronoun,as our reading yeelds it; such as Chapter 40. 15. yet it may be rendred without such supply, thou shalt thresh, and beat, or grinde to dust , or powder , the mountains.

and shalt make the hills as chaff] See verse 2, 16. Psalm 18. 42.

V.16.Thou shalt fan them,and the wind shall carry them away, and the whirlwind shall scatter them]Thou shalt disperse them,and make an utter riddance of them ; not like chaff, that stayeth in the floor when the grain is there winnowed, reserved for some further use; but that, which upon winnowing in some open and high place, in a stiff wind, is carried clean away; or, upon winnowing on the floor, is,by the whisking of the wind, blown out of the floor,and so scattered,that it cannot be recollected. See Jer.4.11.& 15.7.& 51.1,2. Dan.2.35.

and thou shalt rejoyce in the Lord, and glory in the holy One of Israel] Or,but(as v.8.) thou shalt rejoyce in the Lord (as Ps.9.14.& 13.5.& 14 6.)thou shalt glory,(as c.42.14.)or boast thy self,(as Ier.9.22,23.) of the holy One of Israel,ver.14,16. ascribing to him, whatsoever he hath enabled thee to do,or hath done for thee,ch.12.1,6.& 25.1-5 & 26.1-6.

V. 17. When the poor and needy seek water, and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirst ; I the Lord will hear them, I the God of Israel will not forsake them] When my people, detained in captivity at Babylon, or elsewhere, Zach.9.12. or by the way in their return home from thence,thorow waste places,v.18,19.shall be in distress, through want of water, or other necessaries;and consequently, when any poor soul shall be in perplexity for want of any spiritual consolation, I the Lord will not be wanting unto them, for any necessary supply, Chapter 12.3.John 4.10.and 7.37.2 Corin. 12.9. A defect of the particle when : as chapter 17. 6. & 26.10. v.5.

hear them] By a gracious supply, shew, that I have heard them, even by satisfying their desires, chap.59.9,10.Psal.107.5,6,9.Hos. 2.22.

their tongue faileth for thirst] Sticking to the roof of their mouth, for want of moisture,Ps.22.15.& 137.6. Lam.2.11.faileth,as ch.19. 5.Jer.51.30.

the God of Israel] Hereby shewing himself so to be, verse 10.13.

will not forsake them]Gen.28.15.Josh.1.5.1 Sam.12.22.Heb.13 5.verse 9.

V.18. I will open rivers in high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys : I will make the wildernesse a pool of water , and the dry land springs of water] I will alter the very course of nature, and cause those places to yeeld water, where none ordinarily is, rather then my people shall want means of comfortable subsistence; an allusion to those extraordinary courses taken by him, for the supply of his with water in the wilderness, what time they travelled from Egypt to Canaan,Exod.17.6,7.Num. 20.10,11.Ps.105.41.& 107.35. & 114.8.ch.35.7.& 44.3.

high places] See Ieremiah 12.12.and 14.6.Howbeit, a learned late Writer, would have it rather, in low places ; as after, in the valleys, in the plains. See Chapter 13.1.Jer. 3.2. But it is rather in high places, in opposition to the valleys ; in places as well of the one condition, as the other. See chap. 30. 25. a place parallel to this:

in the midst of the valleys]Or,in the valleys, as ch.19.19.& 24.13. See Deut.8.7.Ps.104.8,10.

springs]Heb goings out,or issues:and so,Ps.107.33,35.for there is another term for springs,or fountains,as before.See Ps 74.14.& 84. 9.ch.12.3.

V.19.I will plant in the Wildernesse, the Cedar, the Shittah-tree,and the Myrtle, and the Oyl-tree : I will set in the desart the firre-tree, the Pine, and the Box-tree together] I will not furnish them(only)with water, to quench their thirst; but beset the way which they are to passe by, (where the heat of the Sun might, for want of shade, annoy them, as in wilde wastes, it oft falleth out,)with such shrowdy trees, as shall afford them shade, and may much refresh them in their travel,cha.55.12,13. Yet the meaning is not, that God would, by miracle, cause such kind of trees to spring up in the way, where no such were before; but that he would,by his providence and provision, make their passage as convenient & commodious unto them, as if such a thing had been done. So v.3.see Ps.105.39.chap.4.5, 6.& 32.2.

plant]Or,place,or set. Hebrews give:as Gen.39.20.2.Chr.6.13.& 16.10.

cedar]A goodly tree for shroud and shade, Ezek.31.3.

Shittah-tree] Divers conceits concerning this kind of tree, what it should be, because groundless, I spare to relate. The most of the Iewish Commenters suppose it to be a choice kind of Cedar; in regard whereof, some of them make the Cedar here mentioned,and it, but one and the same tree ; as if it were said, the Cedar of Shittah; that is, the cedar that yeeldeth the Sittah-wood; which appeareth to have been a wood of some special note and worth. See Exod.25. 5.& 35.7,24. but they seem rather to be reckoned up here, as trees distinct, in like manner, as the rest. It is no where found mentioned in Scripture, save here, and about the furniture of the Tabernacle.Concerning which, what fables the Talmudists tell us, of the Israelites planting them in Egypt,by Iacobs admonition,and their carrying the wood thereof out of Egypt,by Moses his direction ; and of an whole wood of them,growing neer to Mount.Sinai,that the people should fell, wherewith to make them Tabernacles , I forbear to insist on.

myrtle] A very pleasant and delightful tree, of a fragrant smell, in regard whereof,it was,by the painims,dedicated to Venus:thence had Ester her name, Hadassah, Est. 27. by the Greek Historians termed Atossa; the branches whereof, travellers, for their refreshment, (and as by them deemed to have some efficacy to keep them from weariness in travel)used to carry in their hands, by the way. See Pliny, liber 15. Chapter 29. it is reckoned among the shadowy trees, Nehemiah 8 . 15. See Zachariah 1. 1.8.

oyl-tree]Heb. tree of oyl; the olive tree, whose fruit yeeldeth oyl, Exodus 30.24.Judges 9.9.Romanes 11.17. hence the sucking of oyl out of the flinty rock;that is from those rocky places,on which the olive trees grew,Deut.32.13.of the beauty and shadiness of it,see Hos. 14.6,7.

firre]A bout this tree, also, there is some dissent among the Jewish Masters; but the most agree it to be a firre : which is the more likely,because musicall instruments were made of the wood thereof, as at this day with us,2 Sam.6.5. It is joyned oft with the Cedar,ch. 14.8.& 37.24.Zach.11.2.See ch.55.13.& 60.13.in which place, all these latter three trees are mentioned, and joyned, as here, together.

Pine] This word being no where else found, but here, and chap. 60.13.is very ambiguous; the Rabbines, after their manner, where they are as uncertain , as others , say , it is a kind of cedar , and so leave us at randome. Most of ours take it to be the pine, or the pitch tree:which some guesse to be so called, from the noise that the branches thereof make, when they are shaken with the wind : and the root, whence it seems to spring, is used of such a noise, as horses use to make,trampling,or prancing with their feet,Judg.5.22. Nahum.3.2. Others derive it from an Arabick word, that signifies eternity: either because it holdeth his verdure all the year long:as some kind of flower, thence called by the Greeks, Amarantum, alluded to, 1Pet.5.4.& with us everlasting:or,because,though the wood,or timber thereof, is of long continuance : for they seem to stray further,who, by change of a letter, yet not altogether unusuall, would have it deduced, either from the rozen, that it yeeldeth, or from another Arabick word, found in that version,Hos.14.6. that signifies to flourish.

box-tree]Of this,also, the Rabbines tell us, that it is a kind of Cedar. Yet some of them say, that it is the brasil tree : and some, as our version hath it, the box : it is no ofter found, then the former. Nor can I assent to a Writer of great note,who in his version,renders it, shadowy trees, such, as groves commonly consist of, whence he would have them so named : as if it denoted no particular kind of tree : but such, in general, as yeelds much shade : such as those reckoned up, Nehemiah 8.15. and those pointed to, Hos.4.13.

V. 20. That they may see, and know, and consider , and understand together, that the hand of the Lord hath done this, and the Holy One of Israel hath created it] Or, That men may see,and know, &c. other people, as well as Gods own : for the verbs are indefinite. So Psalm 109 27. a place parallel to this. See ch. 40.26. verse 4.

consider] Hebrews lay : to wit, their heart, to these things, or these things to heart : as it is more fully, ver.22.cha.42.25.Hag.1. 5,7.

the Holy One of Israel]ver.14,16.

created it] Hath appointed it so to be:as Chapter 37.26.or,hath effected it: the word is used, as of the creation and production of the creatures at first, Chapter 40.26 and 45. 12,18. so, of strange works,that may justly be deemed as works of creation,ch.4.5.Ierem. 31.22.

V.21.Produce your cause, saith the Lord]Heb.cause to come neer: as ch.46.13.

bring forth your strong reasons]Heb.make to come neer(as Exod.21. 6.1 Sam. 14. 18. for the words are both of the same notion,)your strong,to wit,reasons,or arguments. a defect of the subject: as chap. 40.10.

saith the King of Jacob] Psalm 44.4.and 89.18.and 149.2.cha. 33. 22. God turneth his speech to the idolatrous people, challenging them to produce the strongest pleas they can, in the behalf of their idols; and to prove the truth of their religion, by producing the like words foretold first, and effected afterward,by those whom they adore, to those of his before-mentioned, when they shall see them accomplished, and withal, take notice, how long before, warning had been given of them. See verse 1, 2.

V.22. Let them bring them forth, and shew what shall happen]A defect of the pronoun, as ver.15.or, rather, without any supply, here needlesse; Let them come forth, and declare what will happen. Let your Idols do it. He challenged the Idolaters, before, to say what they could, for their idols. He telleth them here, what he would have their idols to do. See ver.23. There is an elegant consonancy in the Hebrew words, which our language cannot well express.

Let them shew the former things what they be]Let them shew what they can foretel, or effect ; or have formerly foretold and effected. So ch.44.7.& 45.20,21.& 46.10.and 48.14.

that we may consider them]Heb.and we will(as ch.37.26.& 53.2) *set our heart upon them.*See v.21.

and know the latter end of them] Or, the issue of them, how they came afterward to passe. Heb. the posterity of them, as Deut. 32.20.

or declare us things for to come]Heb.make us to hear(as v.26.Ps.51. 8.)things to come,as Gen.41.35.

V.23.Shew the things that are to come hereafter; that we may know that ye are gods] As verse 2. see verse 20. Hebrews. And we shall know; which may well be retained,else, as before,verse 22.the copulative , for the finitive.

yea , do good, or do evill] To your friends,the one; to your enemies, the other:as I, for mine, verse 10-20. but neither of both can ye do,Jer.10.5.& 14 22.

that we may be dismayed, and behold it together]Heb. and we shall be astonished, or amazed, or dismayed (as verse 5. and here, before and we shall know, and behold: a defect of the pronoun, it; such as ch.37.1,9. Or,(because sight goeth, in nature, before astonishment, or amazement,as verse 5. (when we see it;as ch.31.3. & 43.12.Jer 34.1.Zach.12.2.

V.24.Behold, ye are of nothing] See 1 Cor.8.1.Or,ye are lesse , or worse then nothing : the particle is oft used, in a comparative notion: as Psalm 8.5.Job 11.6.the pronoun, for the verb substantive: as v. 10,29.

and your work of nought] The work that is done about you, or by you : all that is done with you, or that your selves do, is lesse, or worse then nought, as verse 29. or worse then that of a viper; so the word lengthned with one subservient letter, is found used, Job 20.16.Chap.30.6.& 59. 5. they are of lesse worth, then the hissing of such a Serpent: or they do not only no good nor benefit, but much mischief to those that adore them, and adhere to them, Psalm 16.4.

an abomination is he that chooseth you] To worship as gods, chap. 44.17.or, most abominable (as Lev.18.22.ch.1.13.) is he that (a defect both of the verb substantive,antecedent, and relative,as Jer. 2. 8,11.)delighteth in you:as ch.1.29.& 58.5,6.

V 25.I have raised up one from the North, and he shall come] God having challenged the false gods, to shew what they have done, or can do: doth now again relate, what himself had done. Some render the verbs,both, in the time to come, I will raise up,and he shall come. And they supply, for want of the noun following, the former verb, not one, as our version, as of a particular person: but a people: which doth not recede much from the former, since that party, albeit he were but one, it is certain that he brought people, yea, peoples along with him. But we need not depart from the words of the original, that runs thus; I raised up one, and he came:(for so it was before,v.2.in the question there, which this answereth to, here, and it is spoken here, as of a thing already accomplished,as there:so ch.43.14.& 45.13.)or,I raised up one that he might come, or to come: as v.22,24.to wit,at my call.

from the rising of the sun shall he call upon my name:] Or, from the rising of the sun, one that might proclaim, or to proclaim my name : as Exod.33. 14. Now, this some understand of Nebuchadnezzar the former, that subdued and captived Gods people, said,every where, to come from the North, Jer.1.13,15. & 46. of Cyrus, the latter, that delivered them out of captivity, and is said to come from the East, Chapter 46.11.to shew, say they, that both their captivity by the one and delivery by the other, were of Gods appointment and disposal.But I conceive,rather,with others,that Cyrus, is the party intended in either, who was a Medo-Persian, himself, of a medley race: a Persian, by Cambyses his Father : and a Mede, by Mandane his mother , and carryed along with him, in his expedition against Babylon,of his Subjects out of both Kingdoms,some out of Media, Media, that lay more northerly to it, Jer. 50. 3, 9. others, out of Persia, that lay more to the East of it, ver.2.Chap.46.11.Yet some expound it of Christ, that should gather his dispersed out of all parts of the world, Psalm 107.3. Chap.43.5,6. & 49.12. Mat.8.11. Joh. 11.52. of whom Cyrus was a type. Howbeit, they make over-large reckonings, who by the sun-rising, would understand East and West; by the North, North and South, to hook in the whole world.

call upon my name] So did Cyrus, say some, because the Persians worshipped no idolls: but, rather, proclaim my name; as did Nebuchadnezzar, say some, who both praised him, himself, and proclaimed him to others, Jer.39.11,12. & 40.2,3. Dan.3.28,29.and 4.2,3,34. but it seemes rather to have reference to that solemne proclamation of Cyrus: whereof, see 2 Chron. 36.22,23. Ezr.1. 1, 2.

and he shall come upon Princes, as upon morter, and as the Potter treadeth clay] Or, that he might come (as the like before) or go (as Gen.7.1. Ezek.36.20.) and tread down, or trample upon Princes. (See the like defective, or comprehensive forms of speech, cha. 38. 17,21. howbeit, the supply here, is from the branch ensuing,as ch. 23.5.) as morter, and be as a potter that treadeth clay:a defect of the relative; as v.24. see Psa.18.42. Nah.3.14.

Princes] Such as God shall subdue to him; as Assyages, Cresus, Baltasar, and others. See ver.2. chap.45.1. or rather the Babylonian Captains and Commanders, Jer.51.28,57.

V.26. Who hath declared from the beginning, that we may know? and before time, that we may say, he is righteous?] Which of your gods did, or could, fore-tel this, that I fore-told above one hundred, well neer two hundred year, before it came to pass; and, ye see, at length, fulfilled? See on chapter 13.22. See also, chapter 43.9.

declared] See v.22,23. or declared this: as ch.45.21.& 48.14.See the like defect, 1 Cor.9.10.

from the beginning] Heb. head: as ch.40.21.& 48.16. that is,long before: as in the next branch, before time; or from before time. Heb. from before; or, from to the face: as Jer.7.24.

that we may know] Heb. and we shall know: as ver.23. and so afterward, and we shall say.

He is righteous?]He is to be justified and allowed of, in his claim, to a deity, he may justly go for a god; or, may deservedly, claim the name of a god, Deut.25.1. cha.43.9. See v.23.and the like defect, 2 King.10.9. Prov.24,24. ch. 3.10, 11. & 43. 10, 11. A late learned Writer would rather have it rendred, he is true; because the word, in Arabick, is so commonly used; and righteousness,where it is given to God, doth oft signifie truth, as chap.42.21. & 45. 23. So the Chaldee, and the Greek, here; it is truth, the one; true,the other. And he rendreth thus the whole passage, who will declare former things? we will know (or acknowledge him, or them) and those things that were before? we will say, he is true. Let others judg of it.

yea, there is none that sheweth, yea, there is none that declareth,yea, there is none that heareth your words] There is never an idol of you, that foretold ought of it;nor Priest,or Prophet,belonging unto either of them, that reported it (Heb. making to hear: as ver. 22. ch. 52.7. & 53.1.) from them; nor any of your worshippers, that hath heard ought of it, either from your selves, or from any of you, by any of them, since neither your selves can speak ought, Psal. 115. 5. and 135.16. nor are any of your Priests and Interpreters able to say ought thereof, chap. 47. 12, 13. The repetition of the particle, makes the speech more emphatical: as chap. 40. 24. So verse 20.

V.27. The first shall say to Zion; Behold, behold them, and I will give to Jerusalem one that bringeth good tidings] Or, as some, I the first (that is,God,v.4.) will say to Zion; Behold, behold them: Or,as others, I will give a prime, or chief one to Zion, to wit,Christ, Cant 5.10.) and a bringer of good tidings to Jerusalem, who shall say, Behold, behold them. Or,as others, again, I will first give to Zion, and to Jerusalem, one joyfully publishing, Behold, behold them. But these, all, invert the words of the text too much. I suppose the words may be best thus rendred, with least force to the text, and most fitnesse with the context; I say first to Zion, Behold, behold them; and give to Jerusalem a bringer of glad tidings.

The first shall say] Or, I first say, or said; I am the first that signified ought to Sion, either concerning her deliverance, or the destruction of Babylon; and the persons, by whom either of these should be effected, that which none of your Idols, or Wizzards, could do,v.26. a defect of the verb: as Psa.27.8.

Behold, behold them] That is, say some, the things now foretold, and then fulfilled: but the pronoun is not a neuter, but a masculine, as our version well rendreth it: which some expound of the people under Cyrus his command, coming to ruine Babylon, and to release Gods people. See Cha.13.4,5. & 21.9. Jer. 51.41,44. Others, of the Jewes returning in flocks, and troops, from captivity. See ch.49.12. the repetition addeth more vehemency and evidence to it: as Cha.65.1.

will give] Or, do give: do send, do assign.

to Jerusalem] This, and Sion, here, are all one: as Chap.1.27.& 40.9.

one that bringeth good tidings] That is, Cyrus, say some, Ezr. 1. 2. Christ, say other, Chap.42.1. & 61.1. John Baptist, say other, chap.40.3. the Prophet Esay, say others, who fore-told all this, see chap.61.1. But I conceive that no peculiar, or particular messenger, is here meant, but that the word is used collectively, messenger, for messengers: as Chap.40 9. and 52.6,7.

V.28. For I beheld, and there was no man even among them, and there was no counsellor, that when I asked of them, could answer a word] God here drawing to a conclusion of the controversie, concerning the Deity, or divine power of idols, and having formerly summoned all their proctors and patrons, to come in and plead for them, ver. 1, 21. doth now address himself to pass sentence, as a Judg, where none appeareth in behalf of the party questioned, neither himself, nor any for him, that since they are not able to produce ought in their own defence, nor any other, in their behalf; he therefore concludeth against them, that there is no matter of deity in them, but that they are meer vanity, counterfeit gods, and base idols, verse 29.

For I beheld] Heb. And I beheld: that is, But I looked about, as ch.31.2. Or, Now when I looked about, to see whether any would make appearance: as v.17 ch.30.20. & 35.4. &37.9,36. Psa.142.4. so afterward.

there was no man] Or, not any, ch.40.20. for it is used, not of man alone, but of any creature whatsoever.

even amongst them] As v.12. any of their idols. For I cannot agree with those, that understand it of Gods people: as chap.59.16. and 63.3. the whole course of the context runs another way.

no counsellor] None that could give any advice what was fit to be done, ch.45.21.

that when I asked of them, could answer a word] Heb. and I asked of them,and they returned(the same construction with that before) a word,or ought, Job 13. 22. Jer. 26. 2. Mat.22.46. the verb taken potentially: as Jer.2.23,32.

V.29. Behold, they are all vanity] Jer.10.3,15.

their molten images are wind and confusion] Molten images, distinguished from graven images, chap.48.5. but put here for images of all sorts, both the one, and the other, promiscuously, as Jer.10.14. & 51.17.

wind] Of no solidity, stability, efficacy, or utility; but such as cause much sorrow and vexation to those that have dealing with them, Psal.16.3. v.24. Jer.10.15. in regard whereof,they are sometime termed by a word that signifieth sorrow and pain, chap.10.10. and 48.5. like a puff of wind that passeth away, and cannot be held or kept, Psal.78.39. Prov.10.15. & 27.16. and blasteth, sometime, in its passage, Psalm 103.16. chap.40.7. Ezek.17.10. being no solid substance, cannot feed or nourish, Prov.11.29. Hos. 12. 1. yea, being inclosed in the body and bowels, not only affordeth no nutriment, and is a fit emblem, therefore, of labour in vain, whereof cometh no emolument, Eccles.5.16. Hos.8.7. but disturbeth digestion, hindreth concoction, and produceth, oft,pain, and torments intolerable, Chap.26.18.

confusion] Of this term, see on chap.24.10. & 34.11. & 40.17, 23.

CHAP. XLII.

Ver. 1. THis Chapter, and the two next ensuing, which together make up but one Sermon, are much of one subject, relating and fore-telling the blessings that God would confer upon his people; partly, by Cyrus, and partly, yea, principally by Christ; discovering the vanity of idols, and sottishness of idolaters; taxing his people for their incredulity, blindness, excesses, and obstinacy, the causes of their captivity; and yet promising pardon and restitution, upon their sincere repentance.

Behold my servant] The words of God the Father, speaking of Christ, as the Evangelist expoundeth and applieth it, Mat.12.18.so called, in regard of his humane nature,and office of Mediatorship, Chap.49.3. & 53.11. Phil 2.7. Rom. 15. 8. on whom are all the promises of God founded, Gen.22.18. and ratified in him, 2 Cor.1. 20. And of the Messias doth the Chaldee Paraphrast expound it,and some of the Jewish Commenters, after him. Howbeit,some of them expound it of Cyrus; which some of ours, also, but as a type of Christ, admit. See Chap.44.28. & 45.1. And if it be objected,that some things, hereafter spoken, will not agree to Cyrus,it is by them answered, that in the like Prophecies, some particulars agree to the type, and not to the truth: as Psalm 22.6. & 40. 12. Some to the truth, and not to the type: as Psalm 16.10. with Acts 2.29. and 13. 36,37. Or, to the type, in one sense, to the truth, in another. So in those Psalms, wherein David is a type of Christ: as Psalm 2.and 16. and 22. and those, in which Solomon: as Psalm 45. and 72. Some things are spoken, that must, of necessity, be understood of them, in one notion, of Christ, in another: of Pharao's daughter espoused to Solomon, and the Church, to Christ, the one typified by the other, Psalm 45. the same may be said. Others of them, again, understand it of Jacob, and Israel (which the ancient Greek, therefore, hath over-boldly thrust into the text)and the godly of his Posterity, because the term is so oft given unto them,Chap.41.8,9. and whom I uphold] Whom I am with, to strengthen, support, and enable him, unto the office and work that I have assigned him, Ch. 49.5,8. Christ principally,chapter 53.10. John 16.32.& 17.4.Cyrus, as a type of him,chapter 45.1,2,5. Or, as the Jewish Doctors read it,whom I lean upon: as Kings do on those that serve them, 2 Kings 5.18.& 7.2,13.whom I trust unto,or rely upon,for the performance of what I entrust him with: and this,also,many of ours admit.See of Christ,Heb.3.2. of Cyrus,chapter 44.28. But I find not where the word, here used, hath this notion; the former, very commonly and constantly,Exodus 17.12. Psalm 16.5.& 17.5.& 41.12.& 63.8.cha. 33.15.& 41. 10, 13. and to that, therefore, I adhere. Heb. I will uphold him; the demonstrative, for the relative: as chapter 33. 20, 21.

mine Elect] Or,choice one: the term is used of Moses,Psalm 106. 23.of Saul, 2 Samuel 21:6. of Israel and Jacob, and his Posterity, Psalm 105.6,43. & 106.5. chapter 43.20.& 45.4.& 65 9,15. See chapter 14.1.& 41.8,9. & 44.1,2. of Christ true, in a more special manner,set apart by God,for the work of mediation, chapter 43.10. John 6.27,29. & 10.36. 1 Peter 1.20. & 2.4. of Cyrus, as a type, designed for the deliverance of Gods people, chapter 44.28. & 45. 3, 4.

in whom my soul delighteth]Or,is well pleased;Deuteronomy 33. 11.24. Ezekiel 20.40. who alone is in special manner acceptable to me,Matthew 3.17.& 17.5. and no means of reconcilement,or free access to me,but by him,John 14.6. Ephesians 1.4,6. & 2. 14, 18. a defect of the relative: as Genesis 39 4.chapter 40.20. & 41.3.verse 51.and by a metaphorical respect had to man,his soul,for himself: as chapter 1.14. Amos 6.8. with Hebrews 6. 13. which yet may have some reference to Cyrus,in regard of the work done by him,and,by God, accepted of, for the good of his people, Chapter 45. 3, 4. and whom he is, therefore, said to affect. See Chapter 48. 14.

I have put my Spirit upon him] Or, on whom I have put my Spirit: the like defect, with that in the first branch. Of Christ, see chapter 11.2. and 61.1. John 1.33,34. and 3.34. of Cyrus, see Ezr. 1. 1. as of Sampson, Judges 13. 25. and of Saul, 1 Samuel 10. 9, 10.

he shall bring forth judgement to the Gentiles] He shall be their Governor, executing judgment upon them, and among them, calling, converting, conquering subduing,ruling,and over-ruling them by his Word and Spirit, Psalm 2.8. and 45.4,5. and 110.2. chapter 2.3,4. and 49. 6. Revelations 6. 2. and 19.11-16. So of Christ: Of Cyrus, as proclaiming Gods mind and purpose to all people, concerning the restitution of his people, and executing of his judgment on those that detained Gods people in captivity, and such as adhered to them, Ezra 1.1. See verse 3.

V.2. He shall not cry, nor lift up, nor cause his voice to be heard in the streets] Of Christ, some expound it, that he shall not come with noise and stir, or with pomp and state,as worldly Princes and Potentates are wont to do, but in a meek, still, quiet, and lowly manner, Zachary 9.9. Matthew 12.14,19. and 21.5. Others, that he shall not carry himself contentiously, and clamorously, with passion and perturbation; (for anger and clamour, go commonly together, Ephesians 4.31. and persons possessed with wrath and rage, are so loud, many times, that they may be heard abroad in the streets: therefore Matthew rendreth it, he shall not contend) but shall advisedly and considerately demean himselfe, and dispose things with tranquility and calmness of Spirit,chapter 11.2. (in which sense, also, some apply it to Cyrus) The Hebrew Commenters conceive it to have respect unto worldly Judges; who, in keeping Courts,are fain to speak with extention of voice and vehemency, to cause men to keep silence, and attend to their dooms; which the Messias shall not need, men being of themselves ready to hear and obey him, though speaking calmly and quietly to them,Genesis 49.10. 1Kings 19.12. Psalm 18.44,45. Chapter 2.3.

lift up] his voice: to be supplied from the following branch; as chapter 30.17. So verse 11. Yet some of the Rabbines supply, face: He shall not lift up faces. That is, He shall not respect the person of any,Exodus 23.3. Deuteronomy 16.19.2 Chronicles 19.7.Matthew 22.16. Romanes 2.8-11. But the former seems the plain and genuine sense of the place.

V.3. A bruised reed he shall not break, and the smoaking flax shall he not quench:] Either, as the Jewish Commenters, he shall not tyrannize over, but nourish and cherish the poor and feeble ones, such are wont,by great ones, to be oppressed,Psalm 72. 2, 4,12-14. Ezek.34.21,22. Or, as most of ours, he shall not deal roughly and rigorously with weak and tender souls,but shall support and strengthen them, deal mildly and gently with them,and be tender-hearted towards them, chapter 40.11,29-31. Ezek.34.24. Some apply it to Cyrus, as an instrument of delivering and rescuing Gods then poor and feeble ones, as a shepherd his sheep, out of the hands of their oppressors, and from those countries, into which, by their cruelty,they had been scattered,chapter 44 28. and 45.13. Ezek.34.4. 6,12,13.

a bruised reed] Or,cane. An embleme of inability, and imbecility: See chapter 36.6.

the smoaking flax] Flax, that is, a weik of flax; as flax, for, strings, or, threds of flax, Judges 15. 14. And so fully, threds of tow, Judges 16.9. smoking; having more smoke, then light, chapter 50.10. or, burning dimly; almost spent, and ready to go out; as those that are dim-sighted, and can hardly see, having almost lost their eye-sight, of whom the word is used, Genesis 27.1. 1 Samuel 3.2. Zechariah 11.17.

not quench] As chapter 43.17. Heb. not quench it: a redundancy: as Genesis 2.17. Matthew 21.41. He shall not blow out, but blow up, raise, trim, supply, snuff, and make to burn brighter, Exodus 27. 21. 1 Samuel 3.3. The positive implyed in the privative, as in the branch fore-going.

he shall bring forth judgment unto truth] Though he favour the weak, yet shall he not spare the wicked, but judge according to truth and equity, Exodus 23.2,3,6. Leviticus 19.15. Deuteronomy 16.20. chapter 11.3,4. John 7.24. See verse 1,4. truth is used sometime for, equity and fidelity, Judges 9.16. chapter 38. 3. and 48. 1. sometime, for the due and ful performance of ought, Joshua 2. 12. 2 Samuel 7. 28. Iohn 1.14,17. It may well be taken either way here.

V.4. He shall not fail, nor be discouraged, until he have set judgement in the earth] He shall not faint, nor be disheartned, in regard of those difficulties that shall encounter him, in his pursuit of the work enjoyned him, but go on couragiously,until he have dispatcht it: See Iohn 17.4. Hebrews 12.2,3. See also chapter 45.1,2,5,13. The Evangelist rendreth it, Matthew 12. 20. until he bring forth judgement unto victory. That is, until he have overcome all oppositions that he shall meet withal, in the execution of the judgement to be executed by him, according to Gods purpose and appointment; and subdued all the enemies and oppressors of Gods people. This of Christ, see Romanes 8.36. and 16.20. 1 Corinthians 15. 25. Revelations 3. 21. and 6. 2. Of Cyrus, chapter 44. 28. and 45.1.

fail] As a Lamp, or Taper, doth when it is even spent, and the oyl, or wax, that fed it, faileth. For it is the same word that was of a weik,verse 3. And some, therefore, expound it of seeing clearly, and discerning things aright in judgment, chapter 11.2,3 See Deuteronomy 34.7. Zechariah 11. 17. And they expound the whole passage thus, He shall be neither misled by ignorance and mistake, nor forced aside through fear. But I conceive the former here intended, when men faint, their eye-sight faileth, 1 Samuel 14.29. Lam.5.17. For they are wide, who expound it,He shall do nothing in passion, or anger; because of that, Psalm 6. 7. For the word there signifieth, not anger, but grief; as Eccl.7.3.

be discouraged] Heb. be broken. The same word that was used of a reed, or cane, verse 3. or,bruised. For it differeth somewhat from broken, verse 3. and it is used in a notion of oppression, 1 Samuel 12. 3,4. chapter 58.6. Hosea 5.11. Amos 4. 1. whence some here expound it actively; He shall not oppress. But the word is used passively, in the former sense, Ecclesiastes 12.6. Others, He shall not run; referring it to another root, and expounding it, either of timidity and cowardise, that setteth men on running, chapter 21.14,15. Jeremiah 48.9. or of temerity and turbulency, that maketh men run on head, Iob 5.13. Proverbs 19 2. and so the meaning should be; He shall do all things considerately and advisedly, not hastily, or rashly: See verse 2. But I concurre rather with the first.

until] This particle is here taken, not in way of determination. as if he should then begin to faint and fail, though not before; as Genesis 24.19,33. and 27.44. and 49.10. 1 Samuel 1. 22. Psalm 132.5. chapter 36.17. but in way of continuation; that so long he should persist and hold out, without fainting or failing; there being no needful mention of not fainting, or failing, any longer, then till then; because from thence forward, all difficulties being now utterly removed, there could be no suspition, or fear of ought in that kind. So Genesis 28.15. Psalm 71.18.Canticles 3.4.chapter 22.14. Matthew 1.25. and 13 33.

set judgement] Setled things in due sort, according to Gods appointment.

in the earth] Or, on the earth, here below: as Psalm 135. 6. Matthew 6. 10. and 18. 18. Or, in the land, to wit,of Gods people, as distinguished from other nations, mentioned in the next clause. So chapter 4. 2. and 14.2. and 16.1. and 19. 24. But whether way we take it, I cannot assent unto that late learned Annotator, who, by judgement, understanding condemnation, (as the like term is used,Iohn 5.24,29.) would have the words to be rendred,until he lay condemnation along on the ground: as some, saith he, are said to lay justice on the ground, Hosea 10.7. that is, until he hath utterly abandoned and abolished it. But this sense seemeth too coact, nor to fit so well in this place.

and the Iles shall wait for his Law] The Iles, or, Lands: as verse 10. chapter 41.1. and 51.5. and lands, for, people, or, nations: as chapter 37.18. Not the Iewes onely, but the Gentiles also:the people of divers countries, shall willingly, and readily receive and embrace his doctrine and dictates. Law,for, doctrine: as chapter 1.10. See Genesis 49 10. Psalm 18.43,44. chapter 2.3,4. Acts 2.42.and 13.48. and 14.1.

V.5. Thus saith God the Lord] The former word signifies might and power: and so the Greek, sometime: as Exodus 20 5.and some of of ours constantly expresseth it, the mighty God: though that in a version need not, no more then for us, in english, to say ever, for God, the good God; albeit the term of God be deemed, not without good ground, to come from the word, good. Of the latter, see on ch. 1. 2. verse 8. This large description of God is here inserted, as well to intimate his ability to go thorow with whatsoever he undertakes, as his fidelity in making good all his promises.

he that created the heavens] Or, heaven: see ch. 1. 1. Gen. 1. 1. ch. 40. 26. & 48. 13. Zach. 12. 1.

and stretched them out] Or, it: as a curtain, or canopy, Psa. 104. 2. ch. 40. 22.

he that spread forth the earth] Made it appear above the water wherein it lay, as buried and drowned before, Gen. 1. 9. Psa. 136. 6. ch. 40. 28, & 44. 24. 2 Pet. 3. 3. The same word that is used of the sky that over-spreadeth the earth, Gen. 1. 6. 8.

and that which cometh out of it] Heb. the off-springs, or, the proceeds of it: as ch. 34. 1. See Gen. 1. 11.

he that giveth breath unto the people upon it, and spirit to them that walk therein] Or, thereon; rather; as verse 4. breath, and spirit of life, Genesis 2. 7. & 6. 17. Proverbs 24. 27. Job 33. 4. Acts 17. 25, 28.

V. 6. I the Lord have called thee] Christ my Son, and Servant, Psa. 2. 8. Heb. 5. 4, 5. See ver. 1.

in righteousness] In a just and righteous course; or, in faithfulness, to fulfil my promise, ch. 1. 27. & 46. 13. Acts 13. 23, 32, 33. See cha. 41. 2. & 45. 13.

and will hold thine hand] To direct and assist thee, Psa. 16. 8. & 73. 23, 24. ch. 41. 13. & 42. 1. & 45. 1.

and will keep thee] From miscarrying, Psalm 17. 8. and 91. 11. ch. 49. 2.

and give thee for a covenant of the people] To be a Mediator and a ratifier of the covenant, plighted between me and my people the Jews, Gen. 17. 4, 17. & 22. 18. Deut. 5. 3. & 29. 10-12. ch. 49. 8. Rom. 15. 8. 2 Cor. 1. 20. Hebr. 7. 22. & 12. 24.

for a light of the Gentiles] Or, to the Gentiles. To comfort and cheer them up, as light is cheerful and delightful, Eccl. 11. 9. Psal. 27. 1. Or to bring them out of spiritual darkness, into the light of grace and life, ch. 9. 2. and 49. 6. Luke 2. 32. Acts 13. 47. and 26. 18, 23. Col. 1. 13. Or, to go before them, and conduct them in the way that tends and leads to life eternal, Luke 2. 32. A metaphor taken from such as go before passengers, journeying in the dark, with a light: or to the pillar, that by night, conducted the children of Israel in the desart, Exod. 13. 21, 22. Num. 9. 15. and 10. 33. Psal. 105. 39.

V. 7. To open the blinde eyes] To illighten the minds of those that were, by nature, spiritually blind, with the sound knowledg of saveing truth, ch. 35. 5. Acts 26. 18. 2 Cor. 4. 4, 6. Eph. 1. 18. and 4. 18, 19. Rev. 3. 18.

to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison-house] The same thing, in divers terms repeated, to deliver them from the thraldome of sin and satan, whereof their captivity in Babylon, was a type, ch. 45. 13. and 49. 9. and 61. 1. Zach. 9. 11. Luke 4. 18. Rom. 6. 6, 14. Col. 1. 13. 2 Tim. 2. 26. Tit. 2. 14. Heb. 2. 14, 15.

prisoners] Heb. prisoner. But taken collectively: as Psa. 79. 11. & 102. 20. chap. 10. 4. and 24. 22. properly, a bound one, Psalm 68. 6. Whence also the prison-house is called as house of bond, or, bonds, Jer. 37. 15.

prison] Heb. closure: or house of closure: or, shutting up: as Psalm 142. 5. ch. 24. 22. where the notation of the word is, closure: for an house, or place of enclosure, as restraint, for an house, or place of restraint, 2 Kings 25. 29. Jer. 52. 33.

prison-house] Heb. house, or, place, (for the word is in Hebrew, a very general term, Job 8. 17. 2 Sam. 15. 17. Psalm 84. 3. Prov. 8. 2. Ezek. 1. 27.) of restraint: as 1 Kings 22. 27. 2 Kings 17. 4. Jer. 37. 4. and 52. 31. verse 22. It is used with an ellipsis either way, sometime, house, or, place alone; as some take it, chapter 14. 17. sometime, restraint alone, for house, or, place of restraint; as above.

V. 8. I am the Lord, that is my name] Or, This, to wit, Jehovah, Exod. 15. 3. Is my name. Psalm 83. 18. the name, whereby I am, and will be discerned, and distinguished, as having my being of my self, from all idols, and false gods, that have their being from others, Exo. 3. 14. Deut. 6. 4. 1 Kings 19. 21, 22. And thereby I will also, in a more special manner, be known to my people, in making good all my gracious promises to them for their good, Exod. 6. 3. For the Talmudists, and those that follow them, are here most ridiculous, who read the words, He is my name; and thence coin us a new name of God, which they use in some of their prayers: as they do also Aphu, from 2 Kings 2. 4. Whereas the word signifies no more then this, or, that, here; he also, there.

and my glory will I not give to another, nor my praise to graven images] I am jealous of my glory, and will not suffer it, therefore, to be imparted to any other, but will severely avenge my self on any that shall so do, Exod. 20. 5. Deut. 4. 15-19, 23, 24. Or, I will not suffer my glory to be impaired, as it would be, should I faile in the performance of any of my predictions, or promises, and sogive idolatrous occasion to advance their idols above me. See chapter 48. 11.

to another] To any other, simply. Or, to any other (that is, strange: as Mar. 16. 17.) another, for, another god: or, a strange god: as Psalm 16. 4. A defect of the substantive, (as ch. 43. 1 2.) taken collectively in either.

graven images] For images of all sorts. See on chapter 41. 29.

V. 9. Behold the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare: before they spring forth I tell you of them] As in times past I have been true in my promises, so will I be for time to come, Josh. 7. 5. and 23. 3, 5. 1 Kings 8. 23-25. Or, as my predictions to Ezekiah, concerning the Babylonian deportation fo long before delivered, have already been effected. So now I fore-tel other things, concerning the downfal of Babylon, and the deliverance of my people, temporally, by Cyrus; spiritually, by Christ; long before any seeds, or signs of either, appear. That which before he challenged any of their false gods to do; and whereby he confirmeth his owne divine power, and convinceth them as counterfeits. See chap. 41. 22-24, 26, 28, 29.

spring forth] Or, bud out, Gen. 2. 5. And as there, when no sight of any such matter yet appeared, or meanes that might produce it.

tell you] Heb. make you hear; as ch. 41. 26.

V. 10. Sing unto the Lord a new song;] A new song. That is, say some, an excellent one: or rather, a new song, of a new matter, for a new mercy, upon a new occasion. For it hath reference to those new matters, mentioned, verse 9. See ch. 43. 19. Jer. 31. 22. Psalm 32. 7. and 33. 3. and 96. 1. and 98. 1.

and his praise from the end of the earth] Or, from the lands ends: as Psalm 72. 8. ch. 24. 16. Either from all parts, where Gods people remained as exiles, as ch. 11. 12. or where Babylon had exercised here rigor, ch. 14. 5-7, 16, 17.

ye that go down to sea] That are employed in shipping, as merchants, or, as mariners, Psalm 107. 23. Let all praise God every where, both by Sea and land, Psalm 96. 11, 12.

and all that is therein] Heb. the fulnes thereof: as Psalm 96. 11. and 98. 7. Yet not fishes, but men, that trade and traffick there. For that seems over-nice that some here have, that the Ilands themselves should be called the filling of the sea, as being set in the sea, like pearls, or precious stones, in the hollow of a ring, or other jewels: Because of such the word is sometime used, Exod. 25. 7. and 28. 17.

the Iles, and the Inhabitants thereof] Or, lands, as verse 4. or, sea-coasts, and those that border upon the sea: as Chapter 24. 15.

V. 11. Let the wilderneſs, and the cities thereof, lift up their voice] See the like defect, verse 2. See chapter 35. 1.

the villages that Kedar doth inhabit] The Arabians, or Ishmaelites that dwelt in scattered villages, or in tents, Gen. 25. 13, Chap. 21. 17.

let the Inhabitants of the rock sing] Or, of Petra, the chief city of Arabia: See Chapter 16. 1.

let them shout from the top of the mountains] That is, as some, those that are most savage, such as Mountaineers commonly are, Jer. 3. 2. but to be civilized under the Kingdom of Christ, chapter 2. 4. and 11. 6-9. Others think it an allusion to those Sentinels, or, watch-towers, situate on the tops of high hills, or other eminencies, from whence messengers used to call people together, to acquaint them with what good tidings they brought. See chapter 40. 9.

top] Heb. head: as chapter 2. 1.

V. 12. Let them give glory to the Lord, and declare his praise in the Ilands] Or, Lands, or Countries: See verse 10.

V. 13. The Lord shall go forth] To wit, to war against the enemies of his people: See chapter 37. 36.

as a mighty man] Or, a mighty one: so Job 16. 14. Psalme 78. 65.

he shall stir up jealousie] Or, his jealousie; that is, his raging wrath, and fierce indignation, Prov. 6. 34. so Deut. 19. 20. chapter 59. 17. fitly termed jealousie, because proceeding from a vehement and ardent affection, both of love to his people, and regard to his own honor, Deut. 4. 19. chapter 37. 32. Zach. 1. 14. a defect of the pronoun; as chapter 40. 12. he will set with much fury and fierceness upon them: See Psalm 78. 38.

like a man of war] Heb. a man of wars, as 1 Chronicles 28. 3. a man much exercised in wars, that hath fought many battels; See Exodus 15. 3.

he shall cry] Or, shout, Psalm 78. 65. as military men use to do, in giving the onset, in joyning battel in the field, or on-slaught in the assault of a City: See Jer. 48. 33. Amos 1. 14.

yea, roar,] Like a mighty fierce Lion, that breaketh in with violence upon the flock; and with his hideous roaring, affrighteth both sheep and shepherd, Amos 1. 2. and 3. 8. or, make an hideous cry; for the word that signifieth roaring properly, is another, this is no where found, but here, and Zeph. 1. 14. and imports a louder and more hideous cry, then the shout before-mentioned.

he shall prevail against his enemies] Or, behave himself mightily, or, play the valiant man, Job 13. 25. See Psalm 118. 15, 16.

V. 14. I have long time holden my peace, I have been still, and refrained my self] Or, I have restrained my self, for there is no copulative in the text: so chap. 41. 16. The words of God himself, (in regard whereof, some prefix the word, saying, as Psalm 105. 15. Acts 7. 32.) professing, that he had long forborn to execute judgment, and take vengeance in the behalf of his people, (as Psalm 50. 21. and 83. 1.) restraining his wrath, (ch. 48. 9. & 62. 1.) like a woman in travel, striving to hold in her breath; for the next branch seems to imply some allusion thereunto, see Jeremiah 44. 22. the word is used of Joseph, Genesis 43. 21 & 45. 1.

long time] Heb. from an age. So Genesis 6. 4. Jeremiah 5. 15.

now will I cry like a travelling woman] Or, cry out; (the word is no where else found) as a woman in pain, that being not able to hold her breath any longer, cryeth out in her travel, and can have no ease, or rest, untill the be delivered, Chap. 26. 17. Rev. 12. 2. Hence, some would have one of the Hebrew Midwives, in Egypt, named Pua, Exodus 1 15. which may not be altogether improbable, because they are conversant about women, in such cases; or rather, because with much cry, her mo her had been delivered of her; as Jabez his mother, of him, with much pain, 1 Chr. 4. 9.

I will destroy, and devour at once] Heb. swallow down: as Job 5. 5. or, sup up, as Jeremiah 2. 24. and 14. 6. An allusion to such ravenous wilde beasts, as do so suddenly swallow down what they have slain, that they may seem to go quick down their throats, or to be slain, and swallowed at once, Psalm 124. 3. yet because the former word signifies, properly, to lay waste, or, make desolate, some apply the former word, to the lands, or countries, the latter to the Inhabitants, See Ezek. 36. 3. where both words are joyned together, as here.

V. 15. I will make waste mountains, and hills, and dry up all their herbs] The herbage that the mountains afford to man and beast, Psalm 50. 10, 11. and 65. 12. & 72. 3, 15. and 104. 13, 14. & 147. 8. The meaning is, he will lay desolate the whole country of Chaldea, and of those that were adjacent and adjutant to it, Chapter 13. 9. Accomplished by Cyrus, in his expedition against Babylon. He compareth the vengeance that he intendeth to execute upon Babylon, to a devouring fire, that consumeth all before it. See Deut. 32. 22. Psalm 83. 13. & 97. 3. Joel 2. 3. They seem to wring the text needlessly, who by mountains, and hills, here understand cities and towns, by the herbs, their inhabitants. and I will make the rivers Ilands, and will dry up the pools] ch. 50. 2. It was so done by Cyrus, in the siege of Babylon, See Jer. 50. 38. & 51. 32.

Ilands] Or, dry lands, as Jer 47. 4 verse 10.

V. 16. And I will bring the blind by a way, that they knew not, I will lead them in paths that they have not known] Meant: partly, of the Jewish people, that had lived so long in grief and perplexity, that their very ey-sight seemed to fail them, with long expectation, for their tore-promised deliverance; (as Psalm 6. 7. & 31. 9. & 38. 10. & 119. 81, 82, 123. Lam. 4. 17. & 5. 17.) and whom, after their deliverance, God would bring home into their own country, by such ways, as they had not gone, nor been acquainted with, before, chap. 43. 19. & 49. 9, 11. Jer. 31. 9. & 50. 5. as he did before time, in their passage from Egypt to Canaan, Jer. 2 17. partly of those converts, either Jew, or Gentile, who being by nature blind, but illightened by the Spirit of grace, Cha. 35. 5. & 43. 8. John 9. 13, 17. 2 Cor. 4. 5, 6. Ephe. 1. 18. & 4. 18. & 5. 8. Hebr. 6. 4. & 10. 30. Rev. 3. 17, 18. should be entred into, and led on, in a new way, that tended to life and peace, Chap. 11. 16. & 35. 8. Luke 1. 79. Heb. 10. 10. such a way, as they had never walked in, nor had heard of, before, John 14. 6. Rom. 15. 20. a defect of the relative; as Psalm 81. 5. Prov. 5. 6. cha 55. 5. Jer. 5. 15.

lead] Or, make to go: so Psalm 25. 5. & 107. 7. Prov. 4. 11. Chapter 48. 17.

I will make darkneſs light before them] Torn their adversity into prosperity, say some, and so the metaphor is oft used, Esther 8. 16, 17. Psalm 112. 4. but because the speech is of a way the meaning is, rather, of making their passage cleer, thorow obscure and dark places; as with light he went before his people, in their journey, through the wilderneſſe, Exodus 13. 21. for the spiritual sense, of directing the godly thorow the dark and blind ways of this world; see Psalm 89. 15. chapter 11. 1. John 8. 12. & 12. 35. Eph. 5. 8. 1 John 1. 5, 6.

and crooked things straight] Heb. into straightneſs; or, turn uneven ways into a plain. I will remove all the impediments that may impeach their free passage. So ch. 40. 41. & 45. 2.

These things will I do unto them] Or, for them, Chapter 26. 12.

and not forsake them] But as well conduct them, and bring them safe home, as deliver them out of thraldome. See chap. 41. 17.

V. 17. They shall be turned back, they shall be greatly ashamed, that trust in graven images, that say to molten images, Ye are our gods] The Idolatrous people shall be utterly confounded; when they finde how unable their forry gods are to save them; and see what the true God hath done for his, Psalm 97. 7. Chap. 1. 27. & 44. 11. & 45. 15.

be turned back] As men that are forced to flee, and turn their backs in fight, to their foes, Joshua 7. 8. Psalm 44. 10. or, that turn their faces back, from being seen, for shame; 40. 14. & 129. 5. or that shuffle, and traverse their ways, out of shame and repentance for what they have done, ler 2. 18, 36, 37. or that turn back, with shame, the same way they came, when they fail of their expectation, Psalm 6. 10. ch 37 29, 37.

greatly ashamed] Heb. be ashamed with shame, Jer. 6. 15. but here, by way of intention; there or diminution graven, and molten images] See chapter 41 20.

Ye are our gods] Exodus 32. 4 chapter 41 15, 17. Jer. 2. 26, 27. Hosea 14. 3.

V 18. Hear ye deaf, and look ye blind, that ye may see] These words some suppose to be spoken to the Gentiles, blinded with fottish superstition, and erroneous conceits concerning their idols; and that notwithstanding what they had heard, and seen of the true God, in the behalf of his people, in despight of their idols, chapter 40. 21. & 44 18 20. Jer. 10. 14. But most take them, as spoken to the Jews themselves, of whom many still continued such, notwithstanding all that from time to time they had heard, and seen, concerning God, and the wonderous works wrought by him, Jer. 4. 22. Eze. 12. 2. Chapter 6. 9.

V. 19. Who is blind, but my servant, or deaf, as my messenger, that I sent? who is blind, as he that is perfect? and blind, as the Lords servant?] This some understand, as spoken in way of correction of, or diversion from what he had spoken before, verse 18. as if he should say, what do I blame and tax the Gentiles for their deafnesse and blindnesse, when as mine own people and their leaders, also, are herein as bad and defective as any. See the like, chapter 28. 1-7. Mat. 15. 14. 16. But the most, by way of confirmation, as rending a reason, why he gave his own people these titles because they deserved them as well, yea, rather, then any other. See verse 20. Rom. 11. 25. 2 Corinthians 3. 14.

my servant] Israel, who should have more light, and better sight, then other people, having the light of my Law among them, Psalm 19. 7, 8. & 119 105, 130. Prov. 7 23. Psalm 147. 19, 20. Rom. 3. 1, 2. See verse 21.

my messenger] Collectively taken for messengers: as Ch. 40. 9. & 41. 27. their Prophets and teachers, that should be Gods messengers to hear from God, and declare to his people, what from him they have heard, Deut. 33. 10. Mal. 2. 7, 8. 2 Cor 5. 20.

that I send] A defect of the relative; as verse 16.

he that is perfect] The Priests, and Prophets, that should be unblameable, and of better abilities, then the common sort of men, that they might be lights and types to others, John 5. 35. 1 Tim. 3. 2. & 4. 12. Titus 2. 7. but were, many of them, blind and bad guides, Chap. 3. 12. & 28. 7. & 56. 10, 11. Matthew 15. 14. & 23. 16, 17, 19. or Gods people in general, whom by his gifts and favours, wherewith he had furnished them, he had made compleat, Ezek. 16. 14. and ought to have been perfect, as God their Father, whose children they professed themselves to be, is perfect, Gen. 17. 1. Deut. 18. 13. & 32. 4, 5. Matthew 5. 48 John 10 41. Hence some suppose the Turks to be called Muſſalmans, as perfect ones; though others, as reconciled, or saved. Howbeit, Others render the word here, he that hath been recompenced, or rewarded; or, on whom many benefits have been bestowed; (for the word sometime signifieth simply, to deal well, or ill, with one, Psalm 7 4. Joel 3 25. the Jewish people, on whom God had conferred so many blessings above any other people, Exodus 19, 4, 5. Deut. 4. 7. Amos 3 2.

as the Lords servant] In a special manner. See Chapter 41. 8.

V. 20 Seeing many things, but observest not, opening the ears, but he heareth not] Deuteronomy 29. 4. chapter 6. 9.

Seeing] Or, Seeing he seeth, and so after, opening, he openeth; a defective, but emphatical form; as if he should say, he seeth well enough, and heareth his ears wide open. See verse 22.

many things] So many wonderful works of God wrought for you, and among you, Deut. 4 3, 4.

but] Heb. And; as Chapter 29. 13. and so in the next branch.

observest not] Dost not duly consider them, as a wise people would do, Psalm 106. 7. & 107. 43. Chapter 1. 3. Some seem to understand it, of obliviation in practice; as Rom. 2. 19-23. but the former seems more probable, as the peculiar office, for which the mind makes use of the eye: there is a defect of the pronoun: as Chapter 41. 15.

opening the ears] Listening, in shew, at least, as if they did hearken, and desire to hear and attend, ch. 58. 2. Jer. 42. 2, 5, 6. Ezek. 14. 1, 3. & 33 30, 31.

he heareth not] No more regardeth, or observeth, then as if he heard not at all. Ezek. 33. 32. heareth with the outward ear, but not with the inward: Of which, chap. 50. 4, 5. Matthew 13. 9-14; there is a transition from person to person; as if God spake in the first place to some of them; as by way of reproof in the latter, to others of them, as in way of complaint. See chap.29.Jer.6.16.& 7.26.

V. 21. The Lord is well pleased for his righteousnesse sake, he will magnifie his law, and make it honourable] Or, to magnifie his law, and make it honourable. The like syntax is, 1 Samuel 2.3.Prov. 23. 35 Eccl.10.1. Hosea 1.6.& 9. 9. Gods pleasure is to magnifie and honour his law,as well by execution of justice upon the transgressors of it, as by making good his promises unto those that observe it, Deut.29.19,20.& 32.47.& 33.2. Or, as some other read it,God was pleased for the making of him (to wit, that people)righteous, to give him a great(a large, or excellent) Law (that is, many precious instructions and precepts)to make him illustrious,Deut.4.7,8.Or, as others, again, God delighted in him (set his love and affection upon him,Psalm 149.4.ch.62.4.)for his righteousnesse sake; his fidelity,v. 6.in fulfilling his promises made to their Fathers,Deut.7.8.He magnified and dignified him with his Law, Psalm 147. 19, 20.cha.43.4. Rom.3. 2. there is a defect of the pronoun, it, in the first of these; as Chapter 41.23. and his as verse 13. and so also in the third, of him; in the second and third: as Hosea 6. 3. in the third,also,of the preposition,with;as Psalm 17.13,14.The first and last,seem most probable, to me, especially, the last.

V.22. But this is a people robbed and spoiled] Or,*Yet.*Heb. And: as chap.19.2. Yet after all these favours and honours conferred upon them, see what calamities and miseries are now befallen them, for their neglect of God, and their wilful obstinacy against him and his precepts,v.19,24.who hath therefore exposed them to direption and thraldome, without relief or release,hitherto: For he speaks, as to the Jewish people, yet remaining in thraldome, ch. 10.6.& 28.13. howbeit, some expound this of the Samaritans, or ten Tribes, then in captivity, when this was spoken, without hope of release, or returne. See 2 Kings 17.

spoiled] Or, trodden down: chapter 17. 14. See the last branch.

they are all of them snared in holes, and they are hidden in prison-houses] They are taken, as beasts or birds, in snares and pit-falls, Psalm 35.7.and 124.7. Chapter 8.15,16.and 28.13. Lamentations4. 20.Ezekiah 17.20.& 19.4,8,9.and cast into Dungeons,where they remain in strict custody,as close prisoners, Pl.88.8.ch.24.17.Lam.3. 2, 6, 7.

snared] Or,ensnaring, he hath ensnared, all of them: as verse 20 .ch.59.13.Jer.14.Eze.14. so is the word taken,*Pr.*29.8.that is,they are all fast enfnared: either by Gods as verse 24.Lam.3.6,7.Or, by the enemy: as 2 Kings 25.5,7.for the verb is here taken indefinitely: as Chap.18.5. they are kept manacled and fettered. as birds, or beasts, ensnared, Psalm 107. 20. howbeit, a learned late Writer would have it rendred, they lie all of them: from another root that so fignifies,Ier.4.31. but the former is more regular.

in holes] Or, dungeons under ground; an allusion to such pits or holes in the ground, as either are made to catch beasts in, or that beasts themselves use to harbour in, 1 Sam.4.11.Job 30.6.chap.11. 8.Ezek.19.8. Nah. 2.12. Yet some read it, in enfnaring the young men; or,choice ones, all of them:supposing the word here used, to be the same with that, 1 Sam. 9.2.chap.40.30. but the Jewish Commenters, generally, make it two words, and render it, as our text doth, and as the course of the context evidently leadeth: Onely they acknowledge the alteration of one title, from the usual pointing of it: and unde.stand it, some of them, of such holes and caves, as for succour and safety they had betaken themselves unto,to shroud and shelter themselvesin: See Judges 6.2. 1 Sam. 13.6.ch.19.2.1. where yet they should be surprized: but the former is more agreeable to what followeth.

hidden] Enclosed, or close shut up: as Joshua 10. verse 16,18.

in prison-houses] Heb.houses of restraint:or, of persons restrained. See verse 7. they are for a prey, and none delivereth: for a spoil, and none saith, Restore] They are in a strait captivity, and none either by word or deed, endeavoureth to right or release them, Chapter 14.17.

a spoil]Or, a treading: but the former, rather, here: for the word following:so Jer.30.16.

saith, Restore] As Gen.20.7.2 Kings 8.6.

V.23.Who among you will give ear to this? who will hearken, and hear, for time to come?] To amend and reform himself,and to grow wiser and warier, from time to time, by the present afflictions: considering from whom and for what they come,Jer.9.12,Mic. 6.9.Or, as some, by looking backward on judgments formerly Inflicted, Joshua 22.17.Neh.13.18.Zach.1.5,6.Or, as others,again: how few are there, that hearing these judgments denounced, do, for the preventing, or averting of them, timely reform themselves, 2 Chr.36. 15,16.Jer.5.12.

for time to come]Heb. for after: Or, for backward: as chapter 1. 4.

V.24.who gave Jacob for a spoil, and Israel to the robbers?] Jacob and Israel,the same:as ch.41.8. See verse 22.

did not the Lord, he against whom we have sinned?]Or, had sinned: See Judges 2.11————14.and 3.12.& 4.1,2.2 Chro. 36. 16.

for they would not walk in his ways, neither were they obedient to his law]Heb. And: which may well stand,as continuing the sentence: and would not walk in his ways, nor obey his law. Howbeit,the copulative is sometime used for the causative: for, or because: as chap.64.5.or the disjunctive, yet; as verse 20,25. and so it is an aggravation of their sin,by their obstinacy and senselessness under it,ch. 57.1,17. Jer.5.3.

be obedient]Heb.hearken:as 1 Samuel 15.22.Psalm 81.11.

V.25.Therefore hath he powred upon him the furie of his anger,and the strength of battle]Therefore, in the fervour and fiercenesse of his wrath, did he send in a powerful enemy upon him,that,with fire and sword, over-ran him and his countrey, and destroyed all on every side,2 Kings 23.32.& 24. & 25.

Therefore]Heb. And; as Chapter 37.20,27.& 38.20.

he powred out] As Psalm 79.6. Jer.10. 25. an allusion to great storms, that pour down such spouts of rain, as those in the Levant Seas, and in Egypt, where a whole cloud,sometime,suddenly dissolving,doth not drip, or defend in drops, (that is effamed a prodigy with them,) but falleth flat down, in a violent manner, with a continued stream: Or,unto the pouring of water out of some great vessel; not by small parcels, as in watering of grounds in a gentle manner; but violently, all at once, in an instant, Rev.16.1.See 1 Samuel 7. 6.

the furie of his anger] Or, his anger with fervour;or in heat,or,(as others keeping more strictly to the order of the terms in the text) fervour in his anger: a want of the preposition:as verse 21.ch. 41.2. Else the word entire is used in regiment, as sometime, for the contrast. See Jer.10.10.for our version taketh it; and then it would be rendred,the heat of his anger,word for word, of his nose. See ch.13.9. & 51.17.

strength of battle]Or,war,chapter 21.15 & 36.1.

and it hath set him on fire round about]See city and country,all on a light fire,chapter 9.18,19.Jer.39.8.& 52.13.

yet he knew not]Heb.And,as verse 20,22.) he knew not, he took no notice of it:as chapter 1.3.Jer.3.13. Hos.7.9.a defect of the pronoun it,as verse 21.and so in the last clause.

and it burnt him]Or,and though it burnt him:a defect of the latter particle; chapter 30.20.Job 19.26,Prov.29.19. Some refer the former to the country round about the city; this, to the city it self, Jeremiah 37.8.

Yet he laid it not to heart] Heb. upon heart: as Job 22. 22. their extream stupidity, not sensible of, or effected with Gods judgments present upon them; nor repenting of their sins, though scorched with the fire of Gods wrath for them,Ier. 35.3. Amos 4.11.Revelations 9.18——21. & 16.8——11.

CHAP. XLI.

Verse 1. BUT now] Or, Yet now. Heb. And now: as Chapter 42.22,25. Which entrance, the weth, that this Chapter hath dependance upon the former; and, that therein the Prophet continueth on his discourse, begun in the former: as, also, the same thereby appears to be held on in the next. See chapter 44.1. It is, as if he had said, Though a great part of my people, yea, the main body of them continue still, notwithstanding my wrath thus poured forth upon them, thus obstinate and impenitent,chapter 42. 25.yet will I have care of my chosen ones among them, whom I will protect.and in my due time, restore. Or,as some, though the other ten Tribes continue in thraldome, and are like still so to do; yet have I more special care of you, my people. See chapter 42.22.But the former agreeth better with the main course of the context.

Thus saith the Lord, that created thee, O Jacob: and he that formed thee, O Israel] Who at first made thee, and moulded thee into 2 National Church and State, at the bringing thee out of Egypt, Chapter 37. 11 and 41. 8————10. and 44. 1, 2. Jacob and Israel, one, and the same; as Chapter 41. 8. yet, here, taken, not for the promiscuous multitude; as Chapter 42. 24. but for the true Israel, the Israel of God, Psalm 125,4,5.John 1.47.Rom.9.6.Gal.6.16. the rather, termed by the name of Jacob and Israel:because the whole illue of Jacob were comprehended in the Covenant,Deut.33.5,28,29.Rev.7.4. where Ismael and Esau, with their illue, lost their interest therein, Gen.17.21.and 21.12.& 25.34.Galatians 4.30 Hebrews 12.17.

for I have redeemed thee]Chapter 41.14.and 44.22.

I have called thee by thy name] I have taken speciall notice of thee, and have a speciall care of thee: as Exodus 33. 17. chapter 40.26. Psalm 147. 4. Or, I have chosen thee, and called thee to be my people, and by that title, distinguished thee from all other people, Exodus 19.5,6. Chapter 1.9. and 42.6. So Exodus 31. 30. For that seems too slight, that some would have to be the meaning, that God gave Jacob the name of Israel, Genesis 32. 28.

thou art mine]Chapter 41.8,9.So Psalm 119.94.and this consummeth the latter exposition, of the former words, thou art mine, both because I have made thee, Psalm 100.3.and because I have bought thee, 1 Cor. 6. 20. and because I have called thee out, and called and taken thee to my selfe,Deuteronomy 7.6.and 26.18.See verse7.

V.2.When thou passest thorow the waters, I will be with thee: and thorow the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest thorow the fire, thou shalt not be burnt, neither shall the flame kindle upon thee:] I will secure and safeguard thee, amidst all dangers and difficulties, meant, here, by fire and water, as Pl.66.12. the waters]Or,waters:as ch.3.1.as when thorow the red-sea,Exod. 14.22. for thereunto, he here alludes.

I will be with thee] Some read it, I was with thee; as relating what he had formerly done, as ver.3. but I suppose the former, rather here,intended:as chap. 41.10. I will be with thee, to preserve thee from drowning, Psalm 78.52.& 106.10.

and thorow the rivers] And when thou passest thorow the rivers: to be supplyed from the former branch;as 2 Chronicles 10;11. thorow rivers;as thorow Jordan, sometime, Joshua 3.17.

walkest thorow the fire]Goest thorow,or,walkest in the fire;as those three in the furnace,with whom, the Angel was in the fire 3 which, though it burnt up those that cast them in, yet could not so much as singe their apparel,Dan.3.21,23,25,27.

V.3. For I am the Lord thy God, the holy one of Israel, thy Saviour]ch.43.3,14.& 49.26.& 60.16.

I gave Egypt for thy ransome, Ethiopia, and Seba, for thee]Heb.instead of thee:as verse 4, to save thee from destruction, which might otherwise have befallen thee:as Prov.11.8,& 21.18.This moft undefstand of Gods turning Sennacheribs forces against Egypt and Ethiopia, upon the tidings brought him of Tirhaka's coming against him, when he was making toward Jerusalem to besiege it, and so saving it from being sacked thereby,chapter 37.9.But I cannot conceive this to be the meaning of the place. For though it be true, that that rumour startled him, and made him think upon retiring, yet was it not that, but the fright that he took, upon the unexpected blow given in his Camp, that enforced him to flight; not to invade Egypt or Ethiopia, which he was in forry case then to do; but to get him home, with as much speed as he could, into his own country, chapter 31. 8,9.& 37.36,37. Only one of the Jewish Commenters expoundeth it, of the Egyptian first-born, whom God destroyed, when he saved the first-born of Israel, in lieu of whom, afterward, he took the Levites, Exodus 12. 12,23,29.Num. 3.12,13. which though it come not full home to, yet giveth an hint of that, which I conceive here intended ;to wit, that God destroyed the Egyptians, for the saving and rescuing of his people, when he drowned them in the red-sea, being upon eager pursuit of them, Exodus 14.20.-28.& 15 9,10. and as for that of the Ethiopians, or Cushites, and the Sabeans, their brethren, Genesis 10.9.and living, in likelihood, not far asunder,it may well have reference to that remarkable defeat of that vast Army, the greatest, upon record, in Scripture, given to the Cushites and their complices under King Asa, together with the spoyl of the cities;among which is mentioned, the plundering of their tents, with their camels and cattel, the common commodities of the Arabians, among whom these Sabeans seem to have been situate, as well as the Cushites, chapter 45. 14. Jeremiah 49.29.See 2 Chronicles 14. 9,15.

V.4.Since thou hast been precious in my sight, thou hast been honourable, and I have loved thee, therefore will I give men for thee, and people for thy life]Or, Because thou wast precious in my sight, wast honourable, and I loved thee: Therefore have I given men for thee, and people for thy sake. So it may well be the same,in effect, that he had said before, with an adjection of the reason, why he had so done.

Since]Or, Since that; or, For that; Or,because:Heb. From that,for, because:as Num. 14,16.Psalm 12.5.

hast been precious in my sight] As Psalm 116. 15. but the word, here,is a verb; and so the next: So also,1 Samuel,26.21.2 Kings 1. 13,14. Psalm 72.14.See further,chapter 60. 9.

I have loved thee]Or, I loved thee,Or,do love thee,Deut.7.7,8.Jer. 31.3.Hos.1.1.Mal.1.2.

therefore]Heb.and;as chapter 42.25.

will I give]Or,gave I, as verse 3.

men]Heb. Adam: of which name, see on chapter 2.9. here taken atlarge, for men indefinitely, or any man whatsoever: as chapter 2.22.

for thee]Heb.in thy room;or,in thy stead: as verse 3.

nations]Whole countries,or people:see verse.3. for the time past; and ver.14. for time to come.

for thy life]Or, for thee; for thy person: as Psalm 3.2.& 7.5.Hebre. for thy soul: So rather,as 1 Samuel 26.21.then, as some here, at thy desire:as Deuteronomy 23. 25.

V.5.Fear not, for I am with thee] Verse 1,2. chapter 41.10,11.& 44.1,2.Jeremiah 30.10.& 46. 27.

I will bring thy seed from the East, and gather thee from the west] I will bring you home from all those places, where,in captivity,any of you do abide, Chapter 11.11,17.fulfilled, temporally, by Cyrus, Ezra 1. 1. verse 14. Chapter 45. 4. according to Gods promise, Deuteronomy 30.3,5. spiritually by Christ,chap.66.19. Zacheriah 8. 7.

thy seed————thee]Both the same; you, the seed of Israel, Psalm 22.23.Jeremiah 23.8.Or, you, and your children, Jeremiah 30.10.& 46.27.

from the East]Heb. Sun rising:as chapter 41.2.

west]Heb. Evening-coast, chap.45.6. from all parts of the world, chapter 11.11.for the other two follow,verse 6.

V. 6. I will say to the North, give up, and to the South, keep not back: bring my sons from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth] No remoteneſſe of place shall hinder their return, Deuteronomy 30.5,chapter 11.12. Jeremiah 46.27.

sons and daughters] All of either sex, Deuteromy 32. 19.2 Cor. 6.18.

V. 7. Even every one that is called by my name] See on verse 1. Chapter 63. 19.

I have created him for my glory, I have formed him, yea, I have made him] To wit, this people, verse 21.See also, verse 1.or, whom I have created and formed: and made;the positive,for the relative, as ch.33. 20,21.& 42.1. & 46.4.

V.8.Bring forth the blind people, that have eyes; and the deaf, that have ears] Some conceive this, as spoken by way of challenge to the Gentiles, who were as blind and deaf,for all their eyes and ears, as their idols, which they adored, Psalm 115.5,6, 8. and see, if they can yet produce ought, in defence of their idols, verse 9. Others, as spoken by way of reproof, to those willfully obstinate among Gods own peoples: Of whom, chapter 42.16,20. as called upon, to see now, what they would not formerly believe: So Hab. 1. 5. Acts 13.41.But some again, applying it to the to mer promise, verse 5, 6. read the words in this manner, I will bring forth the blind people, and, or with, them that have eyes; and the deaf with them, that have ears: I will bring them out, of all sorts, as well sick, and defective, as found, and entire,Ier.31.9.or,as others, I will bring forth the blind, and they shall have eyes; and the deaf, and they shall have ears: Those that were naturally blind, shall then be illightned; and those that were naturally deaf, shall have their ears then opened,chapter 29.18.& 35.5.& 42.7, 16. The word may be rendred, either, Bring forth; or, Bringing forth: for the infinitive, and the imparative, are here all one; and it may, therefore, by an usual Hebraism,be read,either,Bringing,bring yeforth;or,Bringing,I will bring forth:the like form,see Ec.4.2.& 9.11.Jer.14.5. But the first exposition seems cleerest,and most agreeable to the course of the context.

V.9. Let all the Nations be gathered together, and let the people be assembled]See Chapter 41. 1.

who among them can declare this, and shew us former things?] Heb.first,as verse 18,27.Which of their idols could fore-tel these,or the like things? See chapter 41.21,22.& 44.7.

let them bring their witnesses, that they may be justified] Let them produce witnesses, to testifie that they have foretold things, as I am able to do, that so they may be proved to be gods indeed, and no counterfeits.See ch.41.23, 25.

bring]Heb.give,or,give in, as verse 6.

or let them hear, and say, It is truth]Otherwise, let them acknowledg that, which they are hereby convinced of, to be true, to wit, that the Lord alone is the true God, and they all but base idols,ch. 41.29.& 42.8.or, let them hear such witnesſes, as I am able to produce,and they wil be convinced of the truth of what I say,and compelled to acknowledge it.

It is truth]See the like concise speech, Chapter 41.26.truth, that is;most truth:as Psalm 119.142. John 17.17.

V.10. Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord] Ye my people, (for to them he now turneth his speech, (who have had from time to time, so pregnant and plentiful proofs of my divine power and providence are able to give testimony sufficient for me. For I cannot accord with those, who expound it of the Gentiles, who by the preaching of the Gospel,should give testimony unto Gods truth,which formerly they did not believe,ch.52.14,15.1 John 5.10. but adhere to the former;for that which followeth, ch.44.8. where the same thing is repeated.

and my servant whom I have chosen] This is diverſly expounded by Interpreters, as well Jewish, as Christians. Some expound it of the Iewish people, with whom the Gentiles should attest, ch. 41. 8, & 42.19.Others, of each of Gods servants, whom he should hereafter choose and call, John 3.33. 1 John 5.10. Others, of Esay the Prophet, by whom God had foretold these things; so the Jewish Commenters most of them, and some others. Others, of the Prophets and other Gods Ministers and messengers,taking the word collectively, John 1.7. Acts 1.8,and 5.32.1 John 4.14. Others,of Cyrus, who by his edict, and act,also, gave testimony thereunto, 2 Chronic. 36.21,22. Ezra 1.1-4.chapter 44.26,28.& 45.1. Others, lastly, of the Messias the Lord Jesus;and so the Chaldee Paraphrast,and most of ours, chap.42.1.& 55.4.John 18.37.These two last are most probable, and the latter of these two, the principal.

that ye may know, and believe me, and understand that I am he] These things, and many other, have been from time to time foretold you. yea, many of them, long before told you, ye have seen already accomplished, and the residue shall,in their due time,be effected, by such instruments as I have designed thereunto, my Messias especially, that you may be further confirmed in the faith and belief of that, which I now call you to attest.

know, and believe]As John 6.69.1 John 4.16.

that I am he]The only true God,verse 11,12.ch.41.4.John 17.3. or, as some, that I am, that I have an existence; which these idols have not,1 Cor.8.4. the pronoun demonstrative, for the verb substantive,as chap.9.14.verse 3.yet here I cleave to the former,for that which here followeth.

before me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after me] Chapter 44.8.& 45. 22. none before him, because from eternity; before idol, or ought else was, Genesis 1.1.John 1.3.Col.1.16,17.

not any after him, because he is unto eternity, and shall be, when all idols shall be abolished, Psalm 90.2. Ier.10.15.

no God formed] Or, nothing formed of God: he seems to give a privy nip to the Heathens idols, as being of mans making, and a time, therefore, when they were not, receiving their being from another: whereas the true God having his being in himselfe, and from no other, must of necessity be before all other. See ch.44.10.

V.1. I, even I, am the Lord] Deuteronomy 6.4. Psalm 83.18. and 86.10. chapter 42.8. and 45.21. there is an emphasis in the redoubling of it, as verse 25.

and beside me there is no Saviour] None that is absolutely able to save, chapter 45.21. and 63.1. Hosea 13.4. James 4.12.

V.12. I have declared, and have saved] I have foretold the deliverance of my people, and have fulfilled what I foretold, chapter 37.35, 36. and 46.10. Some of the Iewish Writers restrain it to their deliverance out of Egypt. I promised it long before, and in due time, made it good, Genesis 15.13-16. Exodus 12.40,41. but of such restraint, there appears no necessity.

I have shewed, when there was no strange God among you:] I made known to you, what I intended to do, what time I brought you, by mine own power, out of Egypt, & had no other God therein assisting me, nor you any other, either to foretel what was intended to you, and much lesse, that could effect it for you, Deut. 32. 12. Ier. 2. 2. or, as some read the words, by way of transposition, I, and no Strange, or, other, God, among you, did cause you to hear (as chapter 41.22,23.) these things: I asserted of the pronouns; as chapter 1. 15. the one; and chapter 41.26. the other.

when there was no] Heb. and there was no: and, for, when, as chapter 33.1. or, and no, for this particle is sometime a bare negative: as 1 Samuel 21.8. Ier.38.5.

Strange God] A defect of the substantive: as chapter 42.8. Psalm 16.4. Some of the Iewish Writers understand it, of Gods speaking to them, in Mount Sinai, rendring the words, I made you to hear, (my voice in the mount) and there was no stranger among you: there was none there, but you my people, Deut. 4.10,12,13,33, 36. and 5.24,26. But the former seems more probable, and more agreeable to Gods present purpose. See Deuteronomy 32.12. Ier.3.2.

therefore ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, that I am God] Ye, to whom I made such things known before, and afterward fulfilled them, verse 10.

therefore] Heb. and: as chapter 42.15.

that I am God] Heb. and I am God: as chapter 23.20.& 37.26.

V.13. Yea, before the day was, I am he] Heb. Since day, (as Exodus 10.6. Ier.36.2. since any day was,) I am; (as John 8.58.) the pronoun demonstrative, for the verb substantive; (as Psalm 24.10, and 44.4. 1 Kings 7.7,10.) or, I am the same, as Psalm 102.27. chapter 46.4. The middle way I like best.

and there is none that can deliver out of my hand] Heb. no deliverer; or, none that deliver eth: So Iob 10.7. and so of the ram, Daniel 8.4. but there the meaning is, no man, and for that time; for of the goat is the same afterward said, verse 7. that none could deliver the ram out of his hand, (that is, his power, as Psalm 22.20. and 49. 15. but here it is, none, either God, or man: Which though Nebuchadnezzar presumed to say of himself, yet he shortly after found false, and was entorced to confesse, that no god could deliver so, as the true God did, Daniel 3.15,17,29.

I will work, and who shall let it?] I will work, as Ezek. 20.14, 22. or, I wrought; the word is the same. Heb. and who shall turn it back? or, reverse it? or, what I do, who can undo? the indicative, for the potential, as in the former branch. See Iob 9. 12. chapter 14.24,27. Daniel 4.35.

V.14. Thus saith the Lord our Redeemer] That rescueth, and delivereth thee out of thy troubles, Genesis 48.17. chapter 41. 14. and 44. 24.

the holy One of Israel] Verse 3. chapter 47.4. and 48.17.

For your sake I have sent to Babylon] Or, I will send to Babylon: The Medes and Persians, under the conduct and command of Cyrus, chapter 13.3,17. and 14.1. and 21.9. and 44.28. and 45.1,4.

and have brought down] Or, will bring down, by them.

all their nobles] Heb bares, Psalm 137.13. either bring down their great ones, and nobles, chapter 13.4. Ier.51.35. or, break open, and cast down their forts, and strong holds, chapter 45.2. See Ier.51.56. or, as some, will bring them all down flying; or, all their flyers; for so the word, also, sometime signifieth: as chapter 15. 5. enforced by slight to shift for themselves. See chapter 27.1. The pronoun is wanting in the text: as chapter 40.31.

and the Chaldeans, whose cry is in the ships] Heb. their outcry, or shout, is in the ships; or, as some, to the ships: the positive, for the relative: as chapter 41.1. the ships, for, their ships; as, their bares, before.

whose cry] The word is ambiguous; and signifieth, sometime, a shout of exultation and joy, chapter 35.10. and 51.1. To which purpose, some read the words, together with their ships, or shipping, so the particle is used, Psalm 35.16. Hosea 5.6.) which they vaunt of. Sometime, it is put for any loud cry, in general, 1 Kings 22.36. and more specially, for an out-cry in prayer, 1 Kings 8.24. Psalme 17.1. and 142.6. or other the like, proceeding from confusion, distresse, or grief, Ier.14.12. Lam.2.19. and so most here take it, either whose cry is to the ships; (so is the particle used, chapter 10.22. and 8.8. and 30.29.) all whose cry is, to the ships, to the ships; as chapter 22.5. to the hills, to the hills: or, that cry out aboard their ships, and shallops, by which they seek to escape; the city being taken, when they find the water so shallow, being turned away, and so drained by Cyrus, that it is not deep enough to bear the vessels wherein they have embarked themselves. See Ier.50.38. and 51. 32.

V.15. I am the Lord, your holy one] As verse 11. or, Even I the Lord, as the note of continuation is there supplied: as if he had said, It is even, I the Lord, I say, your holy One, &c. that have done, or will do this; that sent, or will send, Cyrus, he went not of his own head, to Babylon, but on mine errand: though he had other ends of his own, yet I sent him, for your sake, verse 14. See the like, Genesis 45.5,7,8. and 50.20. chapter 10.6,7.

the creator of Israel] verse 7.

your King] To save you, Psalm 44.4. and 74.12 and 149.2. chapter 33.22. for that is the office of a King, to protect his people, to save his subjects, 1 Samuel 10.19,27. Hosea 10.3. and 13.10,11. Mic. 4.9.

V.16. Thus saith the Lord which maketh a way in the Sea, and a path in the mighty waters] Or, that made a way in the Sea, when he made the red sea passable for his people, Exodus 14.22, 29. and a path in the mighty waters, when he made Iordan fordable for them, being then at the highest, Iosh.ua 3.7,10. Zach.11.3. as if there had been a beaten path through either of them, as on some plaine, chapter 63.11,13,14. See Psalm 77.19,20. chapter 44.27. Thus Interpreters generally, implying, that no difficulty in the way, should hinder the passage of his people, in their return from Babylon to their own country, no more then ought did, or could, in their journey thither, at first. Howbeit, I suppose that the Sea, and mighty waters, are here, one and the same: as Exodus 15.1,10. and the rather, for that which followeth, verse 17. which no way agreeeth to Iordan, wherein none were destroyed.

V.17. Which bringeth forth the chariot, and horse, the army, and the power; they shall lye together, they shall not rise; they are extinct, they are quenched, as tow] Or, who brought forth the chariot, and horse, the army, and the power; (who drew out all Pharao's horse, and forces, out of his own country into the wilderneſſe; the like whereunto, lee Iudg.4.7. and from off the land into the sea, Exod. 14.4.9.23.) that they might lye together, in the bottom of the sea, Exod.14.27,28. and 15.1,14. like a lump of lead, Exodus 15.10.) and not rise: (Exod.14.13,28. Psalm 106.11.) that they might be extinct, even quenched, as a wick. Heb. as flax; Exod 9.31. Hosea 2.5. so rather then tow; for there is another word for that, Iudg. 16.9. ch.1.31. as flax, for, as a candle-wick made of flax, ch.42. 3. when water is cast on it, or it is cast into the water. In which term, some suppose an allusion to that commodity of flax, which Egypt was famous for, ch. 19.9. and 23.3. Thus the text floweth smoothly, that founded harshly, and ran abruptly before. The defect of the final, or finitive particle, is not unusual. See Psalm 83.1. ch. 40.27. and 41.7. And the defect of the copulatives no lesse; which oftentimes make the sentence the quicker, and more emphaticall. See Exodus 15.9. Iudges 5.17. ch.23.2,3. and 37.27. and 40.24. Some of the Iewish Commenters, expound this of Sennacherib, and his forces, whom God drew out of Assyria to their destruction, chap. 7.18. and 37.36. Others, of the Babylonians and Chaldeans, whom God would draw out into the field to fight with the Persians, to their own ruine. As also some, of Gods drawing out the Medes and Persians, to destroy the Chaldeans, chapter 13.17. But these regard not the connexion of this verse with the former. That of the Egyptian is here related, to shew, how able God is, both to deliver his people, be they never so distressed; and to destroy their adversaries, be they never so powerfull, by waves, and courses, unexpected.

V.18. Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old] Not that Gods former mercies should not be remembred, or regarded, for those they are every where called upon to keep in mind, and think upon, Exodus 12.42. and 13.3. Deuteronomy 4.9, 10. and 9.7. and 16.3. and 32.7. Psalm 78.11,42. & 106.7,21. But the meaning is, that those things, which he now foretelleth, and intends to do, partly, in their temporal deliverance, by Cyrus, but principally, in their spiritual deliverance by Christ, should be so great, and so remarkable, that they might be sufficient, of themselves, to assert his divine power, though all the former were clean forgotten; or, as the most, that in regard of them, the former, though great and wonderful, should, in a manner, neither be minded so much, nor regarded. See Ier.16.14,15. and 23.7,8.

former] Heb. first, verse 9,27. So Rev.2.5.

V.19. Behold, I will do a new thing] Heb. Behold, I am doing a new thing. This some expound, of the renewing, or making all things new, 2 Cor.5.17. Rev.21.5. but neither the text it self, nor the intendment thereof, will admit it: they also seem to strain the word, needlesly, too far, who by new, would have meant excellent. It is apparent, that the meaning is, that he will do some new thing, beside, and divers from what he had formerly done, some such thing as he had not done before; as Ier.31.22. Num.16.30. So, sing a new song, a song newly composed, not made, nor sung before, before, for a new benefit, a new deliverance, chapter 42.10.

now it shall spring forth] Or, it is even now springing forth; it is even working already: as 2 Theſſ. 2. 7. It is a metaphor, from plants, that bud and blosſom before they bear fruit; and the former giveth warning of the approach of the latter, Num.17.8.so Psalm 8. 11. Zach.6.12. See chap.13.22.

shall ye not know it] Or, do ye not perceive it? This he seemes to say, as speaking to those that remained in captivity at Babylon, about the time of Cyrus his preparation for that expedition, or when he was now upon his way thither: For his preparations were great, and took up some time, chap 13.2,4. as also, his way long, and passage difficult, that took him up a year or two, at least: See chap. 13.5. Ier.51.46.

I will even make a way in the wilderneſſe] A way, that is, a plain, or a free way in the wilderneſſe; where the wayes are wont to be uneaven with hills and dales, and obstructed with thickets, and overgrown with brambles and briars: I will make a convenient and easie passage for my people returning, by waſt places from Babylon, to their own country, free from all such lets and impediments, as might hinder or impeach their passage: See chapter 40.3.4. & 49. 11.

and rivers in a deſart] I will furnish them with a plentiful supply of all necessaries, that they may not faint by the way, chap.41. 17, 18, 19. and 49.9,10. Ier.31.9. He alludeth to the water, that he gave before time, from the rock, in the wilderneſſe, Exodus 17 6. Num.20.8-11. Psalm 105.41.

deſart] Heb. waſt: for so the word properly signifieth, Psalm 106. 14. & 107,4. So verse 20.

V.20. The beasts of the field shall honor me, the dragons, and the owles; because I give waters in the wilderneſſe, and rivers in the deſart, to give drink to my people, my chosen] The very brute beasts, and wild creatures, shall fare the better for the passage of my people through the waſts they abide in, being cheered with the refreshments that they shall receive from the water wherewith I supply my people; as the water that God, in former times, gave, in like case, to his people, was a refreshment to their cattel as well as to themselves, Num.20.8. and the wild beasts, also, had benefit thereby, as well as by the Egyptian carcasses that they fed upon, Psalm 74. 14.

beast] For beasts, taken collectively; as Psalm 50.10. 2 Samuel 21.10. they seem wide, that understand by wild beasts, here, savage people.

honor me] In their kind: who as they are said to cry to God, when they lament for want of food, Psalm 104.21. and 147.9. so are they said to praiſe him. Psalm 145.9,10. and 148.7,10. when they are cheerfully affected upon such refreshments, afforded to them; as implying what they would do, had they that reason and understanding, that man hath, to conceive from whom such things come.

Owles] Or, Ostriches: as some: see Lam.4.3. Heb. the Owles daughters, as chapter 34.13.

to give drink to my people] Heb, to make my people drink: as Ier: 25.17.

my chosen] See verse 10. chapter 41.8. and 44.1.

V.21. This people I have formed for my self; they shall shew forth my praiſe] Or, The people that I formed for my self; they shall shew forth my praiſe, they shall recount (as chapter 26.9.) my praiſe: the positive, or demonstrative, for the relative: as Psalm 74.2. and 104.8. and 142.4. This some understand, as to be done of the people refined, and reformed by their afflictions, chapter 48.10. and returned from captivity, Psalm 102.18. Others, of the duty that was required of Gods people, whom, for that end, he had formed, verse 7. but they had exceedingly failed in; and this agreeth well, both with the sequel, wherein God complaineth of their default, and failings hereafter, verse 22-24. and with Gods intendment, in this place, to set forth the feeentss of his mercy, in this their delivery, verse 25. and it is, as if he had said, having an eye back to the former words, verse 20. the very brute-beasts shall, in their kind, and as well as they can, do that which many of you, whom I formed for that purpose, do not.

V.22. But thou hast not called upon me, O Jacob:] Or, Yet: Heb. And; as verse 1. chapter 44.1. Thou hast not been so carefull to serve and worship me, as thou shouldest and oughtest to have been, being for that end and purpose formed into a Church and State, by me, that thou mightest serve and worship me; the invocation of Gods name, being put for his whole service and worship, as Psalm 79.6. Ier.10.25. though some understand it of not seeking to God, in their troubles and distresses, 2 Chronicles 28.22. chapter 9.13. & 22.8-13. & 64.7. Daniel 9.13. Hosea 5.13. and 7.7,14. Amos 4.6-11. But the former seems the genuine sense of the place.

but thou hast been weary of me, O Israel] Thou hast been weary of me and my service; thou hast counted it, not a benefit, but a burthen to thee, Psalm 81.11. Mal.1.13. But some read the words, thou hast wearied me, as, say they, the word is taken, Ecclef.10.15. Mal.2.17. and that is said, indeed, verse 24. but the verb is here, in another form, then there; or then in either of the places produced. Others read them, when thou wast afflicted by me. Of which before. Others, when thou tookeſt pains with me; as if the meaning were, that when they did take much pains in outward observances; they did not serve God, but an idoll of their own framing, a God that would accept of such formal courtings and complements; though neither proceeding from inward devotion, nor accompanied with a religious course of life: that which seemes aimed at, Prov. 21.27. Ier.7.9,10. Hosea 7.14. Zach,7.5,6.and the particle, indeed, signifies, as well when, a shut: and so ch.36.10. Joel 2.10. But the verse seems to consist of two Propositions, joyned, though much to the same, in effect, with a discretive; the name of Jacob, annexed; to the one, of Israel, to the other, but both signifying the same people: as verse 1. chapter 44.1.

V.23. Thou hast not brought me the small cattel of thy burnt offerings, neither hast thou honored me with thy sacrifices:] Thou hast not offered them to me, but to strange gods, to idols, which thou hast forsaken, rather then me, and preferred it before me, Deuteronomy 32. 17. Iudges 2.12,13. and 5.8. and 10.6, 13, 14. Psalm 106. 35-39. Ier.2.11,13,28. Amos 5.25,26. or, as some other, thou hast offered them, indeed, as to me, but so, as no way pleasing to me, because without true piety, or sincere repentance: See chapter 1.11-15. But this seems here, not so natural.

the small cattel of thy burnt offerings] Or, thy burnt offerings of small cattel, that is, kids, or lambs, as Exodus 12.5. Of the phrase, see chapter 2.20.

burnt offerings, and sacrifices] See chapter 1.11.

I have not caused thee to serve with an offering, nor wearied thee with incense] I have not exacted of thee such abundance of these kind of oblations, that thou shouldest deem it to be such a burthen to thee, or to make thee weary of me and my service; and so it hath reference to that, verse 22. or, it is not I, but thine idols, that have been as so much cost with thee, and have made thee a slave to them, tiring thee out with such services, as they have from time to time exacted from thee: See chapter 57.5. 10. Ier.3.24. and this I take to be the genuine sense of the place. Though most Interpreters go another way, to wit, that these things God had not required of them, being performed by them in such manner, and for such ends as they did them. See chapter 1.11,12,13. of offering, or oblation, and incense, see also there. Some of the Iewish Commenters refer all this to the time of the captivity, wherein the Temple being destroyed, the only place where they might sacrifice, Deut.12.13,14. these were neither done by them, nor required of them. Others, restrain them to Azhaz his time, 2 Chr.28.24. but the one seems impertinent, the other too narrow.

V.24. Thou hast bought me no sweet cane with money, neither hast thou filled me with the fat of thy sacrifices:] This goeth on in the self-same notion with the former, verse 22,23.

sweet cane] Heb. cane, or canel, as it is usually termed (for sweet is not in the text) or, calamus, as it is rendred, Ezek. 27. 19. but, sweet cane, as here, so Ier. 6.20. either for the composition of the sweet ointment, Exodus 30.34. or, for the incense, Exodus 30. 7. there is an elegant consonancy in the original, between bin and cane, which our English cannot express.

filled me] Heb. made me drunk; or, made me drink; or moisture me abundantly: for the word doth not onely signifie, to be drunk; or make drunk (if at least, it do at all so signifie, which to me doth not yet appear, nor can I light on any place that doth necessarily evince it) but sometime to bedew, as chapter 16.9. or, to bathe, as chapter 34.5. or, to sate, Ier.31.14. chapter 34.7. Ier.46.10. or, to water plentifully, Psalm 65.10. chapter 55.10. whence it is applied to beneficence, Prov.11.25. and so it may have reference to Gods altar, that was patiently bedewed with the blood, and the fat of the beasts that were sacrificed thereon, Lev.3.13-17. sometime, to drink largely, or, liberally, or, to full satisfaction; and the word that is commonly used for drunkenneſs, doth sometime import the like, as of Iosephs brethren, Genesis 43.34. for it is not to be thought, that they would so far forth forget themselves, as to be drunk in his presence; and the Greek word, in like manner, that answereth thereunto, Ioh 2.10. also, 1 Cor.11.21. for it is scarce imaginable, that any of them were so extreamly profane, as to be drunk onely, that any of them were so much times, nor doth the opposite memperyl in the congregation at such times, nor doth the opposite member of hunger intimate any more: And by consequence also, the word here used, doth signifie, to take ones full of ought, or, to take large or full satisfaction, or delight, in ought, Proverbs 1.19. and 7. 18. Psalm 36.8. where the term of watering, is not so suitable: and in the active form, to satiate, refresh, or cause to drink, or feed liberally, even to full contentment, Ier.13.14,25. or, to make one ruddy, even to full contentment, Ier.13.14,25. or, to make one drink, or take in largely of that, which yet they take little delight or contentment in, Lam.3.15. Thus, here, respecting God, it implyeth a large or liberal expence in sacrifice, for the supply of his service at the Altar, which is called his Table; as the sacrifices offered on it, his meat, Ezek.41.22. Mal.1.7,12. Yet withal, not without some hint of that grosse conceit, which some Heathen had, that their gods fed on the steam that afcended from their sacrifices, which some among the Iews might have, also, some taint of. See Deut.32.38. Psalm 50.13.

but thou hast made me to serve with thy sins; thou hast wearied me with thine iniquities] Hitherto he had minded them of their failings, in performance of duty; he now telleth them of their faults. They in performance of duty; he now telleth them of their faults. They had not only neglected him, as weary of his service, which they esteemed esteemed of no better, then as some slavish condition, verse 22, 23. but had also so vexed and grieved him with their sins, that his bearing with them, and enduring of them, was as grievous and burdensome to him, as an hard service, under some harsh and rigorous master, chapter 7.13. and 63.10. Jer.44.22. Ezek.6.9. Amos 2.13. And this latter, especially, was it, that he took to heart. To which purpose it is, that God saith elsewhere, that he did not so much command the former, Jer.7.22. or, complain of the want thereof, Psal. 50.8. as well because he regarded not so much their failings in the one, as in the other: and again, because they were sometime free, and forward enough in the one, when they were wholly regardlesse of the other, Mic.6.6-8. All this, to shew, that the deliverance of them from their thraldome, was of his owne free favour and mercy; not from any matter of merit, or desert, on their part, verse 25.

V.25. I, even I, am he, that blotteth out thy transgressions,] Or, I, even I, (a passionate and emphatical expression, as Gen. 6. 16. verse 11.) do blot out; (Heb. he blotting out, or, am blotting out; the pronoun, for the verb substantive: as verse 13. for there is no article prefixed before the participle,) and there is in the term of blotting out, a metaphor taken from the blotting of some thing out of a book, as Exodus 32.32,33. and more specially, of a debt out of a debt-book, Col.2.14. and our sins are as debts, Matthew 6.12,14, 15. and 18.24,27,33. Luke 7.41-43,47,48. and 11.4. which being once blotted out, and done away, neither are we any more charged with them, Ezek. 18.22. nor God any more wroth with us, for them, chapter 54.9. See chapter 44.22.

for mine own sake] Heb. for my self; as Job 18.4. Proverbs 16. 4. out of a respect to his own honor, chapter 52.5. Ezek.20,14,22. and 39.9. and 36.20-23. his mercy, Deut.4.37. Jer.3.12. his fidelity, Psalm 106.45. chapter 1.27. and 56.1. and his free love and affection to them and their Ancestors, Deut.7.7,8. verse 4. Jer.31.3. Mal.1.2. not in regard of any desert of theirs, who had so extreamly, from time to time, both neglected and wronged him, chap. 44. 8,9. Ezek.36.22,23.

and will not remember thy sins] As that which is blotted, or razed out, cannot now be read, or repeated, and consequently, is not regarded, nor remembred, Exodus 17 14. Psalm 9.5,6. and so a debt, when the bond cancelled, or the book crossed, is then no more thought on, or looked after. In like manner, God having remitted the sins of his, doth no more now regard them, then as if he had forgotten them; (for so is the term of forgetting, or, not remembring, frequently used, both in Scripture, and common speech, Psalm 45. 20. Phil.3.13.) see Psalm 25.7. and 79. 8. Jer.31.34. Hosea 4.6.

V.26. Put me in remembrance:] If I have omitted, or not taken notice of ought, that thou supposest might make for thy justification, mind me of it.

let us plead together] See chapter 1.19.

declare thou, that thou mayst be justified] Or, cleered, or, clear thy self; as verse 9. Say what thou canst for thy self, thou hast liberty so to do, as Acts 26.1. The ancient Greek rendreth it, Remember that we may be judged, tell thy sins first, that thou mayst be justified: and this the Greek Fathers commonly produce, and presse, to prove, that confession and acknowledgment of sin goeth before justification, and is the way to remission, Luke 18.13.14. a point not unsound, but a place impertinent, for the version forceth that into the text that is not there.

V.27. Thy first father hath sinned] This some understand of Adam, from whom all mankind is descended, and from whom sin was propagated unto all his issue; yea, of whose actual sin, as most hold, all men stand guilty: and to this purpose, they apply that, chapter 48.8. Rom.5.12. and that all men, for that corruption traduced to them from Adam, stand guilty of sin, and liable to Gods wrath, cannot be denied, Psalm 50.5. Rom.5.12. and 6.23. Ephes.2.2,3. But this charge seems to be more special, and such, as in a more peculiar manner concerneth this people. Others, of Abraham, the principal Patriarch, with whom God entred into a special covenant, sealed up with that solemn right of circumcision, Genesis 17. 2,7,11,13. Rom.5.11. named, as the head and root of their flock, chapter 41.8. and 51.2. and the sin of his here hinted, some make the denial of his wife, chapter 12.13. and 20.2. Others, the doubting of Gods promise, in demanding a sign, Gen.15.8. Or, because these may seeme to have been slips of humane frailty: the most, therefore, conceive it to have been his idolatry, before his call, which they ground upon Jothua 24.2.3. But of Abraham, no such thing is there laid, and the Jews traditional story, of Abrahams escaping the fire, that he was thrown into, because he would not worship idols, (which they build on the word ur, that signifies fire, Neh.9.7. Jetleth us a contrary tale: but the truth is, the one is as groundleis as the other. Others, Terah, Abrahams Father, the first, say they, of that line, that fell off to idolatry; which circumstance, though uncertain, yet, that sometime an idolater, is apparent, Josh.24.2. Others, Jeroboam, who set up idolatry among the ten Tribes, 2 King. 12. 28,30. But this seems to concern Judah, as well as Israel, which that did not, 2 Chron.13.10,11. Others, Ahaz, 2 Chron 28.and others, Manasses, 2 Kings 21.& 23.26.& 24.3. Now Kings, say these last, as are Fathers to their people. But how or, why, either of these should be termed their first-father, after so many fore-going them, they thew not. I suppose, therefore, that thy first-father, is no more here, then thy fore-fathers, thine ancestors. The word father, is sometime taken collectively: so Ezek.16.3. Thy father, for thy fathers; and the word first, is frequently used for former: so, the first age, for the former age, or of the age before-going, Job 8.8. and, the first things, for former things, verse 9.18. and so would it be rendred, 1 Tim.5.12. Rev.2.4. So the meaning is, not you alone, but your fore fathers, also, have been grievous transgressors, as well as your selves; and there is no cause, therefore, why I should doe so great a favour for you, as this is in regard either of your selves, or of them. See chapter 1.4. Psalm 78.8. and 106.6,7. Jer.3.24,25. and 7.22-26. Zach.1.4. Mal.3.7.

and thy Teachers have transgressed against me] Heb. thine interpreters, Genesis 42.23. Iob 33.23. or embassadors, 2 Chronicles 32. 31. Their Priests and Prophets, so termed; because they are as embassadors between God and his people; and their office is, to open and make known Gods will and pleasure unto them, Deuteronomy 33.10. Ier.15.19. Mal.2.7. and are called his embassadors, because sent by him; their embassadors, because sent to them, 2 Cor.5.19, 20. They that should have taught others better, have been, themselves, as bad as any. See 2 Chron.19.24. Ier.5.30,31. and 8.10, 11. and 23.13,14. Dan.9.8,11.

V.28. Therefore] Heb. And; as verse 4.

have I profaned the Princes of the Sanctuary]. Or, of holinesse, as chapter 62.9. that is, the holy Princes; as their land was termed the holy land, chapter 63.19. Jerusalem, the holy city, Neh.11.1,18. the people, an holy seed, Ezr.9.1. the sanctuary, an holy place, Psalm 5. 7. and 68.5. Either the Rulers of the Temple, Ier.20.1. Or, their Kings annointed with holy oyl, Psalm 89.20. and Princes, Governours of the holy people, because taken into special covenant with God, Deut.26.19. Psalm 114.2. these God is said to have profaned, because he had rejected, abhorred, destroyed them, exposed them to a curse, to shame, to reproach, Psalm 44.13,14. Ier.23. 40. and 24.9. or dealt with them, as with profane and common persons, not regarding the dignity of their places, Psalm 89.39. ch. 47.6. Ier.22.18,19,24-28. and 29.6,7. Lam.2.2. For they seeme to step aside here, who expound the words, as if God should not say, that he had so done, but that he might justly deale so with them.

and have given Jacob to the curse] Or, made Jacob a curse; or, an accursed thing, chapter 65. 11. caused him to be destroyed, as an accursed thing, Iosh.6.16,18,21. for that is the word here used.

and Israel to reproaches] Exposed them, by their servitude and bondage, to most shameful reproach, Zeph.2.8. Ier. 24.9. Jacob and Israel, the same, as verse 22.

CHAP. XLIV.

Verse 1. Yet now heare] This Chapter dependeth upon the next before-going, as that on the next before it; God signifying unto his people, that though they, and their fore-fathers, had deserved so evill of him; and that he had therefore, therein intending, as well the chastisement, as the amendment of them, given them up into their enemies hands, and suffered them to endure a long and tedious captivity; yet he would now, at length, relieve and refresh them, restore them, and cause them to thrive and prosper again.

Yet] Heb. And; as ch. 43.1.

O Jacob, my servant; and Israel, whom I have chosen] See chapter 41.8.

V.2. Thus saith the Lord, that made thee, and formed thee] See chapter 43.1,7,21.

from the womb] From thy nativity, say some; as Psalm 22.9,10. and 71.6. before thou wast able to do, much lesse to deserve ought, Rom.9.11. But rather from thy first beginning, to be a Nation severed from others, an entire people of thy self. It is a metaphor, taken not, so much from the forming of the body in the womb, Psalm 119.73. and 139.13-16. Iob 10.8-11. Ier.1.5. as from the practice of Midwives, that receiving the birth from the womb, do compose and frame it, and each limb of it, unto its due posture; and so did God with this people, when he moulded them up, into a proportionable frame of Church and State: So verse 24. chapter 46.3. See, also, chapter 48.8. Ier.1.2.

which will help thee] A defect of the relative; as chapter 42.1,5. Or, as the words may well be read, Thus saith the Lord, he that made thee, and formed thee from the womb, will keep thee. See chapter 41. 10,13,14.

Fear not, O Jacob, my servant] Chapter 41.8,10.

and thou Jesurun, whom I have chosen] Heb. Jeshurun: a name given to Israel and his Posterity, in regard of the uprightnesse that was in him, and ought to have been in them, Deut.32.15. and 33. 26. chosen; as verse 1.

V.3. For I will pour water on him that is thirsty] That is, as some, the spiritual water of grace, in abundance, upon those, that finding, and feeling the want of it, in themselves, do hunger and thirst after it; and so the metaphor should be taken from water, or drink, that a man is supplied with, for the slaking of his drought, and the quenching quenching of his thirst, as chapter 12.3. and 55.1. Jer.31.25. Matthew 5.6. John 4.14. and 7.37,38. Rev.22.17. But neither will the word, of pouring out, well admit that metaphor here, no more, then in other the like places, to the like purpole produced, Joel 2. 28. Acts 2.18. (which rather seem to allude to the pouring out of the oyl, upon the head of King, or Priest, Leviticus 8. 12. Psalm 133.2. 1 Samuel 10.1. 2 Kings 9.3.) since that we use not to pour water, or drink, upon men, or beasts either, when they are thirsty, but rather pour it out to them, or for them, 2 King.4,20.chap. 58.10. and the tenure of the text carrieth it to such water, rain, or other, wherewith dry and parched grounds are wont to be watered, to refresh them, and make them fertile and fruitful: and I conceive it ought not to be rendred, him that is thirsty, but, the thirsty place; as, after, the dry, for the dry land: a defect of the subject in either. By a like metaphor, is a land of thirst and dryneſs, or, a thirsty and dry land, chapter 35.7. and Ezek.19.13. for, a land that is dry, for want of water, as a man a thirst for want of drink, Psalme 63.1.

and floods upon the dry ground[Heb. dryt as Genesis 1.9. a defect of the subject, as before; floods, for abundance of water: as chapter 30.25. Psalm 119.136. an allusion here, partly, to rain, that the clouds pour down, Psalm 77.17. and partly, to such rivers, as overflowing the lands that lye neer them, make them fertile. See on chapter 19.5,6. and 23.3.

I will pour my spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thine offspring] My spirit, that is, my blessing, (the one expoundeth the other) whereby they and their State should thrive and flourish, and multiply, and increase, that had been almost clean exhaust, and exceedingly impaired, in a manner, beyond all hope of recovery, because of their sins, and of their feed, chapter 61.9. he followeth still the comparison taken from grounds well watered, as chapter 58.11. and the parison taken from grounds well watered, as chapter 58.11. and the feed sown in such soil, chapt. 32.10. A type of that spiritual growth, and increase of Gods Church, and the members of it, under the Messias, by the graces and comforts of his Spirit, Acts 9.31. Eph. 4.12-15. Col.2.19. 2 Peter 3.18. See chapter 27.6. and 37.31. and 61.9,11.

V.4. And they shall spring up as among the grass, as willowes by the water-courses] Heb. in among; and then there seemes a defect of the note of similitude, to be supplyed from the latter clause: but some rather read it, as among; and then there is no defect. Howbeit, there want not, that read it in a continued sentence, but with some transposition of the words, They shall spring up, or shoot up; or, That they may shoot up (as chapter 41.20.) as willows beside the streames, (as it is rendred, chapter 30.25.) or, water-courses amidst the grass; that is, as willows, that shoot up speedily in watery places, and soon over-top the grass among which they grow. See chapter 15.7. Job 40.22. Ezek.17.5. the trees here mentioned, are reckoned up among those fair, shrowdy, and flourishing ones, that they used to make booths of, in the Feast of Tabernacles, Leviticus 23 40. Howsoever we read the text, a profecution it is of the former resemblance. See the like, Numbers 24.6. Psalm 1.3. Jeremiah 17.8.

V.5. One shall say, I am the Lords; and another shall call himself by the name of Jacob; and another shall subscribe with his hand to the Lord, and surname himself by the name of Israel] The future encrease of Gods people is intimated, not onely by his blessing, in making them fruitful, and multiplying their issue, chapter 60.22. and 61.9. Jer.31.27. as he did sometime in Egypt, Exodus 1.12. but by addition, also, of many Proselytes, from other parts, to them, who should give up their names to God, to be entred into his muster-roll, and registred in his Church-book, among the faithful, that belong to him, and are listed for his service. See the like, Psalme 87.5,6. See also, chapter 40.26. This, in likelihood, was, in part, fulfilled, upon the dissolution of the Babylonian captivity; many thereupon adjoyning themselves to Gods people; as the like was sometime done on the like occasions, both before, and after, upon their departure out of Egypt, Exodus 12.38. and upon their deliverance from Hamans mischievous plot against them, Est.8.17. But more fully, in the conversion of the Gentiles, by the preaching of the Gospel. See chapter 2.3.

I am the Lords] Souldiers, or servant; as, the Lords, and Gideons, for, the sword of the Lord, and of Gideon, Judges 7.18. and 20.

subscribe with his hand] A defect of the particle instrumentall. as Psalm 17.13,14. a metaphor from such volunteers, as doe, of their own accord, under their hand-writing, lift, and enrol themselves, for service, Psalm 110.3. or, as some render it, write on his hand, unto the Lord: or, I am the Lords: and so the ancient Greek hath it: as, I unto thee, Psalm 119.94. that is, I am thine; or, belong to thee; which they conceive to allude unto the manner of souldiers, or servants, that did bear the Captains, or Masters name, to whom they belonged, imprinted on one of their hands, which, though it might be alluded unto, Revelations 3.12. and 14.9. yet I doubt, whether that custome was so ancient as Esay's daies.

surname] Shall take on him that name, instead of that which he had from his original; or, shall assume it, as an additional unto it. Heb. shall entitle himself. See chapter 45.4. thereby intimating, that he is one of the Israel of God, Gal. 6.16. a member of God's Church, a subject of that kingdome whereof he is King, ver.6. chap 33.23.

V.6. Thus saith the Lord, the King of Israel, and his Redeemer] See chapter 43.14,15.

the Lord of hosts] See chapter 1.9. One, as willing to deliver you; so, able to do it.

I am the first, and I am the last] chapter 41. 4. and 48.12. Rev. 1.8,17. and 22.13. the first, fay some, from whom all things are, and the last, unto whom, all is to be referred, Romanes 11. 36. But I conceive Gods eternity, only, to be here implyed, Psalm 90.2.

and besides me there is no God.] Or, more concisely, no god, besides me, Deuteronomy 4.35,39. and 6.4. and 32.39. chapter 43. 10,11. and 45.6,21. verse 8. John 17.3. 1 Cor.8.5,6.

V.7. And who, as I, shall call, and shall declare it, and set it in order for me, since I appointed the ancient people? and the things that are coming, and shall come: let them shew unto them.] Or, what is like unto me, (Psalm 35.10. and 89.8. to wit, among the gods that the heathen so account, Psalm 89.6.) that can call, and declare it, and set it me in order, since I appointed a people of old? or, let them (that is, their idols) shew unto them (to wit, that take them for their gods) the things to come, and such as shall come from them; to wit, if they will be accounted gods, chapter 41.23.

shall call] Or, can call, potentially, as ch.40. 12. and 41. 26. and 43.8. This, some expound of Gods calling of the Israelites, to be his people, chap.41.9. Others, of calling and designing certain of persons, as Cyrus and his forces, to deliver his people, chapter 44.28. and 45.1,4. I suppose the former here intended.

and shall declare it] Or, and declare it, that is, tell before-hand what shall, in future times, befall that people: or, as some other, who shall tell me, or direct me, how I should, in the managing of these affairs, proceed: as chapter 40.13, and 45.11.

and set it in order for me] Or, set it me in order, or, set it in order to me: relate it to me, in a constant course and tenour, what shall, from time to time, betide them, as I have done with my people, both concerning the Egyptian bondage, with the bringing them out from thence, and the settling of them in the land of Canaan, Gen.15.13, 14,16. as also concerning the Babilonian captivity, together with their deliverance out of it, and the restoring them to their own land again, Chap. 39. 6,7.& 40. 2. & 43. 5, 6,14. 45-47. See also, Jer. 25. 9, 11, 12.

since I appointed the ancient people] Or, an ancient people, that is, the lineage of Abraham, in the posterity of Jacob, to be a numerous nation, and my peculiar people; which long since he both foretold, and fulfilled, Gen. 13.16.& 15.5.&22.17. Num.1. 45,46. Deut.1.10. Heb. a people of antiquity, or, of perpetuity, or, of eternity, for the word is used, (as the Latine olim also, supposed, by some, to com from it,) as well of the time past, chap.42.14. Jer. 48.8. as of the time to come: in which latter sense, also, some here taking it, expound the text of Gods elect, from the worlds beginning, year, from all eternity, chosen, and set apart, and in time, called out, and called to inherit eternity, Gen.3.15. Rom.8.29.30. Eph. 1.4,5. 1 Pet. 1.3,4. Rev.13.8. and 17.8. but I suppose the former here, principally intended, because God here points unto such conspicuous evidences of his divine power, as lay open, even to any naturall mans eye, chapter 41.20. Nor do they seem to conjecture aright, who refer it to the creation of mankind, at the first. See chapter 40.21. and 41.4.

things that are coming, and shall come] things to come, as (chap. 45. 11.) such as shall come to passe, the copulative for the relative, as chapter 3.6. & 5.4. or, things to come, and such as shall proceed, or spring, from them. See chapter 43. 19. a defect of the relative, as verse 2. that is, things to come, in a continued course, from the first to the last, like links of a chain, hanging one upon another. See chapter 41.22,23.26. and 46.10. and 48.14.

V.8. Fear ye not, neither be afraid] As if, either I were not able to fulfill what I foretel, verse 6. or, any counterfeit deity were able to over-power me, in what I foretel, and intend: the vanity of whom he layeth forth, at large, in the words following, together with the senselesse fottishnesse of those that are bewitched with them, ver.9-20.

have I not told thee from that time, and have declared it?] Remember that these things were told you before, John 16.1. Matthew 26. 6,7. Luke 24.6-8. whereof ye see some part already fulfilled, and the residue shall, in their due time, be accomplished. So Luke 1.31, 36,37.

told thee] Heb. made thee to hear: as chapter 41.26.

from that time] At that time, when I appointed thee to be a people, verse 7. or, in a more large sense, formerly, or, in time past, Heb. from then: as chapter 16.23. and 48.3.

declared it] A defect of the pronoun it: as chapter 42. 21, 25.

ye are even my witnesses] Or, and ye are my witnesses hereof: See chapter 43.10.

Is there a god besides me?] The interrogative affirmatively delivered, doth more vehemently deny: as Iob 7.1. See verse 6.

there is no god] That is, no other god, no god besides me, to be supplyed from the former branch. Heb. no rock, Psalm 19. 14. no such rock, as is able to protect and secure those that repaire to it, it for shelter and safety, as God doth those, that betake themselves to him, Deut. 4.35,39.& 32.4,32,39. 1 Samuel 2.2. Psalm 18. 31. Prov.18.10,11. chapter 26.4.& 43.11.& 45.5 & 46.9. it is a metaphor taken from such caves, or places of receit, in rocks; that either men in distress and danger, or, the feebler sort of creatures, for better security against the ravenous kind of them, are wont to resort unto, or to make their constant abode in, Judges 15.8. & 20.47. Psa. 104.18. Proverbs 30.26. Canticles 2. 14.

I know not any] Who yet should, if any such were. Howbeit, some read the words of the text, as a continued sentence; that is no God, that I know not; and there should then be a defect of the relative; as before, verse 7. but the former reading seems the more probable.

V.9. They that make a graven image, are all of them vanity] See cha. 41.29. some read the words, They that frame a graven image, are all of them framers of a vain thing: The word in the latter part supplyed from the former; as 2 Chronicles 10.14.

and their delectable things shall not profit:] The Hebrew word signifieth as well delectable, or delightful, as desireable. See Chapter 64.11. their idols, which they so dearly affect, and delight so much in, (see Chap.1.29. and 57.5. Jeremiah 17. 1,2.) shall not profit, or cannot profit: as Chapter 30.5, 6. they shall not stand them in any stead, when they need their help, Chapter 45.20. Jeremiah 2.28. or, they are altogether unprofitable, they are good for nothing, ch. 41.29. verse 10.

and they are their own witnesses, they see not, nor know; that they may be ashamed] Or, even themselves are their own witnesses to their shame that they never see, nor know ought; a defect of the particle that.: as Chapter 37.26. The maker of them, who know whereof they are made, and how handled in the making, are the best witnesses, that can be, against them, to testifie that they have neither sight, nor sense; and may justly therefore be ashamed of adoring such trumpery, as they, of all others, cannot but know them to be, Ps.97.7. v. 11. or, they cannot but see their own sottishness and senselesness, if they had the wit to consider it, in worshiping those as gods, whom they see and know to be such, verse 18,19. But the former seems the better.

V.10. Who hath formed a god, or molten a graven image; that is profitable for nothing?] Who, but a mad man, would deem ought that man makes, or that himself hath made, to be god? or account that to be God, that is good for nought? verse 9. Hosea 8.6. Hab.2.18. See Jeremiah 16.20.

or] Heb. and: as Chapter 43.9.

molten a graven image] Cast materials, or metals, in a mould, to frame thereof an image, that may, by graving, afterward be polished, and perfected. See ch.49.19. such images put here, for all of all sorts; as ch 41 29.

that is profitable for nothing] Heb. not to profit: as Jeremiah 7. 11. and how then fit to be Lay-mens books? being unprofitable, Habakuk 2. 18. abominable, Chapter 41. 24. the fruit of errours, Jeremiah 10.15. and lying teachers, Jeremiah 10.8.& 16.19. Habakuk 2.18.

V.11. Behold all his fellows shall be ashamed; and the workmen, they are of men] Or, and the workmen, they more then any. See the like phrase, chapter 52.19. Heb. Adam; a man, for, any man, or any one; as verse 15. and as ish; Jeremiah 5.1. the whole society, or fraternity of them, that have ought to do about them, or dealings with them, may justly be ashamed of them: as they shall also be confounded, when they expect help from them, Psalm 97.7. chapter 1. 29.& 42. 27. and 45. 16. and none more then the workmen, (of which term, see on Chapter 40.19.) the makers of them, that have been best acquainted with them, and the nature and condition of them. See on verse 9.

Let them all be gathered together, let them stand up, yet they shall fear, and shall be ashamed together] Let them convene, and combine, as Demetrius and his fellows, Acts 19.24-29. stand stoutly to it, and make all the power they can, yet shall they never be able to maintain their forged deities, nor to acquit themselves from fear and shame, in seeking to support them. See chap.41.1,5,21,22.

stand up] As parties to be tryed at the barr, Num.35.12. or, as Patrons to plead for their clients, Acts 24.1.

yet] A defect of the discretive; as Psalm 119.8,9. Job 14.9.

V.12. The Smith with the tongs both worketh in the coals, and fashioneth it with hammers, and worketh it with the strength of his arms] See chapter 40.19.& 46.6. Jeremiah 10.3.

Smith] Heb. workman of iron: as 2 Chr.24.12. He speaketh first of the Smith, that maketh idols of metal: then of the Carpenter, that frameth them of wood. verse 13.

with the tongs] The word here used, seems rather to signifie an ax. See Jer.10.3. and so the Jewish Masters commonly expound it, an axe, or an hatchet, nor is the particle with, in the text. Others, therefore, read the words, The smith maketh an ax to wit, say they, for the Carpenter, to use for the same purpose, for the framing of such idols of wood, as he doth of iron or, as some other, He maketh his idol, as he doth an ax, or an hatchet, or any other instrument for ordinary employment. Others, lastly, expound the whole verse of the making of an ax, simply, as describing what pains he taketh about the forming of an axe only, which the hewer of wood, or feller of trees, taking from him, or buying of him, maketh use of, for matter to make an idol, with, Jer.10.3. this may seem the more probable, because elswhere, speaking of molten, or metal images, he mentioneth gold and silver onely, passing by those baser metals, as pointing to the gold-Smith, or silver-smith, rather then to the iron-workman, or, the blacksmith, ch.40.19 & 46.6 Jer.10.4,9. Howbeit, they had, even the greatest of them, gods also, as well of brasse and iron, as of gold and silver, Daniel 5. 4. and much art and curious workmanship may be shewed, as well in the one, as in the other.

both worketh in the coals] Heb. coal, taken collectively: as we do oft use it; coal, for coals: and it is used, sometime for coal, simply, or dead coal, as Prov.26.21. sometime, for quick coal; as chap. 54.16. and so here: either, he worketh in the coals, to wit, the metal, to make his idol, verse 10. or, which he worketh in the coal, to wit, the axe before-mentioned; the copulative, for the relative, in this latter, as verse 7.

and fashioned it] Either the idol, or the axe. See verse 9, 10. Chapter 41.7. and the text may be read, without any supply, The Smith an ax both worketh in the coals, and fashioneth it with hammers: a trajection of the copulative; such as is found, Genesis 22. 4. Chapter 17. 14. 2 Kings 2.14. Job 23.12. Proverbs 23.4.& 24.27.

with hammers] So the word signifies, as appeareth, Judges 4. 21. joyned with nails, Jeremiah 10.4. which it cannot therefore signifie; though it come from a word, that signifies to bore, or to pierce; which is not the proper, or principal use of an hammer: but to that is answered, that the hammer thereby signified, was somewhat like the twi-bil, sharpe, to strike thorow with, at the one end; and flat, to beat out with, at the other: hammers, in the plural; because several sorts of them: some to beat out; and some to polish, Chapter 41.7.

with the strength of his arms] He putteth all his might to it, either in regard of the toughnesse of the metal he works upon; (see somewhat the like, Eccl.10.10.) or, out of an earnest desire to make him an idol.

yea, he is hungry, and his strength faileth; he drinketh no water, and is faint] This some, also, refer to their eagernesse upon the work they are about, that it maketh them forget the necessities of nature, out of devotion even to their yet unmade idols, verse 20. Others; to shew the unusefulnesse and inability of their idols, whom they take so much pains about, to relieve them; they may work, and fast, until they faint, for ought they are able to do for them, verse 10. they cannot refresh them, or renew strength to them, when they are tired out, and ready to faint, as God can do, and doth, to his, chap. 40.29. they cannot supply them with food, as God did his people, with manna from heaven, Exodus 16.13-15. nor with drink, as with water from the rock he did his, Exodus 17.6. Heb. and is hungry, and his strength faileth; he drinketh no water, and is faint. Which some therefore thus render, when he is hungry, (wanting bread) his strength faileth, and if he drink not water, he is faint; that is, if he want bread and water, he may faint, and his strength fail him, for any provision his idol is able to afford him. See the like construction, chapter 30.20.& 35.4.& 37.9, 26. and of fainting, and failing, Chapter 40. 30, 31. for, his strength faileth; the Hebrew hath it, strength is not to him: as 2 Chr.20.12. Or simply, he laboureth hard at the forge, and about the fire, until he be faint, and his strength fail him, for want of refreshing; as in that employment work-men, the meaner sort of them especially, oft do.

V.13. The Carpenter stretcheth out his rule] From the Smith, he passeth to the Wright. Heb. The workman of trees, or wood, or timber; as 1 Chron.14.1.& 22.15. carpenter, cutter, or carver. See Chapter 40,20.

stretcheth out] Upon the piece of timber, whereof he meaneth to make his idol.

rule] Heb. line. So the word properly signifies: nor is a rule so properly said to be stretched out. See chap.28.17.

he marketh it with the line] The word say the Jewish Doctors, signifieth vermilion; though for that, another word seemeth used, Jer. 22 14. and it may, peradventure, rather be oker: but by a metonymy, a string, or thred, therein dipt, or therewith coloured: not unlike the same, that our workmen use: the word is no where else found in Scripture: but so a scarlet string, or thred, Cant. 4.3. for that which is rendred, a scarlet thred, Gen.38.28.& Joshua 2.18. seems to have a far other notion, somewhat the same with that, Prov.31.21. The same thing in effect, is this with the former, for he stretcheth a line over it, therewith to mark it, where, and how far, to cut of it.

he fitteth it with planes] Heb. he maketh it with planes; or to work it with planes: that being the end of his marking the timber, to direct him, and shew what is to be taken away of it, the word cometh from a root, that signifies to scrape, or pare away, Leviticus 14 41. the verb found in that notion there, and the noun in this, only here: and it is used here, in the plural number, because they used two sorts of planes, a bigger, and stronger, to fetch off the rougher and more rugged matter first, and a less, or finer afterward, to smooth and polish the more exactly the remainder.

and he marketh it out with the compasse] The word comes from a verb used, Job 26.10. the verb there only, and the noun here.

and maketh it after the figure of a man, according to the beauty of a man] Or, to make it after the model (for the word is properly, of buildings, Exod.25.40.1 Chr.28.12.) of a man, according to the comeliness, (comely proportion) or goodlinesse of a man, with such outward limbs and lineaments, as a man hath, Psalm 115.5-7.& 135.16,17. or, according to the excellency of a man, as some; referring it to that which followeth. Of the word, see on chap.4.2. But I conceive it, rather to be here taken the other way, because it is the word Adam, that is here used; which usually goeth for an ordinary man. See on ch.2.29. Howsoever, that is the end of using the compass about his idol; as the planes before, to smooth and polish, so this, to give it its due proportions and lineaments.

that it may remain in the house] Heb. to sit, or dwell, or stay, or abide, in the house; for all these, the word of sitting, importeth, in Scripture; Deut.9.9.2 Sam.7.18. Psalm 23.6. chap.13.20. to dwell in some Temple, as some King in his Palace, or some great man in his house, Dan.1.2. or to stay and abide in some house, either publike, or private, Deut.27.15. Judges 17.5. because it is not able to stir out, ch.41.7. Jer.10.4, 5.

V. 14. He heweth him down cedars, and taketh the cypress and the oak] Such trees as afford timber of longest continuance. See chap.40. 20. Heb. to hew down, as Deut. 19.5.1 Kings 5,6: which may well be retained, and the text thus read, He taketh courage also to himself, among the trees of the forrest, or he useth his strength upon the trees of the wood, to hew him down cedars, and to take the cypress, or the oak, or, to wave all the trajections, and take the words, as they lye in the text, In hewing he heweth him down, (as Jer.3.1.) that is, He is busie in hewing him down (see on chap.59.13.) cedars; he taketh also the cypress and the oak, or the cypresse, or the oak: Or, as a learned late Writer, cedars are to be cut down by him. See on chap. 45.1.

cypresse] The name of this tree is no where else found; and our Jewish Masters say little of it, but that it is the name of a fruitless tree. Some of ours would have it, to be a pine: so the Greek seems to render either this, or that, in the last clause mentioned. Some, a kind of oak, that which is usually called the holm; so the old Latine. Some, a kind of cedar, because the name of the cedar, and this, differ but in one, and that a servile letter: it may well be the cypresse, partly, because some remarkable places of pleasure seem to have had their name of Thirsah, from it, as being planted with pleasant groves of it, 1 Kings 16. 9. Cant.6.4. now the cypresse is a very graceful tree; and the timber of it, both for the beauty, and the dureableness of it, much used in times past, for images. See on chap. 40.20. Howbeit. some are of the mind, that Gopher, which Noah built the Ark with, Gen.6.14. to be the Cypresse tree, and the names come very neer; and this then some other. See Bochart in his Phaleg, l.1. c.4.

and the oak] Or, or the oak, as v.10. of the tree, see on ch.2.13. and 6.13.

which he strengtheneth for himself among the trees of the forest] So reading the words, the copulative is put for the relative; as ver. 7. But the trees of the forest are not of any mans planting; nor is mans care usually employed about them, to further their growth. See Psa. 104.16. Besides that those trees, as they are of long continuance, so of slow growth, beyond a mans ordinary age, ere they come to be fit for timber. I suppose therefore, the marginal reading to be the better; and he taketh courage to himself; or, he employeth his strength among, or upon, the trees of the forest: or, if we admit the former change that would be more probable that some other have, Which hath lift up it self, or strengthened it self, among the trees of the wood. See of Ashur, Ezek.31.5.

he planteth an ash] Either he seeketh out some fair tree in the forest, or taketh some one of his own planting, (the original whereof, therefore, he cannot but well know,) that is now, what by his own industry about it, and what by the rain from above, Deut.11.10, 11. grown to some bulk, that may well afford matter for such a purpose.

ash] The name of this tree, likewise, is no where else found in Scripture; and the Jewish Masters leave us here, also, at a losse: telling us only, that it is a good timber tree. The old Latine, and so it may be the Greek also, render it, a pine. But many, in regard of the identity of the name, conceive it to be a kind of ash, that hath leaves broader then ordinary, by the Latines called ornus, which cometh ful home to the Hebrew; though I suppose that consonancy between the two words, oren, and ornus, to be but casual; and that this latter came rather from the Greek ὀρεινὸς and was by the Latines so termed, because it thrived best on hills: as Pliny reporteth of it, l.16. c.18. it seemeth, that chests or, arks, were usually made of it; for the names of either, this, and that of a chest, or ark, in Hebrew are of the same stock, and differ not much, Oren, and Aron.

and the rain doth nourish it] Or, which when the rain hath brought up] Heb. made big, or great: as ch.1.3. Ezek.31.4. of the syntax, see ch. 37, 9, 36.

V.15. Then shall it be for a man to burn] Heb. And: as ch.30.20. and 35.4.& 40.18. when it is thus grown up, it serveth any one for fuel: a man, for, any one, as ver. 11.

for he will take thereof, and warm himself] Heb. and he will take (as ver.14) Or, yea, he will take (as Chap.29.23.) Or, even he himself will take (as Chap 40.30.) of them, (of any one of those trees before mentioned, or of chips that he heweth off) and be warm, that is, that he may be warm, as chapter 53. 2. or, wherewith to warm himselfe, as Job Job 34. ch.47.14. he himselfe maketh fuel of part of that, whereof, afterward, he maketh him a god; Verse 17.

yea, he kindleth it, and breaketh bread] Or, he kindleth it, also, to bake bread: he maketh use of it, as well for the oven, as for the chimney: the same syntax, as before, and Josh.24.9. a defect of the pronoun it; as ver.8,13.

yea, he maketh a god, and worshippeth it, he maketh it a graven image, and falleth down thereto] Or, he maketh also (as 2 Kings 2.13.) or, yet (as chap.44.10.) he maketh of it a god, to bow himself down to, (as Exod. 20.5.) he maketh it a graven (or, carved, as chap.40 20.) image, to fall down to: the Prophet useth of purpose, as some think, a Chaldee term, both here, and again, v.17,19. and ch.46.6. It is found eleven times, in the Syriack of Daniel, chapter 3.

V.16. He burneth part thereof in the fire; with part thereof he eateth flesh: he roasteth roast, and is satisfied; yea, he warmeth himself, and saith, I am warm, I have seen the fire] See verse. 15, 19.

part] Heb. half; as Zach.14.14. and so both the ancient Greek and Latine, and our former English: which needed not have bin altered: the one half of the timber lightly goeth away, in hewing, squaring, planing, fashioning, and the like.

with part thereof he eateth] Or, as some, on part thereof he eateth, having made him a table, or trenchers of it: but the Prophet seems throughout this whole passage, to intend fuel only. I read the words, therefore partly, as in the text; and partly, as before, with half thereof he eateth flesh: that is, he dresseth flesh, or meat, to eat. See the like comprehensive forms of speech, cha.38,17,21 to which add, because it comes neer to this, that, Prov. 12.27. the slack, or the deceitfull man shall not roast his venison: that is, he shall not roast and eat it: see ver.19. not, that he spendeth one half of his materials, in roasting, or dressing him, a joynt of meat only; But that which he had before, in the first branch, laid down in general, of burning the one half, that he now repeateth after his wonted manner, illustrated by a more particular enumeration of the several employments, whereabout, for fewel, he maketh use thereof; to wit for dressing of his meat, his roast, especially, and for the warming of himself. See verse 19.

he roasteth roast, and is satisfied] Or, with half of it (I say) he eateth flesh, having roasted roast, to his fill. So Psalm 22. 26. The meek shall eat, and be satisfied, that is, shall eat to their fill.

yea, he warmeth himself] Or, he warmeth himself also, as ver. 15. Heb. he is warm: but those neuters, and passives, have oft a reciprocal sense, as this before. See on ver.15. and the word himself, therefore, need not be in a different character, being included in the verb. See ch.45.8.

and saith, aha] An interjection, intimating joy and comfort, Ps.35. 25,26.& 70.3.

I have seen the fire] I have been at a good fire; I have felt the fire; to see, for to feel, as Psalm 34.8. and so for, to enjoy, as Psal.34.12. and to suffer, or endure: as Ps.89. ver.48.

V.17. And the residue thereof he maketh a god, even his graven image] Of the one half of that stuff which he burnt of before, v.15,16

he falleth down unto it and worshippeth it] Or. he falleth down (before it) and boweth to it, v.15. to his own workmanship, c.2.8. and prayeth unto it, and saith; Deliver me, for thou art my god] See Jer.2.27,28. Hos.14.3.

Deliver me] Hee seeketh for safety to them that are not able to save, either him, or themselves. See chapter. 46. verse 1, 7.

V.18. They have not known, nor understood] Or, They have no knowledge nor understanding: they neither know, nor understand ought; as Psalm 14.4. Ch. 27. 11. See ver. 19, 20. ch. 45.20. Jer 10. 8, 4.

for he hath shut their eyes, that they cannot see, and their hearts, that they cannot understand] Heb. he hath daubed (as Ezek. 13.10,13.) their eyes from seeing, their hearts from understanding. Of which form; see on Chap.5.6.& 23.1. He, that is, the idol, say some; God, in just judgment, say others, ch.6.9, 10. But more simply, the verb being taken indefinitely, Their eyes are dawbed up, or shut. See the like. Gen. 41.13. 2 Sam.24.1. Luke 6.38.& 10. 20.

V.19 And none considereth in his heart] Or, So that (as Psal.78.5. Jer.14.19. none considereth in his heart. Heb. setteth it on, or returneth, or reduceth it to his heart, as ch.46.8.

neither is there Knowledg, nor understanding] See verse 18.

to say] To reason and debate the matter, thus, with themselves.

I have burnt part of it in the fire; yea, also, I have baked bread upon the coals thereof; I have roasted flesh and eaten it] See verse 15,16.

baked bread] That is, baked dough, to make bread. So Levit. 26. 26. grind meal, for grind grain, or corn, whereof to make meal; or, that by grinding, may produce meal, Chapter 47.2.

part]Heb.half as v.16.

roasted] Or, I have roasted flesh therewith, and eaten thereof, See v.16.the like defects are,ch.27.9.& 30.27.

and shall I make the residue thereof an abomination?] A most abominable thing:so Deut.27.15.ch.41. 24.

shall I fall down to the stock of a tree?And that one of mine own planting too?ver.14.Heb.to that which cometh of a tree?as Job 40.20.See ver.15.Ier.2.17.Hof.4.12.

V. 20. He feedeth on ashes] He is grossly deluded, like one that would feed on ashes, to flake his hunger; or his idoll feeds and entertains him with nothing but ashes, matter of sorrow and mourning, Psal.16.4.as Psa.102.9.or,he feedeth himself with foolish hopes of benefit, from a thing of no worth, no better then ashes; from a piece of wood, that may easily be turned to ashes, Cha.37.19. See somewhat the like,Hof.12.1.ashes is here, what wind there. Howsoever, there seems an allusion to the ashes, that the one moity of his stuff made, shewing of what worth the other half was,whereof his god was made.

a deceived heart hath turned him aside]Or,a deluded heart,(as Judg. 16.10,13.Job 17.3.)hath seduced him.See Hof.4.12.& 5.11.2 Thel. 2.11.

that he cannot deliver his soul]Heb.and he will not, or shall not deliver his soul,and,for,*fo that*as ver.19.the verb taken potentially, as ver.7.his soul,for himself? as Pf.3. 2. he is not able to wind himself out of this foolish errour,and superstitious conceit, he is so bewitched and besotted with it, Rom.1.21-25.28.

and say]Think within himself:as Psal. 14.1.& 39.1.

Is there not a lie in my right hand]Is not this mine Idoll, which I hold in mine hand, a bare figment,a meer fancy and falshood? Do not I see it, and feel it,and find it to be such? See Ier.10.8.Romanes 1.25.

V.21. Remember these (O Jacob and Israel) for thou art my servant]An admonition to Gods people, advising them to confider, seriously, the sottishness of those persons before-mentioned, and to learn wisdom, by their folly; that which they are the rather engaged to do, and shunning, carefully, such vanities and abominations, to keep close to the true God, because he hath taken them in speciall to himself, and hath dealt very freely and bountifully with them, above others, as well in setling their estate, and his Church among them, as in passing by, and pardoning their manifold defections,and restoring them, after a long and tedious captivity, unto their former flate again. The words,in the translation, are not so distinguished,as they are in the text: they lye there thus; Remember these, O Jacob: and Israel,for thou are my servant.

these]Either things, or persons,or both; for the term is common to either. See ch.45.7.& 60 8.

Jacob, and Israel..] The same, as before, verse 1, 23. Psalm 14. 7.

thou art my servant]Ch.41.8.

I have formed thee, thou art my servant, O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me]The words should, rather,according to the stops and points in the Hebrew, be thus distinguished;I have formed thee,thou art a servant, to me, O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me. Of the former branch, see ch.43.1. ver.1,2. Of the latter, Chapter 48.15.

thou shalt not be forgotten of me] Or, thou art not,or, canst not be forgotten by me.I neither do, n or can, forget thee,though,for a time, I may fo to do;Chap.49.14,15.

V.22.I have blotted out,as a thick cloud, thy transgressions; and, as a cloud, thy sins]Or,*I blot out*as chap.43. 25. As the Sun; when it breaketh forth, dispelleth the mists and clouds with his bright beams, Job 37.11. Pfal. 18.12. Or, as the wind disperseth them, be they never so thick, Pfalm 68.2. Prov.25.23.or,as a cloud,or vapour, vanisheth and appeareth no more, then if it never had been, Job 7. 9.& 30.15. Hof.6.4.& 13.3.Ilam 4 14.so do I put away thy sins, that rise up as a cloud between thee and me, Chap.59.2. hinder ring the light of my countenance from shining forth upon thee, ch.57.17.and thy prayers from finding accesse unto me, and acceptance with me, Lamentations 3. 44.Chapter 1. 15. Howbeit, Some render the words another way, on this manner; I wipe away, as with a thick cloud, thy transgressions, and as with a cloud, thy sins:the prepofition being omitted, as ch. 34. 15. & 35. 4. & 42 .21. So the sense should be; I wash away thy sins and thy pollutions, chap. 4.4.as the clouds, by pouring down showrs of rain, Eccl.11.4.do wash away the filth and slime of the earth, Ezek.24 .24. and so it might have some reference to the general deluge.Of which,the word is used,Gen.6.7. & 7.4.But the former seems the fitter.

return unto me; for I have redeemed thee] And have therefore best right unto thee:so Psal.31.5.1 Cor.6.19,20.See chap.43.1,3,4.They seem to strain the text, needlesly,that render it,return unto me, that I my redeem thee; as Chap. 45. 22. But the syntax is not the same.

V.23. Sing O ye heavens, for the Lord hath done it: shout ye lower parts of the earth; break forth into singing, ye mountains, O forest, and every tree therein: for the Lord hath redeemed Jacob,and glorified himself in Israel.] As the whole World, Heaven and Earth and all the creatures in either, are invited to rejoyce, upon the ruine and destruction of Babel, chapter 14.7,8. Rev. 18.20. so are they likewise here incited all to the like, upon the redemption and deliverance of Gods people,ensuing thereupon,c.14.1.& 35 1. 42.10, 11.& 45.8.& 49.13.& 52.9. See the like rhetorical expressions,Psal. 96 11.and 98.7, 8. All implying such abundant matter of joy, as might well affect the whole creation, were it all sensible of it. See somewhat the like in another kind, Rom.8.21,22.

lower parts of the earth]Heb. lows a defect of the subject,for low parts or places;as Psal.63.9.& 139.15 or,lower; as Eph.4.9. that is the earth below,opposed to the heavens,before,as there;or here, the vallyes oppofed to the mountains, in the words ensuing. See Chap. 24.15.

the Lord hath done it]A defect of the pronoun;as Mal.3.17. Or, the Lord hath been working.See ch.48.v.11.

glorifie himself]As well in the destruction of his enemies, as in the deliverance of his people,ch.49.3.& 60.21.& 61.3.Heb. shew himself gallant:for the word properly importeth bravery,or gallantry,Cha. 3.18.

V. 24. Thus saith the Lord thy redeemer] Chapter 43, v.14.

and he that formed thee from the womb]See v.2.

I am the Lord that maketh all things] Or, that made all things, as before,that formed thee,Gen.1.1,& 2.1. John 1.3,Heb.3.4.

that stretcheth out the heavens alone]Or, stretched out;see ch.42.5. Jer.10. 12.

alone]Without help of any; as in the next branch.

that spreadeth abroad the earth by my self] Or, Spread. See chap. 42.5.

V. 25. That frustrateth the tokens of the liars, and maketh diviners mad]Or,That frustrate,and make mad; make them at their wits end, by crossing them in their predictions:those,especially,whereby they promised long continuance to the Babylonian Monarchy. See of these.ch.47.ver. 12-14.

liars]The word signifies,first, lies,ch.16.7.Jer. 48.30. then lyers; that is, men of lyes ; as wine, for a man of wine, that is, given to wine, a drunkard,Prov.20.1.it is given to wizzards,here, and Jer. 50.36.and it seems to come from a word,that fignifies, to invent,or devise,1 Kings 12 33.or,feign, Neh. 6. 8.

that turneth wise men backward]Or, turn: by confounding them in their counsels and courses, in their plots and projects, Job 5.12-14.& 12.12,13, 16, 17. Pfalm 2.1-4. & 10,11. & 37. 12-15.ch.19 3,11,13, 14.

and maketh their knowledg foolish]Or,make,as before,2 Sam. 15, 31.ch.29 14.1 Cor.1.20.& 3.19.

V.26. That confirmeth the word of his servant, and performeth the counsel of his messengers] Or, confirm the word of my servant, and perform the counsel of my messengers. For the perfons do oft interchange.See ch.1.29. of Elsay, and other of his Prophets;as Jeremy, Ezekiel,and the reft,that foretold the downfal of Babylon, and the deliverance of Gods people.

That saith to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be inhabited; and to the cities of Judah, ye shall be built; and I will raise up the decayed places thereof] Or, That say; that give my people, by my Prophets assurance of these things, to be undoubtedly effected. For what God saith shall be,shall undoubtedly come to pass: Much more what he saith himself will do, whose Word is his Will, and his will his Work. What he will have done, no power or policy of man,can prevent avert,or avoid.He can frustrate all their designs;none can defeat his,Psal.33. 11,12.& 115.3.& 135.6.

cities of Judah] Psalm 69.35.

decayed places] Heb.wastes;as Neh.1.5, 8 & 2.1,2.

V.27.That saith to the deep,Be dry,and I will dry up the rivers]Or, That say;and so ver.28. who with a word of my mouth, can dry up the Sea, and his streams. He seems to have an eye to what he did at the red sea;as ch.43.16.& 51.10,11. and, withal, to allude unto Cyrus his draining of Euphrates, at the taking of Babylon,Jer.50. 38.& 51.32,36.See Rev.16.12.

Be dry] A word of authority and ability conjoyned, producing, irresistibly and instantly, an effect answerable to either. See the like of our Saviour, Mark 4.39.to the Sea likewise,Be still. The argument seems to run thus, for the confirmation of Gods people, He that can with a word only lay the deep dry, Psalm 106.9. can as easily set his people free, and remove all obstructions that may hinder them, either in their way homeward; or their setling there. See ch.40.3,4.Zach.4.6,7.

V.28.That saith of Cyrus, He is my Shepherd]Or,That say to Cyrus, (for the particle is the very same that was, before)Thou art my shepherd: for in the text, there is no more, then, my shepherd. See the like concise form of speech, Chapter 41. 26. and 43. 9.

Cyrus] To assure them of deliverance, he nameth the party by whom it should be effected, about two hundred years before he was born. See chap.13.22. and the like, 1 Kings 13. 2. This name he had from a Persian word, in that language said to signifie the Sun; which they honoured as a God; and some suppose that this word Cores, or Cyrus,was derived from the Hebrew Cheres, or Chares; that is used sometime for the Sun, see on chap 16. 11. and Jeremiah 19. 2. it being not unusual with the Persians and Arabians, as some learned affirm, to turn the Hebrew chet into Caph. That the Sun

Sun is by the Persians to called, Plutarch, in the life of Artaxerxes, from Cyrus, and upon his credit, relateth. But Joseph Scaliger,in his emendation of times,l.6.supposeth that Cyrus,being a Greek,was mistaken, by the similitude of sound, between Cosshed, which, in Persick, signifies the Sun, and Coresh, which, in that language,saith he, signifies food. Yet from the nearness of these two, some other learned seek to confirm the truth of the former. Howbeit, it may not unjustly be questioned, whether either of those words, Coresh,or Cosshed,had such use,or signification, in those ancient times, that in the vulgar Persian, they have at this day; any more, then the word Aphilah, which now, also, they are said to use for the Sun. One main cause of my doubt is, because the Sun was among the ancient Persians, commonly known, called, adored, and attested, by the name of Mithra, or, as the Greeks are wont to pronounce it, Mithras, and Mithres ; which appeareth by records undeniable, out of Strabo,l.15.Plutarch, in the life of Alexander,and of Artaxerxes, his discourse of Isis, & Osiris, and oft elfe-where. Hence the Mithriaca, or feasts and rites, held and performed in honour of the Sun; and the name Mithridates, or Mithridates, common among them, Ezra 1. 8. & 4. 7. whereas of either of those two, or of any of those three names above-mentioned. I find no such ancient and authentick record produced. If it be faid, that the Sun might have more names then one or two, either among them, in those times, as in the Hebrew text of Scripture it hath; that is true indeed; but those fome solid proof must be brought for particulars; whereby it may appear, that these were then names thereof with them. But see further, on chap.45. 4.

Shepherd Heb. Pastor. or Feeder, a title given usually to Rulers and Governours, both in Church and State,ch. 56.11.& 63.11. Jer. 2.8.& 23.1-4.Eph.4.11.that which may admonith them of their office and duty; not to rule, only,as the word fometime fignifies,Pfal. 78.71,72.Mic.1.14.but to feed, alfo, Chap.40.11. Jer.3. 15,& 23. 14.Ezek.34.2,23. 1 Peter 5. 2. And if the word Coresh, did in the Persick tongue, anciently, fignifie food, the name of Cyrus, might have a notion of feeding in it, anfwerable to that title that is here given him in the Hebrew.

and shall perform all my pleasure] both concerning Babylon, chap.48.14. and concerning Jerusalem, and his Temple there, in the next words. God will do all his pleasure himself, Chapter 46. 10.but not in these particulars, by himself, as he spread the earth, the Heavens,&c. but by Cyrus, chap.13,3,17.& 45.13. & 46.11.Jer. 51. 20-24.

CHAP. XLV.

Verse 1. THus saith the Lord] This Chapter is alfo of the same subject with the former, and may not, without good probability, seem to be part of that prolix Sermon, or Prophecy, that began with the fourtieth Chapter, and endeth with this; apparent it is, that this Chapter beginneth, where that next before ended,Chap.44.28.

to his anointed to Cyrus] Among the people of God, two sorts of persons were annointed: Kings, 1 Samuel 10. 1.and 16.13.2 Sam. 2.4.1 Kings 1.39.2 Kings 9.6.& 23. 30. Pfalm 89.20. and Priests, Lev.8.12.& 16.32.Num.3.3.& 35.25.Pfalm 133.2. as for the annointing of Prophets, with material oyl, there is no record extant in Scripture. Elias is willed to annoint Elisha, Prophet in his stead, to succeed him; but that he put in execution only, by casting his mantle on him,1 Kings 19.16,19. So that there to annoint, as it concerned Elisha, was, and Hazael too, for ought we find in the Story, and comparing 1 Kings 19.15. with 2 Kings 8 13. signifieth no more then to assign or deligh one to some special office or function, though no drop of material oyl be shed on him to that purpose : so is Absolon faid to have bin annointed, by the people, for their King,2 Sam.19.10. though we read not, that that Ceremony was used about him; and Christ is said to have bin annointed, though not with any such material, Chap.61.1.and so Cyrus, here, though no such custome of oyling Kings were in his Country. But he is called Gods Annointed,because he was, as certainly,as sufficiently, and as efficaciously designed by God, and enabled unto the execution of those offices that God had appointed to be done by him, as if he had, at Gods command, in the solemneft manner,been annointed by the hand of the highest Priest, or holyest Prophet. For those Jewish Masters are wide and wild here, (whom yet some Christian Writers seem fondly to abet) by his annointed, underftanding not Cyrus, but the Lords Messias, or, the Lord Messias, peculiarly fo termed,Christ,as if the meaning were,Thus saith the Lord,to his Messias, concerning Cyrus.But the text is plain,to his Messias,or,to his annointed,to Cyrus,as to his Messias,or to his annointed, to David,Pf.18.50. there is an emphasis in it,here especially;to him,whom I now name, so long before he is in being.See ch.44.28.and ver.4.

whose right hand I have holden] Or, strengthened; or, I do, or will hold, or, strengthen; for the word fignifieth, fometime, to hold; chap 41.6,13.& 42.6.sometime, to strengthen, 2 King. 15.19. Dan. 11. 1.But the particle, here used, carryeth it rather to the former as chap 64.7. Yet fo, as the latter is alfo implyed; as if it were faid; whom I by holding his right hand ftrengthen, or enable, to subdue nations.Of fuch concise and comprehensive manner of speech, see on ch.38.17,21.Of the metaphor,Pf.73. 23.& 89.21.Ch.41.ver.10.

to subdue nations before him]Or, as a late learned Writer, nations are to be overthrown,or, laid along, before him: that, saith he, is the frequent use of the particle here used, as Chap.44.14.But the received verfion may well ftand. Nations, that is, the Babylonians, and others,that either lay in his way homeward; or were affistant unto them; Jer.50.21.& 51.9.20 Pfalm 144.2.& ch.41.2. where the same word is used.

and I will loose the loins of Kings]Or, and that I may loose the loins of Kings; or, when I shall have loosed the loins of Kings, or, of their Kings. See the like use of the copulative, Pfal. 99.8.chap.8.21.& 33.1.& 41.12.Neh.2.13. Job 11. 3. and the defect of the pronoun possessive;chap.40.31.and 43.14.and 49.22. Heb. open them; as if their joynts opened, and so were loosed one from another. Either by striking with the sword, thorow the joins, where wounds are deadly, Deuteronomy 33.11. and where the seat of ftrength is, Job 40 16.Nah. 2.1. or, by smiting them with terrour, and with pains and anguith,thence proceeding, Ezek. 21.6. Dan.5.6.ch.21.3. or, as some of the Jewish Commenters, by loosing the girdle from their loins, the emblem of ftrength and authority,Job 12.18.ch.11. 5.& 22.21.& 23.10. See ver.5.

to open unto him the two-leaved gates]Or, that doors, such as great mens houses and Palaces are wont to have, Deut. 3.5. Ezek.41.24. Mal.1.10.See chap.13.2.may be opened to him;or, doors are to be opened to him, as before, nations to be subdued.

and the gates shall not be shut] Or, that the gates may not stand shut. The gates of great towns and cities : for of them is the word most commonly used, Josh.2.5.2 King.7.1,3,10.put oft times also,therefore, for the city it felf,Exodus 20.10.Deut.16.11.& 28.52.no gates, or bars, shall be able to keep him out, as all shall thy open before him, as Acts 12.10.See ver.20. The whole paffage may thus be rendred. I thus holding by the right hand, I will enable to subdue Nations before him, when I have loosed the loins of Kings; and to open the two-leaved doors unto him, so that no gates shall shut.Or, Whom I hold by my right hand, to subdue nations before him, whose Kings loins I have loosed; and to open the two-leaved doors unto him,so that no gates shall stand shut. Of this use of the copulative, see Chap.44. 20. Be shut, for ftand shut, as, be open, for ftand open, chap.60.11. and be built, for, ftand built; Dan.9. 25.

V.2. I will go before thee, and make the crooked places straight] or, uneaven wayes, caves; the word rendred crooked, is no where else found, and ambiguous, therefore: the root it should come from,hath a notion of goodlinesse, and glorioufneffe: nor want there those, who not improbably conjecture, that it fignifieth hilly places:two letters; resh and daleth, being in shape fo neer the one to the other; that they may eafily be taken, and fo are, fometime, the one for the other; Diphath, and Rodanim, for Riphath, and Dodanim, 1 Chr. 1.6, 7 with Gen.10.3,4.See, alfo, Chap.40.15.Jer.2.20.& 31.40. So the sense should be, I will lay the hilly places level : for the verb doth manifeft ly fignifie, to level,or make plain and even, chap.28.25. I will go before thee to conduct thee,as Exod.13.21. ch.58.8.)and to cleer all thy passages for thee.See ch.40.4.& 42.16.ver.13.

I will break in pieces the gates of brasse, and cut in sunder the bars of iron] No ftrength shal be able to withftand thee,or keep thee out, Pfal 107.16.and 147.13.Prov. 18.19.

V.3. And I will give thee the treasures of darknesse, and hidden riches of secret places] The rich treasures, as of other Kingdoms,so of Babylon, especially, Jer.so. 37. and 51. 13. that have a long time been laid up, and lien out of fight; but thou shalt now seize on, and receive as a reward for thy worksone, for me and my people. See the like of Nebuchadnezzar, Ezek.29.18-20.

that thou maist know, that I the Lord, who call thee by thy name, am the God of Israel]Or, that it is I the Lord, who call thee by name, even the God of Israel.Heb. I have called thee by thy name.See before, on ch.44.28.and ver.4.See alfo before, ch.43.1.

V.4. For Jacob my servants sake,and Israel mine Elect] See on ch, 41.8,it is out of Gods love to his Elect,that he doth all this,ch.14.1, & 43.4,14.

I have even called thee by thy name: I have surnamed thee, though thou hast not known me] That is, I have taken fpeciall notice of thee, fay fome;as Exod.33.12,17.Chap.43.1.John 10.3.but it feems to intimate withal, a fpecial denomination of him; because it is here more fully, then before,ver.3. I have call'd thee,or, call to thee, by thy name, Exod.31.2.and because there is mention of a name,and,a surname;some refer it unto that, which,of Cyrus, fay they, is reported by Herodot, lib. 1. and by Iuftine after him. that being caft out by his Grandfathers command, he was found sucking a bitch, and was thereupon called Spaco, which in the Persick tongue, fignifieth a dog ; but after, coming to years, and to place of command, withal, was then called Cyrus, a name, that hath a notion of power and authority in it, as they fuppofe may appear, by the Greek Κύριος, a Lord, so that his first name should be Spaco, and his first name, Cyrus, before mentioned, in the last of the foregoing Chapter, and the first of this. But of these fables, rather then stories, antiquity yeeldeth us not a few: as of Telephus, nursed by an Hinde or a Doe, Romulus, and Remus by a female Wolfe, and the like. Howbeit, the truth is, that the Authors produced do not so report, as it is related; for the former saith only, that the herdsman's wife was called Spaco, which in the Median tongue, and wereth the Greek cyno, so termed, of a word that signifieth a dog, or bitch, and that thence arose the idle figment, of his being suckled by a bitch, because he had been nursed by her, as from Romulus, and Remus his nurse, called Lyca, or Lupa, the like report was raised: and the latter, though he tell the tale, as a truth, yet he affirmeth the name Cyrus, to have been given him, while he lived in the herdsmans house: nor indeed is it so certain, what the name Cyrus importeth: and much less, that those Greek terms had their original from the Persees nor seems it so safe, to build expositions of Scripture, on such fandy ground: nor, lastly, doth the word here used signifie that which we usually call a surname. The word signifieth, properly, to enslile, or entitle one, to give him some eminent, or honourable, title: so Elihu telleth Job, that he could not, nor durft, give titles, as in way of flattery, men use to do, Iob 32.21,22. & Chap.44.5. it is said, one shall entitle himself by the name of Israel: call himselfe one of those that belongeth to Israel: as our Saviour calleth Nathanael, a true Israelite, Iohn 1.47. and two of his Apostles, Iames, and John, the sons of thunder, Mark 3.17. the word therefore, here, hath no reference to the term Cyrus, (for that was his proper, and peculiar name, but to those other high, and honourable titles, that God here giveth him, and would rather be rendred, I have entituled, or stylled thee; or I have given thee an honourable stile, or title, to wit, in calling thee Cyrus my shepherd, Chap.44.28. and Cyrus, mine annointed; for that is the stile, and those the titles, that God here fasteneth upon him. The words may be rendred, either by connexion with the former verse, That thou maist know, that it is I the Lord, that call thee by name, the God of Israel, for Jacob my servants sake, and Israel mine Elect(for so the verses, sometime, break, in the middle of a sentence: as Psalm 96.12,13. & 98.8,9. chap.64.1. Jer.41.18. and 50.13.) I both call thee by thy name, and give thee honourable titles. So is the copulative oft used, Psal.76.7. Jer.17.26. howsoever, the latter part of this verse, seems most fitly, either thus rendred, or I then called thee, &c. ——when thou knewest not me: as Chapter 31.3. & 44.14.

though thou hast not known me] Heb. and thou knewest me not or when thou knewest me not: as Chapter 33.1. and 43.12. before ever thou hadst any notice at all of me; but was, by means thereof, afterward brought thereunto. See Ezra 1.1.

V.5. I am the Lord, and there is none else; there is no God besides me] ch.43.11. & 44.6,8.

I girded thee with strength, though thou hast not known me] I gave thee power and might, (as Psal.18.32.11,5. a metaphor from persons girt, who are in that regard, both more active and stronger. See on v.1.) or, I stirred thee up, to gird, and get on thine armour, to make warlike preparations, and set upon an expedition, (as 1 Kings 20.11.1. Sam.24.13. Psal.45.3,4.) though thou then a little thought of on me, or who it was, that did set on work, or that did so prosper and strengthen thee, ver. 1, 2. or, when as yet, thou wast altogether ignorant of me: as verse 4. See also, Chapter 13.3-5,17. and 10.6,7.

V.6. That they may know from the rising of the Sun, and from the West, that there is none besides me; I am the Lord, and there is none else] Or, That it may be known: as Chap.59.19. See Mal.1.11. That by the deliverance of my people, which I will effect by thee, my name, and renown, may passe thorow the whole world, and men in all parts, come to the notice of it, by occasion of thy proclamations concerning it, & thine acknowledgment thereof therein published, Ezra 1.1,2.

the West] Heb evening-coast: as Psalm 113.3. Chapter 43.5.

I am the Lord] Or, that I am the Lord: as Chapter 41.7. & 43.11.

V.7. I form the light, and create darkenesse] Heb. Framing light, and creating darkenesse; or, That frame light, and create darkenesse. That send prosperity, and adversity; the one, at some times; the other, at other times: and the one, to some: the other, to others, Ester 4.3. & 8.16,17. Psalm 97.11. & 112.4. Eccles.7.14. as by the motion of the celestial bodies, I make the ayr, either lightsome, or dark, Gen.1.2-5. Psalm 19.1,2. & 74.16. & 104.20. Jer.31.35. & 33.20. for therein to the here alluded to.

I make peace, and create evil] Heb. making, or, that make; and create, or that create peace, that is, prosperous successe and safety; as Judg.18.6. Ch.48.18 as to Cyrus and his forces, to to his own people by him, and them, Chapter 26.3. & 57.18,19. Evils, that is, calamities to the Babylonians, and their complices, Chapter 47.9,11.

I the Lord do all these things] Or, that (as before) I the Lord do, or that it is, I the Lord, who do all these things; as ch.44.21. See Lam.3.37,38. Amos 3.6.

V.8. Drop down ye heavens from above; and let the skies pour down righteousnesse: let the earth open, and let them bring forth salvation, and let righteousnesse spring up together] These words are diverfly expounded. Some understand them, as a calling upon heaven and earth, the whole world, to rejoyce, upon the deliverance of Gods people; as chap.44.23. So the ancient Greek, and those that follow us; Though some suppose that this reading came there by a misftake of the Transcriber. Others, of their concurring, and conspiring together, in carrying on that work, that God was now, by Cyrus, setting on foot for the destruction of Babylon, and the deliverance of Gods people, according to his judgment, the one, to his faithfulness, the other. See Josh 10.13. Judg.5.20 1 Sam.7.10. Psalm 18.9-14. & 85.11. Others make it a description of Cyrus his prosperous and plentiful reign, accompanied with justice, clemency and bountytin regard whereof, the Persians were wont to call Cyrus a father, Cambyses, his son, a Lord, and Darius, his succellor, a Merchant, or a Trader: so Herodote, lib. 3. And indeed somewhat after this manner, is Solomons reign described, Psalm 72. 6,7. Some draw it all to a spiritual fense, as a promise from God, that holines and righteousnes, should abound as plentifully among them, after their return from capivity, (the people being thereby refined, and reformed, chap. 48. 10.) as the earth is wont to abound with fruit, when it hath been liberally watered with rain from above, Psalm 65.10-13. & 68.9. For they seem to dive over-deep, that find Christ, and the Virgin Mary, here: as many also do the like, Psalm 72.6. & 85.11. Those seem to come neer to the true sense of the text, who suppose, therein to be intimated an abundant blessing of God upon his people, in their state now again to be restored; and that set forth in certain metaphorical phrases, borrowed from those means, whereby lands are wont to become fertile and fruitful, and the benefits of plenty, peace, prosperity and safety, that unto people from thence accrew. See the like, Psalm 72.3,6,7,16. & 85.9-12 chap.35.1,2,9. Hos.2.21-23. Howbeit, I conceive the genuine sense of the place to be this, That Gods mercy and goodnes, should so manifestly, and plentifully appear, in the deliverance of his people, and disposing all things for their behoof, as if the heavens rained down whole showers of it upon them, and the earth, having received it, should return a plentiful improvement of it, that it seems to be the proper intendment of the like passages, in those places, Pf.85.11. & ch.61.1.

Drop down] Not a prayer for a blessing, as some would have it) by mans but a command, rather, of blessing from God, Deut. 28. 8, 12. Psalm 78.23. Ezek.34.26. Mal.3.10. as a counter-mand on the other side, crosse thereunto, Chap.5.6.

pour down righteousnes] Or, in righteousnes; as Psalm 72.3. & Joel 2.23. two parallel places; that is, in a due, just, and full measure: or, showers of righteousnes; as rain of liberalities, Psalm 68.9. and showers of benediction, Ezek.34.26. for large and plentifull rain; or, of righteousnesse; that is, of mercy, bounty and goodnes: for so the word is, in Scripture, very frequently used, Pf.112.3,9.2 Cor.9.9, 10.

let the earth open] Or, open it selfe; for such verbs, neuterally taken, have oft a reciprocal fense: see Ch.44.16. So to be hard, or to harden; (as the forme of the verb carries it) for, to harden ones self, Job 9.4. & 39.16. or open, by a defective form, for, open its mouth, as it is at full, Genesis 4. 11. and Numbers. 16. 30. 32. But so it also, Pf.106.17. the earth opened; to wit, her mouth; as, I opened, to wit, the door, Cant.5.6. open, to receive, and take in, what cometh down upon it from above, Deut.11.11.

let them bring forth salvation, and let righteousnes spring up together] That is, fay some, Let the things on earth, bring forth salvation. Others, that salvation and righteousnes, may spring forth; and it, (to wit, the earth) may produce, them together. But I finde not where the former verb is so used, as may well warrant this version. I suppose the text may not, amiss, be thus rendred, That (as verse 1.) they (that is, heaven and earth, as it were between them) may bring forth salvation; (that is, deliverance, or, safety: as chap.26.1. & 60.18. to my people) and it (that is, the earth, as Gen.3.18. Deut.29.23. so watered from above) may cause righteousnes to sprout forth together with it, either Gods goodnes, or his faithfulnesse, therein manifested, and magnified. See these two joyned, Chapter 56.1.

I the Lord hath created it] Or, as some, God will create it: as ch.41. 20. That God, who hath an absolute command and power over heaven and earth, hath appointed these things to be done, or, is he that will do them: as Pf.109.27. But others rather (because the pronoun is a masculine,) I have created him, to wit, Cyrus: I have fitted & furnished him with parts and abilities, for this purpose, to deliver my people, and to do execution on their enemies, ch.44.28. So chap. 43.7.

V.9. Wo unto him that striveth with his Maker] This passage is here inserted, as some think, to curb and restrain the impatiency of some spirits among Gods own people, who growing weary of their long continuance in captivity, began to murmur against God, and complain of him, as if he dealt not so equally with them, nor so advisedly, in delivering them up to the will, and detaining them so long in the hands of those that thereby took occasion to blaspheme his name, Chap.52.5. Ezek.36.20. and refusing, withal, to await Gods leisure, and abide his pleasure, either for their continuance, in that dejected estate, or their deliverance out of it; as by him, in his wisdome, should be deemed meet. See Chap.28.16. As others, to check and control the pride and presumption of their enemies, the Babylonians especially, who made account to keep Gods people in an everlasting slavery, chap. 14.17. Yea, to make their part good against God himself, if he should attempt to rescue them out of their hands. See Chap. 10.11. & 37.10. Dan.3.15. It may well intend hands, or both rather, with many other passages of Gods providence, concerning the affairs of those times; which flesh and blood would be over-prone to be quarrelling with God about, and and controlling his carriage of them. See chap. 40. 27. and 49.14.

Striveth with his Maker] Either by opposing his intentions, or by controlling his dispensations. Some taint whereof, in heavy prefluces, taketh hold sometime, even of the godly, though they check, reeall, reprove, and recover themselves, eft soons, again. See Job 21.7-13. Psalm 73.1-22. Jeremiah 12.1,2. Habakuk 1.2-4, 13,14.

his Maker] Heb. his potter, or him that framed him, Chapter 44. 24. and 64. 8. an allusion to the matter, and manner, of mans first creation, where the same term is used, Genesis 2.7.

let the potsherd strive with the potsherds of the earth] That is, with earthen potsherds, like it self: as if he had said, if frail man, who is but an earthen pot, 2 Cor.4.7. made out of the earth, Gen.2 7 & 3. 19. will needs be contending, let him pick out his match to contend with, let him cope with man like himself; but let him take heed how he attempt to be dealing with his Maker, how he enter into the lists with him, who is infinitely stronger then himself, Eccl. 6. 10. Cor.1.25. & 10.22. See Jer.18.3,4, 6, or, as some render the words, as the potsherd, with earthen potsherds; as if it were said, that contendeth with his potter, as if he were, being but an earthen pot, set the best, contending and quarrelling with some other such as himself the defect of the note of similitude is frequent. See ch.2.1.8.& 28.3,4. and the supply of the verb from a former passage, no less usual. See ch.44.11,18. Some would render it, the potsherd with the workers of the earth: that is, with some one of the potters. But I find not the word any where so used: that for a workman, Chapter 44.13,45. differeth from this, as Shibboleth, from Sibboleth, Judges 12.6.

shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it, what makest thou?] What is it, that those intendeft to make? as controlling his intentions, either as not fit or, as not feasible: or, why didft thou frame me in this, or that manner, in other manner then I would have had thee to have done? See Jer. 18.4,6. Rom.9.20. and somewhat the like, ch. 10.15.

or thy work, it hath no hands] That is, thou hast not sufficiently polished thy work, thou hast not done it so exactly, as thou shouldeft: it hath not yet the last hand, as we say, put to it. But the words may rather be read, or, Heb. and: as Chap.44.10.) For thy work there are not hands; thou wanteft hands, that is, power and ability, to go thorow, with what thou intendeft; thou forteliefl, or promiseft, more then thou art able to perform, or bring about. See 2 King.7.2. But I rather here encline to that late learned Annotator, who, from the former branch, rendeth the words, or shall thy work say, (to wit, of the workman,) he hath not hands? shall it deny him to have hands, by what hands it was made.

V.10. Wo unto him, that saith to his father, what begettest thou? and to the woman, what hast thou brought forth?] Another similitude; wherby God illuftrateth the unreasonableness of those, that will take upon them, to controll, or quarel, with their Maker; either charging him with impotency, or challenging him of indirection: as if the child should quarrel with his parents, about the breeding of him, in such and such times, or in such and such manner; (see Job 3.3-12. Jer.15.10. & 20.14-18.) or rather, (and so it answers fully to the latter branch of the former verse, (to what end do ye breed, or attempt to breed; ye will never be able to bear, or bring forth, much less to bring up; and ye were best, therefore, to forbear. See Chapter 66. 9. the issue is introduced by an allegory, speaking to the parents here, as the clay to the workman, there.

the woman] woman, for, mother; as chap. 49.15. and this term is the rather used here; because the speech is conceived, as with fome kind of scorn, as our Saviour also used it, to his mother, in somewhat a tart reproof, for her a little overmuch presumption, John 2.4.

V.11. Thus saith the Lord, the Holy One of Israel, and his Maker] Chap.43.15. & 44.2.

Ask me of things to come concerning my sons: and concerning the work of my hands, command ye me] Or, as some, somewhat allaying the harshness of the term, command unto me (to wit, by prayer) my children and the work of my hands; that is, your selves, Chap.60.21. my new-creatures, 2 Cor.5.17. my workmanship in Christ, Eph. 2. 10. Seek ye to me, for the accomplishment of my promise, concerning my children themselves, my handy work, or concerning those works that are to be wrought for them; and you shall find me as ready to do you service, as if ye had me at command, (see Joh. 10. 14.) ye shall not fail, to obtain whatsoever ye requeft, 1 John 5. 14. But the words seem spoken rather by way of reproof, directed unto the idolaters, and enimies of Gods people. And some therefore would thus read them; Ask me of things to come, and concerning my children, and the work of my hands enjoyn me; as if it were said, seek for information concerning things to come, to me the true God, who am able to foretel them, Chap.42.9 & 43.12 & 44 7. and not to your idols, who are not able to foretel you ought, Chap. 41.22,23,26. & 43.9. & 44.7. See the like, Jer.33.3. Zach.10.1,2. and try, withal, if ye can countermand, inhibite, or hinder me, in those things, that I intend to do, concerning my people. So the word of enjoyning, is used sometime, in a notion of inhibition; as Deut. 2.37. Chap.5.6. But I suppose the words may well be read, as spoken by way of interrogation, and thus rendred, Do ye question me (as Chap.41.28.) concerning the things to come? (concerning those things that I intend to do,) concerning my sons, (or, children) and concerning the work of my hands; will ye enjoyn me? or, order me? as the word is used, chap. 38.21. will ye presume to appoint, and direct me, what I shall do, and how I shall carry matters concerning the disposition of my people? See chap.40.13,14. Rom.11.33,34. for it agreeth very fitly with v. 9. & 10. and speaketh more plainly what those smisseludes there intimate; to wit, that it is over-much boldness for man to take upon him, to teach, or control God in ought.

V.12. I have made the earth, and created man upon it] See Gen.1. 1,27. Psalm 102.25. chap.42.5. & 48.13 ver.18. I framed at first, this vast universe, without relative, or ayd of any; and have, by mine infinite power and wisdome, supported, and ruled it, ever since, to this day: and want not, therefore, either ability to go thorow with; or skill, to manage what soever I undertake. See chapter 40.4.

I even my hands have stretched out the heavens] Pf.8.3. & 104.2. ch. 42.5.

and all their host have I commanded] Or, do I command; have I continually at command, ch.40.26.

V.13. I have raised him up in righteousnes] Cyrus, he meaneth, Ezra 1.1. to manifeft the faithfulnesse of his promises, in the deliverance of his people, ver.1,4. See chap.41.2. & 42.6.or, in truth, as ver.23. See chap.42.1.26.

and I will direct all his ways] Heb. make streight, or, make even. I will level all his wales: I will give him free passage, and ready successe, in all his undertakings; I will facilitate for him all his designs. See ver.2. & ch.26.7.

he shall build my city] Ch.44.28. that is, give order for the building of it; the Temple especially, the principal part of it, Ezra 1.1. as the like is faid of Solomon, Acts 7.47.

and he shall let go my captives] Heb. captivity: as ch.20.4. my people remaining in captivity under the Chaldeans.

not for price, nor reward, saith the Lord of Hosts] Freely, without ranfome, or any consideration. An argument of a royal mind, and of a right generous difpofition. See Chapter 13.17.

V.14. Thus saith the Lord; the labour of Egypt, and merchandise of Ethiopia, and of the Sabeans, men of stature shall come over unto thee] Before, he told of their deliverance out of captivity, and the setting of them at liberty, now, he proceeds to shew how, and by whom, they should be furnished with a rich and plentiful supply of such commodities, as should be requisite for the convenient feeling of them, in their land again, and the furtherance of them, in those works, that were there to be wrought by them, fulfilled, as most imagine, in the contribution that these people, being tributary to Cyrus, should, at his command, plentifully afford unto Gods people returning home from exilement, into their land, and towards the building of Gods Temple, Ezra 1.4. & 7.15,22. See chap.60.5-7. Howbeit, some other, not without some shew of probability, expound this whole passage of Cyrus himself, of whom he spake before, ver. 13. to wit, that because he had dealt so freely with Gods people, as was before intimated, God would therefore give him, as a reward, of this his generous carriage, the wealth of those rich Kingdoms and Countries, which, together with Babylon, of whom they formerly held, at the fall of that state, fell also into his hands. See verf.3. Against which is objected, that the pronoun is in the feminine genders which those, therefore, that ftand for the former Interpretation, refer either to the word captivity, in the former verse; or to the word city; but neither is needful: for of ftates doth the Scripture speak usually, as of women, damsels, ladies, wives, or widows, Chap. 47.1,7,8. & 52.2. & 54.1. & 60. 4,7. where the like promises are made unto the Iewish State, restored, with those here: which seems to carry it with the former. The Transition from person to person, which either exposition presumeth, is not unusual. See verse 17. Chapter 31. 6, 7. and 32. 11, 12. and 34. 5, 6. and 42. 13, 14.

the labour] That is, the fruit of their labour, their wealth thereby gotten; as Psalm 128.2. Ier. 3.24.

Egypt] A very rich kingdome, 1 Kings 10.28,29. and so the other two rich countries. See Iob 28.19. Psalm 72.10,15. of them, see on chap.43.3. where, because the self same people are mentioned, some would have these two places parallel; and refer both to the diverfion of Sennacherib: but of that, see there. Sure it is, that it can have no place here.

men of stature] Heb. measure, or, dimension; as Num.13.32. Sam. 21. 20. 1 Chr. 11. 23. & 20.6. So Ieremiah 22. 14. Men, tall, and big. Such are the Sabeans reported to have been, Agathiarchides, 1.5.c.70.

they shall come over unto thee] Yea, they shall themselves unto thee, whether to Cyrus, or to the Church, and to Christ (of whom Cyrus a type,) in his Church. See Pf.45.12. & 68.31. & 72.9,10,11,15. ch.18.7. and 19.21. Zeph.3.9.

and they shall be thine] Thy subjects. See Chapter 19. 23.15.

they shall come after thee] As captives are wont to follow a conquerer, in triumph.

in chaines they shall come over;] As prisoners, or, captives, Job 36. 8. 2 Chr. 36. 6. which concerning those, that were by Cyrus subdued corporally, is literally plain enough; but applyed to those, that are brought in, by the Ministry of the Gospel, unto Christ, and his Church, must be spiritually understood Ps. 45. 5. and 149. 6-8.

and they shall fall down unto thee] After the manner of adoration, in use among the Eastern people; which yet Callisthenes, in Arrian, lib. 4. reporteth, not to have been received in Persia, before Cyrus his dayes. See chap. 49. 23. & 60. 14. Psal. 72. 9. 11.

they shall make supplication unto thee] So Psal. 45. 12. and 72. 15.

saying] A defect of the participle; as Psal. 105. 15. Chapter 26. 19.

surely God is in thee] Either in thee, or with thee; O Cyrus shewing it so to be, by giving thee such success: as some. See Ver. 1, 2. or, in a peculiar manner, in, and with Christ, of whom Cyrus a type, Exod. 23. 21. Joh. 1, 2. & 14. 10. & 16. 32. & 17. 23. Acts 10. 38. Col. 2, 3. 9. and both God and Christ, in his Church, Ezek. 48. 35. Zach. 8. 23. 1 Cor. 14. 25.

and there is none else, there is no god,] That God, who is the only true; and besides whom there is none, ver. 6. 21. Chapter 44. 6.

Ver. 15. Verily thou art a God that hidest thy self] The Prophets words, admiring the hidden depths of Gods dispensations; as if he had said, Thou Lord dost, for some time, seem to hide, and withdraw thy self, to stand aloof oft in thy peoples afflictions, Psal. 10. 1. Chap. 57 17. and they must, therfore with patience, wait for their deliverance, though for a while it be delayed, Chap. 8. 17. and 28. 16. for they that so do, shall not repent them of their patience, but shall be delivered, when the wicked Idol-worshippers shall fail of their expectation, and be destroyed, ver 15 chap. 30. 18. and 44. 23. Or, thou dost carry thy self so closely and covertly, in thy dispensations, and in the passages of thy providence, that thy wayes and judgements are unsearchable, and thy intentions oft times undiscernable; and men ought not, therefore, to control and censure those things, that are past their shallow reach, Ps. 77. 19. Rom 11. 33, 34. and so it hath reference to ver. 9, 10, 11.

O God of Israel, the Saviour] Chap. 43. 3.

Ver. 16. They shall be ashamed, and also confounded all of them; they shall go to confusion together that are makers of Idols] Or; The workmen of Images shall be ashamed, and even confounded all of them; they shall go together to confusion, Psal. 97. 7. & 115. 8. Chapter 44. 11.

Idols] So called, either of a word that signifieth paines and throws, Chap. 13. 8. & 21. 3. because they procure to men nothing but sorrow and distress. See Chap. 10. 10. & 46. 1. or, from another, that signifieth the figure and fashion of ought, Psal. 49. 14. Ezek 43. 11. See Chap. 44. 13. Ezek. 8. 10.

Ver. 17. But Israel shall be saved in the Lord with an everlasting salvation] in the Lord, ver 25. or, By the Lord, as Psal. 33. 16. and Chap. 30. 15. Heb. with a salvation of ages, or, perpetuities, or eternities, as Chap. 26. 4. Dan. 9. 24. See Chap. 54. 68.

ye shall not be ashamed, nor confounded, world without end.] Heb. unto ages of perpetuity, Psal. 25. 3. Joel 2. 26, 27. Rom. 9. 33. See the like passage from person to person, Chap 1. 29. & 46. 1.

Ver. 18. For thus saith the Lord, that created the heavens] Gen 1. 1. ver. 12.

God himself, that formed the earth, and made it] Or, that God, as (2 Chron. 28. 22.) or, the same, (as Psal, 102. 27.) that fashioned the earth, and made it,) who (not made it of nothing, but) out of that rude mass, which at first it was, wrought it into that, fashion, that now it beareth, Gen. 1. 1, 2, 9, 11.

he hath established it] Or, he that established it, Psal. 93. 1. and 119, 90, 91. Eccl. 1. 4. or, that prepared, or, fitted, or, furnished it as Ps. 119. 73. Thy hands have made me, and fitted me, or furnished me, with abilities, for employment: So the word is frequently used, Exod. 19. 11, 15, Josh. 8. 4. Job 8. 8. Psal. 7. 12. and 21. 12. fitted it for mans use, by laying it dry, and furnished it with all necessaries for his support, Gen. 1. 9, 11, 29.

he created it not in vain] Or, who created it, not in vain. The same word is heer used, that is found, Gen. 1. 2. as if he had said, who though of nothing he made it a rude mass, and mishopen lump, or a vast and wast body, at first, yet did not intend that it should so continue: the same term is used, Chap. 24. 10. and 34. 11 and 44. 9. A defect of the relative; as Ch. 44. 2.

he formed it to be inhabited] Or, who formed it to be inhabited: by man principally, Psal. 119. 16. and of mankind, chiefly, for his Church, 1 Cor. 3. 22, 23. Heb. to inhabit, for man to inhabit, or, to be inhabited. See Chap. 13. 20. Some apply this, more specially, to the land of Judea, which he had assigned for his people, and fitted and furnished it accordingly for them, Gen. 12. 7. and 13, 15. and 15. 18. Deut. 11. 10. Psal, 136. 21, 22. But the text seems larger.

I am the Lord, and there is none else] Ver. 14, 21, 22.

V. 19. I have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth] I have delivered my oracles, from time to time openly in publike, and that planly and perspicuously, for the most part, as I now also do, Deut. 4. 11-13, 14. and 5. 22. and 30. 11-14. chap. 48. 16. Jer. 3. 12. Joh. 18. 20. not as your false gods, that deliver their oracle in dark cave; and corners, from under the ground, places fit for deceit; and in obscure and ambiguous terms; such as may bear contrary senses, that their fraud and ignorance may not be discovered, chap. 8. 19. and 29. 4.

in a dark place of the earth] Heb. in a place of the earth of darkness, for some dark place of the earth; as Psal. 74. 20.

I said not to the seed of Jacob, Seek ye me in vain:] Or, I have not said, &c.

the seed of Jacob] all whose issue God took to be in covenant; that which he did not with the whole issue, either of Abraham, or Isaac, Psal. 22, 23. so ver. 25.

Seek ye me] Psal. 27. 8. & 105. 4.

in vain:] The same word used before, ver. 18. Not in vain, because I perform what I promise; and do not frustrate their expectations, being both able to do for them, what they seek to me for; and faithfull to keep touch with them, Psal, 9. 10. & 22. 4, 5. whatsoever worldlings think of me, Job 21. 15. & 22. 17. Mal. 3. 14. that which the heathen-gods are not able to do for those that seek to them, ver. 20. chap. 46. 7.

I the Lord speak righteousness; I declare things that are right.] Or, I am the Lord (as chap. 44, 24.) that speak righteousness; (that is, righteous things, as chap. 56. 1. or, in righteousness, (as ver. 13 that is, righteously, faithfully, firmly, See chap. 63. 1. Yor that speak truth, (as chap. 41. 26. ver. 23.) that declare things equal: Heb. eaven, or right, and straight. See chap. 26. 7. & 33. 15. I neither require, nor deliver ought; but what is just and equal, Psal. 19. 7-10. and 111. 7, 8.

Ver. 20. Assemble your selves, and come; draw neer together, ye that are escaped of the nations.] This some understand of the Jews returned from the Babilonian captivity, having escaped the Chaldean sword, chap. 43. 6. and 66. 19. Jer. 50. 28. Others, of Proselytes converted to Judaism, upon the dissolution of the Jewish captivity, chap. 44. 5. or, converted to christianity, by the ministery of the Gospel, Zach. 8. 21, 22. Eph. 2. 12, 13, 19. Col. 1. 21. But I concur rather with those, who expound it of those Chaldeans, or, rather, Nations, that had escaped the sword of Cyrus, and were now, having by experience been taught it, able to see, how much God was able to do for his people: how little their Idols, for those that them served: Jer. 51. 50. See chap. 43. 9.

That set up (alluding either to the posture of their Images, or to the bearing of them in pomp on their shoulders, chap. 46. 18. Jer, 10. 13. (their wooden Idols, or their graven or carved (see chap. 40. 20.) images of wood, Dan. 5. 4, 23. But the phrase is emphatical; that set up a piece of wood for their god, as a piece of brass, or, brasen stuff, 2 King. 18. 4. and bricks, or brick-stuff, chap. 65. 3. See chap. 44. 15-20.

and pray unto a god that cannot save] Heb. to a god, will not, or shall not save: as to a people, will not, or, shall not save, Lam. 4. 17. and, to a people, will not or, shall not profit, chap. 30. 5, 6. a defect of the relative; and a future taken potentially. See chap. 44. 17. Jer. 2. 27. Hos. 4. 12.

Ver. 21. Tell ye, and bring them neer: yea, let them take counsel together.] Or, Declare, and draw neer, (there is an elegant consonancy in the words) or, approach: (so is the word used, Amos 9. 10.) yea, let them consult together, as, Psal. 71. 10. Some expound it, of coming home to God, and bringing of others with them: as chap. 2. 3. Zach. 8. 23. but that followeth, ver. 22. this is rather of coming to debate. See chap. 41. 21, 23. 28. & 48. 14.

who hath declared this from ancient time? who hath told it from that time? Heb. who hath made to hear this? (as chap. 41. 22.) or caused this to be heard, (as ver. 18 to be inhabited) from antiquity? or, from before? (of old, as Psal. 68. 33. & 74. 12. Hab. 1. 12.) hath told it from then? as chap. 44. 8. See chap. 41 26. and 48. 14. he uttereth this, as spoken in those times, when Cyrus had won Babylon, and set Gods people free.

Have not I the Lord? and there is no god else, besides me, a just god and a Saviour, there is none beside me.] Or, have not I the Lord, beside whom there is no god else, a just and a saving god; beside whom (I say) there is none: the pronoun indicative, for the relative: as chap. 37. 27. nor need, there is, be in a different character, because that negative, of course, includes the verb substantive. See chap. 43. 12.

V 22. Look unto me, and be ye saved all the ends of the earth:] Considering the issue of these things, and how therein, as well my power & deity, as the imbecility & vanity of your Idols, hath most evidently appeared: leaving them out of all parts, as far as the world is wide betake your selves to me, who am the only true God, and able to afford you that safety which your Idols cannot. See Verse 16. 17.

Look unto me] As to a place of safe receit, and sure refuge, Psal. 34. 5. chap. 17. 7, 8. or as the Jews, sometime, to the brazen Serpent, Numb. 29. 8, 9. Joh. 3. 14. 15. and 6. 40.

be ye saved] Or, ye shall be saved: the imperative, for the future: as do this, and live, Gen 42. 18. that is, ye shall live, Luke 8. 28. so Psal. 37. 27. chap. 36. 16.

all the ends of the earth] All the inhabitants of the world, from one end to another, Psal. 22. 27. & 65. 8.

for I am God, and there is none else.] Ver. 21. and that ye are now convinced of, by what ye have seen, ver. 26.

Ver. 23. I have sworn by my self,] Gen. 22. 16. having no greater to swear by, Heb. 6. 13. So Jer. 22. 5. & 49. 13.

the word is gone out of my mouth in righteousness,] A defect of the preposition, as chap. 41. 2. in righteousness, that is, justly, upon good ground, and agreeable to right and equity: one of the conditions required in an oath, Jer. 4. 2. in righteousness, that is; righteously, firmly, and faithfully: so as what I say, shall be certainly fulfilled, and this sense, the words next following, confirm; See chap. 63. 1. some read it, out of my mouth, a mouth of righteousness (as right hand of righteousness, chap. 41. 10.) that is, out of my righteous, or, out of a most righteous mouth, Psal. 119. 172. ver. 19. and some, by righteousness here understand truth: as, also, chap. 41. 26.

and shall not return:] What I have uttered, shall not be revoked or reversed, being, especially, bound thus with a solemn oath; Ps. 89. 34, 35 & 132. 9. or, it shall not return without effect, but shall most surely and certainly be performed and fulfilled, ch. 48, 3. & 55. 10, 11. See Josh. 8. 26. and 2 Sam. 1. 22.

that unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear.] That the knowledge, and acknowledgment of me, by submission to me, and worship done me, shall pass thorow the whole world: and it is your wisest course, therefore, to come willingly in unto me, ver. 22. Psal. 2. 8-10. & 22 27-31. and 86. 9. 110. 2, 3. Phil. 2. 10. Rom. 14. 11. where the Apostle applyeth it to the last judgment, and Christs power and authority, that then shall be manifested and excercised by him; which though it be not the main drift of Gods speech, in this place: yet is it therein necessarily included.

every knee shall bow] They shall not have me in reverend estimation and serve me inwardly in heart only, Chap. 59. 19. Mal. 1 11, 14 but shall manifest it by outward expressions, and profession also. See 1 King 19. 18.

tongue shall swear] Swear by me, or swear allegiance to me. See ch. 19. 18. & 48. 1.

V. 24. Surely, shall one say, in the Lord have I righteousnesse and strength] Or, Surely, shall he say of me, (so is the particle used, Gen. 20. 13. Chap. 41. 7.) (In the Lord is righteousnesse, Heb. righteousnesses, as Judges 5. 11. Psal. 103. 6. Dan. 9. 6. Mic. 6. 5. that is, all righteousness, or abundance of righteousnesse) and strength. The faithful shall find, feel, and acknowledg all faithfulness and righteous dealing, with strength all-sufficient, to be found in God, Job 12. 13, 16. Psal. 36. 5, 6. & 145. 3, 11, 12, 17. or, their righteousness and spirituall ability to come from him, Zach. 12. 5. John 15. 5. 2 Cor. 3. 5. Phil 2. 13. & 3. 9. & 4. 13.

shall one say] Heb. shall he say, each one shall say, or, it shall be said, as chap. 25. 9.

even to him men shall come, and all that are incensed against him shall be ashamed] Most men read these words, as two distinct sentences; the former, concerning those, who perceiving all power and faithfulness to be in the true God alone, shall voluntarily repair unto him, and adjoyn themselves to his people, embracing the advice given them, verse 22. Psalm 65. 2. Jer. 16. 19. The other, concerning those, that (obstinately stand out against him, and provoke him thereby to wrath, that such shall be put to everlasting shame and confusion, verse 16. Jeremiah 17. 13. Yet some, in regard of some distinctions in the original, make them, in effect at least, but one; and these render them two ways. Some, as spoken of persons reclaimed, and affected with a religious shame, arising from the consideration of their former follies. To him shall they come, and be ashamed, all that have been incensed against him, Jer. 31. 18, 19. Others, as spoken of the obstinate and impenitent wicked, and those only; To him shall they come, (that is, before his tribunal they shall appear, Rom 14, 10, 11. 2 Cor. 5. 12.) and shall (there, and then) be ashamed, (and confounded, chap. 1. 29-31 & 2. 19-21. Rev. 6. 15-17.) as many as are incensed against him, Psal. 2. 1, 2. 12. & 21 8-12. & 92. 9. For as for those, that understanding the words of the same persons, do thus read them, as a speech of the former parties, speaking on still of God, Let him come to him, to bicker with him; they shall be ashamed, all that are in heat against him. It seems to me, to force the text too much; as, also, some other do, whom I therefore let pass.

shall men come] Heb. he shall come, as before, he shall say: there shall be coming to him, to wit, by such as were before spoken of. See on ch. 2. 19.

that are incensed against him] See the like of Gods people, chap. 41. 11.

V. 25. In the Lord shall all the seed of Israel be justified] Or, By the Lord shall all the seed of Israel be justified: as, by my self: v. 23 That which most Interpreters expound of justification, and discharge of their sins, by faith in Christ, Acts 10. 43. & 13. 37, 38. Rom. 5. 24, 25, 28. & 5. 1. Gal. 2. 16. chap. 53. 11. as the righteousness, before spoken of, verse 24. of the righteousness by faith, Rom. 1. 17. & 3. 21, 22. 2 Cor. 5. 21. Phil. 3. 9. drawing hither, what was before said, of blotting out, and doing away their sins, ch. 27. 9. & 33. 24. & 43. 25. & 44. 22. Howbeit, I suppose it may be understood of Gods justifying of his people, by approving their sincerity, as he did Jobs, against Satans calumnies, and the groundless surmises of his friends, Job 2. 3. & 13. 18. & 23 10. and declaring their innocency and unjust sufferings, in regard of those, at whose hands they suffered: as he justified David, against the false charges and suggestions of Saul, and his flatterers, 1 Sam. 24. 9. 18. Psal. 7. 3-5, 8. so chap. 50. 8. He is neer, that justifieth me, to wit, against the false aspersions, and wrongful imputations of mine adversaries. To cleer this a little more, because most, if not all, run the other way; The enemies of Gods people pretended, that they had just cause, and good ground, to deal with them, as they did; they are lawful prize said they, and we may justly keep them: and there is no just cause, or reason, that we should be compelled to part with them, chap. 49. 24. Jer. 40. 33. yea, they took occasion to justifie their extream cruel dealing with them, chap. 47. 6. by a pretence of doing justice, in Gods behalf, on them, We offend not (say they) in destroying, and devouring them; for they have trespassed grievously against their God, Jer. 50. 7. But God telleth both his people, and them, that he would plead the cause of his people against them, and both cleer their innocency, by discovering the vanity of these their frivolous pretences, and do them right on them, as well by rescuing them out of their hands of those that held them, as by taking vengeance on them, for the wrong done to his people, chap. 46. 13. & 49. 25, 26. & 51. 5, 22, 36. Thus Gods people presume, that God would cleer the righteousnesse of their cause, as the light, Mic. 7. 9, 10. compared with Psal. 37. 6. and upon the dissolution of the captivity, they acknowledg that God had so done, Jer. 51. 10, 24. And this I take to be the genuine sense of the place.

all the seed of Israel] See verse 19. either the main body of them delivered out of captivity, (for even a wicked man may be justified, when he is wronged in ought,) or all the faithful, and true-hearted among them, Ps 24 6. John 1. 47. Rom. 9. 6. & 11. 26. Gal. 6. 16.

and shall glory] In him, and not in themselves, v, 24 Psal 56. 4. and 106. 4. Jer. 9. 24 Rom. 3. 27. & 5. 1. 1 Cor. 1. 30, 31. Gal. 6. 14 shall glory, in that salvation, either spiritual, or temporal, that he hath wrought for them, Ps. 34. 2. & 105. 3 & 106. 5. as one that is not cleered only, but righted enlarged, and avenged on his malitious adversaries, Ps. 64. 9, 10. ch. 41. 16.

CHAP. XLVI.

Verse 1. BEl boweth down, and Nebo stoupeth*] In this Chapter, and the next to it, (as in the thirteenth, and fourteenth before,) is laid down a very pregnant Prophecy against Babylon, containing in it, a prediction of her utter and unavoidable overthrow, together with a general deliverance of Gods people, that had been long in thraldome under her. Wherein, also, by the way, is inserted, an assertion of Gods incomparable divine power, therein manifested, illustrate by the vanity and imbecility of the Babylonian idols, that should fall, and come down together with that State. In regard whereof, some Interpreters deem this to be but a part of the precedent Prophecy, and make them one continued context. This Chapter begins with the ruine of their idols, as the next with the ruine of their State; which their idols were not able to support, being unable to keep up themselves

Bel] Bel, and Nebo, were idols of much note among the Babylonians; and Bel seems to have been their chiefest and choicest god. See Jer. 50. 2. & 51. 44. The name, divers Writers of speciall note, suppose to be the same with Baal, conceived in a different dialect. And that this title, signifying Lord, was sometime given to the true God, as the Lord of heaven and earth, Matth. 11. 25. in like manner, as the Phenicians called their god, Baal samen, that is, the Lord of heaven, as out of Sanchuniathon, and Philo, his translater, Eusebius relateth in his Gospel-preparative: but that afterward, God refused so to be styled, because the name had been so commonly given unto idols, Hos. 2. 16. and true it is, that the name of Baal, as it signifieth a Lord, doth, in regard of Gods absolute Soveraignty, best agree unto God, but in that regard, he is in Scripture rather termed Adonai. Whereas that of Baal, both in the term it self, there parallel'd with Ish, that signifieth an husband, as also, in the use of the word from whence it cometh, is attributed to God, not so much in regard of that his general dominion, which he hath over the whole creation, Psalm 103. 19. as in regard of that special relation which he hath to his Church, as he hath contracted her to himself, in a conjugal bond, and she standeth so espoused, and united unto him. See chap. 54. 5. & 62. 4. Jer. 3. 14. & 31. 32. though it be not denyed, that the name Adon, or Lord, is sometime also given to the husband, Gen. 18. 12. 1 Pet. 3. 6. Howbeit, apparent it is, that this name of Baal, (though whether taken up from the use of Gods people, uncertain, who are not read, to have called God, usually, by that name,) was very anciently given by the Moabites, Ammonites, Canaanites, Philistines, Sidonians, Phenicians, and other neighbouring Nations, as also by the idolatrous Israelites themselves, treading in their steps, to such idols, as both the one and the other adored, Num. 22. 41. 1 King. 16. 31, 32. whence the mention of many Baals, Judg 3 5, 7 & 10. 6, 10. and those ofttimes distinguished, either by the places where their Temples stood, or by some peculiar attribute; as Baal-Zephon, Exodus 14. 2. Baal-Peor, Num. 25. 3. Baal-Zebub, 2 King. 1. 1. Baal-Meon, Joshua 17 17. see on Chap. 15. 2. and the like: as also names imposed as well on on persons, as onplaces, from those their Idols, as Ethbaal, the King of Sidon, Jezebels father, 1 K. 16. 31. Baal-hanan Ge. 36. 38. the same, in a manner, with Hamiball reversed; & Hieronbal the Priest of whom, out of Porphyrie Eusebius, in the place before mentioned, the same, it may be with Jerub-baal, Jud. 6. 32. as Ambakum, for Abakkuk: and Ambuba for Abuba, or as some, with Hieronbal, That Baal therefore was a name common to many forged deities, is a thing undeniable; and from thence, divers learned men deem, that the name Bel, here used, did at first descend, being the same in notion, the one with the other, nor differing but in manner of pronunciation, nor as two divers words, but two dialects of one word, as Zon, and Zan, in Greek; for that, say they, which the Phenicians, following the Hebrews, pronounced Baal; that the Babylonians, after the Chaldean guise, pronunced Bel, Howbeit, some difference I observe between those great ones, that enforceth me here to make a stand; for some of them, say, that Baal and Bel, are written with the self-same letters, בעל, the one; and בעל the other: Which if it be true, then the ל here mentioned, wanting the middle-letter, seems not the same with Baal, in the Chaldee dialect. Other of them say, that the middle letter in Bel, is cast away, after the manner of the Chaldee dialect: but albeit, of the manner of the Chaldean, or Babylonian pronunciation, in some other words, some examples are produced, and in Greek and in Latine, it be a common course, to clip off, or cut out that letter, because they want one whereby fitly to express it, as in other words Oxias, Mat. 1. 9. Esaias, Rom. 10. 20. Pharao, Rom. 9. 17. and the like; so in this: yet neither is there any the like necessity of so doing, in the Chaldee dialect; which is so far from ordinary cashiering of it, that it changeth other Hebrew ones, oft, into it. Neither do I meet with any instance, given out of any monument of that language, of Baal, thus contracted; the contary rather doth appear, by those portions of Scripture, penned in the Syriack, (which we commonly call the Chaldee,) Ezr. 4. 8, 9, 17. where the word בעל without any such contradiction, is found. Nor do I find, either in the Targum, or Chaldee Paraphrase, as it is commonly called,) of the Old Testament, or in the Syrian version of the New, either the name of Baal, in any place, without that letter, or the name of Bel, with it. It seems to me, therefore, not improbable, that Bel and Baal, are two several names, though the Greek and Latine writers, commonly confounded: and that Bel was a proper name, in ancient times not unusual; as Bela, Gen. 36. 32. & 46. 21. and other the like, & that of that name, some eminent persons, in divers places had after their decease, been deified. Whence it came to pass, that as there were divers *Hercules*ſes, in several countries and those of several ages, and several breeds; See Tully of the deity. lib 3. and Herodote, l. 2. so were there likewise, sundry Bels, or Beluſſes, the Egyptian, the Tyrian, the Assyrian, and many more, whose pedigrees are related in Apollodorus, lib. 1. Diodore, lib 1. Eusebius his preparative, lib. 1. & 9. from Phylo Byblius, his version of Sanchunithon, & others: yea, therefore, many the more, because B l, and Baal, are both by Greek and Latine Writers, as is not denyed, so commonly confounded. Again, that which hath been suggested concerning this Bel, or, Belus, as being sometime a great Potentate, and after his decease deified, may receive further strength from hence: in that as the Tyrian Belus, is acknowledged to have been no other, then an ancient King of that Country, whose cup therefore, the Poet saith, Dido drank in, to Æneas, Æneid. l. 1. so is the like also averred, of the Babylonian Belus, whom Nebuchadnezzar, therefore, called his Progenitor, in that speech of his uttered in a fit of rapture, from Megasthenes reported by Abydenus, in his Assyrian History, and by Eusebius recorded out of him, in his Gospel preparative, l. 9. wherein he forcelleth his Babylonians, of an evil that should befal them, which saith he, neither Belus my Progenitor, nor Queen Beltis, are able to induce the Fates to avert. Thus he, whereby it appeareth, that this Belus had been a King, one of his Ancestors; and Beltis, in times past, a Queen. This Bel, therefore, whom the Prophet here mentioneth, is not unlikely to be that Belus, unto whom ancient Writers attribute the building of Babylon; though about that, there be no good agreement among them. But in regard thereof, some conclude Bel, or Belus, to be Nimrod, so called, at first, say they, for his rebellion against his Superiours, or his Peeres; afterward, Baal, or Lord, when he was settled in his Empire; and that the Chaldeans kept the latter name of him, in their Records, suppressing the former, as containing matter of reproach. Yet seem not these things altogether so cleer, as is conceived. For however it be certain, that Nimrod, at first built Babylon, Gen. 10. 10, 11. and it be very probable, that this Bel, whom the Babylonians thus adored, was some such great one, as Nimrod, in his life-time; yet it is well knowne, that the name of the first founder of a City, is in continuance of time, oft lost, and devolved from those that first began it, unto those, that in succeeding ages repaired it's ruines, or raised it to more flourishing and glorious condition. So it is said of a later Pharao, after Josephus death; that by the Hebrews he built Ramses, Exod. 1. 11. though it appears, that it was built by some other before, Gen. 47. 11. and Hiel is said to have built Jericho, which he re-edified, 1 King. 16. 34. and of Baby lon it self, Nebuchadnezzar saith, that he built it, that is, did so beautifie and enlarge it, that it might well seem a new city, Dan. 4. 30. See Josephs antiquities, l. 10. c. 11. and so might this Belus, or Bel, have done many ages after Nimrods dayes; as of Semiramis also the like is related, to whom many Authors therefore ascribe the building of Babylon, as Ctesias, Diodore, l. 2. Strabo, l. 16. and others, nor a few: albeit, some again say, that she only performed some works about it: nor doth Abyden, one of the ancientest Authors, whose remains we have, say any more of Belus, in Eusebius his preparative, l. 9. but that he encompassed Babylon with a wall. Besides that, as it may justly be doubted, whether Nimrod were upon any such occasion, at first, so called, (which is not very likely, though not much to the present purpose:) and not by his father, upon some other ground, so named from his birth; so there seems as little likelihood, that from the Hebrew Baal, this name was given either to him, or any other, whom the Scripture so temeth; it being not the manner of Scripture, to corrupt names, as other languages are forced to do, for the reason before expressed. But the Scripture constantly stileth this idol, neither בעל nor בעלbut simply; nor do we ever find, either this, or that name, in Scripture, ever given unto Nimrod. But whosoever he was that bare the name, or upon what ground soever the name was given him, certain it is, that this Bel was a principal god with the Babylonians: under which name, some tell us, that they adored the Sun. Howbeit, the ancienteſt Authors, of whom we find some few fragments, in relations of former Writers, as Abydenus, and Megasthenes, (of whom, some remaines are found here, and there, in Josephus his Antiquities, and Eusebius his Preparative,) tell us of two counterfeit deities, King Bel, or Belus, and Queen Beltis, that seem to have been unto them, as Jupiter, and Juno, unto the Latines and Greeks: the former of them we find in the name of Belſhaſſhar. Dan. 5. 1. the latter, in the name of Belteſhaſſhar Dan. 4. 8. nor is that which they say concerning this latter, contrary to what is there said by the Babylonian Monarch, that Daniel was so called according to the name of his God; for the name of God, with them, might well comprehend deityes, such as those were, of either sex, as well, as Gods doth in Greek: nor is it to be one, any more, then a syllabical adjection as as, or os, is in the other: nor doth this Babylonian Beltis seem to be the same with that Phenician Baalis, whom they make the daughter of Celus, and sister to Astarte, or Venus, by the Greeks termed Dione. See Phylo Byblienſis in Eusebius his Preparative Nebo] Another of their Idols, whose name is found in the appellations of many of their Kings and Nobles, mentioned as well in Scripture, as in other Writings. Of this sort, are Nabonaſſar, Nabo-pelaſar, Nabuchadnezzar, Nabuzaradan his chief Marshal, Jer. 39. 1, 9. and many other. As the former seems to have been some Marshall man, or great Monarch; so this latter, to have been some famous false Prophet, from whom, after his death, deified, they expected Oracles by his Priests, for his name imports Prophecy: and as among both Greeks and Latines, though Jupiter were deemed their chief god: yet not he, but Apollo, was the god, whom they repaired most to, for answer by Oracle: so it seemeth, that with the Babylonians, aside, Bel, were their Jupiter; yet Nebo was their Apollo: whose Oracle that may well be, which Stephen the Byzantine saith, was among the Chaldeans, in like request, as Apollo's at Delphos, was among the Greeks. How-soever, I am not ig. norant that some learned understand him, of the Oracle of Belus: whereof Aerian, in the life of Alexander, lib. 7.

boweth down] Or, is bowed down: not only failing those that expected help from them; but being pulled down, and carried away, either to be born about, as a conquest being made, as well of their gods, as of the people themselves, and their persons; or to make monuments of them, or money of the rich metals whereof they were made. See Chap. 10, 10, 11. Jer. 43. 12, 13. & 50. 2.

their idols were upon the beasts, and upon the cattel: your carriages, were heavy laden: they are a burden to the weary beast] Or, their idols were for the beasts, and for the cattel. So the words are in the Hebrew; as if he had said, they went to the bruit beast, as fittest companions for them; on whose backs the Medes and Perſians bestowed them, to carry them away with them, into their own country, among other their carriages, or they that had wont to be born about in procession, on mens shoulders, or in chariots, with much pomp and state, are now packed up, and laid as luggage on the backs of beasts, without any respect, or regard, See Chapter 15. 7. Heb, beasts, and cattel, collectively; as Genesis 7. 21. Exod. 33. 27.

idols] The word in the first notion, signifieth pain and sorrow. See on Chap. 10. 10 & 45. 6. used the rather, here, as hinting what they were; not to those only, that had adored them, but to the beasts also, that did now bear them. Though some expound it of the heavy burthens, that they had formerly been to the beasts, that used either to bear them about, or to draw the chariots, wherein they had wont to be born; like that, Chap. 14. 7, 8. but the former seems the better.

your carriages] He turneth his speech, as some, to the Medes and Persians, that carried them away with them; as relating how heavy their carriages would be, with the weight of them: As others, to their idols, as in way of derision, telling them, that they were heavy gods indeed, heavy burthens both to man and beast. See the like change of the person, Chap. 45. 17.

heavy laden] With the weight of them. See v. 3 & of the massiness of

they are a burden] Or, were; that it may agree with the former.

the weary beast] Tired with the carriage of them; a defect of the subject: as ch. 28. 12. & 40. 29. and that taken collectively, as before.

V. 2. They stoop, they bow down together] Either the Babylonians themselves, that looked so big, and strouted it so before, do now hang the head, and go with dejected looks. See the like, ch. 3. 16. & 10. 3, 4. & 51. 23. or, the images of their gods all alike, in the pillage. ing of their Temples. For the words are the same, that were before used of them, v. 1. and there is an elegant consonancy in the words, which our English cannot so fitly express, as if it were said, they droop they stoop, or the like.

they could not deliver the burden] That was carryed away upon the beasts, ver. 1. The Babylonians were not able to save their idols, that should have saved them, chap. 44. 17. nor could their idols save themselves that ought to have saved others. See ver. 7. The words may well, be rendred, the burden could not be delivered; either by others, or themselves: for the verb is indefinite. See the like, ch. 2. 19. & 45. 24. Mal. 1. 4.

but themselves are gone into captivity] To wit, their idols, or gods themselves. See Jer. 48. 7. Heb. and (as ch. 29. 13.) their soul went into captivity, as Pſ. 105. 18. his soul went into iron; and the word soul, is sometime metaphorically applyed, even to things not endued with any sensitive faculty, as ch. 10. 18.

V. 3. Hearken unto me, O house of Jacob] God, by the Prophet, turneth his speech to his people, minding them of his divine power manifested in his suppost of them; from their very birth original; thereby to strengthen their faith, in the assurance of his deity, and in a constant expectation of deliverance from captivity; and withall, laying before them, the vanity of idols, and extream folly of idolaters; partly, to diſſwade them from the practice of any such fond fopperies; and partly, to arm them against the fear of them. See the like, ch. 41. 8, 9. & 43. 1, 10. & 44. 1, 8, 21.

house of Jacob] See ch. 2. 5. and all the remnant of the house of Israel] That yet survive after the Chaldean Invasion, and Babylonian deportation, c. 17. 21, 22. & 11. 11, 12. & 28. 5.

which are born by me from the belly, which are carried from the womb] Or, which have been born, and have been carried; because he speaketh of the time past: Which from your first original, have been supported, and tenderly tended by me: A metaphor from Parents, or Nurses, that carry younglings, not yet able to go well, in their arms, or in their lap. chap. 63. 9. See Pſal. 92. 12. Hos. 11. 3. and he useth both the terms of bearing and carrying, before used of their idols, v. 1. as thereby purposely to difference the true God, from those counterfeit gods, in that they needed bearing, & were born by those that worshipped them, v. 7. whereas the true God did himself support and bear those that adored him; and depended on him, Exod. 19. 4. Deut. 32. 11. ch. 40. 11. where by other resemblances, also, is the same thing set forth.

by me] A defect of the pronoun; as Job 16. 8, 9.

from the belly] See ch. 44. 2, 24. and somewhat the like; even that, from whence this seems borrowed, Pſ. 22. 9. 12. & 71. 6.

V. 4. And even to your old age, I am he, and even to hoary hairs will I carry you: I have made, and I will bear; even I will carry, and will deliver you] I am he; or, I am the same; as 2 Chron. 28. 22. Pſal. 102. 27. See Mal. 3. 6. Jam. 1. 17. He promiseth the like tender affection toward them, constant care for them, and suppost of them, as he had formerly afforded them, and used about them, (therein surpassing the wonted practice of Parents and Nurses) even to the last, Gen. 28. 15. Josh. 1. 5. Jer. 32. 40. Joh. 13. 1. Heb. 13. 5. See Pſ. 48. 14. & 71. 9. the pronoun, both positive, and possessive, is wanting; as ch. 1. 15. & 30. 3.

I have made, and I will bear] A faithful Creator, 1 Pet. 4. 19. Another difference between the true God, and the false; he is the maker of those that worship him, Pſ. 100. 3. ch. 44. 2. where as, they are made by those that worship them, verse. 6. chapter. 44. 15.

I will deliver] The main scope of all, to ascertain them of deliverance out of their thraldome at Babylon, Chap. 43. 14. and 45. 13.

V. 5. To whom will ye liken me, and make me equal, and compare me, that we may be like?] Or, To whom will ye make me like, or equal? or compare me, that we should be like? To wit, the one to the other. Heb. and we shall be like. The copulative, for the disjunctive; as ch. 45. 9. and for the finitive; as chap. 43. 12. See chap. 40. 18, 25. and 46. 5, 9.

V. 6. They lavish gold out of their bag, and weigh silver in the balance, and they hire a goldſmith, and he maketh it a god] Having laid before them his own approved power, he proceedeth to lay open the filly and sorry condition of those idols, where on the Babylonians their enemies, relyed; and these to render the more, both detestable, and despicable to them, he mindeth them, both of the original of them, and their inability to help, either others, or themselves. See the like, Chap. 40. 19, 20. and 44. 12–19. Jeremiah 10. 3-5, 9.

lavish gold] The word here used, signifieth properly, to waſte, or, ſpend vioteuſly, more peculiarly, fleſh, and dainty fare: whence the term gohel, for a glutton, or a great waſter of fleſh: as Sohec, for a drunkard, or deep drinker of wine, joyned oft together, Deut. 21. 20. Prov. 23. 20, 21. and to waſte it, whatsoever it be, as some matter of no worth: For that notion, also, the word included, as appeareth, Jer. 15. 19. Lam. 1. 8, 11. where it is used. The meaning is, they spare no cost in making them idols, but spend wastfully, as if the set light by their treasure, upon that as, in truth, of no use or worth, save what the metal gives it. Of their lavish wastfulnes in this kind, see in that vast colosſus, Dan. 3. 1.

bag] Or, purſe: such as they used to put, keep, or carry money about them in, Prov. 1. 14. It is also used for such bags as they kept their weights in, Deut. 25. 13. Prov. 16. 11. Mic. 6. 11.

weigh silver] As in payments they used to do, Jer. 32. 9, 10. The whole text may thus be rendred, (because the verbs are indefinite, as those, also, ver. 7.) Gold is lavished, or, wastfully spent, and, silver is weighed. Gold, whereof to make the idol, and silver, wherewith to pay the workman, or either, to make an idol of it, chapter 30. 22.

in the balance] Or, by the beam, or, at the beam. Heb. reed, or cane whereof it was oft made: the beam, put for the balance, a principal part of it, for the whole. And thence it may be the Hebrew word, to buy, Chap. 43. 24. because they used to buy and sell by it. Of their severall sorts of beams, and scales, or balances. See on chapter 40. 12.

they hire a gold-ſmith] Heb. Founder, or Finer, ch. 40. 19, 20, and 41. 7.

and he maketh it a god] Or, to make it a god, as verse 5. or, to make a god of it, of that silver, or that gold, that they deliver him to work upon, Chap. 2. 20. or, as before, a goldſmith is hired, that may make it a god, as chap. 44. 14. as if the workman were able to make a god of that, which was nothing less before, Jer. 10. 3, 9. and 16. 20.

they fall down, yea, they worſhip] It, the idol so made. See chap. 44. 17. or, which they may fall down to, and worſhip, a defect of the relative as Ch. 42. 1. & 44. 2.

V. 7. They bear him upon the ſhoulder] Or, he is born upon the ſhoulder, on mens shoulders, either unto the place where he is to stand, or then thence forward, abroad to be seen. See on ver. 3.

they carry him, and ſet him in his place] Or, and carried, and ſet. See ch. 44. 13. Thus have their gods need of help from them, as they had ch. 44. 13. Thus have their gods need of help from them, as they had their being from them at first. Jer. 10. 3-5.

and he ſtandeth] Or, there he ſtandeth, Jer. 10 5. or, that he may abide and he ſtandeth] Or, there he ſtandeth, Jer. 10 5. or, that he may abide from his place ſhall he not remove] Or, can he not ſtir, ch. 40. 20. & 41. 7. Jer. 10. 5. the indicative, in a potential notion; as in those other places, and so in the next clause.

yea, one ſhall cry unto him, yet can he not anſwer] Or, yea, though one cry unto him, yet can he not anſwer, because he can neither hear, nor speak, Pſal. 115. 6, 7. Heb. yea, he ſhall cry, and he ſhall not anſwer, and, for yet, as Neh. 5. 18. Pſ. 44. 18. ch. 29. 2. and the verb potential, as before.

nor ſave him out of his trouble] Or, from his ſtrights, because he can neither do good, nor evil, he can neither help, nor hurt, cha. 41. 23, 24. Jer. 10. 5. Heb. he ſhall not ſave: so ch. 45. 20.

V. 8. Remember this] ch. 44. 21.

and ſhew your ſelves man] Not beasts, like those idolaters, cha. 45. 20. Jer. 10. 14. or, not women-like, timorous, for fear, to comply with them, or, to stand in aw of ought from their idols, Jer. 10. 1, 11. So 1 Cor. 16. 13.

bring it again to mind, O ye tranſgreſſors] Heb. bring back to heart: That is, consider well of it, ye of my people, that have in this kind transgressed, after the manner of the particle it, as ch. 44. 19. Yet some read the gone after a preterperfect tense, as have tranſgreſſed, and the verb signifieth, commonly, to reclaim, or reduce, Jer. 31. 18. Lam. 5. 21. Ezek. 18. 30. and the heart is likewise put, as usually, for wit, or wisdome, Prov. 6. 32. & 7. 7. Hos. 7. 11. Howbeit, this form of speech is most frequently used, in the former notion, Deuteronomy 4. 39. and 30. 1. So somewhat the like form, Chap. 41. 22. Hagg. 1. 5, 7. and 2. 15, 18.

V. 9. Remember the former things of old] ch. 42. 9. & 48. 3. what things I have in former ages, from time to time, done among you, whereby I have evinced my power, and my deity, v. 3. Pſal. 77. 11, 12. ch. 40. 21, 22. & 43. 16, 17. & 44. 7, 8.

for I am God, and there is none elſe] Or, that I am God, and none elſe whereby it so appeareth, cha. 45. 5, 6, 21, 22.

I am God] Or, that, I am God, that supplyed from the former branch, as ch. 45. 6. and there is none like me] Or, as some, nothing like me. See ver. 5.

and there is none like me] Or, as some, nothing like me. See ver. 5. Acts 17. 29. But here, rather, the former, as ch. 43. 7. because of that which followeth, ver. 10. that can both fore-tell, and effect things, as I have done, and still do.

V. 10. Declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times, that things that are not yet done] Foretelling the issue of things, long the things that are not yet done] Foretelling the issue of things, long before they come to be executed, and the proceedings or before they come to be executed, and the proceedings or passages of them, in a continued course and progress, from the first to the last, and such things, at present, which though, as yet, they are not in being, yet shall surely in their due time, be effected, that which

and I will do all my pleasure]Pf.115.3. & 136.5.Dan.4.35.applyed,in particular, to Gods will and pleasure, accomplished by Cyrus, in the destruction of Babylon,the deliverance of his people,and setling them in their land again,ch.44.28.So v.11.

V.11.Calling a ravenous bird from the East]Cyrus from Persia, lying to the East of Babylon,ch.41.2,25. who should come swiftly, and seize upon Babylon,as an Eagle,or Vultur,upon his prey, Job 9. 26.By either of which also,Cyrus might be refembled, in regard of his hooked nose like an Eagles, or Vultures beak; which was in him so notable, that it brought men so marked,into much repute among the Persians.See the like similitude of an Eagle, Ezek.17.3,10. Jer. 48.40.& 49.22.Hos.8.1.Hab.1.8.

a ravenous bird]Heb. a fowl, but the word coming from a root, that fignifies, properly, to flee, or fall forcibly(as a Greek word also fetcht from it)upon prey:So used, 1 Sam.14.33. and metaphorically to fall foul upon a man with bad language, 1 Sam.25.14. it is more specially used for wild Fowl, and thole of prey. See instances, on ch. 18.v.6.

the man that executeth my counsel]Heb.the man of my counsel; as ch. 40.13.yet not whom he taketh counsel of for ought ; for, such God hath none,chap.40.14. from a far country]For Perfia lay far off,both from Babylon,(Assyria, and some other Provinces lying between them)and from Judah.See ch.13.5.

yea,I have spoken it, I will also bring it to pass;I have purposed it, I will also do it] Or, as sure as I have spoken it, I will bring it to pass; as I have contrived it, I will also do it.See v.10.ch.14.21,26. a defect of the pronoun it, as ch.44.13;15.

purposed]Heb. formed, fowred, or, moulded;not only as the potter doth the clay with his hands,ver.2.7.ch.64.8. but as either he, or any other workman, alfo, is wont to contrive, and conceive in his mind,the fashion of that work, which he intendeth to produce. for thereunto,alfo,it is oft applyed,Gen.6.5.& 8.21. 1 Chron.28.9. ch. 26.3.

V.13.Hearken unto me ye stout hearted]Or,men of great stomacks, Pfal 76.5.He seemeth to speak,rather,to the enemy, that out of the pride of their heart, and height of their stomack, thought to carry things as they listed themselves, contrary to Gods predictions and purposes ; (as chap. 10.12.) then to those of Gods people, who, either out of imbecility. or incredulity, made doubt of, or denied the truth of Gods promises : the term doth not so well fit those.

that are far from righteousnesse]That is, fay some,the transgressors among Gods people; who by their impenitency, and contumacy, made themselves altogether unworthy of the favour, by God, intended them, ver.8.Chap.43.22,24. But I suppose it, rather, meant of their adversaries,who had dealt most unjustly and cruelly with his people,whatlocver they pretended, Chap.47.6.Jer. 50. 7, 33. and 51.35.

V.13.I bring neer my righteousnesse]Heb. make to approach,as chap. 41.21. my righteousnesse, that is, as some, the righteousnesse, which my people receive from me, for their justification, and acquital from their sins, Chap. 33. 24.& 43. 25.& 45.24,25.As others; my faithfulness, my fidelity, in keeping my word, in making good my promises, chap. 1.27.& 42.3.& 45.8.& 51.5.which no might,malice, or unbeliet, of any, shall hinder from taking effect, Rom.3.3.2 Tim. 2.13.or, as I conceive,my righteousnesse, which I shall shew, in executing judgment on the oppressors of my people, and righting the wrongs that by their adversaries have been done them; as if he had said, though ye have been far from all justice and equity, in those things that ye have done unto my people; yet I will deal justly with you, and cause my justice speedily to approach,and take hold on you ere long, Pfalm 146.7.& chap.59.14-18.Jer.51.35,36.See on chap. 45.25.

and my salvation shall not tarry]The deliverance of my people, depending upon, and conjoyned with the destruction of their foes. See ch.14.1.these two go together,as here, fo Pfal. 98.2.ch.56.1.& 59. 16,17.

and I will place salvation in Zion, for Israel, my glory] I will make Ierusalem a place of safety,chap.46.13.& 33.20. Zach.2.5. for my people; by whole deliverance and restitution, I will gain to my selfe much glory. So Exod.15.1,6,11.chap,60.21.& 63.14.& 66.18. or, as some read the words, and in Israel my magnificence; as ch.4.2,5.& 24.23.& 60.7,19. but the change of the particle carryeth it rather the former way.

CHAP. XLVII.

Verse 1. Come down, and sit in the dust ; O Virgin daughter of Babylon]In this Chapter is professed the denunciation of Babylons destruction , entred upon in the beginning of the Chapter before going, with a relation of the ruine and captivity of their idols; and after some windings, and occasional digressions,now returned unto again. In this Chapter, is her dejected and despicable condition, upon her over throw, together with the procurings causes, the suddenness and unavoidablenels of it,very pithily and pregnantly deleribed.

Come down]From thy throne, from thy former height and state. So Jer.13.18.& 48.18.& 51.25.Lam.1.14.

sit in the dust] Sit on the ground, as one of low and mean condition having neither throne, nor feat, to fit on, Pfal.113.7. But that in the next branch; here rather, fit in dust and ashes, after the manner of mourners, on special occasions of great and folemn mournings, much used in those times, Job 28.& 42.6. Mat.11.21.See ch. 52.2.Jer.13.v.18.

O virgin daughter of Babylon] Or , O virgin daughter Babylon: thou Babylon, fay some, that hast hitherto been unsubdued, chap. 23.12.but rather,that art like unto a beautiful young damsel,tender and delicate, in diet and dressings, gorgeous in attire, sumptuous in furniture,and priding thy self in the goodliness of thy glorious estate, Jer.46.11.See on ch.1.8.& 23.12.

sit on the ground]As before:to Lam. 2.10.

there is no throne] For thee to fit on, in state: thy government is gone; throne, for government, as Pfal.89.14,29.& 122.5.fo of Tyre, ch.23.10.there is no girdle: there is no power,or trade, left thee; thy might,or merchandize, is gone.

O daughter of the Chaldeans]O thou Babylon, the beauty and glory of the Chaldean State,ch.13.19.So ver.5.

for thou shalt no more be called tender, and delicate]Heb. thou shalt no more add, they shall call thee: or, that they shall call thee; a form of speech, in other languages. unusual; but, in Hebrew, very common, fo 1 Sam.2.3.ver.5.chap.23.12.to be called, for, to be, simply, or,to be accounted, fuch, as chap.4.3.& 54.5.& 56. 7. thou shalt no longer enjoy that delicacy and daintinels, that formerly thou didst. See a deſcription of such, and of such an alteration,Deut.32.56,57.See,also,ver.8.

V.2.Take the mill-stones, and grind meal] Prepare and fit thy self for all servile offices; of which, the turning of, or grinding at the mill, as accounted one of the meaneſt,assigned commonly,as in many countries at this day, instead of beasts, unto the forriest fort of slaves and captives, Exod. 11.5.Judg. 16.21.Iob 31.10.Lam.5.13. and was ordinarily womens work,Exod.11.5.Job 31.10.Mat.24.41. Luke 17. 35.

take the mill-stones] Betake thy self to the mill,as we use to say, take thy bed; when our meaning is, betake thy self to thy bed.

the mill-stones] The word here used, and so alſo,Exod. 11.5. Num. 11.8. and elſe-where, is of a dull form; because the mill consisteth of two stones,the upper,and the lowerrthe former called,in Hebrew, recceb, or, the rider, as in some places, with us, the runner, because it rideth, or runneth about, upon the lower, Deut.24.6.the latter, in the writings of the Rabbines,(for in Scripture it is not found) is called becheb, the bedſted , or the rester , because it ſtirreth not, but lyeth down , and resteth under the former. In the law forbidding the taking of the mill-stones to pledge, it might be deemed by our translation , where the word rechaim here used, ſtandeth in the firſt place, and the word receb in the second, that the former should ſignifie the upper mill stone only; and the latter, the lower: but the former comprehendeth the whole mill, consisting,as of two principal parts, of both : the latter, the upper only: the intent of the Law-giver , being to inhibite any to take , for pledge, either the whole mill, both stones, or the one of them only; yet , by name , expreſſing only the uppermoſt; because that lying loole, might the more readily be taken off, and carryed away upon any such occasion;whereas the other being ordinarily fixed,could not so easily be removed; and without it, the other would be altogether unuſual. That of grinding, some of the Jews Doctors,both here,and in other the places above-cited,writhe,and wreſt,to an obſcure ſenſe not worthy to be related.

grind meal] That is, grind grain or corn, whereof to make meal, or by grinding of it,make meal;as in that proverbial ſpeech running elegantly, in Hebrew, their bud ſhall make, or yeeld no meal, Hoſ.8. 7.So,he beleeth bread, for he beleeth dough, therefore to make bread, chap.44.19.there is a kind of prolepſis,or anticipation,in it, metal, whereof a graven image is after waid to be made ; otherwiſe, the Founder no more meleeth the one, then the Miller grindeth the other.

uncover thy locks] That is, fay some ſhave thy self, as mourners use to do, Iob 1. 20. See chap. 22. 12. or, as ſlaves and captives are wont to be uſed. See on chap. 3. 24. But that were rather to uncover the head, then the hair, or the locks; to make the head bare, by taking away of the hair : and the like exception may be taken againſt the expoſition of thoſe,that by the word here uſed, would have to be underſood, certain rich or curious fillets, wherewith the hair is wont to be wound,and bound up,among great ones eſpecially. The word rather ſignifies the locks, or treſſes,that the hair of ſuch uſeth to be made up in,their fore-locks, eſpecially, on either ſide of their temples, as appears; by Cant.4.1, 3.& 6.7. now thoſe of note and ſtate, Queens and Princes, eſpecially, had goodly rich tires and diadems , which did not only cover and adorn their heads heads ; but did bind in alſo, and keep up theſe their locks,from falling down upon their faces:Of which, ſee ch. 3. 21.& 62.3.Eſt. 1.11. & 2.17. ler.13. 18. The meaning therefore is,that being ſtript of,or having caſt off,her coſtly and ſtately head-tire, and head-bands, ſhe ſhould go bare-head, with her hair hanging down about her ears,as captives and drudges are wont to do. See Ezek.21.26.Lam.5.16.So ch.3.24.

make bare the leg, uncover the thigh, paſſe over the rivers]Truſſe up thy clothes about thee, not as thoſe that are to travel, only, Exod. 12.11.1 King.18.46. but higher then ordinary, as thoſe that are to wade thorow deep waters,to paſſe thorow thick and thin, Pſa.66. 12.& 69.1,2.the leg, and the thigh,for,the legs, and thy thighs: a deſect of the pronoun; as Chap. 37.4,23. and the nouns collective; as feet of the pronoun; as Chap. 37.4,23. and the nouns collective; as chap.20.2. the former whereof, I ſuppoſe, might better be rendred foot, then leg ; as the plural is footſteps, or paths, Pſalm 77. 19. Jeremiah 18.15. the latter, kaire, rather then thigh, because it is expreſly diſtinguiſhed from the thigh, Judges 15. 8. where it is rendred hip, as I conceive, not ſo fitly ; but if it be ſo taken here, it ſhould intimate a further degree of diſgrace. Of which, Chap. 3. 17. and 20. 4. but of that, the Prophet ſpeaketh in the next verſe : and the laſt clauſe leadeth rather to the former ſenſe, as ſpoken unto one that was to wade up to the knees. Some ſuppoſe an alluſion in it , to the river Euphrates ; over whoſe ſtreams the Babylonians ſhould paſſe captive into Media and Perſia : which it may be, is ſomewhat too nice, and to me ſeems needleſſe.

V.3.Thy nakednesse ſhall be uncovered, and thy ſham ſhall be ſeen] Either thou ſhalt want wherewith to cover thoſe parts that wo manly modeſty abhoreth to have ſeen , and to lye open to common view; or, thou ſhalt, in ſcorn and deriſion,be ſo diſgracefully uſed, as women-priſoners, taken captive, oft-times are, by thoſe uncivil & inhumane perſons into whoſe hands they fall.See, beſides the places noted to,on the former verſe,Ier.13.21,26.Ezek. 16.37.& 23.29. Nah.3. 5.

I will take vengeance] To wit, on thee, to be ſupplyed from the latter clauſe; as ch 48.9.as if he had ſaid, it is not ſo much Cyrus, as God by him, that cometh to take vengeance upon thee, ch. 13.3-5. 9,11,17.& 14 22.Ier.50.9.15,21,25,28.& 51.6.11.14,24.25,44.for the wrongs done to his people,ver.6.Jer.51.35,36.See chap.34.8.and 46.13.

and will not meet thee as a man]But in full wrath, without any pity, or commiſeration,ſuch as men are wont to ſhew; ſometime, unto the weaker ſex. I will deal with thee, as thou haſt dealt with mine, ver.6.2 Chr.36.17. Iudg.8.18-21. Jer.50.15.Lam.2.13.or,in full power, as God, one of might unconceivable.See Pſ.90.11.ch.31.3. To this purpoſe,the Latine,and thoſe that follow it, read the words,and man ſhall not withſtand me ; but that ſenſe the words will not admit. Again, ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors,as alſo of ours, treading in their ſteps,incline much to the former notion,and render it,I will not admit any mans intercession for thee ; for the word here uſed, ſay they, ſignifies, ſometime, to intercede, ſometime, to admit intercession: and in the former ſenſe, indeed, it ſeemeth taken,Gen.23.8.Jer.7,16 & 27.18.but for the latter ſenſe, it is not ſo eaſie to find a place, that may fit it: they alledge ch.64.5. but that ſeems not ſo clear to this purpoſe.

as a man] A defect of the note of ſimilitude ; as Chapter 40.6.& 41.15.

V.4.As for our Redeemer, the Lord of hoſts is his name, the holy One of Iſrael]Or, Saith our redeemer, (for As for, is not in the text, nor doth ſo well fit here; and faith, or ſaying, is oft ſuppreſſed, but to be ſupplyed, as 1 Kin.20.34.Pſ.27.8.& 105.15.c.5.9.&16.19.45 14.Na. 2.8.)our redeemer (our reſcuer out of dangers, difficulties,and diſtreſſes, Gen.48.16 ch 43.14.)whoſe name is the Lord of hoſts, (as ch.48. 2.& 54.5.the poſitive for the relative;as chap.33.21.& 43 1.ver.11.) the holy one of Iſrael See ch.1.4.Spoken in the perſon of Gods people acknowledging all this done, by God, for their deliverance, out of Gods free favour and mercy unto them, Chap.14.1.& 43. 14. & 45.4.

V.5.Sit thou ſilent, and get thee into darkneſſe] Having broke off his ſpeech to Babylon wherein he had begun to tell her what ſhe muſt do, and what ſhould betide her, to give her to underſtand, who it was that ſpoke it, and would enforce her to do it,ver.3,4. he returns in this verſe again to her;enjoyning her further,for ſhame,and confuſion, to be mute,and to get into ſome dark corner out of ſight. Sit ſilent, or Sit dumb,(for that is the very word in the Hebrew; as alſo,Lam.3.23.)as one confounded, and not able to ſpeak,Pſ.77.4.& 107.42.Mat.22.12. and go into the dark,(the abſtract for the concrete;as Iob 3.3.)as one aſhamed of thy ſelf,and not enduring to be ſeen,in ſuch ſorry condition,as thou ſhalt be in ſhortly,v.3 Lam.1.9. & 2.10.

for thou ſhalt no more be called the Lady of Kingdoms]As the State of Iudah, ſometime, the Princes of Provinces,Lam.1.1.and as Babylon it ſelf alſo, the glory of Kingdoms, ch.13.19. not only, as a moſt ſtately and glorious one among them , but as one that ruled over them,Ier.27.7,8,9.Dan.3.37,38.

V.6. I was wroth with my people, I have polluted mine inheritance, and given them into thine hand: thou didſt ſhew them no mercy; upon the ancient hath thou very heavily laid thy yoke] One cauſe of Babylons overthrow, before hinted,ver.4.their extream cruelty exerciſed upon Gods people ; which howſoever, through the juſt judgment of God, it befel them for their ſins,chap.10.5,6. Ier.1.15,16. yet it did no more excuſe them, who intended nothing leſs, then the execution of Gods juſt deſigns , Chapter 10.7. then Gods counſel, and purpoſe, concerning the giving up of his Sons. for the ſalvation of his Elect, did acquit any of thoſe from wicked hearts, and hands, that had ought to do , either as procurers , or actors, in the putting of him to death,Acts 2.23.& 4.27,28. See on chap.45, 24, 25.

I was wroth with my people]ch.57.17.& 64.5.Zach.1.15. of the term,ſee on ch.34.2.

I have polluted mine inheritance] Or, I polluted; that it may run in the ſame tenour with the former ; as in the original it doth. I dealt with my people, whom I had adopted, and taken unto my ſelfe, for a peculiar, Exod.19.5.Deuteronomy 7.6.and was as deer to me, as to an heir his inheritance is wont to be, 1 King.21.3.ch. 19.25.as with ſome profane, or unclean thing, Chap. 43, 28.Lam. 1.17.

and given them into thine hand] Or, gave them (as before) into thine hand, that is, into thy power: as verſe 14. Jer.12. 7. Lam. 1.14.

thou didſt ſhew them no mercy] Inſtead of pitying, and compaſſionating their miſery, thou didſt exceedingly aggravate it , by thine extream, hard, and cruel uſage of them, 2 Chr. 36.17.Pſal. 69.26. Heb. thou didſt fet them no bowels : bowels , for mercy, or tender mercy : as chap.54.7.Dan.9.9.Zach.1.16. So Luke 1. 78. Philip 2.1.

upon the ancient] Who for age ſhould have been pitied; but with thee found no mercy: thou dealeſt unmercifully,with old and young alike,Deut.28.50.Lam.2.21.& 5.12, 13.

hath thou very heavily laid the yoke]Or, didſt thou, as in the former branch. Heb.make thy yoke very heavy : for the pronoun expreſſed in the Hebrew,ſhould not be omitted*thy yoke*, nor that thou didſt thy ſelf wear, or bear: as 1 King.12.4.Ier.2.20.but that thou laidſt upon,and didſt compel them,to bear, and wear:as Jer.27.7,10.a metaphor taken from ſuch yokes,as beaſts are wonted to draw in.See Jer. 28.48. Lam.1.14.

V.7.And thou ſaidſt]Thoughteſt with thy ſelf;as Pſ.10.11.& 94.7. ch.10.10.See alſo,ver.8.

I ſhall be a Lady for ever]Another cauſe of her ruine,her inſolents, and confident preſumption, imagining her power and ſettlement to be ſuch, as ſhe never ſhould, nor could, by any means, be pulled down,or diſmounted,from the top,or height of her ſtate.So Pſ.10.6. Rev.18.7. See the like preſumption of Edom, Obad.ſ3.of Ammon, Ier.49.6.of Gods own people,Ier.21.13.yea,ſome tang of it,in one after Gods own heart, Pſ.30.6.

So that thou didſt not lay theſe things to thine heart] Heb. hitherto, or,as yet, thou haſt not ſet theſe things upon thine heart:as chap.57.1. thou little thoughteſt of any ſuch matter,as is now befallen thee. See on ch 46.8.

nor didſt remember the latter end of it] Heb nor haſt remembred her latter end;as Lam.1.9.that is, thy latter end,as Job 18.4.a permutation of perſons, or paſſage from perſon to perſon, the like whereunto; ſee ch. 1. 29.& 31.7.& 34.16. Jer.17.1. Thou little thoughteſt what would be the iſſue of theſe things,or what would,at length,befal thee, Deut.32.29. the clauſe,likewiſe, of the ruine of Gods own people,Lam.1.9.

V.8. Therefore hear now this,thou that art given to pleaſures,that dwelleſt carelesly]Heb.And now hear this:and,ſo therefore,the copulative, for the illative : as chapter 42. 25. or, But now hear this : the copulative, for the adverſative ; as chap. 40. 31. thou delicate, or delitious one : it comes from that root, from which the land , or garden of Eden, had its name, Gen. 2.15. See ver.1. that dwelleſt carelesly,or ſitteſt ſecurely,or confidently,Judg.18.7.Jeremiah 49.31.

that ſayeſt in thine heart]See v.7.

I am,and none elſe beſide me]The like,ſee of Nineveh, Zeph.2.15. An inſolent & arrogant expreſſion, of proud and preſumptuous perſons imitating what God is wont to ſay of himſelf, Chap. 41.4.& 43.10,11,13.& 44.6.& 45.5,6,22. Some ſupply it, I am a Lady, (the peculiar one,ver.5,7.)and there is none(no Lady worth ſpeaking of)beſides me; as ver. 10. But the words here next following, carry it rather to the former , as ſpoken, rather of her unmoveable ſubſiſtence, then of her matchleſs magnificence. See verſe 7. Howbeit , a learned late Critick , controlleth this generally received verſion ; and would have it rendred , either by way of aſſertion, I am: and I only(as Deut.15.4.Num.22.35.2 Sam. 12. 22.)whereas(or, by by way of interrogation, I am, and is there any more beſides me? And this his rejection of the received reddition to ſtrengthen, he obſerveth, that another form of ſpeech is uſed in the like, concerning God, chap.45.6. But that very place, if the manner of the Hebrew language be well obſerved,will help to juſtifie the received verſion here; for it is a thing very uſual in Hebrew, to ſwallow up the prepoſition intervenient between the verb or the noun, and the pronoun affixed to either, which yet muſt of neceſſity be reſtored , or ſupplyed , to make the ſenſe entire. Hereof,ſee inſtances,not a few,on Chap.2.8.15.& 48.10.& 49. 24.& 65.5. the particle beſides then,expreſſed there, being,as of neceſſity it must, to make the sense entire,) supplyed here; the version there is none, I, that is, but I, or beside me, will be warrantable, because suitable to that parallel place, and agreeable to many other the like constructions.

I shall not sit as a widow, neither shall I know the losse of Children] Thou thoughtest it impossible, ever to be deprived of thy King and kingdome, whereunto thou seemest to be wedded, as to an husband, by an indissoluble band; or, of thy people, that are as thy children, or, as some, thy posterity, thine elize, that should succeed constantly, in thy Kingdom. See Rev. 18.7.

Sit as a widow] Heb. sit a widow: as Gen. 38. 11. or, sit as a widow, the note of similitude supplyed: as Lam. 1. 1. which here wanteth, as verse 3. I shall not sit desolate, as widows use to do.

know] Experimentally: sustain, or suffer, as Gen. 2.9. Eccl. 8.5. 2 Cor. 5.21.

V.9. But these two things shall come unto thee, in a moment, in one day, the losse of children, and widow-hood] it shall befal thee clean contrary to thine expectation, or presumption rather, in both, and in both at once, yea, both shall betide thee, suddenly, and in as much extremity as may be, the loss both of Soveraignty, and of children together; or, of posterity, so away the scepter of thy State successively, the line of Nebuchadnezzar being with Balthasar cut off, Dan. 5. 30, 31. See the like ch. 51.19.

But] Or, Yet. Heb. And. So Chap. 40. 31. and 42. 20, 25.

in a moment] Or, suddenly. When it is least thought on, or looked for, Job 21. 13. and 34. 20. Psalm 73. 19. See ver. 11.

in one day] At one time together; not so precisely: as 1 Sam. 2.34. but as Rev. 18.8.

they shall come upon thee, in their perfection] They shall come full, or fully upon thee. Heb. according to their entirenesse, or, perfection, thy calamities, in either kind, shall be exceeding great. See the next clause.

for the multitude of thy sorceries, and for the great abundance of thine enchantments] For, or with, thy manifold witch-crafts, for thy mighty enchantments, shall they come upon thee exceedingly; for the last word is an adverb, and signifies, very much, very greatly, abundantly exceedingly and is used commonly, to express the superlative degree, which the Hebrews want, Gen. 1.31. Exod. 1.7. Psal. 119.4. and there is a pause at the word next before it, which sheweth, that it hath reference to somewhat else before that, and to no noun substantive, which it will not fitly accord with, but some verb, which out of the former branch, therefore is to be supplyed; as Gen. 1.16, 30. 2 Chr. 10. 11. Prov. 15. 15. ch. 43. 2. And so our ancient verfions had it, they shall mightily fall upon thee.

for] As the particle is used, Gen. 18.28. Jer. 18.18. and then are her sorceries, or witchcrafts, and enchantments, here mentioned, as one procuring cause, also, of her downfal; or, with, that is, together with; as 1 Sam. 1.24. Jer. 11.19. Hos. 5.6. and then the meaning is, that all her magical flights, and cunning feeches, should stand her in no stead, but should all fail, and fall together, with her, and her state v. 12, 14, 15.

Sorceries] Or, witchcrafts; (for thence the word for a witch, Exod. 22.17.) whereby is understood, as well her politick devices, wherewith she circumvented, and deluded, and so either won to her, or kept with her, great Princes and Potent people: as if they had been bewitched, and enchanted by her. but her magical arts, and practises also, wherein that State abounded v. 12, 13. therein treading, and tracking the steps of Nineveh, by whole ruine the role, called, a Misseis of witchcrafts, Nah. 3.4. as also the spiritual Babylon that succeeded the secular, did herein also, not come short of either. See Rev. 17.2, 3. & 18.23.

the great abundance of thine enchantments] Heb. the might, or power, of thine enchantments; for so the word signifies, and is so rendred, ch. 40.29. Nah. 2.1. derived from a word, that signifieth a bone, and is used, also, for strength; because the bones are the strength of the body, Job 21.23 It is true, that the verb is used, as well for to abound or to be many; as to be strong or mighty, Psalm 40.5, 12. chap. 31.1. and the adjective from it, descending likewise, Chap. 60.22. but the substantive here used, for might, rather then for multitude, as in the places pointed to, where also it is found; so that not only the variety and numerosity of her flights and policies, but the powerfulnesse and prevalency of them, is here also intimated: neither whereof, yet, should be able to secure her against God: For there is no power, or policy: no might, or flight of any, that can prevail against him, Proverbs 21. 30. Chapter 28. 15, 17, 18.

Ver. 10. For thou hast trusted in thy wickednesse] Or, Because (Heb. And, as Chapter 64. 5.) thou hast trusted, In thy wicked courses, thy wiles and flights before-mentioned: or, thy means and might thereby acquired, Psalm 52. 7. Chapter 28.15.

thou hast said, None seeth me] Thou hast deemed thy selfe even out of Gods eye-sight, and thy designs and projects so cunningly contrived, so closely and covertly carried, that they could not possibly be descryed, or discovered by any, Psal. 64.5. & 94. 3. Chapter 29. 15.

Thy wisdome and thy knowledg, it hath perverted thee] Or, hath made thee to turn away; or, hath turned thee aside, Chap. 57.19. Thou didst imagine, but vainly, as by experience it will appear, that thy flight and skill would secure thee: and thy trusting thereunto, made thee transgresse the more freely: that which Solomon, therefore, forewarns his son, to beware of, Proverbs 3.5. such wisdome and knowledge, falsly so termed, 1 Timothy 6. 20. opposits to, 1 Cor. 8. 1.

and thou hast said in thy heart, I am, and none else besides me] See v. 8.

V. 11. Therefore shall evil come upon thee, and thou shalt not know from whence it ariseth] Heb. thou shalt not know the morning thereof; or the rising of it; that is, the morning, or rising, whereof thou shalt not know: as ver. 4. morning, for rising: as evening, for, setting; opposed to sun-rising, Chap. 45. 6. Thou shalt not know, either from what region it shall arise; or, on what day it shall come: alluding to the rising of the Sun, whole approach produceth morning; and withal, giving a privy nip to the pariface and profession of their wizzards, by that State so much relyed upon, who by the course of the Stars, and the rising and setting of them, undertook to presage, and foretel, what would every day fall out; and by whole help, they made account that they might easily forese, and prevent, consequently, any evil, that was on foot, or intended against them, ver. 12, 13. It may have reference also to Cyrus his sudden surprizal of them, ere they were aware of him. The Babylonians little dreamed, when they arose at Court, from their up-sitting at their revels, that their city was surprized; and the tidings of the unexpected surprisal of it, was even then posting apace to them. See Jeremiah 51. 31.

and mischief shall befall thee; and thou shalt not be able to put it off] Or, which thou shalt not be able to avoid, or to avert: as chap. 37.27. Heb. to expiate, cha. 28. 18. a metaphor from such expiations, as being duly performed, did free the party so expiated from penalty, Num. 16.46, 48. those shall neither be able to foresee it, nor to free thy self from it, Jer. 50.44.

and desolation shall come upon thee suddenly, which thou shalt not know] Or, which thou dost not know as Prov. 27. 1. a defect of the relative, as ch. 44.2. ; or, when thou shalt not know it, what time thou thinkest not or itas Mat. 24.39, 50. the adverb of time supplyed: as ch. 17. 6. & 26. 10. & 41. 17.

V. 12. Stand now with thine enchantments, and with the multitude of thy sorceries] Or, witchcrafts, or witcheries: as ver. 9. In way of derision he calleth upon them, to muster up all their devilish arts & devices, to try what in their distress, they are able to do for their indemnity, and deliverance by them. Some both here, and v. 9. would have read instead of enchantments, and witcheries, enchasters, and witches: but those terms in Scripture are no where so used; two other words of the same flock with these, are used for either, Psalm 58. 5. Jer. 27. 9. Howbeit, there may in this place, be an Ellipsis, or want of the subject; as in divers places, the like is found: enchantments, for, men, or masters, of enchantments: and witcheries, for men, or women, masters, or mistresses, of witcheries, that is, professors, or practisers, of such hellish arts, enchanters, or charmers, wizzards, or witches: as Nineveh is called, a mistresse of witcheries, that is, a great practitioner in such kind of abominations, Nah. 3.4. so is the harvest, put for the harvest-man, ch. 17. 5. See more there: if we take it for the arts, or practises themselves, the text would be rendred, stand up now with them: as armed, and furnished with them: as 2 Kings 11.11. See ver. 13. if for the professors, and practisers of them, it would be rendred, stand now among them; as consulting with them, or seeking ayd and advice from them, ver. 13.

wherein thou hast laboured from thy youth] Or, with whom, as ver. 15 having reference, either to the practises themselves, or to the practisers of them. These kinds of arts, the Chaldeans were anciently so much addicted unto, that the professors of them, were, among other nations known, and called commonly, by the name of Chaldeans. See Diodore. l. 3. c. 8. and Tully of divination, l. 2. and their Magicians were highly esteemed with them, and great men in the State. See Dan. 2. 2. & 4. 6, 7. & 5. 7, 8.

from thy youth] From thy first beginning to rise, and grow up into a State. See the like, Jer. 22. 21.

if so be thou shalt be able to profit, if so be thou mayst prevail.] Try whether the one, or the other, be able to do thee any good, or to stand thee in any stead, to avail thee in ought, or to prevail ought for thee, against the evil that is coming upon thee. So ch. 20. 5, 6. & 45. 20. Lam. 4. 17. See the like ironies, Jer. 22. 20. & 46. 11. v. 13.

V. 13. Thou art wearied in the multitude of thy counsels] Thou dost but tire out thy self in vain, in studying how to save thy self, one while by one course, another while by another. So ch. 16. 12. Jer. 2. 36, 37. & 4. 14.

let now the astrologers, the star-gazers, the monethly prognosticators stand up, and save thee, from those things that shall come upon thee] Call for all thy wizzards to stand up for thee, and to improve their skill, and power, to the utmost, in thy behalf. So chap. 41. 1. & 43. 9. Baltasar called for them all; but none of them all knew what to advise him, or how to save him, Dan. 5. 7, 8.

astrologers] Heb. viewers of the heavens: not such as view so as David did, Psl. 8. 3 and as Gods people and others, are willed to do, ch. 40. 26. to consider, and contemplate the incomparable glory, wisdom, power, and providence of God, discovered, and brightly shining forth in them, Psal. 8. 1. & 19. 1-4. & 104. 1-4. Rom. 1. 21. but that gaze on them, to read the fates, and fortunes (as they term them) of men, and states, persons, and people in them; and to foretel thence, what good, or evil, shall betide them: building upon such fond, groundless, superstitious, and ridiculous principles, as by the Devils suggestion, (such are the good Angels that their seducers and deludgers of people tell us of, if they have them from any that pretend so to be,) or from the flashy fancies of their own addle brains, that they have framed and forged to themselves, Jer. 10. 1. and the Brachmans do, therefore, affirm the term here used, to come from an Arabick word, that signifieth to decide, and to denote such, as take upon them, to decide, and determine things of future contingency, by the view of the sky. Howbeit, some take upon them, here, to alter the text, and, because this word is in Scripture no where else found, to read instead of it, the word used elsewhere, for an enchantor, or charmer, Deut. 18. 11. Psal 58. 5. of the same flock with that, ver. 9. 12. but taken in another sense, so as it is no where, save in a feminine form, found used in Scripture, as it signifieth a consociator, or conjoyner; expounding the words, by an invention of terms, such as consociate, or conjoyn the stars, (that obtrive the conjunctions of them, for the drawing of dooms and predictions from them) by contemplating of the heavens: such an invention of terms, some also would have, Psl. 35. 7. But these seem to be somewhat overbold with the text.

star-gazers] Heb. those that gaze upon the stars. Another term given to the same persons, to those of the same profession vaunted of skill, gathered from the observation of the courses and conjunctions of the stars, for above, or about, as some, twenty, yea, as some, seventy thousand of years; so many thousands, before there were either stars to be observed, or men to observe them, the world having not, as yet, seen neer six thousand years.

monethly prognosticators] Heb. that give notice, instruct, or make to know things concerning the moneths; the word properly signifies the new moon, Psa. 81. 3. Exod. 40. 3. but is also commonly tov the moneths, because the new moon, among the Jews, began the moneth. Those that take upon them, to tell before hand, the occurents of each moneth, as our Prognosticators also do.

stand up, and save thee] Heb. stand up, and save thee; for the copulative is in the textor stand up to save thee: as that particle is also oft used, Josh. 24. 9. ch. 2. 19. 12. & 53 2.

V. 14. Behold they shall be as stubble; the fire shall burn them] They shall be as stubble to the fire, in the day of Gods wrath, Chapter 1. 31. and 5. 24. Exodus 15. 7. Nah. 1. 10. Zeph. 2 2. and it may be, also, made fuel, matter for ordinary fire, as the Philistines idols, 2 Samuel 5. 21. and the Jewish falfe Prophets, Jeremi. 29. 22.

they shall not deliver themselves from the power of the flame] Heb. from the hand of the flame, that is, of the fire: as Luk. 16. 24. they shall not be able to save themselves, much lefs to save others, v. 13, 15. ch. 46. 2. Psl. 146. 3, 4.

there shall not be a coal to warm at, nor fire to sit before it] They shall utterly perish, and nothing of them remain, that may yeeld the least help, or hope, that may afford the least comfort: a metaphor taken from wood, or fewel, fo burnt and consumed to ashes, that not so much as any coal, cinder, or ember, is left, that may be of any use, afford any heat, or help, to kindle a new fire again. See the like in another notion, Ch. 30. 4 or, as some render it, shall not be a coal to warm with, or fire to sit before it that is, say they, a fire which the Medes and Persians shall kindle at Babylon, among the Chaldeans, shall not be such a fire, as they are wont to sit by for warmth in winter, Jer. 36. 21. but such a wasting and consuming fire, as shall destroy and devour all before it, Ps. 50. 3. & 97. 3. ch. 9. 18. & 10. 16. & 24. 6. & 26. 11 Jer. 51. 25, 31. But the former seeme seems the founder, both for what went before, and for what followeth after. v. 15. However, the negative is to be supplyed from the former branch; or the disjunctive instead of it to be inferted, as Pf 9. 18. See on ch. 28. 28.

V. 15. Thus shall they be unto thee, with whom thou hast laboured, even thy merchants from thy youth] Or, Thus shall thy merchants be unto thee, (that is, in like manner shall it be with thee, as in regard of thy wizzards, so in regard of thy merchants) with whom thou hast hired thy self] as Ier. 51. 58. from thy youth. For there seems to be a trajection in the words of the text. The like, whereunto, is found Rev. 13. 8. compared with ch. 17. 8. there: as this, with ver. 12. here: either of these readings doth well fit those, who, by merchants, here understand her wizzards. Howbeit, if we regard the distinctions in the Hebrew, the text would thus be read; Thus shall it be with thee, in regard of those, with whom thou hast tired out thy self: (for there is the middle distinction that is of thy wizzards: and then followeth thy merchants, or thy traders, those that have traded with thee, as thy campers, for those that camp against thee. Psal. 55. 5.) from thy youth shall wander every one to his quarters: and this I take to be the genuine reading of the place.

thy merchants] All that had any trading with her, from foreign parts, which were not a few, (as with Nineveh before, Nah. 3. 16.) partly, in regard that she was now become the head city of the Empire; and partly, also, in regard of her convenient situation, for trade, by reason of the great rivers, upon which, and neer unto which, she was seated. See the like of the mystical Babylon Rev. 18. 11.

from thy youth] Since thou beganneft to rise to a more absolute empire, by the declination of the Assyrian Monarchy, the trade of Nineveh, that fell with it, being then transferred, and devolved unto thee. See v. 12.

they shall wander every one to his own quarter:] Heb. passage. They shall flee away as fast as they can, each one to his own home, to his own country, when they see how it goeth, or is like to go with thee. Or, they shall flee each one any way, that they can find free paffage by, for his own safety, unto any place, where they suppose they may be secured, and leave thee alone, to shift, as thou canst, for thy self. See the like of her Souldiery. Jer. 51. 9.

none shall save thee] Neither they merchants, for they shall forsake thee: not thy wizzards; for they shall perish together with thee; verse 14.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Verse 1.] Hear ye this] This Chapter is, also, much of the same both subject and frame, with divers of the former; especially the 43. and 44. For in it, the Lord reproveth the disobedience, rebelliousnesse, and obstinacy of his own people; layeth before them, his power, and his providence, whereof by many evidences, they might be convinced: whereby, by what means they might have prevented many mischiefs that had befallen them, and yet promiseth, having refined them by such afflictions as they had undergone, by Cyrus freely to set them free, and restore them again.

Hear ye this, O house of Jacob] Ch. 58. 1. & 46. 3.

which are called by the name of Israel] Which profess your selves to be Israelites, and bear that name, but do not answer your name, are not lo in truth Rom. 2. 17. & 9 6 They vaunted themselves of Israel, as of Abraham, Mat. 3. 9 John 8. 33. whereas, indeed, they neither resembled, nor imitated, either Israel, or Abraham, Mat. 3. 7. John 8. 37, 39, 40.

and are come forth out of the waters of Iudah ?] That are of the lineage, or off spring of Judah, descending and issuing from him, as streams, or rivelets, from a well head, or spring, Deuter. 33. 28. Psalm 68. 26. See the like metaphor, Prov. 5. 15. 18. And this is a higher degree of honour and dignity, that these men arrogated to themselves: for all the twelve Tribes were defended of Jacob; but we, fay they, are of the flock of Judah, the royall Tribe, Gen. 49. 8, 10, which had retained the fervice and worship of God with them, when the other fell a way to idolatry, 2 Chron 11. 13-16. and 13. 8-10.

which swear by the name of the Lord, and make mention of the God of Israel] That sware by the true God, as professing to serve him, ch. 19 18. & 45. 23. as every nation is wont to swear by that god they serve and worship, Gen. 31. 53. when as yet they yeeld him no obedience, but abuse his name to evil purposes, Jer. 5. 2. Hos. 4. 15. Zeph. 1. 5. and make mention of him, when they swear, Exod. 23. 23. Josh. 23. 17. or more generally have the name of God oft in their mouths as well out of oaths as in oaths as if they reverenced and regarded him, when, indeed, they do nothing less, Chapter 29. 13. Jerem. 12. 2.

but not in truth, nor in righteousnesse] As an oath ought to be taken, and Gods name to be used. See Jeremiah 4. 2. and 5. 2.

V. 2. For they call themselves of the Holy City] As it is styled, Mat. 4. 5. & 27. 53. Heb. here, the city of holinesse, or rather, the city of the Sanctuary. For there is an article of special defignation before the noun governed and so ch. 52. 1. which, indeed, was the main ground why it was called and accounted, by an eminency, the holy city, in regard of Gods Sanctuary there seated, and his name or worship there settled, Dant. 12. 11. 2 Chron. 7. 12, 16. of this city Jerusalem, Ch. 52. 1. they professed themselves to be citizens, even fellow-citizens, with Gods holy ones, Ephes. 2. 19. Now as the text is here read, it leems to render a further reason, of what they were formerly said to profess, to wit, that they were of Jacobs Family, and Judahs line, for they were of Jerusalem, the head city of Judah; which being yet a further matter of honour, and an higher dignity, to be citizens of so honourable and holy a city, might well help to confirm the former, because it was an adjection thereunto. But Some read the words rather, Though they call themselves of that city; as having reference to the last words of the former verse, not in truth, nor in righteousnesse: though, or albeit, they profess themselves to be such as is hereafter mentioned; and the particle here used is very frequently thus taken, in a different notion; which, not observed, hath made some places the more obscure: as that, Gen. 8. 21 & 48. 14. Psa. 15. 11. but to clearly, Josh. 17. 18. Psl. 23. 4. ch. 1. 2. See the like, Chapter 58. 2.

and stay themselves upon the God of Israel] Make as if they trusted, and relyed upon God, Mic. 3. 11. Rom. 2. 17. Jeh. 2. 23. 25. and 6. 64. Acts 8. 13, 23. a metaphor taken from some flay, that a man leaneth upon for support. See Chap. 36.6.

the Lord of hosts is his name] Or, whose name is the Lord of hosts; as Chap. 47.4. Jer. 48. 15.

Ver. 3. I have declared the former things from the beginning, and they went forth out of my mouth, and I shewed them: I did them suddenly, and they came to pass. Or, The former things which I declared in time past, and which came out of my mouth, and which I shewed; I did suddenly, & they came to pass.] This is here mentioned, as oft before; partly, to assert Gods divine power and providence: partly, to tax them for not adhering sincerely and constantly to him, not withstanding those evident proofs thereof exhibited unto them, and partly, to strengthen the faith of the godly, partly in firm expectation of the future performance of those things that now he promised, See Chap. 41.22.26. & 42.9. & 43.9-13 & 45. 21. &46. 10. The relative is wanting in the two first branches: as chap 47.11. supplyed by the positive in the third, as chap.46.4. Ver.1.

went out of my mouth] Either by way of prediction, Psal. 89.34. or, by way of determination, Lam 3.37,38. Chap. 45.23. See Verse 5.

shewed] made to hear, Or, to be heard: Chap. 41.22. & 42.2. ver 20.

I did] Whatsoever I foretold, or promised, I failed not in due time to effect. Josh 21 45 & 23 14 chap 45 23.

suddenly Either when they were least expected and looked for, Chap.30.13.&47 11. or at the very instant of time prefixed, Exo. 12.41. to Mal. 3.1.

Ver. 4 Because I knew that thou art obstinate, and thy neck is an iron sinew, and thy brow brass.] A reason why God was pleased to fore-tel things to his people, long before he did them; that they might not, when they were done, be ascribed to any other beside himself, by them: which he fore-knew that they would be too prone to do.

Because I knew] Heb. From my knowing; as ch.31.4.&53.5. Pf.12.5. where the particle is used in a causal notion See it in another, concerning the same subject, that is here inflicted on, Deut.9.24.

obstinate] Heb. hard: Exod 32. 9.&33,3,5. &34.9. Deut. 9.6.13. & 31. 27.

thy neck is an iron sinew] Or, an iron sinew is in thy neck: a defect of the preposition as ch. 3.4.13.&44 12. Heb. a sinew of iron as a yok of iron, Deut. 28 48. and, a rod of iron, Psal.2. 9. for, an iron yok, and, an iron rod: an iron sinew, for, a stiff, hard, tough one; as it is expounded in the places above-mentioned thy brow brass] Or, as some, fleet: as the word is supposed to signifie, Jugg 16. 21. Jer. 15. 12. Lam 3 7. Heb brazen; as we say, a brazen brow: or, a fleshly, as the word is used, Lev.26 19. Job. 6. 12. and Psal. 18.34 a bow of steel: a brow of fleel, or, a fleely brow, for, a brow as hard, as if it were of brass, or fleel, that is, exceeding hard. See the like phrases of rocky faces, Jer 5.3. and of stony, and, flony hearts, expressing an extremity of obstinacy, Eze.36.26. Zach. 7. 12.

Ver. 5. I have even from the beginning declared it to thee: before it came to pass, I shewed it to thee.] See on ver 3. the pronoun it, is here wanting as, chap. 46. 11. See also, ver. 6.

lest thou shouldest say, Mine idol hath done them] The pronness even of many even among Gods people, to ascribe unto their false gods, what God himself hath done for them, Jer. 44.17,18. Hos. 2.5,8. as the Heathen people used to do, Jud.16.23. Of the word idol, here used, see on Chap.10.10.

and my graven image, and my molten image hath commanded them] Or, given them in charge; as Chap. 38 1. &45.11. appointed them thus to come to pass. See before, Gone out of my mouth, ver.3.

and] Or, or, the copulative disjunctively; as Chap 44.10.&45. 9. Some one, or other of my idols.

Ver. 6. Thou hast heard: see all this, and will not ye declare it?] Or, Consider all this, which thou hast heard; (all that I have shewed thee, or made thee to hear, ver. 3 5.) a defect of the relative, as ver. 3. and will ye dissemble what ye have heard from me so long before and not acknowledge it your selves, and acquaint others with it, that ye may be witnesses in my behalf, of the truth thereof, unto them? Chap.42.10. & 44.8. See Chap.43.19. Some would read the words, and do not you your selves publish it? that is, publikely acknowledge it, in the celebration of your solemn rites and feasts, which you observe as memorials thereof, Psal. 81. 1,2,3. Exod. 12. 25-27. Lev.23,16. Deu. 16. See the like of Christs death. 1. Cor. 11. 26. And this sense seems not improbable. Others would have it read; and have ye declar d it? that is, have ye by the help of any of ye ur idols—foretold, any of that, that I have so fore-shewed to you Chap.43.9.&44.7. So the negative should be taken for an interrogative, as some would have it, Mal. 1.10. But I suppose it no more so in the one place then in the other; and doubt much, whether so in any There might be some better colour for such a form, from our version, 2 King. 1.3. if it were right: but the double negative seems there more vehemently to aver; as that tripple one, Heb. 13.5.

I have shewed thee new things from this time, even hidden things, and thou didst not know them. Or, I shew thee (Heb. make thee hear, as ver. 5. at present. Heb. from now, as chap. 19.21. as before, from then ver.3.5. (new things) as chap 43.19. and hidden, Heb. kept close, or reserved, Prov. 7.10. Jer. 33.3. which thou knowest not, to wit, before, as v.7. the copulative with the pretitive, put for the relative, as chap 37.27.& 44.14. Some read the words, and there are things reserved (to be revealed, and done hereafter) which thou knowest not, but art as yet ignorant of. But the former runs more smoothly: Yet further to convince thee of thy wilful obstinacy, I acquaint thee again, with other of my secret counsels, which shall all of in their due time be fulfilled.

V.7. They are created now, and not from the beginning, even before the day, when thou heardest them not, lest thou shouldest say, Behold I knew them.] Or, They are brought to light now, (as things are, when created (and not in time past), (not formerly. Heb. from then, as ver. 3,5. 8.) or before this day, (the copulative disjunctively as ver.5. and the pronoun wanting. as Josh.22.16,18,29 2 Chro.35.25) when thou hadst not heard of them. Heb. and thou heardest not of them: as chap.33.1.&43.12. lest thou should'st pretend that some other way, or from some of thine idols, thou hadst been made acquainted with them before, ver.5. knew, to know before, as ver.6.8.

V. 8 Yea, thou heardest not, yea, thou knewest not; yea, from that time, that thine ear was not opened] Or, even when (supplyed from verse 7. to carry on the sentence depending upon it,) thou hadst not heard, even, when thou knewest not; even when thine ear had not formerly, Heb. from then as v. 7 opened, that is, perfected it to hear, as ch. 48.8. Can.7.12. or been open, as ch. 50.11. by no private insight from any other concerning these things, that are now by me revealed to thee. The repetition of the particle, yea, or even, doth much quicken the sentence and make it more emphatical: as the like, ch.40. 24. Most Interpreters understand it of the spiritual opening of the inward ear, Deut. 29.4. Chapter 50.5. as it God should intimate his free favour unto them, in revealing these things, yea, and in making them good to them, even when they continued in their obstinacy, when they stopped their ears, and would not hear, Psal. 58.4,5. Chap. 28.12. Zach.7.12. But the former sense is the plainer.

for I knew that thou wouldest deal very treacherously] That thou wouldest be a fcribing them, and the foreknowledge of them, either to thine idols, and thy Sooth-layers, or to thy self, ver.5.7. Heb. wouldest dealing treacherously, deal treacherously as: chap. 24.16. or, Because (as chap. 59,14.) I knew, that is, foreknew knew beforehand, as ver.7.) that thou wouldest deale very treacherously.

and was called a transgressor from the womb] Heb a transgressor, or, a revolter, (as, chap 53.12.) was called upon thee; as chap.63.2. for, to be, or, to be accounted and commonly known to be: as chap. 58 12. &60.3. I might well deem, that in future time, thou wouldest so demean thy self; because thou hadst been prone (as was well known) to such carriage of thy self, from thy beginning, Deut.9.7,24. Chap 63.10.

from the womb] From the time that I brought thee out of Egypt; which was as the birth of that State and Church. chap.46.3. Jer.2. 2.&22.21.&31.30. an allusion to mans natural birth. Psal 51.5.& 58 3. of which also, some, but without good ground understand it; this passage implying somwhat, not common to all, but peculiar to that people.

V 9. For my names sake will I defer mine anger, and for my praise, will I refrain for thee, that I cut thee not off] Or, for my names sake; (that is, for mine own sake, ver.11. Chap.43.25. Psal.25. 11. & 106.8. Ezek.36.31. (Or, because of my name, (where by thou are called, verf.1. being accounted my people, Chap.64.9. Jer. 14.9. Jeel .20,9. & 36.20 (do I forbear, or, stay my anger, or, I am so slow to anger; Heb. will I prolong, or, do I prolong mine anger: Now to prolong anger, may be taken two ways, either for to lengthen it, that is, to continue long in it as Psal. 85.5. wilt thou draw out thy wrath from age to age? though another word be there used; and so one of the Jewish Writers would have it here taken, but renders no reason of it: and it seemes directly contrary to the main scope of the place, but it may be taken also for to stay it, and suppresse it, that it break not forth, that it flit not: as of the Ark it is said, Num. 9.19,22. when it stayed, and flirred not; where the same word is used, that we have here: and so it is used in this place; as also, Prov. 19.11. the discretion of a man doth stay, and represse his anger: or, make him slow to anger: not maketh him defer, or, put it off, till he find opportunity to vent it: and thence slow to anger, Deut.34 6 Num.14.18.and for my praise, (as some, that I may have a people to serve and praise me, Psalm, 102.18. 130.3,4. Ch.43 21.64.11. or rather, that I may gain thereby to my self, the praise of my might, and my mercy, Psal. 65.1 & 75 1 ch. 12.1. for mine honour, and my glory, Pl. 106.8.v.11.(do I refrain it (to wit, mine anger, supplyed, as the particle, for, also from the former clause:) See Psal.78.38.) from thee, (that is, from seizing upon thee) or, for thee, (that is for thy good) that I destroy thee not, Jer. 30.11. As it was of my free favour, that I chose you at first, Deut. 7.7,8, &9.4.6. so is it of my meer mercy, and respect to mine own honour, that I have hitherto spared you, and not utterly destroyed you, and that I still forbear so to do, Num. 14.12-18.

Psal.106.45. Lam.3.22. Some read the words. I will seal unto thee that I will not cut thee off: and it is true, that the word which signifies to seal, differeth but in one letter from this; but yet in such a letter as makes several roots; and the Jewish Criticks conform this word, which as they speak, hath no mate in Scripture, is a word of the Eastern, that is, of the Syrian, language; and signifieth to obstruct, stop, or restrain, and that more specially, the nose, which among them, therefore, is also so termed: that which stoppeth passing well with the words of the former branch, where the word rendred anger, as it is very commonly used, doth properly signifie the nose, because by puffing at the nose, anger is usually discovered: and God is said to smoak at the nostrils, when he sheweth himself angry, Psal.18.7,8. And so on the contrary, he is said to forebow, and restrain his breathing out at the nole, as it his nostrils were obstructed and stopped, that he could not freely breath at them; when he keepeth in, and restraineth his anger, and sufferesh it not to break out, or fly out so freely and fiercely, as otherwise it would do; hence the phrase a man long, or, slow of breath: wise it would do; hence the phrase a man long, or, slow of breath: that is, one that breaths slowly; opposed to one that breatheth high, and big, Eccl.7.8. and a man of long, or slow nostrils, that breathes slowly at the nostrils, Prov. 15,18. & 16. 32. opposed to one of quick nostrils, or quick of breath, Prov.14.17. and, of short or quick nostrils, Prov.14.29. that is, one that breatheth at the nostrils, short and quick: the former, used for one that is slow to wrath; the latter, for one that is of an hasty disposition. See further, on Jer. 15. 15.

Ver. 10. Behold I have refined thee, but not with silver] Some render it, as here, in the time past; I have refined thee by many afflictions already, and yet are thou never the better for them, Jer.5.3. Others rather, in the future, I will refine thee, Ch.1. 25. Jer. 9.7.

not with silver] Or, as silver; as silver, in some respects, Psal.66. 10, to purge and purifie them, Dan.11.35 Mal.3.2,3. yet in some respects, not as silver, that is, not so exactly, and exquisitely, as silver is wont to be fined, which the finer useth to keep in the fire, till all the drosse be wasted, and wrought out of it: intimating, that he would not deal overstrictly, and severely with them: but use much moderation in chastising of them: regarding their infirmity, who would be themselves utterly confounded, if God should hold them so long in the furnace, until their drosse matter were all melted out of them. See Psal. 103.9,14. & 118.18. Chap. 27.7,8. & 57-16. Jer. 10.24. and 30.11. Some render it, not into silver: as if he had said, all my melting of you, so full of drosse, and other base mettal you are, hath not hitherto made you, nor will ever make you become good silver, Chap.1.22. Jer.6.27-30. Ezek.22.18-22. Others, and so the ancient Greek, not for silver: as if he had said, I have got nothing by sending you into Babylon, such another furnace as Egypt was, Deut. 4.20. and melting you there- So Psal. 44.12. Chapter 52. 3. But these two latter seem not so natural.

I have chosen thee in the furnace of affliction] Or, as others I will choose thee (that is, make a choice one of thee, by purifying of thee through afflictions, and fitting thee thereby for my self, chap. 1.25. Dan.12.10. Mal. 3.2,3. Acts 14.23. Heb. 12.10. 1 Tim.2.20,21. 1. Pet. 1.6,7. Rom.7.14. See chap.49.7. But some other read the words: I have selected, or set thee apart, for the furnace of affliction: to be therein tryed, and purifyed more & more: better then thou hast hitherto been. I suppose that to be most genuine which the Jewish Commenters, most of them, on the place give, I have made choice of a furnace or, a melting-pot, rather, of affliction for thee. Heb. I have chosen thee: that is, chosen for thee: as given me, for, given to me, Josh. 15. 19 Judg. 1.15 as we also speak concisely, in either: to, come us, for, come unto us, chap. 28.15. dwell thee, for, dwell with thee, Psal. 5.4. and many other the like: in the furnace, or a furnace, or, melting-pot; for the verb of choosing here used, hath this prepositi-on (as another also) prefixed before the noun after it, vacant, according to the manner of that language. So Deut. 7.7.&14.2. the Lord chose to thee, for, the Lord chose thee: and 1 Sam. 10. 24. and Psal. 105.26. hath chosen in him, for, chosen him, a melting pot, for to the word properly signifieth, Prov. 17.3. & 26 21.) of affliction, that is, affliction to be, as, or, for, a melting-pot: as, the sign of circumcision, Rom.4.11. that is, circumcision to be a sign. So that the meaning is, that God had appointed their affliction in Babylon, during the time of their captivity there, to be as a melting-pot unto them, as the like in Jerusalem, had formerly been, during the siege, Ezek. 22. 18,19.

V. 11. For mine own sake, even for mine own sake will I do it] That which he saith elsewhere, I wrought for my names sake, that I might not be polluted in the sight of heathen people, Ezek.20 9.14,22. (where the word is the same, as also, chap 43 25. and the word may well be so rendred here; For mine own sake will I work. I will have a regard to mine own honour and credit, though you deserve nothing less, then what I do intend to do: and then there needs no supply: otherwise, it or thus, is to be supplyed: as ch. 10.13. ver. 5,6. Ezek. 36,37. Mal.3.17. See chap.44.23. there is an emphasis in the repetition: as Psal. 115.1. Chap .43.25. as if he had said, for my self alone, as Psal.51.4. and not for you, or for any desert of yours, Ezek. 36.32. See ver.9.

for how should my name be polluted?] Heb. how should it be polluted? to wit, my name, supplyed from ver. 9 otherwise how would mine honour be eclipsed and obscured in the minds of people: as if I were notable to save, or to deliver my people? See Num.14.15.16. Deut. 32.-27-37,38. Josh.7,8,9. Psalm.42.10. and 115.1,2.&106.8. Ezek. 36. 20.

and I will not give my glory to another] Or, to any other: as Exod 34. 14. I am very chary, and jealous of mine honour, and cannot endure any corrival in it, Exod. 20.5. & 34.7. Deut. 4.24. and 5. 9.

Ver. 12. Hearken unto me, O Jacob, and Israel my called] Whom I called out of Egypt, Hos. 11.1. or, whom I have called to be my peculiar people, Ch. 44.1. 1 Cor. 1.14,26,27. or that are called by my name, as my people, Chap. 43.7. & 63.19. as, to the called of Jesus Christ; that is, not called by him only, but to be his, and by calling made his, Rom.1.6. See chap. 44.1. & 46.3.

I am he] Or, I am; or, I am the same. See chap. 41.4. & 43.10. & 46.4.& 47.8.

I am the first; I also am the last] Chap.41.4.&44.6.

Ver- 13 My hand hath also laid the foundation of the Earth] Psal. 102.25. Chap.42.5. &45.12. & 51.13.

and my right hand hath spanned the Heavens] Or, doth span the Heavens; doth mete them out, as a workman doth his work in meting wherof, when he maketh use of the hand, he doth it with the right hand rather then with the left. Or, as some, the palm of my right hand hath spread out the heavens: the word is used, Lam.2.22. of mothers, or nurses, that either dandle their little ones in their hands, or lay them out to stretch their limbs, that signifies the measure of an hand spread out, or a span, Ex.25.24. Psal.39.5. See Ch.40.12.

when I call unto them, they stand up together] Or, I call them, and they stand up together; according to the former reading, a defect of the adverb: as Chap. 43.13.ver.21. according, to the latter of the copulative: them which, nothing more frequent. The celestial, bodies are as servants, that stand attending on Princes, or great per sons, 1 King. 1.2. & 10.8. Prov.22.29. ready prest at a word, or a beck, to obey in their Soveraign Lord, Maker, and Master; and to go instantly about whatsoever I enjoyn them, Psal.119 91. & 148.8. Mat.8. 9. See Chap.40.26. All this is here related, to assure them of Gods power, and al fufficient ability, to effect their deliverance according to his promise. So chap.40.26,27.

V. 14. All ye assemble your selves, and hear] These words seem to be spoken by the Prophet in his own person: and so moft take them; because the Lord is spoken of in the third Person, in the latter end of this verse: and the Prophet speaketh of himself in the first Person, in the latter end of verse 16. But there is no necessity thereof: for God speaketh of himself oft in the third Person, as chap. 37.24,32. & 40.19,31. in the next verse, God himself still speaketh in his own person, as Chapter 37.24.32. & 40.29,31. in the next verse, God himself still speaketh in his own Person: and the Prophet oft passeth suddenly from Person to Person, in that 16 verse, as appeareth plainly by the former part, interjected, at least if not in the fixteenth it self. The words therefore I suppose to be spoken, as by God him self: and that to his people, to convince them of his divine power, shewed in foretelling of things so long before and to be further manifested in the fulfilling of them. So ver. 12,16. and so to the Nations, chap.41.1 & 43.9.

which among them hath declared these things?] Which of the heathen idols hath foretold ought of them? Chap.41.22,23. and 44.7. & 45.21.

The Lord hath loved him] The Lord, that is, I (as ver. 15. the noun, for the pronoun, as chap. 2. 1. & 3.4,5,6,8. 2 Tim.1.18.) do love him, to wit, Cyrus: as, he gathered it, to wit, the Smith, the image; So, he said, for, God said, Gen. 15.14. and, he wrote, for, God wrote, Exod. 34. 28. and, he went, for, the King went, 2 King. 25.4. I do so far forth affect, and favour Cyrus, as to prosper him in his proceedings, and to honour him with glorious successes in his undertakings, having made choice of him, to overthrow Babylon, and to free my people their detained, chap.45.1-4. See ch.53.1.

He will do his pleasure on Babylon, and his arm shall be on the Chaldeans,] Or, he (that is, Cyrus, as ver. 15.) shall (as in the next clause) do his that is, the Lords) pleasure, chap.44.28. See there: and his arm (that is, his warlike power, as chap. 30.30. & 59.16.) shall be upon the Chaldeans: shall light heavy upon them, to disperse, and destroy them. See chap. 43.14.

Ver. 15. I, even I have spoken] Or, I, even I, (as chap.43.25.) have spoken it; a defect of the pronoun: chap. 46.11. and a return again to the first Person.

yea, I have called him,] I have raised him up, according to my Purpose and Counsel, by a secret instinct, Chapter 45.4. 13 and 46. 11.

I have brought him:] Heb. made him to go, or, caused him to come from him to Babylon, Chapter 43.14. on mine errand: to do me service there, Ver. 14.

he shall make his way prosperous] That is, I will make his way prosperous: the third person for the first: as before ver. 14. or, his way shall be made prosperous: the verb taken indefinitely as Cha. 46.,6 7. or, he shall prosper in his way: the verb taken neutrally, and the preposition supplyed, as chap 55.11. which I take to be the genuine syntax, as well here, as there,

Ver. 16 Come ye near unto me, hear ye this] See on ver.14.

I have not spoken in secret from the beginning] Heb. from the head, as chap. 41. 26. This some understand of God: as chap. 45.19. that he had in publike, and openly, delivered his oracles from time to time, unto his people, ever since that he took them, at first, to himself, Num.11.25,26. Jer.7.25. Others ot the Prophet Esay, as professing of himselfe, that he had openly delivered, and publikely declared Gods Mind nad Will unto them, ever since God had called him unto that Office, chap. 6.8,9. & 50.4,5. I rather follow the former, the very same being protested by God himself, in the place there pointed to.

from the time, that I was, there am I] This, those that conceive it to be spoken of God, understand two severall wayes; some, in the time past, as if it were said, ever since that ought was, or had being, I was there: to wit, at the creating of them: as noting Gods eternity, Prov. 8.22-30. chap.43.10,13. & 44. 6. or, from the time, when that was, (to wit, of my taking you unto me) I have been there, present among you, in my Prophets, by my Spirit, Deut.28.15,16. Chap.59. 21. and 63. 11. Some rather, whom I concur with, of the time to come: from the time that this shall be, (when the time appointed shall come, wherein this great work, which is now foretold you, is to be put in execution,) there, will I be present, and ready at hand, to carry on the work, and to cause it to be accomplished: the same, in effect, with that, Chap. 46.11. and ver.13. Those that understand it of the Prophet, take it also two severall wayes: Some, from the time before which it was done, there I was: to the old Latine, and they that follow it; that is, say they, I foresaw things to come as evidently, as if I were present at the doing of them, Chap.13 2,3. so Joh.8.56. but I see not how the words will admit this reading. Others, ever since Gods charge came to me,(as Hos. 1.1.) I have constantly attended it, chap.21.8. So Jer. 6.26. Hab.2.1. For that is most ridiculous, that some of the Jewish Commenters here suggest, of all the Prophets being present with Moses, on Mount Sinai, at the giving of the Law, and so Esay among the rest. Deut. 33.2.

and now the Lord God, and his Spirit hath sent me] This likewise some conceive spoken by Christ, the Word Joh.1.1. and Wisedom, of the Father, Prov. 8.1, 23. by whom he revealeth himself, and his Will and purposes to his people, Mat.11.27. Joh.1.18 Zach.2. 9,11.1Pet.1.10 12 sent by the Father, and the Spirit, to acquaint them with those gracious promises, as well the spiritual ones, as the temporal, that were types of the spiritual, Ch. 61.1. Luk.4.18 21. But others, whom I rather accord with, conceive this clause to be spoken by the Prophet of him self, sent by the three Persons joyntly. about the delivery, as of other Gods meflages, so of this in special: added here more expresly, to giue the greater assurance of the truth and certainty of it, and of the accomplishment thereof. So Jer. 26. 12,15. See Ch.6 8,9. The Prophet doth many times pass suddenly, & (as may seem, to persons not acquainted with spirirual raptures, and ecstacies) somewhat abruptly, in the heat of delivery, from one person to another.

V. 17. Thus saith the Lord thy Redeemer, the Holy one of Israel] See Chap 43.14.

I am the Lord thy God, which teacheth thee to profit] Heb. teaching thee, or, who do teach thee (as Chap .48. 24.) to profit, Who teach thee such things, as for thy welfare, that conduce to thy peace and prosperity, ver.18. Deut. 4.1,40.and 5.29. & 6.3. Job 22.21. Luk. 19. 42.

which leadeth thee, by the way that thou shouldest go.] Heb. making thee to tread (that is teaching thee, and directing thee to go, as Psal. 25.5. & 43.10. as a guide doth a traveller, chap 30. 21. or, as a Nurse doth a child, Hos.11.13.) in the way, thou shalt walk, that is, wherein thou shouldest walk: the relative wanting, as ch. 47.11. and as frequently with us, and the verb taken in signification of duty: as Chap.26 9. Io Psal. 25.12,13,14.

V. 18. O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandements] Deut. 5.29. & 32.26. Psal.81.13. implying, that then they had escaped many evils, and much sorrow, that melting-pot of affliction, that in the captivity of Babylon, they had to long lien in, among the rest, ver. 10. which by their sinful excesles, wilful disobedience, and obstinacy therein, they procured to themselves, Psal. 81.11,12. Jer. 7.23-28. & 26.2-6.

then had thy peace been as a river] thy peace; that is thy prosperity, as Psal 119 165. should have abounded, as those rivers that flow with great streams, and do oft-times over flow their banks, So Ch.59.19. Jer. 12.5. and because of the article enclosed in the note of similitude, as the river: some of the Rabbins suppose, that Euphrates is here more specially pointed at: as Psal.78.8. Chap. 7. 20.

and thy righteousness, as the waves of the Sea] This is, the same in effect, though in other terms, with the former. By righteousness, is here meant, not any moral vertue, or gracious disposition: as the word properly, & most commonly signifieth. Ps.119. & 45.7. Eph.4. 24. But as some, a State well composed, & wanting nothing, that is due unto it, or requisite to its compleat happiness, Psf, 72.3. Joel 2. 32. Others, prosperity, as before so called, because the fruit of peace, as some, Rom.14 17. Heb.12.11. Jam.3.18. the reward of righteousnels, as others, Gen.30.32. as iniquity, for, punishment, the fruit and reward of it, Gen. 4.13. or, which I take to be the genuine sense of it, a confluence of all good things, which God, out of his benignity, is wont, in way of beneficence, (for that also, by the word of righteousness, is oft understood, Psl. 1,2,3,4,9. 2cor. 9.9. 10.10 impart unto & confer upon a people, so is the word used, 2Sa. 12.7. Psal.36.5,6,10. where benignity and righteousness are twice joyned together: as things very neer, if not the same, as also, Ps. 75.9,10. See also Psal. 48.9,10. compared with Prov. 3.16,17. Chap.54.17. and 58.8 and 63.7. and this is called Gods, Psal 36. 6,10. because it cometh from him. Chap.54.17. and yet theirs also, Chapter 54.17 & 58.8. because conferred upon them, Chap.45. 24 Deut 28.1-13

as the waves of the Sea,] As great plenty of all good, as of water in the Sea, or, in the main Ocean, where waves wallow most at large. See the like, Chap.11.9. So the Greeks use to say, A sea of good things, for, great abundance thereof.

V. 19. Thy seed also had been as the sand] Thine issue should have been not numerous only, but numberlesi, Gen. 13.16.&15.5. & 22.17. & 32.12. Jer. 30.22. Hos.1.10. See the like expression, Chap.10.22. Gen.41.49 1Sam.1.38. 2 Sam.13.11. 1 King.4.20, 29. Job 29. 18. Ps.78.27. &13.9.18. Jer.15.8 Hab.1.9.

and the Off-spring of thy bowels like the gravel thereof:] Off spring, see Chap. 44.3. Heb. the comming out; as chap. 34.1. & 42.5. put for, issue, Job 5.25. & 21.8. & 27.14 and 31.8. Chap.61.9 & 65. 23. to be called, because they are laid to come out of the bowels of their parents, Gen. 15.4. & 25.23. 2 Sam 13.11. in allusion whereunto, the gravel-stones or beach, that lyon the shore, by the sea side, are in the Hebrew here styled, the bowels thereof, to wit, of the Sea; to be supplyed from Verse 28. the pronoun for the noun, as Verse 14.

his name should not have been cut off, nor destroyed from before me] His name: that is, the memory of him, (name, for, memorial, as Ps. 83.4. Prov.10.7.) or their posterity (in whom, mens names are continued, Num.27.4.) should always have been acceptable with me: or as others, This thy prosperous estate had continued with thee, and thy posterity, without interruption, Psal.81.14,15. Zeph. 3.7. or, Thou hadst not been cast out of thy land, and thy name, that is, the glory of thy State, and the renown thereof, cut off, Jer. 22.30.& 36.30. Lam.5.16. (See Ezek.16.13,14.) nor hadst thou been removed out of my sight, the Temple being defaced, & destroyed wherein thou was wont to appear before me, and to attend me, and have communion, as my people, with me, Psal.42.2. and 84.7. See Jer.35.19. Howbeit, others (the rather for that gracious promise of never cutting off, or casting off the whole leed of Israel, Jer. 31.37.) read the words, as spoken in way of commination, or intimation of what should befal them; but in way of mitigation, and of a favourable exception. with supply of a disrerive particle, thus, Yet shall not his name be cut off, nor destroyed from before me; or, out of my sight, Jer.33.18. See Chap.49.15,16. Jer.30.11. and 31.37. and 46.28. in which last place, God promiseth, that notwithstanding all the sins and abominations committed by them, yet he would not utterly either cut, or cast them off, See the like defect of the like particle, Job 14.9. Chap.44.11. And this sense seemeth the more probable; because perfectly followeth a promise of deliverance, and restitution again, Ver.20. See the like, 2 King. 14.24,26,27. The words run in the Hebrew somewhat otherwise, then they are in our version; He should not have been, or, shall not be, cut off, nor his name destroyed out of my sight. But the difference is not much material; save that the cutting off of their persons, seems imported (whether implyed, or denyed,) in the one; the casting off all care of them, or special relation to them, in the other: an allusion, it may be deemed, to enrolment of servants, and retinue in some great mans family; foulders in an army, penfioners in a State, or the like. See the like, Exod. 32.32,33. Psal.69.28. chs. 34. 4,5,29.

V. 20 Go ye forth of Babylon; flee ye from the Chaldeans, with a voice of singing] A promise of deliverance from the Babylonian thraldom, not by a timeious, and hazzardous flight: as when servants and captives break away from their hard Masters, by stealth, Gen.31.20,27. Exod.14 5-9. 1 Sam.25.10. but freely and cheerfully, without fear of slay, or pursuit, as merrily as a slave, or captive, that is, refcued out of thraldom and bondage, and set at full liberty. See Chap.52.12. Howbeit some understand the words, as an admonition unto the Jews, abiding in Babylon, to get out of the City, and escape by flight, so soon as they hear tydings of Cyrus his entrance into Chaldea, or approach to the city, and not stay the surprisal of it. Ch. 48.14,15.11. Jer.50.8. & 51.6.45. Zach. 2.6. Rev. 18.4. See the like Gen. 19.15. Jer. 46.8. & 47.3. and 48.9. Matth 24.15-19. Luk.17.31,32. But the singing here mentioned, seems rather to import their departure, with free and full liberty upon Cyrus his proclamation, Ezra.1.1. See Psal.14.7. and 126.1,2. ch. 12.1,5 and 26.1. and 35.10.

declare it, tell this; utter it, even to the end of the earth:] See the like, chap.12.4 5.

declare it] Some joyn the former clause, with singing, to this; as if it were said, with joy tell it, or talk of it, one to, or with, another: but the pauses annex it rather to the former: and this with what followeth, seems to require the publishing of it, to other, Psal. 9. 11.

tell] Heb. make it to be heard: as ver. 3,5,6.

utter it] Heb. make it to go forth, or to passe; as Psal. 19.4.

say ye, the Lord hath redeemed his servant Jacob] hath refcued, and

and delivered him out of the Chaldean Captivity, Psal. 107.2.3. as formerly out of the Egytian bondage, Exod.19.4-6. Argury of their spiritual deliverance by Christ, Luk. 1.68. Col.1.13. Some would have it read in the future, The Lord will redeem; and parallel it with that, Luke 21. 28. but it seems spoken rather to the people, as telling what they should say, when they were set at larges, as chap.12.4.

V.28. And they thirsted not, when he led them thorow the deserts; he caused the waters to flow out of the rock for them; he clave the rock also, and the waters gushed out.] This may well be read in the future: And they shall not thirst, as when he led them thorow the deserts. For the Prophet returneth to speak in his own person, and to tell them, how it shall be with them, after their enlargement. For whereas it might be faid, how shall we go with so much mirth and jollity, when we have so long and tedious a way to travel, before we can get home into our own Country, and are to passe thorow so many wild and waft places, wherin, through want of necessaries, we may perish and miscarry by the way. The Prophet, therefore tells them, that God will look to that, he will furnish them with all necessaries, one way or other: and to put them out of fear, and doubt thereof, to wit, of his power to make provision sufficient for them, he mindeth them of what he didin former times when he led them thorow the Wilderness to the land of Canaan; how he furnished them with water, the greateft matter of want in those places, and most necessary for mans sustenance in travel, in those hot Regions especially. Exodus 17. 6. Numbers 20. 11, 12. Psalme 78. 15. and 105. 41. implying withall, that what God had then done, he could now doe: yea, and would doe; he would as well and sufficiently supply them, with that, and all other necessary accommodations, as if he had done the very self-same thing again. See Chapter 41. 18. and 49. 10.

they thirsted not] Or, they shall not thirst; as Chap. 49.10. not that they should not at all thirst, for hunger, and thirst, are natural affections, so far from being of themselves simply any annoyance; that they are asauce, to give relish to our food: but that they should not, when they were athirst, want wherewith to flake and quench it. So Joh. 4.14. & 6.35. & 7.37,38.

when he lead] Or, as when he leadeth defect of the adverb of time; as ver. 13. chap.41.17. of the note of similitude, as chap. 33.4,11. See Chap. 17. 5.

V. 22. There is no peace, saith the Lord, unto the wicked.] Or, as Some render it, But, or, yet no peace shall be to the wicked: no peace, that is, no prosperity; no prosperous succelle in ought, as ver. 28. See Psal. 1.3,4. the difcretive is supplyed 3as Chapter 44.11. This some understand this of the prophane and wicked party among the Jews, that they should have no part or share in the prosperity promised to Gods people, Chap. 65.21. Others, of the Babylonians, the enemies of Gods people, that all things should goe cross with them, Chap. 13.11-16. Others, both of the one, and of the other; and of the unquiet and reftleis condition of either; yea, of all wicked ones in general, Job 15. 20,21. and 20.20. See Chap. 57. 20,21.

CHAP. XLIX.

Vers. 1. Listen, O Iles, unto me; and hearken, O people from far.] The Prophecy delivered, and recorded in this Chapter, runneth on in the same strain with the former, relating the restauration and enlargement, of Gods Church, consisting both of Jews and Gentiles, under a type of the Jews releasement from the Babylonian deportation: and the re-establishment of them in their former estate, with much honour and concourse, by reason of other Nations unto them; both effected by the mighty power of the Lord Jesus the Messias. In these first words is contained a preamble, prefixed before the delivery of the Prophecy, inviting people, far and near to hear it, and inciting them to give due attention, unto the things therein delivered. See the like, chap.41.4.

Listen] Heb. Hear: as chap. 1.2 or, hearken, as chap. 51.1. a duty required as in regard of all Gods Prophets in general, Amos 3.1.& 4. 1. Zach. 7.7. so, more specially, in regard of Christ, that principal Prophet, or Prince of Prophets, Deut. 18.18,19. Acts 3. 22,23. by whom, the Father revealeth himself, his mind, and his mysteries, both to his prophets, and to his people, Mat.11. 27.&17.5. Joh. 1.18.&3.13. Heb.1.1,2. & 2.1-3.&3.1,7. & 4.2,7. & 12. 15. 25.

O iles] or, lands, countries, Ch.41.1. Some expound it simply, Islands, being remote, fay they, from the countries situate in the continent. Others, transmarine regions: such of them, especially, as coast upon the sea: but the word seems more generall, as chap.20. 6. & Jer.47.4. so here: and the lands are put for the Inhabitants, or those that abide therein; as the next clause sheweth.

unto me] The Jewish Commenters understand this, as spoken in the person of the Prophet Elay himself, calling upon them, to give ear to Gods meflage, which he was to deliver, wherein also some of ours concur with them: and it is not improbable, that divers passages in these Prophecies might have some reference to him, as in part verified in him, but in a more peculiar, and transcendent manner, to be accomplished in Christ, of whom, therefore principally intended; of Esay only, as what was done either by him, or about him might hold out some shadowy resemblance of such excellent graces, as were to be conferred upon Christ; and glorious works as were to be effected by him. See chap.50.4. & 61.1. So divers of ours, understand this; though the most, of Christ alone without relation to any other: as the person, by whom was to be wrought whatsoever benefit God intended to bestow upon his people, either in those times, or in these: and who, as by the Prophet he then foretold them, so was to be depended upon both now and then, for the making of them good, chapter 11. 10. Rom.15.8-12. 2 Cor.1. 20. and 5.18,19,20. Ephes.1. 3. and 2.13-17. Col.1. 19, 20. and 2.3,9.

and hearken] Or, attend; for the word signifieth a sedulous, and serious attention, to ought, either heard, or seen, chap.21.7 & 28. 24. So chap.34.1 & 51.4.

O people] Not ye Jews alone, but ye people also abroad; either because the Jewish people were to be dispersed among them, and to be thence again recollected, ver.12. chap.11.11,12. or because the salvation in this Prophecy foretold, should concern the Gentiles, as well as the Jews, ver.6. chap.60.3. & 66.19,20.

from far] Either in regard of distance of place, ver.12. Chap.60.4. or, of disposition, and affection, Eph.2.13,17 Some of the Jewish Writers understand it of the exiling ages: not ye alone, that now are; but those that shall be in after times, as some also expound the like, Act.2.39. but this seems here not so fit.

the Lord hath called me from the womb] Here followeth the matter, or meflage, unto the hearing whereof, such attention was required. And it is principally of Christ, his office to be the Saviour, both of Jew and Gentile, and Gods calling him thereunto which in regard it was the main foundation of that work, wherein he was to be employed, Heb.5.4-6.9,10. the Prophet begins first with it called me from the womb] God the Father, who, from eternity had fore-affigned me to this office, 1 Pet.1.20. did both while I was yet in the womb, and so soon as I was come out of it, manifest and make known this his purpose concerning me, both to men and Angels, Mat.1.21-23. Luk.2.10,11,13. Heb.1.6. the like is, in respect of their office and employment, in their inferiour sphere, spoken also of other the servants of God, extraordinary ones especially, Jer.1.5. Luk.1.15. Gal.2.15, and may be verified also of this our Prophet.

hath he made mention of my name.] Or, he recorded, or, entred upon record my name; he made a solemn record of it, as chap. 12.4. Whence the term, that signifieth a Recorder, or, Remembrancer, Chap.36.3. or, he mentioned (that is, assigned me) my name, and called, me thereby to give notice of that work and office, that he had designed me unto, Mat.1.21. Luk. 1.31. & 2.21. The like hereunto was even before conception, birth much more, done with some special instruments, by God intended for remarkable employments; as Josias, 1 King.13.2. Cyrus, chap.44.28. & 45.1-3. and John the Baptist, Luk. 1.13.60.63. that which the Hebrew Doctors, some of them affirm also, of this our Prophet; to wit, that (as Johns name was by God assigned him, importing that Grace of God, which he was to publish, Luk.1.17 76-79.&) the Prophet Esays name, was before his birth, imposed on him by God, thereby to import that Salvation of God, which he was to effect. See chap. 1. 1. But of this their assertion, we have no assurance: albeit we are not able to say, that it was not so; and leave it therefore in suspence.

V. 2 And he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword] Having avouched Christs calling to the work of mans redemption; he proceedeth, now, to a relation, of Gods suiting, and furnishing of him, with abilities sufficient, for so important a work: together with his sustaining and supporting of him, in the performance of the same.

he] The Father, from whom all power is derived, and communicated unto Christ, chap.50.4. & 61.1. Mat. 11.27. & 28.18. Joh. 3. 34, 35. & 5.19 23 Col. 1.19. & 2.3,9. 2 Pet. 1.16,17. hath made] And, so far as concerneth Christ, revealed in the flesh, 1 Tim, 3.16. runneth in a Prophetical strain; speaking of things future, as present, or past So Chap.7.14. and 45.5. & 51.16.

my mouth like a sharp sword] The word of Christ is a sword of all-sufficient power and efficacy, as for the subduing of mens souls, to the obedience of it: so for the cutting off, of whomsoever, or whatsoever shall oppose, or withstand it; compared therefore to a sword, and said to be sharper then any two-edged sword what-soever, Chap.11.4. Eph.6.17. Heb.4.12. Rev.1.16.& 6.2. this also some apply to the Prophet, whom God, by his Word, and Spirit, enabled, to the cutting down, & killing of sin in mens souls. See the Apostle, what he saith of his Ministry, 2Cor 2.14 1 6.&4.7.&10.4-6. There is an elegant allusion in the original, which in other language, cannot be so fully, or fitly expressed; for the word mouth, in the Hebrew, is ambiguous, & signifies as well the edge of the sword, as the mouth of man, or beast: hence, a sword of mouthes, for, a sword of divers edges, Ps.149.6. Pro. 5.4. and thy shall fall by the mouth, of divers edges, Pf.149.6. Pro. 5.4. and thy shall fall by the mouth, that is, the edge of the sword, Luk.21.24. and with the Greeks, as a sharp-mouthed, for, a sharp-edged; so, a double-mouthed, for,

it must, to make the sense entire,) supplyed here; the version there is none, I, that is, but I, or beside me, will be warrantable, because suitable to that parallel place, and agreeable to many other the like constructions.

I shall not sit as a widow, neither shall I know the losse of Children] Thou thoughtest it impossible, ever to be deprived of thy King and Kingdome, whereunto thou seemest to be wedded, as to an husband, by an indissoluble band; or, of thy people, that are as thy children, or, as some, thy posterity, thine illue, that should succeed constantly, in thy Kingdom. See Rev. 18.7.

sit as a widow] Heb. sit a widow: as Gen. 38. 11. or, sit as a widow, the note of similitude supplyed: as Lam. 1. 1. which here wanteth, as verse 3. I shall not sit desolate, as widows use to do.

know] Experimentally: sustain, or suffer, as Gen. 2. 9. Eccl. 8. 5. 2 Cor. 5. 21.

V. 9. But these two things shall come unto thee, in a moment, in one day, the losse of children, and widow-hood] It shall befal thee clean contrary to thine expectation, or presumption rather, in both, and in both at once, yea, both shall betide thee, suddenly, and in as much extremity as may be, the lofs both of Soveraignty, and of subjects together; or, of posterity, to sway the scepter of thy State successively, the line of Nebuchadnezzar being with Baltasar cut off. Dan. 5. 30, 31. See the like ch. 51. 19.

But] Or, Yet. Heb. And. So Chap. 40. 31. and 42. 20, 25.

in a moment] Or, suddenly. When it is least thought on, or looked for, Job 21. 13. and 34. 20. Psalm 73. 19. See ver. 11.

in one day] At one time together; not so precisely: as 1 Sam. 2. 34. but as Rev. 18. 8.

they shall come upon thee, in their perfection] They shall come full, or fully upon thee. Heb. according to their entireneſs, or, perfection, thy calamities, in either kind, shall be exceeding great. See the next clause.

for the multitude of thy forceries, and for the great abundance of thine enchantments] For, or with, thy manifold witch-crafts, for thy mighty enchantments, shall they come upon thee exceedingly; for the last word is an adverb, and signifies, very much, very greatly, abundantly, exceedingly and is used commonly, to express the superlative degree, which the Hebrews want, Gen. 1. 31. Exod. 1. 7. Psal. 119. 4. and there is a pause at the word next before it, which sheweth, that the hath reference to somewhat else before that, and to no noun substantive, which it will not stly accord with, but some verb, which out of the former branch, therefore is to be supplyed; as Gen. 1. 16, 30. 2 Chr. 10. 11. Prov. 15. 15. ch. 43. 2. And so our ancient verſions had it, they shall mightily fall upon thee.

for] As the particle is used, Gen. 18. 28. Jer. 18. 18. and then are her forceries, or witchcrafts, and enchantments, here mentioned, as one procuring cauſe, also, of her downfal; or, with, that is, together with; as 1 Sam. 1. 24. Jer. 11. 19. Hos. 5. 6. and then the meaning is, that all her magical flights, and cunning fetches, should stand her in no stead, but should all fail, and fall together, with her, and her state v. 12, 14, 15.

forceries] Or, witchcrafts; (for thence the word for a witch, Exod. 22. 17.) whereby is understood, as well her politick devices, wherewith she circumvented, and deluded, and fo either won to her, or kept with her, great Princes and Potent people: as if they had been bewitched, and enchanted by her: but her magical arts, and practises also, wherein that State abounded v. 12, 13. therein treading, and tracking the steps of Nineveh, by whole ruine she rose, called, a Miſtreſs of witchcrafts, Nah. 3. 4. as also the spiritual Babylon that succeeded the fecular, did herein also, not come short of either. See Rev. 17, 2, 3. & 18. 23.

the great abundance of thine enchantments] Heb. the might, or power, of thine enchantments; for so the word signifies, and is so rendred, ch. 40. 29. Nah. 2. 1. derived from a word, that signifieth a bow, and is used, also, for strength; because the bones are the strength of the body, Job 21. 23. It is true, that the verb is used, as well for to abound or to be many, as to be strong or mighty. Psalm 40. 5, 12. chap. 31. 1. and the adjective from it, descending likewise, Chap. 60. 22. but the substantive here used, for might, rather then for multitude, as in the places pointed to, where alone it is found; so that not only the variety and numerosity of her flights and policies, but the powerfulneſse and prevalency of them, is here also intimated: neither whereof, yet, should be able to secure her against God: For there is no power, or policy: no might, or slight of any, that can prevail against him, Proverbs 21. 30. Chapter 28. 15, 17, 18.

Ver. 10. For thou hast trusted in thy wickedneſſe] Or, Because (Heb. And, as Chapter 64. 5.) thou hast trusted, In thy wicked courses, thy wiles and slights before-mentioned: or, thy means and might thereby acquired, Psalm 52. 7. Chapter 28. 15.

thou hast said, None seeth me] Thou hast deemed thy selfe even out of Gods eye-sight; and thy designs and projects so cunningly contrived, so closely and covertly carried, that they could not possibly be descryed, or discovered by any, Psal. 64. 5. & 94. 3. Chapter 29. 15.

Thy wiſdome and thy knowledg, it hath perverted thee] Or, hath made thee to turn away; or, hath turned thee aside, Chap. 57. 19. Thou didst imagine, but vainly, as by experience it will appear, that thy slight and skill would secure thee: and thy trusting thereunto, made thee transgresse the more freely: that which Solomon, therefore, forewarns his son, to beware of, Proverbs 3. 5. such wiſdome and knowledge, saith he termed, 1 Timothy 6. 20. puffeth up, 1 Cor. 8. 1.

and thou hast said in thy heart, I am, and none else besides me] See v. 8.

V. 11. Therefore shall evil come upon thee, and thou shalt not know from whence it ariſeth] Heb. thou shalt not know the morning thereof: or the riſing of it; that is, the morning, or riſing, wherof thou shalt not know: as ver. 4. morning, for riſing: as evening, for, sunsetting; opposed to sun-rising, Chap. 45. 6. Thou shalt not know, either from what region it shall arise; or, on what day it shall come: alluding to the rising of the Sun, whose approach produceth morning; and wishal, giving a privy nipp to the partiice and profession of their wizzards, by that State so much relyed upon, who by the course of the Stars, and the rising and setting of them, undertook to prefage, and foretel, what would every day fall out; and by whose help, they made account that they might easily foresee, and prevent, consequently, any evil, that was on foot, or intended against them; ver. 12, 13. It may have reference also to Cyrus his sudden surprizal of them, ere they were aware of him. The Babylonians little dreamed, when they arose at Court, from their up-sitting at their revels, that their city was surprized; and the tidings of the unexpected surpisal of it, was even then posting apace to them. See Jeremiah 51. 31.

and mischief shall befall thee, and thou shalt not be able to put it off] Or, which thou shalt not be able to avoid, or to avert: as chap. 37. 37. Heb. to expiate, cha. 28. 18. a metaphor from such expiations, as being duly performed, did free the party so expiated from penalty, Num. 16. 46-48. thou shalt neither be able to foresee it, nor to free thy self from it, Jer. 50. 24.

and desolation shall come upon thee suddenly, which thou shalt not know] Or, which thou doſt not know: as Prov. 27. 1. a defect of the relative, as ch. 44. 2. or, when thou shalt not know it, what time thou thinkeſt not of it: as Mat. 24. 39, 50. the adverb of time supplyed: as ch. 17. 6. & 26. 10. & 41. 17.

V. 12. Stand now with thine enchantments, and with the multitude of thy forceries] Or, witchcrafts, or witcheries: as ver. 9. In way of derision he calleth upon them, to muster up all their devilish arts & devices, to try what in their distress, they are able to do for their indemnity, and deliverance by them. Some both here, and v. 9. would have read instead of enchantments, and witcheries, enchanters, and witches: but these terms in Scripture are no where so used; two other words of the same stock with these, are used for either, Psalm 58. 5. Jer. 27. 9. Howbeit, there may in this place, be an Ellipsis, or want of the subject; as in divers places, the like is found: enchantments, for, men, or masters, of enchantments: and witcheries, for men, or women, masters, or mistresses, of witcheries, that is, professors, or practisers, of such hellish arts, enchanters, or charmers, wizzards, or witches: as Nineveh is called, a miſtreſſe of witcheries, that is, a great practitioner in such kind of abominations, Nah. 3. 4. so is the harveſt-man, put for the harveſt-man, ch. 17. 5. See more there: if we take it for the arts, or practises themselves, the text would be rendred, stand up now with them: as armed, and furnished with them: as 2 Kings 11. 11. See ver. 13. if for the professors, and practisers of them, it would be rendred, stand now among them; as consulting with them, or seeking ayd and advice from them, ver. 13.

wherein thou hast laboured from thy youth] Or, with whom, as ver. 15. having reference, either to the practises themselves, or to the practisers of them. These kinds of arts, the Chaldeans were anciently so much addicted unto, that the professors of them, were, among other nations known, and called commonly, by the name of Chaldeans. See Diodorus 1. 3. c. 8. and Tully of divination, l. 2. and their Magicians were highly esteemed with them, and great men in the State. See Dan. 2. 2. & 4. 7. & 5. 7, 8.

if so be thou shalt be able to profit, if so be thou mayſt prevail.] Try whether the one, or the other, be able to do thee any good, or to stand thee in any stead, to avail thee in ought, or to prevail ought for thee, against the evil that is coming upon thee. So ch. 30. 5, 6. & 45. 20. Lam. 4. 17. See the like ironies, Jer. 22. 20. & 46. 11. v. 13.

V. 13. Thou art wearied in the multitude of thy counſels] Thou dost but tire out thy self in vain, in studying how to save thy self, one while by one course, another while by another. So ch. 16. 12. Jer. 2. 36, 37. & 4. 14.

let now the aſtrologers, the ſtar-gazers, the monethly prognoſticators ſtand up, and ſave thee, from thoſe things that ſhall come upon thee] Call for all thy wizzards to stand up for thee, and to improve their skill, and power, to the utmost, in thy behalf. So chap. 41. 1. & 43. 9. Baltasar called for them all; but none of them all knew what to advise him, or how to save him, Dan. 5. 7, 8.

aſtrologers] Heb. viewers of the heavens: not such, as view so as David

David did, Psal. 8. 3. and as Gods people and others, are willed to do, ch. 40. 26. to consider, and contemplate the incomparable glory, wisdom, power, and providence of God, discovered, and brightly shining in the Heavens, Psal. 8. 1. & 19. 1-4. & 104. 1-4. Rom. 1. 21. but that forth in them, Psal. 8. 1. & 19. 1-4. & 104. 1-4. Rom. 1. 21. but that gaze on them, to read the fates, and fortunes (as they term them) of men, and states, persons, and people in them: and to foretel thence, what good, or evil, shall betide them: building upon such fond, groundless, superstitious, and ridiculous principles, as by the Devils suggestion, (such are the good Angels that these fedaries and deluders of people tell us of, if they have them from any that pretend so to be,) or from the flashy fancies of their own addle brains, that they have framed and forged to themselves, Jer. 10. 1. and the Hebrew Doctors, therefore, affirm the term here used, to come from an Arabick word, that signifieth to decide, and to denote such, as take upon them, to decide, and determine things of future contingency, by the view of the sky. Howbeit, some take upon them, here, to alter the text; and, because this word is in Scripture no where else found, to read instead of it, the word used elsewhere, for an enchanter, or charmer, Deut. 18. 11. Psal. 58. 5. of the same stock with that, ver. 9. 12. but taken in another sense, so as it is no where, save in a feminine form, found used in Scripture, as it signifieth a conſociater, or conjoyner; expounding the words, by an inversion of terms; such as conſociate, or conjoyn the ſtars, (that observe the conjunctions of them, for the drawing of dooms and predictions from them) by contemplating of the heavens: such an inversion of terms, some also would have, Psl. 35. 7. But these seem to be somewhat overbold with the text.

ſtar-gazers] Heb. thoſe that gaze upon the ſtars. Another term given to the same persons, to those of the same professi on, among whom there were those as Tully reporteth, that vaunted of skill, gathered from the observation of the courses and conjunctions of the stars, for above, or about, as some, fourty, yea, as some, seventy thousand of years; for many thousands before there were either stars to be observed, or men to observe them, the world having not, as yet, seen near six thousand years.

monethly prognoſticators] Heb. that give notice, inſtruct, or make to know things concerning the moneths; the word properly signifies the new moon, Psa. 81. 3. Ezek. 46. 3. but is used commonly for the moneth, because the new moon, among the Jews, began the moneth. Those that take upon them, to tell beforehand, the occurents of each moneth, as our Prognosticators also do.

ſtand up, and ſave thee] Heb. ſtand up, and ſave thee; for the copulative is in the text or ſtand up to ſave thee: as that particle is also oft used, Josh. 24. 9. ch. 29. 12. 8. 53. 2.

V. 14. Behold they ſhall be as ſtubble; the fire ſhall burn them] They shall be as stubble to the fire, in the day of Gods wrath, Chapter 1. 31. and 5. 24. Exodus 15. 7. Nah. 1. 10. Zeph. 2. 2. and it may be, also, made fuel, matter for ordinary fire, as the Philistines idols, 2 Samuel 5. 21. and the Jewish false Prophets, Jeremi. 29. 22.

they ſhall not deliver themſelves from the power of the flame] Heb. their ſouls (as ch. 44. 20. Ezek. 14. 14. from the hand (as Psa. 22. 20. & 89. 15. of the flame, that is, of the fire: as Luk. 16. 24. they shall not be able to save themselves; much lesse to save others, v. 13, 15. ch. 46. 2. Psl. 146. 3, 4.

there shall not be a coal to warm at, nor fire to ſit before it] They shall utterly perish, and nothing of them remain, that may yeeld the least help, or hope, that may afford the least comfort: a metaphor taken from wood, or fewel, so burnt and consumed to ashes, that not so much as any coal, cinder, or ember, is left, that may be of any use, afford any heat, or help, to kindle a new fire again. See the like in another nation, Ch. 30. 14 or, as some render it, shall not be a coal to warm with, or fire to ſit before it: that is, lay they, the fire which the Medes and Persians shall kindle at Babylon, among the Chaldeans, shall not be such a fire, as men are wont to sit by for warmth in winter, Jer. 36. 21. but such a wasting and consuming fire, as shall destroy and devour all before it, Psl. 50. 3. & 97. 3. ch. 9. 18. & 10. 16. & 24. 6. & 26. 11. Jer. 51. 25, 31. But the former sense seems the founder, both for what went before, and for what followeth after, v. 15. However, the negative is to be supplyed from the former branch; or the disjunctive instead of it to be inserted; as Psl 9. 18. See on ch. 28. 28.

V. 15. Thus ſhall they be unto thee, with whom thou haſt laboured, even thy merchants from thy youth] Or, Thus ſhall thy merchants be unto thee, (that is, in like manner shall it be with thee, as in regard of thy wizzards, so in regard of thy merchants) with whom thou haſt tired thy ſelf (as Ier. 51. 58. from thy youth. For there seems to be a trajection in the words of the text. The like, whereunto, is found Rev. 13. 8. compared with ch. 17. 8. there; as this, with ver. 1. here: either of these readings doth well fit those, who, by merchants, here understand her wizzards. Howbeit, if we regard the distinctions in the Hebrew, the text would thus be read; Thus ſhall it be with thee, in regard of thoſe, with whom thou haſt tired out thy ſelf: (for there is the middle distinction) that is of thy wizzards: and then following; thy merchants, or thy traders, ſhall ſtave thee tracked with thee (as thy campers, for those that camp against thee, Psal. 55. 5.) from thy youth ſhall wander every one to his quarters; and this I take to be the genuine reading of the place.

thy merchants] All that had any trading with her, from foreign parts, which were not a few, (as with Nineveh before, Nah. 3. 16.) partly, in regard that she was now become the head city of the Empire; and partly, also, in regard of her convenient situation, for trade; by reason of the great rivers, upon which, and neer unto which, she was seated. See the like of the mystical Babylon Rev. 18. 11.

from thy youth] Since thou beganneſt to rise to a more absolute empire, by the declination of the Assyrian Monarchy, the trade of Nineveh, that fell with it, being then transferred, and devolved unto thee. See v. 12.

they ſhall wander every one to his own quarters] Heb. paſſage. They shall flee away as fast as they can, each one to his own home, to his own country, when they see how it goeth, or is like to go with thee. Or, they shall flee each one any way, that they can find free paſſage by, for his own safety, unto any place, where they suppose they may be secured, and leave thee alone, to shift, as thou canst, for thy self. See the like of her Souldiery, Jer. 51. 9.

none ſhall ſave thee] Neither they merchants; for they shall forsake thee: nor thy wizzards; for they shall perish together with thee; verse 14.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Verse 1. Hear ye this] This Chapter is, also, much of the same both subject and frame, with divers of the former; especially the 43. and 44. For in it, the Lord reproveth the disobedience, rebelliousness, and obstinacy of his own people; layeth before them, his power, and his providence, whereof by many evidences, they might be convinced: wherein, by what means they might have prevented many mischiefs that had befallen them, and yet prouideth, having refined them by such afflictions as they had undergone, by Cyrus freely to set them free, and restore them again.

which are called by the name of Iſrael] Which profess your selves to be Israelites, and bear that name, but do not answer your name, are not so in truth, Rom. 2. 17. & 9. 6 They vaunted themselves of Israel, as of Abraham, Mat. 3. 9. John 8. 33. whereas, indeed, they neither resembled, nor imitated, either Israel, or Abraham, Mat. 3. 7. John 8. 37, 39, 40.

and are come forth out of the waters of Iudah ?] That are of the lineage, or off-spring of Judah, descending and illuing from him, as streams, or rivelets, from a well head, or spring, Deuter: 33. 28. Psalm 68. 26. See the like metaphor, Prov. 5. 15-18. And this is an higher degree of honour and dignity, that thefe men are accounted to as higher degree of honour and dignity, that these men are accounted of Jacob; but we, say they, are of the flock of Judah, the royall Tribe, Gen. 49. 8, 10. which had retained the service and worship of God with them, when the other fell a way to idolatry, 2 Chron. 11, 13-16. and 13, 8-10.

which ſwear by the name of the Lord, and make mention of the God of Iſrael] That ſware by the true God, as professing to serve him, ch. 19. 18. & 45. 23. as every nation is wont to swear by that god they serve and worship, Gen. 31. 53. when as yet they yeeld him no obedience, but abuse his name to evil purpoles, Jer. 5. 2. Hos. 4. 15. Zeph. 1. 5. and make mention of him, when they swear, Exod. 23. 13. Josh. 23. 17. or more generally have the name of God oft in their mouths as well out of oaths, as in oaths, as if they reverenced and regarded him, when, indeed, they do nothing less, Chapter 29. 13. Jerem. 12. 2.

but not in truth, nor in righteouſneſſe] As an oath ought to be taken, and Gods name to be used. See Jeremiah 4. 2. and 5. 2.

V. 2. For they call themſelves of the Holy city] As it is styled, Mat. 4. 5. & 27. 53. Heb. here, the city of holineſs, or rather, the city of the Sanctuary. For there is an article of special designation before the noun governed: and so ch. 52. 1. which, indeed, was the main ground why it was called and accounted, by an eminency, the holy city, in regard of Gods Sanctuary there seated, and his name or worship there setled, Deut. 12. 11. 2 Chron. 7. 12, 16. of this city Jerusalem, Ch. 52. 1. they professed themselves to be citizens, even fellow-citizens, with Gods holy ones, Eph. 2. 19. Now as the text is here read, it seems to render a further reason, of what they were formerly said to profess, to wit, that they were of Jacobs Family, and Judahs line; for they were of Jerusalem, the head city of Judah; which being yet a further matter of honour, and an higher dignity, to be citizen of so honourable and holy a city, might well help to confirm the former, because it was an adjection thereunto. But Some read the words rather, Though they call themſelves of that city; as having reference to the last words of the former verse, not in truth, nor in righteouſneſs: though, or albeit, they profess themselves to be such as is hereafter mentioned; and the particle here used, is very frequently thus taken, in a discretive notion; which, not observed, hath made some places the more obscure: as that, Gen. 8. 21. & 48. 14. Psa. 25. 11. but so clearly, Job. 17. 8. Psa. 23. 4. ch. 12. 1. See the like, Chapter 58. 2.

the Lord of hosts is his name] Or, whose name is the Lord of hosts; as Chap. 47.4. Jer. 48. 15.

Ver. 3. I have declared the former things from the beginning, and they went forth out of my mouth, and I shewed them: I did them suddenly, and they came to pass. Or, The former things which I declared in time past, and which came out of my mouth, and which I shewed; I did suddenly, & they came to pass.] This is here mentioned, as oft before; partly, to assert Gods divine power and providence: partly, to tax them for not adhering sincerely and constantly to him, notwithstanding those evident proofs thereof exhibited unto them, and standing those evident proofs of the godly, partly in firm expectation of the future performance of those things that now he promised, See Chap. 41.22.26. & 42.9. & 43.9-13 & 45. 21. &46. 10. The relative is wanting in the two first branches: as chap 47.11. supplyed by the positive in the third, as chap.46.4. ver.1.

went out of my mouth] Either by way of prediction, Psal. 89.34. or, by way of determination, Lam. 3.37,38. Chap. 45.23. See Vers. 5.

shewed] made to hear, Or, to be heard: Chap. 41.22. & 42.2. ver. 20.

I did] Whatsoever I fore-told, or promised, I failed not in due time to effect, Josh.21 45. & 23.14. chap. 45.23.

suddenly] Either when they were least expected and looked for, Chap.30.13.&47.11. or at the very instant of time prefixed, Exo. 12.41. lo Mal. 3.1.

Ver. 4. Because I knew that thou art obstinate, and thy neck is an iron sinew, and thy brow brass.] A reason why God was pleased to fore-tel things to his people, long before he did them; that they might not, when they were done, be ascribed to any other beside himself, by them: which he fore-knew that they would be too prone to do.

Because I knew] Heb. From my knowing; as ch.31.4.&53.5. Pf.12.5. where the particle is used in a causal notion See it in another, concerning the same subject, that is here insisted on, Deut.9.24.

obstinate] Heb. hard: Exod.33.9,&33,3,5. &34.9. Deut.9.6.13. & 31. 27.

thy neck is an iron sinew] Or, an iron sinew is in thy neck: a defect of the preposition as Ch.3.4.13.&44 12. Heb. a sinew of iron as a yoke of iron. Deut. 28.48. and, a rod of iron, Psal.2. 9. for, an iron yoke, and, an iron rod: an iron sinew, for, a stiff, hard, tough one; as it is expounded in the places above-mentioned thy brow brass? Or, as some, steel: as the word is supposed to signifie, Judg.16.21. Jer.15.12.Lam.3 7. Heb brazen; as we say, a brazen brow: or, a steely, as the word is used, Lev.26.19. Job.6.12. and Psal. 18.34. a bow of steel: a brow of steel, or, a steely brow, for, a brow as hard, as if it were of brass, or steel, that is, exceeding hard. See the like phrases of rocky faces, Jer.5.3. and of stony, and, flinty hearts, expressing an extremity of obstinacy, Eze.36.26. Zach. 7. 12.

Ver. 5. I have even from the beginning declared it to thee: before it came to pass, I shewed it thee.] See on ver. 3. the pronoun it, is here wanting as, chap. 46. 11. See also, ver. 6.

lest thou shouldest say, Mine idol hath done them] The pronness even of many even among Gods people, to ascribe unto their false gods, what God himself hath done for them, Jer. 44.17,18. Hos. 2.5.8. as the Heathen people used to do, Jud.16.23. Of the word idol, here used, see on Chap.10.10.

and my graven image, and my molten image hath commanded them] Or, given them in charge; as 1 Sam. 38 1. &45.11. appointed them thus to come to pass. See before, Gone out of my mouth, ver.3.

and] Or, or, the copulative disjunctively; as Chap 44.10.&45. 9. Some one, or other of mine idols.

Ver. 6. Thou hast heard; see all this: and will not ye declare it?] Or, Consider all this, which thou hast heard; (all that I have shewed thee, or made thee to hear, ver. 3.5.) a defect of the relative, as ver. 3. and will ye dissemble what ye have heard from me so long before and not acknowledge it your selves, and acquaint others with it, that ye may be witnesses in my behalf, of the truth thereof, unto them? Chap.43.10. & 44.8. See Chap.43.19. Some would read the words, and do not you your selves publish it: that is, publikely acknowledge it, in the celebration of your solemn rites and feasts, which you observe as memorials thereof, Psal. 81. 1,2,3. Exod. 12. 25-27. Lev.13.16. Deu. 16. See the like of Christs death, 1. Cor. 11. 26. And this sense seems not improbable. Others would have it read; and have ye declar d it? that is, have ye by the help of any of yo ur idols——foretold, any of that, that I have so fore-shewed to you Chap.43.9.&44.7. So the negative should be taken for an interrogative, as some would have it, Mal. 1.10. But I suppose it no more so in the one place then in the other; and doubt much, whether so in any There might be some better colour for such a form, from our verson, 2 King. 1.3. if it were right: but the double negative seems there more vehemently to aver; as that tripple one, Heb. 13.5.

I have shewed thee new things from this time, even hidden things, and thou didst not know them. Or, I shew thee (Heb. make thee hear, as ver. 5. at present. Heb. from now, as chap. 29.21. as before, from then ver.3.5. (new things) as chap 43.19. and hidden, Heb. kept cloſe, or reserved, Prov. 7.10. Jer. 33.3. which thou knowest not, to wit, before, as v.7. the copulative with the pesitive, put for the relative, as chap 37.27.& 44.14. Some read the words, and there are things reserved (to be revealed, and done hereafter) which thou knowest not, but art as yet ignorant of. But the former runs more smoothly. Yet further to convince thee of thy wilful obstinacy, I acquaint thee again, with other of my secret counsels, which shall allo in their due time be fulfilled.

V.7. They are created now, and not from the beginning, even before the day, when thou heardest them not, lest thou shouldest say, Behold I knew them.] Or, They are brought to light now, (as things are, when created (and not in time past, (not formerly. Heb. from then, as ver. 3,5. 8.) or before this day, (the copulative disjunctively, as ver. 5. and the pronoun wanting. as Josh. 22.16,18,29. 2 Chro. 35.25.) when thou hadst not heard of them. Heb. and thou heardest not of them: as chap. 33.1.&43.12. lest thou should'st pretend that feme other way, or from some of thine idols, thou hadst been made acquainted with them before, ver. 5. knew, to*o knew* before, as ver. 6. 8.

V. 8. Yea, thou heardest not, yea, thou knewest not: yea, from that time, that thine ear was not opened] Or, even when (supplyed from verse 7. to carry on the sentence depending upon it,) thou hadst not heard, even, when thou knewest not; even when thine ear had not formerly (Heb. from then as v. 7.) opened, that is, open ed it self, as ch. 45.8. Can.7.12. or, been open, as ch. 6.11.10 wit, to hear ought from any other concerning these things, that are now by me revealed to thee. The repetition of the particle, yea, or even, doth much quicken the sentence and make it more emphatical: as the like, chap.40. 24. Most Interpreters understand it of the spiritual opening of the inward ear, Deut. 29.4. Chapter 50.5. as if God should intimate his free favour unto them, in revealing these things, yea, and in making them good to them, even when they continued in their obstinacy, when they stopped their ears, and would not hear, Psal. 58.4,5. Chap. 28.12. Zach.7.12. But the former sense is the plainer.

for I knew that thou wouldest deal very treacherously] That thou wouldest be a fcribing them, and the foreknowledge of them, either to thine Idols, and thy Sooth-sayers, or to thy self, ver.5.7. Heb. wouldest dealing treacherously, deal treacherously as: chap. 24.16. or, because (as chap. 59,13.) I knew, that is, fore-knew. knew beforehand, as ver.7.) that thou wouldest deale very treacherously.

and was called a transgressor from the womb] Heb a transgressor, or, a revolter, (as, chap 48.8.) was called upon thee, as chap.62.2. for, to be, or, to be accounted and commonly known to be: as chap. 58 .12. &60.3. I might well deem, that in future time, thou wouldest so demean thy self, because thou hadst been prone (as was well known) to such carriage of thy self se, from thy beginning, Deut.9.7,24. Chap.63.10.

from the womb] From the time that I brou ht thee out of Egypt; which was as the birth of that State and Church, chap.46.3. Ier.2. 2.&22.21.&31.30. an allusion to mans natural birth, Psal.51.5.& 58 3. of which also, some, but without good ground. understand it; this passage implying somwhat, not common to all, but peculiar to that people.

V.9. For my names sake will I defer mine anger; and for my praise, will I refrain for thee, that I cut thee not off] Or, for my names sake; (that is, for mine own selfe, ver.11. Chap.43.25. Psal.25. 11. & 106.8. Ezek.36.31. (Or. because of my name, (where by thou are called, verſ.1. being accounted my people, Chap.64.9. Ier. 14.9. Ezek .20.9. & 36.20 (do I forebear, or, stay my anger, or, I am so slow to anger; Heb. will I prolong, or, do I prolong mine anger: Now to prolong anger, may be taken two ways, either for to lengthen it, that is, to continue long in it as Psal. 85.5. wilt thou draw out thy wrath from age to age? though another word be there used; and so one of the Jewish Writers would have it here taken, but renders no reason of it: and it seemes directly contrary to the main scope of the place; but it may be taken also for to stay it, and suppresse it, that it break not forth, that it stir not: as of the Ark it is said, Num.9.19,22. when it stayed, and flirred not; where the same word is used, that we have here: and so it is used in this place; as also, Prov. 19.11. the discretion of a man doth stay, and represse his anger: or, make him slow to anger: not maketh him defer, or, put it off, till he find opportunity to vent it: and thence slow to anger, Deut.34 6 Num.14.18.and for my praise, (as some, that I may have a people to serve and praise me, Psalm, 102.18. 130.3,4. Ch.43. 21.64.11. or rather, that I may gain thereby to my self, the praise of my might, and my mercy, Psal. 65.1 & 75 1 ch. 12.1. for mine honour, and my glory, Pl. 106.8 v.11.) do I refrain it (to wit, mine anger, supplyed, as the particle, for, alſo from the former clause:) See Psal.78.38.) from thee, (that is, from seizing upon thee) or, for thee, (that is for thy good) that I destroy thee not, Jer. 30.11. As it was of my free favour, that I chose you at first, Deut. 7.7,8, &9.4-6. ſo is it of my meer mercy, and respect to mine own honour, that I have hitherto spared you, and not utterly destroyed you, and that I still forbear so to do, Num. 14.12-18.

Pſal.106.45. Lam.3.22. Some read the words, I will seal unto thee notable to save, or to deliver my people? See Num.14.15.16.Deut. that I will not cut thee off (and it is true, that the word which ſignifies to seal, differeth but in one letter from this; but yet in ſuch a letter as makes several roots; and the Jewish Criticks enform us that this word, which as they speak, hath no mate in Scripture, is a word of the Eastern, that is, of the Syrian, language; and ſignifieth to obstruct, stop, or restrain, and that more ſpecially, the nose, which among them, therefore, is alſo ſo termed: that which ſtiteth paſſing well with the words of the former branch, where it is ſpoken of anger, as it is very commonly uſed, doth properly ſignifie the nose, becauſe by puſhing at the nole, anger is usually discovered; and God is ſaid to smoak at the nostrils, when he sheweth himſelf angry, Pſal.18.7,8. And ſo on the contrary, he is ſaid to forebear, and reſtrain his breathing out at the nole, as it his noſtrils were obſtructed and ſtopped, that he could not freely breath at them; when he keepeth in, and reſtraineth his anger, and ſufferreth it not to break out, or fly out ſo freely and fiercely, as otherwiſe it would do; hence the phraſe a man long, or, slow of breath: that is, one that breaths ſlowly; oppoſed to one that breatheth high, and big, Eccl. 7.8. and a man of long, or slow noſtrils, that breathes ſlowly at the noſtrils, Prov. 15.18. & 16.32. oppoſed to one of short breath, or quick of breath, Prov.14.17. and, of short or quick noſtrils, Prov.14.29. that is, one that breatheth at the noſtrils, short and quick: the former, uſed for one that is ſlow to wrath; the latter, for one that is of an haſty diſpoſition. See further, on Jer. 15. 15.

Ver. 10. Behold I have refined thee, but not with silver] Some render it, as here, in the time past; I have refined thee by many afflictions already, and yet are thou never the better for them, Jer.5.3. Others rather, in the future; I will refine thee, Ch. 1. 25. Jer. 9.7.

not with silver] Or, as silver; as silver, in ſome reſpects, Pſal.66, 10, to purge and purifie them, Dan.11.35. Mal.3.2,3. yet in ſome reſpects, not as silver, that is, not ſo exactly, and exquiſitely, as ſilver is wont to be fined, which the finer uſeth to keep in the fire, till all the droſſe be waſted, and wrought out of it: intimating, that he would not deal overſtrictly, and ſeverely with them: but uſe much moderation in chaſtiſing of them: regarding their infirmity, who would be themſelves utterly conſumed, if God ſhould hold them ſo long in the furnace, until their droſſie matter were all melted out of them. See Pſal. 103.9,14. & 118.18. Chap. 27.7,8. & 57.16. Jer. 10.24. and 30.11. Some render it, not into silver: as it he had ſaid, all my melting of you, ſo full of droſs, and other baſe metal you are, hath not hitherto made you, nor will ever make you become good ſilver, Chap.1.22. Jer.6.27-30. Ezek.22.18-22. Others. and ſo the ancient Greek, not for silver: as if he had ſaid, I have got nothing by ſending you into Babylon, ſuch another furnace as Egypt was, Deut. 4.20. and melting you there. So Pſal. 44.12. Chapter 52. 3. But theſe two latter ſeem not ſo natural.

I have chosen thee in the furnace of affliction] Or, as others I will choose thee (that is, make a choice one of thee, by purifying of thee through afflictions, and fitting thee thereby for my ſelf, chap. 1.25. Dan.12.10. Mal. 3.2,3. Acts 14.23. Heb.12.10. 2 Tim.2.20,21.1. Pet. 1.6,7. Rom.7.14. See chap.49.7. But ſome other read the words: I have ſelected, or ſet thee apart; for the furnace of affliction: to be therein tryed, and purified more & more: better then thou hast hitherto been. I ſuppoſe that to be moſt genuine which the Jewiſh Commenters, moſt of them, on the place give, I have made choice of thee, chosen thee: that is, chosen for thee: as, given me, for, given to me, Josh. 15. 19. Judg. 1.15 as we alſo ſpeak concisely, in either: ſo, come us, for, come at us, chap. 28.15. dwell thee, for, dwell with thee, Pſal. 5.4. and many other the like: in the furnace, or a furnace, or, melting-pot; for the verb of chooſing here uſed, hath this prepoſition (as another alſo) prefixed before the noun after it, vacant, according to the manner of that language. So Deut. 7.7.&14.2. the Lord choſe to thee, for, the Lord choſe thee: and 1 Sam. 10. 16.and Pſal.105.26.hath choſen in him, for, choſen him, a melting-pot, for ſo the word properly ſignifieth, Prov .17.3. & 26 21.) of affliction, that is, affliction to be, as, or, for, a melting-pot: as the sign of circumcision, Rom.4.11. that is, circumciſion to be a ſign. So that the meaning is, that God had appointed their affliction in Babylon, during the time of their captivity there, to be as a melting-pot unto them, as the like in Jeruſalem, had formerly been, during the ſiege, Ezek. 22. 18,19.

V. 11. For mine own sake, even for mine own sake will I do it] That which he ſaith elſewhere, I wrought for my names ſake, that I might not be polluted in the ſight of heathen people, Ezek.20.9.14,22. where the word is the ſame, as alſo, chap.43 13. and the word may well be ſo rendred here; For mine own ſake will I work. I will have a regard to mine own honour and credit, though you deſerve nothing leſs, then what I do intend to do: and then there needs no ſupply: otherwiſe, it or this, is to be ſupplyed: as ch. 10.12.ver. 5,6. Ezek. 36,37. Mal.3.17. See chap.44.23. there is an emphaſis in the repetition: as Pſal. 115.1. Chap .43.25. as if he had ſaid, for my ſelf alone, as Pſal.51.4. and not for you, or for any deſert of yours, Ezek. 36.32. See ver.9.

for how should my name be polluted?] Heb. how ſhould it be polluted? to wit, myname, ſupplyed from ver. 9 otherwiſe how would mine honour be eclipſed and obſcured in the minds of people: as if I were notable to save, or to deliver my people? See Num.14.15.16.Deut. 32.27-37,38. Joſh.7,8,9. Pſalm.42.10. and 115.1,2.&106.8.Ezek. 36. 20.

and I will not give my glory to another] Or, to any other: as Exod 34. 14. I am very chary, and jealous of mine honour, and cannot endure any corrival in it, Exod. 20.5. & 34.7. Deut. 4.24. and 5. 9.

Ver. 12. Hearken unto me, O Jacob, and Israel my called] Whom I called out of Egypt, Hoſ.11.1. or, whom I have called to be my peculiar people, Ch. 44.1. 1 Cor. 1.14,26,27. or that are called by my name, as my people, Chap. 43.7. & 63.19. as, to be called of Jeſus Chriſt; that is, not called by him only, but to be his, and by calling made his, Rom.1.6. See chap. 44.1. & 46.3.

I am he] Or, I am; or, I am the same. See chap. 41.4. & 43.10. & 46.4.& 47.8.

I am the first, I also am the last] Chap.41.4.&48.4.6.

Ver. 13. My hand hath also laid the foundation of the Earth] Pſal. 102.25 Chap.42.5. &45.12.& 48.13.

and my right hand hath spanned the Heavens] Or, doth span the Heavens; doth mete them out, as a workman doth his work in meting wher eof, when he maketh uſe of the hand, he doth it with the right hand rather then with the left. Or, as ſome, the palm of my right hand hath ſpread out the heavens: the word is uſed, Lam.2.22. of mothers, or nurſes, that either dandle their little ones in their hands, or lay them out to ſtretch their limbs, that ſignifies the meaſure of an hand ſpread out, or a ſpan, Ex.25.24. Pſal.39.5. See Ch.40.12.

when I call unto them, they stand up together] Or, I call them, and they ſtand up together; according to the former reading, a defect of the adverb: as Chap. 41.17.ver.21. according, to the latter of the copulative; then which, nothing more frequent. The celeſtial, bodies are as ſervants, that ſtand attending on Princes, or great perſons, 1 King. 1.2. & 10.8. Prov.22.29. ready preſt at a word, or a beck, to obey me their Soveraign Lord, Maker, and Maſter; and to go inſtantly about whatſoever I enjoyn them, Pſal.119 91. & 148.8. Mat.8. 9. See Chap.40.26. All this is here related, to aſſure them of Gods power, and al ſufficient ability, to effect their deliverance according to his promiſe. So chap.40.26,27.

V. 14. All ye assemble your selves, and hear [Theſe words ſeem to be ſpoken by the Prophet in his own perſon: and ſo unto the reſt then; becauſe the Lord is ſpoken of in the third Perſon, in the latter end of this verſe: and the Prophet ſpeaketh of himſelf in the firſt Perſon, in the latter end of verſe 16. But there is no neceſſity thereof: for God ſpeaketh of himſelf oft in the third Perſon, as chap. 37.24,32. & 40.25,31. in the next verſe, God himſelf ſtill ſpeaketh in his own perſon, as Chapter 37.24,32. & 40.29,31. in the next verſe, God himſelf ſtill ſpeaketh in his own Perſon: and the Prophet oft paſſeth ſuddenly from Perſon to Perſon, in that 16 verſe, as appeareth plainly by the fifteenth, interjected, at leaſt if not in the fifteenth it ſelf. The words therefore I ſuppoſe to be ſpoken, as by God him ſelf: and that to his people, to convince them of his divine power, ſhewed in foretelling of things ſo long before, and to be further manifeſted in the fulfilling of them. So ver. 12,16. and ſo to the Nations, chap.41.1 & 43.9.

Which among them hath declared these things?] Which of the heathen idols hath foretold ought of them? Chap.41.22,23. and 44.7. & 45.21.

The Lord hath loved him] The Lord, that is, I (as ver. 15. the noun, for the pronoun, as chap. 2. 1. & 3.4,5,6,8. 2 Tim.1.18.) do love him, to wit, Cyrus: as, he ſaſtened it, to wit, the Smith, the image; So, he ſaid, for, God ſaid, Gen. 15.14. and, he wrote, for, God wrote, Exod. 34. 28. and, he went, for, the King went, 2 King. 25.4. I do ſo far forth affect, and favour Cyrus, as to proſper him in his proceedings, and to honour him with glorious ſucceſs in his undertakings, having made choice of him, to overthrow Babylon, and to free my people their detained, chap.41 1-4. See ch. 48.14.

He will do his pleasure on Babylon, and his arm shall be on the Chaldeans,] Or, he (that is, Cyrus, as before) ſhall (as in the next clauſe) do his that is, the Lords) pleaſure, chap.44.28. See there: and his arm (that is, his warlike power, as chap. 30.30, & 59.16.) ſhall be upon the Chaldeans: ſhall light heavy upon them, to diſperſe, and deſtroy them. See chap. 43.14.

Ver. 15. I, even I have spoken] Or, I, even I, (as chap.43.25.) have ſpoken it; a defect of the pronoun chap. 46.11. and a return again to the firſt Perſon.

Ver. 16 Come ye near unto me, hear ye this] See on ver.14.

I have not spoken in secret from the beginning] Heb. from the head, as chap. 41. 26. This ſome underſtand of God: as chap. 45.19. that, he had in publike, and openly, delivered his oracles from time to time, unto his people, ever since that he took them, at first, to himself, Num.11.25,26. Jer.7.25. Others of the Prophet Esay, as professing of himself, that he had openly delivered, and publikely declared Gods Mind nad Will unto them, ever since God had called him unto that Office, chap. 6.8,9. & 50.4,5. I rather follow the former, the very same being protested by God himself, in the place there pointed to.

from the time, that I was, there am I] This, those that conceive it to be spoken of God, understand two severall wayes; some, in the time past, as if it were said, ever since that ought was, or had being, I was there: to wit, at the creating of them: as noting Gods eternity, Prov. 8.22-30. chap.43.10,13. & 44. 6. or, from the time, when that was, (to wit, of my taking you unto me) I have been there, present among you, in my Prophets, by my Spirit, Deut.28.15,16. Chap.59. 21. and 63. 11. Some rather, whom I concur with, of the time to come: from the time that this shall be, (when the time appointed shall come, wherein this great work, which is now foretold you, is to be put in execution,) there, will I be present, and ready at hand, to carry on the work, and to cause it to be accomplished: the same, in effect, with that, Chap. 46.11. and ver.13. Those that understand it of the Prophet, take it also two severall wayes: Some, from the time before which it was done, there I was: so the old Latine, and they that follow it; that is, say they, I foresaw things to come as evidently, as if I were present at the doing of them, Chap.13.3. so Joh.8.56. but I see not how the words will admit this reading. Others, ever since Gods charge came to me, (as Hos. 1.1.) I have constantly attended it, chap.21.8. So Jer. 6.26. Hab.2.1. For that is most ridiculous, that some of the Jewish Commenters here suggest, of all the Prophets being present with Moses, on Mount Sinai, at the giving of the Law, and so Esay among the rest, Deut. 33.2.

and now the Lord God, and his Spirit hath sent me] This likewise some conceive spoken by Christ, the Word Joh. 1. 1. and Wisedom, of the Father, Prov. 8.1, 23. by whom he revealeth himself, and his Will and purposes to his people, Mat.11.27. Joh.1.18. Zach.2. 9,11. 1 Pet.1.10 12 sent by the Father, and the Spirit, to acquaint them with those gracious promises, as well the spiritual ones, as the temporal, that were types of the spiritual, Ch. 61.1. Luk.4.18 21. But others, whom I rather accord with, conceive this clause to be spoken by the Prophet of him self, sent by the three Persons joyntly, about the delivery, as of other Gods messages, so of this in special: added here more expresly, to giue the greater allurance of the truth and certainty of it, and of the accomplishment thereof. So Jer. 26. 12,15. See Ch.6.8,9. The Prophet doth many times pass suddenly, & (as may seem, to persons not acquainted with spiritual raptures, and cestacies) somewhat abruptly, in the heat of delivery, from one person to another.

V. 17. Thus saith the Lord thy Redeemer, the Holy one of Israel] See Chap. 43.14.

I am the Lord thy God, which teacheth thee to profit] Heb. teaching thee, or, who do teach thee (as Chap .44. 24.) to profit, Who teach thee such things, as for thy welfare, that conduce to thy peace and prosperity, ver.18. Deut. 4.1,40, and 5.29. & 6.3. Job 22.21. Luk. 19. 42.

which leadeth thee, by the way that thou shouldest go.] Heb. making thee to tread (that is, teaching thee, and directing thee to go, as Psal. 25.5. & 43.10. as a guide doth a traveller, chap. 30. 21. or, as a Nurse doth a child, Hos. 11.13.) in the way, thou shalt walk, that is, wherein thou shouldest walk: the relative wanting, as ch. 47.11. and as frequently with us, and the verb taken in signification of duty: as Chap.26 9. So Psal. 25.12,13,14.

V. 18. O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandement:] Deut. 5.29. & 32.26. Psal.81.13. implying, that then they had escaped many evils, and much sorrow, that melting-pot of affliction, that in the captivity of Babylon, they had (so long lien in, among the rest, ver. 10. which by their sinful excelles, wilful disobedience, and obstinacy therein, they procured to themselves, Psal. 81.11,12. Jer. 7.23-28. & 26.4-6.

then had thy peace been as a river] thy peace; that is thy prosperity, as Psal 119 165. should have abounded, as those rivers that flow with great streams; and do oft-times overflow their banks, So Ch. 59.19. Jer. 12.5. and because of the article enclosed in the note of similitude, as the river: some of the Rabbins suppose, that Euphrates is here more specially pointed at: as Psal.72.8.Chap. 7. 20.

and thy righteousness, as the waves of the Sea] This is, the same in effect, though in other terms, with the former. By righteousness, is here meant, not any moral vertue, or gracious disposition: as the word properly, & most commonly signifieth. Pl.119. & 45.7. Eph.4. 24. But as some, a State well compoled, & wanting nothing, that is due unto it, or requisite to its compleat happines, Pl, 72.3. Joel 2. 32. Others, prosperity, as before so called, because the fruit of peace, as some, Rom.14 17. Heb.12.11. Jam.3.18. the reward of righteousnes, as others, Gen.30.32. as iniquity, for, punishment, the fruit and reward of it, Gen. 4.13, or, which I take to be the genuine sense of it, a confluence of all good things, which God, out of his benignity, is wont, in way of beneficence, (for that also, by the word of righteousness, is oft under stood, Pl. 1,2,3,4,9.) to confer. 9.9. 10.to impart unto & confer upon a people, so is the word used, 2 Sa. 12.7. Psal.36.5,6,10. where bounty and righteousness are twice joyned together: as things very neer, if not the same, as also, Pl. 75.9,10. See also Psal. 48.9,10. compared with Prov. 3.16,17. Chap.54.17. and 58.8 and 63.7. and this is called Gods, Psal 36. 6,10. because it cometh from him. Chap.54.17. and yet theirs also, Chapter 54.17 & 58.8. because conferred upon them, Chap.45. 24 Deut. 28.1-13

as the waves of the Sea,] As great plenty of all good, as of water in the Sea, or, in the main Ocean, where waves wallow most at large. See the like, Chap.11.9. So the Greeks use to say, A sea of good things, for, great abundance thereof.

V. 19. Thy seed also had been as the sand] Thine issue should have been not numerous only, but numberless, Gen. 13.16.&15.5. & 22.17, & 32.12. Jer. 30.22. Hos.1.10. See the like expression, Chap.10.22. Gen.41.49 1 Sam.1.38. 2 Sam.13.11. 1 King.4.20, 29. Job 29. 18. Pl.78.27, & 13.9.18. Jer.15.8 Hab.1.9.

and the Off spring of thy bowels like the gravel thereof:] Off spring, see Chap. 44.3. Heb. the comming out; as chap. 34.1.& 42.5. put for, issue, Job 5.25. & 21.8. & 27.14 and 31.8. Chap.61.9 & 65. 23. so called, because they are laid to come out of the bowels of their parents, Gen.15.4. & 25.13.2 Sam 13.11. in allusion whereunto, the gravel-stones or beach, that lyon the shore, by the sea side, are in the Hebrew here styled, the bowels thereof, to wit, of the Sea; to be supplyed from Verse 28. the pronoun for the noun, as Verse 14.

his name should not have been cut off, nor destroyed from before me] His name: that is, the memory of him, (name, for, memorial, as Pl. 83.4. Prov.10.7.) or their posterity (in which their mens names are continued, Num.27.4.) should always have been acceptable with me: or as others, This thy prosperous estate had continued with thee, and thy posterity, without interruption, Psal.81.14,15. Zeph. 3.7. or, Thou hadst not been cast out of thy land, and thy name, that is, the glory of thy State, and the renown thereof, cut off, Jer. 22.30.& 36.30. Lam.5.16. (See Ezek.16.13,14.) nor hadst thou been removed out of my sight, the Temple being defaced, & destroyed wherein thou was wont to appear before me, and to attend me, and have communion, as my people, with me, Psal.42.2.and 84.7. See Jer.35.19. Howbeit, others (the rather for that gracious promise of never cutting off, or casting off the whole feed of Israel, Jer. 31.37.) read the words, as spoken in way of commination, or intimation of what should befal them; but in way of mitigation, and of a favourable exception. with supply of a discretive particle, thus, Yet shall not his name be cut off, nor destroyed from before me; or, out of my sight, Jer.33.18. See Chap.49.15,16. Jer.30.11. and 31.37. and 46.28. in which last place, God promiseth, that notwithstanding all the sins and abominations committed by them, yet he would not utterly either cut, or caft them off. See the like defect of the like particle, Job 14.9. Chap.44.11. And this sense seemeth the more probable; because presently followeth a promise of deliverance, and restitution again, Ver.20. See the like, 2 King. 14.24,26,27. The words run in the Hebrew somewhat otherwise, then they are in our version; He should not have been, or, shall not be, cut off, nor his name destroyed out of my sight. But the difference is not much material; save that the cutting off of their persons, seems imported (whether implyed, or denyed,) in the one; the casting off all care of them, or special relation to them, in the other: an allusion, it may be deemed, to enrolment of servants, and retinue in some great mans family; souldiers in an army, pensioners in a State, or the like. See the like, Exod. 32.32,33. Psal.69.28. chap. 34.26 9.

V. 20 Go ye forth of Babylon; flee ye from the Chaldeans, with a voice of singing] A promise of deliverance from the Babylonian thraldom, not by a timerous, and hazzardous flight: as when servants and captives break away from their hard Masters, by stealth, Gen.31.20,27. Exod.14 5-9. 1 Sam.25.10. but freely and cheerfully, without fear of flay, or pursuit, as merrily as a flave, or captive, that is, refused out of thraldom and bondage, and set at full liberty. See Chap.52.12. Howbeit some understand the words, as an admonition unto the Jews, abiding in Babylon, to get out of the City, and escape by flight, so soon as they hear tydings of Cyrus his entrance into Chaldea, or approach to the city, and not stay the surprisal of it. Ch. 51.14.52.11. Jer.50.8. & 51.6.45. Zach, 2.6. Rev. 18.4. See the like Gen. 19.15. Jer. 46.5. & 47.3. and 48.9. Matth 24.15-19. Luk.17.31,32. But the singing here mentioned, seems rather to import their departure, with free and full liberty upon Cyrus his proclamation, Ezra.1.1. See Psal.14.7.and 126.1,2. ch.12.1,5 and 26.1. and 35.10.

declare it, tell this; utter it, even to the end of the earth:] See the like, chap.12.4 5.

declare it] Some joyn the former clause, with singing, to this; as if it were said, with joy tell it, or talk of it, one to, or with, another: but the pauses annex it rather to the former: and this with what followeth, seems to require the publishing of it, to other, Psal. 9. 11.

tell] Heb. make it to be heard: as ver. 3,5,6.

utter it] Heb. make it to go forth, or to passe; as Psal. 19.4.

Say ye, the Lord hath redeemed his servant Jacob] hath relcued, and

and delivered him out of the Chaldean Captivity, Psal. 107.2.3. as formerly out of the Egytian bondage, Exod.19.4-6. A type of their spiritual deliverance by Christ, Luk. 1.68. Col.1.13. Some would have it read in the future, The Lord will redeem; and parallel it with that, Luke 21.28. but it seems spoken rather to the people, as telling what they should say, when they were set at large; as chap.12.4.

V.28. And they thirsted not, when he led them thorow the deserts; he caused the waters to flow out of the rock for them; he clave the rock also, and the waters gushed out.] This may well be read in the future: And they shall not thirst, as when he led them thorow the deserts, For the Prophet remmeth to speak in his own person, and to tell them, how it shall be with them, after their enlargement. For whereas it might be said, how shall we go with so much mouth and jollity, when we have so long and tedious a way to travel, before we can get home into our own Country, and are to passe thorow so many wild and waft places, wherin, through want of necessaries, we may perish and miscarry by the way. The Prophet, therefore relieth them, that God will look to that, he will furnish them with all necessaries, one way or other: and to put them out of fear, and doubt thereof, to wit, of his power to make provision sufficient for them, he mindeth them of what he didin former times when he led them thorow the Wilderness to the land of Canaan; how he furnished them with water, the greatest matter of want in those places, and most necessary for mans sustenance in travel, in those hot Regions especially. Exodus 17. 6. Numbers 20. 11, 12. Psalme 78. 15. and 105. 41. implying withall, that what God had then done, he could now doe: yea, and would doe; he would as well and sufficiently supply them, with that, and all other necessary accommodations, as if he had done the very selfsame thing again. See Chapter 41. 18. and 49. 10.

they thirsted not] Or, they shall not thirst; as Chap. 49.10. not that they should not at all thirst, for hunger, and thirst, are natural affections, so far from being of themselves simply any annoyance; that they are asauce, to give relish to our food: but that they should not, when they were athirst, want wherewith to flake and quench it. So Joh. 4.14. & 6.35. & 7.37,38.

when he lead] Or, as when he lead: a defect & of the adverb of time; as ver. 13. chap.41.17. of the note of similitude, as chap. 33.4,11. See Chap. 17. 5.

V. 22. There is no peace, saith the Lord, unto the wicked.] Or, as Some render it, But, or, yet no peace shall be to the wicked: no peace, that is, no prosperity: no prosperous succesle in ought, as ver. 18. See Psal. 1.3,4. the difcretive is supplyed as Chapter 44. 11. Whence the term, that this of the prophane and wicked party among the Jews, that they should have no part or share in the prosperity promised to Gods people, Chap. 65.21. Others, of the Babylonians, the enemies of Gods people, that all things should goe cross with them, Chap. 13.11-16. Others, both of the one, and of the other; and of the unquiet and restless condition of either; yea, of all wicked ones in general, Job 15. 20,21. and 20.20. See Chap. 57. 20,21.

CHAP. XLIX.

Vers. 1. Listen, O Iles, unto me; and hearken, O people from far.] The Prophecy delivered, and recorded in this Chapter, runneth on in the same strain with the former, relating the restauration and enlargement, of Gods Church, consisting both of Jews and Gentiles, under a type of the Jews releasment from the Babyan deportation: and the re-establishment of them in their former estate, with much honour and encrease, by accession of other Nations unto them; both effected by the mighty power of the Lord Jesus the Messias. In these first words is contained a preamble, prefixed before the delivery of the Prophecy, inviting people, far and near to hear it, and inciting them to give due attention, unto the things therein delivered. See the like, chap.41.4.

Listen] Heb. Hear: as chap. 1.2 or, hearken, as chap. 51.1. a duty required in as regard of all Gods Prophets in general, Amos 3.1,& 4. 1. Zach. 7. 7. so, more specially, in regard of Christ, that principal Prophet, or Prince of Prophets, Deut. 18.18,19. Acts 3. 22,23. by whom, the Father revealeth himself, his mind, and his mysteries, both to his prophets, and to his people, Mat.11. 27.&17.5. Joh. 1.18.&3.13. Heb.1.1,2. & 2.1-3.&3.1,7. &.4.2.7. & 12. 15. 25.

O Iles] or, lands, countries, Ch.41.1. Some expound it simply, lands, being remote, fay they, from the countries situate in the continent. Others, transmarine regions: such of them, especially, as coast upon the Sea: but the word seems more generall, as chap.20. 6. & Jer.47.4. so here: and the lands are put for the Inhabitants, or those that abide therein; as the next clause sheweth.

unto me] The Jewish Commenters understand this, as spoken in the person of the Prophet Esay himself, calling upon them, to give ear to Gods message, which he was to deliver, wherein also some of ours concur with them: and it is not improbable, that divers passages in these Prophecies might have some reference to him, as in part verified in him, but in a more peculiar, and transcendent manner, to be accomplished in Christ, of whom, therefore principally intended; of Esay only, as what was done either by him, or about him might hold out some shadowy resemblance of such excellent graces, as were to be conferred upon Christ; and glorious works as were to be effected by him. See chap. 50.4. & 61.1. So divers of ours, understand this; though the most, of Christ alone without relation to any other: as the person, by whom was to be wrought whatsoever benefit God intended to bestow upon his people, either in those times, or in these: and who, as by the Prophet he then foretold them, so was to be depended upon both now and then, for the making of them good, chapter 11. 10. Rom. 15.8-12. 2 Cor. 1. 20. and 3.18,19,20. Ephes. 1. 3. and 2.13-17. Col. 1. 19, 20. and 2.3,9.

and hearken] Or, attend; for the word signifieth a sedulous, and serious attention, to ought, either heard, or seen, chap.21.7 & 28. 24. So chap.34.1 & 51.4.

O people] Not ye Jews alone, but ye people also abroad; either because the Jewish people were to be dispersed among them, and to be thence again recollected, ver.12. chap.11.11,12. or because the salvation in this Prophecy foretold, should concern the Gentiles, as well as the Jews, ver.6. chap.60.3. & 66.19,20.

from far] Either in regard of distance of place, ver.12. Chap.60.4. or, of disposition, and affection, Eph.2.13,17 Some of the Jewish Writers understand it of the ensuing ages: not ye alone, that now are; but those that shall be in after times; as some also expound the like, Act.2.39. but this seems here not so fit.

the Lord hath called me from the womb] Here followeth the matter, or message, unto the hearing whereof, such attention was required. And it is principally of Christ, his office to be the Saviour, both of Jew and Gentile, and Gods calling him thereunto which in regard it was the main foundation of that work, where in he was to be employed, Heb.5 4-6,9,10. the Prophet begins first with it called me from the wombe] God the Father, who, from eternity had fore-assigned me to this office, 1 Pet.1.20. did, both while I was yet in the womb, and so soon as I was come out of it, manifest and make known this his purpose concerning me, both to men and Angels, Mat.1.21-23. Luk.2.10,11,13. Heb.1.6. the like is, in respect of their office and employment, in their inferiour sphere. spoken also of other the servants of God, extraordinary ones especially, Jer.1.5. Luk.1.15. Gal.2.15, and may be verified also of this our Prophet.

hath he made mention of my name.] Or, he recorded, or, entred upon record my names he made a solemn record of it, as chap. 12.4. Whence the term, that signifieth a Recorder, or, Remembrancer, Chap.36.3. or, he mentioned (that is, affigned me) my name, and called me, thereby to give notice of that work and office, that he had designed me unto, Mat.1.21. Luk. 1.31. & 2.21. The like hereunto was even before conception, birth much more, done with some special instruments, by God intended for remarkable employments; as Josias, 1 King. 13.2. Cyrus, chap. 44.28. & 45.1,3. and John the Baptist, Luk. 1.13.60.63. that which the Hebrew Doctors, some of them affirm affo, of this our Prophet; to wit, that (as Johns name was by God affigned him, importing that Grace of God, which he was to publish, Luk.1.17 76-79. so) the Prophet Esays name, was before his birth, imposed on him by God, thereby to import that Salvation of God, which he was to foretel. See chap. 1. 1. But of this their affertion, we have no assurance: albeit we are not able to say, that it was not so; and leave it therefore in suspence.

V. 2. And he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword] Having avouched Christs calling to the work of mans redemption; he proceedeth, now, to a relation, of Gods fitting, and furnishing of him, with abilities sufficient, for so important a work: together with his sustaining and supporting of him, in the performance of the same.

he] The Father, from whom all power is derived, and communicated unto Christ, chap.50.4. & 61.1. Mat. 11.27. & 28.18. Joh. 3. 34, 35. & 5.19 23 Col. 1.19. & 2.3,9. 2 Pet. 1.16,17. hath made] All, so far as concerneth Christ, revealed in the flesh, 1 Tim, 3.16. runneth in a Prophetical strain; speaking of things future, as present, or past So Chap.7.14. and 45.5.& 51.16.

my mouth like a sharp sword] The word of Christ is a sword of all-sufficient power and efficacy, as for the subduing of mens foule, to the obedience of it: so for the cutting off, of whomsoever, or whatsoever shall oppose, or withstand it; compared therefore to a sword, and said to be sharper then any two-edged sword whatsoever, Chap.11.4. Eph.6.17. Heb.4.12. Rev.1.16.& 6.2. this also some apply to the Prophet, whom God, by his Word, and Spirit, enabled, to the cutting down, & killing of sin in mens souls. See the Apostle, what he saith of his Ministry, 2 Cor 2.14 16 &4.7.&10.4-6. There is an elegant allusion in the original, which in other languages, cannot be so fully, or fitly expressed; for the word mouth, in the Hebrew, is ambiguous, & signifies as well the edge of the sword, as the mouth of man, or beast: hence, a sword of mouthes, for, a sword of divers edges, Pl.149,6.Pro. 5.4. and they shall fall by the mouth, that is, the edge of the sword, Luk.21.24. and with the Greeks, as a sharp-mouthed, for, a sharp-edged; so, a double-mouthed, for, a double edged, sword, Heb. 4. 12. Revel. 1. 16. that which the Latine, call, a double-headed one : but each language hath its peculiar properties : the speech seems to be defective ; for it is more fully, as if it had been laid ; he hath made my mouth, like the (mouth that is, the edge,) of a sharp sword : as Daniel 4.33. till his haires were grown like eagles, (that is, like the feathers of eagles) and his nailes like birds ; that is, like the claws of Birds : mouth, for, sword, frequently, Genesis 45. 21. Levit. 24. 12. Numbers 3. 16. but here more specially, in allusion to the terme, no lesse commonly used of the sword, Judg. 1. 8, 25. & 4. 15, 16. & 18. 27. & 20. 37.

in the shadow of his hand hath he hid me] in, or with, as Psal. 17. 7. chap. 37, 38. He hath taken me into his powerful protection, chap. 51. 16. shadow, for, protection; as Numb. 14. 9. Psal. 17. 8. and 31. 20. & 91. 1, 2. Eccl. 7. 12. hand, for, power, as chap. 10. 10, 13. and 11. 11. & 23. 11. & 26. 11. verified, as of other his Prophets, and Servants, Jer. 1. 18, 19. & 15. 20, 21. & 20. 11. so in more special manner, of his Messias, Psal. 2. 1-4. chap. 42. 1. whom the Lord so protected, against all the might and malice of his capital enemies ; that they neither could lay hold on him, or do ought to him, before the time, by God fore-designed, was come, Joh. 7. 30, 44. Luk. 22. 53. nor yet keep him under, when that time was once over ; though they endeavoured what they could, to do it, Mat. 27. 62-66. & 27. 2-6. Acts 2. 23, 24.

and made me a polished shaft] As before, a sword to cut ; so here, a shaft to pierce : that, as hand, this at distance, that none may escape him : though I approve not that nicety of some Jewish Writers, that would have him termed a sword, for the Jewish Nation, neer at hand, Psal. 148. 14. a shaft, for the Heathen people, to reach them further abroad, ver. 1. See chap. 42. 22. as before, not a dull, but a sharp sword, Rev. 1. 16. to cut the quicker ; so here, a shaft trimmed, Ezek. 21. 21. and so sharpened, to make it pierce the deeper. See Psal. 45. 5. a shaft polished, respecting the head, or point of it, as a sword sharpened, in reference to the edge of it, Ezek. 21. 9. of this piercing power of the Word, (the efficacy wherof, is in both similitudes implyed,) see Act. 2. 37. Some render it, (and so both the old Latine, and the Greek) as a choice arrow ; such an one, as may both flye far, and pierce deep : and the word sometime, indeed, seems to signifie choice or, chief, 1 Chron. 7. 40. & 16. 41. Neh. 5. 18. Cant. 6. 10. but here rather, as elsewhere, when applyed to shafts, or arrows, by whetting or polishing, made bright, and sharp. See Jer. 51. 11. See also of Gods sword, Ezek. 21. 28. and the like spoken of Gods people, what is here said of Christ, Zach. 9. 13.

in his quiver hath he hid me] The quiver, the place, wherein shafts are, both for safety and readiness at hand, wont to be disposed, Psa. 127. 5. ch. 22. 6. Jer. 5. 16. (as the sword in the sheath, or scabbard, Jer. 47. 6) called, therefore, the son, or, children of the quiver ; because usually put up in it, and drawn out of it, as occasion is, to make use of them, Lamen. 3. 13. In this resemblance therefore seemeth to be implyed, as Gods providence, so Christs obedience ; as Gods protection, for the safegard of Christ : so Christs readiness to do all faithful service to God his Father, Psal. 40. 7, 8. Heb. 10. 5. 7. ch. 42. 1. & 50. 5. 7. Joh. 5. 30. & 6. 38. Heb. 3. 2, 5, 6. but the former more specially. And the like protection will the Lord afford unto all his true and faithful servants, Psal. 31. 19, 20. For I suppose them over-curious, who by the quiver, would have understood, here, Christs humanity ; by the shaft, his diety.

V. 3. And said unto me] Or, And he (the Lord, ver. 1.) said unto me ; or, Moreover, (as Chap. 8. 1. because it beginneth a new relation of a further matter) he said unto me. The words of God follow, who having called the Messias, set him apart, sanctified him, and sent him into the world, for the executing of that office, whereunto he had assigned him, Chap. 61. 1. 2. Joh. 6. 27, 29. and 10. 36. doth, by his speech, to him, in the words ensuing related, encourage him ; as before upon it, and to goe on cheerfully, and constantly, in it, with assurance of success.

Thou art my Servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.] Thus most read the words ; or, with little variation, by way not of compellation, but of apposition, some. Israel in whom I will be glorified, but much divided in their expositions. Some by Israel, here, understand Christ : so called, say some because he was of the stock of Israel. Which though it cannot be doubted of, much lesse denyed ; yet they produce no place of Scripture, where the word Israel, is used for an Israelite, though for the body of the people, or the better part of them, it is frequently found, Chap. 43. 1. 14. and 44. 1, 21. or, because the head of the Elect the Israel of God, Gal. 6. 16. who are one body with him, Joh. 17. 20, 21. Eph. 1. 22, 23. but this is also liable to the same exception with the former : for albeit, in regard of the conjunction of the faithful with Christ, by insition into him, Rom. 11. 17, 24. yea, of those also, in some fort, that profess the faith of Christ, by external adherence unto him, Joh. 15. 2. the name of Christ, is sometime given as well to the one, Gal. 3. 16. as to the other, 1 Cor. 12. 12. Yet I no where find, that the name of Israel, is given unto Christ, for, as for that place, Luk. 1. 54. which some Popish Authors produce, it looketh plainly another way : or, say some again, as the true Israel, that should wrestle with the wrath of God, and prevail against it, as Jacob did with the Angel, and thence gained that name, Gen. 32. 26, 28. But this also, seemeth overquaint. Others therefore, who retaine this reading, understand it of Esay ; so called, say they, as aright Israelite : such an one, as Nathaniel, Joh. 1. 47. yea, as the only Israel, in a manner, that God, in those times of general defection, had loyal to him, and constant with him, Chap 59. 1 5, 16. and 64. 6, 7. Mich. 7. 1, 2. But this exposition laboureth with as many difficulties as the former. Others, again, of the whole seed of the true Israel, consisting joyntly of the faithful, both of Jew, and Gentile, Rom. 9. 6. & 11. 26. and it is true, that Israel, is styled Gods servant, Chap. 44. 1. but they that, after this reading, do here so understand it, consider not the coherence of this verse with the former, wherein some particular person is apparently deciphered, and so make the context very abrupt. This to salve, and make the text run the smoother, some thus render the words, Thou art my servant, to Israel, or, for, Israel; that is, for Israels good ; for my peoples behoof. Which they expound, some of Esay ; of whom it is questionless, true : the Prophet being principally sent on Gods errand, to them, Chap. 1. 1. & 2. 1. Others, of Christ, who as he came of them, Rom. 9. 5. and had been formerly promised to them, Acts 2. 30. and 13. 23, 32. 50. was in the first place, sent unto them, Mat. 4. 23, 24. and 10. 6. Luke 24. 47. Act. 3. 26. and 13. 23, 46. and 28. 25. to which purpose it is, that Christ is said to be a minister to the Circumcision (that is, to the circumcised, the Jews, as Gal. 2. 9.) Rom. 15. 8. and (as some also would expound it, but that is questionable) a servant to Israel, Hos. 11. 1. And this I should encline to, did not the Hebrew pause stay me, that makes a stop, between servant, and Israel. Those therefore I concur with, who read the words in two distinct clauses, thus; Thou art my servant (as having relation to his calling, mentioned, ver. 1 and pointing unto the office, wherewnto he was called ; of which branch, see Chap. 42. 1.) Israel it is, in whom I will be glorified, (or, will glorifie my self, as chap. 44. 23. by thee. For it is the true Israel, the Israel of God, Rom. 9. 6. Gal. 6. 16. the body of the faithful in the salvation of whom, by Christ, God will glorifie the riches of his grace. Rom. 9. 23, 33. and 11. 2, 26. Eph. 1. 6, 12, 14. See Chap. 46. 13. Nor doth that late learned Annotators obtervation here, stay me from adhering to this version, who, with the Tigurine, would have, whom in thee, to be no more then, in whom, according to a good and useful rule given by him, that in Hebrew, when one speaketh to another, the pronoun affixed, following the relative, & having reference thereunto, is not wont to be in the third person; but either in the first, if it relate to the person speaking, as ver. 23. or in the second, if it relate to the person spoken to, as here : for although it be granted so to be there, where the affix hath reference to the relative, by an elegant neediancy, in that language very frequent : yet is there no necessity, of admitting either that reference, or that redundancy, in this place.

V. 4. Then I said, I have laboured in vaine, I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain] Heb. And I said, which if it be rendred, Then, as Chap. 40. 18. it should then be as an inference upon the former : as if he had laid, Then I make account that all my labour is lost, if it be Israel, by whom I must bring glory to thee. I suppose, therefore, it should rather be rendred, But I said : for it seems to be in nature of a reply, or counterplea, in some fort returned to Gods former speech of encouragement, ver. 4. complaining of the paucity, and small number of those, that his ministry had hitherto any gracious work upon, among his people. That which some conceive to be spoken of, and by Esay ; others of, by Christ ; and a third sort, to concern both : but the one is a lower degree, as a less perfect portraiture, and delineation of the other. See the like complaint, in the person of Gods ministers, his Prophets and Apostles, Chapter 53. 1. and of Christ, John 1. 11. and 7. 5. and 12. 37-41.

in vain] As Lev. 26. 16. Job. 29. 16. Chap. 65. 23. the word properly signifies emptinesse ; Whence an empty vessell Jeremiah 51. 34.

I have spent my strength] Or, consumed it ; as Chap. 10. 18 for nought] Or this wood, see on chap. 40. 17.

and in vain] Heb. for vanity, Eccl. 1. 2. not that his paines, with Gods people, were wholy in vain, either in regard of God, that sent him unto whom glory should accrew, as well by his justice manifested in the destruction of the obstinate : as by his mercy magnified in the salvation of sincere Converts, 2 Cor. 2. 15, 16. Or, in regard of the persons, unto whom he was sent, as if not any at all of them were converted for a remnant of them still were reserved, ch. 6. 9, 10, 13. & 8. 16. or, in regard of himself, as if lofs or prejudice should thereby accrew unto him. For his work was not the lesse, either in regard with God, or to be rewarded by God, as the words following import ; but in regard of the slender effect, that his labours had hitherto found, for the benefit and behoof of those, about whom he had laboured ; and the welfare of their louls, which he principally therein aimed at, and did more earnestly affect. See Mat. 23 35. Mar. 3. 5. Luk. 13. 34. & 19. 41, 42. Phil. 4. 1. 1 Thef. 2. 19, 20. and 3. 8. Heb. 13. 17.

yet surely my judgment is with the Lord, and my work with my God] The adversative particle ,yet, though it may seem wanting in the Original, yet is not amils supplyed, as it is also elsewhere. Job 14. 19. ch. 44. 11. because in the words ensuing, as by way of recolection ; for the better support, & re-incouraging of himself, to perfist in his empolyment, he opposeth unto the want of the chiefly desired successes of his labours with men, the gracious acceptance of them with God, (see 1 Cor. 15. 58.) though the particle, yet, may as well be substituted in the room of the word, surely, which may here be omitted. Since, that albeit, sometime it signifie surely, as being a note of asleveration, Genesis 28. 26. 1 Samuel 15. 32. yet it is oft rendred, yet, or, but, as in a notion of opposition, as Job 32. 8. Pf. 82, 7. yea, it may well include both, as the Latine verumtamen seems to do, by which some render it both here, and ch. 53. 4.

my judgment] That is, as some, mine office : so is the word taken, 1 Sam. 10. 25. 1 Chr. 6. 32. and so it should have a respect to his vocation, to Gods calling him to his office, ver. 1. as other rather, my manner, to wit, of carriage in my place (as the word is used, 1 Sam. 2. 13. & 8. 11.) is well known to God, and approved of by him. So Paul of himself, 1 Cor. 4. 3-5. 2 Cor. 1. 12. & 2. 17. or, it may well be rendred, my cause, as Job 23. 4. & 34. 6. God will justifie me, and make it to appear, that it hath not been through any default of mine, that my labours have had no better success, See Chapter 50. 8.

my work] Or, my reward, as Chap. 40. 10. my wages for my work, which God will render unto me, not according to the issue, or successes of my labours ; but according to my pains therein taken, and the faithful discharge of my duty therein, 1 Cor. 3. 8. See Joh. 17. 4, 5. 2 Tim. 4. 7, 8.

V. 5. And now saith the Lord that formed me from the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob again to him] A further matter of encouragement is here adjoyned, by a speech of God himself, either to the Prophet, as the Jews, and some of ours, therein following them ; or, as most of ours, unto Christ, related, partly, in this verse, in a promise not of sufficiency of support, and protection of him, only, in the work of his ministery ; but of making him glorious in it, and by it ; though it should not prove so successful among his own people, as he desired ; and partly, in the verses following, wherein he sheweth, how his ministery should become so glorious, by the efficacy of it, among, and upon the Gentiles, far and neer, throughout the whole world beforementioned, v. 1.

that formed me from the womb] This some expound of Christs humane nature, framed in the womb of the virgin, Luk. 1. 35. Gal. 4. 4. Others, the Jews especially, of the moulding of the Prophets body, to such an exact temperature and constitution, as might be fit to receive a prophetical spirit, as the like of Jeremy, Jer. 1. 5. but this may well go among their Cabalistical fancies. Others (whom I allow, as more agreeable to Mat. 23. 37.) yet, (Heb. and; as c. 42. 25.) shall I be glorious as in the eyes of the Lord,(God will have me in high esteem for the faithful discharge of my duty, and confer glory upon me, Joh. 5. 20, 23. & 10. 15, 17 & 12. 28. & 17. 1, 5. Phil. 2. 9.) and my God shall be my strength; he will enable me to go thorow with, whatsoever shall be required of me, in the place whereunto he hath assigned me, and protect me against the might and malice, both of men & devils, of all oppolites whomsoever. See of Christ, Joh. 10. 15, 18. and 16. 32 of other his faithful ministers and messengers, Jer. 1. 18, 19. & 15. 20, 21. & 20. 11. According to the marginal reading, they run very aptly and smoothly thus, to give you the whole entire passage together ; And now saith the Lord, that formed me in the womb, to be his servant, for the reducing of Jacob to him, that Israel may be gathered to him, and I may be glorified in the eyes of the Lord, even my God that hath been my strength. Who hath hitherto supported me, for the verb substantive (as they term it) is in the time past, had, for even, as ch. 40. 30. and the relative supplyed, as ch. 44. 2. a place parallel to this; either reading to well suiteth with the sequel of the context, that I can hardly resolve, whether of the twain to adhere to, onely the speech running along throughout, in the person of the reporter, not as spoken to him by another, but speaking of himself, seems to speak for the latter. I shall only add what I since find in a learned Annotator oft mentioned, who in this manner carryeth on the sile of the context ; but following the other reading with the negative, rendreth that passage, to reduce to him Israel, who is not gathered; that is, who is disperled, and his people is look not after him. And this version seems also very probable, as rending a reason, why there was great need of sending one to gather them. See Ezek. 34. 4-6, 11, 12. Mat. 9. 36. the defect of the relative, as v. 25. is frequent.

V. 6. And he said] Following the latter reading, It would be rendred, Even he (of whom before, ver. 5.) now saith, or (as some render it) He, I say (the Lord my God, ver. 5.) saith. The Hebrew particle is oft so used, in returning after some other matter interpoled, to the relation of what had been begun before, 2 Sam. 13. 1. But according to the former, He also, or He further said, as ch. 8. 5. & 39. 6. because it should then usher in a second speech.

It is a light thing , that thou shouldest be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel ? As if he had said, It is but a small matter, or too small a matter for thee to reduce and restore this handful of people, though thou shouldest have as ample success with them, as thou desirest, in comparison of what further work I intend to effect by thee ; and for which, I have accordingly fitted and furnished thee, Col. 1. 19, 20. Thus, according to the reading held forth in the text. Howbeit, the Jewish Commenters, and not a few of our own Interpreters also read them, as spoken by way of demand ; Is it a light matter for thee to be my servant to this purpole? So the Jewish Doctors expounding it of Esay, of whom God should demand, whether it were a slight matter to be put upon such an employment. And those of ours, that go this way ; Art thou lighter, or wilder (of leis account, or wit, in the eyes of thy people, as v. 7.) than that thou shouldest be my servant, an instrument used by me, for the raising and recovery of my people ; But the former interpretation seems the more familiar, and not to need any such supply.

a light thing that thou shouldest be] Or, too light for the to be. Or, a lighter thing than for thee to be. Heb light from being. See 1 Sam. 18. 23. 1 King. 16. 31. 2 Kin. 13. 18, Eze. 8. 17, 18. and of the use of the particle thus in way of comparison, Job 11. 6. ch. 41. 24.

my servant] As v. 6.

to raise up the Tribes of Jacob] The Jewish people fallen from me; my Church among them decayed by their desertion of me, and their State ruined by their sin, Amos 9. 11. Acts 15. 16. This the Jewish Writers, and divers of ours, all so apply, some to Esay, as the foretteller of it, and some to Cyrus, as the effecter of the restitution of Gods people, here pointed to, in the dissolution of the Babylonian captivity. But whatloever dusky draught of it, might be deferred in either, the full accomplishment of it is most clearly in Christ. See ch. 44. 26.

to restore] Heb. to reduce, or bring back or cause to return, as ver. 5. Neh. 9. 26. for I find not where it is used of restitution, or reparation of decays in building.

the preserved of Israel; Or, as some, the reserved : the Elect of God among that people, whom God had from time to time protected and preserved in times of common calamity, as a remnant reserved for himself. Chap. 1 9. & 6. 13. & 8 14. & 10 20, 22. Ezek 11-16, 17. Mat. 24. 21, 24. Rom. 9. 27, 29. & 11. 1, 2, 4, 5, 7. Jud 1. Howbeit, our margent here affordeth us another reading, to wit, desolations, that which the Rabbines also here hold forth, calling in, for the justification of it, divers places, where they suppole the word so to signifie, as Chap. 1. 8 & 65. 4. Prov 7. 10. But these places, some of them, seem questionable; and though the restoring of Wastes be oft mentioned, and promised in this Prophecy, verse 19. Chap. 44. 26. & 51. 3 & 52 9, & 58. 12. & 61. 4. Yet neither is this word found in any of them; nor the verb here joyned with it, used of them. Besides, that the gender of the word carry it rather unto persons, then unto places.

I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth] This likewise not the Jews alone, but of ours also apply, some to Esay, from whole Prophecies, much light those forth, not to the Jews alone, but to other people, when they saw them fulfilled, and were many of them, as they presume, thereby converted : some to Cyrus, by whole dilolution of the Babylonian Empire, much light of joy, accrewed not to the Jews alone (as by Hamans downfall, Eft. 8. 16, 17. Pfal. 126. 1, 2. ch. 9. 2. 3. & 12. 3, 6. & 35. 10. but to all those people, that lived formerly, either in slavery, or in slavish fear, under it, ch. 7. 16. But these things seems too much restrained. Evident it is, that Christ was lent by God, to illighten, by the saving light of the Gospel, not those of his own nation alone, Chap. 9. 2. Mat. 4. 15, 16. Luke 1. 78, 79. John 1. 4, 5 & 8. 12. & 9. 5. & 12. 35, 36, 46. but people of all parts throughout the whole world, Chap. 42. 6. & 51. 4. Luk. all parts throughout the whole world, Chap. 42. 6. & 51. 4. Luk. 2. 32. Acts 13. 47. & 22. 21. & 26. 17, 18. Rom. 10. 18. 2 Cor. 4. 4, 6. & to effect salvation, as well for the one as the other, Pf.98.3. chap.45. 22. Mark.16.15,16. Luke 24.47. John 10.16. & 11.51,52. & 12.32. Rom.3.9,23-25,29,30. & 10.12,13. Gal.3.28. Eph.2.13-16. 1. John 2. 2.

V.7. Thus saith the Lord, the Redeemer of Israel, and his holy one] Another speech of God, unto his annointed one, followeth; to give him further encouragement, against that sorry conceit, and mean estimation, that the world should have of him, with a more ample assurance of good success in his ministery, and an issue, beyond expectation of the work to be undertaken by him, for the deliverance of his people.

the Redeemer of Israel, and his holy one] See Chapter 48. 17.

to him, whom man despiseth; to him, whom the Nation abhorreth, to a Servant of Rulers] A lively description of the condition of our blessed Saviour in the time of his humiliation, in the days of his flesh. See the like, chap. 52. 14. & 53. 2, 3. Howsoever the Hebrew Commenters would turn it all another way, applying it all, some of them, to the Prophet Esay, and some to the body of their people.

to him, whom man despiseth] Heb. to the contempt of soul; as some, that make the word a nountor, as others, supposing it to be a verb, to him who is ready, for a soul to contemn: or, as a third sort, who take it for a participle of a passive sense, to the despised of a soul. Herein they all agree, that by the word soul, is understood man, or person, as it is frequently used in either Testament, Exod.1.5. Acts 7.14. 1 Pet. 3.20. and in a kind of generality here, Soul, or, a soul, for every one, every soul, as Lev.4.1. & 5.1. though the note of universality be not expressed. So the meaning is, one that is generally expoled to contempt, as our blessed Saviour was here on earth, in the eyes and minds of the most, Pfal.22.6,7. chap.52.14. & 53.3. Mat.13 55-57. Mar.6.3. John 7.48,49. Our margent rendreth it, To him that is despised in soul, that is, as some, to a contemptible creature, one whose soul is filled, or cloyed with scorn and contempt, Pfalm 123.3, 4. expounding it of the Jewish people, under the Babylonian bondage, Pfalm 137. 1,3. And thus it was indeed also both with Christ himself, when he was here on earth, Mat,27.38-44. Mar. 15. 28. and with his members and ministers after him, 1 Cor.4.9 13. Again, some other render it, to him that setteth light by his own soul; as all true Christians are both admonished to do, Mat. 16.24,25. Luke 14. 26. and are, faid some of them to have done, Rev.12.11. See Acts 20.24. applying it to our Prophet, who exposed himself to hazard, by his freedom of speech, in opposing of Shebna, and other the great ones of the times. That which is true, al.o, of Christ, who exposed, and gave up his life, or foul, unto death, as an expiatory sacrifice for the sins and safety of Gods people, Chap.53.10,12. John 10.15,18. But the sense first given seems genuine, which way soever the Grammar resolution, there given, go. Howbeit, a late learned Annotator propoundeth here two other Interpretations. The word, saith he, is a verb infinite, which with the particle here prefixed, oft anfwereth the Latine gerund in dum, as Chap.44.14. and upon this ground he rendreth the text, either thus; thy soul must be despised, or, let light by, for him, or thofe (collectively taking it) whom people abhor, (a defect of the relative, as chap.65.1.) and is, or are, in servitude to Rulers. Or, thus, thou must contemn, or, let light by, the Will, or desire, (so is the word soul used, Pfalm 27. 12. So him that abhoreth the Nation, and is a Servant to Rulers, that is, of Pilate, who abhorred the Jewish people, and was a fervant to the Cefars. I propound them onely, and leave them, as himself doth, to be weighed by others.

to him whom the nation abhorred] Heb no more then, to an abhorring nation; which some render, to an abominable nation, that is, a people, fay they, who in regard of their present, base, and calamitous condition, are generally abominated, Lam.1.17. But others, and so the Jewish Commenters, allo, to one abhorring a nation; that is, who abhorreth the Nation, either of the Jews for their wicked ness; or other, for their impieties and wrongs to Gods people: or, as they also, to me, whom the nation is abhorring, that is, whom this Nation, the Jewish people, (the rather so termed, as some observe on the place, because by their wicked practices, they had made themselves no other then as other nations, and such also in Gods sight, Ezek.5,6. Hof.1.9. See chap.1.4.) do for the most of them even abhor. See Chapter 53. 3. Matthew 11. 19. and 26. 65 John 5. 12, 18. and 7.13,20. and 8. 48. 52. and 10. 20. Act.3.14. The defect of the relative is not unusuall. See on v.7. nor the placing of the nominative after the verb, or participle commonly used for the verb. So Gen.2.5.21. Of which place, see on ch. 21.8.

to a Servant of Rulers] This some understand of Esay, being a subject, and so a fervant to the Kings of Judah, under whom he prophecied, ch.1.1. Others of the Jewish people, in fervitude under foreign Governours, during the time of their captivity, ch. 26.13. But the most, and best, of Christ, used in a base fort, and in a fervile manner, by the Rulers in those times, when he was here upon earth, and put, by them, to such a death, as slaves among the Romans were wont to undergo, Matthew 26. 27. and 27. 20, 22, 26-38. Luke 22. 63-65. and 23. 11, 23. John 19. 1, 2, 5.

Kings shall see, and arise, Princes also shall worship, because of the Lord, who is faithful, and the holy one of Israel, and he shall choose thee] Thou that wast sometime contemned, and scorned, both by Princes, and people, shalt, through the faithful procurement of God, who made choice of thee for this office, be advanced to that height of honour, that thou shalt be worshipped, and adored by the greatest Potentates in the world, Eph.1.19-21. Phil. 2.9-11. Heb.2.9. A pregnant Prophecy of the Kings and Princes of the earth, submitting their crowns and sceptres, to the Kingdom, and Soveraignty of Christ, Pf.2.8-12. & 72.10,11. & 110.3,5. Chap.52.13,15. Rev.11. 15. Though some expound it of this Prophet also, at the reading of whose Prophecies, Cyrus should stand amazed; and other Princes admire, when they should see them fulfilled. Others, of the Church restored by Christ, of which somewhat the like, see hereafter, v.23. Ch.60.3,10,11,12. for the partaketh also in some degree with Christ, as his Spouse, in his honour, Mat.19.28. Luk.22.29,30. Rev.3.21. & 12.1. & 19.7,8. but this place is principally concerning Christ himself.

See] Or, see thee; the pronoun wanting: as v. 18. They see him, with the eye of faith, as Abraham foresaw him, Joh.8.56. and behold the glory and dignity of Christ, now exalted, in the marvellous works, wrought by him, upon, and among his people, cha. 52.15.

and arise] Or, arise to thee, as before: in token of reverence, as Levit. 19.32. Judg.3.20. 2 King.1.19. Job 29.8.

shall worship] Or, shall arise, and bow down: as verse 23. (see Genesis 23. 7. 1 Samuel 25. 41.) or, do obeysance, to thee; in token of submission, Chap. 45. 23. Phil.2.10,ch,60.14. Rev. 3.9. a repetition of the former verb, from the former branches cha. 41.25. & 43.2. and supply of the pronoun attending the latter; as ch. 58.9.

because of the Lord, who is faithful] Considering Gods faithfulness, which shall then appear in the performance of all his promises, made both unto thee, and unto his people, by thee, Rom.15.8,9. 2 Cor.1.20.

and the holy One] Or, for the holy one; the preposition repeated from the former branches, as the verb before; the holy one, that speaks this. See before.

and he shall choose thee] Or, shall make thee a choice one: as ch.48. 10. Zach. 1. 17. or, who hath chosen thee: the copulative, for the relative; as Chapter 44. 14 Jeremiah 14. 18. or, because he shall have chosen thee: the copulative, in a causative notion, as chapter 64. 5. because he shall make it then to appear, that it was he that had formerly made choice of thee, and designed thee unto this office, to be the Saviour of his people as well Jew, as Gentile See ch.43.10.

V.8, thus saith the Lord] God the Father speaking again unto Christ, as Pfalm 2. 7, and 110. 1. For they ftrain the text unreasonably, that either restrain it, or apply, all this, also, to Esay.

In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I helped thee] Or, because it runneth as the former did, ver. 6. I will hear thee, I will help thee: when the time appointed shall come, wherein I have determined to manifeft my free favour, and gracious good will unto them, by working by thee salvation and deliverance for them, I will then accept thy suits, and intercession for them, and will be afhiftant unto thee, in that work. See 2 Cor. 6.2.

an acceptable time] Heb. a time of good will, or acceptance, as Pfal. 69.13. See Chapter 61.2.

heard] Or, will hear. Heb. answer. God is then faid, as to' hear, so to answer, when he grantech requefts, and hears it appeare, that he so doth, chap.65.24. Pfal.118.5. See his solemn suit for his, John 17.

helped] Or. will help: as Christ is with his at hand; always, to hear, and help them, Mat.28. 20. So was God the Father, ever at hand with Christ, to hear, & help him. See Joh.11.41,42. & 16.32. Act.10.38,2 Cor.5.19. See the like promises made to Gods people, ch.41.10,13,14.

and I will preserve thee] Both in thy person, and in the execution of thine office. See ch.42.1,6. ver.2.

and give thee for a covenant to the people] Not only make thee, the Mediatour of the new Covenant between me and my people, Heb. 7.22. & 8.6. but make good by thee, all my promises made to my people, concerning their deliverance, either corporall, out of the Babylonian bondage; or spiritual, from the fervice of sin, and Satan, 2 Cor.1.20. the one, being as a type and symbol, to a pledge, or pawn, also, in some sort, of the other; and the latter therefore, being usually shadowed out by the former, as wel in this place, as elsewhere. See ch.61.1,2.

to establish the earth] Or, to raise up (as verse 6.) the lands as Chapter 57. 13. to wit, of Iudah, to restore, and settle the State of it again, after their return from the captivity: a type of the restitution, and establishment of the Church by Christ, chap. 2.2.

to cause to inherit the desolate heritages] That my people returning again to their possessions, out of which they had formerly been ejected, may repair, and re-edifie those places that had lien waste a long time, during the time of their absence from them; and being repossessed of them, enjoy them, as in former dayes they had done, ver.6. ch.51,3,& 58.12.& 61.4. Ezek.36. 3,4,34,35. a type of the restitution restitution of the faithful, to their estate, and condition, forfeited through the fraud of Satan, and the default and defection, both of their parents, and themselves, Romanes 3.23. & 5.12.

V.9. That thou mayst say to the prisoners, Go forth; to them that sit in darkness, Shew your selves] That thou mayest not only say it, but do it. For Gods Word is his Will, and his Will, is his Work, Pfalm 115.3. & 135.6. Chapter 44.26. that thou mayest not only proclaim, or preach, liberty to them; but procure it for them; liberty corporal, from Babels bonds, Ezra 1.1-4. Chapter 43.14.& 44. 28. & 45. 13. & 51, 14. Pfalm 107. 10-14. liberty spiritual, from Satans bonds, Luke 13. 16. John 8.31, 32,34. Acts 26.18. Col.1.13.2 Tim.2.26. Heb.2.14,15.1 John 3.8. See ch.42.7. & 61.1.

in darkness] In dark dungeons, Pfalm 88. 6.& 107,10,14.ch. 42.7,22.a type of spiritual darkness, ch.9.2. Mat.4.16. Luke 1.79. & 22.53.

Shew your selves] Heb. be revealed: as 1 Sam.14.8,11. come forth into the light.

They shall feed in the wayes, and their pastures shall be in all high places] To the promise of delivery from their captivity, is adjoyned a further promise of a competent supply, and provision of all necessaries for them by the way, in their travelling home to their own country, fet forth in an allusion to the manner of sheep (and Gods people are styled his sheep, Pfalm 100.3. ch.40.11. Ezek.34.31.) or other cattle, that being removed (as in Spain, and some other parts) at time of yeer, from one side of the country, to the other, are permitted by the way, to graze on the roads, and drift-walls, that they passe by; together with an intimation of sufficiency of food, that should, by Gods procurement and providence, be found for them, even in the places most waste and barren, by which they were to passe. See Chapter 35. 1.and 41. 18, 19.and 43. 19,20.

high places] That are usually dry and barren, Chapter 41.18. Jeremiah 12,12. albeit, a learned late Writer would have it signifie, not high, but low places, valleys, or plains. See chapter 13.1.& 41.18.

V.10. They shall not hunger, nor thirst] Having provision sufficient, of either sort, made for them, as those that travel thorow deserts, are compelled oft to do, Pfalm 107.4,5. See Pfalm 105.40,41. cha. 41.17.& 48.21. Rev.7.16.

neither shall heat, nor the Sun, smite them]: They shall not be troubled with such inconveniences, and annoyances, as travellers, in torrid regions, waste places especially, where no shade, or shelter is, are wont to be exposed unto, and molested with, Pfalm 105.37,39. chap. 32.2.& 41.19.

heat, nor Sun] Heb. burning, or scorching heat, and Sun, for, burning, or scorching heat of the Sun. See Chapter 5. 6. or, scorching heat (arising from the nature of the soyl; as chapter 35. 7. or other like occasions,) or sun, that is, sun-shine: because they are also, so distinctly set down, Rev.7.16. though the Sun put first here: the copulative for the disjunctive, as chapter 44. 10, 14.

for he that hath mercy on them, shall lead them, even by the Springs of water shall he guide them] The reason of this affluence of necessaries for them, in their way homeward; because the same God, who out of his meer mercy, had wrought their deliverance from Babylon, Chap.14.1. will go along with them, and conduct them, as he did their fathers formerly, thorow the wilderness, after he had brought them out of Egypt, Exodus 13.21, 22. and will see that nothing be wanting unto them by the way: and because water is one of the most necellary supports of mans life, and means of his refreshment, the want whereof, whereof, unto travellers especially in hot regions, and through waste places, might most of all distresse; mention is particularly made of provision for it, God promising to lead them along by such paffages, where plenty of Springs should be found. See ch.41.18,19.& 43.19,20. Pfalm 23,1-3. Jer. 31. 9.

Springs] As ch.35. 7.

V.11. And I will make all my mountains a way, and my high-ways shall be exalted] Another means of facilitating their journey for them, by making their way safe and easy before them, and by removal of such impediments as might hinder them in their passage. See ch 40.4.& 57.14.

I will] A change of the person, as oft elfe-where. So ch.41.19,20. & 42.13.14.

my mountains] Those by which my people are to passe, Chapter 40. 4. Or, therefore, mine, because I am the Maker of them, and can, therefore, dispose of them as I pleafe, Pfalm 95. 4. See Zacheriah 4.6, 7. I will cause them to pass with as much ease, as if all the mountains were taken away, that ftand in their way.

my high-way shall be exalted] Or, my causey (that is, such ways as shall be cast up for the more convenient passage of my people) shall be highated. See Chapter 35.8. & 62.10. Of the word, see chap. 19. 23. Howbeit, some expound the words, I will make my mountains a plain way, by depreffing them, and my high-ways, or roads, in the valley, shall be raised, to make them even with the other, and so lay all level, as chap.42.4.

V. 12. Behold these shall come from far :] To assure them of return to their own country again, he telleth them, that no remoteneffe of place from their own land; nor distance of regions one from another, into which they had been dispersed, should impeach their passage, or hinder their concurrence and meeting together, in their own land again, Deut. 30.3,4. See Chap. 11. 11,12.

from far] From places most remote, Ch 43.6.& 60.4. Jer.30.10. Howbeit, in regard that some special regions are in particular after related, lying towards the four quarters of the world, and the Western coast, next but one to this, most Interpreters here, by the far country, understand the East, or Sun-rising, the Persian land, ch.41. 2,25. as most distant from the land of Judah, that lay so far West, on the brink of the Western Sea.

and to these from the North] From Media, fay some, ch.41.25. From Babylon, rather, others, ch.14.31. Jer.1.14,15. but it is not probable, that the principal place of their captivity should be omitted. See Zach.2.6,7.

and from the west] Heb. from the Sea, as Josh.16.6,8. so called, because the Midland-sea lay West of them; that is, as some, from the Philistines land, into which they had sometime fled. See ch 9.12. as others, from the transmarine parts, and Western Ilands, Cyprus, Candy, Macedonia.

and these from the land of Sinai] Or, of the Sinites; whereby some understand such as lived in the defart of Sin, or about Mount Sinai, Exod.16.1.& 19.1. But there seems to have been little dwelling in those deserts. Others, the Sinites, reckoned among the posterity of Canaan, Gen.10.17. But these were, in likelyhood, Families, inhabiting among the reft of that Stock in the land, where the Israelites themselves were afterward fettled. Others, would carry them, as far as China, by Ptolomy, called Sinæ: But that country was not in those times, yet, in likelyhood, known to these parts. The most probable opinion, therefore, is, that by the Sinites is hear meant, the Inhabitants of Sin, a chief city of Egypt, called, therefore, Sin, the strength of Egypt, Ezek.30.15, 16. having its name Sin, from a Syriack word, that fignifies, mire, or dirt; as by the Greeks also, it is therefore termed Pelusium, from a Greek word of the same notion, in regard of its situation, being environed with marshes and quaggy grounds; as Strabo, l.17. put here for Egypt, because one of its head cities; which land, lying to the South of Judah, Chap. 30.6. cometh in to make up the fourth quarter. The return of the Jewish people, out of all these parts, into which they had been scattered, Ezek.5.10. being a type of those, that out of all parts of the world, should be converted, and come in unto Christ, Pf.107.3.v.18.c.43.5. 6.& 66.19, 20.

V.13. Sing, O heavens, and be joyful, O earth; and break forth into crying, O mountains] A calling upon all the creatures, both above, & below, to rejoyce, upon the deliverance of Gods people, Chapter 44.23.& 55.12. as the whole frame of the creature is faid to droop and mourn, untill their deliverance be fully compleated, Rom.8. 19-22.

for the Lord hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted] Or, and had mercy, Chap. 14.1. ver.10. chap.51.3. and 52. 9.

V.14. But Zion said, The Lord hath forsaken me; and my Lord hath forgotten me] Or, Jehovah hath forsaken me; and Adonai, or my Lord, hath forgotten me; as two distinct expressions of the same person, which at several times they had frequently in their mouths. The one, sometimes; and sometime the other. The laments of Gods people bemoaning themselves, in the time of their long and tedious captivity; and complaining of God, through humane frailty, as if he had utterly cast off all care for, and thought of them. See the like, ch.40.27. Pf.13.1. & 31.22.& 88.14.

Zion] Gods people, ver. 13, who had wont to meet together at Zion, to serve God there, Pfalm 84. 7. So Chapter 1.27. and 40.9.

my Lord] That was in times past, so: my good Lord, my gracious Soveraign, so forward to protect me, & ready to relieve me; whom, alone, I had wont to repaire unto, and rely upon, for succour and shelter, for safety and delivery in all my distresses; he now fails me, and looks not after me; that which much aggravated their present affliction, and added much aloes thereunto, Pfalm 44. 7-9.

V.15. Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb?] Gods affectionate answer to his peoples lamentable, but erroneous, and groundlefs, complaint.

Can a woman forget?] Heb. Will a woman forget? But these enunciatives are oft used in a potential notion. So Jer. 2.32. & 11.12.

her sucking child] That hangeth on her breast. Such as mothers are wont to be most chary of, and to be most tenderly affected towards them. Or, her young child, her youngling: For the word seems to be some what larger, and to signifie any young infant, or child, like a tender branch, or clufter, as the words of neer affinity to it import, chap.13.16.& 24.12. distinguished from *suckling*s, Pfal. 8.2. Ier.6.11. See the word it self used, chap.65.20. Job 15,18.& 21,11. which latter places cannot well be understood of sucking babes. See Chap.40.11. A learned Annotator obſerveth, that the ſame word in the Ethiopick verſion,is uſed for a colt, Matt. 21. 2.

that ſhe ſhould not have compaſſion]Heb. from having compaſſion; as ch.23.1.& 50.2. & 59.1.

on the ſon of her womb] Heb. of her belly, an affectionate form of ſpeech, Proverbs 31. 2. and emphatical, Mica. 6. 7. uſed as well of the male, as of the female parent,Deut.28.4,18.Pſa. 132.11,not unlike that, my ſon which came out of my bowels, 2 Sam. 16. 11.

yea,they may forget, yet will I not forget thee] Though ſome of them ſhould be ſo unnatural, Lam.4.3.Rom.1.31. yet I cannot prove ſo towards thee, Pſ. 103. 13.

yea]Or,though,as Neh. 6.1.

they] Heb. theſe; as v. 11, 21.

may forget]Heb.will forget,to wit,her ſucking-babe, or her young-ling,as the Oſtritch doth,Job 39.14-16.But the word is taken here potentially; as ch.39. 15.

yet]Heb. and: as ch.42 25.

will not I forget thee]Ch.44.21.Ier.31.20.or, cannot I forget thee; that it may anſwer the foregoing member.

V.16.Behold, I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands] Or, *I have drawn thee (portraid thee,*as Ezek.4.1.)on my hands, as Pſal. 119.48.Lam.3. 41. an alluſion, as ſome, to the manner of thoſe, that fet ſome mark,or ty ſome ſtring upon their hand,or about ſome of their fingers, to mind them of ſome buſineſs, that they may not forget it. See Exod.13.16.Prov.6.21.or,as others,to the manner of builders, that uſe to draw models, of thoſe ſtructures, that they intend to erect. which ſuits well with the wals mentioned in the next clauſe. Or, as others again, preſſing the word, graven, (though not indeed found there)to thoſe, that carry about with them engra-ven, on ſome tablet, or on the ſtone of ſome ring, which they wear on their finger, the mark, name, or picture, of ſome perſon, whom they entirely affect. See Cant. 8.6. Jer.22.24. whereunto ſome add as a probable conjecture ; that the Jews, the citizens of Jeruſalem eſpecially, ſhould uſually have the figure of that city engraven on their rings; and that thereunto ſome alluſion ſhould be, Pſ.137.5.of ſome of their coins, ſome ſuch thing is reported and exhibited : of their rings, I read nothing;a defect of the pronoun poſſeſſive; as Job 23. 18.

thy walls are continually before me]Either mine eyes are continually upon thy wals now demoliſhed and ruined. Lam.2. 7, 8. a ruful ſpecta-le, to move me, out of pity and compaſſion, to be mindful of the raiſing and re-edifying of them, Pſalm 102.14.or, the model and frame of that goodly ſtructure, that I intend to raiſe Sion unto (for he ſpeaketh of Church, and People,as of a ſtately ſtructure, ch. 55.11,12.Rev 21.10 26)is continually in my thoughts,as the work-man hath his model,or pattern,conſtantly, either before his eye, or in his brain, that he is for to work by. See Exod.25.9.Pſ.39.16.Eze. 40.2. & 43.11.

V. 17. Thy children ſhall make haſte] They ſhall ſpeedily return, Chap.5.1.14.Ier.50.8.or,as ſome read it,thy builders ſhall make haſt : Thy walls ſhall be ſpeedily built up again.chap. 44.28. and 60.10.

and they that made thee waſte , ſhall go forth of thee] They that razed thy walls, and laid thee waſte , ſhall be expelled, and driven again out of thy land, whereof they had formerly diſpoſſeſſed thee, ver. 19. Chap.14.2,6.& 16.4.& 54.14.& 60.18. Zach. 1. 21.

V.18. Lift up thine eyes round about, and behold ; all theſe gather themſelves together, and come to thee] God ſpeaks to Sion, by the Prophet, following the former allegory, as to a mother or mother-city, and as of a preſent viſible confluence of multitudes of people, from all parts on every ſide, flowing in to her ; partly of her own natives;and partly, of others joyned to them,and deſirous to be en-franchiled with them : a type of thoſe numerous , or numberleſs rather numbers of perſons, that ſhould be brought home to the Church of God, under the miniſtery of the Goſpel; and have their names en-rolled in Gods Regiſter, as fellow citizens, with the Saints.ch.4.2,3.& 14.1.& 60.11.P.87.4-6 Hoſ.1.10.Act.2.41, 47.& 4.4 & 19.18-20.& 21.20.Rom.9.24,25.Eph.2.18,19.Rev. 3.12. See ch.60.4.

Lift up thine eyes] An ordinary form of ſpeech uſed in Scripture, to expreſſe a ſerious and adviſed conſideration, or contemplation of ought that offereth it ſelf unto view, Gen. 13. 10. & 22.4.& 31. 10, 12.

gather themſelves toget-er] Heb. are gathered together : chap. 43. 9. out of ſeveral parts and places, wherein formerly they abode.

and come to thee] Or, they come to thee ; or to come to thee : as Judges 9. 48. *make haſte, do as I do,*for make haſte to do,as I do ; and ſo Pſalm 106. 13. they made haſte , they forgat ; and the like.

as I live, ſaith the Lord]A ſolemn form of an oath;that God himſelf,upon ſpecial occaſions, oft uſeth: as ſure as I live,Ezek.33.11. Jer.22 24.

thou ſhalt ſurely clothe thee with them all. as with an ornament, and bind them to thee, as a bride doth] They ſhall all joyn themſelves to thee; and being joyned to ther, ſhall not be a bare burdenſome multitude, hanging upon thee; or as ignominious troops of baſe forty people,that are no better then blots, and blemiſhes to a State ; but they are ſuch, as ſhall be as jewels, and ornaments, matter of much honour, to thee, being perſons endowed with ſuch ſpiritual graces,as ſhall make them,and thee,by them,through thoſe pretious endowments, reſplendent in them,of high eſteem, in the eyes both of God,and man,1 Cor.12-411.Tit.2.10.Jam.2.5.1Pet.1 7.& 3,4.2 Pet.1.1, 4.Rev.19.8,14.

thou ſhalt ſurely]So the particle ſeems uſed, ch.5.7.& 7.9,16.or, that thou ſhalt,&c.As ſure as I live,ſo ſure it is,that thou ſhalt. So 1 Sam. 20.3.

clothe thee with them] Heb. clothe them on, or put them on : as Exodus 29, 30. as one is ſaid to be clad, or clothed with that, which makes him conſpicuous in the eyes and eſteem of others, Pſ. 93.1.& 104.2.& 132.9,16. Rom.13.12,14. Eph.4.24. Col.3.10, 12,14.

as with an ornament] The word is a very generall term, comprehending all rich, and gorgeous raiment , or other ornaments, that people are wont to wear about them, Exodus 33. 4-6.

bind them to thee] Or, bind them on : as Jewels are wont to be for more ſecurity, Proverbs 3. 3. and 7. 3. it ſeems uſed more ſpecially of head-attire, the head-band, or diadem, Jer.2.32. the pronoun is not in the text : but may be ſupplyed ; as v.7.Job 11.18.

as a bride doth] As a bride is wont, of all other, in moſt ſpecious and curious manner, to attire,and let out her ſelf, Chapter 61 10.Ier.2.32.Rev.21.2. as a bride bindeth on her ornaments, or, her head attire, which the hath ſpecial care of : the verb is to be ſupplyed,from the member before-going, as Proverbs 25.23. and 26. 9.14.

V.19.For thy waſte, and thy deſolate places,and the land of thy deſtruction, ſhall even now be too narrow, by reaſon of the Inhabitants]Or, carrying on the text in a continued tenour, (which I take to be the ri,ht, That thy waſte, and deſolate places, and thy land deſtroyed,ſhall be too ſtrait for the Inhabitant: for ſo it runs word for word; as certain, as I ſaid before, it is, that thy land, formerly exhauſted with deſtructions,and deportations, ſhall now be ſo replenished with people ,that there ſhall hardly be room for them, to dwell one by another. See Jer.31.27.Ezek.36.37,38.Zach.2.4.or, as a learned late Writer, For in thy deſolate places , and in thy waſtes , and in thy land deſtroyed, thou ſhalt now ſurely be ſtraitned, by reaſon of Inhabitants : a double ci, in a twofold notion, as Gen. 22.16.and a defect of the particle, in, very frequent;as ch.44.12 & 48.4. And this I concur with;adding only,that according to this interpretation,the tenour of the context,may run on as before, That in all thoſe places thou ſhalt be ſtraitned. See v.20.

thy waſte, and thy deſolate places]Heb.thy waſteneſſes,and thy deſolations : as Ezra 9.9.

the land of thy deſtruction] Or,rather,thy land of deſtruction; that is,thy deſtroyed land, v. 17.

by reaſon of the Inhabitants] Heb. Inhabitant : as chapter. 5.3.

and they that ſwallowed thee up, ſhall be far away] To wit, from thee:a ſupply of the pronoun:as ver.18. Being either driven away, or deſtroyed, See ch.19.18.

ſwallowed thee up]Or,deſtroyed thee,that waſted and ſpoiled thee, thy lands,cities and people,ch.3.12.& 19.3.& 25.7. Jer.51.34,44. a metaphor from ſuch ravenous beaſts, as devour, what they deſtroy, Gen.37.33.Pſ.124.3. Jon. 1.17.ch 42.14.

V.20. The children which thou ſhalt have, after thou haſt loſt the other, ſhall ſay again in thine ears, The place is too ſtraight for me; give place to me,that I may dwell] The great fruitfulneſs of the people,returned from captivity; not unlike that, wherewith God bleſſed them, ſometime, in Egypt; Exod.1.12,20. a type of the fertility of Gods Church,under the Meſſias, Ch. 54. 1.

after thou haſt loſt the other] Either cut off by the enemy, Ier.31. 15.or caſt off, for their incredulity, Rom.11.15,20.which theſe latter ſhall, in number, far exceed, Rev. 7.4-9. Heb. the children of thine orbity, or thy childleſſe, or deſolate,eſtate. See ch.47.9.& verſe 21.

ſhall ſay again] Or,yet,or further.

in thine ears]Or,in thy hearing; as Jer. 48.7.

the place is too ſtraight for me]As 2 Kings 6.1.we want room, Zac. 10. 10.

give place for me, that I may dwell] Or, make room for me, that I may have where to abide; as chap.5.8. Jeremiah 39.14. See chap. 54.1.

Ver. 21. Then ſhalt thou ſay in thine heart] Heb. and: as chap. 38. 2, 4. thou ſhalt think with thy ſelf; as 1 Samuel 27.1. Pſalm 14.1.

who hath begotten me theſe, ſeeing I have loſt my children, and am deſolate, a captive, and removing, to and fro ? and who hath brought up theſe? behold, I was left alone : theſe where had they been ?] A ſpeech, or thought, of much wonder,upon the ſight of her exceeding great, and that ſudden,alſo,encreaſe,with her,after her return: having been ſo long a time, like a lone woman, and loſt ſo many of her children, partly, in the ſiege, and ſurpizal of the city, (for as of Sion,or Jeruſalem, ver.14. he ſtill ſpeaketh,)before the captivity, vity, and partly,during the time of their abode therein. See ch.66. 7, 8.

Thus God had, at divers times, formerly done, Judg. 7. 23. 1 Sam. 14. 20, 2 Chr. 20. 23, and the like he threatens, as to the Egyptians, chap. 19. 2. ſo here, to other the enemies, and oppreſſors of his people, thoſe nations, that had ſerved under the Chaldeans, againſt them, one by another, 2 Kings 24. 2. and the Chaldeans alſo, by factions, and diviſions amongſt themſelves. For Xenophon reporteth, that many of the Chaldeans fell off from the Babylonian King, and joyned themſelves to Cyrus, and were of the forwardeſt, both in the ſurpriſal of the city, and of the Kings Palace eſpecially, where they ſlew him themſelves, and all that were about him. For that which ſome would have to be hereby intimated, of the Babylonians feeding one upon another for famine, during the ſiege of their city, is of no probability; ſince that, as Herodotus reports, they had laid in abundance of victual before, as expecting a far longer ſiege then it proved; and on that very day, wherein the city was taken, they had a great general feaſting, both in publike, and private, through-out the whole city, as thoſe two Writers both record. Verſ. 1. Thus ſaith the Lord] This Chapter, and the next, are not improbably deemed to make one Sermon, ſpent in a conviction of the Jewiſh people, as Authors of their own forlorn condition; together with a juſtification of God and his miniſters, againſt them, ver. 1-9. an exhortation to the godly party, among them, to reſt and rely upon God, in theſe calamitous times; with a ſad damnation to thoſe that truſted to ought elſe. ver. 10, 11. a conſolation and encouragement, by promiſed protection, againſt their enemies power, unto thoſe, that ſo did, Chap. 51. 1-8. a pathetical ſupplication of them, unto God, to manifeſt his power, formerly ſhewed in their delivery, together with a gracious anſwer of God thereunto, ver. 9-16. and a compellation of Gods people thereupon, calling upon them, to raiſe up themſelves, and come out of that deſolate condition, in which they had a long time lain, verſe 17-23.

Where is the bill of your Mothers divorcement, whom I have put away?] The people of the Jews, during the time of their captivity, ſeemed to be in a manner divorced from God, and by God, whom they had been formerly joyned to in marriage, Jer. 3. 8, 14. See cha. 49. 21. Now whereas, among that people, many times, for very frivolous occaſions, men were wont to put away their wives, Matth. 19. 3. but the Law then commanded that a writing, or bill of divorce ſhould be given them, Deut. 24. 1. wherein alſo ſome ſuppoſe but that without ground) that for laying the womans reputation in ſuch caſes, there ſhould, if not, the particular ground of the divorce be declared, yet a clearing of her from any imputation of diſloyalty. But how ſoever it be for the latter, in alluſion to the thing it ſelfe, God here calleth upon this people to produce the bill of divorce, by which he had diſcharged them, and himſelfe of them as implying, that either none ſuch could be produced, for that he had not, in any ſuch manner, put them away; but they had wilfully, of their own accord, one away from him, Chap. 1. 4. Or, if any ſuch were extant, and could be produced, it would thereby appear, that the breach began on their part; that they had rather forſaken him, then he them, and that it was not for any ſlight occaſion, but for their diſloyalty, that they had been caſt off, Ier. 3. 1, 2, 20. Hoſ. 2. 25. For whereas ſome Interpreters would ſo mince the matter, as if the Jewiſh people, though they had been, by God, ſevered, as from bed and boord only for a time, during their deportation, and the deſtruction of the Temple: yet they had not been divorced from him, nor had joyned themſelves in marriage to any other, though they were defiled with many, which therefore nothing hindred, but that they might be received again by God, upon their return. Yet the contrary hereunto appears, both that God had put them away, as by a bill of divorce; and that their carriage had been ſuch, as came within compaſs of that Law, and that God, notwithſtanding as not obliged thereby, nor taking advantage of it, would again receive ſuch, as he had ſo repudiated upon their return, Ier. 3. 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 12, 14. Nor will that hold, which the Jewiſh Doctors have here, that Ieremy ſpeaks of Iſrael, the ten Tribes, that were never to return, or have king again, and are therefore, ſaid to have had a bill of divorce given them; whereas Eſay ſpeaks of Iudah, that were to return from captivity, and to have Meſſias for their King: For return is both proffered, and promiſed, as well to the one, as the other; and Chriſt as a common King to them both Jer. 3. 12. 14. & 31. 1, 4-6. Ezek. 37. 16-25. Hoſ. 3. 4, 5. Yet true it is, that God did never utterly caſt off the whole body of his people, but had his reſerved ones, in all times, among them, Rom. 11. 1-5.

See on Ch. 62. 5. howſoever we take it, the meaning is, that God had not out of any peeviſh, or ſelfiſh humour, caſt off their mother, and them, with her; but for her, and their diſloyal and rebellious carriages, which yet, if they put away repented of, and returned, they might be received, and taken in again, Jerem. 3. 1. 12, 14. It was their obſtinate refuſall to returne to God by repentance, though by his Prophets, oft and earneſtly inviting, and inciting them thereunto, that kept them ſtill in this deplorable plight, ch. 5. 43. 1. & 65. 2. Ier. 5. 3 3, 25. & 8. 6. & 11. 7, 8. Zach. 7. 11. 12.

I came] He came to them, by his Miniſters, and Meſſengers, 2 Cron. 36. 15. Ier. 15. 19. & 35. 14. as to thoſe other, Epheſ. 2. 17. 1 Pet. 3. 20. yea, not by his Servants only, but by his Son, Mat. 21. 34, 37. Joh. 1. 11. unto which coming (but groundleſſly) ſome retorte this.

Is my hand ſhortned, at all, that it cannot redeem? or have I no power to deliver?] Am I not as well able to reſcue and deliver you out of the hands of thoſe, that hold you in thraldome now, as in time paſt? out of Babilon, as out of Egypt? See Chapter 59. 1, 2.

ſhortned at all] Or, any whit ſhortned. Heb. ſhortning ſhortned. See Num. 11. 23.

that it cannot redeem] Or, reſcue: as Pſalm. 107. 2. Heb. from reſcue, or redemption: as, from ſaving, from hearing, chapter 59. 1.

Behold, at my rebuke, I dry up the ſea] Or, with my rebuke, I can dry up the ſea: for the ſe futures, have oft a potential notion in them. See on chap. 49. 15. I am able to do it with a word of my mouth; and to reſcue your fore-fathers from eminent, and imminent deſtruction: I ſometime did it, Exod. 14. 21, 29. chap. 15. 10. He rebuked the red ſea, and it was dryed up, Pſal. 106. 9. for though Gods rebuke be not a verbal, but a real rebuke, yet what therein he doth, he doth it with as much eaſe, as if he did it with a word, he doth, he doth it with as much eaſe, as if he did it with a word, Pſal 76. 6.

I make the rivers a wilderneſs] Or, I can make (as before; to wit, with my rebuke, to be ſupplyed from the former branch, as chap. 47. 9.) the floods (as Pſal. 93. 3. the floods, both of the red ſea, and of Iordan, Ioſh. 2. 10. & 3. 14. though the former principally here intended,) as a wilderneſs: (as dry as waſtes are wont to be) or, as a plain, as eaſie to paſſe, as any plaine ground. See Lam. 5. 9. So Pſal. 107. 33. He turneth floods into a wilderneſſe; and, chap. 42. 15. I will make ſlouds, ſtands, or, dry lands: and chap. 63. 13. He led them through the deep, as an horſe in the wilderneſs, or, on the plain. See chap. 51. 10.

their fiſh ſtinketh, becauſe there is no water, and dyeth for thirſt] The like is intimated, chap. 19. 5-8, 10. Ezek. 29. 4, 5. Hoſ. 4. 3. Zeph. 1. 3.

their fiſh ſtinketh] So when the waters were turned into blood, Exod. 7. 18.

becauſe there is no water] For want of water. Heb. from no water being, as chap. 5. 9. from no Inhabitant being.

dyeth for thirſt] Heb. with thirſt: as Hoſ. 2. 5 See Pſalm. 105. 29.

V. 3. I clothe the heavens with blackneſs, and make ſackcloth their covering] Or, I can clothe (as before, ver. 2.) the heavens with blackneſs. I can cauſe the heavenly bodies to withdraw all their light, as if they were turned into darkneſs, in token of my diſpleaſure, Chapter 13. 10. Ezekiel 32. 7. Joel 2. 31. Amos 5. 8. Mat. 24. 29. and 27. 45. as I did alſo ſometime in Egypt, Exod. 10. 21-23.

make ſackcloth their covering] Make them as blacke, as if they were coveted over with ſackcloth; ſuch ſtuff, as the Kedarn curtains were made of, Canticles 1. 5. and as they uſed to cover themſelves with, in time of ſolemne humiliation and mourning, Pſalm. 35. 9, 10. Jonas 3. 6, 8. So Revelations 6. ——12. The Sun became black, as ſackcloth of hair, as ſackcloth made of goats black hair. Heb. ſack; as chapter 3. 24.

Ver. 4. The Lord God hath given me the tongue of the learned] In the paſſage enſuing, the Prophet maintaineth his own Miniſtery, by relating of Gods furniſhing him with indowments fit for it, and his faithfull diſcharge of his duty therein: and that partly, to juſtifie God himſelfe, of whom before, verſe 2. who had come to them, and called upon them, to reclaime, and reduce them, by no ſorry fely perſon; but ſuch as whom having aſſigned unto that office, he had ſufficiently qualified for the ſame: and who had accordingly applyed themſelves diligently and conſtantly thereunto, notwithſtanding all the obſtructions and oppoſitions they had met with, in the execution thereof: and there was nothing, therefore, wanting on his part, for the bringing of them home a ſine to him, Chapter 5. 4. and withall, to cleer himſelfe, concerning his own carriage in his place, againſt all his oppoſites, corrupt Princes, falſe Prophets, and refractary people, that had bandied together, and bent themſelves joyntly againſt him, uſing him with all ſcorne and contempt: and ſo it hath reference to his former diſcourſe; and partly alſo, to ſtrengthen thereby, the pious, party among them, in firme aſſurance of thoſe gracious promiſes of God, wherewith he was ſent unto them, that his meſſages, concerning them, might be the more efficacious with them, for their conſolation and encouragement: and ſo it looketh forward to what enſueth, verſe 10. Chapter 51. 1, 9, 17. See the like paſſages in the Apoſtle Paul, concerning his Apoſtle-ſhip, Rom. 11. 13. 1 Cor. 4. 1---19. and 9. 1. 2. and 15. 10 2 Cor. 1. 12. and 2. 14---17. and 3. ——and 4. 1, 2. and 5. 20. and 6. 1---10. and 10. and 11. and 12. and 13. 1---10. It is true, that divers Interpreters underſtand all this, as ſpoken in the perſon of Chriſt, and there are divers paſſages, that very fitly agree in to him, and wherecf concerning Eſay, there is no mention, in the holy Story: but as ſome other, of prime note: well obſerved by him, may be ſaid of ſundry particulars, in Pſalm. 22. and 40 and 69. applyed expreſly unto our Saviour Chriſt, in the New Teſtament, Matthew 27. 34, 35, 43, 46. and Heb. 10. 5 ——10. and yet, none make doubt, but that thoſe Pſalmes but as they were by David compoſed; ſo in his own perſon, they concerned him: and that, in all likelihood, in ſome particulars, which yet are not found expreſly recorded in the ſtory of him.

The Lord God] Heb. Adonai Jehovah; the Sovereign ſelf-being; and ſo ver. 5.

hath given me] He, from whom every good gift, and endowment, cometh, Joh. 3. 27. Rom. 12. 3, 6. 1 Cor. 4. 7. and 7. 25. and 12. 4-6 Jam. 1. 17.

me] The Prophet Eſay. See chap. 8. 11. and 49. 1, 2. and Jeſus Chriſt much more, Joh. 3. 34. Col. 2. 3, 9. whom he ſent furniſhed, beyond meaſure with all abilities, requiſite, for information, and conſolation, of his elect.

the tongue of the learned] The word ſignifieth one well skilled in ſpiritual doctrine, in divine truths. Such an one, as our Saviour ſpeaketh of, Mat. 13. 52. for the word there uſed, fitly anſwereth this. See on chap. 8. 16.

that I might know how to ſpeak a word in ſeaſon to him that is weary] Heb. to ſeaſon a word, or, timely, or, ſeaſonably, to deal a word, weary] Heb. to ſeaſon a word, or, timely, or, ſeaſonably, to deal a word, weary] (for the word, me where elſe found, comes from that which ſignifieth time, or, ſeaſon, Eccleſiaſtes. 3. 1. 7. and importeth the timely, or, ſeaſonable, doing of ought;) to the weary, that is, to miniſter a word of comfort and conſolation to a ſoul, that lyeth under heavy preſſures, and is almoſt tired out with them, Chapter 61. 1, 2. Matthew 11. 28. as another Barnabas, a ſon of conſolation, Acts 4. 36. and doe it in due ſeaſon, when it is moſt needfull, and may be moſt advantageous to the poor diſtreſſed Soul. See Proverbs 25. 11. Eccle. 3. 11. Some render it, to him that is thirſty, expounding it, to ſuch as thirſt after knowledge, are deſirous to hear, and learn: but the word ſignifieth, not thirſty, but ſaint, and weary, Pſalm. 107. 5. Chap. 40. 28, 29.

he awakeneth morning by morning] Or, he awakeneth me morning by morning: the pronoun wanting, as chapter 46. 3. or it may be carried on to the next clauſe, he wakeneth or, ſtirreth up, (as Haggai 1. 14. Zacha. 4. 1.) morning by morning, or, morning after morning, (Heb. in the morning, in the morning; that is every morning: as chapter 28. 19.) he ſtirreth up, or, raiſeth up, (I ſay) mine ear (every morning) to hear as the learned. He doth inceſſantly, day after day; and very early, every day, not by fits and ſtarts only ſtir up my ſpirit, and inſtruct me, Pſal. 16. 7. Joh. 5 20. & 8. 28.

he wakeneth mine ear] He ſtirreth up my ſpirit; as Ezra 1. 1. to hear] To liſten, and attend diligently, to what he is pleaſed to diſcloſe unto me, Pſalm. 85. 8. Habbuk. 2. 1. Acts 16. 14. Rev. 2. 7, 11.

as the learned] As Teachers are wont to excite, and ſtir up their Scholers; and Doctors, their Diſciples: and ſo the word of ſtiring up is to be ſupplyed from the former branch; or, as of ſtiring up is to be ſupplyed from the former branch; or, as thoſe that are not learners only; but learned: and that affect, and deſire to be further taught, and more learned, are wont to hearken and attend, and then is the word of hearing, to be thence ſupplyed, as the learned uſe to hear. The word firſt, and properly, ſignifieth one taught; in the next place, one learned. See chap. 8. 16. & 54. 13.

V. 5. The Lord God] As before, ver. 4.

hath opened mine ear] Or, opened mine ear; to wit, then, when, he called me to this office, as he touched my tongue then, to refine it, and thereby to enable me, to speak in fit, and due manner to his people, chap. 6.7. Jer. 1.9. & 15.19. So he opened mine ear also, to hearken to him, to receive the Word from him, as chap. 35.5. and to be dutiful and obedient to him, in whatsoever he should require of me, or let me about, as Jer. 1.7. for hearing, in these, and the like phrases, implyeth as well obedience, as attention, 1 Sam. 15.22, 23. Pfal. 81.8, 11, 13. See somewhat the like, of David, and of Christ, Pfal. 40.6. though the word there used, be divers from this, and, by some deemed to look another way. But of Christs obedience to God his Father, See Luk. 2.49. Joh. 4.34. & 5, 19, 36. and 6.38. & 8.26. 29 & 12.49, 50. Phil. 2.7, 8. Heb. 5.8. of persons disposed the contrary way, Pfal. 58.4, 5. chap. 28.11, 12. & 30.9. and 32.15. & 42.18. 20. Jer. 6.10. Zach. 7.11. Act. 7.51, 57.

and I was not rebellious, neither turned away back] Or, I was not disobedient, (as Pfal. 105.28.) nor turned backward, Pfal. 44. 18. I did neither hang back, (as Moses sometime, Exod. 3.11, 13. and 4.1, 10, 13.) nor refuse to go, when God sent me, as Jonas, Jon. 1. 3. but offered my self freely, and readily, to his call: nor did I afterward flinch, or shrink back, for any opposition, or evil usage, I met with: as Jeremy sometime, Jer. 20.7. 9. See chap. 6.8. See also of David, and of Christ. Pfal. 40.7, 8. Joh. 14.31. Phil. 2.8. Heb. 10.5. of Paul, Act. 26.19 Gal. 1.15, 16.

V. 6. I gave my back to the smiters, and my cheeks to them, that plucked off my heir:] How these particular evil usages were by Esay endured, no story informs us: yet that he did undergo much opprobrious usage, and many affronts, in the profession of his Prophetical employment, from the prophane great ones of the times, under Ahaz especially, there need no great doubt be made. See chap. 28. 14. But of our Saviour, we have expreſs and pregnant relations of what in this kinde he endured, Mat. 26.27. & 27.26. Luk. 22. 63, 64. Joh. 18.22. See on ver. 4.

my cheek] Job 16.10. Lam. 3.30. Mic. 5.1.

plucked off the hair] To wit of the beard, Ezr. 9.2. which doth cloth the cheeks alſo, as well as the chin; for tough the word hair, be not expreſſed in the original, which hath reference only to the pluckers off: yet the word doth properly and peculiarly, ſignifie a plucking off of hair; and is well, therefore ſo rendred, both here, and Neh. 13.25.

I hid my not face from ſhame, and ſpitting ſhame] for, ſhameful and opprobrious uſage, Mic 2.6.

ſpitting] Heb ſpittle, Job 7.19. See Num. 12.14. Luk. 18.32. Job 30.10. a practice uſed, as well in way of deteſtation, as of contempt, Mat. 26.47 & 27.30. Mar. 14.65.

V. 7. For the Lord God will help me] Or, but, or, Yet, the Lord, or, Sovereign, Jehovah as before, ver. 4, 5. and again, ver. 9. Heb. And: as chap. 42.25. His encouragement to perſevere, from aſſurance of God, aſſiſtance. So ver. 9. See the like, Pſal. 118.7. Jer. 15.16 chap. 42.10. 13. 14.

therefore ſhall I not be confounded] Or, aſhamed; as chap. 54. 4. Jer. 2.36 & 8.12. for it is the ſame word, in notion, and notation, with that which was rendered ſhame before ver. 7. and hath reference thereunto; as if he had ſaid, their ſhameful uſage of me, ſhall never ſhame me, ſhall never make me aſhamed. See Act. 5.41.

therefore have I ſet my face, as a flint] A form of ſpeech, noting extream obſtinacy in them, Jer. 5.3. Zach. 7.12. fetled and fixed conſtancy in others, Ezek. 3, 8, 9. and ſo here.

and I know that I ſhall not be aſhamed] Or, bluſh: which comes neer to the Hebrew term here uſed; in notion the ſame with the former. See, Pſal. 25.2, 3. & 119.6. Chap. 29 22.

V. 8. He is neer, that juſtifieth me] God is ready to juſtifie me, by approving my miſſion, and his acceptance of mine employments, againſt thoſe that oppoſe my Miniſtery, and traduce me, as a falſe Prophet, as many did Paul, for a counterfeit Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 4. 2, 3 2 Cor. 13.6, 7. for ſo the word, much miſtaken by many, doth there properly ſignifie. This ſome underſtand of Chriſt, according to thoſe places, Joh. 16.10. 1 Tim. 3.16. See chap. 49.4. Others, becauſe of the Apoſtles, either allegation or alluſion rather, to it, Rom. 8.33, 34. underſtand it as ſpoken in the perſon of Gods people in general; as Chap. 29.22. & 41.10-14. & 42.24, 25. & 46.13. and 49.25. & 54.19. where the ſame things, in effect, here ſpoken, are applyed unto the body of that people. But the Apoſtles manner is, to enlarge the promiſes of God, made to ſome particular perſons, as to Jacob, Joſhua, David, and others, Gen. 28.15. Joſh 1.5. Pſa 23.1 extending them unto all the faithful in general, as having a joynt intereſt therein with them Heb. 13.5, 6 & the Apoſtles argument borrowed hence, ſtands firm and good, in general, that whom God juſtifies, it is in vain for any man to attaint, or condemn.

who will contend with me] Enter plea againſt me, or implead me, Chap. 49.25. & 54.17.

let us ſtand together: As the accuſer, or plaintiff, and the defendant, ſuch as have ſuits in Law, one with another, are wont to do before the Judge. Exod. 22.9. Deut. 19 17.

who is mine adverſary?] as ſome render it the maſter, or, owner of my cauſe or, of my judgment: but rather, my maſter, or, owner of ſuit: judgment, for, cauſe, or Law ſuit, as, 2 Cron. 6. 35. Job 9. 19. and Maſter, or Owner of ſuit, for one that judgs; as maſter or owner of buſineſs, for, one that hath buſineſs, Exod. 24.14. and, my maſter, or owner of ſuit, for, one that hath any ſuit againſt me: mine Impleader, or he that entereth any action againſt me; ſo, thy own men of ſhifts, Jer. 37. they that ſtrive with thee, Chapter 41. 11.

let him come neer to me.] Let him joyn iſſue with me; as Chap. 41. 1.

V. 9. Behold, the Lord God will help me:] as ver. 7.

who is he, that ſhall condemn me?] Or, who is it, that ſhall, or, can condemn me? Heb. make me guilty, convince, or condemn me, as guilty, Deut. 25. 1. Prov. 17.15. Rom. 8.34. the pronoun, for the verb, ſubſtantive, as Eeclel. 1.10, chapter. 50. 1. the relative wanting, as 49.25. and the future in a potential notion, as verſe 2.

Lo, they ſhall all wax old as a garment;] All mine oppoſites ſhall be worn out; I ſhall ſurvive to out-wear them, to ſee an end of them, a proverbial form of ſpeech, Pſal. 120 26. chap. 51.6. Heb. 1.11. a garment, for an old or over-worn-garment; ſuch, as Joſh. 9.4, 5. Je. 38.11. or a moth-eaten garment; as the next clauſe implyeth, a deſtroſt of the adjunct, as chap. 1.18. & 5.6. wax old, that is, be conſumed, or waſted, as Pſal. 32.3. or, periſh; as it is expounded, Pſal. 102. 26. So chap. 41. 11. thoſe that contend with thee, ſhall periſh.

V. 10. who is among you that feareth the Lord,] He turneth his ſpeech from thoſe obſtinate and oppoſite ones, to the pious and obedient, as endeavouring to ſupport & ſuſtain them amidſt the common calamities, that were to befal the Nation: ſo withal implying the ſmall number of ſuch among them. So Pſal. 25.12. & 90.11. chap. 53.1. Joh. 12.37, 38.

that obeyeth the voice of his ſervant,] Heb that heareth: but to hear, for to obey. See on ver. 4. that yeeldeth obedience to the word of his Servant; Chriſt, as ſome, chap. 42.1. & 53.11. ſpeaking either by himſelf, Luk. 4.18, 21, 22. Heb. 1.1, 2. Or, by his Miniſters, Luk. 10.16. 2 Cor. 5.20, and 13.3. Eph. 2.17. or, as others, the Prophet Eſay himſelf, ſent by God, to enform, and inſtruct, his people, and to acquaint them with his Will, chap. 44. 26. A note of one that ſincerely feareth God, as to tremble at his Word, chap. 66.2. ſo to yeeld obedience thereunto, Eeclel. 12.13.

that walketh in darkneſs, and hath no light?] Heb. no ſhine, as Amos 5.20. no light ſhining (as Prov. 4.18.) upon him, or into him; as a man in a dungeon, where no glimpſe of light ſtriketh in. to walk in darkneſs, is ſometime to live in wickedneſs, 1 Joh. 1.6. and ſo the Jewiſh Commenters, ſome of them, here underſtand it; as if it were ſaid, yet that walk in blinde paths, and take wicked courſes, return to God, and truſt in him: ſometime to live in miſery and diſtreſs, Pſal. 23.4. and ſo rather here; as other of them alſo much better, and moſt of the beſt with us; that is, in the great eſt depth of miſery and calamity that may be without any means of relief or comfort. So are light and darkneſs often uſed, Pſal. 18.28. and 112.4. Chap. 9.1, 2. See Chap. 8.22. & 9.19. Amos 5. Some obſerving the Hebrew pauſes, end the demand at the foregoing branch, where the midling ſtop ſtandeth in the original; & joyning this limb to the next following, read the words thus; Let him that walk th in darkneſs, having no light, truſt in the Lord. or, he that walketh in darkneſs, &c. let him truſt in the Lord; which comes all to one; Let ſuch as you, or ſo many of you, as are in ſtraights and diſficulties, as well as others, partaking with the reſt, in the common calamities of the times.

let him truſt in the name of the Lord; Let him live by faith, & ſuſtain himſelf by confidence in, & aſſurance of, Gods powerful protection; who is able to draw light out of darkneſs, to give light in darkneſs, to turn darkneſs into light, & to bring out of darkneſs into the light; to give inward joy & comfort amids all calamities, to ſupport and ſuſtain under all heavy preſſures, and to deliver out of all diſtreſſes, Gen. 1.2, 3 Exod. 10.22, 23. Eſth. 3.15. & 4.3. & 8.16, 17. Pſal. 18.28. 11.3, 4, 7. chap. 9.2. & 49.9. & 2. Luk. 1 79, 60 2 Cor. 4.6. See 1 Sam. 30.6. Hab. 2.4. & 3.17, 18. Heb. 10.38.

and ſtay upon his God] As a man ſtayeth up himſelf with a ſtaff, that he reſteth upon for ſupport, Pſal. 18.18. & 23.4. chap. 10.20. (for thence is the metaphor taken. See chap. 3.1. & 36.6.) ſo let him rely, and reſt himſelf upon his God, whom he cleaveth cloſe, and continueth loyal unto, (Deut. 4.3, 4. & 26, 17, 19. chap. 28.16. Pſal. 73.25, 26.) by conſtant dependance upon him, ſtaying up, and ſupporting himſelf from ſinking down, and fainting away through incredulity and deſpair, Pſal. 27. 13. So may ſuch, and ſuch only, boldly doe, their expectation never failing them, Pſal. 125. 1, 2. chap. 28.16. & 49.23. their ſincere confidence in God being here oppoſed, as well to the folly and vanity of thoſe that withdraw themſelves from God, and truſt to other ſtays, Jer. 17.5, 6. Jon. 2.8. ver. 11. as alſo to the groundleſs preſumption of ſuch, as promiſe to themſelves protection and ſafeguard from him, while they carry themſelvs diſloyally, and rebelliouſly towards him, chap. 48.1, 2. Jer. 7.8-10.

V. 11. Behold all ye that kindle a fire,] The expoſitions of this paſſage, are ſo numerous, and ſo various, that it would be overlong to relate relate, and much more to diſcuſs them all. I will pitch only upon one or two of the principal, and moſt probable. By the fire therein mentioned, ſome underſtand the fire of Gods wrath, which fore here mentioned, ſome underſtand the fire of Gods wrath, which wicked perſons, and obſtinate wretches, do incenſe againſt themſelves by their ſins. So ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, and moſt of our's alſo, pointing us to thoſe places, Deut. 32.22. Jer. 15.14 & 17. 4. But others, rather, underſtand by it ſuch other means of light, ſupport, relief, and comfort, as the wicked Worldlings of thoſe times uſed to reſt upon, for their ſuccour and ſafeguard, in, and againſt thoſe evils and calamities, that were denounced againſt them and the State, by the Prophet. See ch. 28.15. & 30.7, 12, 15, 16. for to theſe, the Prophets oppoſites, that ſcorned Gods Word, and refuſed to hear it, or yeeld obedience unto it, chap. 28.12, 14. & 30.9, 12. doth the Prophet here direct his ſpeech. So in the word, here, is an alluſion, not to ſuch a fire, as burns and conſumes; as ch. 9.18. & 26.11. but to ſuch a fire, as men kindle in cold, wet, and winter weather, to warm, relieve, comfort, and cherish themſelves with, ch. 44.16. Jer. 36.22. Joh. 18.18. Act. 28.2. See the like alluſion, ch. 47.14.

that compaſs your ſelves about with ſparks] Heb. girders on of ſparks or brands that begirt your ſelves with them; as ſome are ſaid to gird on ſtrength, or to begirt themſelves with ſtrength, 1 Sam. 2.4. Moſt render the word, here uſed, ſharpe, and ſuppoſe an alluſion to ſuch ſparklings, as upon collifion of ſteel and ſtone, are wont to flye out; or, to ſuch ſparkles as are wont to flye about folk, upon the blowing up of brands: no unfit reſemblance of ſuch, as by their rebellious provocation, ſo incenſe and blow up the fire of Gods wrath, that the ſparks fly about their ears. See chap. 24.24, 25: and this way may that token to encline, that in Chaldee, and Syriack, a word from this deduced, is deemed to ſignifie, ſparks, in the Paraphraſe, on Exod. 24. 18. and on Hab. 3.4. in which latter place, yet it ſeems rather to import ſuch conſultations, or flaſhes of light, as is thoot out of the clouds, ſomewhat like unto horns, for ſo the Hebrew word there uſed ſignifies, as alſo a Greek and Latine, correſpondent thereunto, whence ſome ambiguous verſions, and fabulous conſtructions of them, Exod. 34.29. But to let that paſs, the word is falſ here uſed ſeemeth rather to ſignifie brands, then ſparks: It is no where elſe found in Scripture, ſave here, and Prov. 26.18. where it is well rendred in the text, fire-brands, not ſo well in the margent flames, or ſparks; for ſuch as play the mad men, or make themſelves mad, (that is, fain themſelves ſuch; as make thy ſelf ſick, that is, fain thy ſelf to be ſo, 2 Sam. 13.5. for of ſuch the wiſe-man there ſpeaks) are not wont to fling flame, and ſparks, but to caſt fire-brands about. And the Chaldee there rendreth it, torches, or tapers, as alſo one of the Jewiſh Criticks upon this place enformeth us, that the term is uſed for ſuch parcels of wood, or coal, as being fixed at one end, were out of Engines diſcharged in fight again the enemy, or ſhot into places beſieged; the uſe of guns, and gun-powder being in his times, and long after, in thoſe parts of the world, at leaſt unknown. And it ſeems therefore to be a term parallel to that other ellewhere uſed, that ſignifies, a fire-brand, Judg. 15.4. Amos 4.11. Thoſe thirſts, therefore, and ſeeches, which theſe prophane wretches relyed upon, and from whence they promiſed ſufficient warmth of relief, comfort, yea, and ſafety to themſelves, being on every ſide threwith begirt, the Prophet compares unto brands, that ſhould afford them little heat, or light, but ſmoke enough, to vex and choak them with. See ch. 7.4.

walk in the light of your fire, and of the ſparks, which ye have kindled] Brands here again, not Sparks: for men uſe not to kindle ſparks, though upon kindling of fire ſpaks in brands, eſpecially are wont to flye about. Some, becauſe the former word here uſed, is ſometime uſed for a furnace, or a flame. (See chap. 31. 9.) would have it rendred, Go into the furnace, or flame of the fire, ye have kindled, as foretelling, that thereby they ſhould be conſumed, to wit, by the fire of Gods wrath, which themſelves had kindled, & heated, as an oven, to conſume themſelves, Pſal. 21.9. But I ſuppoſe rather that the Prophet, in way of deriſion, will have them to make triall, when time ſhall be and need requires, what light of comfort their own fire, with all the muſter of brands kindled by them, and ſet about them, will be able to afford them. See v. 10. no, the light of the wicked ſhall be put out in darkneſs, and go away in a ſtilling ſtench, Job 18, 5, 6. & 21.17. Prov. 20.20. & 24.20. a deſect of the relative, as ch. 49. 15.

Thus ſhall ye have of mine hand] This take from me Gods meſſenger, that ſhow ſpeak unto you, hand, for miniſtery, as Mal. 1.1. Or, as moſt take it, ſpoken in the perſon of God which ſome therefore read as in the preſent tenſe, Thus is nato you from mine hand, that is, this obſecation of mind, and obdouration of heart, is, through my juſt judgment, for your former obſtinacy, befallen you, ch. 6.10 & 29.10. Mat. 13.14. But others, rather, in the future, as our verſion gives it, this that I now tell you, ſhall, in concluſion, befall you, whatſoever you now fondly flatter your ſelves with, Chapter. 28. 15 17 18.

ye ſhall lye down in ſorrow] Yet that have refuſed to walk in the light of Gods fav ur. Pſal. 89 15. and in obedience to his Word that holy fire, that affords both light and heat, Pſ. 119. 105. 92. 93. Joh. 24. 32. Joh. 12. 35, 36. ſhall, notwithſtanding all the fire that ye kindle, and vain lights that ye fet up for your ſelves, wander in the dark, and meet with nothing but perplexity and confuſion in the end, Pſal. 16.4. Chap. 8.21, 22. & 59.9, 10. 14. Jeremy. 13. 16.

ly down in ſorrow] A metaphor from an uneaſie bed, whereon, one that made account to eaſe and reſreſh himſelf, findes nothing but diſeaſe and pain, and is in no eaſe at all, by reaſon of the uneaſineſs of it, then he was before he betook himſelf to it, Job 7.3, 4 13-15. Chap. 28.19, 20. or, to bed clothes, wherein a man lies enfolded, and wrapt up over head and ears. So Jer 3.25. we lye down in our ſhame, and our confuſion covereth us, and 1 Eſdr. 5.19. the whole world lyeth down in evil. Howbeit, ſome, both of the Jewiſh Commenters, and Others, conceive in it, an intimation of death and deſtruction, becauſe of decerſe the word is oft uſed, Gen 47.30. 1 King. 2.10. Job 7.21. ch. 14.8.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. ¶ Hearken to me ye that follow after righteouſneſs, ye that ſeek the Lord] The Prophet returns here, to comfort and encourage the godly party again, endeavour to keep them from being diſmayd, and diſcouraged, either by the conſideration of their own fewnels and feebleneſs, ver. 2, 3, or by the apprehenſion of the ſuppoſed might, together with the joynt malice, and multitude of the adverſe party v. 4. 8.

Hearken to me] As ch. 41.1. & 44.1. & 49.1.

ye that follow after righteouſneſs] Heb. purſuers of righteouſneſs; as, purſuers of miſchief, Pſal. 119.150 that continue conſtant in the ſerious and ſedulous practice of holineſs, and right ouſneſs. Prov. 21. 21 or, as ſome, that ſeek right eouſneſs by faith in Chriſt, Rom. 9.31, 32. but the former here rather, as alſo, ch. 56.1, 2. Mat. 5.20 & 6. 33. there ſeems in the phraſe a metaphor, either from a worldly mans eagerneſs, in following the world, in ſome gainful trade, whereof, he never hath enough, Eccl. 5.10. or, the inſtancy of hunſtmen, or military perſons, in purſuit of their foe, or prey, 2 Sam. 2.19, So Pſal. 37.15. ch. 1.22. Heb. 12.14.

that ſeek the Lord] The Character of a true Iſraelite, Pſ. 24.6. See ch. 55.6. Zeph. 2.3.

look unto the rock, whence ye are hewen] Or, were hewen, rather. Abraham and Sarah, from whom, they came, as ſtones cut out of a rock, or digged out of a quarrey; Dan. 2.34. Some would have Abraham here termed a rock, as a dead, and dry, rocky ſubſtance, unfit to yeeld iſſue, Rom. 4.19. Others, for the firmneſs of his faith, Gen. 15.6. Rom. 4.3, 18-22. as Peter was a rock, or a ſtone, Mat. 10. 2. & 16.18. John 1.42. Neither ſeems neceſſary, and the latter of the twain the leſs: as not ſeeming at all, in this reſemblance, to be regarded: Since that it is not the firmneſs of Abrahams faith, that is here propounded for imitation, but the barenels, and barrenneſſe of him, and his wife, in regard of iſſue, and the improbability, yea, in humane apprehenſion, impoſſibility, of attaining to any increaſe in that kind; ſuch muſt leſs, as after ward iſſued from them: not what Abraham upon Gods Word believed, but what God did for Abraham, ver. 2. and to the hole of the pit, whence ye were digged] Or, to the hollow of the ciſtern: whence ye were digged, Jer. 2.13. to Sarah, and to her womb, deemed as dead, and utterly diſabled unto iſſue, Gen. 11.30. & 16.1. & 18.11, 12. Rom. 4.19. (for from the word here uſed, hath a woman her name in Hebrew; and to a well, or ciſtern, is the wife compared, Prov. 5.15.) untill God, beyond the courſe, or power of nature, opened her womb, as he did that hollow place in Lehi, Jud. 15.19. & gave her power to conceive iſſue, Heb. 11.11. There is a want of the relative, either pronoun, or adverb, as wel in this branch as in the former alſo.

V. 2. Look unto Abraham your father, and unto Sarah, that bare you] The explication of the former words, in plainer termes: a want again of the relative, in the latter branch; as ch. 50.11.

Abraham] The name then given him, when a large iſſue was promiſed him: at which time, with an enlargement, he was by God him ſelf, ſo named; as the father of a great multitude: whereas he was called Abram only, as an high, or lofty father, before, Geneſis 17. 5.

your father] Theirs in a more ſpecial manner, becauſe deſcended from him, both by Iſaac, in whom his ſeed was to be reckoned, Gen. 17.21. & 21.12. and by Jacob, to whom the birth-right, and bleſſing was devolved from Eſau, Gen. 25.33, 34. & 27.29, 30. 33, 35, 36. and was, through him, derived unto all his poſterity, Gen. 49. Exod 24. 4. & 27.11, 31. Deut. 32. Otherwiſe, there were divers nations alſo beſides the Iſraelites, of the lineage of Abraham; as the Iſmaelites, the Edomites, and others. See Geneſis. 17. 20. & 21. 13. and 25.2, 4, 12, 18. and 36. and of him, therefore, as more peculiarly their father, did the Jews much vaunt, Mat. 3.9. John. 8. 33-39.

Sarah] The name likewiſe given her, at the ſame time with Abrahams; ſignifying a Lady, or Princeſſe, without limitation, or reſtriction, at large: whereas the was formerly called Sarai, ſignifying my Lady, or my Princeſſe, as with a relation to Abram, her husband, and Lord, or Prince, alone: for the Hebrews, the other, Gen 23.6. her Lordſhip or Princeſſe-dom, being now to be enlarged, Gen 17.15, 16 that bare you] the word implies the pain of breeding, and birth; in Rebecca more remarkable, Gen. 25. 22. the ſame word is found, Psal.51.5.that have you; not immediately but mediately,in Haac to Abraham, Gen.17.21.a defect of the relative, as before Ver.1. Chap.47.11.

for I called him alone] Or, how I called him alone: as the particle is used, Exod.19.4. Psal.119.159. Chap.66.14. Lam.1.9. or, how,what,he was but one, i called him. Heb,when one, I called him: one, for, one only, or, but one, as Deut.6.4. Zach.14.9.one only, or, a lone man: because though married, yet childless; and in regard of issue, as wife-less: the being barren, and aged, in course of nature past childing, and not without issue only, but past hope of any by her, Gen.15.2.& 16.1. See Ezek. 33.24. and above, on ver.2.

and blessed him, and increased him. Gods blessing is no verbal, but a real blessing: the bestowing of a blessing. So Gen. 1.28. and 9.1. and this blessing of multiplication, and encrease, was more specially though, among many other blessings, conferred upon Abraham, Gen. 12.2,3. & 15.5. & 17.2. & 18.18.& 22.17, 18. here pointed to,as picked out of the whole heap,to strengthen the faith of Gods people, against the conceit and apprehension of their paucity, and imbecility, by setting before their eyes, a pregnant pattern of Gods power, able to raise up, of one, and that one, not a decayed only,but, in some sort, as a dead one, an illue for multitude, like the stars of the sky, and sands of the sea, beyond number, Heb. 11.12. and no less able, therefore, to do the like also for them. See Chapter 49.19-21. Jer. 31. 27. Ezek. 37. 11-14,26.

V. 3. For the Lord shall comfort Zion, he will comfort all her waste places] God can doe, and will do as much for his Church, as he formerly did for Abraham.

shall comfort Zion] Or, will, as in the next branch.

comfort Zion] He will comfort his people; (so is Zion taken, Chap.1.27. & 49.14.) not by speaking only comfortably to them, Chap. 40.1. Hos. 2.14. but by relieving, and refreshing of them, chap.12.1.& 40.13.& 54.9.

he will comfort all her waste places] Or, wastes, Chap.49.19. By restoring the ruined City, and there to her wonted beauty and luster again, chap 49.8.& 54.3.& 58.11.

and he will make her wilderneſs like Eden] He will raise her up to a flouriſhing eſtate, and make her land,as pleaſant and plentiful,as Paradiſe; called Eden, for the daintineſs and delightfulneſs of it, Gen. 2. 8, 9. & 13. 10. Ezek. 36, 35. See on Chapter 4.2. and 35. 1.

and her deſart] Or, champion, as Iosh.11.2.& 12.3.

like the Garden of the Lord] as a Garden of God: that is, a moſt excellent one: as mountaines of God, for, goodly great mountaines, Pſal.36.6. and cedars of God, for, goodly tall cedars, Pſal.104.16. and,an hoſt of God,for,a mighty great hoſt, 1 Chr. 12.22. or, as the garden of Eden,(the ſame thing in other terms,) ſo called, Gen.13. 10. Ezek.28.13. becauſe of Gods own planting, Gen.2.8. See chap. 60.21. & 61.3.

joy and gladneſs ſhall be found therein, thankſgiving and the voice of melody] So Ier. 33.11. See chap.35.10.

ſhall be found there] Or, ſhall be there: as Eſt.1.5. chap.35.9.

V. 4. Hearken unto me, O my people: and give ear unto me, O my Nation] My peculiar people, whom, from all other Nations, I have ſet apart, and ſingled out for my ſelf, Exod.19.5. Deut.7.6. See Chap. 28.23 & 44.1.

for a law ſhall proceed from me]as a Law ſometime proceeded from me in mount Sinai, Deut.33.2. to a ſecond Law, in the doctrine of the Goſpel, not for the reſtitution of my Church, among you only, but for the information, and direction of other people alſo, ſhall hereafter go abroad from me, chap.2.3. Pſal.110.2.

and I will make my judgment to reſt for a light of the people.] The judgment, here ſpoken of, is no other, then the Law, or, Doctrine before mentioned. For, Law, Doctrine, Judgment, word, Precept Statute, are words promiſcuouſly uſed oft one for another. See Pſa.19.7,8,9 and Pſal. 119. throughout.

make to reſt] So ſome render it, that is, I will ſettle it, there; to wit, in my Church: becauſe the word ſignifieth ſometime to reſt, Ch.34.14. Ier.50.34. Others,I will ſuddenly execute my judgment. I will ſpeedily do,what I now ſpeak: becauſe this ſtock hath oft-times a notion of ſuddenneſs. Ier. 4.20. & 18.7. ſee ver.5. and others again, becauſe it ſignifieth ſometime to breake: as Job 7. 5. render it, I will cauſe my judgement, that is, my Doctrine, to break forth; as light is ſaid to breake out. See Pſal.119.130. Hoſ.6.5.& though this ſeem not altogether improbable, yet becauſe that uſe of the word ſeemeth not ſo cleer, I go rather with the firſt. For the Jewiſh Doctors here ſeem to run counter to the text; as if the meaning were, that God would cauſe his people to reſt a while, while he executed judgment upon the Gentiles; as Chapter 26.20. Ier. 50. 34.

for the light of the people] Heb. peoples: as Pſal. 117.1. to illighten their minds with the ſaving knowledge of Gods truth, Hal 19. 7,8.& 119.103,130. Prov. 6,23. 2 Cor. 4.6. Rev 1.20. See chap. 49. 6.

V. 5. My righteouſneſs is neer] The time appointed,of accompliſhing my promiſe,in the deliverance of my people,chap.1.27. and 28. 13. and 56 1. an effect of my faithfulneſs, and righteouſneſs, 2 Theſſ. 1.6. 2 Theſſ. 1.6,7. Heb 6.9,10 1 Joh. 1.9. See chap. 13.22. they force it evermuch,that would have it, my righteouſneſs, that is, my righteous one: applying it to Cyrus; as moſt do, as forcedly expounding the like of Abraham, Chap.41.2.

my ſalvation is gone forth] The decree is gone out for my peoples deliverance, which ſhall ſpeedily be accompliſhed either as having reſpect unto Gods purpoſe reckoned of the Prophet, and by him to his people, chap. 14.24-27. or to Cyrus his Edict, as ready to go out,or gone out already, Ezr.1.1,2. See Chapter 13,22. and 43. 19.

and mine armes ſhall judge the people:] Heb. peoples: as verſe 4. Armes, in the plural, to intimate the greatneſs of Gods power, and the large extent of the exerciſe thereof; either in the ſubduing and taking vengeance of thoſe that had been enemies to his Church, and oppreſſors of his people, chap. 25.10,11,12.and 32.2.8. and 49.25,26. or in the managing of his Church,and the Nations, out of all parts gathered into it, chap.2.4. See ch. 59.16.

the Iles ſhall wait upon me] Or, Iſlands, countries; even thoſe about, and beyond the Sea: as Chap. 49. 1. See Chap. 42.4. and 60.9.

and on mine arm ſhall they truſt] On his power and might, manifeſted, in the execution of judgment upon the enemies of his people, and in the reſcuing of them, out of their hands, chap.52. 10.& 59.16,19.Pſal.98.1,2.or,on his Word,and Goſpel,by which, having ſubdued them, and brought them in to himſelfe, he ſhall, alſo, as by his mighty arm, and powerful ſcepter, rule and reign in the midſt of them, chap.53.1. in like manner] That is, as ſmoke, or old rotten rags, the matters before mentioned: ſo Interpreters generally; taking the term here uſed, for a note of ſimilitude: as uſually it is, Pſal.1.4. chap.16.6. But a late learned Annotator renders it, as a louſe; taking it for a noun, (for a note of ſimilitude there is here beſides) whoſe plural is found, Exod. 8.16,17,18. and the words of the text do not only well bear it, but ſeem even to require it. See ſomewhat the like,Pſ. 39.11. as a louſe, for, as any ſorry deſpicable vermin.

V. 9. Awake, awake,] This is ſpoken either in the perſon of Gods people, or by the Prophet himſelf, moving in their behalf.

Awake, awake,] Or, Ariſe, ariſe; raiſe and rouz up thy ſelf, ſo ver.17. chap.52.1.So alſo Ier.6.22. & 25.32. becauſe the term of awaking, ſeems not to ſuit ſo well with the arm. Yet according to the like,of tongues, lute, and harpe, Pſal. 56.8. & 108.3. it may be retained, and the ſenſe of it applyed unto God, whoſe arm is his power, Art not thou it that hath cut Rahab] Or, that did cut, or hewe Rahab t that by Rahab is meant Egypt, ſo far as I know, no doubt is made. But how Egypt came to be ſo termed, ſome altogether ſo generally agreed. Moſt are of opinion, that from her pride, and power pretended,at leaſt,(c.30.2,3.7.)that name was given her. See Ezek.30.6.and the word may well import, either. See Iob 9.13. Pſalm.90.13. Howbeit, a learned Author conceiveth Egypt to be ſo termed, from the horne, or form,of the lower part of that country, which the River Nilus, having with one entire ſtream attained unto, doth at the head thereof, where it is ſharpeſt and narroweſt, divide it ſelf into two main channels; and ſo ſhooting down on either ſide of the land, growing wider and wider, encloſeth in it that manner, till it arrive at the Sea, that it makes it to be of a pyramidal, or triangular form, with the point upward,and the baſe beneath, to the Sea-ward. Hence the Greek term this part of Egypt,Delta,becauſe it had the ſhape of their D. thus drawn Δ, and the Egyptians themſelves called it Kiph, or Rib, by a word that ſignifieth a pear, the faſhion whereof it bare: whence the head city of the middleſt canton, within that Iland, was named Athribis, which ſignifieth,the heart of a pear,and ſome late Authors,alſo,make mention of the name Eeriſf, with the Arabick article preſixed. Rib and Rahab therefore he holdeth to be all one; as Nahal, and Nilus. And theſe things, indeed, carry ſome good ſhew of probability with them. Howbeit, it may be doubted, whether this Kiſ, or Rib,for a pear, be an home-bred Egyptian word or no. For it may not, without ſome good ground, be ſuſpected, that as the Arabian Phil, or Pil, and with their article Elphil, for an Elephant, ſprunge, as moſt learned deem, either from the Hebrew Eleph, for an Ox, or the Greeks and Latines, Elephas, reciſed and reverſed; ſo that this Egyptian Rib, or Riph, for a pear, was taken from the Latine Pyrum. The Latine termination being cut off, and the term it ſelf inverted; that which the rather may be ſuppoſed; becauſe in thoſe pieces of the Egyptian language, which learned men have of late acquainted us with, words, as well Latine, as Greek, are found not a few. And the Arabian Eeriſf, may more juſtly be deemed to deſcend from the Hebrew Rahab, then the Hebrew Rahab to have ſtowen from it, as Nilus, from Nahal, not Nahal from it. I ſhould therefore rather encline to the received notation of this name, given unto Egypt, being a proud and potent State, from a ready Hebrew originall; then to one ſo far fetcht about, from grounds, neither of any great certainty, nor of approved antiquity;and appliable,in compariſon, but to a ſmal part of the country.

and wounded the dragon] Or, diſtt thrutt thorow, (as the word properly ſignifieth See Chapter 2. 19. and 5.12.)Or,ſlay, (as it is well rendred, Ezek. 28.9. and 32. 26. and would alſo be here,the whale. (See chap.27.1.)Pharao,Pſ.74.14.ſo termed, in regard of the ſtreams of the River Nilus, amidſt which, his abode was, and the neighbourhood of the Sea.See Ezek.29. 3.& 32.2.

V.10. Art not thou it which hath dried the Sea, the waters of the great deep]Or,which did dry the Sea:as before,v.9. the red-ſea,Exo. 14.21.ch.50.2.

that hath made the depth of the Sea,away for the ranſomed to paſs over ?] Or, didſt make the deeps or deep places (as walles, for waſte places, verſe 3. ſo alſo, Pſalm 69. 2.) of the Sea, a way for the reſcued ones, (as Pſalm 107.2. thoſe that be not only delivered out of Egypt;but reſcued alſo from the hand of Pharao,who purſued them with the ſword, and was ready to ſeize upon them,Exod.14.10.23.& 15.9.)to paſs by,or paſs through,Exo.14.22. ch.43.18.& 63. 11-13.

V.11.Therefore the redeemed of the Lord ſhall return, and come with ſinging unto Zion] Or, So,in like manner. Heb. And; but ſo alſo is the copulative oft uſed, Prov. 26.7 chap.41.7.) the Lords reſcued ones ſhall come again unto Sion, with ſong. V. 12. I, even I, am he that comforteth you] See verſe 3. the word is, for the greater emphaſis, redoubled, as Chapter. 43.25.

who are thou, that thou ſhouldeſt be afraid of a man that ſhall die; and of the ſon of man, that ſhall be made as graſs] A ſecret reproof of them, that having the immortal, and almighty God,to their Protector and Saviour, ſhould be afraid of a frail mortal man, ch.2.22. Mat.10.28.v.7, 8.

ſhall be made as graſſe] Or, ſhall become graſſe, or made like hay: but there is an emphaſis, in the omiſſion of the note of ſimilitude, as Chapter 40. 6. Pſalm 37.3.and 90.5,6. Heb. ſhall be given graſs, or hay: but the word of giving, ſignifies oftentimes to make, Num.14.4.Neh.13.26, Jer.5.14. and, to be made, for to become.

V.13. And forgetteſt the Lord thy Maker]Confidereſt not his powe and what he is able to do for thee:to forget,for not to conſider;as Heb 12.5.See ch 40. 27-29.

becauſe of the fury of the oppreſſour, as if he were ready to deſtroy] Or, had made himſelf ready to deſtroy; and there were no poſſibility of eſcape. So Geneſis 19. 19, 30. Exodus 14. 10-12.

and where is the fury of the oppreſſour]What is now become of the fury of the Babylonians thine oppreſſours,whoſe fury thou ſtoodſt ſo much in fear of? they are perished,and it is gone,Pſ.9,5,6.& 76.10. ch. 16.4.

V.14.The captive exile haſteneth that he may be looſed, and that he ſhould not die in the pit, nor that his bread ſhould fail] Or, The exile (he that is gone, to wit, out of his country, as Jer.48. 12. for the word captive, is not in the original)is haſtening to be looſed. (Heb. to be opened,as ch.35,17.Job 12. 18.& 39.5. that have the priſondore opened to him, and to be ſet free from his bonds and reſtraints; is haſtening to be looſed, for ſhall haſtily, or ſpeedily be looſed. So Gen,41.32. God is making haſt to do it,that is, will do it ſpeedily,out of hand,)and he ſhall not die in the pit, (that ſhall be timely releaſed)nor ſhall his bread fail, as in ſieges, and ſuch reſtraint, it uſ doth. See Ier.37.22.& 38 9,10. that which ſome apply here to that ſpiritual food, John 6.27.See chap.33.16.The meaning is: My people, that are at preſent driven out of their own country,and clapt up in holes and dungeons, ch.42.22. ſhall be ſpeedily ſet at liberty; Nor ſhall they periſh in their priſons, and places of reſtraint, for want of food, by delay; nor in their journeying home again, through want of victuals,by the way. See Ch.49.9,10. Yet I cannot omit, that ſome here read the words, He (to wit, the oppreſſour, that now holdeth you in bondage, ver. 13.) ſhall haſten,(that is, haſtily bring out, as 1 King.22.9.)the exile that is to be looſed. Or,as with an alluſion to the Egyptian deliverance, He haſteneth, or ſhall make haſte, the oppreſſour going to and fro, or running up and down, (ſo the word ſeems to be taken, chap.65.1. Jer.2.20.) to ſet at liberty; and ſo it is ſaid of the Egyptians, that God ſaid, that Pharao and his followers ſhould (as alſo accordingly they did) come to Moſes, and to his people, and inſtantly preſs them to be gone from among them,Exodus 11.8. and 12. 31-33. and ſo the meaning ſhould be, that God would enforce the Babylonians to do the like by them. But this ſeems not to flow ſo freely from the text, as the former.

in the pit] That is, in the hole, or the dungeon,as ch.42.22. Zach. 9.2.but the word, here uſed,is applyed commonly to the grave,Job 33.18,24 33.Pſalm.30.9.& 55.23.the rather here made uſe of,becauſe the place of their captivity,ſeemed to be unto them,as a grave and the getting out of the one, as impoſſible, as the riſing from the other,ch.26.19.Ezek.37.11,12.

V.15. For I am the Lord thy God, that diuided the Sea, whoſe waves roared] Heb. And; as Chap.40.26. or, I the Lord thy God, am he,that divided the Sea, when his waves roared;and ſo read,it ſhould have reference to that of the red Sea,before ſpoken of,ver.10.which being effected, by a ſtiff and ſtrong blaſt of wind, bearing back the water, as it were with an hideous roaring noiſe (but I find not where the word here used doth signifie, to divide, save, as any thing, that is cracke or broken, may be said to be divided: and so Job saith, Job 7.5. my skin cracketh, or breaketh: and of the Sea, it is said, Job 26.12. By his power he breaketh the Sea; as it is commonly rendred: where Interpreters dispute much what should be meant by breaking of the Sea. For it cannot be there understood of the dividing of the red-Sea; it being generally agreed, that Job was ancienter then those times: and the most therefore understand it, of troubling the Sea, and setting it on working, as Psal.107.25. Jon.1.4,13.and so, also, both the ancient Greek, and the old Latine, here render it, readding the words, that trouble the Sea, and the waves thereof roar, Pf. 93.3. Howbeit, because the word, used both here, and there, hath oft in it a notion of quietnesse, and rest, (See on v.4.) of troubling, or disturbing, that I can find, no where; I suppose the words may rather, in either place, be rendred, and so also, Jer.31.35 I the Lord thy God, am he that filleth the Sea, (that maketh it calm and quiet) when the waves of it roar, and being able to rule, and still the raging Sea, and much more able to curb and quiet the rage of man; and to suppresse and quel the power and fury of any oppressour, ver. 33. Pfal. 76.10. chap. 25.5. this exposition the latter branch much strengthens; nor is there any thing wherein the power of God ordinarily more appears, nor whereby in Scripture it is more frequently extolled, then by the quieting and laying of storms and tempests at Sea, and the keeping of that vast and unruly creature within compass, Job 38.8-11. Pf. 65.7. & 77.16,19. & 93.3,4. & 104. 6-9. & 107.23-29. Jer. 5.22. Jon. 1.4-16. Mat. 8.24.27. Mar. 4.39,41. Luk. 8.24, 25.

whose waves roared] Or, when the waves thereof roar. Heb. and its waves roar. So Proverbs 3. 24. Chapter 44. 14. See Gods people on this ground strengthning their faith, in affurance of all-sufficient protection from God, amidst all troubles, turmoils, and tumults whatsoever, Pfalm 46.1——3. & 65.7. & 93. 3, 4.

the Lord of hosts is his name] Or, whose name is the Lord of hosts, as Chap.47.4. & 48.2. and doth not therefore vainly boast of more then he is able to do, having all creatures at command. See Cha. 1.9.

V.16. And I have put my words in thy mouth] Or, as some, I will put, &c. There is much doubt, and debate, whom these words should be spoken to. Some would have it spoken to the Church of God, to Sion, or Jerusalem: but to it he speaketh in the feminine gender, ver.12. 17. whereas here, in the masculine. Others, therefore, to the people, of whom the Church consisteth, in the last clause of the verse, to Israel, or Jacob; out of whose mouth, God promiseth that his Word should never depart, Chap. 59.20,21. Others, and so most of the Jewish, and some also of ours, conceive that God turneth his speech to the Prophet, whom he had acquainted with his Will, and made choice of to deliver it unto his people, and that in such words and terms, as he had prescribed him, or dictated to him. See the like, Num 22 35. & 23.5,16. Jer. 1.9. and others, lastly, to Christ, whom the Father, had fully opened all his mind unto, concerning what was to be done, in behalf of his Church, and appointed him to acquaint his people with it, Joh 3 32,34. & 5.19,20. & 8.26,28. O. of all the Prophets in general, Christ excepted, fell not excused, by whom, though his gracious promises, to convert to his Church, ch. 49.1.v.12 Luk 24.35. I conceive with those who take the whole passage, as spoken to Esay in particular, thereby to assure his people of the undoubted performance of the things foretold by him, as coming from God himself, who was able to effect them. Yet so, as that they have a further respect to Christ, who, in an higher, and more eminent manner, they also concern. See ch. 49.2.& 61.1,2.

and have covered thee under the shadow of mine hand ?] Or, with the shadow of mine hand have I covered thee. See Chapter 49.2.

that I may plant the heavens, and lay the foundations of the earth.] Heb. to plant an heaven, and to found an earth: To make a new world a new heaven, and a new earth, Chap.65.17.& 66 22.2 Cor.5. 17, 18.2 Pet.3.13. Rev. 21. 1. that which may not amiss be here underflood, as faid to be done, by Esay ministerially, or prophetically, as the like is faid of Jeremy, by preaching, publishing, prophecying, and giving assurance of the doing of it See Jer.1.10.& 18.9, and the next clause here, by Christ Jesus actually, and effectually, as being the person, by whom the Church is planted and built, Jer.31. 28. Mat.16.18. all things in it are made new, Rev.21.5. and all things both in heaven and earth are reflored and setled, Eph.1.10. Col 1.20. Some, with the ancient Greek, render it, where with referring it to the word, hand, before mentioned) I planted the heaven for, & created it out, by change of a letter, as ver. 13.) and founded the earth, as if he had faid; I will protect thee with the same hand, wherewith heaven and earth were built: and some, so long as the heavens shall continue built, and the earth founded: as containing a promise of an everlasting protection. See on v 6, 8. But I see not how the words of the text, though never so much tortured, will yeeld either of these two.

and to say to Zion, Thou are my people] Or, Thou shalt again be my people. See Hosea 1.10.and 2.1,22. Esay, by foretelling Christ, by fulfilling the restitution of the Church, Rom.9. 24-26.

V.17. Awake, Awake] Or, Arı, - arise. Heb. Raise, or rouze up thy self; as ch.64.6. The Prophet, or God, by the Prophet calling upon the people, as some, to awake and rouze up themselves from the sleep of sin, and the drowsinesse of security, 1 Cor. 15.34. because the Apostle seemeth so to apply it, Eph. 5.14. though I suppose another place there alluded to, or, as others, rather, in the first place, at least, and in the literal sense, to raise and rouze up themselves, from that drooping and disconsolate estate and condition, wherein they had long continued, being much dejected and disheartned, during the time of their captivity. See c.26.19.& 52.1. implying, that there should be out of hand, a strange and sudden alteration of that their condition.

stand up] Sit no longer on the ground, nor lye in the dust, as the manner of prisoners, and mourners, is wont to be, 2 Samuel 12. 16, 17. Ezra 9. 3. Chapter 47. 1. See Chapter 52.1.

O Jerusalem] The same with Sion, ver.16. the State and people of the Jews, ch.1.27.

that hast drunk at the hand of the Lord, the cup of his fury] That hast sustained grievous things, inflicted on thee, by God, for thy sins; yea, that beganneth of this cup to others, and hast drunk deep of it, Jerem. 25.15,17,18,29. and 49.12. Ezek. 23.31.

drunk] Afflictions, in Scripture, are commonly compared to some bitter, unpleasant, yea, or poisonous potion, Jer. 8.14. and 9.15. and 23.15. especially considered, as proceeding from Gods wrath, Job 21.20.

at Gods hand] Heb. from Gods hand: as ch.50.11. because inflicted on her, by his disposition, in whose hand it is to dispose good and evil, at his pleasure, Pf. 75.6-8 cha. 45.7. Jer. 51-7. Lam. 3.37,38. Hab 2.16.

the cup of his fury] Or, his cup of wrath, as the word is well rendred, Deut. 29.28. Job 19.29. Eſt. 3.5. Pf. 38.8. Prov. 15.1. for it fignifies properly and primarily, heat. See chap. 42.25. then anger, or, wrath, as we also use the word heat, when we say, the man is in an heat: because anger, causing the blood to boil about the heart, heats, and enflames; while his heart is hot, Deut. 19.6. whence also the Latine, excandescentia. See ch. 5.25. and yet further, because poison heats, and enflames, the same word is used also for poison, Deut. 32.24,33. Pfal. 140.4. applyed to the Lords arrows, Job 6.4. as here, to his cup, and to the wine, in his cup, Jer. 25.5. and I see not what should inhibit the rendring of it so here, his cup of poison, that is, his cup tempered with poison: it hath at least sure, some allusion thereunto. See Jer. 8.14.& 9.15. Lam. 3.15. See also, Rev. 14.10 and 16.19.

cup] The word taken from some certain proportion, or allowance of drink, to servants, or other, at meals; or to marriners, and passengers, sometime at sea, is in Scripture used, sometime, for such a portion of favours and mercies, as God is pleased to afford any. So Pf. 16. 5. sometime, for such a quantity of evils, and judgments, as, in his justice, he deemeth fit to inflict upon any, Psalm 11.6. Lamentation 4.21. Ezekiel. 23.31. Mat. 20.22,23.& 26.39. Joh 18. 11. Rev. 18. 6.

thou hast drunk the dregs of the cup of trembling, and wrung them out] Or, that hast drunk, (a defect of the relative, as ver. 22.) and sucking out, or in drinking sucked out (as Pf. 75.8. the dregs thereof shall they suck out, drink; that is, in drinking suck out: for there is no copulative in either place) the dregs, or lees, (the word in this passage only used, fignifieth such thick fluff, as sticketh usually to the bottom and comes not so easily away) of the cup of trembling, or of concussion, or horrour: as the word it comes of, is well rendred Nah 2.3. the firre trees shall be terribly shaken: a potion so strangly strong, as makes all that drink it, to stagger, and quake, and shake, in terrible manner, every limb and joynt of them. See an instance of it in Baltasar, Dan. 5.6. yea, in Habakkuk himself, Hab 3.16. at the sight onely of the character, that forewarned it, with the one; at the bare report of it, with the other. So Pfal. 60.2,3. such a potion as made the whole land to shake, as made a terrible earthquake in the whole State; (see chap. 2.19. and Io Zach. 12. 2. where some also render it poison, as others, astonishment, in the Psalm; for they that render it slumbering, as if it imporreth some soporiferous potion, seem to warp from the words original: such a cup they had before drunk, when they were possessed with a spirit of slumber, and security, ch. 29.9,10. which was a means to bring on this, that not only rouzed them out of that security, but cast them into a clean contrary fit, and plight of terrour and astonishment, and of this latter, it is here intimated, that the had drunk very deep, when she is said to have drunk it down to the very dregs, yea, to have drained, or sucked out the very lowest of it, the lees after the rest, that are usually the strongest, and are referred for the worst of wicked ones. Pfal. 76.8. as the Jewish State is faid to have done, both here, and Ezekiel 23.34.

V. 18. There is none to guide her among all her sons, whom she hath brought forth; neither is there any that taketh her by the hands, of all her sons, that she hath brought up] Either that guideth her, in the former branch, or, to take her by the hand, in the latter branch: for the form is the same, to wit, a participle, as also, of, or, from, all her sons, in either. She had not any one of all those, that had been bred, and brought up in her, neither King, Prince, nor Prophet that, that was able to sustain, and hold her up or direct her what course to take; when that dreadful oneelion, from that direful potion, before mentioned, v.17. befel her. See c.3.6-8. An allusion to one, that I e ng over-mastered with some strong heady drink, hath none to lead him or to lend him an hand, to keep him from falling down to the ground Jer. 30.12.14.

none to guide her] Heb. none leading, or no leader to her.

brought up] Or, reared. Heb. made great, as ch. 1.2.

V.19. These two things are come unto thee] Heb. are happened to thee: for the Holy Ghoſt doth not wave that term, See Eccl. 8.14. & 9.11. nor our Saviour himself, Luk. 10.31. and it is used of those things, that fall out beyond mans expectation, and fore-fight without his contrivement, or beside his intent and purpose. See the like, ch. 47.9.

who shall be sorry for thee] Or, as some, who is sorry for thee? as if it were faid, and yet who takes thine affections to heart? or is at all affected with them, as implying, that she had been utterly abandoned in th m, Jer. 15.5. Lam. 1.12.& 2.15. or, who shall mourn, (as it is expected, Job 2.11) or, lament (as Pfal. 69.20.) with thee: or, who shall bemoan thee? as it is rendred, Jer. 15.5. Nah 3.7. for it hath not a bare notion of sorrow, or grief: but such an expection of a fellowfeeling of the miseries of another, whereby the same is made known unto him, and that for this end, to help, if it may be, in some degree, to lighten, and lessen his heavinelle and grief: and both in some of the places before mentioned, Job 2.11. Pf. 69.20. Jer. 15.5. and in this.

desolation, and destruction, and the famine, and the sword] Heb. desolation, and contrition, or breaking, as we say, to shivers: for from hence our shivers seems to come. So Chap. 1.28.& 30.13,14 He spake of two, he reckoneth up four; the question is, how this seeming difference may be reconciled? Some, by the two, at first propounded, understand those two before related, desolation, or affliction, from the wrath of God, by the enemy, from abroad, called also, Gods cup, Jer. 51.7. ver. 17. and want of consolation, of means to relieve and support her, from any of her own, at home: none of them affording her, or being able to render unto her, the cup of consolation, Jer. 16.7. ver. 18. both also here intimated: in the numeration of evils, the one; in the questions concerning the condoling with her, and comforting of her, the other. See ch. 54.11. Others suppose that those two evils, are contained in these four terms; the evils comprized in them, though bran hed into four sprigs, yet reducible to two heads, to wit, either, evils during the siege of the city, hunger, and sword, and evils, ensuing the surprisal of it, desolation, and destruction, or, evils concerning the city, desolation, and destruction, and evils concerning the citizens, famine and sword: or, as some others, supposing them to be twice repeated, desolation, and destruction: and again, as the same, in effect, with the former, famine, and the sword, that is, as it he had faid, desolation by famine, and destruction by the sword: but these latter seem more coact: the first to have leaft force, the rather for that these four here mentioned, were all ingredients of that cup of wrath, that poisonful potion, that God in his juſt judgment, had deſervedly reached out to them, by whom shall I comfort thee] Or, whom shall I make to comfort thee? as some: but that without example; rather as our version. By whom: a defect of the particle, as ch. 63.12. By whose help, or ayd, should relief be procured for thee? as Nah. 3.7. or, by what example of others, that have been in like diſtreſs, ſhould I allay to miniſter comfort to thee, as implying, that her calamity was matchleſs, without example, or precedent. So Lam. 2.13. The former ſuits better with that before, ver.18. and that after, ver.20. The preposition is wanting; as Pſalm 17. 14. Now all this is here inferred, to ſhew, that notwithſtanding this her forlorn, and deſperate condition, God was able to raiſe, and reſtore her, and would do it.

have fainted] Or, do faint: as Jon 4 8. Amos 8.13. they that ſhould help to relieve, and ſuſtain thee, v.18. or, to conſole with thee, and comfort thee, v.19. are in as bad plight, as thy ſelf, Lam. 1.11, 12.& 2.11,12.

they lye] they faint, they lye; that is, they lye fainting: as, they hasted, they forgat, for they soon forgat, Pſal 106.13.

in the head of all the streets] That is, in the city of Jeruſalem, at the end, beginning, or entrance of every ſtreet there, where they either had been ſurpriſed, and ſeized on, by the enemy, like beaſts, taken in a toil, Lamentation 4.18-20. Ezek. 19.4,8. or, lay ſtarved, and pining with famine, for want of food. Lamentati. 2.19. and 4.5. head of the streets, Nah. 3.10.as, head of the ways, Ezek. 16. 25.31.

as a wilde bull in a net] As that fierce creature, when he is taken in the huntſmans toil, and ſo matched, and entangled in it, that he is by no means able to wind himſelf out, though having clean ſpent himſelf, by ſtriving to no do: what creature it ſhould be, that is here mentioned, the Jewiſh Doctors themſelves are very uncertain. Some of them tell us, it is a kind of b rd, or fowl; but of what kind they ſay not: and that it is apparently falſe, for it is mentioned among the beaſts allowed for food, Deut. 14.5. and it is therefore moſt generally agreed on to be a beaſt, which ſome of the Jewiſh Maſters affirm to be a kind of wild ox, or bull; which our verſion followeth, nor do thoſe ſeem to have been ſtrangers from the ſame notion, that render it, Bubalus, a Buffil, or a Beaſt: for how ſoever the word Bubalus, is, with the ancient Greeks and Latines, the name of a beaſt in Affrick, not much bigger then a calf, and shaped ſomewhat like a ſtag; whereof, ſee Oppian I.2. Yet Pliny telleth us, l. 8.c. 15. that even in his time, the common ſort of people had begun to give that name to the Bos, a kind of wilde ox, in, that Germany bred, whereof Cefar, in his firſt book of his war with the Gallos, telleth, that ſome were not much leſs then an Elephant. See on Chap. 34.7. The ancient Greek verſion, and old Latine Tranſlation in Moſes, render it Oryx. This Ariſtotle, in his hiſtory of living creatures, l.2.c.1 faith, is ſingle horned, and cloven footed: and ſo Pliny, in his natural hiſtory, l.11.c.46. who to ther, l. 8.c 53 affirmeth it to be a kind of wild goat, whoſe hair groweth toward his head. But Oppian, in his hunting-treatiſes, l. 2. deſcribeth it, as a very fierce beaſt, not much leſs then the Libyan lion in height I ſuppoſe he meaneth, rather, then for bulk or body: with up right, manly, exceeding hard, and ſharp horns, wherewith he would venture upon any beaſt, wild boar, wild bull, leopard, or lion. and this Author may the better be herein credited; becaute in his time, this beaſt came to be exhibited, in publike ſhews, at Rome, where Martial telleth us, it coſt the price of many a dog, l.13. Epigr. 95. to thoſe things that Ælian, and Oros relate of it, ſeem fabulous. But the conjecture of ſome other, to me, ſeems more probable; who conceive the Hebrew, Io, or Thoſ (for that is the name of it, both here, and in Moſes,) To be the ſame with that, as in name they agree, which the Greeks, and from them, the Latines call Thos, reported to be a kind of wolf, longer railed, but shorter legged, and yet ſwifter, becauſe nimbler; then the ordinary wolf, living by prey, net of himſelf prone to set on man, though not fearing him neither; but fighting with dogs, and lions, Ariſtotle, l. 2. c. 17. & l. 6. c. 35. & l. 9. c. 44. Pliny, l. 8. c. 34. & l. 10. c. 74 Oppian addeth in his hunting-treatiſes, l. 3. and in his fiſhing treatiſes, l. 1. that they are a mungrel kind, bred between a wolf, and an ounce, and do prey much upon Deer.

in a net] The word ſignifieth a net, or toil, ſet to take beaſts in, Pſalm 141. 10. the preposition is wanting, as Pſalm 35.7.

they are full of the fury of the Lord] Heb. being full of heat, or wrath of the Lord. See on v. 17. that is, of calamities, thence proceeding, ch 9.19. Rom. 2.8 9.

of the rebuke of thy God] See on ch. 50.2.

V. 21. Therefore] Or, Notwithſtanding. So the courſe of the context neceſſarily requireth it to be rendred. Notwithſtanding this thy forlorn, helpleſſe and hopeleſs eſtate, that in mans eyes may ſeem altogether irrecoverable, yet the Lord will alter thy condition, and raiſe thee up out of it, and reſtore thee to thy former luſtre again. See the like uſe of this particle, ch. 30.18. Jer. 16.14. & 30.16.

hear now this, thou afflicted, and drunken, but not with wine] Not drunk, at preſent, with ordinary wine, or ſtrong drink, as thy people had too much wont to be, when they revelled it in the times of thy better eſtate, ch. 5.11, 12.& 22.13.& 28.1,3,7. Hoſ. 4.11. what time thou waſt drunk alſo, as well with pride and ſecurity proceeding from the height of thy proſperity, Chapter 29. 9, 10. Jeremiah 2. 31. and 22. 21. as thou art now, with exceeding vexation of mind and ſpirit, ariſing from the depth of thine adverſity, Lamentati. 3.15,19. but with that ſtrong potion, in Gods cup of wrath, ver. 17. and the dismal effects of it, which makes all that drink wrath, ver. 17. and the dismal effects of it, which makes all that drink deep of it, as thou with others haſt done, not drunk only, but even mad drunk, and to fare as perſons diſtracted, Jer. 25. 16. & 51.7. Ezek. 23.33.34.

V. 22. Thus saith the Lord, the Lord and thy God, that pleadeth the cause of his people] Whom, being their Soveraign Lord, he hath undertaken to protect. See ch. 49.14.& 50.7,9,10. Heb. will plead. So Chap. 49.25. Jeremiah 50. 34. not, by a meer verbal, or vocal; but by a real, and active plea, as Ezek. 38.22. a defect of the relative, as v. 18.

Behold ,] A note prefixed, to ſtir up, not attention only; but admiration, upon conſideration, and contemplation, of the ſtrange change and alteration that was now to enſue. So chapter 10. 33.

I have taken out of thine hand] Or, I will take out of thine hand: that which I put formerly into thine hand. Jer. 25.17, 18. I will do that for thee, that none of thine can do, v. 18, 20. I will alter thy condition.

the cup of trembling] Whereof, ſee on v. 17.

even, the dregs of the cup of my fury :] Or, with the dregs of my cup of wrath. See verſe 17. that is, together with the dregs thereof: the noun repeated for the pronoun, as Jer. 12.4.2 Tim. 1.18. the former particle ſuppl yed, as ch. 5.9. this latter, as chap. 34.15. and 35.4.

thou shalt no more drink it again] Heb. thou shalt not add to drink it further; that is, either thou ſhalt drink it no longer, as ch. 23.12. or, thou ſhalt not drink it any more, as Gen. 8.21. See ch. 54.9. But the former rather.

V. 23. But I will put it into the hand of them that afflict thee] I will remove my wrath from thee; and I will pour it out upon them, that have been thine oppreſſours, ch. 49.26. See Lam. 4.21.

But]

But] Heb And, which may alſo be here retained.

that afflict thee]Or,vex thee; as Job 19.2. or, as ſome, oppreſſe thee; ſuppoſing it to be the ſame with that, Chapter 49.26. altered only by a ſmall ſlip of the Scribes pen: but there is no need to queſtion, or alter the reading, the word whereof it comes regularly, being oft uſed for to vex, or afflict, Lam. 1.5.12. & 3.32.

which have ſaid to thy ſoul] That is, to thee, as Pſalm 3.2. and 11.1.

Bow down, that we may go over] That have troden thee down, and trampled upon thee as a deſpicable people: an alluſion to the inſolent uſage of thoſe Eaſtern Kings, to ſet their feet upon the necks backs, and bodies, of conquered perſons, and to make them, as their foot-ſtools. See Joſh. 10.24. Pſal. 66.12. & 110.1, ch. 10.6. Jer. 22. 10.

go over]Or,go over thee: the pronoun ſupplyed as chap. 49.7. and 58.9.

and thou haſt laid thy body as the ground] Or, and lay(the words ſtill of her inſolent matters,the future, as oft, in an imperative notion for 2 Sam. 2.3. Ioſh back ch. 38.17 & 50.6. Prov. 20.13. & 19. 29. & 26.3.) as the ground, for us to tread on. See Pſ. 44.25. & 119.25. cha. 52.2.

and as the ſtreet to them that went over]Or, as the ſtreet to paſſengers: that we may as freely tread upon thee, and go over thee, as men go along the ſtreets.

CHAP. LII.

Verſe 1. Awake, Awake] The former part of this Chapter, unto verſe 13. ſeems to be no other, then an appendix to the foregoing Prophecy, or Sermon, running all along in the ſame tenour, with the latter part of it, and very aptly cloſing with it.

Awake]Or, Ariſe. The Prophet calleth upon Sion to do that her ſelf he is, which ſhe had called upon God to do for her before, c. 51. 9.10 wit, to rouz up her ſelf, and pluck up her ſpirits. See ch. 51.12.& 60.1.

put on thy ſtrength, O Zion]Be of good courage, and make it to appear that thou art ſo. See ch. 51.9.

put on thy beautifull garments, O Jeruſalem] Heb. thy garments of beauty, or bravery, as it is rendred, ch. 3.18. put of thy priſon garments, thy captive attire, thy mourning weeds, thy ſervile garb, lay aſide now thy wonted rayment, and put on thy beſt and braveſt apparel; thine eſtate being clean altered, and changed for the better. See Gen. 27.15.& 38.14.&41.24. Rut 3.3.c. 61.10. Jer. 52.33. Zach. 3.4.5.

the holy city] Heb. city of holineſſe as c. 48.2. Now being purged and refined, as having paſſed thorow the furnace, by the fire of affliction, to be reſtored to her former purity again, Chap. 1.25.& 4.3.4.&62. 12.

from henceforth there ſhall no more come into thee the uncircumciſed, and the unclean] Heb. there ſhall not add that ſhall come into thee, or againſt thee: as the particle is uſed, Num. 23.21,23. for the ſyntax, ſee the like ch. 29.1.& 47.5. Hoſ. 1.6. Thou ſhalt no longer be polleſſed, nor thalt any more be invaded by heathen people, as by the Syrians, Aſſyrians, Egyptians, and Chaldeans, thou haſt been, 2 King. 16. 18. 23, 24, 25. Chapter 63. 18 Lamentation 1.10. See Chapter 60.18.& 62.8.or, wicked ones thall not harbour with thee, chap. 35.8.and 60.21.and 62.12.Rev. 21.27.But the former here rather.

V.2 Shake thy ſelf from the duſt] That thou fateſt in before, as a mourner, Job 2.8.& 42.6.or, layeſt along in, as a priſoner, or captive that are wont to lye, diſregarded, and ill-intreated, on the bare ground, and in the duſt, Pſal. 7.5.& 44.25.& 119.25. Or, ſhake the duſt from thee, wh. h thou haſt gathered, by lying flat on the ground while thou waſt made, as a common foot-ſtoole, for thy proud, and ſtately Lords, and Maſters to tread upon. See ch 51.23. which this may well reflect upon,and there ſeems an hypallage,or inverſion in the words, Shake thee from the duſt, for ſhake the duſt from thee. So in the next clauſe.

Ariſe, and ſit down O Jeruſalem] Rather, Ariſe, ſit up, O Jeruſalem:for the copulative is not in the text,and the word of ſitting, is here uſed, not for ſitting down, but for ſitting up, as Gen. 27. 19. where Jacob to his Father Iſaac, that lay bedrid, ariſe, ſit up. As Babylon is commanded, to come down, and ſit in the duſt, ch. 47. 1. ſo is Jeruſalem here willed, to riſe from the duſt, and ſit up.

looſe thy ſelf from the bands of thy neck] That is, looſe the bands from off thy neck:as priſoners, or captives,are wont to be faſtened with,by the neck,to come poſt, or ſtaple, or one to another,as beaſts in a yoke. See Jer. 27.2,8, 12.& 28.12,14. Lam. 1.14. So Jer. 40.4. I looſe thee from the hands on thy hands, for I looſe the hands from off thy hands; or, them, from off thee.

O captive daughter of Zion] Or, Daughter Sion. See Chapter 1.8.

V.3. For thus ſaith the Lord, Ye have ſold your ſelves for nought] ſold you not: but ye ſold your ſelves by your ſins, or ye were ſold for your crimes: for the Hebrew text ſaith no more. the Babylonians to whom ye were ſold, paid me, whole ſervants ye were, nothing for you, not ſo much as thanks, Pſal. 44.12. ie that I gained nothing by the ſale of you, but reproach from the hands, and mouthes of thoſe, unto whom ye were ſold, ver. 5. Dan. 1.2.& 5.2, 3. 24.

and ye ſhall be redeemed without money] Heb. without ſilver, as Exod. 21.11. Chap. 55.1. I will require you back from them again, without ranſome, Chap. 45.13. So that Gods argument runs thus; Ye were my people, I had intereſt in you; the Babylonians have gotten you into their hands; they pretend to hold you, as good purchaſe; but I had never ought of them for you: and there is no reaſon, therefore, but that you ſhould be reſtored without ranſome. Thus doth God plead the cauſe of his people. See ch. 49.24.25. and 51.22.

V.4. For thus ſaith the Lord God]Heb. the Lord Jehovah:as ch. 50. 4, 9.

my people went down aforetime, into Egypt, to ſojourn there] in time of famine, Jacob went with his whole houſhold thither, Gen 46. 6.

went down]See ch. 30.2.& 31.1.

into Egypt] The particle is wanting, as alſo in thoſe texts.

and the Aſſyrian oppreſſed them with out cauſe] The Interpreters do exceedingly diſſent about the ſenſe of theſe words: Some by Aſſur, here, would have Pharao underſtood, the Egyptian King, for his cruelty towards Gods people, and his evil uſage of them, termed Aſſur; becauſe therein reſembling the Aſſyrian King. Some of them proceed ſo far, as to affirm, that that Pharao, which oppreſſed Gods people in Egypt, was no Egyptian; for he would there have known Joſeph; but an Aſſyrian, Exod. 1.8. So the meaning ſhould be. My people did not invade Egypt in warlike manner, but came thither to ſojourn; and during their abode there, did them no wrong, but were beneficial to them, preſerved them alive from perishing through famine, by their ſtoreſight, and built them divers cities, Gen. 47.19. Exod. 1,11. and yet they oppreſſed them, and deale very cruelly with them, Exod. 1.13,14,16. But this expoſition is built upon a very forced interpretation, and a meer groundleſs, yea, an improbable, conjecture. Others, by Aſſur, here, underſtand the King, or Kings of Aſſyria, and ſome, Salmaneſer, that had carried captive the ten Tribes, 2 King. 17. 11. Some, Tiglath-Peleſer, and Sennacherib, that pilledged and plundered the other two, 2 King. 16.8,17,18.& 18.13-17. the one called in by Ahaz; the other indeed, becauſe Ezekiah had at firſt revolted from him; yet after his ſubmiſſion, and compoſition made, contrary to his covenant, befeeting, and diſtreſſing Jeruſalem, Ch. 33.8. Others again, by Aſſur, or the Aſſyrian King, underſtand the Babylonian, Nebuchadnezzar, ſo called, ſay they, becauſe Babylon was ſometime ſubject to the Aſſyrian, and the Kingdome of Babylon, a branch of that Empire. See 2 King. 17.24.2 Chro. 33.11. and the Babylonian was afterward poſſeſſed of that Monarchy, which the Aſſyrian Kings had held before. Now again among them, there is ſome diſſent about the connexion of this latter branch of the verſe, with the former: for ſome knit them together, as our verſion, with a copulative, ſo the firſt, they went down into Egypt, and Pharao cauſelеſly wronged them,and ſo ſome of thoſe alſo, that go with the latter branch, aplying from the latter branch, what was implyed, but not expreſſed in the former; the Egyptians, at firſt, wrongfully oppreſſed them, when they ſojourned with them, and the Aſſyrians, and the Babylonians have of late done the like. Others give the copulative, an adverſative notion; and, for, but, as Ch. 29.13. and 33.5. and they conceive the context to run thus; My people did, of their own accord, ſometime, go down into Egypt, where they had means afforded them, that kept them from periſhing by famine, and were there ſeated in the beſt, and richeſt part of that land, Gen. 47.4,5,6, 11,12,27. now, by this means they became Pharao's Subjects, and he might juſtly claim that intereſt in them, and refuſe therefore to part with them: but you Aſſyrians, and Babylonians, can make no ſuch claims; you have violently invaded them; by force tranſported them out of their own land, into your dominions. If I compelled them to deliver them, and plagued them, for their evil uſage of them, Deut. 26.5,6. I may much more juſtly both conſtrain you to re-deliver them, and chat freely too; and take vengeance alſo upon you for the wrongs that you have done them, having, for nothing, without any juſt cauſe on their part given you, afflicted, and oppreſſed them: and it may indeed be ſo underſtood; for howſoever it be true, that Gods people had, at his hand, deſerved what ſoever at their enemies hand they had endured; and that God had, for their ſins juſtly given them up into their hands; yet they intended nothing leſs, whatſoever they might pretend, then the executing of Gods judgment, or the righting of the wrongs done to him, whom they both otherwiſe, and even therein alſo, wronged much more themſelves; they minded nothing but the ſatisfaction of their own ambitious humours, the wrecking of their wrath, and the exerciſing of their cruelty upon them. Chap. 10.5-14.& 47.6. Jer. 50.7,17. So in the Pſalms, Gods people complain to God, of their cauſeleſs ſufferings, in regard of their enemies; becauſe, though they had treſpaſſed againſt him, yet, they had not treſpaſſed againſt them, Pſal. 7. 3-5, 8, and 25.18,19,21.& 35.7,12,24.&41.4-9.& 69.4,5. Among this great great variety, all circumſtances weighed, I concur with thoſe, who underſtand this latter of the Aſſirians, as the words expreſly give it; which I ſuppoſe may well comprehend the whole race of thoſe Kings above mentioned, with their Aſſur, that had from time to time inflicted either houſe, as well that of Judah, as that alſo of Iſrael, as the like is thereby deſigned, Jer. 50.17. and I conceive, that the ſufferings of Gods people by the Egyptians, are intimated, as well in the former branch of the verſe, as by the Aſſyrians in the latter: yet not ſo much the cauſeleſneſs of the wrongs done them, as the fruitleſneſs of their ſufferings, in regard of any gaine that God got thereby, to be intimated in the word, for nought: as Pſal. 44.12. for nothing of wealth, or worth.

V. 5. Now therefore what have I here ſaith the Lord, that my people is taken away for nought?] The words are in the Hebrew word for word, And now what to me here, that (as Job 11. 6. ver. 6) or, when (as Job 3. 22. for the word may ſignifie either) my people is taken away freely? Now this moſt Interpreters take, as reflecting upon the words foregoing. Some expounding it, what ſhould I doe? ſhould I ſit ſtill, and doe nothing, when my people when my people are thus cauſelеſly oppreſſed, and detained from me injuriouſly? or, what ſhould I do, but deliver my people, as formerly, in the like caſe, I have done? Others, what do I here, to wit, at Jeruſalem, when my people are in Babylon, and doe not rather haſt thither to deliver them thence? Others, again, What do I here, to wit, at Babylon, as kept in captivity with my people, in a prophane country, in a ſtrange land, from my Temple at Jeruſalem, Pſal. 137.4. I conceive this verſe to be of a diſtinct ſubject from what was mentioned in the former: he had pointed at two ſeveral oppreſſions of his people, in the words foregoing, both paſt, and gone; the one by the Egyptian, the other by the Aſſyrian: he now paſſeth on to the third, that was preſent, and concerning which he was dealing with his people, at preſent: for the Prophecy is delivered, as to the people held by the Babylonian in captivity, aſſuring them of ſpeedy deliverance out of it.

Now therefore] Or, And now: as the Hebrews is, at this preſent.

what have I here,] Heb. what to me here? what accreweth unto me? what gaine get I by this preſent oppreſſion of my people, more then by either of the former?

that my people is taken away for nought?] Or, when, or, ſince that: as Job 38.5.or, as ſome,for my people is taken away for nought: and ſo the particle is taken, chap. 28.27. but I adhere rather to the former.

is taken away] So the word ſignifies, Pſal. 51.12. Hoſ. 4.11.and 13.11.or, (for ſo it may very well be rendred,) is led away, or, is carried away: as Gen. 12.15. to wit, captive; as Jer. 48.46. oppoſed here, to their voluntary deſcent into Egypt, ver. 4.

for nought] As before, ver. 3. my people are taken from me, and carried away, and I receive nothing at all for them. Have no more now from the Chaldeans, then from the Aſſyrians before.

they that rule over them, make them to howl ſaith the Lord;] Their Lord-like Maſters (chap. 26.13. and 49.7.) uſe them with extream cruelty, chap. 47.6. they ſuffer much, and I receive nothing, for all the hard ſervice my Servants endure.

and my name continually every day is blaſphemed] That is all I had from the Aſſyrian before,chap. 37.4,6,17,23,24,29. and that is all I get from the Babylonian now, Dan. 3.15.& 5.23. chap. 14.13, 14. Ezek. 36.20,23. as my people ſuffer in their perſons, ſo I my ſelf, in my reputation, being deemed unable to deliver my people. Thus prophane perſons, by the ſufferings of Gods people take occaſion to blaſpheme, and to inſult, even over God himſelf, Pſalm. 3.8.& 42.3.& 74.22,23.& 89.50,51.

every day] Or,all the day long: and thus rather for the article as Gen. 6.5. Pſal. 44.22. chap. 51.13. Rom 8.36. which is wanting; when it is, every day as Pſal. 7. 11. & 140.2 & 142.5.

V.6. Therefore my people ſhall know my name;] I will no longer endure this loſs and reproach: but I will make my power known, by the deliverance of my people, Pſ. 106.8. chap. 49.26.& 63.14. it may ſeem to have an eye to Gods words unto Moſes, Exod. 6.3. I will make my ſelf known to my people, by my name Jehovah, as I did to them in Egypt, by making my Word good, by fulfilling my promiſes.

therefore they ſhall know in that day] A ſupply from the former branch; as Gen. 1.16,0. 1 King. 10.11.

in that day] At that time, when this is effected; as chapter 26.1.

that I am he that doth ſpeak; behold it is I.] That is not Eſay, or any other my meſſenger, but I the Lord, that ſpeak by him; who now foretel and promiſe, what I will then fulfill and perform, chap. 42.9. & 48.3,5. that it is I that doe ſpeak, ſaying (ſupplyed as Pſal. 105,14,15.) Io, here I am, ready to doe what I have undertaken, and by promiſe engaged my ſelf to make good. See chap. 42.27. and 65. 1. There is a tranſition in the words, with a repetition of the particle intervenient, not unlike that, chap 59.18.

V. 7. How beautiful upon the mountaines are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings.] The joyous and gladſome entertainment of thoſe that ſhould bring tidings into Judea, and unto Jeruſalem, of the diſſolution of the Babylonian captivity. Nah. 1.15. and of thoſe, much more, that ſhould publiſh ſalvation, purchaſed by Chriſt. Rom 10. 15. Gal 4. 15, 16.

How beautiful] Or, comely, or, ſightly, as Prov. 19.10. and 26. 1. Cant. 1. 5,10. and 2. 14. or,delightful, or deſireable, Jer. 6.2. for that, the root it ſpringeth from, doth ſtill, and properly ſignifie.

are the feet] How welcome will ſuch be when they come; feet, or foot, for the perſon himſelf, ſay ſome,as Pſal. 58 16 & 119. 59. Prov. 6.18 & 7.11.or, how welcome will their coming be? foot, and feet, for coming, ſay others, as Gen. 30.27. 2 King. 6.32. yet there ſeems here to be ſome emphaſis in it, as if it were ſaid, the very feet, of ſuch, though ſweaty, duſty and dirty with travel, yet will be deemed deſireable and amiable unto Gods people, in regard of the tidings they bring to them; and they ready to fall down at them, as ready even to kiſs them. See Act. 10. 25.

upon the mountains] Alluding either unto ſuch high places, on which beacons, and wach-towers, were fituate, which thoſe were wont to get up unto, thence, by ſome ſigne given, to call people together, that had ſome meſſage, or tidings, to publiſh unto them, Chap. 40.9. or,to the mountains, rather, that Jeruſalem was environed with, Pſal. 121.1.& 125.2. and he ſeems to ſpeake, as if he ſaw meſſengers coming over theſe hills, to bring tidings from Babylon to Jeruſalem, of the captivity broken up. See the like Chap 13.4.

of him that bringeth good tidings] The word good, ſhould be in a different character; for the word is indefinite to good, or bad. See chapter 40.9. of him that bringeth good tidings; that is of the Prophet Jeremy, ſaith one, that deſined the time of the captivity, Jer. 25. 12.& 29.10. Dan. 9.3. but poor Jeremy found but very ſorry intertainment among his people, for all that his determination: Nor is it probable, that people would be ſo much taken, and ſo deeply affected with a prediction of a deliverance, to come leventy years after, from a very calamitous captivity, that they were then ſuddenly to enter into. The word is rather taken collectively, and indefinitely, not aiming at, or pointing to, any one in particular; but intending any whatſoever, one, or more, that ſhould come with ſuch tidings. See Chap. 40.9.& 41.27. as in ſuch cales men are wont to contend, to goe one before another, and to ſtrive who ſhall bring the good news firſt, 2 Sam. 18.19-23. See Ier. 50. 8.

that publiſheth peace] Heb. maketh to hear; as Neh. 8.15. peace, that is proſperity and welfare; as chap. 48.18.

that bringeth good tidings of good,] A ſuperfluous repetition; it would be ſimply rendred; of him that bringeth good or, glad tidings: for the word here uſed ſignifieth either, 1 King. 22.8. Prov. 15.15. Zach. 9.17.

that publiſheth Salvation,] Deliverance, Corporal, by Cyrus; ſpiritual, by Chriſt, Chap. 51.5. Heb. that maketh to hear; as before.

that ſaith to Zion, Thy God reigneth] Thy God hath manifeſted, and magnified his royal power, by the deſtruction of his enemies, and the deliverance of his people; but chiefly, and principally, in his ſpiritual Kingdome erected, and exerciſed by his Chriſt, Pſal. 93.1.& 97.1.& 99.1. 110.1-7. & 146.10. Rev. 6.2. & 11.15. and 19. 6.

V. 8. Thy watch-men ſhall lift up their voice] Heb. the voice: the pronoun wanting, as chap. 49.22.23. Of another ſyntax, ſee anon. Thy Prophets and Teachers, (Chap. 60.10. Ezek. 3.17.& 33.7. Heb. 13.17.) ſhall with much joy, and loud voice, publiſh thy deliverance. See Chap. 40.9. an alluſion, as before, ver. 7, ſo here as ſome think, to the manner of thoſe that bring tidings, and tell them aloud, in high places, that as many as may be, may hear them; but the term of watch-men, ſuits not ſo well to ſuch. I rather take it, to have an eye to thoſe, that are placed upon watch-towers, to eſpy, and give notice of the approach, or coming afar off, of any that may be deemed to come for relief, in ſtraits, or with good tidings after ſome great battel fought, conqueſt atchieved, or the like. See 2 Sam. 18.24-27. as the former ſort, the tiding-bringers are ſaid to appear on the hills, not far diſtant from the city, ver. 7. ſo the watchmen from the walls, and turrets, about the city, who either deſcrying them afar off, and by their geſture, or other ſigns, diſcerning that they come with good tidings, or receiving, as the uſual manner is, the report of things firſt from them, ſhall, in the manner here mentioned, publiſh it to others. See 2 King. 7. 10, 11 with the voice together ſhall they ſing:] So Chap. 51.11. they ſhall come with ſong, or ſinging to Zion: But the particle expreſſed there is wanting here; as chap. 33.5. and oft elſewhere. But ſome therefore thus render the context; As for the voice of thy watch-men; or, as others, the voice of thy watch men, without ought elſe prefixed, (which I take to be the better, as Cant. 2.8. as if he heard the one now ſaw the other before. ver. 7. and were ravithed at the hearing of the one, at the ſight of the other,) they lift up the voice, they ſing together; and this reading, the points, and pauſes, in the Hebrew, encline to. Some think it hath ſome reference, either to the ſinging and thouting of the Prieſts and Levites, and others, at the foundings of the Temple, Ezr. 3, 10,11. or to their ſinging together after ward in the Temple, at the dedication of it after it was built, Ezr. 6. 16. but they were works of a later date, then this here reſpected.

for they ſhall ſee eye to eye, when the Lord ſhall bring again Zion.] They ſhall clearly, and evidently, behold thoſe things fulfilled, that had before by them been foretold, thoſe things performed that had been promiſed 1 Per. 10-12.

when the Lord shall bring again Zion.] So is the word generally rendred, both here, and Psalm. 14.7, & 53.6. & 126.1. in all which places yet it seemeth to be word for word in the text when the Lord shall return again to Zion, with a want of the particle to, as, chap. 35. 10. and 51. 11. and it may well be so rendred also in thole places of the Psalmes ; when the Lord shall turn to the captivity of his people ; and, when the Lora turned unto the captivity of Zion : when in mercy and favour, he turned again to them ; as Num. 10. 36. Psal. 90.13. chap.63.17. so the sense will be, when the Lord shall return unto Zion again; either to his people that had sometime held it, but had been dispossessed of it, and detained long from it, or, to the place it self, to take up his abode, & make his residence again there, as in former time he did. Psa. 132.13,14. & 51.9. for God is laid to come along with his people, in the front of them, at their return, ver. 12 they shall clearly see God himself returning, in conspicuous manner, together with his redeemed ones unto Zion. And this way the most of the Jewish commenters go: Nor can it be denied, but that the word, in the form here used, is commonly, almost generally, intransitive ; and signifieth, not to reduce, as in another form, but to return. Howbeit, some places there are, wherein it seemeth to require a transitive notion, as Job 41.18. the Lord turned the captivity of Job, & Nah. 2.2. The Lord hath turned the pride of the excellency of Jacob; and so without any supply, it may well be here as our version hath it. See Jer 30.3,18.

V. 9. Break forth into joy, sing together, ye wastes places of Jerusalem :] That have lien long ruined, but shall now be re-edified, chap.44.28. Heb wastes; as chap.49.19. & 51.3. See chap.14.7. and 35.1. & 44.23. & 49.13. and 45.1. and 55.12.

V. 10. The Lord hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations :] Or, hath stripped up his arm ; as alluding to the gesture of those, that strip up the sleeve of the arm, to strike the more readily with it. See Ez.30.4.7 chap 53.1. arm, for power, as chap. 51.9. which place this seems to reflect upon. The Lord according to your desire, and suit to him there, hath raised up himself, and wrought forth both his might, in most conspicuous manner, in the sight of other people, as well as your own, that they cannot but take notice of his handy work, both in your adversaries destruction, and in your deliverance, Psal.98.2. chap. 26.11.

V. 11. Depart ye, depart ye, go ye out from thence :] Get ye with all speed out of Babylon, ye that have been hitherto detained in captivity there, Chap.48.20. & 62. 10. Jer 50.8. & 51.6. 2Cor.6. 17. Rev. 18. 4.

Hag. 2.13,14. and so all Christians called to be Spiritual Priests, 1Pet.2.5,9,13. Rev. 1.6.

V. 12. For ye shall not go out with haste,] Or, in haste; hastily as they were enjoyned to eat the passover, Exod. 12 11. and as they are said to have gone out of Egypt, Exod. 12.33. so that they could not have time to provide themselves of necessaries, Exod. 12.39. Deut 16.3. but the word seems to import somewhat more then so here : ye shall not make haste out of fear, as if ye misdoubted, lest ye should be intercepted and stayed again, by those that detained you before : for the word it comes from, properly signifies, to tremble, Deut. 20.3. and consequently to make haste out of fear, 1Sam. 23. 26. it implyeth therefore, a frightful &, trembling haste, a making haste out of fear, Psal.31.22. & 116.11.

nor go by flight,] As if ye fled ; as they seemed to do out of Egypt, Exod. 14.5. and as those are wont to do, that steal away with out the privity of those, under whom, or, in whose power, they are, Gen.31.20,21. and this therefore, and the former, flight, and haste, are, as here, so elsewhere, joyned together, 2Sam.4.4. 2 King.7. 15. You shall not goe away hastily, out of fear, or by stealth ; but ye shall depart freely, peaceably, quietly, by commission from publike Authority, taking your own time, without tumult, noise, or fear of ought, chap.55 12. 2Chron. 36.23. Ezr. 1. 3,4.

for the Lord will go before you ; and the God of Israel will be your rereward] Heb. the Lord is walking, or, marching before you ; and the God of Israel is gathering you up, or, closing you : as Num. 10.25. Josh. 6.9,13. Ye shall not need to fear ought, either in setting out, or on the way, for God will secure and safeguard you, on every side, both before, and behind. It is an allusion to Gods conduct of his people, in their departure from Egypt, and pathage thorow the wilderness, by the the pillar of cloud, and fire ; which sometime went in the front with them, and sometime also stood in the rere of them, as was most conducible for their protection and safety, Exod. 13.21. & 14.19,20. So Chap.58.8.

V. 13. Behold] At this verse seems to begin a new Sermon ; certain it is, that they belong to the same subject, with the next Chapter, and do together with it, joyntly make up an entire Prophecy, concerning Christ, his person, parentage, condition, manner of life, sufferings, humiliation, exaltation, benefit redounding thence to his, and honour to himself.

my servant] This prophecy, the Jewish Commenters themselves affiume to be very difficult ; and howsoever their later Masters strive all they can, to turne it from Christ, in hatred to whom, they strangely ring, and wrest the severall passages of it, writhing, and wriggling them, sometime one way, and sometime another, (wherein I could with, that some Christian Writers had not too far concurred with them,) by, and in applying them, some to Moses, some to Eldras, some to Jesus the sonne of Jolada k, some to Josias, some to Ezekias, some to Esay, some to Jeremy, some to Israel, in generall, or the maine body of the just ones returned from the Captivity ; (unto none of all which, the subject matter of it will agree) yet the Chaldee Paraphrast expoundeth it of the Messias ; and so likewise some of them acknowledge upon the place, that their ancient Doctors did. The title was before given unto Christ, Chapter 42. 1. and hereafter, Chapter 53. 11. so called by God the father, who here speaketh of him, because he did him service in the work of mans redemption, Luke 2. 49. John 5. 17, 30. and 6. 38. and 9.4. and 10. 18. and 12. 49. and 14. 31. and 17. 4, and 18. 11. Phillipians 2. 7,8. for the deliverance of his Elect from the thraldome of sin, and Satan, Matthew 1. 21. Gal 1. 4. and 3. 13. 1Thess. 1.10. Titus 2. 14. Heb. 2. 14, 15.

shall deal prudently] So the word seems to be used of David, 1Sam. 18. 30. or, shall prosper ; and so it is generally deemed to be used of the Messias, descended from David, Jer 23,5. of whom also it is said, chap.53.10. that the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in his hand.

he shall be exalted, and extolled, and be very high.] Divers terms heaped up, to expresse in part the transcendent, and unexpressible advancement of Christ, in regard of his humane nature, assumed by his deity, the Eternal Word, to subsist in one person with it. John 1. 14. Hebr. 2. 16. For the Talmudists doe but trifle, when they dreame of three distinct degrees in the text ; exalted above Abraham, extolled above Moses, and advanced above the Angels ; though the things themselves be true, John 8.53,56. Heb.3.3. 5.& 1.4-7 but not so particularly here intended. Rather, as some of ours every way exalted, that men are ordinarily wont so to be ; to wit, when raised from a mean estate to some honourable condition, or from a private life, to magistracy, and government, Gen. 41. 14,40——44. Psalm 105. 17——22. and 78 70, 71. and 113. 7,8. Eccles. 1. 14. or when furnished with such parts, and endowments of wildome and understanding, as makes them admirable in the eyes of others, Gen. 41. 39. 1 King. 3. 12. and 10. 24. Daniel 1.19, 20. and 5.11. and when enabled to perform and goe thorow with great matters, whereby they become famous, and renowned, far and neer, 2 Sam. 7. 8, 9. 1 Chron. 26. 7——8. In all which respects, our Saviour was most eminently exalted, above all creatures in Heaven, and Earth ; as by the Scriptures above pointed to, and those typical Psalmes, 2. and 45. and 72. 10. most evidently appeareth. See on Chapter 53. 4 See Ephes. 1. 20——22. Phil. 2.9,10. Col. 1. 19. and 2. 3,9. Heb. 2.7,8. and 12. 2.

V. 14. As many were astonied at thee] The speech of the Father, not of Christ, as before ; but unto Christ, whom he here directeth his speech unto. The words some expound, of an astonishment at Christ, in way of admiration of him, in regard of the power of his Deity, and his excellent parts, appearing, and manifesting themselves, partly, in his manner of teaching ; and partly, in the miracles, and mighty workes wrought by him, Matthew 7. 28, 29. and 8. 27. and 13. 54. and 22. 33. Marke 1. 22, 27. and 6. 2. and 7. 37. and 11. 18. Luke 9. 43. But this sense suits not well with the course of the context. The word rather, according, both to the Originall, and the ordinary use of it, is here to be understood of such an astonishment as ariseth from the contemplation of some strange, uncouth, and ruefull spectacle or of desolation, deformity, misery, or the like. So is it used, Levit. 26.32. where the notation of it also is expressed. So also, 1King. 9.8. 2Chron. 7.21. Jer. 18.16. & 19.8. & 49.17. & 50.13. Ezek. 26.16. & 27.35.& 28.19. and no marvel, if many were astonished at the sight of our Saviours condition, in regard of those base, disgraceful, and dispitefull usages, that were offered, and done, to him, in the time of his humiliation here on earth, when his followers were so amazed at the relation of them, when they were sometime foretold them, Matt. 16. 22-24.

(his visage was so marred more then any man, and his form more then the sons of men)] Those that expound the foregoing branch, of mens wondring at Christs excellencies, make these words the second member of the collation, which the note of similitude, prefixed to the former, the weth, here to be intended: as if the text ran thus; As he was sometime highly admired for his powerful words and works; so he shall afterward be as much abused and disgraced again. But the reddition of the similitude, cometh afterward in the next verse : this being inserted between both, by way of parenthesis, with a transition from person to person, in this Prophet not unusual ; (see chap 1.29.30 & 3.9. & 3.25. 26. and we need not therefore, with some of ours, either offer to alter the text, or understand the former, of one person; and the latter of another : that, of Israel, this, of Christ,) as rendring a reason, why at sight of our Saviour, in time of his depression, many should be so astonished. Howbeit, the words are not so to be understood, as if our blessed Saviour had, in regard of his bodily person, or presence, been some strange, deformed, or misshapen creature ; but in regard of his outward estate, coming of mean, and obscure parentage, ch.53.2. living in a low despicable condition, ch. 53.3. exposed to scorn, and contempt, and to much affliction, thorow the whole course of his life, ch.53.2. and more especially, yet, in regard of what he was also in his Personal appearance ; through the base and despitefull usages, that he sustained at the hands of his malitious and mischievous adversaries, when they had gotten him into their power, Pl. 22. 12-18. and 69.19-21.& 71.7. cha.50.6. and 52 5,7,10. Mat.26.67,68. and 27.26-44. Mar.14.65 & 15.15-32. Luk.22.44,63 & 23.26,33,35-39. Joh,19.1,5,16-18,23,29. A learned late Writer would have this passage read by way of interrogation, as the words of those that wonder at the sight of Christ, thus rending the text, saying, (as Psal.105.15.) is his visage in such manner corrupted, or marred ? &c but the former version seemeth the more familiar, and to come off more freely.

his visage was so marred] His watching, dragging to and fro, from place to place, buffeting, scourging, carrying his crosse, and other misusage, could not, but much alter the state of his body, and impair, yea, deface all the sightlinels of it. Howbeit, the word visage, here, and form, in the next branch, seem to be taken more largely. for all outward appearance, both of bodily shape and of state, or condition in general; as sight or appearance, ch. 11.3. Joh. 7.24. and form, 1Sam.28.14. 2 Tim.3.5. and face, or person, Deut. 16.19. Rom. 2.11. So shap.53.2. Heb. saith the corruption of his visage more then, or, above a man : for they seem wide here, who diving the word from another root, would have it rendred, the anuction of his person above any man, Psal. 45. 2,7.

more then any man] Heb. then a man : a man for, any man, or, any one; as chap. 4.11. & 40.26.& 50. 2. so that he seemed rather as a worm, then a man, Psal.22.6.

and his form more then the sons of men] As if no form, or shape of a man, were left to be seen in him : as some render those words, Psal. 38.3. chap. 1. 6. the same notion in other terms ; as Job 25. 6.

V. 15. So shall he sprinkle many nations] The reddition, or latter part of the collation, concerning Christs exaltation, opposed to the former, concerning his humiliation. ver. 14. and further confirming and illustrating what concerning Christs succes, and advancement, was before delivered, ver 13.

sprinkle] The Jewish Commenters expound these words, some of them, of the slaughter that he should make of his enemies ; he shall sprinkle them, that is, shed their blood; chap. 63.3. their blood was sprinkled upon my garments ; some, of them, of the reproches that shall go abroad of his honour, and valour, for the term of sprinckling, or dropping rather, is, say they, used of speech, Deut. 32.2. Ezek. 20. 46. & 21.2. Amos 7.16. Mic. 2.6,11. to the meaning should be, he shall make them to sprinkle, or drop, that is, give them occasion to talk of him: but the word of sprinkling, is one, those of dropping, other: & this never found to used, thoughthose are. Others of them again, but without example, likewise, would have the word taken, in a notion of distinction, he shall fay they grow strong, and drive away the horns of the Heathen, that had formerly dispersed Gods people, Zach. 1.21. but these Interpretations are groundleis, and forced. Ours expound the words much to one effect ; to wit, that Christ should bedew many Nations with the Doctrine of the Gospel, by the ministery of his Apostles, and thereby convert them to the Faith, through the efficacy of the Spirit, accompanying the same, and working faith in them, chap. 59.10,21. Mat 28.18. Acts 2.33,38,41. Rom. 10. 17. 2 Cor. 3.6. or, which comes all to one, that he should tanctify and cleanse them with his Spirit, imparted to them, by the Word, and with his blood, by faith applyed unto their soals, Ezek 36.25,27. Joh. 1.13, & 17.17. Act.15.9 Gal.3.2. Eph. 5.26. 1Pet. 1 2, 1 Joh. 1.7. Rev. 1.5. & 7.14 an allusion, as some think, to the water, and washing with it, used in the Evangelical Baptisme, Mat.3.11. Joh.3.5. Acts 2.38 & 22.16 1Pet. 3.21. as others, to the the legal baptisings, or sprinckings, with water, or blood, or both mixt together ; for the sanctifying of some, and cleansing of others, that were legally unclean, Exod. 24.5,8.& 29 4. 20.21. Lev. 13,6,7,8. Num. 19.12——21. Psal. 51.7. Heb. 9.10,13,14,18-22. & 10.8.10.22.

the Kings shall shut their mouths at him] Kings simply, (for there is no article in the original) or even Kings (as chap 5.14. 22. and 60.10. & 62.2.) shall shut their mouths (Heb. mouth as, tongue, also, Job 29.10.) out of reverence and reipect, out of another manner of astonishment at him now, then before, ver 14 to wit, out of admiration of his incomparable excellency. See Job 29 9,10. or, being so convinced of the truth of his teaching, that they shall not be able, or dare once to contradict it, Luk 21.12,15. See Job 40. 4,5. Psal. 107.42. Mic.7.17. But the former seems rather here chiefly intended. For the Jewish Critick doth but dally here who, to make this suit with his forced fancy, concerneth the foregoing branch, would fasten upon this a double sense : the word here used, faith he, hath a two-fold notion ; of opening, and of shutting; of opening, as it fignifies to skip : for in skiping, or leaping, the feet are opened, Cant. 2.8. of shutting, as of closing, Deut. 15 7. Job 5.16. here it may import both : they shall open their mouths to talk of him ; and they shall shut their mouths, in way of wonderment at him. But this is to make a Pythick sword of Gods Word. And yet such quirks are too many much taken with.

for that which had not been told them, shall they see ; and that which they had not heard, shall they consider.] For, Heb. and; as chap.40.29. They shall see those things fulfilled, which their Wizards could never foretel ; nor had been told by any other, and they shall hear such mysteries, yea, that hear them only ; but consider seriously of them, and understand them aright. (See chap. 1.3.) as they never had been made acquainted with, or had once thought on before, chap.41.26. and 45.21. and 64.4. Rom.16.25, 26. 1Cor.2.8,9. or, as others read, and render the words; they to whom it had not been related, or, to whom nothing had been related of him, shall see : and those that had not heard ; shall consider, or, understand. So the ancient, both Greek and Latine, and of ours not a few. See chap.65. 1. Rom.15.20,21. I go rather with the former ; the fyntax seeming to me the more familiar, and the fuller. The same way go the Jewish Commenters, save that some of them conceive it spoken, not simply, and absolutely, but comparatively ; they shall see greater glory, and excellency in him, then ever they heard, or dreamed of ; they shall find, and know his magnificence to go far beyond whatsoever they had been told, or could conceive of him before. See of Solomon, 1King. 10. 6,7.

CHAP. LIII.

Vers. 1. WHO hath believed our report ?] Or, who believeth our report ? or, doctrine; as ch. 28.19. or, preaching, as some render it, Hos. 7. 12. Heb. hearing, chap.28.19. that which they hear from us ; these glad tydings before-mentioned, Chap. 52. 7. Some for the better connexion of the ensuing difficoulte, with the former, prefix the adversative particle, But ; rendring the words : But who hel eveth our report ? that is, who, say they, of the Jewish people : the fewnels of those that received the Gospel among that people, being oppoled to the multitudes of other nations, that should embrace it, and believe in Christ, chap. 52. 15. So the words containe a complaint of the paucity, and small number of those, among the Jews, that gave any credit to the Prophecies foregoing, concerning Christ, and the doctrine of his Kingdom, and his glorious advancement, either in the times of this our Prophet, and other his fellow-messengers ; or, in the time, that being exhibited in the flesh, he lived here upon earth : unto which times, we find these words applyed in the Gospel, Joh. 12. 37, 38. Rom. 10. 16. See chap. 49.4. Joh. 3.32. & 5.43,44. & 7.5,48. Act. 28.22. See for the form of speech, Psalm 90.11. chap. 50.10.

and] Or, or ; as chap. 40.13,18.

to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed ?] His mighty power working by, and manifesting it self in Christ, and in the ministery of his Word, ch. 40.10. & 51.5.& 52.10. Rom. 1.16. 1Cor. 1.18,24. which must from God be revealed, before it can be believed, chap. 54.23. Mat. 11.25. & 16.17. Joh. 6. 44,45. 1Cor. 2.9,12. Gal. 1. 12. Heb. upon whom; which some taking hold of, thus render the text ; upon whom is the arm of the Lord stript up, or, made bare ? that is, on whom hath the ministery of his servants an efficacious work, for the converting of them unto God ? a metaphor, say they, taken from Workmen, who are wont, for the better expedition, to strip the arm up to the elbow, when they go about their work. See chap. 52. 10. But this seems over-curious; nor will the Greek, in the Gospel, bear it ; and the particle, though it usually fignifie upon ; yet is it also frequently used for vnto; as Exod.20.3 to my face: so the words there are, 2 Kin.18.27.compared with Esay 36.12.1 Sal.13.6.& 18.41.ch.19.13.with v.11.

V.2. For he shall grow vp before him, as a tender plant] Heb. And, which both the old Greek, and Latine, and some other after them retain. Others, render it, indeed, as chap.30.20. Or, Yet, as ver.7.ch.46.7. and others again, not a few, whom our version concurreth with, For; as ver.1.Chap 52.15.& 64.5.as ushering in a paſſage, wherein the ground is diſcovered, and a reaſon rendred, how it came, or ſhould come to paſs, that ſo few of the Jewiſh nation ſhould entertain Chriſt, as the Meſſias, and their Saviour, and give belief to the doctrine of the Prophets and Apoſtles, concerning him. They looked for a Meſſias to come in princely ſtate, with royal attendance, and ſecular power, that ſhould reign and rule, as ſome mighty Monarch, and ſet them free from the bondage of the Romane Empire, and when they ſaw nothing leſs; but all cleane contrary in Chriſt, hence came it to paſs, that they were offended in him, and could by no means be induced to believe that ſuch an one ſhould be their Meſſias, Mat.1 3.55,57.*Luk.*24.21.Joh.7.27, 41,52.1.23.

grow up] Heb.aſcend; which ſome underſtand, of Chriſts exaltation; as if it were ſaid, that he ſhould riſe and grow great, for all this, that ſo few entertain him, and believe in him. And ſome of note,ſo this purpoſe,would thus joyn this verſe with the latter part of the former, And he,on whom the arm of the Lord ſhall be revealed (to wit, Chriſt)ſhall grow up: but this offereth too much violence to the context. And albeit, the word here uſed, doth ſometime import ariſing,by advancement,and improvement of height,ſtrength, ſtature, or ſtate, Chapter 40. 31. Jeremiah 51. 53. yet it is uſed commonly of plants, ſimply ſpringing up, without any ſuch ſpecial connotation,Chapter 32.3. and all the circumſtances of the text do carry it another way, as in the opening of the words will appear.

before him] This ſmall particle is very variouſly expounded.Some underſtand it, of God; that in the ſight or God he ſhould be great, and highly eſteemed, though mean, and of no account in mans eyes, as the like is ſaid, in expreſs terms, of John his Herbinger, Luk.1.15, and, in effect, of Chriſt alſo, Luk. 1.32. or, that by his moſt wiſe, and powerful providence,he ſhould be produced,and under his protection, having his eye perpetually upon him, grow up to a great height, Chapter. 52. 13. Others, of the people, in whoſe eyes he ſhould appear, and ſeem to be ſuch,as is hereafter intimated.Others, of Chriſt himſelf, that he ſhould be lowly, and of ſmall eſteem in his own ſight, as it is ſaid of Saul, 1 Sam.15.17.and in the perſon of Chriſt, Pſalm.22.6. Others, laſtly, of none of all theſe;be.cauſe no expreſs mention of any of theſe,unto whom it may fitly be referred, but of the outward ſhew that Chriſt ſhould make, reading the text, for his appearance, or outward ſhew, or ſtate: for the word face, in Hebrew, is very frequently ſo uſed; as was before ſhewed, on Chapter 52. 14. and anſwereth to the word ſight, or, appearance; uſed afterward, in the laſt clauſe of this verſe,for ſight,as for height, Prov. 15.3. where the ſame particle is ſo uſed; and this beſt ſuits with the ſcope, and current of the context.

as a tender plant] The word tender is not in the text; and true it is, that the term here uſed, is of a large extent in the ordinary uſe of it, comprehending branches of all ſorts, without diſtinction of ſtrength, or ſize. See Pſalm 80.11. Hoſ. 14.6.Job 8.15,16.18.& Ezek.17.4.where,though our verſion renders it, a young twig,which would do very well here; yet the word,never before going, controll it there. The word properly ſignifieth, a ſuckling, or ſucking-childe, Num.11.12.Pſal.8.2.1.Sam.15.3.& 22.19.Jer.44.7. Lam.2.11.and 4.4. and ſo the ancient Greek, and ſome after them, here take it; but the reſemblance, here uſed, admitteth not that. In the next place, therefore, the word doth ſignifie, ſometime, a branch, or, bough, in general; becauſe it ſucketh, and draws the ſap and moyſture, as milk, from the root, or ſtock, from whence it ſhoots up,or ſpreads out, Rom.11.17,ſometime, more ſpecially, ſuch a plant,or, twig, as reſembleth for its tenderneſs, and finalneſs of growth, ſome ſuckling, or ſucking-child: for ſo it is uſed, Job 14.7. where it is not a mis rendred, a tender branch;and may well here(the circumſtances of the place , not well admitting only, but requiring it) a tender plant, or young twig, as we uſe to ſay, a ſucker : for ſo uſe we to term ſuch young plants , as ſhoot up from the root of ſome elder tree,or Stander.See ch.11.1.This ſome underſtand of the mean beginnings of Chriſts Kingdom; though afterward wonderfully thriving,and proſpering.Mat.13.31,32.Mar.4.27-32. Others,rather of Chriſt himſelf.See ch.11.1.

——and as a root out of a dry ground] By root, ſome underſtand here, a ſtock, ſprouting out, or ſpringing up from a root, as chap. 11.10. Rev.5.5.but it may be here taken in its ordinary notion; the word,ſtock or twig,or plant,being ſupplyed from the former branch, as is not unuſuall. See on ch. 51. 8. and ſo the words may be rendred, and as, or even as(a ch.11.6.& 40.30.) the twig, or plant of a root, that iſueth out of a dry ground. Heb. a ground of drought, or thirſt, as Pſalm 63.1.& 68.6. where it is ſtrange(ſaith the Jewiſh Commenter)that tree, or herb, ſhould take root; and much more unlikely, that it ſhould thrive, and bear fruit, as this plant was to do, Chap.52.13.ver. 10. By this dry ground, ſome underſtand the Virgin Mary, Chriſts Mother, in regard of hope of ſhue, while ſhe ſhould ſo continue, as ſuch See ch.56.3. Tsk.1.34. Others, the decayed ſtock of David, and mean Family or ſcile , that then ſeemed to be a dry tree , a dead ſtock of a tree rather, as being reduced to a far lower eſtate, then it was in at firſt. See ch 11.1. But I ſuppoſe we need not appropriate this limb of the compariſon unto either of theſe, albeit, the conſideration of the mean, and low ſtate and condition of both theſe(Joſeph the Virgins husband being alſo taken in to them) come within compaſs of that, which is aimed at ; to wit, the mean condition in our Saviour, which cauſed him ſo deſpicable in the eyes of his own people, Luk.1. 48. & 2. 8 & 3.23.Mat.13.55.Mar.6.3. It is ſufficient, that by this reſemblance is intimated , ſuch a poor , and baſe condition , without ſightly ſhew or ſtate, as might well be compared to ſome ſorry plant, that had,with much adoe,thut up,and got about ground from ſome ſlender ſapleſs root, in ſome ſuch waſte and waterleſs place. See Jeremiah 17. 6.

he hath no form, nor comelineſs] The former word applied to a plant, ſeems to import the ſight itſelf, or comelineſs of a plant, or tree in regard of the trunk, and body of it, its ſhape, proportion, ſtraightneſs , ſmoothneſs , well colouredneſs, and the like : but it comes of a word , that ſignifies , to delineate, draw out, or portray ought, in its due ſhape and lineaments, Joh. 1 5. 9.1 Kin.8 19.23 ch. 44.23. and applied to mankind, or woman-kind, ſignifies a perſon well compoſed, and complexion, well faced and featured, or well proportioned, and ſhaped, Gen 29.17. & 39.6. So it is uſed about beaſts, Gen.41.2.where,with its epithet,it is rendred, of a fair and, and might as well be, well-featured, and fat: Lamels bettering the feature of a beaſt, as kannels defaceth it : the latter ſeems to have reference, in plants, to that ſightlineſs of them, that proceedeth from the leaves, and bloſſoms, and buds, and buds, or other like verdure, wherewith ſuch are wont to be arrayed and adorned. So it is uſed, Lev. 23.40. where they are enjoyned at the feaſt of Tabernacles to take the fruit, (that is bon Jo, or bonaries, as it is explained, Neh.8.15.or more ſpecially,caſe-bonaries, and branches, (for to the word there uſed, properly ſignifies. See Prov.11.28 poſſeſſes of righteouſneſs, or goodneſs, that is, of righteous, or goodly trees, (as it is there rendred, of ſuch trees, as were thick with Leav.s,and twigs, as in both places it is afterward expounded)to make them bon bs of. And hence applyed to beaſts, it is attributed to ſuch, as are unmiſcefed, and garnished with goodly and ſtately heads or horns, Deut.33. 17.given to men, and women, it is uſed of ſuch, as are attired and decked with goodly and gorgeous apparel, Chap.62.3. Ezek.16.10. 14 where the word is alſo uſed. Hence thoſe ſpeeches in the Proverbs, in the multitude of people, is the kings honour, Prov.14. 28.as if he had ſaid, not to much , in his rich and royal robes, as in the numerouſneſs of his ſubjects 3 and Prov.20.29. the beauty of young men is their ſtrength,and the ſightlineſs of old men is the gray-head; that is, vigour and valour, ſtrength out, and adorneth the one; and his gray hairs, the other ; more then fine, and gay apparel doth either. Now leaves and verdure, are to plants, as veſtments and attire, unto man, or woman. Howbeit, ſome of the Rabbines, on Gen.29.17.where beauty in two diſtinct reſpects, is given unto Rachel, and uſe made of theſe two words, by the former, inded finding it the feature,or compoſure of the face,by the other,the cleerneſs of the complexion or countenance. But I ſuppoſe them not to be ſo ſtrictly here taken. However,the mean eſtate of the Meſſias, void of all ſhew and luſtre, that is wont to draw mens eyes after it, is here very pithily and pregnantly, ſet forth, and clothered by the reſemblance of ſuch a plant, as hath neither height nor ſtrength, nor comely shape, nor leaves,or verdure, to make it any way ſightly,or deſireable. Or,if it ſhall be deemed,that in the former branch only, ſome plant is alluded unto, the perſon of man rather in this latter,ſuch a party is here intimated,as for perſonage and ſtature,may be compared unto ſuch a plant, as by ſuch notions hath been deſcribed. See ch.1.30.

and when we ſhall ſee him, there is no beauty that we ſhould deſire him] Heb. and we ſhall ſee him, and no ſi ht (or ſightneſs; for ſo the word ſoundeth,having an elegant conſonance, with the term of ſeeing, whereof it is derived,Chap.52.14, and comprehendeth both the former)is (to wit, in him, a defect of the perſon, as Deut.2.12.ch. 35.9.the like ſyntax, ſee Prov.4.1.Cant. 3.7.9.& no form as it may be rendred,by ſupply from the former member,as Gen.16.6.Exo.25.6.) we ſhall not ſee any ſightneſs in him; and we ſhall deſire him, for that we ſhould deſire him:as Chap.40.25 Mal.1. 9 that is, for which or in regard wherof, we ſhould have any deſire, or affection unto him: neither is there any need, as ſome would, to ſupply the negative from the former branch, as Pſalm 9.18.Prov.30.3.rendring the words,and we ſhall not deſire him,there being as much implyed without it. He that is ſtyled, the deſire of all nations, Hagg.1.7.(whence ſome are of opinion, that Muchmed,or Mahommed , borrowed his name, that he might be deemed as another Meſſias)and who much better then Daniel,might be termed. a man of deſires, Dan. 10.11, 19.having all deſireable things that can be, yea, all deſireableneſs, treaſured up in him, Col.2.3.9. in tune beauty, and excellency,far exceeding and ſurpaſſing, not the ſons of men only, Pſalm 45.2.7. but the Angels themſelves, Heb.1.4 yet appears ſo ſhrit, and deveſted of all thew of any ſuch matter, Phil 2. 6,7,8.that his own people,when they ſee him,can diſcern nothing at all ſightly,or deſireable

V.3. He is deſpiſed, and rejected of men] It was not enough to ſay of him, that he was not eſteemed, ver 2. both, adds the other now, of him, that he was diſeſteemed, and deſpiſed, and that moſt baſely, that he was, as ſome : mo baſe only and deſpicable, but even vile, and abominable: contumace, both diſpiſed, and rejected. See Chap. 49.7 deſpiſed,as of Jeconiah, Jer.22.28.rejected of men,as ſome, taking the word for a noun : a rejection of man, the abſtract for the concrete, as 1 Cor.4.13. But I conceive it rather to be a participle, found entire, Ezek.3.17. but he is contracted because it reſteth on the word adjoyned to it : and it is not amiſs rendred by our Translators, reſted of men, that is , as one of the Jewiſh Commenters, reſted of men, as one abject then any man, as Chap. 52. 14. (as to there either mare abject then any man, as Chap. 52. 14. (as to there ſhould be a want of the preposition there uſed, as there is alſo, Chap.10 7.& 32.2.and that in this very notion, alſo)Chap.65.5. and caſt out from the company and ſociety of men, as fearce deemed worthy the name of a man, Pſalm. 22.6. and unworthy therefore, to converſe with men, or to have any communion with them. See of Paul, Act.22. 22 and this latter ſiteth well with the Hebrew; for it is word for word, ceaſing of men, or ceaſing from men: as one that cannot be admitted to any ſociety with them: the condition of the leper, Levit.13.46.2 Chr.2.6. 21. deemed in that regard, as dead, Num.12.12.Job 12.4.See Pſalm 31.11,12.& 88. 4,5.8.So rather, then as one, the laſt, or loweſt of men as Paul or himſelf, the laſt, and leaſt of the Apoſtles: yea , the baſe, or (as the word imports, compoſed of a two old dege e of comparition) baſer then the leaſt of the Saints, and worthy to be called an Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 15.8,9.Eph.3.8 to here, as we would ſay the very bell, or very end of mankind, one, as without the nature, and name of man end. To mean, and to low, that the nature of man can hardly deſcend lower, and may therefore ſeem ſcarce worthy the name of a man. See Pſalme 22. 6. and what Agar of himſelf, Proverbs 30. 2. But thaſeems to ſtrain ſome what to far. Howbeit, Chriſt of himſelf ſaith,that he was to be made nought-worth,or nothing, Mar.9.12.

a man of ſorrowes] Not of ſorrow barely, but of ſorrowes: not a man full of ſorrow, or filled with ſorrow only; as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks Our ſoul is exceedingly filled with ſcorn, and contempt, Pſal 123.3.4. but, a man of ſorrowes, as the Pſalmiſt elſewhere; My ſoul is full of evils; with evil or all ſorts, or all ſorts of evil: Pſal 88.3 and as Solomon, a man of wicked devices, Prov.12.2.a man, not wholly ſet upon, and addicted unto evil, only, ſuch an one as Moſes deſcribeth, Gen 6.5.all the deviſes of whole heart,(or whatſoever he deviſeth)is all day long; only. (that is continually, nothing but) evil: but a man made up of evil,or wicked devices of all ſorts,that deviſeth nothing but evil, and refraineth no device that is evil, Pſal.36.4.as if he confiſted of nothing but ſuch;a man of ſorrowes, of ſorrows of all ſorts, ſo full of them, that he may ſeem to conſiſt wholly of them to be made of no other mould : nothing but ſorrow to be ſeen in him,(ſee Chap. 1.6.)and variety of ſorrows, ſorrows of all ſorts; ſuch ſorrows, as for our ſake he ſuſtained, and for our ſins, verſe 4,5.

and acquainted with grief.] The participle here uſed,is by the Jewiſh Criticks diverſly,unto man, or woman. Howbeit, ſome of the Rabbines, on Gen.29.17.where beauty in two diſtinct reſpects, is given unto Rachel, and uſe made of theſe two words, by the former, inded finding it the feature,or compoſure of the face,by the other,the cleerneſs of the complexion or countenance. But I ſuppoſe them not to be ſo ſtrictly here taken. and when we ſhall ſee him, there is no beauty that we ſhould deſire him] Heb. and we ſhall ſee him, and no ſi ht (or ſightneſs; for ſo the word ſoundeth,having an elegant conſonance, with the term of ſeeing, whereof it is derived,Chap.52.14, and comprehendeth both the former)is (to wit, in him, a defect of the perſon, as Deut.2.12.ch. 35.9.the like ſyntax, ſee Prov.4.1.Cant. 3.7.9.& no form as it may be rendred,by ſupply from the former member,as Gen.16.6.Exo.25.6.) we ſhall not ſee any ſightneſs in him; and we ſhall deſire him, for that we ſhould deſire him:as Chap.40.25 Mal.1. 9 that is, for which or in regard wherof, we ſhould have any deſire, or affection unto him: neither is there any need, as ſome would, to ſupply the negative from the former branch, as Pſalm 9.18.Prov.30.3.rendring the words,and we ſhall not deſire him,there being as much implyed without it. word here may be taken, one reſpect, Iudaic, negative, and contumeli thereunto, which by our very tell ſpeech is ſignified therewith, as we uſe to ſay of thoſe who are only known or noted by bea ſay , or by ſight, but that have no ſociety or converſe with ther. Or, laſtly,as ſome tend it the word, both in Moſes and his known to ſo as there is a ſtand to be will for ſome time, that we have been frequently conver ant, and familiarly acquainted with, Heb. 5. Amos 3.2. which as it comes neareſt to the ordinary acception, and conſtruction of the tenſes in the original, ſo it is the ſame, in effect, with the laſt before expounded. Howbeit, the term of acquaintance , is attributed to the perſon , in the one, to that affection, in the other: both which, in ſubſtance , come all to one and import thus much; That Chriſt, and humane gifts, and incumbities , were to have great, and much acquaintance , the one with the other , he having had in his perſon , much experience of them , and they conſtantly keeping together with him : a great comfort it to all thoſe that have intereſt in him, Hebrews 4.15.

griefe] The word here uſed , (as the root alſo from whence it ſpringes)hath, in the firſt place, a notion of diſeaſe, or ſickneſs, Chap. 38.12. in the next place,(becauſe ſickneſs uſually brings pain, and weakneſs with it,)they are either of them uſed, ſome times in a notion of vexation, and grief, as 2 Kings 13.14. 2 Chr.35.25. Hoſ.5.15. ſometime, in a notion of infirmity, and weakneſs, as Judges 16.7,11, 17 Chap.14.10.and of either of the ſe, proceeding as well from any affliction of body or mind, as from any unnatural diſeaſe: in either of which latter notion it may well be here taken, not to ſiely in the firſt : becauſe we read not of any peculiar diſeaſe, ſuch as we uſually appropriate that term unto, that our Saviour was troubled with, all his life:and by ſome of the ancients, it is not improbably deemed, that he was not exempted with any ſuch , it being not ſo fuitable for him, to have any diſeaſe hanging on him, that ſhewed his power constantly, in the healing of other ; that it might not be objected to him as in another kind, and upon another occaſion, it was; Phyſician heal thy ſelf, Luk.4.23. infirmity,or infirmities,collectively, as Heb 5.2.

and we hid as it were our faces from him] The words in Hebrew are both directly read, and directly reſolved. For ſome make the firſt word a participle, an hiding, or one that hideth:and the participle, in that flexion, is very commonly ſo framed. Others make it a noun verbal, an hiding, and ſome verbals of that form are found. Again, ſome render the laſt, the particle with the pronoun from us, and that not a few embrace. Others, from him, and ſo the pronoun in that form, is moſt frequently uſed,yet in the other notion, alſo, not unuſual, Gen.3.22.Pſal.2.3. Hence ariſe variety of verſions; Some render the words, and he hid, as it were the face (that is, his face, the pronoun ſupplyed, as Chap.59.2.)from us; or he is as one that hideth his face. Heb. the face from him, or of him: but of this latter conſtruction, I find no ſuitable example. But whether of theſe two wayes we read, or render the words,they import ſuch a condition of deſpition, and contuſion, and of affection thence aring, as makes a man, like one aſhamed or himſelf, to cover his face, as not enduring to look up , or to be ſeen , and to ſhun the ſight of others : and ſo the meaning ſhould be, he is one, who, as confeious to himſelf, either of the deformity, and lothſomeneſs of his perſon, or of his deſpicable and dejected eſtate, hideth his face from humane ſight:the one was the lepers caſe, Levit.13. 45. the other, Babylons, Chap.47.3,5.and hence,together with the help of another word in the next verſe, have the Talmudiſts coined us a tale, how that one or their great Maſters met with their Meſſias,at Rome, where he found him lying among the lepers.But other render the words, and as an hidne. of faces,or of the faces,(for the Word, though of a plural form, yet is ordinarily of a ſingular notion, as Prov.25.23.Cha.59.2.from him,or as he, from whom one would hide the face, or his face; as before: that is, as one, whom men hide their faces from: this ſenſe our verſion follows : and following it, it may ſeem that it ſhould rather be rendred, and as one, from whom the face is hid,or men faces are hid,for according to this reading,the words are more general and indefinite ; there being no men, in the text. Now hiding the face, proceedeth,ſometime, from a reverent reſpect, and awful dread, 1 Kin.19.13.ſometime, from ſome ſtrange paſſion or love, that with a kind of joy abaſhment, affecteth the lover , upon the ſight of his beloved, as Jacob him in ſtaining his Canr.6.5. compared with Chap.49. (to ch 7 palpably abuſe, both that Scripture, and the Churches eyes, that is, her teachers, who thence would force a malignity intimated in them,)ſometime from pity, and ſoan paſſion; when men cannot endure to ſee ſome perſon deer unto them, or anyone the ſame nature with them, cruelly dealt with, or otherwiſe, in ſome lamentable condition, Eſth.8.6.ſometime, out of extream hatred,or at leaſt out of diſplicaſure,indignation,or wrath, 2 Sam 14.8 Pſal.10.11.& 27.9 Chap.54.8.& 59.2 ſometime, out of neglect, and diſregard of ſuch one, whom we loſt not to look after, Chap.58.7.ſometime, out of deteſtation, as from ſome vile , loathſome abhorred and abominable creature whom we cannot brook, or abide to behold, Chap.1.15, 14,15. and to this purpoſe , one of the Jewiſh Commenters telleth us, that there is a certain people that cannot endure the ſight of a Jew, but turn the face from him, alſo frequently uſed for unto; as Exod.20.3.to my face: ſo the words there are, 2 King.18.27.compared with Eſay 36.12.Pſal.13.6.& 18.41.ch.29,12.with v.11.

V.2. For he ſhall grow up before him, as a tender plant] Heb. And; which both the old Greek, and Latine, and ſome other after them retain. Others, render it, Indeed, as chap.30.20. Or, Yet; as ver.7.ch.46.7. and others again, not a few, whom our verſion concurreth with, For; as ver.11.Chap 52.15.& 64.5.as uſhering in a paſſage, wherein the ground is diſcovered, and a reaſon rendred, how it came, or ſhould come to paſs, that ſo few of the Jewiſh nation ſhould entertain Chriſt, as the Meſſias, and their Saviour, and give belief to the doctrine of the Prophets and Apoſtles, concerning him. They looked for a Meſſias to come in princely ſtate, with royal attendance, and ſecular power, that ſhould reign and rule, as ſome mighty Monarch, and ſet them free from the bondage of the Romane Empire, and when they ſaw nothing leſs; but all clean contrary in Chriſt, hence came it to paſs, that they were offended in him, and could by no means be induced to believe that ſuch an one ſhould be their Meſſias, Mat.13.55,57.Luk.24.21.Joh.7.27,41,53.1 Cor.1.23.

grow up]Heb.aſcend; which ſome underſtand, of Chriſts exaltation; as if it were ſaid, that he ſhould riſe and grow great, for all this, that ſo few entertain him, and believe in him. And ſome of note, to this purpoſe, would thus joyn this verſe with the latter part of the former; And he, on whom the arm of the Lord ſhall be revealed (to wit, Chriſt)ſhall grow up: but this offereth too much violence to the context. And albeit, the word here uſed, doth ſometime import ariſing, by advancement, and improvement of height, ſtrength, ſtature, or ſtate, Chapter 40. 31. Jeremiah 51. 53. yet it is uſed commonly of plants, ſimply ſpringing up, without any ſuch ſpecial connotation, Chapter 32.3. and all the circumſtances of the text do carry it another way, as in the opening of the words will appear.

before him]This ſmall particle is very variouſly expounded. Some underſtand it, of God; that in the ſight of God he ſhould be great, and highly eſteemed, though mean, and of no account in mans eyes, as the like is ſaid, in expreſs terms, of John his Herbinger, Luk.1.15.and, in effect, of Chriſt alſo, Luk. 1.32. or, that by his moſt wiſe, and powerful providence, he ſhould be produced, and under his protection, having his eye perpetually upon him, grow up to a great height, Chapter. 52. 13. Others, of the people, in whoſe eyes he ſhould appear, and ſeem to be ſuch, as is hereafter intimated. Others, of Chriſt himſelf, that he ſhould be lowly, and of ſmall eſteem in his own ſight; as it is ſaid of Saul, 1 Sam.15.17.and in the perſon of Chriſt, Pſalm.22.6. Others, laſtly, of none of all theſe; becauſe no expreſs mention of any of theſe, unto whom it may fitly be referred, but of the outward ſhew that Chriſt ſhould make, rendring the text, for his appearance, or outward ſhew, or ſtate: for the word face, in Hebrew, is very frequently ſo uſed; as was before ſhewed, on Chapter 52. 14. and anſwereth to the word ſight, or appearance; uſed afterward, in the laſt clauſe of this verſe for ſight, as for height, Prov. 25.3. where the ſame particle is ſo uſed; and this beſt ſuits with the ſcope, and current of the context.

as a tender plant] The word tender is not in the text; and true it is, that the term here uſed, is of a large extent in the ordinary uſe of it, comprehending branches of all ſorts, without diſtinction of ſtrength, or ſize. See Pſalm 80.11. Hoſ. 14.6.Job 8.15,16.30.& Ezek.17.4.where, though our verſion renders it, a young twig, which would do very well here; yet the words, next before going, controll it there. The word properly ſignifieth, a ſuckling, or ſucking-childe, Num.11.12.Pſal.8.2.1.Sam.15.3.& 22.19.Jer.44.7. Lam.2.11.and 4.4. and ſo the ancient Greek, and ſome after them, here take it; but the reſemblance, here uſed, admitteth not that. In the next place, therefore, the word doth ſignifie, ſometime, a branch, or, bough, in general; becauſe it ſucketh, and draws the ſap and moyſture, as milk, from the root, or ſtock, from whence it ſhoots up, or ſpreads out, Rom.11.17.ſometime, more ſpecially, ſuch a plant, or, twig, as reſembleth for its tenderneſs, and ſmalneſs of growth, ſome ſuckling, or ſucking-child: ſo is it uſed, Job 14.7. where it is not amiſs rendred, a tender branch; and may well here(the circumſtances of the place, not well admitting only, but requiring it) a tender plant, or young twig, as we uſe to ſay, a ſucker : for ſo uſe we to term ſuch young plants, as ſhoot up from the root of ſome elder tree, or Stander. See ch.11.1. This ſome underſtand of the mean beginnings of Chriſts Kingdom; though afterward wonderfully thriving, and proſpering, Mat.13.31,32.Mar.4 27-32. Others, rather of Chriſt himſelf, See ch.11.1.

and as a root out of a dry ground] By root, ſome underſtand here, a ſprig, ſprouting out, or ſpringing up from a root; as chap. 11.10. Rev.5.5.but it may be here taken in its ordinary notion; the word, ſprig or twig, or plant, being ſupplyed from the former branch, as is not unuſuall. See on ch. 51. 8. and ſo the words may be rendred; and as, or even as(a ch.1.6.& 40.30.) the twig, or plant of a root, that riſeth out of a dry ground. Heb. a ground of drought, or drineſs, as Pſalm 63.1.& 68.6. where it is ſtrange(ſaith the Jewiſh Commenter)that tree, or herb, ſhould take root; and much more unlikely, that it ſhould thrive, and bear fruit, as this plant was to do, Chap.52.13.ver. 10. By this dry ground, ſome underſtand the Virgin Mary, Chriſts Mother, in regard of hope of iſſue, while ſhe ſhould ſo continue, as ſuch. See ch.56.3. Luk.1.34. Others, of the decayed ſtock of David, and mean Family of Jeſſe, that then ſeemed to be a dry tree, or dead trunk of a tree rather; as being reduced to a far lower eſtate, then it was in at firſt. See ch 11.1. But I ſuppoſe we need not appropriate this limb of the collation, unto either of theſe, albeit, the conſideration of the mean, and low ſtate and condition of both theſe(Joſeph the Virgins husband being alſo taken in to them) come within compaſs of that, which is here aimed at; to wit, the mean condition of our Saviour, which made him ſo deſpicable in the eyes of his own people, Luk.1. 48.& 2.4.& 3.23.Mat.13.55.Mar.6.3.It is ſufficient, that by this reſemblance is intimated, ſuch a poor, and bare condition, without ſightly ſhew or ſtate, as might well be compared to ſome ſorry plant, that had, with much ado, ſhot up, and got above ground from ſome, almoſt ſapleſs root, in ſome ſuch waſte and waterleſs place. See Jeremiah 17. 6.

he hath no form, nor comelineſs] The former word applied to a plant, ſeems to import the ſightlineſs, or comelineſs of a plant, or tree in regard of the trunk, and body of it, its ſhape, proportion, ſtraightneſs, ſmoothneſs, well colouredneſs, and the like: for it comes of a word, that ſignifies, to delineate, draw out, or portray ought, in its due ſhape and lineaments, Joſh.15.9,11.& 19.13 ch.44.23. and applied to mankind, or woman-kind, ſignifies a perſon well compoſed, and complexion, well faced and featured, or well proportioned, and ſhaped, Gen 29.17.& 36.6. ſo it is uſed alſo of beaſts, Gen.41.2.where, with its epithet, it is rendred, well-favoured, and might as well be, well-featured, and fat: fatneſs bettering the feature of a beaſt, as leanneſs defaceth it: the latter ſeems to have reference, in plants, to that ſightlineſs of them, that proceedeth from the leaves, and bloſſoms, and kays, and fruits, or other like verdure, wherewith ſuch are wont to be arrayed and adorned. So it is uſed, Lev. 23.40. where they are enjoyned at the feaſt of Tabernacles to take the fruit, (that is boughs, or branches, as it is explained, Neh.8.15.or more ſpecially, leafie boughs, and branches, (for ſo the word there uſed, properly ſignifies. See Prov.11.28)of trees of ſightlineſs, or goodlineſſe, that is, of ſightly, or goodly trees, (as it is there rendred, of ſuch trees, as were thick with leaves, and twigs, as in both places it is afterward expounded)to make them booths of. And hence applyed to beaſts, it is attributed to ſuch, as are furniſhed, and garniſhed with goodly and ſtately heads or horns, Deut.33.17.given to men, and women, it is uſed of ſuch, as are attired and decked with goodly and gorgeous apparel, Chap.63.1.Ezek.16.10,14 where the word is alſo uſed. Hence thoſe ſpeeches in the Proverbs, In the multitude of people, is the ſightlineſs of a King, Prov.14.28.as if he had ſaid, not ſo much, in his rich and royal robes, as in the numerouſneſs of his ſubjects; and Prov.20.29. the bravery of young men is their ſtrength; and the ſightlineſs of old men is the gray-head; that is; vigour and valour, ſetteth out, and adorneth the one; and his gray hairs, the other; more then fine, and gay apparel doth either. Now leaves and verdure, are to plants, as veſtments and attire, unto man, or woman. Howbeit, ſome of the Rabbines, on Gen.29.17.where beauty in two diſtinct reſpects, is given unto Rachel, and uſe made of theſe two words, by the former, underſtand the feature, or compoſure of the face, by the other, the clearneſs of the complexion or countenance. But I ſuppoſe them not to be ſo ſtrictly here taken. Howſoever, the mean eſtate of the Meſſias, void of all ſhew and luſtre, that is wont to draw mens eyes after it, is here very pithily and pregnantly, ſet forth, and deciphered by the reſemblance of ſuch a plant, as hath neither height nor ſtrength, nor comely ſhape, nor leaves, or verdure, to make it any way ſightly, or deſireable. Or, if it ſhall be deemed, that in the former branch onely, ſome plant is alluded unto, the perſon of man rather in this latter, ſuch a party is here intimated, as for perſonage and ſtate, may be compared unto ſuch a plant, as by ſuch notions hath been deſcribed. See ch.1.30.

and when we ſhall ſee him, there is no beauty that we ſhould deſire him]Heb. and we ſhall ſee him, and no ſight(or ſightlineſs; for ſo the word ſoundeth, having an elegant conſonance, with the term of ſeeing, whence it is derived, Chap.52.14. and comprehendeth both the former)is(to wit, in him, a defect of the pronoun, as Deut.8.12.ch.35.9.the like ſyntax, ſee Prov.4.23.Chap.37.9,36.)or(as it may be rendred; by ſupply from the former member, as Gen.1.16.Ch.52.6.) we ſhall not ſee any ſightlineſs in him; and we ſhall deſire him, for that we ſhould deſire him: as Chap.40.25.Mal.1. 9 that is, for which or in regard whereof, we ſhould have any deſire, or affection unto him: neither is there any need, as ſome would, to ſupply the negative from the former branch, as Pſalm 9.18.Prov.30.3.rendring the words, and we ſhall not deſire him, there being as much implyed without it. He that is ſtyled, the deſire of all nations, Hagg.1.7.(whence ſome are of opinion, that Machmed, or Mahommed, borrowed his name, that he might be deemed as another Meſſias)and who much better then Daniel, might be termed, a man of deſires, Dan. 10.11,19.having all deſireable things that can be; yea, all deſireableneſs, treaſured up in him, Col.2.3,9. in true beauty, and excellency, far exceeding and ſurpaſſing, not the ſons of men only, Pſalm 45.2.7. but the Angels themſelves, Heb.1.4.yet appears ſo ſtript, and deveſted of all ſhew of any ſuch matter, Phil.2. 6,7,8, that his own people, when they ſee him, can diſcern nothing at all ſightly, or deſireable able in him. See ch.52.14.

V.3. He is deſpiſed, and rejected of men] It was not enough to ſay of him, that he was not deſired, ver.2. but he addeth further now, that he was, as ſome: not baſe only and deſpicable, but even vile, and abominable creature, both deſpiſed, and rejected. See Chap.49.7 deſpiſed, as of Jeconiah, Jer.22.28.rejected of men: or, as ſome, taking the word for a noun: a rejection of men; the abſtract for the concrete; as 1 Cor.4.13. But I conceive it rather to be a participle, found entire, Ezek.3.27. but here contracted, becauſe it reſteth on the word adjoyned to it: and it is not amiſs rendred by our Tranſlators, rejected of men; that is, as one of the Jewiſh Commenters; either more abject then any man, as Chap: 52. 14. (as ſo there ſhould be a want of the prepoſition there uſed, as there is alſo, Chap.20 7.& 32.2.and that in this very notion, alſo)Chap.65.5. or, one ſevered, and caſt out from the company and ſociety of men, as ſcarce deemed worthy the name of a man, Pſalm. 22.6. and unworthy, therefore, to converſe with men, or to have any communion with them. See of Paul; Act.22. 22. and this latter fitteth well with the Hebrew; for it is word for word, leaving of men, or, ceaſing from men: as one that cannot be admitted to any ſociety with them: the condition of the leper, Levit.13.46.2 Chr.26. 21. deemed in that regard, as dead, Num.12.10,12,14.See Pſalm 31.11,12.& 88.4,5-8.So rather, then as one, the laſt, or loweſt of men: as Paul of himſelf, the laſt, and leaſt of the Apoſtles: yea, the leaſt, or(as the word imports, compoſed of a two-fold degree of compariſon) leſſe then the leaſt of the Saints, not worthy to be called an Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 15.8,9.Eph.5.8.ſo here, as we would ſay the very liſt, or fag end of mankind, one, at whom the nature, and name of man ends. ſo mean, and ſo low, that the nature of man can hardly deſcend lower, and may therefore ſeem ſcarce worthy the name of a man. See Pſalme 22. 6. and what Agur of himſelf, Proverbs 30. 2. But this ſeems to ſtrain ſomewhat too far. Howbeit, Chriſt of himſelf ſaith, that he was to be made nought-worth, or nothing, Mar.9.12.

a man of ſorrows] Not of ſorrow barely; but of ſorrows: not a man full of ſorrow, or filled with ſorrow only; as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks Our ſoul is exceedingly filled with ſcorn, and contempt, Pſal.123.3,4. but, a man of ſorrows, as the Pſalmiſt elſewhere; My ſoul is full of evils; with evil of all ſorts, or all ſorts of evil: Pſal 88.3.and as Solomon, a man of wicked devices, Prov.12.2.a man, not wholly ſet upon, and addicted unto evil, only; ſuch an one as Moſes deſcribeth, Gen 6.5.all the device of whoſe heart,(or whatſoever he deviſeth)is all day long only, (that is, continually nothing but) evil: but a man made up of evil, or wicked devices of all ſorts, that deviſeth nothing but evil, and refraineth no device that is evil, Pſal.36.4.as if he conſiſted of nothing but ſuch: ſo a man of ſorrows, of ſorrows of all ſorts, ſo full of them, that he may ſeem to conſiſt wholly of them to be made of no other mould: nothing but ſorrow to be ſeen in him,(ſee Chap. 1.6.)and variety of ſorrows, ſorrows of all ſorts; ſuch ſorrows, as for our ſake he ſuſtained, and for our ſins, verſe 4,5.

and acquainted with grief] The participle here uſed, is by the Jewiſh Criticks diverſly expounded. Some of them would have it ſignifie cut off, or deſtroyed with infirmity, or grief. So they ſuppoſe the word whereof it cometh, to be taken, Judg.8.16.Prov.10.9.& 14.33.Jer.31.19.Ezek.19.7.but theſe places are not ſo pregnant; and others of them, underſtand them a l in another notion: the moſt of them therefore herein depart from them; and expound it according to the ordinary uſe, and ſenſe of the verb: ſome known by infirmity; well known, or commonly known, to be much ſubject thereunto, and exerciſed therewith, one ſo encompaſſed with infirmities, as, Heb.5.1.that they cannot but appear, and be ſeen in him by all that behold him: thus they take it, becauſe the word is in a paſſive form, and is by moſt ſo taken, Deut.1.13,15.but thoſe paſſive forms have ſometime an active, or a neuter notion, as in our languages, alſo, ſometime the like: and ſo others of them, as moſt of ours, take this here, rendring it, one knowing of infirmity; as it ſoundeth word for word, that is, knowing it experimentally: as it is ſaid, he that knew not ſin, 2 Cor.5.21. that neither had drawn ought of it from any other, nor done any himſelf: and as the tree inhibited, was called the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, Gen.2.9,17.not, as the devil ſuggeſted, becauſe the fruit thereof eaten, had a ſingular power to give man a notional knowledg of good and evil, which before he had not: but becauſe, upon the eating of it, contrary to Gods command, man ſhould come to have an experimental knowledg of evil, as well as of good, which before he had not: yea, and in ſome ſort, of the benefit and excellency of good alſo, being by the want, better: by the loſs of it(which is yet more)beſt known, ſo we uſe to ſay, ſuch an one never knew what miſery meant, having lived free from it, and, a man never knoweth what health is, untill he have had a fit of ſickneſs: thus it might be rendred, knowing of infirmity, as men knowing of the ſea, 1 King.9.27 and, knowing of the times, Eſt.1.13.and, knowing of good and evil, Gen.3.5. (for ſo the words are in thoſe places)that is, skilful in thoſe things: and as we uſe to ſay, a knowing man, for one skilful in ought: or, to fit it better to the Hebrew form, a man skilled in infirmity, as both the ancient Greek, and ſome of ours, alſo, take the word for skilful, or skilled, in the place of Deuteronomy before pointed to: or, as the word taught.c.54.13. doth ſometime imply, not only learned, and ſo skilled in ought, but one alſo expert, or experienced in, and accuſtomed, or enured unto ought, Jer.2.24.& 3.23. and the word of learning is uſed by the Apoſtle, both of himſelf, Phil.4.11,12. and of Chriſt, Heb.5.8.ſo the word here may be taken, one enured to infirmity, or grief, and accuſtomed thereunto; which by ours is very fitly rendred, acquainted therewith, as we uſe to ſay of thoſe, who not only know one another by hear-ſay, or by ſight, but that have familiarly converſed together. Or, laſtly, as ſome render the word, both in Moſes, and here, known of it: as thoſe are ſaid to be well known of us, that we have been frequently converſant, and familiarly acquainted with, Hoſ.5.3.Amos 3.2. which, as it comes neereſt to the ordinary acception, and conſtruction of the terms in the original, ſo is it the ſame, in effect, with the laſt before propoſed. Howſoever, the notice, or acquaintance, is attributed to the perſon, in the one; to the affection, in the other: both which, in ſubſtance, come all to one: and import thus much; That Chriſt, and humane griefs, and infirmities, were to have great, and much acquaintance, the one with the other, he having had in his perſon, much experience of them, and they conſtantly keeping together with him: a great comfort to all thoſe that have intereſt in him, Hebrews 4.15.

grief] The word here uſed, (as the root alſo from whence it ſprings)hath, in the firſt place, a notion of diſeaſe, or ſickneſs, Chap.38.1,9. in the next place,(becauſe ſickneſs uſually bringeth pain, and weakneſs with it,)they are either of them uſed, ſometime, in a notion of vexation, and grief; as Eccl.5.17.& 6.2.Jer.5.3 Hoſ.5.13. ſometime, in a notion of infirmity, and weakneſs, as Judges 16.7,11,17.Chap.14.10.and of either of theſe, proceeding as well from any affliction of body, or mind, as from any natural diſeaſe: in either of which latter notions, it may well be here taken, not ſo fitly in the firſt: becauſe we read not of any peculiar diſeaſe, ſuch as we uſually appropriate that term unto, that our Saviour was troubled with, all his life: and by ſome of the ancients, it is not improbably deemed, that he was not exerciſed with any ſuch; it being not ſo ſuitable for him, to have any diſeaſe hanging on him, that ſhewed his power conſtantly, in the healing of others; that it might not be objected to him, as in another kind, and upon another occaſion, it was; Phyſitian heal thy ſelf, Luk.4.23. infirmity, for infirmities, collectively, as Heb.5.2.

and we hid as it were our faces from him] The words in Hebrew are both diverſly read, and diverſly reſolved. For ſome make the firſt word a participle, as one hiding, or one that hideth: and the participle, in that flexion, is very commonly ſo framed. Others make it a noun verbal, as an hiding, and ſome verbals of that form are found. Again, ſome render the laſt, the particle with the pronoun from us, and that not a few embrace. Others, from him, and ſo the pronoun in that form, is moſt frequently uſed, yet in the other notion, alſo, not unuſual, Gen.3.22.Pſal.2.3. Hence ariſe variety of verſions; Some render the words, and he hid, as it were the face (that is, his face, the pronoun ſupplyed, as Chap.59.2.)from us; or he is as one that hideth his face. Heb. the face from him, or of him: but of this latter conſtruction, I find no ſuitable example. But whether of theſe two wayes we read, or render the words, they import ſuch a condition of dejection, and confuſion, and of affection thence ariſing, as makes a man, like one aſhamed of himſelf, to cover his face, as not enduring to look up, or to be ſeen, and to ſhun the ſight of others: and ſo the meaning ſhould be, he is one, who, as conſcious to himſelf, either of the deformity, and lothſomeneſs of his perſon, or of his deſpicable and dejected eſtate, hideth his face from humane ſight: the one was the lepers caſe, Levit.13.45. the other, Babylons, Chap.47.3,5.and hence, together with the help of another word in the next verſe, have the Talmudiſts coined us a tale, how that one of their great Maſters met with their Meſſias, at Rome, where he found him, lying among the lepers. But others render the words, and as an hiding of faces, or of the face,(for the Word, though of a plural form, yet is ordinarily of a ſingular notion, as Prov.25.23.Cha.59.2)from him, or as he, from whom one would hide the face, or his face; as before: that is, as one, whom men hide their faces from: this ſenſe our verſion follows: and following it, it may ſeem that it ſhould rather be rendred; and as one, from whom the face is hid, or mens faces are hid: for according to this reading, the words are more general and indefinite; there being no our, in the text. Now hiding the face, proceedeth, ſometime, from a reverent reſpect, and awful dread, Exod.3.6.1 King.19.13.ſometime, from ſome glorious ſplendor, that dazeleth the eye ſight, Chap. 6.2.Exod.34.30,33.2 Cor.3.13.ſometime, from ſome ſtrange paſſion of love, that with a kind of raviſhment, affecteth the lover, upon the ſight of his beloved, and caſteth him into fainting fits, Cant.6.5. compared with Chap.4.9. (for they palpably abuſe, both that Scripture, and the Churches eyes, that is, her teachers, who thence would force a malignity intimated in them,)ſometime from pitty, and compaſſion; when men cannot endure to ſee ſome perſon deer unto them, or any of the ſame nature with them, cruelly dealt with, or otherwiſe, in ſome lamentable condition, Eſt.8.6.ſometime, out of extream hatred, or at leaſt, out of diſpleaſure, indignation, or wrath, 2 Sam.14.8.Pſal.10.1.& 27.9.Chap.54.8.& 59.2.ſometime, out of neglect, and diſregard; as from one, whom we liſt not to look after, Chap.58.7.ſometime, out of deteſtation, as from ſome vile, loathſome abhorred and abominable creature, whom we cannot brook, or abide to behold, Chap.1.13, 14,15. and to this purpoſe, one of the Jewiſh Commenters telleth us, that there is a certain people that cannot endure the ſight of a Jew, but turn the face from him,

whereſoever they meet with any of them. But whether that be, or ever were ſo, or no, is not much material; nor at all, to this text. Howbeit, in this laſt notion, wherewith ſome alſo take in two of the next before it, I conceive the words may well be here underſtood. See Chap. 49.7. yet not concurring with thoſe that attribute this, hiding of the face, unto pitty and compaſſion; becauſe it croſſeth the main driſt of the whole context: nor conſenting with them, that ſuppoſe the covering of mens faces condemned to dye, to be here pointed at; as Ch. 25.7. Eſt. 7.8. To which purpoſe, they draw in alſo the blind-folding of Chriſt, Luk. 22.64. but that is the covering of the parties own face by others, not the hiding of others from him. Howbeit, all things well weighed, I encline rather to the firſt, both reading, and rendring; becauſe it both fitteth well the ſcope of the place, as importing a deſpicable and ſhameful condition and that of one, who ſeemed to be deveſted of that magnificence, which formerly he had been poſſeſſed of. See Joh. 17.5. Phil. 2.6, 7, 8. Heb. 12.2 and ſloweth moſt freely, without any force at all, from the terms uſed in the text.

and we eſteemed him not] Or. eſteem him not; (Phi. a. 7. he made himſelf of no eſteem) or regard him not; as the word is rendred, Chap. 33.8. he regards no man, Pſal. 144.3. the great contempt that ſhould be offered unto Chriſt by the Jewiſh Nation, being expreſſed here in a form of extenuation, but to be conceived in a notion of exaggeration, as if it had been ſaid more fully, We ſhall not only, when he cometh amongſt us, afford him no reſpect, or regard; but ſhall very reproachfully and diſgracefully abuſe him. See the like manner of ſpeech, Prov. 20.2 Treaſure wickedly gotten ſhall not profit; that is, ſhall do a man much miſchief: and, the father of a fool ſhall not rejoyce; he ſhall have no joy, but much grief. of him, Prov. 17.21. and, It is not good to have reſpect of perſons in Judgment, that is, indeed, it is ſtark naught, Prov. 24.23. and, If any man love not the Lord Jeſus, let him be anathema, maranatha; that is, accuſed, without revocation, irrevocably, and irrecoverably accurſt, 1 Cor. 16.22. a text by ſome, extreamly contred; meant of ſuch, as out of meer malice alone againſt knowledg, oppoſe Chriſt, and Chriſtianity; ſuch as our Saviour ſpeaks of, Matthew. 12.32. and the Apoſtle, Heb 6.6. & 10.26, 27, 29.

V. 4. Surely, he hath born our griefs, and carried our ſorrows;] He took upon him, not our nature alone, but the infirmities alſo of it; and became liable to ſuch ſorrows of affliction, and pains, as mans ſinful nature is expoſed, and ſubject unto. Rom. 8.3. Heb. 2.14, 15. Or, the griefs and ſorrows, that he is ſaid to have been ſo abundantly exerciſed with, ver. 3. (for theſe words have apparent reference to the very ſame there uſed) he ſuſtained for uſtand are thereforc called ours, becauſe procured to him, by our ſins; and ſuſtained by him, for the diſcharge of our ſins, unto the guilt whereof, out of love to us, undertaken by him, they were deſervedly due, Heb. 9. 29. 1 Pet. 2.24. & 3.8. Some would have the former word rendred, he took away, or hath taken away our griefs, that is, our ſins, the procuring cauſe of them, together with the griefs themſelves, the effect of them: And it is true, that the word ſignifies, ſometime, to take away, as Iob 7 21. and that our Saviour is ſaid to take away the ſins of the world, Joh. 1.29. but the ſequel of the context carryeth it another way. tending to ſhew here, rather the ground, and cauſe of his ſufferings then the end, or iſſue of them. This paſſage the Evangeliſt makes uſe of, in relating Chriſts practice, in the healing of corporal infirmities, not ſo much, as I conceive, thereby intimating, that thoſe bodily maladies, and the cure thereof, was, (as ſome would have it) a type of thoſe diſeases of the ſoul, that Chriſt came principally to free men from, and his deliverance of them from the ſame: but that by his tender pity, and compaſſionate affection towards perſons ſo effected, and afflicted, he ſhewed that he had aſſumed, together with our nature, the infirmities of the ſame; and had thereby got a lively fellow-feeling of thoſe pains and griefs, that did from the ſame proceed, in others.

yet we did eſteem him ſtricken, ſmitten of God, and afflicted] The reaſon why they ſo much diſ-eſteemed Chriſt, to wit, becauſe they made no other account, but that all thoſe afflictions that befell him, were, by God, for his own evill deſerts, inflicted upon him, out of a diſaffection to him, Phil. 2.2, 7, 8. & 7.1.11. Matth. 27. 39. 43.

yet] Heb. and; as ch. 50.7.

we eſteemed] The ſame word, by an elegant antanaclaſis, is here repeated, that the Prophet had made uſe of in the verſe before-going; but in a different notion here, from that there: they did not eſteem him, that is: made any account of him, becauſe they eſteemed, that is, accounted him to be one out of grace and favour with God, yea, to be one purſued by him, with thoſe evils, for his ſins. The very like conceit, that Iobs friends had of him, for his ſufferings, Iob 4.7, 8. & 8.4, & 22.5-11.

ſtricken, ſmitten, and afflicted] Three ſeveral terms uſed, to expreſs the greatneſs, and groſſ-ouſneſs of his ſufferings; as three other of neer nature, being joyned together, to intimate the eminent, and incomparable height of his cuſtoms honour, 6.52.13.

ſtricken] Or, plagued: ſo it is rendred, Pſal. 73.14. now becauſe the noun hence deduced, is uſed of the ſtroke, or plague of leproſie, Levit. 13.3. 9.20. and very oft in that chapter; hence the Rabbines, ſome of them, abuſe this place, to prove that their dotage before touched; that the Meſſias ſhould ſometime be a Leper: and the old Latine rendreth it, as a Leper: which yet neer bear a warrantable ſenſe. See ver 3. But that of the Talmudiſts, is a moſt ridiculous fancy, ſuch as their raſlodies are traught with, not a few: the word is generall, comprehending any ſtroke, plague. or affliction whatſoever: and they may as well prove, that Aſaph, the Author of that 73. Pſalm, was for a long time a Leper, from the paſſage therein pointed to, as from this, that the Meſſias was ſo, or ever ſhould ſo be. See v. 8.

ſmitten of God] That is, as ſome would have it, moſt grievouſly ſmitten; it being the manner of Scripture, by ſuch forms, to expreſs the eminent greatneſſe of any thing, as Sinners of God, for grievous ſinners, Gen. 13.13, and, a ſleep of God, for a deep ſleep, 1 Sam. 26.12. See Jer. 2.31. But that he was grievouſly ſmitten, was conſpicuous enough; nor did they deem amiſſe therein: their miſtake was, that they thought him thus handled by God, in way of vengeance for his ſins. So they wickedly and impiouſly deemed of Chriſt, when they ſaw what grievous things he ſuffered. And it is but an idle foppery of ſome popiſh Writers, to require the words to be read, God ſmitten; as intimating the diety of Chriſt: becauſe the word, of, is not expreſly in the text: when as they cannot be ignorant, who know any thing in the Hebrew, that the conſtruction, of noun with noun, doth neceſſarily imply it. Beſide, that this reading directly croſſeth the Prophets intention; as intimating, that the Jewiſh people ſhould acknowledg Chriſt, notwithſtanding his ſufferings, to be God; who, on the contrary, therefore condemned him, as guilty of impiety and blaſphemy, and were enraged againſt him for it, becauſe he profeſſed himſelf to be the Son of God, one with the Father, and equal to God, Mat. 26.53-56. Joh. 5.18. & 10.31, 33. & 19.7.

and afflicted] To wit, by God, as before; for that have all the three words reference unto: as if all that befell him, came not from mans malice againſt him, but Gods juſt wrath and diſpleaſure.

Verſe 5. But he was wounded for our tranſgreſſions] Heb. And; the copulative, in an adverſative notion, as Chapter 36. 12. and 40.31. The right ground, and true cauſe of Chriſts ſuffering, is, in this verſe, and thoſe following, related, in way of oppoſition, to that vain and foul conceit, that his own people had of him and them.

wounded] So both the ancient Greek, and old Latine, render the word here uſed; and ſome, ſmitten, to have it anſwer to the latter end of verſe 4. which comes, much in effect, to the ſame; as deſcending from a word, that ſignifies, to ſmite, to wound, to thruſt thorow, to ſlay. Others, render it, polluted, or proſtituted, uſed, and dealt with, as ſome common, vile, or profane thing, as deſcending from the ſame root but in another notion: whereof ſee Pſal. 89. 39, 44, 45, chap. 43.28. & 47.6. but the word deduced from that root in whether notion of the twain, is ſomewhat different from that, that is here uſed, as may be ſeen, Ezek. 32.26. I ſuppoſe, therefore, that the better reading is that in the margent of our Bibles; He was tormented, or pained: for the word comes regularly from a root, that ſignifies properly, to be in pain; as women, or other creatures, that bring forth, with pain, are wont to be, at the time of their travel, ſo Pſ. 51.5. where, as the one word, there uſed, hath in it a notion of the heat of delight, in conception, as Gen. 29.39, 41. ſo the other, of ſharpneſſe of pain, in production; as Iob 39.1, 2, 3. & 29.9. and it is uſed, commonly, of any grievous torment, or pain, proceeding from vexation, affliction, or fear, Iob 19, 20. Prov. 26.10. chap. 13.8. & 26. 18. and 51.9. Jer. 5.3. and this word, the Prophet, delighting much in conſonances, may ſeem the rather to have made choice of here; becauſe it comes very neer, in ſound, to the word rendred griefs, ver. 3, 4.

for] Heb. from; that is, becauſe of, as Pſalm 12. 5. chapter 48.4. Obad. 10. as importing the principal cauſe of Chriſts ſufferings, mans ſins, Romanes 4.25, 1 Corinthians 15.3. ſo in the next branch.

our tranſgreſſions] Or, defections, revolts, (as ſome not amiſſe render it, both here, and Chap. 59.13.13.) or, rebellions; for ſo the word it comes of, is commonly rendred, 1 King. 1.1. & 3.5.7. & 8.20, 22.

he was bruiſed for our iniquities:] The word uſed again, verſe 10. ſignifies properly, to beat, or break, or cruſh to pieces, or grind to powder. See chap. 3. 15. uſed ordinarily, of grievous oppreſſion, and affliction; yea, ſuch as tends to, and ends, if not ſtaid, in deſtruction: Iob 4.19. & 6.9. & 19.2, and 22.9. Pſal. 72.4. & 90.3. & 94.5. Lam. 3. 24.

the chaſtiſement of our peace was upon him] He was chaſtiſed to procure our peace, by removal of our ſins, that ſet God and us aſunder, Chapter 59.2. the guilt thereof, being diſcharged with the price of his blood, 1 Peter 1.18, 19. and to reconcile us unto him, Rom. 3.25. & 5.1.10.2 Cor. 5.19, 21. Eph. 2.13-17. Col. 1.19, 20. 1 Pet. 3.18.

and with his ſtripes are we healed] Heb. by his ſtripe, or bruiſe: for the word properly ſignifies, the mark, or print of a ſtripe, or ſtroke, remaining upon ſome part of the body, black and blue, by gathering and feeling together of the blood there; from whence it hath this name, Exod. 21.25. Prov. 20, 30. and the ſame ſignifies the Greek word, word, whereby it is expreſſed, 1 Pet. 2.24. But it is alſo uſed for any ſore, and grievous ſtroke, or hurt; ſuch as thoſe, by which the ſame is wont to be produced, Geneſis 4.23. See chap. 1.6. Jer. 30.12. and ſuch, no doubt, our Saviour, as well in the propriety of the term, as otherwiſe alſo, bare in his body, being not buffeted only, but ſcourged, as he was, Mat. 26.67. & 27.26.

V. 6. All we like ſheep, have gone aſtray] In theſe words is ſhewed wherein thoſe iniquities, and ſins of ours, for which our Saviour ſuffered, do conſiſt.

All we] By nature, none of us excepted, Pſ. 14.3. Rom. 3.12, 23. Eph. 2.2, 3.

like ſheep] Or, like loſt ſheep; as more expreſly, Pſ. 119.176. So cluſters, for cluſters loaſe, chap. 24.13.

have gone aſtray] As ſheep ſtray, ſometime ſcared and ſcattered, by dogs, or wolves, or thieves, or the like, Iob. 10. 12. or forced to ſeek abroad, for want of paſture, Gen. 47.4. Jer. 14.5. ſometime, again of themſelves, out of a ſilly diſpoſition, Luke 15.4. ſo it is with men alſo, in either reſpect, reſembled by ſheep. There is a ſtraying, or wandring, enforced, when they are driven, by violence, from their wonted places of abode. Of which, ſee Pſal. 119. 176. Jer. 50.17. Ezek. 34.4, 6. Zach. 13.7. Mat. 26.31. Mar. 14.27. But this is not expreſly in the text: when as they cannot be ignorant, who know any thing in the Hebrew, that the conſtruction, of noun with noun, doth neceſſarily imply it. and with his ſtripes are we healed] Heb. by his ſtripe, or bruiſe: for the word properly ſignifies, the mark, or print of a ſtripe, or ſtroke, remaining upon ſome part of the body, black and blue, by gathering and feeling together of the blood there; from whence it hath this name, Exod. 21.25. Prov. 20, 30. and the ſame ſignifies the Greek word, of it; a portion of puniſhment, in ſome regard proportionable, to whatſoever was due unto their ſins, and to themſelves for the ſame. So is the word taken, Gen. 4.13. Lev. 20.17, 19, 20. 1 Sam. 28.10. Lam. 4.6. which two latter places, the Jewiſh Commenters here point us to. The Greek Interpreters render this paſſage much in the ſame words, that the Apoſtle uſeth, Romanes, 4.25.

V. 7. He was oppreſſed; and he was afflicted] A very pregnant place; for the ſatisfaction made by Chriſts ſufferings for our ſins, were it fitly rendred, and rightly underſtood. The words are, word for word; It was exacted. and he anſwered. It was exacted; or, It is exacted; as ſome alſo well render it: that the former word doth properly, and commonly, ſignifie, to exact, cannot be denied. The Jewiſh Commenters, themſelves, obſerve on the place, that it is uſually meant of moneys, die acting us to that place, King. 23.35. he exacted the money. So Chap 58.3. ye exact all your labours; or, as ſome, all your debts: and, of a ſtranger thou mayeſt exact it; but not of thy brother, Deut. 15.2, 3. hence the name of an exacter, ſo frequent in Scripture, Job 3.17. & 39.7. Chap. 3.12. & 9.4. & 14.2. & 60.17. Zach. 9.8. & 10.4. and that it is here a paſſive, the ſame Writers here obſerve. The old Latine rendreth it, He was offered, as if the word were parallel to that other, from whence the Corban cometh, mentioned, Mat. 15.5. and ſo the meaning ſhould be, he was made to approach, or offered as a ſacrifice, ver. 10. But this verſion ariſeth from a two-fold miſtake: For, firſt, the word here uſed, and that other, of approaching, differ, as our Jewiſh Criticks tell us; as Sibboleth, and Shiboleth. Judg. 12.6. And ſecondly, this latter, in the paſſive form, carryeth always neutrall, neither an active, nor paſſive ſenſe: it ſignifies, to approach, not to offer, or make to approach, not yet to be made to approach, or to be offered. So Gen. 33. 7. Exod. 20.21. Chap. 29.13. The word, therefore: is the ſame rather, with that, 1 Sam. 13.6. where it is ſaid, the people, being in a ſtrait, were preſſed, or diſtreſſed: and ſo alſo, Chap. 14.24. ſave that there it is uſed, more metaphorically, here properly; there; perſonallyly here, impersonally; as the words of the text evidently ſhew: For there is neither noun, nor pronoun, before the firſt word of the verſe; but a pronoun expreſly before the next: which evidently controloth their conceit, who expound it of the perſon, from whom it was exacted, and render the words, He was exacted, which yet they expound, it was demanded, or required of no other, but of him: the ſenſe is found, but the conſtruction hardly, and not ſooting well with the frame of the context. This the Rabbine himſelf ſaw, and thereupon expounds it; It was exacted, to wit, money ſaith he, by way of tax, or aſſeſſment, as 2 King. 23.35. and he was afflicted, namely, the people of whom it was required, by ſtripes, or ſtrokes, being beaten, becauſe they paid not the ſums required of them: as the people in Egypt were beaten, when they could not make up the full tale of bricks, Exod. 5.14. But the great Doctor had no regard to the current of the context: for that runneth in a conſtant, and continued courſe and tenour, not as ſpeaking of one, and the ſame party or parties, both ſining and ſuffering, or ſuſtaining penalties, for their own defaults: but as one, ſuffering for the ſins of another, and ſuſtaining grievous penalties, for defaults made, and faults committed, by other perſons. Some of ours therefore readeit; It is exacted, and he is afflicted. Others, It was exacted, and he was afflicted. Or, When it was exacted, he was afflicted. Of which manner of ſyntax, ſee on ver. 2. that is, the penalty due to Gods juſtice, for our ſins, ver 6. was exacted, and he ſuſtained the ſame for us. For that which a learned late Annotator ſuggeſteth, who would have it rendred, he was humble, or humbly ſubmitted himſelf, not opening his mouth, becauſe of Pharao it is ſaid, Exod. 10.3. thou refuſeſt to be humbled: Neither doth that place and this, ſuit well the one with the other: (It is one thing to be humbled; another to be humble,)and this Interpretation ſeemeth to decline from the drift of the precedent diſcourſe, whereupon this hath dependance. The words, as formerly read, do ſufficiently confirm the doctrine of ſatisfaction made to Gods juſtice, by Chriſts ſufferings for our ſins. But yet ſome further ſtrength may be, from hence, added thereunto, if we conſider the latter term a little more exactly: For howſoever it be true, that the word, here uſed, do in the paſſive form ſignifie, to be afflicted, or humbled, as Exod. 10.3. Pſal. 119. 107. and ſo in a grave, or weighty form, it is uſed, ver. 4. which this may here ſeem to have reference unto: and that the word uſed in a notion of anſwering, be feldome found, but in an active form: yet, as in the notion of affliction, the word is uſed, ſometime, in an active form paſſively, for, to be afflicted; Pſal. 116. 10. ſo in the notion of anſwering, it is ſometime uſed actively, in the paſſive form, not to be anſwered, either verbally, as Iob 11.2. or, really? as Iob 19.7. Prov. 21. 13. but, to anſwer, and that either verbally, or really, alſo. In the former ſenſe, ſome underſtand that place, Pſal. 119.167. before I anſwered, (that is, ſay they, before ever I was able to anſwer, ver. 172. my tongue ſhall anſwer, that is, ſpeak of, thy word.) I went aſtray, as parallel to that, Pſal. 58.3. and having reſpect to inbred pravity: but the word ſeemeth to be there: as in an active form, ſo in a paſſive ſenſe; and in a ſignification of affliction, and humiliation, as it is commonly expounded Hoſeiz. the word is found elſe-where, in a paſſive form, with an active ſenſe, and that without any queſtion, in the notion of anſwering. Ezek. 14.4, 7. as alſo the word of ſpeaking is Pſal. 119.13. Ezek. 33.

30. Mal.3.13,16. And some what to this purpose, an Author of good note expoundeth this text, thus rendring the words; It is exacted, and he undertaketh, (a term that some of the Ancients also use, in the opening of this text) that is, saith he, the penalty due to us, was in rigour of justice exacted; and he became a sponsor, or surety for us, by undertaking, in our behalf, the discharge of it. And though the word, saith he, in Hebrew, be not found so used; yet in Latine, the word respondere, that is, to answer, comes from spondere, that signifies to undertake; and the word, to answer, in the French tongue, is so commonly used. Hereunto may be added, that the old Latine seems to look this way, that renders the text, He was offered of his own accord, or because he himself would: which version, howsoever it fail much, in the former term, as hath already been shewed; yet it comes home to us, in the latter word; imply ing a voluntary undertaking, or engaging of himself (see Jer.31.20.) unto God his Father, in our behalf, as a Surety, (lo is he termed, Heb.7.22.) for the payment of our debt. And, which is yet more then so, that albeit, the Hebrew be not found expreſly, and directly used for such a sponsion, or engagement, yet that in this very form, that here it hath, it is twice used in the place of Ezekiel, before pointed to; I the Lord will answer him (to wit, the man that repairs to me for advice, with sacrifice) in him, and in his heart, and again, I will answer him by my self, and that in a notion, not of a verbal, but of a real answering and so I conceive it is to be taken here, It was exacted, and he answered it, (the particle being necessarily, as oft else where, supplyed, see Chap.48.5,6.) that is, he not only undertook it, but discharged it. So we use the word commonly in our English tongue, to answer a debt, for to discharge it. And so of our Saviour it is most true, that he answered our debt, and caused our bond to be, cancelled, that it might not come to be put in suit, against us, any more again. See Joh.19.30. Rom.4.25. Col.2.14. A singular comfort to every sincere Christian soul.

yet he opened not his mouth] Heb. And: But so we had it before, v. 4. and it may well be here retained, if we keep to the received reading of being oppreſſed, and afflicted, as if it were said, having respect to his patience, for all the oppreſſions and afflictions, that he suſtained for others, and that in regard of those, by whom he suffered them unjustly: yet was he silent, he neither murmured, or repined, at Gods diſpoſal of things in that manner, nor used any railing, or reviling ſpeeches, against those that dealt ſo deſpitefully with him, but carryed himſelf calmly, and quietly, under them, Mat. 26.39,42. Mar.14.36. Joh.18.22,1 Pet.2.23. Howbeit, if we admit the ſenſe in the ſecond place propounded, and preſſed, of exalting, and anſwering, that is, undertaking, or diſcharging, the copulative ſhall not need at all, to be altered: for the words will well go on in way of connexion to the former, as if it were ſaid, Having an eye to his voluntary obedience, and ſubmiſſion to the Will of his Father, and agreement thereunto; he under took willingly what his Father required of him, and as willingly when the time came, underwent it; neither hanging back, or oppoſing ought, in way of contradiction thereunto, when it was by his Father propounded to him, at firſt; not afterward ſeeking to ſhift it off, when he was to perform what he had eng ed himſelf unto, by pleading ought for himſelf, & the releaſment of him, from their moſt unjuſt proceedings, in whoſe hands he was, see ch.50.5,6. Mat.26.62,63. & 27.12, 14. Mar.14.60,61. & 15.3,5. Luk.23.9. Joh. 10.18. & 14.31. & 19. 11. to open the mouth, an uſual form, (the antecedent, put for the conſequent) for, to ſpeak. So Job 3.1. 33.2. Pſal.78.2. Prov 31.8, 26, ſo to open the lips Job 32.20. and on the contrary, not to open the mouth, for, to be ſilent, not to ſay ought, Pſalm. 39.9. Proverbs 24.7.

he is brought as a lamb to the ſlaughter] The Hebrew word is more general, and ſignifies a ſheep; which word of ours, it comes neer to in ſound: and it is rendred alſo, Act.8.32. where this paſſage is related, Pſal.119.176. Jer.50.17. and yet more largely, Iſſer cattle, Ch.7.25. as parallel to another word uſed, v.6. but, as more ſpecially intending, ſheep there, in regard of the ſillineſs thereof; ſo here, in regard of the ordinary number of them, above any ſuch other cattel, brought to the butchery, Pſ.44.22. Jer.12.3. Zach.11.4, Rom 8. 36. and their quiet carriage, in driving; thither the text may well be rendred, as a ſheep that is led to the ſlaughter, as Jer. 11. 19. As a ſheep, that goeth as quietly, to the ſhambles, or the ſlaughter-houſe, as if it were going to the fold, where in it is uſually lodged; or the field, where it is wont to feed. See Jer.11.19 and as a ſheep before her ſhearers is dumb] This latter word, where of Rachel had her name, Gen.29.6,8. by the ancient Greek Interpreter, rendred, a lamb, and ſo Act.8.32. Luke retaining that tranſlation, given it. Howbeit, it ſignifieth an Ewe, as appeareth plainly, Gen 31.38.& 32. 14. where theſe rachels are diſtinguiſhed from rams, as alſo, Cant.6.6. where they are deſcribed with twins by their ſides: and the word, though of a maſculine form, yet is of a feminine gender, as is manifeſt, by the verb, or participle, joyned with it: and he ſeems to mention the Ewe, as the quieter of that kind, becauſe the rams are ſometime more unruly, is dumb] So Pſalm. 39.2, 9. or tongue-tied: for that ſeemes to be the firſt notion of the root it commeth of, to bind, or ty up, Ge. 37.7.

ſo he opened not his mouth] Heb. and, uſed here, for the note of ſimilitude; as alſo, Pſal.1. 3. and 109.17. Prov. 10.25, and 17.3.ch.10.26. and ſo it is rendred, Act.8.37. Of the phraſe, ſee before.

V.8. He was taken from priſon, and from judgment] In the expoſition of this paſſage, Interpreters do exceedingly differ, and that about every word, and particle, in it. Howbeit, they may in general be referred all to two heads, either of thoſe, that underſtand them of Chriſts humiliation, and oppreſſion only, and the harſh, cruel, and unjuſt courſes, whereby his life was taken from him, Mat.27.18,34. Act.2.23.&3.14,15.&13.28. Or, of thoſe, that conceive them to be ſpoken of his deliverance out of thoſe afflictions, and difficulties, injuriouſly inflicted; and his advancement from them, to a glorious condition, Luk.24.26. Act.2.24,33,36.& 3.15, 21. Phil.2.8,9. 1 Tim.3. 16. Heb.2.9. 1 Pet.1. 11.

taken] That is, as ſome, taken away, put to death: as Pſal.31.13. Prov.1.19. as others, drawn away; to wit, unto judgment, and to punishment, by death: as Prov.24.11. but the ſtructure is not here, and there alike: yea, as ſome, ſuppoſing the particular manner of his death here deſigned, taken up to the croſſe, John 3. 14,15. and 12. 32, 33. but of ſuch uſe of the word, no inſtance is brought. Others, he is taken up, from hence, and received, by God, into glory; as Gen.5.24. Mar.16.19. Luke 24.51. Act.1.9,11. 1 Tim.3.16.

from] So the word moſt uſually ſignifieth, and ſo many here take it, as meant of being delivered, and let free from the matters here mentioned: as, from work, Gen.2.2. from enemies, Pſal.44.4. from bands, Jer. 40.4. others take it, for, by, or through, as noting the means whereby, or the manner how, he was brought to his end. So Job 7.14.& 37.10. Jer. 10.14. or, for, as implying the cauſe producing, procuring, or impe lent. So Pſ. 12.5. v.5. c.65.14. others, for without, without being impriſoned, or having any due courſe of judicature, taken with him: as the particle ſeemeth to be uſed, Pſ.109.24. Lam.4.9. but neither are thoſe places parallel; and one produced to that purpoſe, hath a negative joyned with it, Job 31. 19. Others, laſtly, for, after: after that he had paſt thoſe harſh and unjuſt courſes taken with him. So is the particle uſed, Dan.11. 23. Hoſ.6.3.

priſon] Supposed to be ſo called, as a place of coertion, or reſtraint (ſee on chap.44.7.) for the verb, whence it comes, ſignifies to ſhut up, or reſtrain, Gen. 20. 18. Deut. 11. 17. yet, for a priſon, the word is no where found to be uſed: nor was our Saviour ever impriſoned; though that would ſtand well enough with their expoſition, that render the particle without. Others, therefore underſtand by it, reſtraint, or diſtreſſe: and this not unfitly agreeth with the native ſignification of the word; uſed for the ſhutting up or, reſtraint, of the womb, (to the words are) Proverbs 30.16 that is, the womb ſhut up, or, reſtrained, as Jacob ſpeaks to Rachel, Gen. 30. 2. nor can it be den yed, or doubt made, but that Chriſt was under reſtraint; and in diſtreſſe, proceeding from ſuch ſtrict reſtraint. Others, of ſuch anguiſh, and anxiety of mind, and ſpirit, as Chriſts ſoul was poſſeſſed of, ariſing from the apprehenſion of Gods wrath, both in his agony, Luke.22.44. and upon the croſſe, Mat.27.46. Others render it, indamnation, power, tyranny, oppreſſion: and a term of the ſame ſtock, differing but in a vowel only from it, is uſed ſometime for power, authority, or magiſtracy, Judg.18.7. and the root they both ſpring from, for to have power, or to prevail, 2 Chr. 14.11. and this very word ſometime for ſuch power abuſed: for oppreſſion, or tyranny. So Pſal.107.39. where it is alſo joyned with the particle here uſed: and it ſeiteth well with the power, both of Jews, and Gentiles, unjuſtly exerciſed againſt Chriſt, Pſalms.2.1,2. Act.4.25 27. Others would have it to ſignifie, here, a congregation, or a multitude: becauſe another word of kin to this, is uſed for a ſolemn aſſembly. See on Chap.1.13. and this ſome refer to the Aſſembly of the Jewiſh Rulers, wherein Chriſt was condemned, Mat.26.57-66. Others, to the popular multitude, that were inſtant to have him crucified, Mat.27. 15-26. Mar.15.8,15. Luk.2.3.18-25. and to theſe therefore, as well as thoſe, by whom they were incited, is the murther of Chriſt aſcribed, Luk.24.20. Act.3.23,26.& 13.14,15.& 7.52.& 13.27. but neither is the word in ſelf any where, as I conceive, ſo uſed; not its kin, of other, then a ſolemn aſſembly, called together by authority, not of a confuſed, or diſorderly multitude on their own heads gathered together.

and from judgment] This ſome underſtand of judgment, in general, either, without which, or by which, or after which, exerciſed, and executed upon our Saviour, he was, either taken away, or taken up. Some more particularly reſtrain it, either to the Jewiſh Aſſemblies cenſure of him, Mat.26.66. Joh.19.7. or, to Pilates ſentence paſſed upon him; Luk.23.24. diſtinguiſhed from the act of the rude multitude, which they conceive implyed in the word before-going. Nor want they, that expound it of the judgment of God, and the torments by him inflicted upon him, implyed in the word curſe, Gal.3. 13. I concur with thoſe, who by theſe two terms, underſtand oppreſſion, and judgment, as comprehending all thoſe harſh, and cruel courſes, as under pretence of judgment, were exerciſed upon our Saviour, whereby his life was taken from him, and himſelf taken away, for the time; or, from which, he was after a while freed, being, after the ſuſtaining of them, taken hence, and taken up unto God, as Enoch, and Elia before him; of both whoſe aſſumption, the ſame term is uſed, Gen.5.24. 2 King.2.9,10. But I encline rather

and who ſhall declare his generation?]Or, who can declare? for the indicative future is oft potentially uſed. See chap.26.18.& 49. 25. This paſſage, ſome underſtand of the generation of Chriſt, from eternity, in regarde of his God head, Prov.8.24,25. Others, of the production of him, and that of a virgin, without knowledge of man, in regard of his manhood, Luk. 1.34,35. and ſome, of both jointly; as alſo that, Pſal.2.7. Acts 13.33. Some by generation, here, underſtand neither of theſe; but, either, his continuance, reading the words, but who can reckon his age? living now to eternity, beyond all number of dayes, or years, Ro.6.9. Heb. 7.3,8, 15. Rev.1.18. agreeable to that, he ſhall prolong his dayes, ver.10. that, which they extend alſo to his body, the Church. Pſal.145.1. Jer. 31.36,37. & 33.25,26. Mat.16.18. Heb.7.25. and for continuance of time, the word is commonly uſed; as chap.13.20.& 60. 15. or, of his iſſue, rendring the text: who can count, or, reckon, but race? his ſpiritual ſeed and iſſue, being a numberleſs multitude, Gen.15.5.& 22.17,18. Jer.33.22. Heb.2.10,13. Rev.7.9. as agreeable to that, he ſhall ſee a ſeed, verſe 10. ſo is the word taken, Pſal. 22.30. & 24.6. & 49.19 & 73.15.& 112.2. In the firſt ſenſe, moſt of the ancient Writers take it: & in the two latter, moſt of the later. In the firſt ſhould do here, cannot eaſily be made to appear; the latter if we admit, accords not to the text, in the preſentation, at leaſt of the for going branch, the copulative would be turned into an adverſative, as ver.10. yet who can reckon his age, or, count his race? But there want not thoſe, that turn the words another way: and they conceive them to run in an ab.upt, and paſſionate form of ſpeech, as complaining either of the ſtrangeneſs of the things that befell him: & they then read the words, who would have ſaid of his generation? to wit, that ſuch things ſhould have, in his age, or time, befaln him: as, who would have ſaid to Abram, that Sarah ſhould give ſuck? Gen. 21.7. or, of the monſtrous impiety, and wickedneſs of them, that dealt in this manner with him, that came to ſave them: and then they render the words, who can utter, or deſcribe, his generation? or, his age? that is the wickedneſs of the men of his time, or the age he lived in: the verb ſignifies to ſpeake, or utter, Job 12.8. Pſal.49.13.& 143. his generation, or age, for, the men of his time: as, his generations or ages, for, thoſe of the times wherein he lived, Gen.6.9. So is the word very frequently uſed, Gen.7.1. Deut.32.5,20. Pſal 78.8. Mat.11.16.& 12.39.& 16.4. and 17.17. And this ſenſe ſeems not improbable; as well ſuiting, both with what uſhered it in, and what attends on it. As for that of another, who could declare his ſtock? that is, who would ſay, that he was begotten of God, or the Son of God, ſeeing him depreſſed, and abaſed ſo beneath the meaneſt of men? chap. 52.14. it gaineth with me no acceptance; becauſe I find not where the word is in that notion uſed. Beſides, that the Centurion, unto whom the execution was committed, ſeeing the manner of his death; and, in likelihood, obſerving his laſt words, recorded, Luk.23.46. is, both by Matthew & Mark, reported to have broken out into theſe words, of a truth, this man was a Son of God, Mat.27.54. Mar.15.39.

for he was cut off out of the land of the living] Or, as ſome read the words, (thoſe eſpecially, that expound the two fore-going branches, of his deliverance, and exaltation) though he were cut off: as the particle is uſed, Gen.8.21. Joſh.17.18. chap.12.1. But what if we read it according to the expoſition of the branch, next before, deemed not improbable; as continuing the ſentence in a notion of wonderment, that he ſhould be cut off, (ſo the particle was uſed before, ver.5,6.) as a tree that was hewen down, 2 King.6.4. that he ſhould be thus taken away, by a violent death, from abiding and converſing on earth, among men, that there live, Pſal.27.13.&52. 5. and 116.9. chap.38.11.

for the tranſgreſſion of my people was he ſtricken] The words thus read, are the ſame in ſubſtance, with what was before ſaid, ver.5. See there. But ſome read them thus rather; by the tranſgreſſion of my people was he ſtricken. Heb. from, but of the various uſe of that particle, ſee on the firſt branch of this verſe: in this ſenſe, the words conceived, the ſentence may ſtill be continued, and carried on thus, that (the particle ſupplyed from the former; as 1 Sam.24. 30.) by the tranſgreſſion of mine own people he ſtricken, Act.2.23.& 3.13-15,& 13.28.

my people] Either mine Elect, for whom he dyed: as Col.1.24. 2 Tim.2.10. or, thoſe obſtinate wicked, that purſued him to death, 1 Theſſ.2.15.

was he ſtricken] As ver.4. Heb. the ſtroke was upon him: ſo the pronoun is found uſed in a ſingular notion, Gen.9.26,27. Joſh.20. 23.& 22.2. Pſal.11.7.& 28.8. chap 44.15. contrary to that which both ſome Popiſh Writers, to ſtain with all corruptions upon the Hebrew text, affirm; and ſome Jewiſh Doctors alſo, to divert this teſtimony from the Meſſias, avow: both either of groſſe ignorance, or of mere malice; for other of the Jewiſh Maſters, and that of prime note, for Grammar eſpecially obſerve the affix here uſed, to be as well ſingular, as plural: and the places above recited, where of ſomeaſſo are by them alledged, do evidently evince as much. Howbeit others, and that of ours alſo render it, they were ſtricken; the ſtroke was upon them, taking the pronoun in a plural notion as it is commonly uſed, Exo.1.5,15. Deut.32.29. Pſ.2.5.& 17.10.& 21.11.& 49.11.& 104.9. and ſo ſome underſtand it, of the Jewiſh people, upon whom, according to their own imprecation, Mat. 26. 25. the ſtroke of Gods wrath, ſhortly after, lighted, and lyeth heavy, to this very day, for their crucifying of Chriſt, Mat. 21.39,41.& 23. 37,30.& 24.22,23. Luk.13.34,35.& 21.20-24. 1 Theſſ.2.15,16. And ſome of thoſe that go this way, knit this member thus to the former: becauſe he was cut off through the tranſgreſſion of, or the ſinfulneſs of my people: therefore, ſhall they be ſmitten, or, they are ſmitten; (for the Prophet ſpeaks of theſe things, as already in execution, and act) the ſtroke, ſhall be, or is, upon them. But the courſe of the context carries it on rather, the former way, and makes the p.hraſe cleerer to what followeth. Or they item to go further out of the way, who taking the affix in a plural notion, would have it underſtood, either of Chriſt, conſidered jointly with thoſe, as one with him, for whom he ſuffered, 2 Cor.5.21. or of thoſe alone, whom the ſtroke was due to, rendring the text, he was cut off from the land of the living, for the iniquity of my people, unto whom the ſtroke belonged, was due, or, was intended; for this, the words will hardly bear.

V. 9. And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death.] Some Writers of note, ſuſpect theſe words to have been by ſome means tranſpoſed, and ſuppoſe, for the fitting of them, to the ſtory of the Goſpel, concerning his death with malefactors, on mount Calvary, Mat.27.33,38. Mar.15.28. Luk.22.37. and his burial, in Joſephs Sepulchre, Mat.27.57,60. that the text ought thus to be read; And his death ſhall be diſpoſed of, with the wicked, and his grave with the rich. The like thoughts have ſome other had of Pſal. 35.7. and of Act.7.16. but to give way to ſuch conjectures, ſeemeth unſafe. To let that paſs, and take the words as we find them, at preſent, in the text; the expoſitions of them in the lump, may be referred to two heads: the one of thoſe, which ſeems the more improbable, who underſtand the words, as concerning either the effect, or the efficacy of Chriſts ſufferings; to wit, either, that thoſe wicked ones, and rich ones, that had had an hand in the procuring of his death, ſhould pay full dear for it; being given up to endure the like harſh and cruel uſage, at the hands of others, as Chriſt, at their hands had ſuſtained: as chap.43.3,4. or, that even wicked men, and thoſe great ones too, who are wont to be moſt obſtinate, ſhould be ſubdued, and made ſubject to the Scepter of Chriſt, by the power and efficacy of his paſſion, Pſal.110.2. The other is, of thoſe, who conceive them to be meant, wholly of his ſufferings themſelves, either, that the Jewiſh people ſhould put him into the hands of Heathen people, the Romans, and their Ruler Pilate, Mat.20.19,20. Joh.18. 35. who by that means, having condemned him, and dealt with him, as with a malefactor, ſhould diſpoſe of his death, and burial, at his pleaſure, Mat.27.2,57,58. Luk 23.1,2,50,53. Joh.18.28-32 & 19. 6,11.12,38. or that God ſhould deliver him into the hands of wicked men, and Rulers ſo to be diſpoſed of by them, for either, as themſelves pleaſed, Luk.22.53. Act.2.23.& 4.27,28. Howbeit, among the latter there are, who, together with his ſufferings, conceive an intimation of ſome honour done him, concerning his burial; as if it were ſaid, that though his grave, were, in ordinary courſe to have been among malefactors; yet it was with the rich, being buried in honourable manner, by Joſeph, in his own tomb, Mat.27.57-60. Howbeit that ſeems rather to have been manifeſted, at, and by, his reſurrection, Rom.4.25. & the reception of him, in ſoul & flh, (though that not ſo conſpicuous) Luk.23.43,46. and in the whole man, not long after ward, into Heaven, Joh. 13.1. & 16.10. 1 Tim.3.16. otherwiſe his abode in the grave, though a rich, and honorable mans grave, under the power of death, for a time, was a branch of his humiliation, and is reckoned, as a part of his paſſion, Act 2.24,27. Nor want there here again ſome others, who would have hereby intimated, Chriſts carrying of ourſins, which in his body he bare on the Croſſe, 1 Pet.2.24. with him into the grave, and there burying them, that they may not appear any more in Gods ſight, as Gen. 23.4. Pſal.88.5. to which purpoſe, alſo, they hook in hither the words of the Pſalm, Rom.6.4. Col. 2.12. as alſo that of Dan.9.24. to ſhut up ſin, as they would have the words here read, with ſome reference to the ſhutting up of Chriſt in the Sepulchre, and the ſealing up of it, Mat.27. 66. And as this in the former branch, to the putting vicbes of his blood and death in the latter, 1 Pet.1.19. Eph.1.7,8,18.& 2.7.& 3.8. Col.1.27. All which to make out, the two concretes in the text are preſumed to be put for the abſtracts, wicked ones, for, wickedneſſes: & rich, for riches: and the text is rendred, He put wicked neſſes in his grave, and riches in his death. But theſe things ſeems overmuch forced, and far fetcht. Nor ſeems it fale, or fit, to the main Scriptures thus to wring points of faith from them: nor ſhould I have mentioned them, but for the note of their great Author.

And he made his grave with the wicked] Heb. And he gave, or, ſhall give the wicked, or, with the wicked, his grave: which the old Latine ſwarveth too far from, rendering it He gave the wicked for his grave. Now ſome here, by he, underſtand God, by whoſe hidden counſel, and predetermination, theſe things were done; and without whom, men could not have had any ſuch power over him, Mat. 26. 53,54 Joh.19.9,10. Others, the Jewiſh People, by whoſe hands they were acted, and executed, See Act.2.23.& 4.27,28. But others conceive, not amiſs, that the words may well be taken indefinitely, and ſo rendred by a paſſive form, (of which manner of conſtruction and with the rich in his death] Or, and to the rich; as before, for the particle is the same: by the rich, some understand Joseph, that begged, and buried Christs body, called a rich man, Mat.27. 57. Others, Pilate, that had the power to dispole of Christs corple, and of whom Joseph begged it, Mat.27.58. conceiving a rich man, to be put here for a Ruler; as Eel.10. 6,7.20. because thole usually are such: thus they that expound it of some particular perlon, which may carry the better thew with it; because the former word, wicked, was plural, this, lingular. But many other conceive the word rich, here to be taken collectively, and the lame perlons to be meant by both; those that had an hand in the death of Christ, as well the baler lort of people,as the rich and wealthy Rulers,whether of the Jewish Nation, or the Roman State, whom (lay those, that understand the place of the vengeance, by God executed,on either, for the death of Christ,) their riches should not ranlome,nor relieve in the day of wrath, Prov.11.4. Ezek.7.19. as yet they are usually wont to doe, Prov.13. 8.

See on Chap. 34.11.and the like to this,Gen.40.15. his grave was given to the wicked, (as Levit.13.49.) or, was disposed of (for so the word of giving, oft signifies, See Chapter.41.2.) by the wicked, (as chap.7.17.) or, with the wicked: (as chap.28.15.) that is, as if he had been one of that rank, ver.1. fay some; or because in Mount Calvary he was buried,fay others, Joh.19.41,42. where malefactors corpses used to be laid. But this latter seems not so suitable to the tenour of the story. For albeit,the place of his burial was not far distant from the place of his execution; yet it was in a private garden, belonging to a man of eminent place,wherein he had cut a sepulchre out for himself, Mat.27. 57,60. Mar.15.43,46.

in his death] Or, at his death; as Job 27.19. at their death; though in another notion there, then here: for there 'tis said of some, that they shall be buried at their death: that is, in mean and bale manner; their corpses being committed to the ground, alloon as their breath is out of their bodies, without further care or, coft; whereas, though our Saviours body was; thortly after his decease, disposed of, for burial, yet was it curiously throwded, and richly embalmed, before he was laid up in the grave, Mat.17.46. Joh.19. 39,40. to the particle is ufed alſo, Ezr. 9.4. Eſt.1.12. Heb. deaths; as Jer.16.4. hence the Jewish Doctors (whole expositions I meelle the leſs with, in this prelent Prophecy, becauſe they run moſt upon another ground) thrive to wring this prediction awry, and to turn it, from the Meſſias, or any other particular perſon, to the main body of their own people; who,though innocent, lay they, yet were put to death, as malefactors, becauſe they would not change their religion, Pſal. 44 22. and, were made away, if rich, not for their wickedneſs.but for their wealth: & that ſome,by one kinde of death ſome by another: ſome burnt, ſome ſlain, ſome ſtoned, and the like: but the word, though plural, is founde elſewhere alſo, applyed to one particular perſon,as to the King of Tyre,Ezec.28.8,10. where it is ſaid of him,that he ſhall die the death of the ſlain, & the deaths of the uncircumciſed: and ſo the Apoſtle of himſelf, alſo,in deaths oft, 2 Cor. 11.23. that is, moſt in hazards, and dangers of death only; but in afflictions, and vexations, as ſore and painful, as death it ſelf, and ſuch as might well go, for as many deaths, 1 Cor. 4.9. & 15.31. *Luk.*9.23. 2 Cor.1 9.& 4.8-11.& 6.4,5.9. & 11.23-27. and the ſame might by the 1rophet,as well,yea, far better,be ſaid of the Meſſias, as of the Tyrian Prince, by the Prophet, in the one place: or, of himſelf, by the Apoſtle in the other: beſides, that the Chaldee Paraphraſt, rendreth it in the ſingular number. Nor can I condeſcend unto thole, though of prime note, who,having put the word people, into the text, and ſet it in the front of the verſe, render the words, unto their own death; imagining, that the Jews, by delivering up of Chriſt, brought deſtruction upon themſelves: as having reference to the imprecation by themſelves paſt upon them, at the delivering up of him, Mat.27.25. See before,ver.8 There is another reading, that the Rabbines ſome of them, here exhibit; as if it were not made up of a ſervile particle, and a noun, with his affix; as both we, and themſelves, alſo, commonly take it; but a noun only, with a pronoun affixed unto it, and ſo ſhould ſignifie his high places. Which I ſhould not mention, ſave that ſome, not Popiſh Writers only, but ours alſo, and thoſe of note, doe not only take notice of it, but admit it, and preſſe it, as intimating the ſtatelineſs of the ſepulchre, wherein Chriſts body was laid: as if Joſephs monument were, as ſtately as one, as Shebna had built it for himſelf, ch 22.16. But this reading, the points, or vowels, in the original, refuſe, and refute: nor doe the Doctors, that cite it, give any appobaron of it; nor will this reading cohere handſomly with the reſt of the context. I ſuppoſe that as the latter part of the foregoing verſe, ſo the forepart of this, run on in a continued ſeries, containing matter of admiration. in this manner; And that his burial ſhould be at the diſpoſal of wicked ones, and of rich ones, or, rulers, at his death; that is that wicked great ones ſhould have ſuch power given them over him, as not only to take his life away from him, by a violent and moſt cruel death; but after that perpetrated, to diſpoſe of his dead corpſe alſo for his burial, at their pleaſure.

becauſe he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth] This reading may ſtand, not amiſs, with the expoſitions of thoſe, that conceive the foregoing words to be underſtood, either of the revenging hand of God, upon the Jews, for the death of Chriſt, or of ſome honour done him, in, or at, his interrement; or of the better ſort, that from his death and burial, accrew to the faithful: not ſo well with theirs, that goe the other way before mentiond; for the conſtruction ſeemeth over-much ſtrained, when the meaning is made to be becauſe they envied him for his integrity, both in life and doctrine, Mat. 27.18. yea, though not only no man could convince him of ſin, Mat.27 19,23,24. Luk.23.14,15. Joh. 8.46. but even the devil himſelf could find nothing amiſſe in him, Joh. 14. 30. But the words would rather be read, as they ſound, not for any iniquity, that he had done, nor guile that was in his mouth. So Job 16. 17. where the very ſame form of ſpeech, and words alſo, are found, Not for any injuſtice (ſo the word is there rendred) that is in mine hands; that is, albeit, he had done nothing amiſſe, Mat. 7.37. Luk.23. 41. for the word rendred violence, is more general: and is uſed for any wrong, Gen.16.5. Pſalm.7.16. Jer. 51.35. and the Greek therfore gives it, ſin, 1 Pet.2.22. according to that,1 Joh.3. 5. in him was no ſin: ſo alſo, but there the negative only tranſpoſed, 1 Chron.12. 17. without any wrong, that is in my hands: for ſo it would be rendred, both in Job, and there; there being in either place, a defect of the relative, as alſo here; and the like, Chap.50.9. and 51.12. Nor doth that at all croſs this expoſition, which a learned Writer objecteth, who having himſelf ſometime rendred the text here,although, or, when as yet, he had done no wrong, doth afterward revoke it, becauſe never findeth the particle here uſed, in ſuch an adverſative, but frequently in a cauſal notion, for it is plainly in a cauſal notion, when it is ſaid, not for, or, becauſe of, any wrong he had done: which is the very ſame, in effect, with what himſelf had before given, albeit he had done no wrong, and he had no cauſe therefore to reverſe; his grammatical conſtruction only, was not ſo exact.

neither was any deceit in his mouth] Or, nor for any guile, thatwas in his mouth: a defect, of the particle; as Pſal.59.3. but ſupplyed here from the former member of the diſtribution & of the relative, alſo, as before: it is rendred, 1Pet.2.22. neither was guile found in his mouth: to be found, for, to be; as Luk.17.18.So chap.30.14. 51.3.There was nothing amiſſe with him,either in word, or dee bruiſe] Or, breake. See on ver. 5. not, that his body was battered to pieces; or, that any bone of him was broken, Exod.12. 46. Pſal.34.20. Joh 19.33,36. but as the Pſalmiſt of himſelf, I am ſore broken, Pſal. 38. 8. and as we uſe to ſay, that a man is much broken, with age, ſickneſs, grief of mind, evil-uſage, and the like: all which and much more, were together in Chriſts ſufferings.

put him to griefe] Or, as ſome, ſuffer him to be put to pain, or, torment; becauſe this form, oft hath in it, a notion of permiſſion: as Pſal.37.33. & 119.10,116. Chap.63.17. and true it is, that God did not incite, or inſtigate thoſe wicked wretches, unto thoſe vile, and cruel couſes and carriages, that they offered unto Chriſt, Jam. 1.15. but yet that his ſufferings were by God predetermined for the Salvation of man-kind, is expreſly ſaid, Act.2.23.& 4.28. and of Abſoloms wicked Act, we know what is ſaid, 2Sam.12. 11, 12. of the word, ſee on ver. 3,4. the pronoun, him, is wanting in the text: as Chap.12.2. ſupplyed here from the words before, when thou ſhalt make his ſoul an offering for ſin] So if it be read, it may well cloſe with the foregoing branch, as implying ſuch harſh,and hard uſage of him, then put in execution, and exerciſed, what time he was made ſuch a ſacrifice. Otherwiſe, as if as moſt ſeem to take them, they relate to the after fruits and benefits mentioned in the words enſuing, it would rather be rendred, when thou ſhalt have made his ſoul an offering for ſin: as Chap. 4.4.

when] Heb. if. So Num. 36.4. Job 21.6. Chap.28.25.

thou ſhalt make his ſoul] A 2.Cor. 5.21. a change of the perſon the ſpeech being turned to God; as ch.2.9. or, his ſoul ſhall have made it ſelf an offering; for the ſecond perſon maſculine, and the third feminine, are in letters, and ſound, the ſame, his ſoul; that is, himſelf: or, he himſelf, as Pſal.3.2. and as God made a ſacrifice of him; ſo he made a ſacrifice of himſelf, Eph. 5.2. Heb. 9.14, 25,26. But the former ſeemeth the better.

an offering for ſin] Heb. treſpaſs, or, ſin. So Levit.5.19. & 7.5. Zach.14.19. and ſo of our Saviour, 2 Cor.5.21. God made him ſin; that is, a ſin ſacrifice: a ſacrifice for ſin, Rom.8. 3. for the word ſacrifice, is there alſo wanting; as Heb.10.8. becauſe he had under taken for the guilt of our ſins, ver. 7. and ſuſtained for us, the penalty due thereunto, ver. 5. 6.1Cor 5.7.

he ſhall ſee his ſeed] Heb. a ſeed; that is, iſſue, poſterity, as Gen. 15.3. thou haſt not given me a ſeed: and Gen. 4.25. God hath ſet me a ſeed: and, ſo ſhall thy ſeed be, Gen.15.5. his is not in the Hebrew; but may be ſupplyed: as oft elſewere, ver.3. chap.17.6.& 40.12. yet not greatly needful here: a ſeed, indefinitely, is ſufficient. It is that which our Saviour of himſelf, applying it to himſelf, and the fruit of his ſufferings,If the grain fall into the ground and die there, it fructifies, and multiplies; it brings forth much fruit, Joh.12. 24,32,34. and ſo Chriſt by his death, brought many ſons to God, Heb 12.10, 3.even a numberleſſe progeny. See on verſe 8. who can reckon up his race? as from Abraham and Sarah, that were eſteemed, a dead ſtock, the one: and no better then dead, the others, Gen. 18. 11, 12. Rom. 4.19, Heb. 11. 12 and from Iſaac deſtinated unto death,& received again,in a manner, from the dead, ſpuing a numberleſs iſſue, Ge. 22.2,10.& 26.24. & Heb. 11.17-19.

ſee [ſeed] Live, and ſurvive to ſee them; as job lived to ſee his ſons, and ſons ſons, Job 42.16. and thou ſhalt ſee thy children's children, Pſal. 128.6.

he ſhall prolong his dayes,] The pronoun is wanting; as before! In regard whereof, the words have a two-fold ſenſe given them. Some expounding them, of Chriſt himſelf, who, after his reſurrection, ſhould dye no more; nor live a while here, and then dye again, or ſome other, raiſed to life, for a time, 1 King. 17.22. 2 King. 4.35,& 8. 5.& 13.21. Luk. 7.15. & 8.55. Joh.11.44. but live, and reign,for ever, Act.13.34. Rom.6.9,10. Heb.7.25.& 9.27,28. and Rev.1.18. Others, of his iſſue, the race of Saints; (and the ancient Greek,and old Latine,go both that way) being to continue ſucceſſively here on earth, to the worlds end, and from thence-forth to live with him in glory for ever, Mat.16.18. & 28.20. and 25.46. Joh. 25,29.& 11.25,26.& 14. 19. 1 Theſſ.4.17. and then it ſhould be read, he ſhall ſee a ſeed, that ſhall prolong its dayes; which is the very ſenſe of the relative; as chap. 51.12. but the former ſeems more probable. Of the phraſe, ſee Deut. 17.20. Prov. 28.16.

and the pleaſure of the Lord ſhall proſper in his hand] Or, the and will ; as the old latine giveth it, according to that Joh.4.34 & 6.38.or, the deſire,as the word is rendred,1 Sam.18.25.or, the purpoſe of the Lord, as Eccl. 3.1,17 and 8.6. it hath reference to the verb, from whence it comes, uſed in the firſt branch. That which God intended to effect,by giving him up, Rom 8.32 9. and for which he was well content, & pleaſed ſo to do, ſhall, by his means, and miniſtery (ſo the word,hand, is ordinarily uſed, chap.20.1. and 37.24.& 6.4-7.) accordingly take effect. See ver.11 12,13.

V. 11 He ſhall ſee of the travel of his ſoul, and ſhall be ſatisfied:] Or,as ſome render it, he ſhall ſee the fruit of the travel of his ſoul, and ſhall be ſatisfied. That is, he ſhall receive, and enjoy that,as the effect, and iſſue, of all the paines that he hath taken, and pain that he hath endured; that ſhall give him full content.

ſhall ſee] To ſee,is commonly uſed, for, to perceive, or enjoy, as,to ſee good, for, to receive, or, enjoy good, Pſ. 34.12. Job 9.25. Jer. 17.6. to ſee life, for, to enjoy life; to live, Eccl. 9.9. Joh. 3.36.& it is uſed frequently, without any further addition, to behold, what one much deſires, with great delight, Pſ. 35.21.& 54.7.& ch. 60.5.& 66.14. ſo here.

of the travel] Heb. from the travel; as, to eat of ones bread, Lev. 22.13. Num.15.19. and, to drink of ones wine, Dan.1.5. Jer.51.7. travel, for the fruit of his travel, as,labour, for the fruit of ones labour, Pſal.128.2. thou ſhalt eat the labour of thine hands; eas, and enjoy that,for which thine hands have laboured;or,from the travel, that which proceedeth, and cometh from it; as, from the eater came meat, and from the ſtrong ſweet, Judg.14.14. and the word rendred travel, ſignifies properly,toilſome,troublelome, wearilome labour, Deut.26.7. Job 5.7. Pſal.107.12.

ſhall be ſatisfied] A metaphor taken, either from perſons, that, having been much pinched, and pained with hunger and thirſt, have food, or drink,afforded them now to their fill, which they to have food, or drink,afforded them now to their fill, which they to much wiſhed for, and earneſtly deſired before, Pſal.107.5,9. Mat. 5.6. or, from the husbandman, that hath his fill of thoſe fruits of the earth, that he hath taken much pains for; or, of trees, and plants, that he hath taken much pains about, 2Chron.31 10. Joel 2.26. contrary to that,Hoſ.4.10. Mic.6.14. Hag.1.6. See Prov.12. 11. and 28.19. 2 Tim. 2.6. But there are two other expoſitions, (to paſs by the reſt,) that carry ſome good ſhew of probability with them,we have Authors of good note for them. The former render the words thus, When, he ſhall ſee his ſoul (that is, himſelf, as before,) freed from trouble (having an end put unto all thoſe troubles, that he was here expoſed unto,and exerciſed with) he ſhall be ſatisfied: that is,moſt abundantly filled with glory, being taken up into Heaven, and ſet there at Gods right hand, Pſal.16.11. & 17.15. The latter (that which to me ſeemeth the more probable of the twain) read the words thus; For the travel of his ſoul, he ſhall ſee ſeed, and be ſatisfied: For the travel of his ſoul; that is, becauſe he had travelled: as, for my knowledg, that is, becauſe I knew, Chap. 48.4. he ſhall ſee a ſeed: ſupplyed from the verſe before-going, as, Job 3.17,18,20,23. & 22. 24. Chap.52.26. and he ſhall be ſatisfied ; that is, much refreſhed, and gladded therewith: and the metaphor they ſuppoſe taken from women delivered of child, after hard, and long labour: which ſenſe, and notion admitted, I ſhould rather render the text, after the travel of his ſoul; that is, after his travel: yet the word, ſoul, may be the better retained; becauſe a feminine term, and that ſex here alluded to rather: by whole pangs, in travail alſo, are Chriſts ſufferings deciphered, Act. 2.27. for ſo the word there uſed, properly ſignifies. After theſe therefore (for ſo the particle is oft uſed, as was before ſhewed, on ver. 8.) paſt, and gone, he ſhall ſee ſeed: He ſhall not travel in vain, as thoſe complain, that they did,as if they went but with winde, chap.26.18 and that the babe was come neer to the breaking place, but no power to bring forth,chap.37.3. God would not cauſe to travel,and deny delivery, chap.66.9.but the fruit of his travel,ſo much deſired he ſhould obtain, to wit, a numerous iſſue of faithful ſouls begotten to God, which he himſelf alſo ſhould luvive to ſee with joy, (that which women oft in that caſe fail of, Gen. 35.17 19. 1 Sam. 3 18 2 1)being to taken therewith,as a woman,that being ſafely delivered, after ſore and ſharp labour, forgetteth now all her ſore-paſſed ſorrow, for joy of her much deſired birth, Joh.16.21.And this expoſition, the words of the text doc very well bear; though I adhere rather to the firſt.

by his knowledge ſhall my righteous Servant juſtifie many:] Theſe words are delivered,as in the perſon of God the Father, with whole words he began, chap.52.13. and the like paſſages from perſon to perſon, we oft meet with in this Prophet, as chap.13.11. & 17.10. and 22.19.& 26.19. and they hold out unto us,the main truth, and effect, of Chriſts paſſion before-mentioned, mans juſtification, and reconciliation,to God, Rom.3.24,25. & 5.1,8.10. and the ſeed, or iſſue, that he ſhould ſee, & reſt ſatisfied in,for all the paines that he had undertaken, and for their ſakes, undergone: the perſons thus juſtified, and ſaved by thoſe ſufferings, whereby ſatisfaction was fully made unto God,for their ſins.Heb.2.10,13. The greateſt ſatisfaction to his ſoul,is to ſee ſouls juſtified,by faith, in him: as the greateſt joy,and contentment of mind, to his faithful miniſters, to ſee ſouls won, and begotten,by their miniſtery, to him, 1Cor.4.15. Gal.4.19. 1 Theſſ.2.19,20.2 Joh.4. 3 Joh.3.14.

by his knowledge] Or, to make it more plain, and take away all ambiguity, the knowledge of him: not his knowledge, taken ſubjectively, his own knowledge, as ſome would here expound it: the knowledge,that he hath himſelf, either of God, Mat.11. 27. Joh 8. 55.& 10.15.or, of them, Joh.10.14,27. but his knowledge, taken objectively, that is, the knowledge, whereby they know him, Phil. 3.8. 2Pet.1.3.& 2.20. So Pſal.5.7.thy fear: for, the fear of thee, and, my fear, for the fear of me, Jer. 32.40.& Pſal.139.17. thy thoughts, for, my thoughts of thee: and, my wrong, for, the wrong, by others, done to me, Gen.16.5. Jer.51.35. Yet not, that the bare knowledge of Chriſt, is that, whereby we are juſtified:for the Divels themſelves, both know,and acknowledge him too, Mar.1.24, 34.Luk.4.34,41. but by knowledge of him, is meant, faith in him, Act.25.18.& 26.18. the antecedent, for the conſequent, as Joh.17.3. becauſe the knowledge of him,is the ground of truſt, and confidence in him, Rom.10 14,17. 1 Joh.5.20. as the belief of him, though not the juſtifying act of faith (for the Divels,alſo,believe and tremble, Jam. 2.19.)yet is put for juſt, and confidence, in him, Act.13.39. Rom.10.9 1 Joh.5.1. for that act, whereby we are ſaid to be juſtified, where the Apoſtle ſtateth the controverſie concerning juſtification, Rom.3.25,26. and whereby he declareth, how ſins are fully expreſſed, and more preciſely defined, Joh.3.15,16,18,36.Act.16.31.and 20.21.& 24.25. Rom.10.14.Gal.2.16.

my righteous Servant] My Servant: becauſe ſerviceable to God his Father; yea, unto the Elect of God alſo, in the work of mans redemption. See chap.42.1.& 52.13. Mat.20.28. Mar.10.45. Luk. 22.27. Rom.15.8. Phil.2.7. righteous Servant, as, righteous Lord, Pſal.11.7. (the adjective, before the ſubſtantive, not ſo uſuall in that language) called therefore,that righteous one, Act.3.14.& 7.52. and 22.14. becauſe wholly free from all act, or taint, of ſin, ver. 10. 2Cor.5.21. 1Joh.3.5. which unleſs he had been, he could not have been, either a fit Prieſt, Heb.7.26. or, a fit ſacrifice, 1Pet.1. 18,19.to make ſatisfaction to God, for the ſins of others, having need to ſatisfie for his own ſins,& for himſelf, Heb.7.27.1Pet.2.18.

ſhall juſtifie] Some would have the word, here uſed, to ſignifie no other, then a converting of men to godlineſs and righteouſneſs, by wholſome inſtruction, and religious inſtitution: as the Miniſters of God,or Teachers,are ſaid to make many wiſe, and righteous, Dan.12.3. for ſo, queſtionleſs, the word is there taken: and in a notion, next thereunto, Rev.22.11. the terms being uſed of inherent righteouſneſs, as we uſually ſpeak, and as the Scripture, alſo, uſeth the word righteous, and righteouſneſs. Mat.5.20.& 6.31. Luk.1.6, 75. Eph.4.24. or ſanctification,as it is more diſtinctly,and ſpecially termed in Scripture, Rom.6.22.2. Cor.7.1. 1 Theſſ.4.3,4. 2 Theſſ. 2.13. and true it is, that none are juſtified, but ſuch as are withall ſanctified, 1Cor.6.11. as alſo, that we have as well the one, as the other, from Chriſt, 1 Cor.1.30.& 6.11.Heb.9.14.& 10.10. 1 Pet.1. 2. Rev. 1,5,6. but yet that is not the notion of the word, in this place, but by juſtifying, is here meant, as alſo, thorow the whole diſcourſe of juſtification,in Pauls Epiſtles, Rom.3.24,25,26,28,30. and 4.2,5,25.& 5.1,9,16,18. Gal.2.16. 1 Cor.6.11. (in which laſt place,alſo,juſtification,and ſanctification,are expreſly diſtinguiſhed, of the one from the other) to wit, of the diſcharge of men, from the ſin, from the guilt of ſin, by making ſatisfaction unto God for the ſame: as evidently appeareth by the whole courſe of the context,and the main matter of the Prophets diſcourſe in this place: as well by thoſe paſſages before, that cleer the way to this,ver.5,6,7,10. as alſo,by the reaſon of it recited, in the very words next enſuing: For being wholly diſcharged of all ſin and all iniquity: that is, of all guilt of ſin, either for the omitting of ought, that they were bound to do (for that alſo makes guilty, and liable to the curſe, Deut. 27.26. Gal. 3.10,12.) or, for the committing of ought, that they ought, not to have done; yea, or in regard of any the leaſt warping as well as ſwarving, by any obliquity of heart, or Spirit from the Law of God, the onely ſtrict, tand ſtreight rule of all righteouſneſs (for that alſo cometh within the compaſs of ſin, and iniquity; 1 Joh .3. 4. and 5. 17.) being thus (I ſay) diſcharged of all, guilt of ſinne whatſoever, and of wh t kinde, or nature ſoever they muſt of neceſſity become, and juſtly be deemed (ſo far, as concerns any guilt of ſin) perfectly righteous, Romanes 5. 19. Phillip 3. 9. and conſequently juſtified, that is, even in juſtice acquited, and abſolued, whenſoever they ſhall be cited to appear at Gods tribunal, Romanes 3.26,30.& 8.1,33,34.But of this notion, and uſe of the word juſtifie, ſee more on Chapter 3.45.

many] So Matthew 20. 28. Mark 10. 28. Romanes 5.15, 19. even, all that truſt in him, Titus 2. 12. and 37. 40. Joha 3. 15,16,18,36.& 6.29,35,40.& 11.25,26.Act.10.43.& 13.38,39. 1 Joh.2.2.therefore many,becauſe ſatisfaction made by him,for many, v.12.

for he ſhall bear their iniquities]Heb.and he ſhall bear their iniquities: but the copulative is oft uſed, in a cauſal notion; as implying the cauſe, or reaſon, rendred,of what was before ſaid.So ver.2.Pſa. 75.1.& 95.9.& 108.12.chap.38.21.& 40,26 & 52.15.yet it may alſo be rendred; whoſe iniquities he ſhall bear: for the copulative oft ſupplies,alſo,the place of the relative; as Job 20.11.& 37.5.ch. 4.6. & 17.2.& 28. 1. whether way we here take it, either as rendring the reaſon, why he ſhould juſtifie ſo many; becauſe he ſhould bear the guilt of their ſins, and thereby make full ſatisfaction unto God for them;for,by ſuch bearing of them,1 Pet.2.24. he ſhould take them away from them Joh.1.29.)or,as deſcribing the perſons, whom he ſhould juſtifie;not all promiſcuouſly,but thoſe only,whoſe ſins he undertook to diſcharge, and for whom he laid down his life; that is,the faithful and penitent alone,unto whom,only,he promiſeth to make good this favour,and aſſigneth to ſhare in the fruit of his interceſſion,and ſufferings,Mat.9.13.& 11.28. Mar.1.15.Joh.3. 18.& 17.9,20.it will come, in effect and ſubſtance,all to one,& the reſult of all will be,that Chriſt juſtifies thoſe,and thoſe alone, that rely on him,and belong to him,by his ſufferings for their ſins,Rom. 5.8,9.See ver.10.

V.12.Therefore I will divide him a portion with the great; and he ſhall divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong:] In this paſſage is related another fruit, and effect of the ſufferings of Chriſt, and his ſervice, exhibited unto God his Father thereby, to wit, the multitudes of thoſe, that God the Father would for the ſame before upon him, to the advancement of his honour, being adorned, and enriched with them, as a victorious conqueror, and tryumpher, with rich ſpoils and booties,taken from thoſe, whom by fight,he hath ſubdued.

Therefore] So the Apoſtle: Therefore alſo, Philip 2. 9. becauſe he hath done me and ſinithed, this faithful ſervice,refuſing no pains hardſhip,or evil-uſage,attending upon it,ch 50.5,6.v.10,and in the next branch again.See Joh.17.4.5. and the Apoſtle Paul of himſelf,2 Tim.4.7,8.and of all the faithful,our Saviour himſelf,Rev. 3.21.

I] God the Father,who ſpake before,v.11.ſo Pſa.8. See John.6. 37,39.44,65.Act.2.47.& 11.21.

will divide him a portion with the great] This ſome underſtand of a portion of honour and dignity, collated upon Chriſt, not as the firſt-born only, in one reſpect, Rom.8.29.Col.1.15.unto whom a double portion was due,Deut.21.17.but,as the onely begotten alſo of the Father,in another reſpect,Joh. 1.14.far above all creatures, either men,or angels,Pſal.45.7.Eph.1.21.Phil.2.9.Col. 1.18,19. Heb.1.4,6.9. and they ſuppoſe it to be taken from the diviſion of inheritances, Joſh.14.1.Prov.29 3.Luke 15.12.in regard where of, they inſert the word portion, which is not in the text; as ſome other alſo who expound it by that, Pſal 2.8. *I will give the heathen for thine inher tance,*and, thine inheritell all nations, Pſal.82.8. underſtanding it,as ſpoken of the great Princes,and Potentates of this world,that ſhould be brought in, and made to ſubmit,and ſtoop to the ſceptre of Chriſt,Ch.49 23.& 52.13,15.& 60.3,10.Pſal.72.10, 11. and to avoid ambiguity, leſt any ſhould ſeem to ſhare here in with Chriſt, and yet in ſome kind and degree, ſome are faid ſo to do,Ch.49.22.& 60.10. Mat.19 28.Joh.17.22. Rev 2.26,27.& 3. 21.& 21. 7.) they would have the words rendred, I will divide him great ones for a portion.Others,as in,inſtert the word, ſpoil,ſuppoſed from the next branch. Thus rendring the words, I will divide great ones to him, for a ſpoyl; or I will divide him a ſpoyl of great ones; whereby they underſtand thoſe principalities and powers, of the kingdom of Satan,ſo ſubdued, ſpoyled, and tryumphed over, by Chriſt, Col.2.15.an alluſion to the diſtribution of ſpoyls, after ſome great victory obtained,or conqueſt atchieved, Judg. 5.30.Pſal.68. 12.2 Chr.20.25.Chap 9.2.& 33.23.Zach.14.7.Heb.1 will divide to him, of or in great ones,or many. (for the word is ambiguous, and is uſed as ordinarily in the one not on,as in the other,of multitude,as of magnitude,whence the like ambiguity, Pſal 25.11.& 119.161.) Some therefore here tende rit, I will give many to him,or beſtow many on him,and that with very good probability: For howſoever it be true, that the word, here uſed, doth ſignifie, in the firſt place,to diſtribute,or diuide,Joſh 18.2.Neh.13.13. yet the word is uſed ſometime at the ſecond hand,ſimply,for to impart, beſtow, give, aſſign,or to bute, even where no diſtribution is neceſſarily implyed,or at leaſt intended: becauſe of diviſion,and diſtribution, that is the ordinary end. So is the word deemed to be taken Deut 4.19. of the Sun, Moon and Stars,which the Lord hath imparted,and aſſigned,unto all Nations, beſtowed upon all alike,Deut.29.26. whom he had not given unto them Joh 21.17.he diuides ſorrowe in his anger,Job 39.17.of the Ethiich he hath not imparted unto her underſtanding; where the ſame particle is found before wiſdom underſtanding, that is here, before great, or many.And it ſeemeth to be no other here, then the,but note only of the accuſative caſe, as it is commonly termed; as alſo, Exod.7.20.Lev.24.16 Joh 21.12.Eccl.5.10. Lam.1.17. Jon.3.5. So the meaning ſhould be no more then this, that God would beſtow many upon him, or give many unto him, to be his ſubjects, whether with an alluſion to a portion of inheritance; as Pſalm 16.5,6. or, the diſtribution of ſpoyls; as Genesis 49. 27. it is indifferent.

he ſhall divide the ſpoyl with the ſtrong] It is by the beſt Interpreters acknowledged, that the ſame is in ſome other terms repeated here, that was intimated in the words fore going;this difference only obſerve, that the Fathers donation and appointment, was pointed to there; Chriſts poſſeſſion, and enjoyment or what was by his Fathers donation aſſigned to him, here. Divers go the ſame way here, that our Engliſh doth; he ſhall divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong,(as Prov.16.19.to divide the ſpoil with the proud;and Prov.29 24.to partake with a thief but another particle there:) that is, lay ſome, he ſhall ſettle his Kingdom, among the great and mighty Kingdoms of this world; as ſharing in ſome ſort with them, Rev. 11.15.the old Latines readś it, he ſhall divide the ſpoil of the mighty that is, as ſome, the ſpoils,that Satan,the ſtrong man,had formerly been poſſeſſed of, Luke 11.21,22.but I finde not yet, where this particle is uſed, as a note of the genetive caſe,Some render it, that he may divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong : (o the copulative was uſed before, ver.2. ſee there; as if it were ſaid, I will furniſh him with all endowments,whereby he may be enabled to grapple with,conquer, plunder,and tryumph over,all the enemies of mans ſalvation, Col. 2.15.to which purpoſe alſo, ſome other,he ſhall divide the mighty as a ſpoyl.

But in the laſt place ſome render it; (which to me ſeems moſt probable,)he ſhall obtain, receive,perceive, or poſſeſs, very many. for a prey: for as the word,that primarily ſignifies, to divide, or diſtribute,either inheritance, or prey, doth ſignifie,in the next place, to impart,aſſign, or give, and beſtow,in general,in relation to the giver,ſo it is uſed alſo,in general, for to inherit,receive,obtain, and poſſeſs,in relation to the receiver. So Joſh.18. 2. theſe remained that had not yet received their inheritance,Job 27.17. He(that is,the wicked man) ſhall prepare it, but the juſt ſhall wear it; and thee guiltleſs ſhall inherit,obtain,poſſeſs,or enjoy his ſilver, Pſal 60.6. I will obtain Sechem,or poſſeſs it,make my left Lord of it:and for the word commonly rendred ſtrong, it is very apparent, both that the verb,from whence it comes, hath very uſually a notion of multitude in it (See on Chap.31.1.)and the word it ſelf is moſt frequently uſed,to ſignifie very many,as Chap 8.7.Gen.18.18. Num.14.12.Deut.4.38 & 9. 1.& 11.23.& 26.5.Joſh.23.9.Joel 2.5.Mic.4.7. and, for a prey, the word ſo joyned with very many, without any particle coming between,is alſo not unuſual;for ſo it is ſaid, Pſal.135.11. he gave their land an inheritance, that is, for an inheritance. So that the words, thus reſolved,intimate the numerous or innumerable,rather,multitude of thoſe that ſhould be converted unto Chriſt (of which, ſee Act.2.41, 47.& 4.4.& 6.7.& 8.6,11.& 11.21. & 13.44,48.& 21. 20.)whom he is ſaid to obtain and poſſeſs, or enjoy,as a ſpoyl,or a preys in alluſion either to the choiceſt ſubſtance, jewels or garments eſpecially, that were referved, and ſet apart, for the Generall, or Commander in chief, to wear; riding in triumph, Judges 5. 30. Samuel 12. 30. more. to captives, great ones eſpecially, taken in fight,or conqueſt,and following the conqueror, as an addition to his magnificence and honour, Chapter 45. 14. and 49. 18

becauſe he hath powred out his ſoul unto death] Powred out,as water is powred out;ſo is the word uſed,Gen.20.24.and ſo the Pſalmiſt of himſelf, in the perſon of Chriſt, Pſal.22.14. I am powred out like water:and ſo ſome expound the phraſe here uſed; poure not out my ſoul, or life,Pſal.141.8.becauſe when the ſoul departs,the life goeth with it:he poure d out his ſoul,or his life:(ſo the word is uſed,Pſal.26. 9.& 31.13.& 35.4.and 56.6.) as if he had made no more reckoning of it, then of water, as it is ſaid of the Martyrs ſlain for him, that they loved not their ſouls, that is,their lives, unto death,Rev. 12.11. they parted with their lives, for his ſake, as freely, and as willingly, as if they valued, or loved them not. (which ſpeech is borrowed from Luke 14.26.)Piney doth that in Chriſts cauſe, that himſelf before, for them,to fulfill his Fathers Will,had done,Joh.10.17,18.& 14.30, 31. So the Apoſtle of him; He became obedient unto death,Phil.2.8. See Luke 23.46.of pouring out of the ſoul, in another ſenſe,to wit, by prayer with tears.See 1 Sam.1.15.compared with ch.7.6.Pſ. 42. 3,4.Lam.2.19.and of our Saviour ſomewhat neer it,in that notion, Heb.5.7.

and he was numbred with the tranſgreſſours] Or, with tranſgreſſours: for there is no article in the text. He was reckoned,as ſuch an one,as one of that rank; being put to the ſame death,that malefactors uſed to ſuffer,in the ſame place, where ſuch were ordinarily wont to be executed; and at the ſame time, when ſome other alſo in the ſame place were to ſuffer: two notorious thieves; the one, crucified on his right, and the other on his left hand, he hanging in the midſt between them, as the principal of them, Mat. 27.38. wherein the Evangeliſt tels us,that this Prophecy was fulfilled,Mar. 15.27,28.yea,he was not only reckoned among them, but caſt behind them; or(if ye will) for height of evil,deſerr, preferred before them,when Barabbas, that notorious miſcreant, was required to be let looſe,rather then he ſhould be let live, Mat.27. 16,17,20. 21 Mark.

and he bare the ſin of many] The penalty of the ſins of all that numerous,or numberleſs multitude, before-mentioned, that were, by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, ſo brought home to him, as ſincerely to truſt on him, verſe. 5. 6. which, by bearing alſo for them, verſe. 4. 12 Peter. 2. 24. he took away from them, Joh.1.29. and by diſcharging them of the guilt thereof,v.7.brought them into a juſtifiable condition, even in Gods ſight, and at his Tribunal, v.11.

and made interceſſion for the tranſgreſſours] For thoſe very tranſgreſſors,or wicked ones,by whom he ſuffered,Luk 23.34. wherein Stephen alſo imitated him, Acts 7.60. for the article,here emphatical, ſeems to point unto that ſpecial act,and thoſe particular petitions,he hath relation,alſo,to Chriſts interceſſion for ſinners,that belong to him,and have intereſt in him,Rom.4.5.& 5.6,8,10.which continueth ſtill,and ſhall do unto the worlds end, Rom.8.34.Heb.7.25.& 9.24,1 Joh.2.1,2.

CHAP. LIV.

Verſe 1. Sing, O barren] This Chapter Some ſuppoſe to belong to the former Sermon,or Prophecy,beginning at ch.52. 1.and proceeding on from thence,in a continued diſcourſe, concerning the State of the Church reſtored, unto ver. 12. which having been there interrupted, with a digreſſion, concerning, either the Meſſias, or ſome other, whom they ſuppoſe to be there meant, ſhould,in this Chapter, be returned unto again.But moſt take it to be a new Prophecy, diſtinct from the former, though much of the ſame ſubject, and argument, with it: Howſoever, it hath a good coherence with,and dependance upon,the latter end of the former: For that ended with mention,as hath been ſhewed, of thoſe multitudes that ſhould be converted to Chriſt:this beginneth with thoſe ſwarms of people, that ſhould be bred by, and brought into the Church;and is wholly ſpent in predictions,and promiſes, of the enlargement and advancement thereof, together with the continuance of it in that eſtate.

Sing]Or, Shout,for joy;as ch.12.6.Zeph.3.14 Zach.2.10.for there is alſo a crying out for grief, Lam. 2.19. where the ſame word is uſed.

O barren, thou that didſt not bear] A want of the relative; as ch. 51.12.and ſo in the next branch. This ſome underſtand of the Jewiſh Church and State, returned from captivity, which, during the time of that Babyloniſh bondage,ſeemed to be as a widow, or alone woman,barren without hope of iſſue,ver.4.See Ch.49.21. Others, of the Gentiles, to be called in; by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, who had been before barren,and brought none forth unto God,being without Chriſt, without God, in the world, Eph. 2. 1-3, 12. It may well be underſtood of the Church under the New Teſtament, conſiſting joyntly of Jew and Gentile; though with reference unto that former, as a type of this latter. See Galatians 4. 27.

break forth into ſinging,and cry aloud, thou that didſt not travel]The ſame thing repeated in other more emphatical terms, implying abundant matter of exceeding great joy.Of the terms,ſee on c.12.6. & 14.7.& 55.12.

travel]or bear,or bring forth,the antecedent for the conſequent as ch.23.4.

for more are the children of the deſolate,then the children of the married wife, ſaith the Lord]Heb.many from, or in compariſon of, them, for,more in number then they, as it is rendred, Gal.4.27. See the like uſe of this particle, Judg. 5.24.Pſal.45.7.Prov.22.1.Eccl.7.1. That is, as not a few:the Jewiſh State, that had been a long time deſolate, ſhall abound in people much more then either her ſelf formerly, in her flouriſhing eſtate,as ſome;or then other Kingdoms and Provinces, ſay others,that had enjoyned a continued ſucceſſion of Kings,or a King tay they,being as an husband to a State)which the for a long time wanted; and cities inhabited, whereas their [illegible] deſerved withal, that Jeruſalem, even in her latter times, is reported, by Pliny, l.5.c.14.to have been the famouſeſt,or faireſt city, not of Iewry alone, but of all the Eaſtern parts. But the moſt referr it to the ſpiritual ſtate of Sion, to the Jeruſalem, from above; unto which more children were to be begotten, and bred again, by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, 1 Cor.4.15.1 Pet.1.23.of the Gentiles,that were wholly barren before;then of the Jews, that were ſometime fruitful, Rom.9.22,26.30.Rev.7.4,9. And there is thought to be in the words,ſome alluſion to Saraths caſe, though a long time barren, yet in iſſue afterward going beyond Hagar,Gen.11.30.& 17.19.& 21.12.& 22.17.Gal.4 27,31.or to Hannah, in regard of Peninnah, at firſt, barren, and yet afterward more fruitful then the other, 1 Sam.1.5,6,20.& 2.5.

Ver. 2. Enlarge the place of thy tent] Heb. widen; as ch.33. 5.14. implying, that her iſſue and Inhabitants,ſhould ſo encreaſe and multiply,that the ſhould want room to receive them.See chapter 49.20.21.and 60.4,5 it hath reference to their ancient manner of dwelling in tents,Gen.12.8.& 18.1.& 26.17. & 33.19. Hebr. 11. 9.

and let them ſtretch out the curtains of thine habitations] That is, let the curtains (of which their tents conſiſted,Exod.26.1.12. Jer.4. 20.be ſtretched out,for the verb is uſed impertonally. See the like, ch.33.1.& 34.11.

ſpare not,lengthen thy cords]Or, ſpare not to length en(as, multiply, waſh me, for multiply to waſh me,with me over and over,again and again,Pſ.51.2.)thy cords: wherewith thoſe curtains were faſtened, whereof their tents conſiſted, unto pins, or ſtakes, driven into the ground.See ch.33.20.

and ſtrengthen thy ſtakes]Make them ſtrong,and lure,drive them faſt into the ground,that they may be able to hold, and keep tight, ſuch a weight of curtains,of that length and breadth,that thine muſt be,being faſtned to them, by thole cords. See hereof alſo, Chapter 33.20.

Ver. 3. For thou ſhalt break forth on the right hand, and on the left] The reaſon why the tent wa to be enlarged, becauſe her iſſue, that muſt dwel in it, would be multiplyed, and room on every ſide, on either hand, was to be made for them. See Chapter 49.20.

break forth] That is,being forth,and propagate abundantly:to is the word uſed,both of mankind,and other creatures, Gen 30. 30, 43.Exod.1.12.1 Chr.4.38.Job 1.10.and it is a metaphor, taken,either, from the breaking forth of iſſue,at time of delivery, Gen. 38. 27.or,from the breaking forth of plenty of any material laid up in a ſtorehouſe, as being more in quantity,then the place is able well to contain, breaks through the walls that enclote it, Proverbs 3.10.

on the right hand, and on the left] That is, ſay ſome,to the South, and to the North, or,South-ward, and North-ward, as intimating which way the Church ſhould moſt propagate: becauſe the face being turned Eaſtward; (which part of the world, as placed before man,ſo ſituate,hath its name. See on Ch.2.6.)the South is on the right hand,(thence in Hebrew denominated.See ch.21.1.& 43.6.) and the North on the left.But this is too nice a ſtreine,on the right hand,and on the left,is uſed for,on either ſide,Exod.14.29. Num.22. 26.2 Sam.16.6.Ch.9.20.In the phraſe, there ſeems a defect, to be thus more fully made up; thou ſhalt bring forth, or, be del vered of thoſe, that ſhall break out, *(*throw the curtains of thy tents, if it be not made the wider to hold them)both on the right hand, and on the left, as alluding to a ſtore-houſe, ſo unreaſonably ſtowed, that the walls are enforced to give way, on either ſide. See Zach. 2. 4.

and thy ſeed ſhall inherit the Gentiles] This, ſome underſtand of the Jewiſh people, who, after their return from the captivity, did, in proceſs of time, enlarge their territories, and encroached upon ſome parts of Moab, Idom, and Syria; according to that promiſe made by God,to Abraham, Gen.22. 17. Thy ſeed ſhall poſſeſs their enemies gates. But whatſoever was therein then done, was but a dim ſhadow of that which is herein principally intended: to wit, the inheritance which God would give unto Chriſt, and to his Church together with him, by multitudes of faithful converts,in all parts of the world. See on Chap.46.12.and 53.12.A work begun by the Apoſtles, the children of the former Church, and carried on by thoſe, that ſucceeded them, in the ſpreading of the Goſpel,Mauthew 28.19,20.Mark 16.15.Luk.24.47.Acts 1. 8. Romanes 10.18.

and make the deſolate places to be inhabited] They ſhall people the world, that lay as deſolate before, with a new race of faithful people,v.1.as after their return from the captivity, they re-edified, and replenished their cities,and country again. Pſalm.69.35.ch.44.26, & 49.8.& 51.3.

V.4.Fear not] Do not,out of a diſtruſtful conceit,entertain groundleſs fears, as if the things, now foretold thee,were matters incredible, and impoſſible to be performed. See ch.41.10,14.& 43.1. and 44. 8.

For thou ſhalt not be aſhamed] Or,bluſh,ch.50.7.as one fruſtrate of his expectation and failing of his hopes, Rom.5.5.or,thou ſhalt not continue ſtill in or return again unto,that deſerted,dejected,and re-proached condition,wherein, at preſent,thou art,ve.6.See Chapter. 29. 22.

neither be thou confounded, for thou ſhalt not be ſhamed] The ſame thing repeated in other terms; to give the fuller aſſurance of the performance of the things promiſed, and add further ſtrength to the feeble taith of his poor people,ch.35.3,4.So likewiſe, Chap. 29 22.

For thou ſhalt forget the ſhame of thy youth, and ſhalt not remember the reproach of thy widow-hood any more] Or, but thou ſhalt forget, the reproach of thy widow-hood any more] Or, but thou ſhalt forget, &c as the particle is expreſſed, Chap 30 16.& 49. 25. ſo great,and ſo glorious ſhall thy condition be,and thine iſſue ſo ample,that it ſhall drown the memory,both of thy mean and reproachful eſtate, which in thine younger years,thou ſuſtained,in the Egyptian ſervitude, in thine younger years,thou ſuſtained,in the Egyptian ſervitude, Jer.2.2.Ezek.23.3 and the like alſo, which thou doſt now undergo, in thy preſent Babylonian bondage. Ch.49.21.Lam.1.1. thou ſhalt no more regard them,(to great ſhall thy joy be)then as it they had never been,ch.65.16.Joh.16.21. See the like expreſſions, Gen.41. 30,31,51.

Ver. 5. For thy maker is thine husband; (the Lord of hoſts is his name)] Or. Thy Maker (whoſe name is the Lord of hoſts) (as Chap 51.15.)is thine husband. The Sovereign Lord of the whole world, who hath all the creatures at his command, and who, at leaſt, when the Lord shall bring again Zion,] So is the word generally rendred, both here, and Psalm. 14.7, & 53.6 & 126.1. in all which places yet it seemeth to be word for word in the text when the Lord shall return again to Zion, with a want of the particle in, as, chap. 35.10. and 51.11. and it may well be so rendred also in those places of the Psalmes; when the Lord shall turn to the captivity of his people; and, when the Lora turned unto the captivity of Zion: when in mercy and favour, he turned again to them; as Num.10. 36. Psal. 90.13. chap.63.17. to the sense will be, when the Lord shall return unto Zion again; either to his people that had sometime held it, but had been dispossessed of it, and detained long from it, or, to the place it self, to take up his abode, & make his residence again there, as he had sometime done before, Ezek. 43.1-5. 44.1-4. Zech. 8.3. Psal. 132.13. 14. 16. 17. Rev. 21.3. 10. God is said to come along with his people, in the front of them, at their return, vers. 12 they shall chearly see God himself returning, in conspicuous manner, together with his redeemed ones unto Zion. And this way the most of the Jewish commenters go: Nor can it be denied, but that the word, in the form here used, it commonly, almost generally, intransitive; and signifieth, not to reduce, as in another form, but to return. Howbeit, some places there are, wherein it seemeth to require a transitive notion, as Job 41.18. the Lord turned the captivity of Job, & Nah. 2.2. The Lord hath turned the pride of the excellency of Jacob; and so without any supply, it may well be here as our version hath it. See Jer 30.3, 18.

V. 9. Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem:] That have lien long ruined, but shall now be re-edified, chap.44.28. Heb wastes; as chap.49.19. & 51.3. See chap.14.7. and 35.1. & 44.23. & 49.13. and 45.1. and 55.12.

for the Lord hath comforted his people,] Returning in mercy to them, ver.8. See chap.51.3.

he hath redeemed Jerusalem.] See her at liberty again, ver.3. See chap. 44.23. & 48.20. Luk.1.68.

V. 10. The Lord hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations:] Or, hath stripped up his arm; as alluding to the gesture of those, that strip up the sleeve of the arm, to strike the more readily with it. See Ez.4.7 chap 53.1. arm, for power; as chap. 51.9. which place this seems to reflect upon. The Lord according to your desire, and suit to him there, hath raised up himself, and sheweth forth his might, in most conspicuous manner, in the sight of other people, as well as your own, that they cannot but take notice of his handy work, both in your adversaries destruction, and in your deliverance, Psal.98.2. chap.26.11.

holy arm; Heb. arm of holiness; as Psal. 98.1.

in the eyes] For, in the sight, Psal 98.2. 20, in the ears, for, in the hearing, Chap. 36.11.

and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of the Lord] Or, that all the ends of the earth may see; as Chapter 41.20, 22 or, so that all the ends of the earth have seen; as Psalm. 98.3. the salvation of the Lord; which he hath wrought for his people, Chap.49.26. wh.th shall be so remarkable, that notice shall be taken of it, even in the remotest parts of the world, on every side, unto the lands end, Psal. 67 8. & 98.3. Mic.5.4. Luk.3.6.

V. 11. Depart ye, depart ye, go ye out from thence:] Get ye with all speed out of Babylon, ye that have been hitherto detained in captivity there, Chap.48.20. & 62. 10. Jer 50.8. & 51.6. 2 Cor.6. 17. Rev. 18.4.

touch no unclean thing,] Keep your selves pure and clean, free from heathenish and idolatrous defilements, 2 Cor.6.17. and 7.1. 1 Tim.5. 22. Jam. 1.27. an allusion to legal pollutions, contracted by touch, Lev. 11. 24.39 44. & 22.4-6. Col.2.21.

Go ye out of the midst of her.] Or, out of her; as chap 5.8. to wit, out of Babylon, as before: a double repetition redoubled.

be ye clean, ye that bear the vessels of the Lord,] Either ye that are to bear back the holy vessels that Nebuchadnezzer had carried away to Babylon, being, by Cyrus, now restored, Dan.1.2. 2 Chron. 36.7 Ezr.1.7,8 11. See the charge, by Esdras, given unto them, Ezr.8.28. or, ye Priests that are to handle them in your ordinary ministrations, Lev 21,6,23. Num.4.5,15. & 19.13.19. Ezek. 22.26. Hag. 2.13,14. and o all Christians called to be spiritual Priests, 1 Pet.2.5,9,13. Rev. 1.6.

V.12. For ye shall not go out with haste,] Or, in haste; hastily as they were enjoyned to eat the passover, Exod.12.11. and as they are said to have gone out of Egypt, Exod.12.33. so that they could not have time to provide themselves of necessaries, Exod. 12.39. Deut 16.3. but the word seems to import somewhat more then so here: ye shall not make haste out of fear, as if ye misdoubted, lest ye should be intercepted and stayed again, by those that detained you before: for the word it comes from, properly signifies, to tremble, Deut. 20.3. and consequently to make haste out of fear, 1 Sam. 23. 26. it impleth therefore, a frightful or, trembling haste, a making haste out of fear, Psal.31.22. & 116.11.

nor go by flight,] As if ye fled; as they seemed to do out of Egypt, Exod. 14.5. and as those are wont to do, that steal away with out the privity of those, under whom, or, in whose power, they are, Gen.31.20,21. and this therefore, and the former, flight, and haste, are, as here, so elsewhere, joyned together, 2 Sam.4.4. 2 King.7. 7,16. you shall not go e away hastily, out of fear, or by stealth; but ye shall depart freely, peaceably, quietly, by commission from publike Authority, taking your own time, without tumult, noise, or fear of ought, chap.55.12. 2 Chron. 36.23. Ezr. 1. 3,4.

for the Lord will go before you; and the God of Israel will be your rereward.] Heb. the Lord is walking, or, marching before you; and the God of Israel is gathering you up, or, closing you: as Num. 10.25. Josh. 6. 9.13. Ye shall not need to fear ought, either in letting out, or on the way; for God will secure and safeguard you, on every side, both before, and behind. It is an allusion to Gods conduct of his people, in their departure from Egypt, and passage thorow the wilderness, by the the pillar of cloud, and fire; which sometime went in the front with them, and sometime also stood in the rere of them, as was most conducible for their protection and safety, Exod. 13.21. & 14.19.20. So Chap 58.8

V. 13. Behold] At this verse seems to begin a new Sermon; certain it is, that they belong to the same subject, with the next Chapter, and do together with it, jointly make up an entire Prophecy, concerning Christ, his person, parentage, condition, manner of life, sufferings, humiliation, exaltation, benefit redounding thence to his, and honour to himself.

my servant] This prophecy, the Jewish Commenters themselves affirme to be very difficult; and howsoever their later Masters strive all they can, to turne it from Christ, in hatred to whom, they strangely ring, and wrest the severall passages of it, writhing, and wriggling them, sometime one way, and sometime another, (wherein I could wish, that some Christian Writers had not too far concurred with them,) by, and in applying them, some to Moses, some to Esdras, some to Jesus the sonne of Jotadak, some to Josias, some to Ezekias, some to Esay, some to Jeremy, some to Israel, in generall, or the mixed body of the just ones returned from the Captivity; (unto none of all which, the subject matter of it will agree) yet the Chaldee Paraphrast expoundeth it of the Messias; and so likewise some of them acknowledge upon the place, that their ancient Doctors did. The title was before given unto Christ, Chapter 42. 1. and hereafter, Chapter 53. 11. so called by God the Father, who here speaketh of him, because he did him service in the work of mans redemption, Luke 2. 49. John 5. 17, 30. and 6. 38. and 9.4. and 10. 18 and 12. 49. and 14. 31. and 17. 4, and 18. 11. shall deal prudently] So the word seems to be used of David, 1 Sam. 18. 30. or, shall prosper; and so it is generally deemed to be used of the Messias, descended from David, Jer 23.5. of whom also it is said, chap.53.10. that the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in his hand.

he shall be exalted, and extolled, and be very high.] Divers terms heaped up, to expresse in part the transcendent, and unexpressible advancement of Christ, in regard of his humane nature, assumed by his deity, the Eternal Word, to subsist in one person with it. John 1. 14. Hebr. 2. 16. For the Talmudists doe but trifle, when they dreame of three distinct degrees in the text; exalted above Abraham, extolled above Moses, and advanced above the Angels; though the things themselves be true, John 8.53,56. Heb.2.3 & 1.4-7 but not so particularly here intended. Rather, as some of ours every way exalted, that men are ordinarily wont so to be; to wit, when raised from a mean estate to some honourable condition, or from a private life, to magistracy, and government, Gen. 41. 14,40——44. V. 14. As many were astonied at thee] The speech of the Father, not of Christ, as before; but unto Christ, whom he here directeth his speech unto. The words some expound, of an astonishment at Christ, in way of admiration of him, in regard of the power of his Deity, and his excellent parts, appearing, and manifesting themselves, partly, in his manner of teaching, and partly, in the miracles, and mighty workes wrought by him, Matthew 7. 28, 29. and 8. 27. and 13. 54. and 22. 33. Marke 1. 22, 27. and 6. 2, and 7. 37. and 11. 18. Luke 9. 43. But this sense suits not well with the course of the context. The word rather, according, both to the Originall, and the ordinay use of it, is here to be understood of such an astonishment as ariseth from the contemplation of some strange, uncouth, and ruefull spectacle of of desolation, deformity, misery, or the like. So is it used, Levit. 26.32. where the meaning of it also is expressed. So also, 1 King. 9. 8. 2 Chron 7. 21. Jer. 18.16. & 19.8. & 49.17. & 50 13. Ezek. 26.16. & 27.35 & 28.19. and no marvel, if many were astonished at the sight of our Saviours condition, in regard of those base, distastefull, and dispitefull usages, that were offered, and done, to him, in the time of his humiliation here on earth, when his followers were so amazed at the relation of them, when they were sometime foretold them, Mat.16. 32-34.

(but visage was so marred more then any man, and his form more then the sons of men)] Those that expound the foregoing branch, of mens wondring at Christs excellencies, make these words the second member of the collation, which the nature of similitude, prefixed to the former, requires. Howbeit, the words themselves, and the connexion of the former with them, seem to require a distinct consideration by themselves, and a distinct exposition by themselves by it self. For, as he was formerly highly admired for his powerful words and works; so he shall afterward be as much abused and disgraced and scorned, by the Jewish generality, as ever he was admired before again. But the reddition of the similitude, cometh afterward in the next verse: this being inserted between both, by way of parenthesis, with a transition from person to person, in this Prophet not unusuall; see chap 1.29.30 & 2.9. & 3.25. 26. and we need not therefore, with some of ours, either offer to alter the text, or understand the former, of one person, and the latter of another: that, of Israel, this, of Christ, as rendring a reason, why at sight of our Saviour, in time of his depression, many should be so astonished. Howbeit, the words are not so to be understood, as if our blessed Saviour had, in regard of his bodily person or presence, been found strange, deformed, or misshapen creature, but in regard of his outward estate, coming of mean, and obscure parentage, ch.53.2. living in a low despicable condition, ch. 53.3. exposed to scorn, and contempt, and to much affliction, thorow the whole course of his life, ch.53.2. and more especially, yet, in regard of what he was also in his Personal appearance; through the base and dispitefull usages, that he sustained at the hands of his malitious and mischievous adversaries, when they had gotten him into their power, Pl.22.12-18. and 69.19-21. & 71.7. cha.50.6. and 52.5,7,10. Mat.16.67,68. and 27.16-44. Mar.14.65 & 15.15-32. Luk.22.44,63 & 23.26,33,35. 39. Joh.19.1,5,16-18,23,29. A learned late Writer would have this passage read by way of interrogation, as the words of those that wonder at the sight of Christ, thus rendring the text; saying, (as Psal.105.15.) is his visage in such manner corrupted, or, marred? &c but the former version seemeth the more familiar, and to come off more freely.

his visage was so marred] His watching, dragging to and fro, from place to place, buffeting, scourging, carrying his crosse, and other misusage, could not, but much alter the state of his body, and impair, yea, deface all the lightlines of it. Howbeit, the word visage, here, and form, in the next branch, seem to be taken more largely. for all outward appearance, both of bodily shape and of state, or condition in general; as sight or appearance, ch.11.3. John. 7.24. and form, 1 Sam.28.14. 2 Tim.3.5. and face, or person, Deut. 16.19. Rom-2.11. So chap.53.2. Heb. such the corruption of his visage more then, or, above a man: for they seem wide here, who drawing the word from another root, would have it rendred, the unction of his person above any man, Psal. 45.2,7.

more then any man] Heb. then a man: a man for, any man, or, any one; as chap. 4.1. & 40.26. & 50.2. so that he seemed rather as a worm, then a man, Psal.22.6.

and his form more then the sons of men] As if no form, or shape of a man, were left to be seen in him: as some render those words, Psal. 38.3. chap. 1. 6. the same notion in other terms; as Job 25. 6.

V. 15. So shall he sprinkle many nations] The reddition, or latter part of the collation, concerning Christs exaltation, opposed to the former, concerning his humiliation. ver.14. and further confirming and illustrating what concerning Christs success, and advancement, was before delivered, ver 13.

sprinkle] The Jewish Commenters expound these words, some of them, of the slaughter that he should make of his enemies; he shall sprinkle them, that is, bleed their blood; chap. 63.3. their blood was sprinkled upon my garments; some of them, of the reports that shall go abroad of his honour, and valour, for the term of sprinckling, or dropping rather, is, say they, used of speech, Deut. 32.2. Ezek. 20. 46. & 41.2. Amos 7.16. Mic. 2.6,11. for the meaning should be, he shall make them to sprinkle, or drop, that is, give them occasion to talk of him: but the word of sprinkling, is one, those of dropping, other: & this never found so used; thoughthose are. Others of them again, but without example, likewise, would have the word taken, in a notion of dispersion, he shall say they, grow strong, and drive away the horns of the Heathen, that had formerly dispersed Gods people, Zach. 1.21. but these interpretations are groundlesh, and forced. Ours expound the words much to one effect; to wit, that Christ should bedew many Nations with the Doctrine of the Gospel, by the ministery of his Apostles, and thereby convert them to the Faith, through the efficacy of the Spirit, accompanying the same, and working faith in them, chap. 59.20,21. Mat 28.18. Acts 2.33,38,41. Rom. 10. 17. 2 Cor. 3.6. or, which comes all to one, that he should sanctifie and cleanse them with his Spirit, imparted to them, by the Word, and with his blood, by faith applyed unto their souls, Ezek 36.25,27. Joh.16.3. & 17.17. Act.15.9 Gal.3.12. Eph. 5.26. 1 Pet.1.2. 1 Joh.1.7. Rev. 1.5. & 7.14 an allusion, as some think, to the water, and washing with it, used in the Evangelical Baptisme, Mat.3.11. Joh.3.5. Acts 2.38 & 22.16. 1 Pet.3. 21. as others, to the the legal baptisings, or sprinklings, with water, or blood, or both mixt together; for the satisfying of some, and cleansing of others, that were legally unclean, Exod. 24.6,8.&29. 4. 20.21. Lev. 13,6,7,8. Num. 19.12——21. Psal. 51.7. Heb. 9.10,13,14,18-22. & 10.8.10.22.

the Kings shall shut their mouths at him] Kings Gentile, (for there is no article in the original) or even Kings (as chap. 1.12. 22. and 60.10. & 62 2.) shall shut their mouths (Heb. mouth as, tongue, also, Job 29.10.) out of reverence and respect, out of another manner of astonishment at him now, then before, ver 14. to wit, out of admiration of his incomparable excellency. See Job 29.9,10. or, being so convinced of the truth of his teaching, that they shall not be able, or dare once to contradict it, Luk 21.12,15. See Job 40. 4,5. Psal. 107.42. Mic. 7.17. But the former lesson rather here deserves intended. For the Jewish Critick doth but dally here who, to make this suit in with his forced fancy, concerning the foregoing branch, would fasten upon this a double sense: the word here used, saith he, hath a two-fold notion; of opening, and of shutting; of opening, as it signifies to skip: for in skiping, or leaping, the feet are opened, Cant. 2. 8. of shutting, or closing, Deut. 15 7. Job 5.16. here it may import both: they shall open their mouths to talk of him; and they shall shut their mouths, in way of wonderment at him. But this is to make a pelphick sword of Gods Word. And yet such quirks are too many much taken with.

For that which had not been told them, shall they see; and that which they had not heard, shall they consider.] For, Heb. and; as chap.40.29. They shall see those things fulfilled, which their Wizzards could never foreset; nor had been told by any other, and they shall hear such mysteries, yea, not hear them only: but consider seriously of them, and understand them aright. (See chap. 1.3.) as they never had been made acquainted with, or had once thought on before, chap.41.26. and 45.21. and 64.4. Rom.16.25, 26. 1 Cor.2.8,9. or, as others read, and render the words; they to whom it had not been related, or, to whom nothing had been related of him, shall see: and those that had not heard; shall consider, or, understand. So the ancient, both Greek and Latine, and of ours not a few. See chap.65.1. Rom.15.20,21. I go rather with the former; the syntax seeming to me the more familiar, and the sense. The same way go the Jewish Commenters, save that some of them conceive it spoken, not simply, and absolutely, but comparatively; they shall see greater glory, and excellency in him, then ever they had seen, or dreamed of; they shall find, and know his magnificence to go far beyond whatsoever they had been told, or could conceive of him before. See of Solomon, 1 King. 10. 6,7.

CHAP. LIII.

Vers. 1. VVHO hath believed our report?] Or, who believeth our report? or, doctrine; as ch.28.19. or, preaching, as some render it, Hos. 7. 12. Heb. hearing, chap.28.19. that which they hear from us; those glad tydings that have been mentioned, chap. 52. 7. Some for the better connexion of the following discourse, with the former, prefix the adversative particle, But; rendring the words: But who hath given our report? that is, who, say they, of the Jewish people: the fewness of those that received the Gospel among that people, being opposed to the multitudes of other nations, that should embrace it, and believe in Christ, chap. 52. 15. So the words containe a complaint of the paucity, and small number of those, among the Jews, that gave any credit to the Prophecies foregoing, concerning Christ, and the doctrine of his Kingdom, and his glorious advancement, either in the times of this our Prophet, and other his fellow-messengers; or, in the time, that being exhibited in the flesh, he lived here upon earth: unto which times, we find these words applyed in the Gospel, Joh. 12.37,38. Rom. 10. 16. See chap.49.4. Joh.3.32. & 5.43,44. & 7.5,48. Act.28.22. See for the form of speech, Psalm. 90.11. chap.50.11.

and] Or, or; as chap. 40.13,18.

to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?] His mighty power working by, and manifesting it self in Christ, and in the ministery of his Word, ch.40.10. & 51.5. & 52.10. Rom.1.16. 1 Cor.1.18,24. which must from God be revealed, before it can be believed, chap. 54.23. Mat.11.25. & 16.17. Joh. 6.44,45. 1 Cor. 2.9,12. Gal. 1. 12. Heb. upon whom; which some taking hold of, thus render the text; upon whom is the arm of the Lord swift up, or, made bare? that is, on whom hath the ministery of his servants an efficacious work; for the converting of them unto God? a metaphor, say they, taken from Workmen, who are wont, for the better expedition, to strip the arm up to the elbow, when they go about their work. See chap. 52. 10. But this seems over-curious; nor will the Greek, in the Gospel, bear it; and the particle, though it usually signifie upon; yet is it also also frequently used for nete; as Exod.20.3.to my face: so the words there are,2 Ki.g.18.27.compared with Esay 36.12.1.Sal.13.6.& 18. 41.ch.29,12.with v.11.

V.2. For he shall grow up before him, as a tender plant] Heb. And; which both the old Greek, and Latine, and some other after them retain. Others, render it, Indeed, as chap.30.20. Or, Yet; as ver.7.ch.46.7. and others again, not a few, whom our version concurreth with, For; as ver.1.Chap 52.15.& 64.5.as ushering in a paſſage, wherein the ground is diſcovered, and a reaſon rendred, how it came, or ſhould come to paſs, that ſo few of the Jewiſh nation ſhould entertain Chriſt, as the Meſſias, and their Saviour, and give belief to the doctrine of the Prophets and Apoſtles, concerning him. They looked for a Meſſias to come in princely ſtate, with royal attendance, and ſecular power, that ſhould reign and rule, as ſome mighty Monarch, and ſet them free from the bondage of the Romane Empire, and when they ſaw nothing leſs; but all clean contrary in Chriſt, hence came it to paſs, that they were offended in him, and could by no means be induced to believe that ſuch an one ſhould be their Meſſias, Mat.1 3.55,57.Luk.24.21.Joh.7.27, 41,52.1 Cor.1.23.

grow up] Heb.Aſcend; which ſome underſtand, of Chriſts exaltation; as if it were ſaid, that he ſhould riſe and grow great, for all this, that ſo few entertain him, and believe in him. And ſome of note,to this purpoſe,would thus joyn this verſe with the latter part of the former; And he,on whom the arm of the Lord ſhall be revealed (to wit, Chriſt)ſhall grow up: but this offereth too much violence to the context. And albeit, the word here uſed, doth ſometime import ariſing,by advancement,and improvement of height,ſtrength, ſtature, or ſtate, Chapter 40. 31. Jeremiah 51. 53. yet it is uſed commonly of plants, ſimply ſpringing up, without any ſuch ſpecial connotation,Chapter 32.3. and all the circumſtances of the text do carry it another way, as in the opening of the words will appear.

before him] This ſmall particle is very variouſly expounded.Some underſtand it, of God; that in the ſight of God he ſhould be great, and highly eſteemed, though mean, and of no account in mans eyes, as the like is ſaid, in expreſs terms, of John his Herbinger, Luk.1.15.and, in effect, of Chriſt alſo, Luk.1.32. or, that by his moſt wiſe, and powerful providence,he ſhould be produced,and under his protection, having his eye perpetually upon him, grow up to a great height, Chapter. 52. 13. Others, of the people, in whoſe eyes he ſhould appear, and ſeem to be ſuch,as is hereafter intimated.Others, of Chriſt himſelf, that he ſhould be lowly, and of ſmall eſteem in his own ſight, as it is ſaid of Saul, 1 Sam.15.17.and in the perſon of Chriſt, Pſalm.22.6. Others, laſtly, of none of all theſe; becauſe no expreſs mention of any of theſe,unto whom it may fitly be referred, but of the outward ſhew that Chriſt ſhould make, reading the text, for his appearance, or outward ſhew, or ſtate: for the word face, in Hebrew, is very frequently ſo uſed; as was before ſhewed, on Chapter 52. 14. and anſwereth to the word ſight, or, appearance; uſed afterward, in the laſt clauſe of this verſe for ſight,as for height, Prov. 25.3. where the ſame particle is ſo uſed; and this beſt ſuits with the ſcope, and current of the context.

as a tender plant] The word tender is not in the text; and true it is, that the term here uſed, is of a large extent in the ordinary uſe of it, comprehending branches of all ſorts, without diſtinction of ſtrength, or ſize. See Pſalm 80.11. Hoſ. 14.6.Job 8.16.16.10.& Ezek.17.4.where,though our verſion renders it, a young twig,which would do very well here; yet the words,next before going, controll it there. The word properly ſignifieth, a ſuckling, or ſucking-childe, Num.11.12.Pſal.8.2.1.Sam.15.3.& 22.19.Jer.44.7. Lam.2.11.and 4.4. and ſo the ancient Greek, and ſome after them, here take it; but the reſemblance, here uſed, admitteth not that. In the next place, therefore, the word doth ſignifie, ſometime, a branch, or, bough, in general; becauſe it ſucketh, and draws the ſap and moyſture,as milk, from the root, or ſtock, from whence it ſhoots up,or ſpreads out, Rom.11.17.ſometime,more ſpecially, ſuch a young twig, as reſembleth for its tenderneſs, and ſmalneſs of growth,ſome ſucking, or ſucking-child: ſo is it uſed, Job 14.7. where it is not amiſs rendred, a tender branch,and may well here(the circumſtances of the place, not well admitting only, but requiring it) a tender plant, or young twig, as we uſe to ſay, a ſucker: for ſo we uſe to term ſuch young plants, as ſhoot up from the root of ſome elder tree,or Stander.See ch.11.1. This ſome underſtand of the mean beginnings of Chriſts Kingdom; though afterward wonderfully thriving,and proſpering,Mat.13.31,32.Mat.4 27-32. Others,rather of Chriſt himſelf.See ch.11.1.

he hath no form, nor comelineſs] The former word applied to a plant, ſeems to import the ſtiffe linels, or comelineſs of a plant, or tree in regard of the trunk, and body of it, its ſhape, proportion, ſtraightneſs, ſmoothneſs, well colouredneſs, and the like: for it comes of a word, that ſignifies, to delineate, draw out, or portray ought, in its due ſhape and lineaments, Joſh.11.9,18.Iſa 19.13 ch. 44.13. and applied to mankind, or woman-kind, ſignifies a portion well compoſed, and complexion, well laid and featured, or well proportioned, and ſhaped, Gen 29.17. & 39.6. ſo it is uſed alſo of proportioned, and ſhaped, Gen 41.2.where,with its epither,it is rendred, well-favoured, and might as well be, well-featured, and fat: fatneſs betoken ing the feature of a beaſt, as leanneſs defaceth it: the latter ſeems to have reference, in plants, to that ſtiffeneſs of them, that proceedeth from the leaves,and bloſſoms, and kays, and fruits,or other like verdure, wherewith fruit are wont to be arrayed and adorned.So it is uſed, Lev. 23.40. where they are conjoyned at the feaſt of Tabernacles to take the fruit, (that is bow s, or branches, as it is explained, Neh.8.15.or more ſpecially,leafie boughs, and branches, (for to the word there uſed, properly ſignifies. See Prov.11.28 but were of ſightfulneſs, or goodlineſs, that is, of ſightly, or goodly trees, (as it is there rendred, of ſuch trees, as were thick with leav s,and twigs, as in both places it is afterward expounded)to make them booths of. And hence applyed to beaſts, it is attributed to ſuch, as are furnished, and garniſhed with goodly and ſtately heads or horns.Deut.33. 17.given to men, and women, it is uſed of ſuch, as are attired and decked with goodly and gorgeous apparel,Chap.63.1. Ezek.16.10. 14 where the word is alſo uſed. Hence thoſe ſpeeches in the Proverbs, in the multitude of people, is the fight fairs of a King,Prov.14. 28.as if he had ſaid, not ſo much, in his rich and royal robes, as in the numerouſneſs of his ſubjects; and Prov.20.29. the beauty of young men is their ſtrength; and the ſightlineſs of old men is the gray-head; that is, vigour and valour, ſtretch out, and adorneth the one; and his gray hairs, the other; more then fine, and gay apparel doth either. Now leaves and verdure, are to plants, as veſtments and attire, unto man, or woman. Howbeit, ſome of the Rabbines, on Gen.29.17.where beauty in two diſtinct reſpects, is given unto Rachel, and uſe made of theſe two words, by the former, underſtand the feature,or compoſure of the face,by the other,the cleerneſs of the complexion or countenance. But I ſuppoſe them not to be ſo ſtrictly here taken.Howſoever,the mean eſtate of the Meſſias, void of all ſhew and luſtre, that is wont to draw mens eyes after it, is here very pithily and pregnantly, ſet forth, and deciphered by the reſemblance of ſuch a plant, as hath neither height nor ſtrength, nor comely ſhape, nor leaves,or verdure, to make it any way ſightly,or deſirable. Or,if it ſhall be deemed,that in the former branch only, ſome plant is alluded unto, the perſon of man rather in this latter,ſuch a party is here intimated,as for perſonage and ſtate,may be compared unto ſuch a plant, as by ſuch notions hath been deſcribed. See ch.1.30.

and when we ſhall ſee him, there is no beauty that we ſhould deſire him]Heb. and we ſhall ſee him, and no ſight(or ſightlineſs; for ſo the word ſoundeth,having an elegant conſonance, with the term of ſeeing, whence it is derived,Chap.52.14, and comprehendeth both the former)is(to wit, in him, a defect of the pronoun, as Deut.2.12.ch. 35.9.the like ſyntax, ſee Prov.4.23.Chap.37.9.36.)or(as it may be rendred,by ſupply from the former member,as Gen.1.16.Ch.52.6.) we ſhall not ſee any ſightlineſs in him; and we ſhall deſire him, for that we ſhould deſire him:as Chap.40.25.Mal.1. 9 that is, for which or in regard whereof, we ſhould have any deſire, or affection unto him: neither is there any need, as ſome would, to ſupply the negative from the former branch, as Pſalm 9.18.Prov.30.3.rendring the words, and we ſhall not deſire him,there being as much implyed without it. He that is ſtyled, the deſire of all nations, Hagg.1.7.whence ſome are of opinion, that Machmed, or Mahommed, borrowed his name, that he might be deemed as another Meſſias)and who much better then Daniel,might be termed, a man of deſires, Dan. 10.11, 19.having all deſireable things that can be; yea, all deſireableneſs, treaſured up in him, Col.2.3.9. in true beauty, and excellency,far exceeding and ſurpaſſing, not the ſons of men only, Pſalm 45.2.7. but the Angels themſelves, Heb.1.4.yet appears ſo ſhrift, and deveſted of all ſhew of any ſuch matter, Phil.2. 6,7,8. that his own people,when they ſee him,can diſcern nothing at all ſightly,or deſirable

V.3. He is deſpiſed, and rejected of men] It was not enough to ſay of him, that he was not eſteemed, ver.2. but he addeth further now, that he was, as ſome; not baſe only and deſpicable, but even vile, and abominable creature, both deſpiſed, and rejected. See Chap. 49.7 deſpiſed,as of Jeconiah, Jer.22.28.rejected of men;as ſome; the taking the word for a noun: a rejection of men; the abſtract for the concrete, as 1 Cor.4.13. but I conceive it rather to be a participle, found entire, Ezek.3.17. but here contracted, becauſe it reſteth on the word adjoyned to it: and it is not amiſs rendred by our Translators, rejected of men; that is, as one of the Iewiſh Commenters, either more abject then any man, as Chap. 52. 14. (as ſo there ſhould be a want of the preposition there uſed, as there is alſo, Chap.20.7.& 32.2. and that in this very notion, alſo)Chap.65.5. or, one ſeavered, and caſt out from the company and ſociety of men, as ſcarce deemed worthy the name of a man, Pſalm. 22.6. and unworthy, therefore, to converſe with men, or to have any communion with them. See of Paul, Act.22. 22. and this latter ſiteth well on with them. See of Paul, Act.22. 22. and this latter ſiteth well on with the Hebrew; for it is word for word, leaving of men, or ceaſing from men: as one that cannot be admitted to any ſociety with them in the condition of the leper, Levit.13.46.2 Chr.2.6. 21. deemed in that regard, as dead, Num.12.10,12,14.See Pſalm 31.11.& 88. 4,5-8.So rather,then as one, the laſt, or loweſt of men: as Paul of himſelf,the laſt, and leaſt of the Apoſtles: yea, the leaſt, or (as the word imports, compoſed of a two-fold degree of comparison) leſſe then the leaſt of the Saints, unworthy to be called an Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 15.8,9.Eph.3.8 in heaven, as we would ſay the very laſt, or rag end of mankind, one, at whom the nature, and name of man ends. Or mean, and ſo low, that the nature of man can hardly defend low enough, and may therefore ſeem ſcarce worthy the name of a man. See Pſalme 22. 6. and what Agur of himſelf, Proverbs 30. 2. But thiſ ſeems to ſtrain ſomewhat too far. Howbeit, Chriſt of himſelf ſaith,that he was to be made naught-worth,or nothing,Mat.9.12. a man of ſorrows] Not of ſorrows barely, but of ſorrowes not a man full of ſorrow, or filled with ſorrow only; as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks Our ſoul is exceedingly filled with ſcorn, and contempt, Pſal.123.3,4. but, a man of ſorrowes, as the Pſalmiſt elſewhere; My ſoul is full of evils; with evil of all ſorts, or all ſorts of evil: Pſal 88.3 and as Solomon, a man of wicked devices,Prov.12.2.a man, not wholly ſet upon, and addicted unto evil, only; ſuch an one as Moſes deſcribeth, Gen 6.5.all the devices of whoſe heart,(or whatſoever he deviſeth)is all day long only, (that is, continually nothing but) evil: but a man made up of evil,or wicked devices of all ſorts,that deviſeth nothing but evil, and refraineth no device that is evil,Pſal.36.4.as if he conſiſted of nothing but ſuch;a man of ſorrowes,of ſorrows of all ſorts, ſo full of them, that he may ſeem to conſiſt wholly of them to be made of no other mould: nothing but ſorrow to be ſeen in him,(ſee Chap. 1.6.)and variety of ſorrows, ſorrows of all ſorts; ſuch ſorrows, as for our ſake he ſuſtained,and for our ſins,verſe 4,5. and acquainted with grief] The participle here uſed,is by the Iewiſh Criticks diverſly expounded. Some of them would have it ſignifie cut off, or deſtroyed with infirmity, or grief. So they ſuppoſe the like cut off, or deſtroyed it ſometh, to be taken, Judg.8.16.Prov.10.9.& 14. 33.Jer.31.19,Ezek.19.7.but theſe places are not ſo pregnant; and others of them, underſtand them a lin another notion:the moſt of them therefore herein depart from them; and expound it according to the ordinary uſe,and ſenſe of the verb:ſome known by infirmity; well known, or commonly known, to be much ſubject thereunto, and exerciſed therewith, one ſo encompaſſed with infirmities as, Heb.5.1.that they cannot but appear, and be ſeen in him by all that behold him: thus they take it, becauſe it is in a paſſive forme, and is by moſt ſo taken, Iſa.53.1.13,15.but thoſe paſſive forms have ſometime an active, or a neuter notion, as in our languages, alſo, ſometime the like:and ſo others of them, as moſt of ours, take this here, rendring it, one knowing of infirmity; as it ſoundeth word for word, that is, knowing it experimentally: as it is ſaid, he that knew not ſin, 2 Cor.5.21. that neither had drawn ought of it from any other, nor done any himſelf: and as the tree inhibited, was called the tree of the knowledge of good and evil,Gen.2.9,17.not, as the devil ſuggeſted, becauſe the fruit thereof eaten, had a ſingular power to give man a notional knowledg of good and evil,which before he had not: but becauſe, upon the eating of it, contrary to Gods command, man found in himſelf, by an experimental knowledg of evil, as well as of good, which before he had not: yea,and in ſome ſort, of the benefit and excellency of good alſo, being by the want, better: by the loſs of it;(which is yet more)beſt known,ſo we uſe to ſay, ſuch as one never knew what miſery meant, having lived free from it, and a man never knoweth what health is, until he have had a fit of ſickneſs: thus it might be rendred, knowing of infirmity, as men knowing of the ſea, 1 King.9.27 and,knowing of the times,Iſſ. 1.13.and, knowing of good and evil, Gen.3.5. (for ſo the words are in thoſe places)that is, skilful in thoſe things:and as we uſe to ſay, a knowing man, for one skilful in ought: or, to ſit it better to the Hebrew form, a man skilled in infirmity, as both the ancient Greek and ſome of ours, alſo, take the word to: skilful, or skilled, in the place of Deuteronomy before pointed to: or,as the word taught ch.54.13. doth ſometime imply,not only learned, and ſo ſkilled in ought, but one alſo expert, or experienced in, and accuſtomed, or enured unto ought, Jer.2 24.& 3.23. and the word of teachings uſed by the Apoſtle, both of himſelf, Phil.4.11,12. and of Chriſt, Heb.5.8.ſo the word here may be taken, one conned to infirmity, or grief, and accuſtomed thereunto; which by ours is very fitly rendred, acquainted therewith; as we ule to ſay of thoſe,who not only know one another by hear-ſay, or by ſight, but that have familiarly converſed together. Or, laſtly,as ſome render the word, both in Moſes and here, known of it: as thoſe are ſaid to be well known of us, that we have been frequently converſant, and familiarly acquainted with, Hoſ. 5. 5.Amos 3.2. which, as it comes neereſt to the ordinary acception, and conſtruction of the terms in the original , ſo is it the ſame, in effect, with the laſt before propoſed. Howſoever, the notice, or acquaintance, is attributed to the perſon, in the one; to the affection, in the other: both which, in ſub tance, come all to one: and import thus much; That Chriſt, and humane griefs, and infirmities, were to have great, and much acquaintance, the one with the other, he having had in his perſon, much experience of them, and they conſtantly keeping together with him : a great comfort to all thoſe that have intereſt in him, Hebrews 4.15.

griefe] The word here uſed , (as the root alſo from whence it ſprings)hath, in the firſt place, a notion of diſeaſe, or ſickneſs,Chap. 38.1,9. in the next place,(becauſe ſickneſs uſually bringeth pain, and weakneſs with it,)they are either of them uſed, ſometime,in a notion of vexation, and grief, as Eccl.5.17.& 6.2.Jer.5.3 Hoſ.5.13. ſometime, in a notion of infirmity, and weakneſs, as Judges16.7.Iſa 17 Chap.14.10.and of either of theſe, proceeding as well from any affliction of body, or mind, as from any natural diſeaſe: in either of which latter notions,it may well be here taken, not ſo fitly in the firſt : becauſe we read not of any peculiar diſeaſe, ſuch as we uſually appropriate that term unto, that our Saviour was troubled with, all his life:and by ſome of the ancients, it is not improbably deemed, that he was not exerciſed with any ſuch ; it being nor ſo ſuitable for him, to have any diſeaſe hanging on him, that ſhewed his power conſtantly, in the healing of others;that it might not be objected to him,as in another kind, and upon another occaſion,it was; Phyſitian heal thy ſelf, Luk.4.23. infirmities,or infirmities,collectively, as Heb.5.2.

and we hid as it were our faces from him] The words in Hebrew are both diverſly read, and diverſly reſolved. For ſome make the firſt word a participle,as one hiding,or one that hideth:and the participle, in that flexion, is very commonly ſo framed. Others make it a noun verbal, as an hiding, and ſome verbals of that form are a noun verbal, as an hiding, and ſome verbals of that form are found. Again, ſome render the laſt,the particle with the pronoun from us, and that not a few embrace. Others, from him, and ſo the pronoun in that form, is moſt frequently uſed,yet in the other no-pronoun in that form, is moſt frequently uſed,yet in the other no-tion, alſo, not unuſual, Gen.3.22.Pſal.2.3. Hence ariſe variety of verſions; Some render the words, and he hid, as it were the face (that is, his face, the pronoun ſupplyed, as Chap.59.2.)from us; or he is as one that hideth his face. Heb. the face from him, or of him: but of this latter conſtruction, I find no ſuitable example. But whether of theſe two waves we read, or render the words,they import ſuch a condition of dejection, and contuſion, and of affection thence a condition of dejection, and contuſion, and of affection thence ariſing, as makes a man, like one aſhamed of himſelf, to cover his face, as not enduring to look up , or to be ſeen , and to ſhun the ſight of others : and ſo the meaning ſhould be, he is one, who, as conſcious to himſelf, either of the deformity, and lothſomeneſs of his perſon, or of his deſpicable and dejected eſtate, hideth his face from humane ſight:the one was the lepers caſe, Levit.13. 45. the other, Babylons, Chap.47.3.5.and hence,together with the help of another word in the next verſe, have the Talmudiſts coined us a tale, how that one of their great Maſters met with their Meſſias,at Rome, where he found him lying among the lepers. But other-render the words,and as one hiding of faces,or of the face,(for the Word though of a plural form, yet is oftimes uſed of a ſingular notion, as Prov.25.23.Cha.59.2.from him,or as he, from whom one would hide the face, or his face;as before: that is, as one, whom men hide their faces from: this ſenſe our verſion follows: and following it, it may ſeem that it ſhould rather be rendred;and as one, from whom the face is hid,or men ſeem as we hid;for according to this reading,the words are more general and indefinite ; there being no one, in the text. More hiding the face, proceeds both, ſometime, from a reverent reſpect, and awful dread, Exod.3.6 1 King.19.13,ſometime,from ſome glorious ſplendor, that dazzleth the eye ſight, Chap. 6.2.Exod.34.30, 33.2 Cor.3.13.ſometime, from ſome ſtrange paſſion of love, that with a kind of ravishment, affecteth the lover , upon the ſight of his beloved, and leaſteth him into fainting fits. Cant.6.5. compared with Chap.4.9. (tho they palpably abuſe, both that Scripture, and the Churches eyes, that is, her teachers, who thence would force a malignity intimated in them,) ſometime from pity, and compaſſion; when men cannot endure to ſee ſome perſon deer unto them, or any of the ſame nature with them, cruelly dealt with, or otherwiſe, in ſome lamentable condition, Eſt.8.6.ſometime, out of extream hatred,or at leaſt,out of diſpleaſure,indignation,or wrath, 2 Sam.14.8 Pſal.10.1.& 27.9 Chap.54.8.& 59.2 ſometime, out of neglect and diſregard, as from one, whom we liſt not to look after, neglect and diſregard, as from one, whom we liſt not to look after, or abide to behold, Chap.1.13, 14,15. and to this purpoſe, one of the Iewiſh Commenters telleth us, that there is a certain people that cannot endure the ſight of a Jew, but turn the face from him, that cannot endure the ſight of a Jew, but turn the face from him, wherſoever:

whereloever they meet with any of them. But whether that be,or ever were so, or no, is not much material; not at all, to this text. Howbeit, in this laſt notion, wherewith ſome alſo take in two of the next before it, I conceive the words may well be here underſtood. See Chap. 49.7. yet not concurring with thoſe that attribute this, hiding of the face, unto pity and compaſſion; becauſe it croſſeth the main drift of the whole context: nor conſenting with them, that ſuppoſe the covering of mens faces condemned to dye, to be here pointed at; as Ch.25.7.Eſt.7.8. To which purpoſe, they draw in alſo the blind-folding of Chriſt, Luk.22.64. but that is the covering of the parties own face by others, not the hiding of others from him. Howbeit, all things well weighed, I encline rather to the firſt, both reading, and rendring; becauſe it both fitteth well the ſcope of the place, as importing a deſpicable and ſhameful condition and that of one, who ſeemed to be deveſted of that magnificence, which formerly he had been poſſeſſed of. See Joh.17.5. Phil.2.6,7,8. Heb.12.2 and ſloweth moſt freely, without any force at all, from the terms uſed in the text.

and we eſteemed him not]Or.eſteem him not; (Phi.2.7.he made himſelf of no eſteem)or regard him not; as the word is rendred, Chap.33.8.he regards no man, Pſal.14 4.3. the great contempt that ſhould be offered unto Chriſt by the Jewiſh Nation, being expreſſed here in a form of extenuation, but to be conceived in a notion of exaggeration, as if it had been ſaid more fully, We ſhall not only, when he cometh amongſt us, afford him no reſpect, or regard; but ſhall very reproachfully and diſgracefully abuſe him. See the like manner of ſpeech, Prov 10.2 Treaſure wickedly gotten ſhall not profit; that is ſhall do a man much miſchief: and,the father of a fool ſhall not rejoyce; he ſhall have no joy, but much grief, of him, Prov.17.21.and,It is not good to have reſpect of perſons in Judgment, that is, indeed, it is ſtark naught, Prov.24.23.and. If any man love not the Lord Jeſus, let him be anathema, maranaatha; that is, accurſed, without revocation, irrevocably, and irrecoverably accurſt, 1 Cor.16.22. a text by ſome, extreamly tentred; meant of ſuch, as out of meer malice alone againſt knowledge, oppoſe Chriſt, and Chriſtianity; ſuch as our Saviour ſpeaks of, Matthew.12.32.and the Apoſtle, Heb 6.6.& 10.26,27,29.

V.4.Surely, he hath born our griefs, and carried our ſorrows:] He took upon him, not our nature alone, but the infirmities alſo of it; and became liable to ſuch ſorrows of affliction, and pains, as mans ſinful nature is expoſed, and ſubject unto. Rom.8.3.Heb.4.15.ver.3. Or, the griefs and ſorrows, that he is ſaid to have ſuffered ſo abundantly exercised with, ver. 3. (for theſe words have apparent reference to the very ſame) were uſed, he ſuſtained for us:and are therefore called ours, becauſe procured to him, by our ſins; and ſuſtained by him, for the diſcharge of our ſins, unto the guilt wher of, out of love to us, undertaken by him, they were deſervedly due, Heb.9. 29.1 Pet.2.24.& 3.8. Some would have the former word rendred, he took away, or hath taken away our griefs, that is, our ſins, the procuring cauſe of them, together with the griefs themſelves, the effect of them: And it is true, that the word ſignifies, ſometime, to take away, as Job 7 21. and that our Saviour is ſaid to take away the ſins of the world, Joh.1.29. but the ſequel of the context carryeth it another way. tending to ſhew here, rather the ground, and cauſe of his ſufferings then the end, or iſſue of them. This paſſage the Evangeliſt makes uſe of, in relating Chriſts practice, in the healing of corporal infirmities, not ſo much, as I conceive, thereby intimating, that thoſe bodily maladies, and the cure thereof, was, (as ſome would have it)a type of thoſe diſeases of the ſoul, that Chriſt came principally to free men from, and his deliverance of them from the ſame: but that by his tender pitty, and compaſſionate affection towards perſons ſo effected, and afflicted, he ſhewed that he had aſſumed, together with our nature, the infirmities of the ſame; and had therefore a lively fellow-feeling of th oſe pains and griefs, that did from the ſame proceed, in others.

yet we did eſteem him ſtricken, ſmitten of God, and afflicted] The reaſon why they ſo much did eſteemed Chriſt, to wit, becauſe they made no other account, but that all thoſe afflictions that befell him, were, by God, for his own evill deſerts, inflicted upon him, out of a diſaffection to him, Phil. 22.7,8.& 71.11.Matth.27. 39.43.

yet]Heb.and;as ch.50.7.

we eſteemed] The ſame word, by an elegant antanaclaſis, is here repeated, that the Prophet had made uſe or in the verſe before-going, but in a different notion here, from that there they did not eſteem him, that is: made any account of him, becauſe they eſteemed, that is, accounted him to be one out of grace and favour with God, yea, to be one purſued by him, with thoſe evils, for his ſins. The very like conceit, that lobs friends had of him, for his ſufferings, Job 4.7, 8.& 8.4,& 22.5-12.

ſtricken, ſmitten, and afflicted] Three ſeveral terms uſed, to expreſs the greatneſs, and grievouſneſs of his ſufferings; as three other of neer nature, being joyned together, to intimate the eminent, and incomparable height of his enſuing honour, c.52.13. ſtricken]Or,plaguted:ſo it is rendred, Pſal 73.14.now becauſe the noun hence deduced, is uſed of the ſtroke, or plague of leproſie, Levit. 13.; 9.20. and very oft in that chapter; hence the Rabbines, ſome of them, abuſe this place, to prove that their dotage before touched; that the Meſſias ſhould ſometime be a Leper:and the old Latine rendreth it, as a Leper: which yet may bear a warrantable ſenſe. See ver 3. But that of the Talmudiſts, is a moſt ridiculous fancy, ſuch as their raplodies are fraught with, not a few: the word is generall, comprehending any ſtroke, plague. or affliction whatſoever: and they may as well prove, that Aſaph, the Author of that 73. Pſalm, was for a long time a Leper, from the paſſage therein pointed to, as from this, that the Meſſias was ſo, or ever ſhould ſo be. See v.8.

ſmitten of God]That is, as ſome would have it, moſt grievouſly ſmitten; it being the manner of Scripture, by ſuch terms, to expreis the eminent greatneſſe of any thing, as Sinners of God, for grievous ſinners, Gen.13.13.and,a ſleep of God,for a deep ſleep, 1 Sam.26.12. See Jer.2.31. But that he was grievouſly ſmitten, was conſpicuous enough; nor did they deem amiſſe therein: their miſtake was, that they thought him thus handled by God, in way of vengeance for his ſins. So they wickedly and impiouſly deemed of Chriſt, when they ſaw what grievous things he ſuffered. And it is but an idle foppery of ſome popiſh Writers, to require the words to be read, God ſmitten; as intimating the diety of Chriſt: becauſe the word,of, is not expreſly in the text: when as they cannot be ignorant, who know any thing in the Hebrew, that the courſe of the conſtruction, of noun with noun, doth neceſſarily imply it. Beſide, that this reading directly croſſeth the Prophets intention;as intimating,that the Jewiſh people ſhould acknowledg Chriſt, notwithſtanding his ſufferings, to be God; who, on the contrary, therefore condemned him, as guilty of impiety and blaſphemy, and were enraged againſt him for it, becauſe he profeſſed himſelf to be the Son of God,one with the Father,and equal to God,Mat.26.53-56.Joh.5.18.&10.31, 33.& 19.7.

and afflicted] To wit, by God. as before for that have all the three words reference unto: as if all that befell him, came not from mans malice againſt him,but Gods juſt wrath and diſpleaſure.

Verſe 5. But he was wounded for our tranſgreſſions] Heb. And; the copulative, in an adverſative notion, as Chapter 36. 12.and 40.31.The right ground, and true cauſe of Chriſts ſufferings,is in this verſe,and thoſe following, related,in way of oppoſition, to that vain and fond conceit, that his own people had of him and them.

wounded] So both the ancient Greek, and old Latine, render the word here uſed; and ſome, ſmitten, to have it anſwer to the latter end of verſe 4. which comes, much in effect, to the ſame; as deſcending from a word, that ſignifies, to ſmite, to wound.to thruſt thorow,to ſlay. Others, render it, polluted,or profaned, uſed, and dealt with, as ſome common, vile, or profane thing; as deſcending from the ſame root but in another notion: whereof ſee Pſal. 89. 39,44,45.chap.43.28.& 47.6.but the word deduced from that root in whether notion of the twain,is ſomewhat different from that,that is here uſed;as may be ſeen, Ezek.32.26. I ſuppoſe, therefore, that the better reading is that in the margent of our Bibles; He was tormented, or pained: for the word comes regularly from a root, that ſignifies properly, to be in pain; as women, or other creatures, that bring forth, with pain, are wont to be, at the time of their travel, ſo Pſ 55.5.where,as the one word,there uſed, hath in it a notion of the feat of delight, in conception, as Gen.29.39,41.ſo the other, of the pangs of pain, in production; as Job 39.1,2,3.& 29.9. and it is uſed, commonly, of any grievous torment, or pain, proceeding from vexation, affliction,or fear, Job 19,20.Prov.26.10.chap.13.8.&26. 18. and 51.9.Ier.5.3. and this word,the Prophet,delighting much in conſonances, may ſeem the rather to have made choice of here; becauſe it comes very neer,in ſound,to the word rendred grief, ver. 3,4.

for] Heb. from; that is, becauſe of, as Pſalm 12. 5. chapter 48.4. Obad. 10. as importing the principal cauſe of Chriſts ſufferings, mans ſins, Romanes 4.25.1 Corinthians.15.3. ſo in the next branch.

our tranſgreſſions] Or, deſections, revolts, (as ſome not amiſſe render it, both here,and Chap.59.12,13.)or, rebellions; for to the word it comes of,ſi commonly rendred,1 Kings.12.19. & 3.5.7.& 8.20,22.

he was bruiſed for our iniquities ?] The word uſed again, verſe 10. ſignifies properly, to beat, or break, or cruſh to pieces, or grind to powder. See chap. 3. 15. uſed ordinarily, of grievous oppreſſion,and affliction;yea,ſuch as tends to, and ends,if not ſtaid, in deſtruction: Job 4.19,& 6.9,& 19.2,and 22.9,Pſal.72.4.& 90.3,& 94.5.Lam.3.24.

the chaſtiſement of our peace was upon him] He was chaſtiſed to procure our peace, by removal of our ſins, that ſet God and us aſunder, Chapter 59.2. the guilt thereof, being diſcharged with the price of his blood, 1 Peter 1.18,19. and to reconcile us unto him,Rom.3.25,& 5.1.10.2 Cor.5.19,21.Eph.2.13-17.Col.1.19,20. 1 Pet.3.18.

and with his ſtripes are we healed]Heb.by his ſtripe,or bruiſe: for the word properly ſignifies,the mark, or print of a ſtripe, or ſtroke, remaining upon ſome part of the body,black and blue, by gathering and feſtling together of the blood there; from whence it hath this name, Exod.21.25.Prov.20. 30. and the ſame ſignifies the Greek word, word, whereby it is expreſſed, 1 Pet.2.24.But it is uſed alſo for any ſore,and grievous ſtroke, or hurt; ſuch as thoſe, by which the ſame is wont to be produced, Geneſis.4.23. See chap.1.6.Jer.30.12.and ſuch, no doubt, our Saviour,as well in the propriety of the term, as otherwiſe alſo, bare in his body, being not buffered only, but ſcourged, as he was, Mat.26.67.& 27.26.

V.6. All we like ſheep, have gone aſtray]In theſe words is ſhewed wherein thoſe iniquities, and ſins of ours, for which our Saviour ſuffered, do conſiſt.

All we]By nature, none of us excepted, Pſ.14.3.Rom.3.12,23. Eph.2.3.

like ſheep]Or,like loſt ſheep;as more expreſly, Pſ.119.176.So cluſters,for cluſters loaſt,chap.24.13.

have gone aſtray] As ſheep ſtray, ſometime ſcared and ſcattered, by dogs,or wolves,or thieves,or the like, Joh. 10. 12. or forced to back abroad,for want of paſture, Gen.47.4.Jer.14.5. ſometime, a-gain of themſelves,out of a filly diſpoſition. Luke 15.4. ſo it is with men alſo, in either reſpect, reſembled by ſheep. There is a ſtraying, or wandring,enforced, when they are driven, by violence,from their wonted places of abode. Of which, ſee Pſal. 119. 176.Jer. 50.17.Ezek.34.4,6.Zach.13.7.Mat.26.31. Mar.14.27. But this is not the ſtraying here ſpoken of; and there is a voluntarie ſtraying, (they are not willing onely,but love to wander, Jer.14.10.)a wandring out of ſelf-will; not a corporal, but a ſpiritual ſtraying; by which, men, of themſelves, wander from God, and go aſtray from the way of truth,and life; from thoſe ways and courſes,that God hath preſcribed them in his Word;and directeth them unto,by his Spirit. Of which,ſee Pſalm 14.3.& 53.2.& 58.3 & 119.67.Rom. 3.12.1 Pet. 2.25. James 5.20.and this is the ſtraying here ſpoken of.

we have turned every one to his own way] We have turned the face (to wit, away from God, and his ways, and) looked after every one his own way. So the Hebrew word uſed, both here,and chap.56.11.(a paralel place) as alſo,Jer.2.20.(where the notation of it is) properly ſignifieth: and becauſe in ſo doing, the face, and whole body with it, are turned about; hence it cometh to paſs that the word is alſo uſed, for to turn,or to return, as Numbers 14. 25.Deuteronomy 1.7,40.and 2.3.& 16.7.See Deut. 31.18,20.1er. 7.24.

every one to his own way] So Chapter 56.11. All agree in turning aſide from the right way; but they herein diſagree, in that each one hath a by-way of his own, which they turn unto; ſome running after one luſt,or vice, or evil courſe,or idol, ſome after another,ch.55.7.& 57.17,Eccleſ.11.9.1 King.17.30,31. Jer.2.28.& 11.13.

and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all] Heb. hath made the iniquity of us all to meet on him;or to light,or fall on him,rather. Some of the Jewiſh Doctors, to divert this place from being underſtood of Chriſts ſatisfaction,by his ſufferings,made for ſinners; becauſe the word here found, is ſometime uſed of intercceſſion by prayer,as Jer.7.16.and here alſo,ver.12. would rain turn the word that way; as if the party here ſpoken of, were, by prayer, only to have mediated, and pacified Gods wrath, for the ſins of ſome other, as Moſes did ſometime for his people, Exod.32. 12,14.Num. 14.19,20. Pſal. 106. 23. and becauſe the word, would not ſound handſomly, if it ſhould be ſaid here,the Lord interceded,or prayed, as it is afterward; he intercedeth, or prayeth; they would have it rendred; the Lord made him to intercede,or to pray. But neither produce they any inſtance of the word ſo uſed, nor will the ſyntax admit,or endure ſuch a ſenſe: For what a ſtrange piece of non-ſenſe were this; the Lord made him to intercede the iniquity of us all upon him? and both the words before,ver.4,5. and thoſe alſo following, ver.7, 10,12. do evidently hold out to any eye,not wilfully winking, that ſatisfaction was made to Gods juſtice, and his wrath pacified, towards thoſe, that had intereſt therein; not by intercceſſion, and prayer only, but by penalties, and ſufferings. The word, therefore, is not a miſs rendred by our Interpreters, where they give it,word for word in the margent,the Lord made to meet on him, and it may well be, to meet with him, as our Engliſh phraſe is wont to expreſſe the like. So chap.47.3. I will not meet thee, as a man, and the revengers of blood, ſhall ſlay the murtherer, where he meeteth with him, Num.35. 19,21.(as Exodus 23.4. if thou meet with thine enemies ox,or aſſe.) Or, where he lighteth on him; as he lighted on a place, Gen. 28. 11. which place, ſome of the Jewiſh Maſters themſelves, alſo, refer unto, for the notion of the word, in this place: and ſo, here, it may more fitly be rendred; he made the iniquity of us all to light upon him: as, the arm of God is ſaid (though another word be there) to light upon Aſſur,Chap.30. 30. or, which I conceive to be the fitteſt expreſſion; he made it all to fall on him: for ſo the word is,in the firſt form, very frequently rendred, fell upon him, 2 Samu. 1. 15.1 King. 2.29.31.and, fall upon the Priefts, 1 Sam.22.18. and,he fell upon the Priefts, ver.20. and, he fell upon him, 1 King.2.25,34,46. and, he fell upon two men better then himſelf. 1 King. 2. 32. God made it to fall on him as man is wont to fall in hoſtile manner,with a weapon,on his foe. God inflicted on him, whatſoever was requiſite, to the ſatisfying of his juſtice, for all the ſins of all his Elect ones,even of all that truſt in him, Joh. 3.14,15, 16.& 11.50.52.2 Cor.5.14,15.Heb.2.9.14,15.

the iniquity] Not the ſtain, or taint it ſelf of ſin; but, as the Jewiſh Doctors themſelves, well expound it, the guilt and penalty of it; a portion of puniſhment, in ſome regard proportionable, to whatſoever was due unto their ſins, and to themſelves for the ſame. So is the word taken, Gen. 4.13.Lev. 20.17,19,20.1 Sam.28.10. Lam.4.6. which two latter places, the Jewiſh Commenters here point us to. The Greek Interpreters render this paſſage much in the ſame words, that the Apoſtle uſeth, Romanes, 4.25.

V.7.He was oppreſſed,and he was afflicted]A very pregnant place, for the ſatisfaction made by Chriſts ſufferings for our ſins, were it fully rendred, and rightly underſtood. The words are, word for word; It was exacted, and he anſwered. It was exacted; or, it is exacted; as ſome alſo well render it: that the former word doth properly, and commonly, ſignifie, to exact, cannot be denied. The Jewiſh Commenters, themſelves, obſerve on the place, that it is uſually meant of moneys;directing us to that place, 2 King.23.35.he exacted the money. So Chap.58.3. ye exact all your labours; or, as ſome, all your debts: and, of a ſtranger thou mayeſt exact it; but not of thy brother, Deut.15.2,3.hence the name of an exacter,ſo frequent in Scripture, Job 3.17.& 39.7.Chap.3.12. & 9.4.& 14.2.& 60.17. Zach.9.8.& 10.4. and that it is here a paſſive, the ſame Writers here obſerve. The old Latine rendreth it, We was offered, as if the word were parallel to that other,from whence the Corban cometh, mentioned, Mat.15.5. and ſo the meaning ſhould be, he was made to approach,or offered as a Sacrifice,ver.10.But this verſion ariſeth from a two-fold miſtake. For, firſt, the word here uſed, and that other, of approaching, offer, as our Jewiſh Criticke tell us; as Sibboleth, and Shiboleth. Judg.12.6. And ſecondly,this latter, in the paſſive form, carrycth always neutrall; neither an active,nor paſſive ſenſe: it ſignifies, to approach, not to offer, or make to approach, not yet to be made to approach,or to be offered. So Gen.33. 7.Exod.20.21.Chap.29.13. The word, therefore: is the ſame rather, with that, 1 Sam.13.6. where it is ſaid, the people, being in a ſtrait, were preſſed, or diſtreſſed: and ſo alſo, Chap.14.24.ſave that there it is uſed, more metaphorically, here properly; there ſpecially; here, imperſonally; as the words of the text evidently ſhew. For there is neither noun, nor pronoun, before the firſt word of the verſe; but a pronoun expreſly before the next: which evidently controleth their conceit, who expound it of the perſon, from whom it was exacted, and render the words, He was exacted, which yet they expound, it was demanded, or required of no other, but of him: the ſenſe is found, but the conſtruction hard, and not ſorting well with the frame of the context. This the Rabbine himſelf ſaw, and therupon expounds it; It was exacted, to wit, money ſaith he, by way of tax, or aſſeſment, as 2 King.23.34,35. and he was afflicted, namely, the people of whom it was required, by ſtripes, or ſtrokes, being beaten, becauſe they paid not the ſums required of them; as the people in Egypt were beaten, when they could not make up the full tale of bricks, Exod.5.14. But the great Doctor had no regard to the current of the context: for that runneth in a conſtant, and continued courſe and tenour, not as ſpeaking of one, and the ſame party or parties, both fining and ſuffering, or ſuſtaining penalties, for their own defaults: but as one, ſuffering for the ſin: of another, and ſuſtaining grievous penalties,for defaults made, and faults committed, by other perſons. Some of ours therefore readeit; It is exacted, and he is afflicted. Others, It was exacted, and he was afflicted. Or, when it was exacted, he was afflicted. Of which manner of ſyntax, ſee on ver. 2. that is, the penalty due to Gods juſtice, for our ſins, ver 6. was exacted, and he ſuſtained the ſame for us. For that which a learned late Annotator ſuggeſteth, who would have it rendred, he was humble, or humbly ſubmitted himſelf, not opening his mouth, becauſe of Pharao it is ſaid, Exod.10.3. thou refuſeſt to be humbled: Neither doth that place and this. ſuit well the one with the other: (It is one thing to be humbled; another the one with the other: (It is one thing to be humbled; another to be humble,)and this interpretation ſeemeth to decline from ther to be humble,)and this interpretation ſeemeth to decline from the drift of the precedent diſcourſe, whereupon this hath dependance. The words, as formerly read, do ſufficiently confirm the doctrine of ſatisfaction made to Gods juſtice, by Chriſts ſufferings for our ſins. But yet ſome further ſtrength may be, from hence, added thereunto, if we conſider the latter terma little more exactly: For howſoever it be true, that the word, here uſed, do in the paſſive form ſignifie,to be afflicted, or humbled, as Exod.10.3. Pſal. 119. 107. and ſo in a grave, or weighty form, it is uſed, ver. 4. which this may here ſeem to have reference unto: and that the word uſed in a notion of anſwering, be ſeldome found, but in an active form: yet, as in the notion of affliction, the word is uſed, ſometime, in an active form paſſively, ſo it is ſometime uſed actively, in the ſame notion of anſwering, either verbally, as Iob 11.2. or, paſſive form, not to be anſwered, either verbally, as Iob 11.2. or, really as Iob 19.7.Prov. 21. 13. but, to anſwer, and that either verbally, or really, alſo. In the former ſenſe, ſome underſtand that place, Pſal.119.147.before I anſwered,(that is, ſay they,before that ever I was able to ſpeak, as ver.172. my tongue ſhall anſwer, and ſo, ſpeak of, thy word,) I went aſtray; as parallel to that, Pſal.58.3. and having reſpect to inbred pravity: but the word ſeemeth to be therein an active form, ſo in a paſſive ſenſe; and in a ſignificati-on of affliction,and humiliation,as it is commonly expounded. However,it,the word is found elſe-where, in a paſſive form, with an active ſenſe, and that without any queſtion, in the notion of anſwering. Ezek.14.4,7.as alſo the word of ſpeaking is Pſal. 119.13.Ezek.33.

30. Mal. 3. 13, 16. And somewhat to this purpose, an Author of good note expoundeth this text, thus rendring the words; It is exalted, and he understandeth, (a term that some of the Ancients also use, in the opening of this text) that is, saith he, the penalty due to us, was in rigour of justice exacted; and he became a Sponsor, or Surety for us, by undertaking, in our behalf, the discharge of it. And though the word, saith he, in Hebrew, be not found so vsed; yet in Latine, the word respondere, that is, to answer, comes from Spondere, that signifies to undertake; and the word, to answer, in the French tongue, is so commonly used. Hereunto may be added, that the old Latine seems to look this way, that renders the text, He was offered of his own accord, or because he himself would: which version, howsoever it fail much, in the former term, as hath already been shewed; yet it comes home to us, in the latter word; implying a voluntary undertaking, or engaging of himself (seq Jer. 31. 20.) unto God his Father, in our behalf, as a Surety, (so is he termed, Heb. 7. 22.) for the payment of our debt. And, which is yet more then so, that albeit, the Hebrew be not found expreslly, and directly used for such a sponsion, or engagement, yet that in this very form, that here it hath, it is twice used in the place of Ezekiel, before pointed to, The Lord will answer him (to wit, the man that repairs to me for advice, with an idol in his heart) and again, I will answer him by my self, and that in a notion, not of a verbal, but of a real answering and so I conceive it is to be taken here, It was exalted, and he answered it, (the particle being neccellarily, as oft elsewhere, supplyed, See Chap. 28. 5, 6.) that is, he not only undertook it, but discharged it. So we ufe the word commonly in our English tongue, to answer a debt, for to discharge it. And so of our Saviour it is moft true, that he answered our debt, and caused our bond to be, cancelled, that it might not come to be put in suit, against us, any more again. See Joh. 19. 30. Rom. 4. 25. Col. 2. 14. A singular comfort to every sincere Christian.

yet he opened not his mouth] Heb. And: But so we had it before, v. 4. and it may well be here retained, if we keep to the received reading of being oppressed, and afflicted, as if it were said, having respect to his patience, for all the oppressions and afflictions, that he suftained for others, and that in regard of those, by whom he suffered them unjustly: yet was he silent, he neither murmured, or repined, at Gods dispo sal of things in that manner, nor used any railing, or reviling speeches, against those that dealt so despitefully with him, but carryed himself calmly, and quietly, under them, Mat. 26. 39, 42. Mar. 14. 36. Joh. 18. 22, 1 Pet. 2. 23. Howbeit, if we admit the sense in the second place propounded, and prefild, of exalting, and answering, that is, undertaking, or discharging, the copulative shall not need at all, to be altered: for the words will well go on in way of connexion to the former: as if it were said; Having an eye to his voluntary obedience, and submission to the Will of his Father, and agreement thereunto, he under took willingly what his Father required of him, and as willingly when the time came, underwent it; neither hanging back, or oppoling ought, in way of contradiction thereunto, when it was by his Father propounded to him, at first; not afterward seeking to thit it off, when he was to perform what he had eng ag d himself unto, by pleading ought for himself, & the releasment of him, from the moft unjuft proceedings, in whofe hands he then was, see ch. 50. 5, 6. Mat. 26. 62, 63. & 27. 13, 14. Mar. 14. 60, 61. & 15. 3, 5. Luk. 23. 9. Joh. 10. 18. & 14. 31. & 19. 11. to open the mouth, an usual form, (the antecedent, put for the consequent) for, to speak. So Job 3. 1. & 33. 2. Pfal. 78. 2. Prov 31. 8, 26, to open the lips Job 32. 20. and on the contrary, not to open the mouth, for to be silent, not to say ought, Pfalm. 39. 9. Proverbs 24. 7.

he is brought as a lamb to the slaughter] The Hebrew word is more general, and signifies a sheep; which word of ours, it comes neer to in found: and it is so rendred also, Act. 8. 32. where this paffage is related, Pfal. 119. 176. Jer. 50. 17 and yet more largely, Ifter cattle, Ch. 7. 25. as parallel to another word used, v. 6. but, as more specially intending sheep there, in regard of the fillines s thereof: so here, in regard of the ordinary vsuage of them, above any such other cattel, brought to the butchery, Pf. 44. 22. Jer. 12. 3. Zach. 11. 4, Rom 8. 36. and their quiet carriage, in driving thither: the text may well be rendred, as a sheep that is led to the slaughter, as Jer. 11. 19. As a sheep, that goeth as quietly, to the shambles, or the slaughter-house, as if it were going to the fold, wherein it is usually lodged; or the field, where it is wont to feed. See Jer. 11. 19 and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb] This latter word, whereof Rachel had her name, Gen. 29. 6. 31. by the ancient Greek Interpreter, rendred, a Lamb, and so Act 8. 32. Luke retaining that translation, giveth it. Howbeit, it signifieth an Ew. as appeareth plainly, Gen. 31. 38. & 32. 14. where these rachels are distinguished from rams, as also, Cant. 6. 6. where they are described with twins by their sides: and the word, though of a mafculine form, yet is of a feminine gender, as is manifeft, by the verb, or participle, joyned with it: and he seems to mention the Ew, as the quieter of that kind, because the rams are sometime more unruly.

is dumb] So Pfalm. 39. 2, 9. or tongue-tied: for that seemes to be the firft notion of the root it commeth of, to bind, or ty up, Ge. 37. 7.

so he openeth not his mouth] Heb. and; vsed here, for the note of similitude; as also, Pfal. 1. 3. and 109. 17. Prov. 10. 25. and 17. 3. ch. 10. 26. and so it is rendred, Act. 8. 37. Of the phrase, see before.

V. 8. He was taken from prison, and from judgement] In the exposition of this pallage, Interpreters do exceedingly differ, and that about every word, and particle, in it. Howbeit, they may in general be referred all to two heads, either of those, that understand them of Chists humiliation, and oppression only, and the harsh, cruel, and unjuft courses, wherby he his was taken from him, Mat. 27. 18, 24. Act. 2. 23, & 3 14. 15. & 13. 28. Or, of those, that conceive them to be spoken of his deliverance out of those afflictions, and distresles, injuriously inflicted; and his advancement from them, to a glorious condition, Luk. 24. 26. Act. 2. 24, 33, 36. & 3. 15, 21. Phil. 2. 8, 9. 1 Tim. 3. 16. Heb. 2. 9. 1 Pet. 1. 11.

taken] That is, as some, taken away, put to death as Pfal. 31. 13, Prov. 1. 9. as others, drawn away, to wit, unto judgment, and to punishment, by death as Prov. 24. 11. but the structure is not here, and there alike: yea, as some, supposing the particular manner of his death here designed, taken up to the croffe, John 3. 14, 15. and 12. 32, 33. but of such use of the word, no instance is brought. Others, he is taken up, from hence, and received by God, into glory, as Gen. 5. 24. Mar. 16. 19. Luke 24. 51. Act. 1. 9, 11. 1 Timo. 3. 16.

from] So the word most usually signifieth; and so many here take it, as meant of being delivered, and let free from the matters here mentioned: as, from work, Gen. 2. 2, from enemies, Pfal. 44. 4. from bands, Jer. 40. 4. others take it, for, by, or thorow, as noting the means whereby, or the manner how, he was brought to his end. So Job 7. 14. & 37. 10. Jer. 10. 14. or, for, as implying the cause producing, procuring, or impe lent. So Pf. 12. 5. v. 5. 65. 14. others, for without, without being imprisoned, or having any due course of judicature, taken with him: as the particle seemeth to be used, Pf. 109. 24. Lam. 4. 9. but neither are those places parallel; and one produced to that purpose, hath a negative joyned with it, Job 31. 19. Others, lastly, for, after: after that he had past those harsh and unjuft courses taken with him. So is the particle used, Dan. 11. 23. Hof. 6. 3.

prison] Supposed to be so called, as a place of coertion, or restraint (see on chap. 44. 7.) for the verb, whence it comes, signifies to shut up, or restrain, Gen. 20. 18. Deut. 11. 17. yet, for a prison, the word is no where found to be used: nor was our Saviour ever imprisoned; though that would well enough with their exposition, that render the particle without. Others, therefore understand by it, restraint, or distresse; and this not unfitly agreeth with the native signification of the word; used for the shutting up or, restraint, of the womb, (so the words are) Proverbs 30. 16. that is, the womb shut up, or, restrained; as Jacob speaks to Rachel, Gen. 30. 2. nor can it be denyed, or doubt made, but that Christ was under restraint; and in distresse, proceeding from such strict restraint. Others, of such anguish, and anxiety of mind, and spirit, as Christs soul was possessed of, arising from the apprehension of Gods wrath, both in his agony, Luke. 22. 44. and upon the croffe, Mat. 27. 46. Others render it, domination, power, tyranny, oppression: and a term of the same stock, differing but in a vowel only from it, is vsed sometime for power, authority, or magistracy, Judg. 18. 7. and the root they both spring from, for to have power, or to prevail, 2 Chr. 14. 11. and this very word sometime for such power abused: for oppression, or tyranny. So Pfal. 107. 39. where it is also joyned with the particle here used: and it suiteth well with the speech of Jews, and Gentiles, unjustly exercised against Christ, Pfalm. 2. 1, 2. Act. 4. 25. 27. Others would have it to fignifie, here, a congregation, or a multitude: because another word of kin to this, is used for a solemn assembly. See on Chap. 1. 13. and this some refer to the Assembly of the Jewish Rulers, wherein Christ was condemned, Mat. 26. 57. 66. Others, to the popular multitude, that were instant to have him crucified, Mat. 27. 15. 26. Mar. 15. 8, 15. Luk. 23. 18. 25. and to these therefore, as well as those, by whom they were incited, is the murther of Christ ascribed, Luk. 24. 20. Act 3. 23, 26. & 3. 13, 14, 15. & 7. 52. & 13. 27. but neither is the word it self any where, as I conceive, so used; not its kin, of either, then a solemn assembly, called together by authority, not of a consulted, or disorderly multitude on their own heads gathered together.

and from judgment] This some understand of judgment, in general, either, without which, or by which, or after which, exercised, and executed upon our Saviour, he was, either taken away, or taken up. Some more particularly restrain it, either to the Jewish Assemblies censure of him, Mat. 26. 66. Joh. 19. 7. or, to Pilates sentence passed upon him; Luk. 23. 24. distinguished from the act of the rude multitude, which they conceive implyed in the word before-going. Nor want they, that expound it of the judgment of God, and the torments by him inflicted upon him, implyed in the word curse, Gal. 3. 13. I concur with those, who by these two terms, understand oppression, and judgment, as comprehending all those harsh, and cruel courses, as under pretence of judgement, were exercised upon our Saviour, whereby his life was taken from him, and himself taken away, for the time; or, from which, he was after a while freed, being, after the suftaining of them, taken hence, and taken up unto God, as Enoch, and Elia before him; of both which affumption, the same term is used, Gen. 5. 24. 2 King. 2. 9, 10. But I incline rather

and who shall declare his generation?] Or, who can declare? for the indicative future, is oft potentially used. See chap. 26. 18. & 49. 25. This paffage, some understand of the generation of Christ, from eternity, in regarde of his God head, Prov. 8. 24, 25. Others, of the production of him, and that of a virgin, without knowledge of man, in regard of his manhood, Luk. 1. 34, 35. and some, of both jointly; as also that, Pfal. 2. 7. Acts 13. 33. Some by generation, here, understand neather of these; but, either, his continuance, reading the words, but who can reckon his age? living now in eternity, beyond all number of dayes, or years, Ro. 6. 9. Heb. 7. 3, 8. 15. Rev. 1. 18. agreeable to that, he shall prolong his dayes, ver. 10. that, which they extend also to his body, the Church. Pfal. 129. 1. Jer. 31. 36, 37. & 33. 25, 26. Mat. 16. 18. Heb. 7. 25. and for continuance of time, the word is commonly used; as chap. 13. 20. & 60. 15. or, of his issue, rendring the text: who can count, or, reckon, his race? his spiritual seed and issue, being a numberless multitude, Gen. 15. 5. & 22. 17, 18. Jer. 33. 22. Heb. 2. 10, 13. Rev. 7. 9. as agreeable to that, he shall see a seed, verle 10. so is the word taken, Pfal. 22. 30. & 24. 6. & 49. 19 & 73. 15. & 112. 2. In the first senfe, most of the ancient Writers take it; & in the two latter, most of the later. What the first should do here, cannot easily be made to appear; the latter if we admit, according to the former Interpretation, at least of the foregoing branch, the copulative would be turned into an adversative, as ver. 10, yet who can reckon his age, or, of his race? But there want not those, that turn the words another way: and they conceive them to run in an abrupt, and paffionate form of speech, as complaining either of the ftrangeneis of the things that befell him: & they then read the words, who would have said of his generation? to wit, that such things should have, in his age, or time, befalln him; as, who would have said to Abram, that Sarah should give suck? Gen. 21. 7. or, of the monftrous impiety, and wickedneis of them, that deal in this manner with him, that came to save them: and then they render the words, who can utter, or describe, his generation? or, his age? that is the wickedneis of the men of his time, or the age he lived in: the verb fignifies to speake, or utter, Job 12. 8. Pfal. 69. 12. & 143. 5. his generation, or age, for, the men of his time, 2 Pet. 3. 4. his generations or ages: that, those of the times wherein he lived, Gen. 6. 9. So in the word very frequently used, Gen. 7. 1. Deut. 32. 5, 20. Pfal 78. 8. Mat. 11. 16. & 12. 39. & 16. 4. and 17. 17. And this sense seems not improbable; as well suiting, both with what ushered it in, and what attends on it. As for that of another, who could declare his flock? that is, who would say, that he was begotten of God, or the Son of God, seeing him deprefsed, and abased so beneath the meaneft of men? chap. 52. 14. it gaineth with me no acceptance; becaufe I find not where the word is in that notion used. Besides, that the Centurion, unto whom the execution was committed, seeing the manner of his death, and, in likelihood, observing his laft words, recorded, Luk. 23. 46. is, both by Matthew & Mark, reported to have broken out into those words, of a truth, this man was a Son of God, Mat. 27. 54. Mar. 15. 39.

for he was cut off out of the land of the living] Or, as some read the words, (the chief especially, that expound the two fore-going branches, of his delivetance, and exaltation) though he were cut off: as the particle is used, Gen. 8. 21. Josh. 17. 18. chap. 12. 1. But what if we read it according to the exposition of the branch, next before, deemed not improbable; as continuing the sentence in a notion of wonderment, that he should be cut off, (so the particle was used before, ver. 5, 6.) as a tree that was hewen down, 2 King. 6. 4. that he should be thus taken away, by a violent death, from abiding and converling on earth, among men, that there live, Pfal. 27. 13. & 52. 5. and 116. 9. chap. 38. 11.

for the transgression of my people was he stricken] The words thus read, are the fame in substance, with what was before said, ver. 5. See there. But some read them thus rather; by the transgression of my people was he stricken. Heb. from, but of the various use of that particle, see on the first branch of this verse: in this sense, the words conceived, the sentence may ftill be continued, and carried on thus, that (the particle supplyed from the former; as 1 Sam. 24. 30.) by the transgression of mine own people he should thus be stricken, Act. 2. 23. & 3. 13-15. & 13. 28.

my people] Either mine Elect, for whom he dyed: as Col. 1. 24. 2 Tim. 2. 10. or, those obstinate wicked, that pursued him to death, 1 Thell. 2. 15.

was he stricken] As ver. 4. Heb. the stroke was upon him: for the pronoun is found used in a singular notion, Gen. 9. 26, 27. Job 10. 23 & 32. 2. Pfal. 11. 7. & 28. 8. chap 44. 15. contrary to that, which both some Popish Writers, to fasten wilful corruptions upon the Hebrew text, affirm; and some Jewish Doctors also, to divert this testimony from the Messias, avow: both either of grosse ignorance, or of mere malice; for other of the Jewish Masters, and that of prime note, for Grammar especially observe the affix here used, to be as well singular, as plural: and the places above recited, where of someaiso are by them alledged, do evidently evince as much. However either sense, and that of ours also render it, they were stricken; the stroke was upon them, taking the pronoun in a plural notion as it is commonly used, Exo. 1. 15. Deut. 33. 29. Pf. 2. 5. & 17. 10. & 21. 11. & 49. 11. & 104. 9. and so some understand it, of the Jewish people, upon whom, according to their own imprecation, Mat. 26. 25. the stroke of Gods wrath, shortly after, lighted, and lyeth heavy, to this very day, for their crucifying of Christ, Mat. 21. 39, 41. & 23. 37, 30. & 24. 22, 23. Luk. 13. 34, 35. & 21. 20-24. 1 Thell. 2. 15, 16. And some of those that go this way, knit this member thus to the former: because he was cut off through the transgression of, or, wickedneis of my people: therefore, shall they be smitten, or, they are smitten; (for the Prophet speaks of thefe things, as already in execution, and act) the stroke, shall be, or is, upon them. But the course of the context carries it on rather, the former way, and makes the p lage clearer to what followeth. But they leem to go further out of the way, who taking the affix in a plural notion, would have it understood, either of Christ, considered joyntly with those, as one with him, for whom he suffered, 2 Cor. 5. 21. or of those alone, whom the stroke was due to, rendring the text, he was cut off from the land of the living, for the iniquity of my people, unto whom the stroke belonged, was due, or, was intended; for this, the words will hardly bear.

V. 9. And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death] Some Writers of note, lufpect these words to have been by some means transposed, and suppose, for the fitting of them, to the story of the Gospel, concerning his death with malefactors, on mount Calvary, Mat. 27. 33, 38. Mar. 15. 28. Luk. 22. 37. and his burial, in Josephs Sepulchre, Mat. 27. 57, 60. that the text ought thus to be read; And his death shall be disposed of, with the wicked, and his grave with the rich. The like thoughts have some other had of Pfal. 55. 7. and of Act. 7. 16. but to give way to such conjectures, seemeth unsafe. To let that therefore pass, and take the words as we find them, at present, in the text; the expositions of them in the lump, may be referred to two heads: the one of those, which seems the more improbable, who understand the words, as concerning either the effect, or the efficacy of Christs sufferings; to wit, either, that those wicked ones, and rich ones, that had had an hand in the procuring of his death, should pay full dear for it; being given up to endure the like harsh and cruel usage, at the hands of others, as Christ, at their hands had suftained: as chap. 43. 3, 4. or, that even wicked men, and those great ones too, who are wont to be most obstinate, should be subdued, and made subject to the Scepter of Christ, by the power and efficacy of his paffion, Pfal. 110. 2. The other is, of those, who conceive them to be meant, wholly of his sufferings themselves, either, that the Jewish people should put him into the hands of Heathen people, the Romans, and their Ruler Pilate, Mat. 20. 19, 20. Joh. 18. 35. who by that means, having condemned him, and dealt with him, as with a malefactor, should dispose of his death, and burial, at his pleasure, Mat. 27. 2. 57, 58. Luk 23. 1, 2. 50, 52. Joh. 18. 28-32 & 19. 6, 11. 12, 38. or that God should deliver him into the hands of wicked men, and Rulers to be disposed of by them, for either, as themselves pleased, Luk. 22. 53. Act. 2. 23. & 4. 27, 28. Howbeit, among the latter there are, who, together with his sufferings, conceive an intimation of some honour done him, concerning his burial; as if it were said, that though his grave, were, in ordinary course to have been among malefactors; yet it was with the rich being buried in honourable manner, by Joseph, in his own tomb, Mat. 27. 57-60. and that to them also, that all penalty and shame for sin, were fully satisfied for, and had an end at his death; according to that, Joh. 19. 40. Howbeit, that seems rather to have been manifested, at, and by, his resurrection, Rom. 4. 25. & the reception of him, in soul first, (though that not so conspicuous) Luk. 23. 43, 46. and in the whole man, not long after ward, into Heaven, Joh. 13. 1. & 16. 10. 1 Tim. 3. 16. otherwise his abode in the grave, though a rich, and honorable mans grave, under the power of death, for a time, was a branch of his humiliation, and is reckoned, as a part of his paffion, Act. 2. 24, 27. Nor want there here again some others, who would have here by intimated, Christs carrying of ourfins, which in his body he bare on the Croffe, 1 Pet. 2. 24. with him into the grave, and there burying them, that they may not appear any more in Gods sight, as Gen. 23. 4. Pfal. 88. 5. to which purpose, also, they hook in hither that of the Apoftle, Rom. 6. 4. Col. 2. 12 as also that of Dan. 9. 24. to finit up and seale up sin, as they would have the words there read, with some reference to the shutting up of Christ in the Sepulchre, and the sealing up of it, Mat. 27. 66. And as this in the former branch, to the pretious riches of his blood and death in the latter, 1 Pet. 1. 19. Eph. 1. 7, 8, 18. & 2. 7. & 3. 8. Col. 1. 27. All which to make out, the two concretes in the text are presumed to be put for the abstracts, wicked ones, for, wickedneisses: & rich, for riches: and the text is rendred, He put wicked-nesses in his grave, and riches in his death. But these things seems overmuch forced, and far fetcht. Nor seems it fafe, or fit, to think, that the Latine fwarveth too far from, rendring it He gave the wicked for his grave. Now some here, by he, understand God, by whose hidden counsel, and predetermination, these things were done; and without whom, men could not have had any such power over him, Mat. 26. 53, 54 Joh. 19. 9, 10. Others, the Jewish People, by whole hands they were acted, and executed, See Act. 2. 23. & 4. 27, 28. But others conceive, not amis, that the words may well be taken indefinitely, and so rendred by a paffive form, (of which manner of construction.

See on Chap. 34.11.and the like to this,Gen.40.15. his grave was given to the wicked, (as Levit.13.49.) or, was disposed of (for so, the word of giving, oft signifies. See Chapter.41.2.) by the wicked, (as chap.7.17.) or, with the wicked : (as chap.28.15.) that is, as if he had been one of that rank, ver.1. fay some; or because in Mount Calvary he was buried,fay others, Joh.19.41,42. where malefactors corpses used to be laid. But this latter seems not so suitable to the tenour of the story,For albeit,the place of his burial was not far distant from the place of his execution; yet it was in a private garden, belonging to a man of eminent place, wherein he had cut a sepulchre out for himself, Mat.27. 57,60. Mar.15.43,46.

and with the rich in his death] Or, and to the rich ; as before, for that the particle is the same: by the rich, some understand Joseph, that begged , and buried Christs body, called a rich man, Mat.27. 57. Others, Pilate, that had the power to dispole of Christs corpse, and to whom Joseph begged it,Mat.27.58. conceiving a rich man, to be of whom Joseph begged it.Mat.27.58. conceiving a rich man, to be put here for a Ruler;as Eccl.10. 6,7,20.because those usually are such: thus they that expound it of some particular perlon, which may carry the better shew with it; because the former word, wicked, was plural, this, singular. But many other conceive the word rich, here to be taken collectively, and the same perlons to be meant by both; those that had an hand in the death of Christ , as well the base sort of people,as the rich and wealthy Rulers,whether of the Jewish Nation, or the Roman State, whom (say those, that understand the place of the vengeance, by God executed,on either, for the death of Christ,) their riches should not ransome,nor relieve in the day of wrath, Prov.11.4. Ezek.7.19. as yet they are usually wont to doe, Prov.13. 8.

in his death] Or,at his death ; as Job 27.19. at their death ; though in another notion there , then here : for there 'tis faid of some, that they shall be buried at their death : that is, in mean and base manner ; their corpses being committed to the ground, alloon as their breath is out of their bodies, without further care or cost; whereas, though our Saviours body was, shortly after his decease, disposed of, for burial, yet was it carefully throwded, and richly embalmed, before he was laid up in the grave, Mar.15.46. Joh.19. 39,40. lo the particle is used alſo, Ezr. 9.4.Eſt.1.12.Heb. deaths ;as Jer.16.4. hence the Jewish Doctors (whole expositions I medle the leſs with, in this prelent Prophecy , because they run moſt upon another ground) ſtrive to wring this prediction awry , and to turn it, from the Meſſias , or any other particular perſon, to the main body of their own people , who,though innocent, ſay they, yet were put to death, as malefactors, becauſe they would not change their religion, Pſal. 44.22. and, were made away , if rich, not for their wickedneſs.but for their wealth ; & that ſome,by one kinde of death ſome by another : ſome burnt, ſome ſlain, ſome ſtoned, and the like : but the word, though plural, is founde elſewhere alſo, applyed to one particular perſon,as to the King of Tyre,Ezec.28.8,10, where it is ſaid of him,that he ſhall die the death of the ſlain; & the deaths of the uncircumciſed : and ſo the Apoſtle of himſelf, alſo,in deaths oft, 2 Cor. 11.23. that is, not in hazards, and dangers of death only ; but in afflictions, and vexations, as ſore and painful, as death it ſelf, and ſuch as might well go, for as many deaths, 1Cor. 4.9. & 15.31. Luk.9.23. 2Cor.1.9.& 4.8-11.& 6.4,5,9. & 11.23-27. and the ſame might by the Prophet,as well,yea, far better,be ſaid of the Meſſias, as of the Tyrian Prince, by the Prophet, in the one place : or, of himſelf, by the Apoſtle in the other : beſides, that the Chaldee Paraphraſt, rendreth it in the ſingular number. Nor can I conde ſcend unto thoſe, though of prime note, who,having put the word people, into the text, and let it in the front of the verſe, render the words, into their own death ; as importing, that the Jews, by delivering up of Chriſt, brought deſtruction upon themſelves : as having reference to the imprecation by themſelves paſt upon them, at the delivering up of him, Mat.27.25. See before,ver.8. There is another reading, that the Rabbines ſome of them, here exhibit; as if it were not made up of a ſervile particle, and a noun, with his affix ; as both we, and themſelves, alſo, commonly take it ; but a noun only, with a pronoun affixed unto it, and ſo ſhould ſignifie his high places. Which I ſhould not mention, ſave that ſome, not Popish Writers only, but adours alſo, and thoſe of note, doe not only take notice of it, but admit it, and preſſe it, as intimating the ſtatelineſs of the Sepulchre, wherein Chriſts body was laid : as if Joſephs monument were, as ſtately as one, as Shebna had built it for himſelf, ch 22.16. But this reading, the points, or vowels, in the original, refuſe, and refute : nor doe the Doctors, that cite it, give any appobation of it ; nor will this reading cohere handſomly with the reſt of the context. I ſuppoſe that as the latter part of the foregoing verſe, ſo the forepart of this, run on in a continued ſeries, containing matter of admiration. in this manner ; And that his burial ſhould be at the diſpoſal of wicked ones, and of ſich ones, or, rulers, at his death ; that is that wicked great ones ſhould have ſuch power given them over him, as not only to take his life away from him , by a violent and moſt cruel death ; but after that perpetrated,to diſpoſe of his dead corpſe alſo for his burial, at their pleaſure.

becauſe he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth] This reading may ſtand , not amiſs, with the expoſitions of thoſe, that conceive the foregoing words to be underſtood, either of the revenging hand of God, upon the Jews, for the death of Chriſt, or of ſome honour done him, in, or at, his interrement; or of the benefits, that him his death and burial, accrew to the faithful : not ſo well with theirs, that goe the other way before mentiond ; for the conſtruction ſeemeth over-much ſtrained, when the meaning is made to be becauſe they envied him for his integrity, both in life and doctrine, Mat. 27.18. yea, though not only no man could convince him of ſin, Mat.27.19,23,24.Luk.23.14,15.Joh.8.46. but even the devil himſelf could find nothing amiſſe in him, Joh. 14. 30. But the words would rather be read, as they ſound, not for any iniquity, that he had done, nor guile that was in his mouth,So Job 16. 17.where the very ſame form of ſpeech, and words alſo, are found, Not for any injuſtice (ſo the word is there rendred) that is in mine hands; that is , albeit,he had done nothing amiſſ, Mat.27.23.Luk.23. 41. for the word rendred violence , is more general : and is uſed ſed for any wrong , Gen.16.5. Pſalm. 7.16. Jer. 51.35. and that Greek therfore gives it,ſin, 1Per.2.22. according to that, 1Joh.3. 5. in him was no ſin : ſo alſo , but there the negative only tranſpoſed, 1Chron.12. 17. without any wrong, that is in my hands : for ſo it would be rendred, both in Job, and there ; there being in either place , a defect of the relative , as alſo here ; and the like, Chap.50.9. and 51.12. Nor doth that at all croſs this expoſition, which a learned Writer obſcleth, who having himſelf ſometime rendred the text here,although,or,when as yet, he had done no wrong, doth afterward revoke it, becauſe never findeth the particle here uſed, in ſuch an adverſative, but frequently in a cauſal notion, for it is plainly in a cauſal notion, when it is ſaid, not for, or, by cauſe of , any wrong he had done ; which is the very ſame , in effect, with what himſelf had before given, albeit he had done no wrong, and he had no cauſe therefore to reverſe it; by his meanes, conſtruction only, was not ſo exact.

neither was any deceit in his mouth] Or, nor for any guile, thatwas in his mouth ; a defect, of the particle ; as Pſal.59.3. but ſupplyed here from the former member of the diſtribution & of the relative, as before : it is rendred, 1Pet.2.22. neither was guile found in his mouth : to be found, for, to be ; as Luk.17.18.So chap.30.14. 51.3.There was nothing amiſſe with him,either in word, or deed V. 10. Yet it pleaſed the Lord to bruiſe him, he hath put him to grief [Or, Yeh the Lord being willing,(as 1King.13.33.)or,deſiring, (as Pſal.34.12. for the word ſeems to be here, as in thoſe places, a participle.) to bruiſe him, did put him to pain, or, torment.

bruiſe] Or, breake. See on ver. 5. not, that his body was battered to pieces; or, that any bone of him was broken, Exod.12. 46. Pſal.34.20.Joh 19.33,36. but as the Pſalmiſt of himſelf, I am ſore broken, Pſal. 38. 8. and as we uſe to ſay, that a man is much broken, with age, ſickneſs, grief of mind, evil-uſage, and the like: all which and much more, were together in Chriſts ſufferings.

put him to griefe] Or, as ſome, ſuffer him to be put to pain,or, torment ; becauſe this form, oft hath in it, a notion of permiſſion : as Pſal.37.33. & 119,10,116. Chap.63.17. and true it is, that God did not incite, or inſtigate thoſe wicked wretches, unto thoſe vile, and cruel couſles and carriages, that they offered unto Chriſt, Jam. 1.13. but yet that his ſufferings were by God predetermined for the Salvation of man-kind , is expreſly ſaid, Act. 2.23.& 4.28. and of Abſolons wicked Act, we know what is ſaid, 2Sam.12. 11, 12. of the word, for on ver. 3.4. the pronoun, him, is wanting in the text tho Chap.12.2. ſupplyed here from the words before, when thou ſhalt make his ſoul an offering for ſin] So if it be read, it may well cloſe with the foregoing branch ; as implying ſuch hardſh,and hard uſage of him, then put in execution, and exerciſed, what time he was made ſuch a ſacrifice. Otherwiſe, as if as moſt ſeem to take them, they relate to the after fruits and benefits, mentioned in the words enſuing, it would rather be rendred, when thou ſhalt have made his ſoul an offering for ſin : as Chap. 4.4.

when] Heb. if. So Num. 36.4. Joh 21.6. Chap.28.25.

thou ſhall make his ſoul] A 2.Cor. 5.21. a change of the perſony the ſpeech being turned to God; as ch.2.9. or, his ſoul ſhallhave made : he left offering ; for the ſecond perſon maſculine, and the third feminine, are in letters, and ſound, the ſame, his ſoul ; that is, himſelf ; or, he himſelf, as Pſal.3.2. and as God made a ſacrifice of him ; ſo he made a ſacrifice of himſelf, Eph. 5 2. Heb. 91.4, 25,26. But the former ſeemeth the better.

an offering for ſin] Heb. treſpaſſe, or, ſin.So Levit.5.19. & 7.5. Zach.14.19. and ſo of our Saviour, 2 Cor.5,21. God made him ſin ; that is, a ſin ſacrifice : a ſacrifice for ſin, Rom.8.2. for the word ſacrifice, is there alſo wanting ; as Heb.10.8. becauſe he had undertaken for the guilt of our ſins, ver. 7. and ſuſtained for us, the penalty due thereunto, ver. 5. 6. 1Cor. 5.7.

he ſhall ſee his ſeed] Heb. a ſeed ; that is, iſſue, poſterity, as Gen. 15.3. thou haſt not given me a ſeed : and Gen. 4.25. God hath ſet me a ſeed : and, ſo ſhall thy ſeed be, Gen.15.5. his is not in the Hebrew ; but may be ſupplyed : as oft elſewere, ver.3. chap.27.6.& 40.12. yet not greatly needful here : a ſeed,indefinitely, is ſufficient. It is that which our Saviour of himſelf, applying it to himſelf, and the fruit of his ſufferings;If the grain fall into the ground and dye there, it fructifies, and multiplies; it brings forth much fruit, Joh. 12. 24, 32, 34. and ſo Chriſt by his death, brought many ſons to God , Heb 12.10, 3.even a numberleſſe progeny. See on verſe 8. who can reckon up his race ? as from Abraham and Sarah, that were effeemed , a dead ſtock , the one : and no better then dead, the others, Gen. 18. 11, 12. Rom. 4. 19, Heb. 11. 12. and from Iſaac deſtinated unto death,&received as,in,in a manner, from the dead, ſprung a numberleſſe iſſue, Gc. 22.3,10.& 26.24. & Heb.11.17-19. ſhe ſee] Live, and ſurvive to ſee them ; as Job lived to ſee his ſons and ſons ſons, Job 42.16. and,thou ſhalt ſee thy childrens children, Pſal. 128. 6.

he ſhall prolong his dayes;] The pronoun is wanting ; as before! in regard whereof , the words have a two-fold ſenſe given them. Some expounding them, of Chriſt himſelf, who, after his reſurrection, ſhould dye no more; nor live a while here , and then dye again; as ſome other, raiſed to life, for a time, 1King.17.22. 2King. 4.35,& 8, 5.& 13.21.Luk. 7.15. & 8.55. Joh.11.44. but live, and reign,for ever, Act.13.34.Rom.6,9,10.Heb.7.25.& 9.27,28. and Rev.1.18. Others, of his iſſue, the race of Saints ; (and the ancient Greek,and old Latine,go both that way) being to continue ſucceſſively here on earth, to the worlds end , and from thence-forth to live, with him in glory for ever, Mat.16.18. & 28.20. and 25,46. Joh. 25,29.& 11.25,26.& 14. 19. 1 Theſſ.4.17. and then it ſhould be read, he ſhall ſee a ſeed, that ſhall prolong its dayes; as a ſupply of the relative ; as chap. 51.12.but the former ſeems more probable. Of the phraſe, ſee Deut. 17.20. Prov. 28.16.

and the pleaſure of the Lord ſhall proſper in his hand] Or, the will ; as the old latine giveth it, according to that Joh.4. 34 and 6.38.or, the deſire,as the word is rendred,1Sam.18.25.or, the purpoſe of the Lord, as Eccl. 3.1,17. and 8.6. in both reference to the verb, from whence it comes, uſed in the firſt branch. That which God intended to effect,by giving him up, Rom 8.32 v.9. and for which he was well content, & placed ſo to do, ſtuff, by his meanes, and miniſtery(ſo the word,hand,is ordinarily uſed, chap.20.1. and 37.24,& 6.4-7.) accordingly take effect. See ver.11.5,13.

V. 11. He ſhall ſee of the travel of his ſoul,and ſhall be ſatisfied:] Or,as ſome render it, He ſhall ſee the fruit of the travel of his ſoul, and ſhall be ſatisfied. That is, he ſhall receive, and enjoy that,as the effect, and iſſue, of all the paines that he hath taken, and pain that he hath endured ; that ſhall give him full content.

ſhall ſee] To ſee,is commonly uſed, for, to perceive,or enjoy; as to ſee good,for, to receive, or, enjoy good, Pſ. 34.12. Joh 9.25. Jer.17.6. to ſee life, for, to enjoy life, ſo live, Eccl. 9.9. Joh.3.36.& it is uſed frequently,without any further addition, to behold,what one much deſires, with great delight, Pſ.35.21.& 54.7. & ch.60.5.& 66.14. ſo here. of the travel] Heb. from the travel ; as 10.12. to eat of ones bread, Lev. 22.13. Num.15. 19. and, to drink of ones wine, Dan.1.5. Jer.51.7. travel, for the fruit of his travel, as labour, for the fruit of ones labour, Pſal.128.2. thou ſhalt eat the labour of thine hands ; eat, and enjoy that,for which thine hands have laboured;or from the travel, came meat, and from the ſtrong , ſweet, Judg.14.14. and the word rendred travel, ſignifies properly,toilſome,troubleſome, wearieſome labour, Deut.26.7. Job 5.7. Pſal.107.12.

ſhall be ſatisfied] A metaphor taken, either from perſons, that, having been much pinched , and pained with hunger and thirſt, have food, or drink,afforded them now to their fill, which they ſo much wiſhed for, and earneſtly deſired before, Pſal.107.5,9. Mat. 5.6. or, from the husbandman, that hath his fill of thoſe fruits of the earth , that he hath taken much paines for ; or, of trees, and plants, that he hath taken much paines about, 2Chron.31 10.Joel 2.26. contrary to that,Hoſ.4.10.Mic.9.14. Hag.1.6. See Prov.12. 11. and 28. 19 .2 Tim. 2.6. But there are two other expoſitions, (to paſs by the reſt,) that carry ſome good ſhew of probability with them,we have Authors of good note for them. The former render the words thus , When he ſhall ſee his ſoul (that is , himſelf, as before,) freed from trouble (having an end put unto all thoſe troubles, that he was there expoſed unto,and exerciſed with) he ſhall be ſatisfied : that is,moſt abundantly filled with glory,being taken up into Heaven, and ſet there at Gods right hand, Pſal.16.11.& 17.15. The latter (that which to me ſeemeth the more probable of the twain) read the words thus; For the travel of his ſoul, he ſhall ſee freed, and be ſatisfied : For the travel of his ſoul ; that is, becauſe he hath travelled : as, for my knowledg, that is, becauſe I knew, Chap. 48.4. he ſhall ſee a ſeed : ſupplyed from the verſe before-going, as, Joh 3. 17,18,20,23. & 22. 24. Chap.52.26. and he ſhall be ſatisfied ; that is, moſt refreſhed, and gladded therewith : and the metaphor they ſuppoſe taken from women delivered of child, after hard, and long labour : which ſenſe, and notion admitted, I ſhould rather render the text, after the travel of his ſoul; that is, after his travel : yet the word, ſoul, may be the better retained ; becauſe a feminine term , and that ſex here alluded to rather by whole pangs,in travell alſo, are Chriſts ſufferings deciphered, Act. 2.27. for ſo the word there uſed, properly ſignifies. After theſe therefore (for ſo the particle is oft uſed , as was before ſhewed, on ver. 8.) paſt, and gone, he ſhall ſee ſeed : He ſhall not travel in vain, as thoſe complain, that they did,as if they went but with winde, chap.26.18 and that the babe was come neer to the breaking place, but no power to bring forth,chap.37.3.God would not cauſe to travel,and deny delivery, chap.66.9.but the fruit of his travel,ſo much deſired he ſhould obtain, to wit, a numerous iſſue of faithful ſouls begotten to God, which he himſelf alſo ſhould ſurvive to ſee with much joy, (that which women oft in that caſe fail of, Gen. 35.17 19. 1Sam. 2.18-21.)being ſo taken therewith,as a woman,that being ſafely delivered, after ſore and ſharp labour, forgetteth now all her ſore-paſſed ſorrow, for joy of her much deſired birth, Joh.16.21.And this expoſition, the words of the text doe very well bear; though I adhere rather to the firſt.

by his knowledge ſhall my righteous Servant juſtifie many.] Theſe words are delivered,as In the perſon of God the Father,with whoſe words he began, chap.52.13. and the like paſſages from perſon to perſon, we oft meet with in this Prophet, as chap.13.11. & 17.10. and 22.19.& 26.19. and they hold out unto us,the main truth, and effect,of Chriſts paſſion before-mentioned, mans juſtification, and reconciliation,to God, Rom.3,24,25. & 5.18. and the ſeed, or iſſue, that he ſhould ſee, & reſt ſatisfied in, for all the paines that he had undertaken, and for their ſakes undergone : the perſons thus juſtified, and ſaved by thoſe ſufferings, whereby ſatisfaction was fully made unto God,for their ſins.Heb.2.10,13. The greateſt ſatisfaction to his ſoul,is to ſee ſouls juſtified,by faith, in him : as the greateſt joy,and contentment of mind, to his faithful miniſters, to ſee ſouls won, and begotten,by their miniſtery, to him,1Cor.4.15. Gal.4.19. 1Theſſ.2.19,20.2 Joh.4. 3 Joh.3.14.

by his knowledge] Or, to make it more plain, and take away all ambiguity, the knowledge of him : not his knowledge , taken ſubjectively; his own knowledge, as ſome would here expound it : the knowledge,that he hath himſelf, either of God, Mat.11.27. Joh 8. 55.& 10.15.or, of them, Joh.10.14,27. but his knowledge, taken objectively, that is, the knowledge, whereby they know him, Phil. 3.8. 2Pet.1.3.& 2.20. So Pſal.7.17 thy fear : for, the fear of thee, and , my fear, for the fear of me, Ier. 32. 40.& Pſal.139. 17. thy thoughts, for, my thoughts of thee : and, my wrongs, for, the wrongs done unto me, Gen.16.5, Ier.51.35. Yet not, that the bare by others, alone to me, Gen.16.5, Ier.51.35. Yet not, that the bare by others, alone to me, Gen.16.5, Ier.51.35. Yet not, that the bare knowledge of Chriſt, is that, whereby we are juſtified:for the Divels themſelves, both know,and acknowledge him too, Mar.1.24, 34.Luk.4.34,41. but by knowledge of him, is meant, faith on him, Act.25.25.& 26.28. the antecedent,for the conſequent,as Joh.17.3. becauſe the knowledge of him,is the ground of truſt,and confidence in him,Rom.10.14,17. 1Joh.5.20. as the belief of him, though not the juſtifying act of faith (for the Divels,alſo,believe and tremble, Jam. 2.19.)yet is put for truſt,and confidence,in him, Act.13.39. Rom.10.9.1 Joh.5.1. for that act,whereby we are ſaid to be juſtified, where the Apoſtle ſtateth the controverſie concerning juſtification, Rom.3.25,26. and whereby the ſame is more fully expreſſed,and more precilely defined, Ioh.3.15,16,18,36.Act.16.31.and 20.21.& 24.25. Rom.10.14.Gal.2.16.

my righteous Servant] My Servant : becauſe ſerviceable to God his Father ; yet, unto the Elect of God alſo, in the work of mans redemption. See chap.42.1.& 52.13. Mat.20.28. Mar.10.45. Luk. 22.27.Rom.15.8. Phil.2.7. righteous Servant, as, righteous Lord, Pſal. 11.7. (the adjective, before the ſubſtantive, not ſo uſuall in that language) called therefore,that righteous one, Act.3.14.& 7.52. and 22.14. becauſe wholly free from all act, or taint, of ſin, ver. 10. 2Cor.5.21. 1Joh.3.5. which unleſs he had been, he could not have been, either a fit Priest, Heb.7.26. or, a fit ſacrifice, 1Pet.1. 18,19.to make ſatisfaction to God, for the ſins of others, having need to ſatisfie for his own ſins,& for himſelf,Heb.7.27.1Pet.2.18.

ſhall juſtifie] Some would have the word, here uſed, to ſignifie no other, then a converting of men to godlineſs and righteouſneſs, by wholſome inſtruction, and religious inſtitution : as the Miniſters of God,or Teachers,are ſaid to make many wiſe, and righteous, Dan.12.3. for ſo, queſtioneſs, the word is there taken : and in a notion, neer thereunto,Rev.22.11. the term being uſed of inherent righteouſneſs, as we uſually ſpeak, and as the Scripture, alſo, uſeth the word righteous, and righteouſneſs. Mat.5.20.& 6.31.Luk.1.6, 75. Eph.4.24. or,ſanctification,as it is more diſtinctly,and ſpecially termed in Scripture, Rom.6.22.2. Cor.7.1. 1Theſſ.4.3,4. 2Theſſ. 2.13. and true i tis, that none are juſtified, but ſuch as are withall ſanctified, 1Cor.6.11. as alſo, that we live as well the one, as the other, from Chriſt, 1Cor.1.30.& 6.11.& 15.10. 1Joh.5.20. & 1Pet.1. 2. Rev. 1.5,6. but yet that is not the notion of the word, in this place, but by juſtifying, is here meant, as alſo, thorow the whole diſcourſe of juſtification,in Pauls Epiſtles, Rom.3.24,25,26,28,30. and 4.2,5,25.& 5.1,9,16,18. Gal.2.16. 1 Cor.6.11.(in which laſt place,alſo,juſtification,and ſanctification,are expreſly diſtinguiſhed, the one from the other) to wit, of the diſcharge of men, from the guilt of ſin, by making ſatisfaction unto God for the ſame: as evidently appeareth by the whole courſe of the context,and the main matter of the Prophets diſcourſe in this place: as well by thoſe paſſages before, that cleer the way to this,ver.5,6,7,10. as alſo,by the reaſon of it rendred, in the very words next enſuing : For being wholly diſcharged of all ſin and all iniquity : that is, of all guilt of ſin, either for the omitting of ought, that they were bound to do, (for that alſo makes guilty, and liable to the curſe, Deut. 27.26, Gal. 3.10,13.) or, for the commiting of ought , that they ought, not to have done ; yea , or in regard of any the leaſt warping as well as ſwarving, by any obliquity of heart, or Spirit from the Law of God , the onely ſtrict, and ſtreight rule of all righteouſneſs (for that alſo cometh within the compaſs of ſin, and iniquity ; 1 Joh .3. 4 and 5. 17.) being thus (I ſay) diſcharged of all, guilt of ſinne whatſoever , and of wh t kinde, & nature ſoever they must of neceſſity become, and juſtly be deemed (ſo far, as concerns any guilt of ſin) perfectly righteous, Romans 5. 19. Phillip 3. 9. and conſequently juſtified, that is, even in juſtice acquitted, and abſolved, whenſoever they ſhall be cited to appear at Gods tribunal, Romanes 3.26,30.& 8.33,34.But of this notion, and uſe of the word juſtifie,ſee more on Chapter.53.

many] So Matthew 20. 28. and 26. 28. Romanes 5.15, 19. even, all that truſt in him, 1 John 2. 12 and 37. 40. John 3. 15,16,18,36.& 6.29,35,40.& 11.25,26.Act.10.43.& 13.38,39. 1 John.2.the reaſon many,becauſe ſatisfaction made by him,for many, v.12.

for he ſhall bear their iniquities]Heb.and he ſhall bear their iniquities: but the copulative is oft uſed. in a cauſal notion; as implying the cauſe, or reaſon, rendred,of what was before ſaid,See ver.2. Pſa. 75.1.& 95.9.& 108.12.chap.38.21.& 40.26.& 54.15.yet it may alſo be rendred; whoſe iniquities he ſhall bear: for the copulative oft ſupplies,alſo,the place of the relative; as Job 20.11.& 37.5.ch. 4.6. & 17.2.& 28. 1. whether way we here take it, either as rendring the reaſon, why he ſhould juſtifie ſo many; becauſe he ſhould bear the guilt of their ſins, and thereby make full ſatisfaction unto God for them;for,by ſuch bearing of them,1 Pet.2.24. he ſhould take them away from them. Joh.1.29.)or,as deſcribing the perſons, whom he ſhould juſtifie;not all promiſcuouſly,but thoſe only,whoſe ſins he undertook to diſcharge, and for whom he laid down his life; that is,the faithful and penitent alone,unto whom,only,he promiſeth to make good this favour,and aſſigneth to ſhare in the fruit of his interceſſion,and ſufferings,Mat.9.13.& 11.28. Mar.1.15.Joh.3. 18.& 17.9,20.it will come, in effect and ſubſtance,all to one,& the reſult of all will be,that Chriſt juſtifies thoſe,and thoſe alone, that rely on him,and belong to him,by his ſufferings for their ſins,Rom. 5.8,9.See ver.10.

V.12.Therefore I will divide him a portion with the great; and he ſhall divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong :] In this paſſage is related another fruit, and effect of the ſufferings of Chriſt, and his ſervice, exhibited unto God his Father therein; to wit, the multitudes of thoſe, that God the Father would for the ſame beſtow upon him, to the advancement of his honour, being adorned, and enriched with them, as a victorious conquerour, and tryumpher, with rich ſpoils and booties,taken from thoſe, who by fight,he hath ſubdued.

Therefore] So the Apoſtle : Therefore alſo, Philip 2. 9. because: he hath done me and ſinithed, this faithful ſervice,refuſing no pains hardihip,or evil-ufage,attending upon it,ch 50.5,6.v.10.and in the next branch again.See Joh.17.4.5. and the Apoſtle Paul of himſelf,1 Tim.4.7,8.and of all the faithful,our Saviour himſelf,Rev. 3.21.

[God the Father,who ſpake before,v.11.ſo Pſ.2.8. See John.6. 37,39.44,65.Act.2.47.& 11.21.

will divide him a portion with the great] This ſome underſtand of a portion of honour and dignity, collated upon Chriſt, not as the firſt-born only, in one reſpect, Rom.8.29.Col.1.15,unto whom a double portion was due,Deut.21.17,but,as the onely begotten alſo of the Father,in another reſpect,Joh. 1.14.far above all creatures, either men,or angels,Pſal. 45.7. Eph. 1.21. Phil.2.9.Col. 1.18,19. Heb. 1.3.4,6,9. and they ſuppoſe it to be taken from the diviſion of inheritances, Joſh.14.1.Prov.29.24.Luk.15.12.in regard whereof,they inſert the word portion, which is not in the text; as ſome other alſo who expound it by that, Pſal 2.8. I will give the heathen for thine inheritance, and, thou inherit eſt all nations, Pſal.82.8. underſtanding it,as ſpoken of the great Princes,and Potentates of this world,that ſhould be brought in, and made to ſubmit,and ſtoop to the ſcepter of Chriſt, Ch.49.23.& 52.13,15.& 60.3,10.Pſal.72.10, 11. and to avoid ambiguity, leſt any ſhould ſeem to ſhare herein with Chriſt, and yet in ſome kind and degree, ſome are ſaid ſo to do,Ch.49.23.& 60.10. Mat.19.28.Joh.17.22. Rev 2.26,27.& 3. 21.& 21. 7.) they would have the words rendred, I will divide him great ones for a portion.Others,again,inſert the word, ſpoil, ſupplyed from the nextbranch, thus rendring the words; I will divide great ones to him, for a ſpoyl; or I will divide him a ſpoyl of great ones; whereby they underſtand thoſe principalities and powers, of the kingdom of darkneſs ſubdued , ſpoyled and tryumphed over, by Chriſt, Col.2.15.an alluſion to the diſtribution of ſpoyls, after ſome great victory obtained,or conqueſt atchieved, Judg. 5.30.Pſal.68. 12.Chri:20.25.Chap.9.3.& 33.23.Zach.14.7.Heb.I will divide to him, of,or in great ones,or many. (for the word is ambiguous, and is uſed as ordinarily in the one notion,as in the other,of multitude,as of magnitude,whence the like ambiguity, Pſal 25.11.& 119.162.) Some therefore here rende r it, I will give many to him,or beſtow many on him,and that with very good probability: For howſoever it be true, that the word, here uſed,doth ſignifie, in the firſt place,to diſtribute,or divide,Joh.12.8.Neh.13.13. yet the word is uſed ſometime at the ſecond hand,ſimply,for to impart,beſtow,give,aſſign,or attribute, even where no diſtribution is neceſſarily implyed,or,at leaſt intended: becauſe of diviſion,and diſtribution, that is the ordinary end. So is the word deemed to be taken Deut.4.19. of the Sun, Moon, and Stars,which the Lord hath impar ted,and aſſigned,unto all Nations, beſtowed upon all alike,Deut.29.26. whom he had not given unto them Iob 21.17. he gives ſorrowes in his anger,Joh 39.17.of the Eſtrich: he hath not imparted unto her underſtanding : where the ſame particle is found before wiſdom,understanding , that is here, before great, or many.And it ſeemeth to be no other here, then there;but note only of the accuſative caſe, as it is commonly termed; as alſo, Exod.7.20.Lev.24.16.Joh 21.12.Eccl.5.10.Lam.1.17.Jon.3.5. So the meaning ſhould be no more then this, that God would beſtow many upon him, or give many unto him, to be his ſubjects, whether with an alluſion to a portion of inheritance; as Pſalm 16.5,6. or, the diſtribution of ſpoyls; as Geneſis 49. 27. it is indifferent.

he ſhall divide the ſpoyl with the ſtrong] It is by the beſt Interpreters acknowledged, that the ſame is in ſome other terms repeated here, that was intimated in the words fore-going,this difference only obſerve, that the Fathers donation and appointment, was pointed to there; Chriſts poſſeſſion, and enjoyment of what was by his Fathers donation aſſigned to him, here. Divers go the ſame way here, that our Engliſh doth; he ſhall divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong,(as Prov.16.19.to divide the ſpoil with the proud;and Prov.29 24.to partake with a thief . but another particle there:)that is, ſay ſome, he ſhall ſettle his Kingdom, among the great and mighty Kingdoms of this world; as ſharing in ſome ſort with them, Rev. 11.15.the old Latines reads it, he ſhall divide the ſpoil of the mighty that is, as ſome, the ſpoils,that Satan,the ſtrong man,had formerly been poſſeſſed of, Luke 11.21,22.but I finde not yet, where it this particle is uſed, as a note of the genctive caſe, Some render it, that he may divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong : ſo the copulative was uſed before, ver.12. for there; as if it were ſaid, I will furniſh him with all endowments, whereby he may be enabled to grapple with,conquer, plunder,and tryumph over,all the enemies of mans ſalvation, Col. 2.15.to which purpoſe alſo, ſome other,he ſhall divide the mighty as a ſpoyl. But in the laſt place ſome render it, (which to me ſeems moſt probable)he ſhall obtain, receive,perceive, or poſſeſs, very many. for a prey: for as the word,that primarily ſignifies, to divide, or diſtribute,either inheritance, or prey, doth ſignifie,in the next place, to impart,aſſign, or give, and beſtow,in general,in relation to the giver,ſo it is uſed alſo,in general, for to inherit,receive,obtain, and poſſeſſ,in relation to the receiver. So Joh.18. 2. theſe remained that had not yet received their inheritance, Joh 17.17. Hear (that is,the wicked man) ſhall prepare it, but the juſt ſhall wear it; and three guiltleſs ſhall inherit,obtain,poſſeſs, or enjoy his ſilver, Pſal 60.6. I will obtain Sechem,or poſſeſs it;make my ſelf Lord of it:and for the word commonly rendred ſtrong, it is very apparent, both that the verb,from whence it comes, hath very uſually a notion of multitude in it. (See on Chap.31.1.)and the word it ſelf is moſt frequently uſed,to ſignifie very many;as Chap.8.7.Gen.18.18. Num.14.12.Deut.4.38.& 9. 1.& 11.23.& 26.5.Joſh.23.9.Joel 2.5.Mic.4.7. and, for a prey, the word ſo joyned with very many , without any particle coming between,is alſo not unuſual:for ſo it is ſaid, Pſal.135.11. he gave their land an inheritance, that is, for an inheritance. So that the words, thus reſolved,intimate the numerous or innumerable,rather,multitude of thoſe that ſhould be converted unto Chriſt (of which, See Act.2.41, 47.& 4.4.& 6.7.& 8.6,11.& 11.21. & 13.44,48.& 21. 20.)whom he is ſaid to obtain and poſſeſs, or enjoy,as a ſpoyl,or a prey: in alluſion either to the choiceſt ſubſtance,jewels or garments eſpecially, that were reſerved, and ſet apart, for the Generall, or Commander in chief , to wear ; riding in triumph, Judges 5. 30. 2 Samuel 12. 30. or, to captives, great ones eſpecially, taken in fight,or conqueſt,and following the conquerour, as an addition to his magnificence and honour , Chapter 45 . 14. and 49. 18.

becauſe he hath powred out his ſoul unto death] Powred out,as water is *powred out*ſo is the word uſed,Gen.20.24.and ſo the Pſalmiſt of himſelf, in the perſon of Chriſt, Pſal.22.14. I am powred out like water:and ſo ſome expound the phraſe here uſed; powre not out my ſoul, or life, Pſal 141.8.becauſe when the ſoul departs,the life goeth with it;he powr de out his ſoul,or his life;ſo the word is uſed, Pſal.26. 9.& 31.15.& 35.4.and 56.6.) as if he had made no more reckoning of it, then of water, as it is ſaid of the Martyrs ſlain for him, that they loved not their ſouls, that is,their lives, unto death, Rev. 12.11. they parted with their lives, for his ſake, as freely, and as willingly, as if they valued, or loved them not, (which helps to explain that, Luke 14.26.)they did that in Chriſts cauſe,that himſelf before, for them,to fulfill his Fathers Will,had done, Joh.10.17,18.& 14. 30, 31. So the Apoſtle of him: He became obedient unto death,Phil.2.8. See Luke 23.46.of powring out of the ſoul, in another ſenſe,to wit, by prayer with tears.See 1 Sam.1.15.compared with ch.7.6.Pſ. 42. 3,4.Lam.2,19.and of our Saviour ſomewhat neer it,in that notion, Heb.5.7.

and he was numbred with the tranſgreſſours] Or, with tranſgreſſours: for there is no article in the text. He was reckoned,as ſuch an one,as one of that rank; being put to the ſame death,that malefactors uſed to ſuffer,in the ſame place, where ſuch were ordinarily wont to be executed; and at the ſame time , when ſome other alſo in the ſame place were to ſuffer: two notorious thieves; the one, crucified on his right , and the other on his left hand, he hanging in the midſt between them, as the principal of them, Mat. 27.38. wherein the Evangeliſt tels us,that this Prophecy was fulfilled.Mar. 15.27,28.yea,he was not only reckoned among them, but caſt behind them; or(if ye will) for height of evil deſert, preferred before them,when Barabbas, that notorious miſcreant, was required to be let looſe,rather then he ſhould be let live, Mat.27. 16,17,20, 21 Mark.

and he bare the ſin of many] The penalty of the ſins of all that numerous,or numberleſs multitude, before-mentioned, that were, by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, ſo brought home to him, as ſincerely to truſt on him, verſe. 5. 6. which, by bearing alſo for them, verſe. 4. 1 Peter. 2. 24. he took away from them, Joh.1.29. and by diſcharging them of the guilt thereof,v.7.brought them into a juſtifiable condition, even in Gods ſight, and at his Tribunal, v.11.

and made interceſſion for the tranſgreſſours]For thoſe very tranſgreſſours,or wicked ones,by whom he ſuffered,Luk 23.34. wherein Stefen alſo imitated him, Acts 7.60. for the article,here emphatical, ſeems to point unto that ſpecial act,and thoſe particular perſons,but hath relation,alſo,to Chriſts interceſſion for ſinners,that belong to him,and have intereſt in him,Rom.4.5.8.5.6.8,10.which continueth ſtill,and ſhall do unto the worlds end, Rom.8.34.Heb.7.25.& 9.14.1 Joh.2.1,2.

CHAP. LIV.

Verſe 1. Sing, O barren] This Chapter Some ſuppoſe to belong to the former Sermon,or Prophecy,beginning at ch.52. 1.and proceeding on from thence,in a continued diſcourſe, concerning the State of the Church reſtored, unto ver. 12. which having been there interrupted, with a digreſſion, concerning, either the Meſſias, or ſome other , whom they ſuppoſe to be there meant, (which, in this Chapter, be returned unto again, but moſt take it to be a new Prophecy, diſtinct from the former , though much of the ſame ſubject, and argument, with it : Howſoever, it hath a good coherence with,and dependance upon,the latter end of the former: For that ended with mention,as hath been ſhewed, of thoſe multitudes that ſhould be converted to Chriſt:this beginneth with thoſe ſwarms of people, that ſhould be bred by, and brought into the Church,and is wholly ſpent in predictions,and promiſes, of the enlargement and advancement thereof , together with the continuance of it in that eſtate.

Sing]Or, Shout,for joy;as ch.12.6.Zeph.3.14 Zach.2.10,for there is alſo a crying out for grief, Lam. 2.19, where the ſame word is uſed.

O barren, thou that diddſt not bear] A want of the relative; as ch. 51.12.and ſo in the next branch. This ſome underſtand of the Jewiſh Church and State, returned from captivity, which, during the time of that Babyloniſh bondage, ſeemed to be as a widow, or alone woman,barren without hope of iſſue,ver.4.See Ch.49.21. Others, of the Gentiles, to be called in; by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, who had been before barren,and brought none forth unto God,being without Chriſt, without God, in the world, Eph. 2. 1-3, 12. It may well be underſtood of the Church under the New Teſtament , conſiſting joyntly of Iew and Gentile ; though with reference unto that former , as a type of this latter. See Galatians 4. 27.

break forth into ſinging,and cry aloud, thou that diddſt not travel]The ſame thing repeated in other more emphatical terms, implying abundant matter of exceeding great joy.Of the terms,ſee on c.12.6. & 14.7.& 55.1.2.

for more are the children of the deſolate,then the children of the married wife, ſaith the Lord]Heb.many from, or in compariſon of, them, for,more in number then they; as it is recorded, Gal.4.27. See the like uſe of this particle, Judg. 5.30.Pſal.45.7.Prov.22.1.Eccl.7.1. That is, as not a few:the Jewiſh State, that had been a long time deſolate, ſhall abound in people much more then either her ſelf formerly, in her flouriſhing eſtate,as ſome;or then other Kingdoms and Provinces, ſay others,that had enjoyned a continued proſperity on of Kings,(a King lay they,being as an husband to a State) which the for a long time wanted ; and cities inhabited . whereas their land had been depopulated, and their cities ruined: and they obſerve withal, that Jeruſalem, even in her latter times, is reported, by Pliny, 5 c.14.to have been the famouſeſt,or faireſt city, not of lewry alone, but of all the Eaſtern parts. But the moſt refer it to the ſpiritual ſtate of Sion, to the Jeruſalem, from above, unto which more children were to be begotten, and bred again, by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, 1 Cor.4.15.1 Pet.1.23.of the Gentiles,that were wholly barren before;then of the Jews , that were ſometime fruitful, Rom.9.23,26,30.Rev.7.4,9. And there is thought to be in the words,ſome alluſion to Saraha ſafe, though a long time barren; yet in iſſue afterward going beyond Hagar, Gen. 11.30.& 17.19.& 21.12.& 22.17.Gal.4.27,31.or to Hannah, in regard of Peninnah, at firſt, barren, and yet afterward more fruitful then the other, 1 Sam.1.5,6,20.& 2.5.

Ver. 2. Enlarge the place of thy tent] Heb. widen; as ch. 5.14. implying, that her iſſue and Inhabitants,ſhould ſo encreaſe and multiply,that the ſhould want room to recieve them.See chapter 49.20,21,and 60.4,5 it hath reference to their ancient manner of dwelling in tents,Gen.12.8.& 18.1.& 26.17. & 33.19. Heb. 11. 9.

and let them ſtretch out the curtains of thine habitations] Thus is, let the curtains(of which their tents conſiſted,Exod.26.1.12. Jer.4. 20.)be ſtretched out,for the verb is uſed imperſonally. See the like, ch.33.1.& 34.11.

ſpare not,lengthen thy cords]Or, ſpare not to length en(as, multiply, waſh me, for multiply to waſh me,with thoſe curtains were faſtened, whereof their tents conſiſted, unto pins, or ſtakes, driven into the ground.See ch.33.20.

and ſtrengthen thy ſtakes]Make them ſtrong,and ſure;drive them faſt into the ground,that they may be able to hold, and keep tight, ſuch a weight of curtains,of that length and bredth,that thine muſt be,being faſtned to them, by thoſe cords. See hereof alſo, Chapter 33. 20.

Ver. 3. For thou ſhalt break forth on the right hand, and on the left] The reaſon why the tent wa to be enlarged; becauſe her iſſue, that muſt dwel in it, would be multiplyed, and room on every ſide, on either hand , was to be made for them. See Chapter 49.20.

break forth] That is,bring forth,and propagate abundantly: ſo is the word uſed,both of mankind,and other creatures, Gen 30. 30, 43.Exod.1.12.1 Chr.4.38.Job 1.10.and it is a metaphor,taken,either, from the breaking forth of iſſue,at time of delivery, Gen. 38, 33.See Ch.37.3 or, from ſuch plenty of any material laid up in a ſtorehouſe , as being more in quantity,then the place is able well to contain, breaks through the walls that enclote it, Proverbs 3.10.

on the right hand, and on the left]That is, ſay ſome,to the South, and to the North, or,South-ward, and North-ward, as intimating which way the Church ſhould moſt propagate: becauſe the face being turned Eaſtward; (which part of the world, as placed before the man,ſo ſituate,hath its name. See on Ch.2.6.)the South is on the right hand,(chiefeſt in Hebrew denominated.See ch.21.1.& 43.6.) and the North on the left.But this is too nice the phraſe,on the right hand,and on the left,is uſed for,on either ſide,Exod.14.29.Num.22. 26.2 Sam.16.6.Ch.9.20.In the phraſe, there ſeems a defect, to be ſupplied, that ſhall break out, (thorow the curtains of thy tents, if it be not made the wider to hold them)both on the right hand, and on the left, as alluding to a ſtore-houſe, ſo unreaſonably ſtowed, that the walls are enforced to give way, on either ſide. See Zach. 2.4.

and thy ſeed ſhall inherit the Gentiles] This, ſome underſtand of the Jewiſh people, who, after their return from the captivity, did, in proceſs of time, enlarge their territories, and encroached upon ſome parts of Moab, Edom, and Syria ; according to that promiſe made by God,to Abraham, Gen.22. 17. Thy ſeed ſhall poſſeſs their enemies gates. But whatſoever was therein then done, was but a dim ſhadow of that which is herein principally intended : to wit, the inheritance which God would give unto Chriſt, and to his the inheritance which God would give unto Chriſt, and to his Church together with him, by multitudes of faithful converts,in all parts of the world. See on Chap.46.12.and 53.12.A work begun by the Apoſtles, the children of the former Church , and carried on by thoſe, the children, in the ſpreading of the Goſpel, Matthew 28.19,20.Mark 16.15.Luk.24.47.Acts 1. 8. Romanes 10.18.

and make the deſolate places to be inhabited]They ſhall people the world, that lay as deſolate before, with a new race of faithful people,v.1.as after their return from the captivity, they re-edified, and replenished their cities,and country again. Pſalm.6.9.35.ch.44.26, & 49.8.& 51.3.

V.4.Fear not] Do not,out of a diſtruſtful conceit,entertain groundleſs fears, as if the things, now foretold thee,were matters incredible,and impoſſible to be performed. See ch.41.10,14.& 43.1. and 44. 8.

For thou ſhalt not be aſhamed] Or,bluſh.ch.50.7.as one fruſtrate of his expectation and failing of his hopes, Rom.5.5.or,thou ſhalt not continue ſtill in or return again unto,that deferred,dejected,and reproachful condition,wherein,at preſent,thou art,ver.6.See Chapter. 29. 22.

neither be thou confounded; for thou ſhalt not be put to ſhame]The ſame thing repeated in other terms ; to give the fuller aſſurance of the performance of the things promiſed, and add further ſtrength to the feeble taith of his poor people,ch.35.3,4.So likewiſe, Chap. 29. 22.

for thou ſhalt forget the ſhame of thy youth, and ſhalt not remember the reproach of thy widow-hood any more] Or, but thou ſhalt forget, &c.as the particle is expreſſed, Chap.30.16.& 49. 25. ſo great,and ſo glorious ſhall thy condition be,and thine iſſue ſo ample,that it ſhal drown the memory,both of thy mean and reproachful eſtate, which in thine younger years,thou ſuſtaineſt, in the Egyptian ſervitude, Jer.2.2.Ezek.23.3 and the like alſo, which thou doſt now undergo, in thy preſent Babyloniſh bondage. Ch.49.21.Lam.1.1. thou ſhalt no more regard them,(ſo great ſhall thy joy be)then as if they had never been,ch.65.16.Joh.16.21. See the like expreſſions, Gen.41. 30,31,51.

Ver. 5. For thy maker is thine husband ; (the Lord of hoſts is his name)] Or, Thy Maker (whoſe name is the Lord of hoſts) (as Chap 51.15.)is thine husband. The Sovereign Lord of the whole world, who hath all the creatures at his command, and who, at his Gilead, founded thee, Deut. 32. 15, 18. Psal. 149. 2. Chap. 43. 1. & 44. 2. is joyned in marriage unto thee; and will again live and dwel, as an husband, with thee, to make thee fruitful in iſſue, and honourable in eſtate, as beſeemeth the wife of ſuch an one to be. See 6. 65. 2. Hoſ. 1. 10. 2. 16. Ezek. 16. 8. 45. 27, 38.

Of (or by) Heb. meker; for the word is in the plural number; as Job 35. 10. &c. the note there.

and by Redeemer, the holy One of Iſrael, the God of the whole earth ſhall he be called] Or, and he, that is, thy redeemer, the holy One of Iſrael, or thy redeemer, who is the holy One of Iſrael, ſhall be called the God of the whole earth. He that founded thee, will now reſcue, and reſtore thee again, chap. 49. 7, 26. and will not be only (to be called) to thee as chap. 43. & 56. 7.) the God of Iſrael, as formerly he had been. Deut. 26. 17, 18. both the God of all nations, thorow out the whole world, ch. 16. 3, 7. Zach. 14. 9. Mat. 28. 19. Rom. 3. 29, 30. & 10. 12, 13.

V. 6 For the Lord hath called thee, as a woman forſaken, and grieved in ſpirit, and a wife of youth, when thou waſt refuſed, ſaith thy God. Or, as ſome render the words, For the Lord will call, or recake thee, as a woman that hath been forſaken, and grieved in ſpirit, & a wife of youth, though thou waſt rejected, ſaith thy God call, or name thee.

the Lord hath called thee] Or, will call, or, as ſome, will recall thee: as out of Egypt I called back my ſon, Hoſ. 11. 1. God will re-unite thee again unto him, as a man his wife, that he had left for a time, Jer. 3. 1, 12. & 4. 1.

as a woman forſaken] By her husband, upon ſome diſlike, or difference, falling out between them; ſo caſting her off, during the time of her captivity. Chap 62. 4. See v. 7. grieved in ſpirit] In regard of her barrenneſs, ſay ſome. that was reproachful in thoſe times; 1 Samuel. 1. 6———8, 15. See on Chapter 4. 1. but rather in regard, that God her husband ſeemed to have forſaken her, Chapter 49. 14. the word uſed here, is that from whence Tabea, his mother gave him that name. 1 Chr. 4. 9 there is an elegant conſonancy between this term, and the former in the Hebrew, which our Engliſh cannot expreſs.

and a wife of youth] a young wife; or a wife taken in youth. Prov. 5. 18. Mal. 2. 14. as an husband of youth. Ioel. 1. 8. thou ſhalt be as dear to me, as a young wife to her husband, Chapter 62. 5. or as ever thou waſt to me, in thy younger dayes, at firſt, Jer. 2. 1, 2. Ezekiel 16. 8.

when thou waſt refuſed] Or, though thou haſt been, or waſt rejected, or caſt off; as it is rendred, Jeremiah 31. 37. for ſo ſhe ſeemed to be, during the time of her captivity as a woman divorced; Chap. 50. 1. diſmiſſed, Jer. 3. 1. and caſt off: ſo ſhe complaineth of her ſelf, that God had utterly caſt her off, Lam. 5. 20. and further, that he had made her as refuſe, among foreign people, Lam. 3. 45. which word ſeemeth the rather here to be uſed, as implying the deſpicable eſtate, that ſhe had been in, while her abode was in Babylon. See ver. 30. 17. and for the uſe of the particle, ſee on Chap. 12. 1.

ſaith thy God] Saith he, who continueth ſtill to be thy God, and to mind thee and thy good, Chap. 49. 15, 16. or, as ſome, who joyn this clauſe to thoſe words, a wife of youth, incloſing, as in a parenthеſis, thoſe that lye between them: a wife of youth will the Lord name thee, or call thee. So the verb of ſaying, is found uſed in the participle O thou that art named, or called, the houſe of Jacob, Mica. 2. 7. and the pronoun, or omitted, may well be ſupplyed from the former branch. See Chapter 51. 2, 3. and 58. 13.

V. 7. For a ſmall moment] For a very ſhort time. God as he is ſlow to wrath, Exod. 34. 6. Num. 14. 18. Chap. 48. 9. ſo ſhort in wrath uſually, and in the preſſions of it, towards his, Pſal. 30. 5. & 103. 8, 9. Chap. 26. 20. their ſeventy years captivity, is reckoned but as a moment, not only in regard of God with whom, a thouſand years are but as one day, Pſ. 90. 4. 2 Pet. 3. 8. and mans life reckoned, at that rate, Pſal. 90. 10. leſs, then a moment, as juſt nothing. Pſ. 39. 5 but in regard of that enſuing favour, and goodneſs of God, that ſhall continue unto all eternity, and that exceeding maſs of glory & happineſs ariſing from it; able not to weigh down only, but to ſwallow up, what ſoever foregoing afflictions and grievances, though never ſo great, and of never ſo long continuance, 2 Cor. 4. 17, 18. Rom. 8. 18 Heb. 11. 37.

have I forſaken thee :] So God ſeemeth to do, both to the ſight of others, and to their own ſenſe alſo, when he withdraweth from his people, thoſe outward expreſſions of his favour and love towards them, which they had formerly enjoyed, and more eſpecially when for ſome ſpace of time, he giveth them up into, and leaveth them in the hands of their enemies Pſal. 22. 1. and 27. 9. & 71. 11.

but with great mercies will I gather thee] Heb. and (for but, as Ch. 53. 5.) with great tender mercies (for ſo the word is not amiſs rendred, Pſal. 103. 4. importing an inward earning, and working of the bowels, in a mother, towards the fruit of her womb, from whence the word comes, 1 King. 3. 26.) will I gather thee, or take thee up: as it is well rendred, Pſal 27. 10. as ſome ſelt, loſt, or forlorne creature. See ch. 40. 11. Yet there may be in the word, ſome hint had to their diſperſion in the captivity, into ſundry parts, out of which they were to be recollected, before they could be reduced. See ch. 11, 11, 12. Thus is God for more free, and full in mercies and goodneſs, then in wrath and anger, to his, Exod. 20. 6. Pſal. 30, 5. & 63. 3. & 86. 5.

V. 8. In a little wrath, I hid my face from thee, for a moment] The ſame thing, in other terms, repeated again; as before the like was obſerved, v. 4.

a little wrath] Oppoſed to the great mercies, mentioned verſe 7. The word rendred little, is no where elſe found; but ſeems to have ſome affinity with a word uſed, Job 4. 12. & 26. 14. that is deemed to ſignifie a ſhip: and there is an elegant Paronomaſia (which our Engliſh will not yeeld) between it, and the word tranſlated wrath; but ſignifying, properly, a bubble, Hoſ. 10. 7. that is no ſooner up, but is ſuddenly down again; and may the rather be here uſed, to imply the ſhortneſs of Gods wrath. See chap. 34. 2.

I hid my face from thee] So alſo is God ſaid to do, when he withdraws and with-holds the wonted expreſſions of his favour, from perſons, and people; eſpecially, when having to done, and they being now in ſtraits and diſtreſſes, he anſwereth not their ſuits, for relief and releaſe, according to their deſires. Deuteronomy 32. 20. Pſal. 27. 9. & 30. 7. See chap. 1. 15. & 8. 17. & 57. 17. a ſpeech borrowed from thoſe, that refuſe to admit unto ſight, or to look upon one, whom they do really diſaffect, or would ſeem at leaſt to be diſpleaſed with, 2 Sam. 14. 24. 28, 32. 2 Kings 13. 14. See on chapter 53. 3.

for a moment] As verſe 7.

but with everlaſting kindneſs will I have mercy on thee] Heb. and (as before. v. 7. ) with kindneſs of perpetuity oppoſed to that little, or ſhort moment of diſpleaſure, before-mentioned. See Pſ. 103. 17. Jer. 31. 3.

ſaith the Lord thy Redeemer] As ver. 5.

V. 9. For this is as the waters of Noah unto me] This covenant of grace, that I will now enter into with thee, ſhall be as ſure, and as ſure to continue, as that which I made at the general deluge, never to drown the whole world, in that manner again, Gen. 9. 11.

the waters of Noah] as we uſe to ſay, Noahs flood, for the deluge in his days, concerning ſuch a general inundation as then was: the note of ſimilitude wanting, as Chap. 51. 12. Yet the Jewiſh Criticks, ſome of them, have another reading here, which the Chaldee alſo exhibiteth, and the old Latine retaineth, rendring the text: as the days of Noah 3 as Matthew 24. 37. but the former reading is the more received, nor do the Jews themſelves approve the other.

For as I have ſworn] Heb. which I have ſworn, or as ſome render it, he who have ſworn, as having relation unto the words next before, unto me. Others, concerning which I have ſworn. But it may well be rendred, as I have ſworn: for ſo is the relative uſed, Jer. 48. 8. as the Lord hath ſpoken. Otherwiſe, if we retain our verſion here, the relative muſt ſtand for the conjunction cauſal, as 1 Samu. 15. 15. and the note of ſimilitude muſt be ſupplied, as before; which is oft alſo in the other particle included. See Chapter 55. 9.

I have ſworn] Or, did, ſometime, ſwear; where any formal oath, concerning this, was by God conceived, we find not. Howbeit, in regard that ſolemn covenants of great concernment, were wont to be confirmed by oath, Gen. 26. 28, 31. & 31. 44. 53, 1 Sam. 20. 16, 17, 42. God therefore ſpeaks here of his ſolemn Covenant, made, with all mankind, to Noah, as if he had taken a formal oath, in preciſe terms, for the conſtant and inviolable performance of it; as to Abraham he did for the confirmation of his faith. Gen. 12. 2. & 17. 3, 4. & 22. 17. Heb. 6. 13, 14. and is ſaid to have done the like unto Iſaac, Pſal. 105. 9. though we read only of a promiſe made him without any new oath, to make good unto him the oath made formerly to Abraham, Gen. 26. 3, 4. Yea, ſo is God ſaid to have ſworn, to make David King of Iſrael, 2 Sam. 3. 9. and to ſet of his iſſue on his throne for ever, Pſal. 132. 11. though we finde not upon record any formal oath concerning either: only a ſolemn ſymbol, intimating the one, 1 Sam. 16. 12, 13. and a ſolemn meſſage ſent unto him, concerning the other, 2 Sam. 7. 12, 16. but Gods promiſes are as firm and ſure, as any oath is, or can be. God cannot ly, nor ſalſifie the leaſt title of ought he ſaith, or undertaketh, Num. 23. 19. 1 Sam. 15. 29. Mat. 5. 18. Tit. 1. 2.

that the waters of Noah ſhall no more go over the earth] That is, ſuch an inundation, as was in Noahs time, to drown the whole word again. Heb. from the waters of Noah paſſing over the earth: as if he had ſaid, I bound my ſelf, as by oath, from cauſing or ſuffering them ſo to do. Of the phraſe, ſee before, Chapter 17. 1. & 23. 1. & 24. 10. So in the next clauſe, from being wroth, and from rebuking.

ſo have I ſworn, that I would not be wroth with thee, nor rebuke thee] I have bound my ſelfe by oath, from being ſo incenſed againſt thee, as utterly to caſt thee off, or to deſtroy thee; for of ſuch a kind of wrath, and ſuch a kind of rebuke, Pſ. 9. 3. doth God ſpeak in this place. See on the next verſe. Otherwiſe God is angry oft, even with the beſt of his, Exod. 3. 14. Num. 12. 7. Deu. 3. 26. and rebuketh thoſe, and that ſharply too, ſometime, whom he loves beſt, 2 Sam. 11. 27. & 12. 10, 11. Pſ. 32. 3, 4. & 38. 3. & 118. 18. Heb. 12. 6. Rev. 3. 19. Of Gods rebuke, here, and 1 Chr. 29. 2 render it, where the text is, ſtones of pue, or phue. The verb whoſe participle is here uſed, ſignifies, in its firſt conſtruction, to lye down; properly, as beaſts do: diſtinguiſhed from another appropriated to mankind: yet ſometime it is uſed more generally, as Job 11. 19. Chap. 14. 30. in the former here uſed, it ſignifies, to make to lye downe, or to lay. Whence ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters here render it, by a word uſed, Cant. 3. 10 (from whence another for a pavement, 2 Kings 16. 17.) ſignifying to pave; as if he had ſaid, I will lay thy pavement, or pave thee with painted ſtones; or make thy pavement ſtones of goodly colours, that is, of luſh tair, and curious colours, as may ſeem to have had ſome artificial tincture uſed to them, Rev. 21. 21. the ſtreets of the new Jeruſalem, are ſaid to be paved with pure gold, as tranſparent as glaſſe. The participle is here put for the verb: as ch. 3. 1. and there may ſeem an inverſion of the terms, I will lay, or pave in, or with paint, thy ſtones, for I will pave thee with ſtones of paintes: the words are 2 Chr. 29. 2. See the like inverſion of terms, Judges 1. 8. Pſalm 74. 7. Howſoever, I conceive, with thoſe, that underſtand this branch of the pavement, then with thoſe that refer it to the foundation; whereof, in the next.

and lay thy foundations with ſaphires] Heb. I found thee with ſaphires as before, pave thee with painted ſtones. This ſtone is found in the Prieſtly breſt-plate, Exod. 28. 18. 39. alſo, in the foundation of the new Jeruſalem, Rev. 21. 19. the Jewiſh Doctors tell us, ſome of them, that it is a precious ſtone of a red colour; and that they would prove from Lam. 4. 7. Other of them, that it is of a white colour; that which they would draw from Exod. 24. 10. but neither with any probability of proof from thoſe places, as we ſhall; God willing, and aſſiſting us ſhew, if we ſhall be able to break thorow to the former of them. But our Jewellers, and Lapidaries, generally hold the right Saphir, to be of a ſky colour, though ſometime found, as poudred with ſome golden ſpots. So Theophraſt, of ſtones, Pliny, l. 37. c. 9. and Dennis, the Greek Geographer, who calleth it thereupon, the Golden ſky coloured Saphir. In regard hereof, it is in viſions, and apparitions, ſo frequently mentioned, Exod. 24. 10. Ezek. 1. 26. & 10. 1. and hence ſome read thoſe words of God to Job, Job 38. 37. Who by his wiſdom can make the ſky of a Saphirine hew; ſuch as it is then, when the ayr is moſt cleer, and free from clouds. The word is both in Greek and Latine, the ſame with the Hebrew.

V. 12. And I will make thy windows Agates] The windowes are of ſpecial uſe in a building; and in regard of their ſituation, very conſpicuous. They are here ſtyled by a term, not elſe where found, deſcribed from the Sun, (whence alſo Samſon had his name) becauſe ſtrived from the Sun, (whence alſo Samſon had his name) becauſe the ordinary uſe of them, is to let in the day-light, that proceeds from the Sun. And this being a principal uſe of them, beſide their eminency otherwiſe, gives juſt cauſe to doubt, whether the word Cadcod, be well rendred an Agate, the Agate, being a ſtone, neither of any eſteem or reckoning neer to a Saphir; nor tranſparent, as the Saphir is. Howbeit, in Theophraſts time, it ſeems by him, that it bare ſome price: and Pliny, l. 37. c. 10. enformeth us that though, in his time, they were of no great value, yet were, ſome ſort of them commended for their glaſſy perſpicuity. But they that render it an Achate, or an Agate, ſeem to have been led moſt thereunto, by the affinity of the ſound, and the letters, in either term, interchangeable. Others render it, both here, as alſo, Ezek. 27. 16 ſome, a Pyropus, as ſo termed, of ſparkling like fire. Job 41. 19 27. 1 ſome, a Chryſopraſe; ſome, Pearl; ſome, Amber, ſome Chriſtal; which with windows ſeems beſt to ſuit: for they go too low, that would draw it down to glaſſe, whereof alſo, I ſuppoſe no mention to be, in the ſacred record, leſt us, in the Hebrew. Some would have inſtead of windowes, here, ſecrets, or ſentuels: but the notation of the word ſpeaketh for the former.

and thy gates of Carbuncles] Heb. ſtones of Ekdah, or Ekdahs: as Adonai, and thy gates of Carbuncles] Heb. ſtones of Ekdah, or Ekdahs: as Adonai and Achaz, Chap. 1. 1. a word no where elſe found in Scripture; but having its name from a word that ſignifies to kindle fire, and to burn, Chap. 50. 11. & 64. 2. from which root alſo comes another term, that denotes a kind of hot, burning, malady; as doth alſo the word Carbuncle, both in Engliſh and Latine; and its parallel in Greek, imporeth as well a fore, or ulcer, ſo called of the inflammation, it bringeth with it, as a rich ſtone, of its fiery, or flamy colour; ſo termed. See on v. 11. the gates, Rev. 21. 21. are ſaid to be each of one entire pearl.

all thy borders of pleaſant ſtones] Heb. all thy border; or thy whole border; that is, ſay ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, all thy cities; not Jeruſalem alone, but all the cities within her territories, called Jeruſalems cities, Jer. 34. 1. as intimating, that they ſhould be built with goodly rich ſtones, as well as the. But 1. a. her conceive, built with the walls, that bound it, and the compaſs thereof, therefore not untitly termed, her border. By the foundation, ſome would have underſtood here, Chriſt our Saviour, 1 Cor. 3. 11. By the windows, the teachers, that lee in light to the people, Dan. 12. 3. By the gates, and walls, Gods protection, Ch. 26. 2. & 60. 11. But to deſcend to ſuch nicities, I deem it both unſafe, and needleſſe.

of pleasant stones] Heb. into stones of desire, or, delight : stones of delight; for, goodly,beautiful,delightsome stones ;such as are pleasing to the eye . and men delight to look upon : (see Psal. 102. 14.) as a city of desire or, delight, for, a delightsome city, Mal. 3. 12. for the syntax, both here and in the former branch, I will put thy windows,and border ,into such & such stones: Some would have it to be an Hypallage, or Inversion of the words;for, I will put such and such stones into thy windows ,and into thy walls ; or, in thy windows , and thy walls ; as Judg.1.8. They cast the city into the fire, for , they cast fire into the city. Others, and so some of the Jewish Criticks, would have it to be,as if it were said, I will turn the stones that thou wast at first built with, into such and such stones ; and so the terms of windows and walls, should be put for the materials whereof they were built: and they point us to Hos.2.12.where it is said, (the same verb and participle, being both there used, that are here) I will turn her vines and fig-trees (that is, the places wherein they grow, their vineyards, and orchards) into a forrest. But this passage helps rather to put us into the right. For it is well there rendred in our version, I will make them a forrest. And in such forms of speech, the particle seems oft to be superfluous, as, 2Sam.3.30.1Chr.3.2. compared with,2Sam.3.3.Jer.40.2.See ch. 4.2.Jer.12.11.or,if it shall be deemed to be of some special use,the words may be rendred ; I will make them to become a forrest, in the one place;and I will make them to be such, and such stones, in the other;which our version sufficienly expresseth.

V. 13. And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord;] Or, made skilful, and learned, by the Lord. See Chap. 8.16. & 50.4. For Gods teaching, is an effectual teaching unto those, whom, by the inward efficacy of his Spirit working together, with the external ministery of his Word, he instructeth, Jer.31.34. Joh.6.45. 1Cor.2. 10. 2Cor. 13.3. Eph.4.20,21. 1Joh.2.20,27.

and great shall be the peace of thy children.] They shall enjoy abundance of prosperity and welfare, Psal.37.11. and 119. 165. Chap.48.18. & 52.7. See on ver.10.

V. 14. In righteousness shalt thou be established :] Thou shalt be settled again by righteous and faithful Governours; such as were Zorobabel, Ezra, Jeshua, and Nehemy : righteousness , for men of righteousness ; as chap. 1.21.& 41.2. So some : See Chap. 1.26,27. Others,by righteousness understand Gods gracious goodness, whereby their State should again be established. So the word seems used. 1Sam.12.7. Psal. 36.10. ver.17. Others Gods fidelity and faithfulness, in performance of his promises; as, Psal. 142. 1, 2. chap.51.5. & 56. 1. Heb.6.10. 1Joh.1. 9. But I conceive the meaning to be, as the words plainly sound, (righteousness being opposed to oppression) that thee shall be setled again in a constant tenour, and due execution of justice ; with security, to enjoy quietly that condition, that God should restore her unto, (see chap.1.27.) the continuance whereof, as setled on a sure groundwork, is implyed in the term of establishment, Psal. 111. 7, 8. and 125.1. Mat. 16. 18 Heb. 12.28. See chap. 2. 2.

thou shalt be far from oppression;] Heb.be thou far from oppression: though some would make it not a verb, but a verbal rendring it; being far off from oppression; but no instance is given of the like: the meaning is, either be thou far, for thou shalt be far : as, live, for, thou shalt live, Gen. 20.7. Prov. 4.4. and dwell, for, thou shalt dwell, Psal.37.27. and so the Hebrew Commenters expound it : or, be far from fear of oppression : fear it not ; and so some of ours, supplying that term of fear, or, dread, from the words ensuing. See the like promise, chap. 60.18.

for thou shalt not fear,] Thou shalt have no need, or cause, to fear it ; because thy former oppressors shall be destroyed ; and an utter riddance made of them,Chapter 16,4. and if any shall hereafter attempt ought against thee, their designes shall be utterly frustrate, ver.15—17 Some read the words, that thou maist not fear; that thou mayst be freed from those fears, that so much possessed,disturbed, and distracted thee in times past. chap.33.18. and 51.12.13. So is this particle used, Job. 6.11. Chap.52.5,6. and this reading suiteth well with the former exposition of the branch before-going.

and from terrour ;] Or, dread ; to wit, of oppression ; whereof before; for the word is oft used for consternation;or, a quelling and dismaying dread, Jer.10.2. & 17. 17. & 48. 39. but it may as well be rendred, and from contrition,or,destruction, or, ruine: for so also the word signifies ; and is so rendred, Psal. 89.40. Prov. 1.014,29. and 13.3. & 18.7. such as formerly hath befaln thee, Jer. 4. 20. Lam. 3. 47.

for it shall not come neer thee.] Or, that it may not come neer thee; as before, Psal. 91. 7. Prov. 1. 33.

V. 15. Behold,] To give them fuller assurance of future safety, because they might have some thoughts within them, that though their former adversaries, and oppressors,were quelledand destroyed; yet some other rising up in their room, might again disturb them, and reduce them to their former sad condition, the Lord promiseth to frustrate whatsoever attempts shall, by any evill-affected, be at any time made against them; to incite, and stir them up to a more serious and sedulous consideration thereof , he prefixeth this note , as requiring attention before it : whereof , See on verse 11.

they shall surely gather together,] Heb, he shall gathering, gather together : so the word is used, Psal.56.6. & 59.3.& 140.3. and the word, though singular, yet is in a plural, or collective notion ; as speaking, not of some particular person, but of people : the gemination of the word, in this manner, doth sometime imply, certainty ; as Mic.2.12. and so our Translators here take it : and the meaning then is, that there shall undoubtedly be such, as will be attempting the disturbance and destruction of Gods people ; as such formerly have ever been, Psal. 129.1. 2Tim.3.12. somtime, sedulity ;as Exod.19.5. Deut.6.17. and taking it so here, the text may be rendred, they may diligently gather together ; as not foretelling what shall be, but forecasting what may be ; as if it were said, though people should never so sedulously, and in never so great multitudes, combine, and gather themselves together against thee, Zach.12.3. yet it shall be to no purpose, chap. 8.9,10. Those that that here conceive the word in a notion of dwelling, or sojourning (though it be mostcommonly so used)and expound the text of hollow-hearted Proselites, doe swerve clean away from the genuine sense of the Prophet.

but not by me :] Heb, not from me : the adversative is wanting ; as chap. 17.11.from me : nor with any charge, command, or commission from me ; as Sennacherib pretended, and God himself,in some sort, acknowledgeth : though that neither known to him,nor minded by him, chap.10.6,7. and of Nebuchadnezzar the like may be said, Jer,25.9. & 40.2,3. but it should not be so with these, who are thereforesaid to come not from him,because he should not go along with them, to make them succesful, as with some of them he did.So Hos.8.4. they have set up Kings,but not by me. The Jewish Commenters expounding this passage of Gog and Magog, with their retinue,object, that God himself is said to bring them against his people, Ezek. 38.17. whereunto they answer not amiss, that God indeed is said to bring them : but that it is to their ruine,and to the benefit of his people. So Mic.4. 11—13.

whosoever shall gather together against thee shall fall for thy sake.] Or, whatsoever people shall gather themselves together against thee, to fight with thee, shall fall, Psal.59.3.& 140.3.or, whosoever shall gather together, to fight with thee, shall fall before thee: as the particle is used, Zach.6. 5.Exod.20.3. Ps.9.19. So, they shall fall before you, Levit.26.7,8. All their attempts against thee, shall tend to their own ruine , and end in their own destruction,] Psal. 27.2. & 37.12.-15. chap. 10.34.

V. 16. Behold,] as before, ver.15.

I have created the Smith that bloweth the coals in the fire , and that bringeth forth an instrument for his work :] Both the workman, that maketh weapons, and arms, and the Warrier, that weareth them, or maketh use of them, are my creatures ; and in my power therfore it is, to dispose both of them, and their arms, and weapons, as I please,Psal.119.91.Joh.19.11.

created the Smith] Both made him a man, Job 10.8. Psal.119. 73. Jer. 1.5. and made him a Smith ; a man skilful in the work of his trade : for, skill in such things, is also of God, Exod. 31.3-6. of the word rendred Smith, see on chap. 40. 19.

that bloweth the coales in the fire] Or, that bloweth the fire of coals. Heb. coal. See chap.44.12. thereby to melt or mollifie the metal that he is to work upon : this is added to distinguish him from the Carpenter that worketh in timber, and the Mason that worketh in stone;and need not the help of fire so much,to make out their work : because the term here used, comprehendeth them all three. See on chap. 40.20. & 41. 7.

and that bringeth forth an instrument for his work] That is, if we so read it, a tool, for himself to use in his trade ; which seems not to suit with the scope of the place , save that such tooles , as he frames for his own use, may further him in the framing of arms. See chap. 44. 12. Others , therefore, read it, an instrument of his work :as a Psalm of David, Psalm, 20. & 21, &c.That is, such an one , as he is wont to make : warlike weapons, being a great part of them, fruits of the forge, 1Sam. 13. 19. And this not amiss. Howbeit, I conceive, that it may as well be rendred,that produceth instruments for their work ; that is , such weapons, as they must use,that intend ought against thee, v.15. for though the verb there be singular, yet the notion is plural,and so may also be here; as chapter 5. 26—30. where though the text in the original run constantly in the singular ; yet the words, because collectively used, are not amiss, all along rendred in the plural : and so it suiteth fitly,both with what went before,ver.15.and with what followeth verse 17 For I cannot concur with those that would have the words expounded,by way of inversion;that bringeth his work out into an instrument. But instrument, for, instruments : as Jer.51.34. Zach.11.15.so coal, for coals, before.

and I have created the waster to destroy] to destroy those,whom my Will is to have destroyed. It may be understood of wicked men, whose whole study, life, & practice, is to waste & destroy : for such also doth God make use of, Chap. 10. 6. and for such uses, hath he made them, Prov.16.4. to be executioners of his just wrath against other wicked , (so is that of Solomon to be understood) chap. 10. 5. Ezek 7. 21, 24. But I suppose, that by the waster, or destroyer, is understood the warrier, in general : whose work and employment is to waste and destroy;and whosearms are therefore termed weapons, or, instruments of destruction, from the word here used, Ezek. 9. 1. Some would have the whole verse, to this effect, effect rendred, As I have created the Smith to produce warlik weapons : so have I made wasters (I want not instruments my self) to destroy mine enemies, and thine. But the former sense is more familiar, and agreeth better with the context.

V. 17. No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper :] That is formed to be employed against thee ; a form of speech defective, but in Scriptue very frequent. See chap.38.17,21. and of Gods turning back mens weapons, upon those themselves, that use them. See Jer.21. 4.

and every tongue that shall rise up in judgment against thee, thou shalt condemn] There are two wayes especially , whereby persons are wont to be oppressed, either by force or violence, as Urias was, Jer.29.23. or,by pretence of Law and Right; as was Naboth, 1 Kin. 21. 13. against the one, God in the former branch, had given them security ; alluring them, that none, by hostile courses, should prevail against them : for no weapon , or engine used against them, should be able to doe,either the enemy service. or them damage : against the other, he giveth them security in these words, assuring them , that none should by false suggestions, and wrong information, any way impeach them in their right ; but that they should have the better, at length, in the upshot, of all those, that by any means should attempt so to doe. See chap. 49. 24,25. and 50. 8,9. & 51.22.

every tongue] That is every person, that shall so use, or abuse rather, his tongue; as Psalme 12. 3. The Lord will cut off the flattering lips, and the tongue that speaketh proud things ; that is, those that so use lips and tongue ; because things are acted by the tongue,Psal. 52.2.whence,a man of tongue, for, a detracter, or slanderer, Psal 140. 11.

rise up in judgment against thee] To accuse or charge thee wrongfully,Deut,19.16. as the devil did Job to God, Job 1.9,11. and his friends to himself, Job 16. 20. & 22.5——10. or to lay claim to thee, as pretending to have right to thee, and power over thee as their lawful captive, or slave, chap.49.24. & 52.3——5.

shalt thou condemn] They shall not cast thee, Psal. 109. 6,7.31. but thou shalt cast them : thou shalt be cleered, Psal. 37.6. and they shall be convinced of falshood, and condemned accordingly to suffer, Deut.25.1. & 19.17. 19.

This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord ;] A solemn close of all before related , concerning the state of Gods people. The like whereunto, see concerning their adversaries, Chap.17. 14. and the wicked in general, Job 18.21. & 20.29. and concerning both the one, and the other, Judg.5.31.

the heritage of the servants of the Lord] The portion that God will vouchsafe to bestow upon his servants, for their fidelity and loyalty shewed in his service; & the priviledge,or benefit,that from thence shall accrew unto them. See Job 20.29.&27.13 &31.2. & it seems to allude to that of Solomon,concerning a wise and discreet servant, that he shall share in the heritage among the brethren, Prov. 17.2. that which the Apostle also saith of the faithful Servant, that from God, he shall receive, as a reward, of his faithful service, the inheritance, that belongeth to a son and heir, Col. 3.24. and God indeed makes all his servants, not sons only, but heirs also, 2 Sam.7.14.Mat.6.1,4,9,26,32. Luk 12.32. Rom.8. 14——17. Rev.21. 7.

and their righteousnesse of me] Heb.from with me ; which some expound, from before me, or, in my sight : as it is said of Zachary and Elizabeth, Luk.1.6. they were both just in Gods sight : that is, sincerely righteous ; not in outward shew and semblance only, as those, 2Tim. 3. 5. but in inward disposition of heart and soul : where, God only sees, 1Sam.16.7. as if the meaning were,in way of further description of the servants of God before-mentioned, of whose uprightnesse I am well assured. But, from with me, seems to be no more here, then simply from me ; as Gen. 4.1.where the former particle is deemed to be understood ; and Gen. 19.24. and Psal.24.5. where both formes are used ; the latter particle being expressed in one part of the verse, omitted in the other. Howbeit, the meaning is rather their righteousnesse; that is, the reward of their righteousnesse : as my work for, the reward of my work, chap. 49. 4. So Psal.112.3,9. or, that beneficence , and blessing, which from my hand they shall receive,: for so also,is the word righteousnesse,used : as the Apostle also seems to expound that of the Psalmist, at least, so useth the word himself, 2Cor. 9.9,10. So Psal. 24. 5. fore-cited, he shall receive the blessing from the Lord ; and righteousnesse from God his Saviour. See ver. 14. or if it be deemed to have a peculiar respect, to the priviledge in the last place, to wit, in the fore-part of this verse propounded ; by righteousnesse , may be understood, Gods justification of them, and vindication of their righteousness, against all those, that shall wrongfully attempt to appeach them, and impeach it, Psal.37.6. & 106. 30.31.chap. 59.8,9 Rom 8.33. 2 Cor.5.21. See chap,45.24,25. unto which place,if this be deemed parallel,it would rather be rendred, and their righteousnesse is from the Lord. But I take the former to be the genuine sense of the word, in this place.

saith the Lord. As ver. 10.

CHAP. LV.

Vers.1. HO, every one that thirsteth, &c.]In this Chapter is contained , a free invitation of all sorts of people as well Gentiles, as Jews, to come in, unto Christ: and to yeeld them selves to him, to be instructed , and ruled by him , for their own good, ver. 1—5. together with a serious exhortation to repentance, and amendment of life, ver. 6,7. and a gracious promise of reconciliation, and restitution thereupon,ver.8--13.

Ho] Of the various acception of the particle here used , see on Chap. 1. 4. & 10.5. & 18.1. here it is without question, a note of compellation ; and of invitation,and incitation withal : as also, Zach. 2. 10,11.

every one]Whether Jew,or Gentile,ver.4,5. Joe.2.32.Rom.10.12. though some restrain it to the former,because somethings, hereafter mentioned, ver. 12, 13. seem more specially to concern them.

that thirsteth] That is in distresse, and being sensible of his distressed condition, is desirous of relief, that finding and feeling in himself a want of sincere grace, and sound comfort, is pained with the sense thereof, and earnestly desires a supply : for all these things concur in bodily thirst ; a want of moisture in the inward parts ; a sense of pain , and grievance , thence arising , and such an earnest desire of liquor to slake and relieve the same, as nothing can satisfie, but that alone, Psal.42.1.Chap.41.17,18. and a spiritual affection, proportionable hereunto, is required, in all those, that are invited to partake in the mercies and favours of God, here offered, to be found, and had, in Christ. So Mat. 5.6. & 11.28. Joh.7.37. Rev. 21.6 & 22. 17. and neither bruitish worldlings therefore, that rest fully satisfied with worldly contentments, and carnal delights, Psal.17.14. nor Pharisaical justiciaries, that are puffed up, with a fond and vain conceit of their own good parts,and perfections, while they so continue, can have any share in the mercies here propounded, Luk.1.53. & 18. 9--14. Rom. 10. 3 Rev.3.17,18. Of this spiritual thirst, after God, and grace, and the enjoyment of his ordinances, and the comforts of his Spirit, see Psal. 42.1,2. & 63.1,2. & 84.2. Howbeit, under the name of thirst, is hunger here also comprehended ; that which appeares by the mention of eating here, of bread, or food in general, ver.2. and both are expressed, Mat.5.6. as also, Psal. 107. 5. See the like, Chap. 5.13. but thirst is more frequenly mentioned; partly, because that is the more vehement , and intolerable , of the twain : and partly, because those meanes that quench thirst, doe in part also slake hunger ; whereas, those that allay hunger, are not wont to abate thirst.

to the waters] That is,as the most,to the waters of saving grace, and spiritual comfort, Chap. 12.3. Ezek. 47.1,2. Joh. 4. 10. 14. and 7. 37, 38. Rev.21.6. & 22.17. But it seems to me, that, to the water, here, is, as if he had said, to the water side ; as Judg. 7. 4,5.for it seemeth to be, not so much water, as other commodities, (yet such as supply the room of water, and in a more eminent manner, relieve, and refresh ; doe that, for which water is desired, and much more then it,) are those pretious things, that they are invited to partake in : and the water , or ; water-side, the place whether they are willed to resort, there to furnish themselves with them:and I conceive it,to be an allusion to the manner of people dwelling in towns and cities , situate neer to some river by which victuals & other wares are wont to be brought to them ; who, upon the arrival of shipping there, with such provisions, are wont, after notice thereof given, to repair thither, for the storing of themselves with such necessary provisions, as they stand in need of, and are there to be had : it is like our Saviours invitation, to come unto him, with assurance of finding with him, and receiving from him, means of relief, and refreshment, Matt. 11. 28. Joh.6. 35,37. in which place, he sheweth what manner of coming it is, that is required ; not a bare corporal motion ; but a spiritual accesse by faith, which is as well the foot of the soul, to bring us unto Christ , as the hand of the Soul to lay hold upon Christ, Cant. 3. 4. Mat. 9. 11,12. See ver.3.

and he that hath no money] Or, even, (as chap.40.30.) he that hath no money. Heb silver : as Chap. 43. 24. that is, say some, that hath no merits; but merits none can any have. The meaning is, that is never so poor, that hath nothing in this world, of any worth, or valuable consideration ; implying, that Gods grace (which Simon the Sorcerer fondly supposed , might be bought with mony , Act. 8. 20.) is given freely without regard had to the wealth , or poverty of the party, that desireth to partake of it, Mat. 11. 5,25. 1 Cor.1.26-28. Jam 2.5. and without any matter of valuable consideration required of any, in liew of it; Mat.10,8. Rom.3.24. Eph.2.8.

come] As before : and again in the next branch; and yet again, in the third verse, so oft repeated, as to shew Gods forwardness to invite,and willingness to impart : so closely to tax mens natural backwardness to those things, that most neerly and deeply concern his own good. See the like, Ezek.32,18.30, 31,32.

buy] The word here used, signifies in the first place, to break, Chap. 14.5. & 30.14 and because in buying, and selling, especially by retail, the wares and commodities that are bought and sould,are wont to be broken, if solid bodies of large bulk ; or to be divided, and made out into parcels thence the word is, in the second place used, in one form, for to buy : as Gen.42.[illegible] and so here; in another form, for to sell, Gen.46.6. Amos.8.5,6. but here may be a question moved, how they are called to buy, when no price is required; or, how the commodities here mentioned are freely conferred, when they are said to be bought; Hereunto it is commonly answered, that these things are said to be bought; because something is to be done by those, that desire to partake of them, for it is required of them, that they cometo the water, that they have recourse to the place, where they are to be had; that they repair to him from whom they are to be had, come unto me, ver. 3. that they hearken to him, and be advised, and ruled by him, ver. 2, 3. and again, because something must be parted with, for the atcheiving of them: for they must part with their corruptions, they must leave, and lay down their sins, ver. 7. yea, the case may so stand, that a man must be fain to part with all that ever he is possessed of, and his life it self also, or he cannot become owner of the commodities here mentioned. See Mat. 13.44--46. and 16. 24.25. & 19.21. Luk.14.26.23. and yet notwithstanding all this, the things offered may be truly said to be freely bestowed; as a Princes almes may be said to be freely given, albeit it be required, that those that desire to share in them, do repair to his Almoſyner, residing at his Court; or as a Scholer is said to have his learning freely given him, when no ſtipend is required for the teaching of him, albeit, that for the attaining of learning, he muſt frequent the School, and follow his book hard; or, as the Phyſician may be said freely to have cured his Patient of whom he demandeth no fee, for his viſitation, and advice; although he require of him, to be ruled and ordered in all things by him, and to obſerve exactly what he preſcribeth. The rather here, notwithſtanding all that is required to be done, or to be endured, to be parted with, or obſerved: becauſe, firſt, nothing is required, that is any matter of gain to God, or whereby any benefit can redound unto him: he receiveth nothing from us, that can add ought to him, Job 22.2,3. & 35.6,7. Pſ. 16.2. All that is required of any, is for the good, behoot, benefit, of thoſe of whom it is required, ver.2,3. Deut.5.29. & 6.24. and 10. 13. & 30. 16,19,20. Prov.9.12,3. All that is required of them, is no more, then they were bound in duty to have done albeit, no ſuch mercies, as are here typified, had been vouchſafed unto them, Luk. 17.10. and a Kings pardon of a rebel, is not the leſs free, becauſe granted under condition of loyall carriage for the future. 4.ly, All that is neceſſarily required, for them to part with, is nothing but that, that is the very bane of their ſouls, and will at length ſo prove, if it be not timely avoided: it is, as the Phyſitian requiring to have the malignant humour purged out, with ſome pill, or potion; or the Surgians, to have the dead, or proud fleſh eaten out with ſome coroſive: And laſtly, whatſoever elſe may, upon occaſion be parted with; beſides, that it is in Gods own, either lent us only, or, at moſt, not abſolutely given us, but that God ſtill retaineth a right to it, and intereſt in it, and may require and it, when he pleaſeth, 1 Chron.29.11,12,14,16. Job 1.21. it is all as nothing, of no worth, of no valuable conſideration, in compariſon of that which, parting with it, we gain Rom.8.18. 2 Cor. 4. 17,18. Phil 3.7,8. not to add, that whatſoever it be, that is ſo parted with, is required an hundred fold, ſome way, or other, Mar.10.29,30. All which conſiderations laid together, it may eaſily be conceived how, in ſome ſenſe, theſe commodities may be ſaid to be bought; and yet nothing thereby derogated from the freeneſs of the guiſt. Howbeit, I conceive thatthe readieſt way of anſwer is, that the words of buying, and ſelling, are in Scripture oft uſed improperly, to ſell, for to give, part with, or deliver; and ſo God is ſaid ſometime, to have ſold his people, Deut.32.30. Judg. 3. 8. & 4.2. Pſal.44.12. ſometime to have delivered, or given them up, Judg.2.14.& 6.1. Pſal.106.41. into the hands of the Heathen, their enemies, the latter term expounding the former. See chap. 50. 1. & 52.3. and in like manner, to buy, is uſed for, to get, gain, compaſſe, receive, or, attain ought. So buy truth, but ſell it not: buy wiſdome, and inſtruction, and underſtanding, Prov. 23.23. that is, get wiſdome, get underſtanding: forget it not: get wiſedome, forſake her not; and with, or among, all thy getting, get underſtanding: as it is well rendred, Prov.4.5,6,7. Yet in another place, not amiſs, buy, becauſe oppoſed to ſell; but taken improperly: buy, for, get: ſell, for, forſake, but keep, or forget. So our Saviour, to the Angel of the Laodicean Church: I adviſe thee to buy of me; that is to procure from me: for Chriſt feteeth n t ought to ſale. Thus the plain meaning will be; get, provide you, furniſh your ſelves: the word of buying, being only uſed to this purpoſe; becauſe that is the ordinary, and moſt uſual way, whereby men, that want ſuch neceſſaries, are wont to ſupply themſelves. See Chap.1.3. yet here, as ſome ſuppoſe, alſo, to allure them, that they ſhould as readily have it, without payment of ought, as if they were able, and willing, to lay down the full price for it.

buy and eat] That is, buy, or get, that which you may eat: furniſh your ſelves with food; as they did, by going into Egypt, Gen 41. 57. & 47.4. buy, and eat, for, buy, that ye may eat: as, doe this, and live, that is, that ye may live. Gen. 42. 18. and make haſt, and goe, for, make haſt to be gone. Gen. 45 9. and, Balak aroſe, and waxred, for, aroſe to war; or, that he might war againſt Iſrael, Joſh. 24.9. for, indeed he never durſt do it, nor did, Judg. 11. 25.

eat] Or, feed: for it comprehendeth both eating and drinking; as, Gen. 31.46. Neh. 9 21. and hath reference as well to beaſts in the next verſe, as to milk, and wine, in this.

yea, come,] Or, come, I ſay, Heb. and, come: ſo chap. 44. 15. and 49. 6. of coming, ſee before: the ſame thing, for more vehemency, not doubled, but tribled, as chap. 1.9. & 5.1,11.

buy wine, and milk] Or buying, before: wine, and milk, are here put, as two eminent, and principal kinds, and parts of nouriſhment, not comprehend, as whatſoever is neceſſary for the ſuſtentation, refreſhing, and cheering of the body; ſo typically, whatſoever is requiſite for the ſupport, relief, comfort, and delight of the ſoul, ver. 2.

wine] Not water, (for it was no the water-ſide only that they were called to come, as well for the wine, as for the milk; nor was either to be found in the water, but at the water) but wine: not drink barely, but drink of more then ordinary excellency: drink reſerved for Feaſts. See Ch. 25.6. ſuch drink, as may not allay thirſt only, but pleaſe and delight the palate, Cant. 1.2. & 4.18. & 7.9. cheer & glad the heart, Judg. 9.13. Pſ. 104.15. Zach.9.17. & 10.7. and make men forget their griefs, as drowned in it, Prov.31.6. in regard whereof it is, that Chriſts blood, whereby remiſſion of our ſins is procured, and our reconcilement to God purchaſed, the main ground of all true joy, and ſound comfort, Rom.6.25. & 5.1, 2,10. Eph. 1.7. is reſembled by wine, Mat. 26. 28, 29. See alſo Prov. 9. 2.

milk] As not water; but wine: ſo not water, but milk: ſuch as Jael gave Siſera, inſtead of water, as in a ſweltring heat, having fled on foot, the leſs hazardous, and more comfortable, Judg. 4. 19. & 5.25. milk, a food commended not for wholſomeneſs, and battleing only, as appears in children that feed mainly, if not wholly on it, and thrive exceedingly with it; but for ſweetneſs alſo, and delight, Cant. 4.11. it is put ſometime, for the weaker ſort of food that children are fed with, oppoſed to ſtrong meat, 1 Cor. 3.1. Heb. 5.12,13. but it is here uſed more largely to comprehend all ſuch kind of ſuſtenance, as affordeth plentiful nouriſhment; and not children only, but men alſo, are wont to feed on with delight, Gen. 18.8. & 49.12. where wine, and milk, are joyned together, as two principal, not ſtays only of life, but maintainers, where plenty is of them, of a cheerful life. So in a typical notion, and a ſpiritual ſenſe, they are alſo found together. Cant. 5. 1.

and without price.] Freely, without any valuable conſideration whatſoever; without any ſuch expence, as wicked wretches would ſeem willingly to tender unto God, therewith to purchaſe liberty for continuance in their ſin, Mic. 66.7. So Chap.45.13. the word is rendred hire, Mic.3.11. and our Engliſh word comes very neer to it

V. 2. wherefore doe ye ſpend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which ſatisfieth not?] An affectionate expoſtulation, containing in it a gentle reproof, and compaſſionate complaint withall, of their folly, in being at great coſt, and taking of much pains, about the procuring of ſuch meanes, as were not able to relieve them, in their diſtreſſed condition, or to afford them ſuch contentment, as they deſired, and expected from them, chap. 30.4--7. & 57.9,10. Hoſ. 5.13.

ſpend] Heb. weigh, as Jer. 32.9,10. becauſe payments of money anciently were, for the moſt part, by weight, Gen. 23. 16, for that which is no bread] Heb. for not bread; as not wood, chap. 10.15. bread, for, food, in general, as Neh. 5.18 chap. 31. for that which can no more feed you, then thoſe huſks could the hungry Prodigal, Luk. 15.16.

your labour] weigh out your ſilver, and your labour; for, weigh, or lay out your money, and ſpend your labour: for labour cannot be weighed out, as ſilver, or moneys, may: ſo 2 Cor. 3.2. I gave you to drink milk, and not ſolid meat, for, I gave you milk to drink, and fed you not with ſolid meat; and the word properly ſignifies, wearineſſome labours, Chap. 57.10.

to that which ſatisfieth not] Or, for that which cannot ſatisfie, or, wherewith ye cannot be ſatisfied. Heb. for not to be ſatiated; or, not unto ſatiety (for it may be either a noun, or a verb) as Hag. 1. 6. as, not to profit, chap. 30.5.& 44. 10. for that cannot profit.

hearken diligently unto me] Heb. hearing hear, as chap. 6. 9. but there, in a notion of bare hearing; when, as we uſe to ſay, one giveth us the hearing, but regardeth not what we ſay; but here rather, hearkening hearken; implying both attention to what is ſaid, and obedience to what is thereby required. So Exod. 15.26. & 19. 5. Deut. 11.13. & 15,5. Jer. 17.24. Zach. 6.15.

and eat ye that which is good] Or, and ye ſhall eat that which is good; as chap. 1.19. Heb. eat good: eat, for, ye ſhall eat; as Gen. 45. 18. Chap. 36. 16. good; that which is both wholſome, and toothſome, alſo, as we uſe to ſay; comfortable, pleaſant and delightful: for the Hebrew word comprendeth as well the one, as the other, Gen. 3. 6. Pſal. 34.8. Prov 13.2. & 24.13 Cant. 4. 10.

and let your ſoul delight it ſelf in fatneſs.] Or, and delight your ſelves with that which is fat: your ſoul, for, your ſelves; as Jer. 6. 16. and your heart, for, your ſelves, Pſal 22.26. let it delight it ſelf; Heb. it ſhall delight it ſelf: and ſo it would be rendred; ye ſhall be both abundantly and daintily fed, even as ye your ſelves would deſire, Pſal. 37. 3,4. Job 36.11.

fatneſs] Or, with fatneſs: fatneſs, for that which is fat: fat meat, that is uſually more pleaſing to the taſt, then that that is lean; and is the chiefer part of fleſh, Neh. 8.10. So Pſal. 36.8. & 63.5. See chap. 25. 6.

V. 3. Encline your ear,] So Pſal. 45. 10. & 78.1. A metaphorical ſpeech, borrowed from thoſe, that either bow down, or turn the head to the one ſide, to bring the better ear; if the one be quicker of hearing then the other, to liſten to him, that ſpeaketh unto them; and is uſed here, in the ſame notion with that of hearkening, before, ver. 2.

and come unto me:] As before, ver. 1.

hear] Obey; as 1 Sam. 15.22,23. the principal matter that God requires of them, Jer. 7.22,23.

and your ſoul ſhall live:] That is, ye ſhall live; as, let my ſoul live, (that is, let me live) that I may praiſe thee, Pſal. 119.175. See before, on ver. 2. Ye ſhall not miſcarry and periſh, whether temporally, or ſpiritually, for want of ſuch ſupplies, and ſupports, as, in vain, ye ſeek for elſe where, but ſhall aſſuredly, and abundantly, be furniſhed with either from me, Pſalme 37. 3,4. Chap. 33. 16.

and I will make an everlaſting Covenant with you,] I will enter into a new gracious Covenant with you, that ſhall never be diſannulled; chap. 54. 10. Heb. I will cut out unto them, (a metaphor taken from that ſolemn right of cutting, or cleaving the body of ſome beaſt aſunder, at the making of ſuch covenants, Gen. 15. 9, 10, 17, 18. Jer. 34. 8, 18. or from the ſtrict and exact cutting out of articles, agreed upon, for mutual performance, by the Covenanters on either ſide: that which a word of the like notion with this importeth. See on chap. 10.22,23.) a covenant of perpetuity, or eternity; as Gen. 9. 16. chap. 24. 5. See the ſame promiſe, Chap. 61. 8.

even, the ſure mercies of David.] Or, as ſome would have the words rendred; the ſure mercies of David will I beſtow on you, or, I will give you the ſure mercies of David; becauſe the Apoſtle fociteth the place, Act. 13. 34. but it is not needful to thruſt into the text, whatſoever the Apoſtles in citing of a paſſage, or ſome ſmall parcel of a paſſage, ſhall, for the fuller explication, or fitter application of it, to the preſent purpoſe, add, or annex thereunto. Otherwiſe, it would be neceſſary to inſert ſome things, into the text, in other places likewiſe; as chap. 61.1. from Luk. 4. 18. and elſe-where; yea, and to alter a word in the text here; becauſe inſtead of mercies here, we have, after the Greek verſion, holy things; and for mercies here, we have, after the Greek verſion, holy things, there. I ſhould rather chooſe to render the words, according to the ſure mercies of David; for that note of ſimilitude, or correſpondency, is very frequently omitted. See on ver. 8. & chap. 54. 9.

the ſure] Or firm, as chap. 22.23. & 33.16. or faithfull; as Neh. 13.13. chap. 8. 2. and as the Apoſtle, from the Greek, the word may well ſignifie either.

mercies of David] Thoſe that God had ſometime promiſed unto David, and, by Covenant, ſolemnly engaged himſelf, to perform, and obſerve for ever, 2 Sam. 7.13-17. Pſal. 89.35-37,40. & 132.11, 12. and there want not, that ſuppoſe the beginning of that 89 Pſalm, to be here alluded unto, the Pſalm it ſelf, being commonly called, and known among the Jewiſh people, by that name, taken from the firſt word of it, (as divers books of Scripture are in like manner entituled with them) The mercies of David, as deemed the Penman of that holy hymn. But this ſeemes to be but a groundleſs conjecture: for neither doth the Pſalme begin with thoſe words The mercies of David; but, The mercies of the Lord: nor is Davids name prefixed before it: nor doth it appear that David was the Compoſer of it; but Ethan, rather, whoſe name it holdeth forth in its front. And howſoever it be undoubtedly true, that this paſſage hath, queſtionleſs, reſpect to the ſubject matter, and ſubſtance of that Pſalm; yea, not improbable, that it may have ſome glance at the very words and terms alſo, wherein the ſame is there delivered, ver. 1--4. 24, 28, 29, 33--37. yet becauſe I find the preciſe words here uſed, not there, but elſe-where, to wit, in the cloſe of Solomons ſolemn ſupplication, 2 Chron 6.42. concluded with theſe words, Remember the mercies of David thy ſervant, wherewith ye cannot be ſatisfied. Heb. for not to be ſatiated; or, not unto ſatiety (for it may be either a noun, or a verb) as Hag. 1. 6. as, not to profit, chap. 30.5. & 44. 10. for that cannot profit.

hearken diligently unto me] Heb. hearing hear, as chap. 6. 9. but there, in a notion of bare hearing; when, as we uſe to ſay, one giveth us the hearing, but regardeth not what we ſay; but here rather, hearkening hearken; implying both attention to what is ſaid, and obedience to what is thereby required. So Exod. 15.26. & 19. 5. Deut. 11.13. & 15,5. Jer. 17.24. Zach. 6.15.

and eat ye that which is good] Or, and ye ſhall eat that which is good; as chap. 1.19. Heb. eat good: eat, for, ye ſhall eat; as Gen. 45. 18. Chap. 36. 16. good; that which is both wholſome, and toothſome, alſo, as we uſe to ſay; comfortable, pleaſant and delightful: for the Hebrew word comprendeth as well the one, as the other, Gen. 3. 6. Pſal. 34.8. Prov 13.2. & 24.13 Cant. 4. 10.

and let your ſoul delight it ſelf in fatneſs.] Or, and delight your ſelves with that which is fat: your ſoul, for, your ſelves; as Jer. 6. 16. and your heart, for, your ſelves, Pſal 22.26. let it delight it ſelf; Heb. it ſhall delight it ſelf: and ſo it would be rendred; ye ſhall be both abundantly and daintily fed, even as ye your ſelves would deſire, Pſal. 37. 3,4. Job 36.11.

and this latter muſt goe with. Howbeit, by David, diverſe, both Jewiſh, and Chriſtian Commenters, underſtand the Meſſias, the ſeed promiſed to Abraham, and David; and that was to be of the ſeed of David, Act. 13.23. Rom. 1.3. Now, as of Chriſt it is ſaid in the Goſpel: that God would give him, the Throne of his Father David; and he ſhould reign over the houſe of Jacob for ever: ſo is he frequently mentioned and ſtyled by the name of David, in the writings of the Prophets, Ezek. 34.23,24. & 37.24,25. Hoſ. 3. 5. And this the rather I encline unto; becauſe, albeit, Solomon ſpake it in the other ſenſe; becauſe not of David himſelf, but of the Meſſias, a ſecond David, (as John Baptiſt, another Elias, Mat. 11. 14.) the very next words, ver. 4. (which of neceſſity muſt have relation to this clauſe) are by all ſound Interpreters underſtood. As for that learned man, that would turn off both this, and other pregnant Prophecies of the Meſſias, from Chriſt to Jeremy, he is he. even in not worth the regard: The meaning then is, the mercies of the Meſſias, the David, not laſt, but to come: the mercies before promiſed, and to be exhibited in, and by him; in whom the Covenant is made with Gods people, chap. 42.8. in whom all Gods promiſes are yea, and amen, 2 Cor. 1.20. but whether way we take it, the Apoſtle to good purpoſe alledgeth it, Act 13.34. for neither had Gods gracious promiſes, made to that David, nor concerning this David, taken effect, and been fulfilled, had not Chriſt been raiſed up again from the dead.

V. 4. Behold,] This are prophecies, and promiſes, concerning the Meſſias very commonly uſhered in. See chap. 7.14. and 42. 1. & 52.13. Jer. 23.5. & 33.15. Zach. 6.12.

I have given him for a witneſs to the people;] The words of God the Father, concerning the Meſſias, of whom the Jewiſh Doctors themſelves expound this place.

given] That is, appointed, or ordained; as Jer. 1.5. Ezek. 3.17. as Chriſt is ſaid to be conſecrated by God, Heb. 5.9. how beit the term of giving, may withall have a glance at the freeneſs of Gods mercy, in the beſtowing of Chriſt on us, chap. 9.6. Joh. 3.16.

him] Whom, but the David, mentioned ver. 3. See there.

for a witneſs;] That is, a witneſs of the truth of Gods promiſes chap. 43.10. 1 Cor. 1.10, Heb 3.2,5. and, (that which the Jewiſh Commenters alſo hold out to us) a teacher and reſtifier of his Will, John. 7.16,17, & 12.49,50, & 17.6. & 18.37. Hence, he is called, Amen, the true and faithful witneſs, Rev. 3.14.

to the people] Not to Iſrael alone. So chap. 49. 6. I have given thee for a light to the Gentiles, a leader and commander to the people,] A leader, as the word is rendred, 2 Chron. 32. 21. or, a Ruler, as 1 Chron. 9.20. & 11. 2. or, a Prince, as Ezek. 28.2. and ſo is Chriſt termed in the New Teſtament a leader, Heb. 2.10. & 12.2. a Ruler, Mat. 2.6. from Mich 5.2. a Prince, Rev. 1. 5.

commander] One, whoſe commands, under pain of eternal deſtruction, each one ſtandeth bound in all things to obey, Act. 3.22, 23. 2 Theſſ. 1. 8. Heb. 5. 9.

V. 5 Behold,] as above, ver. 4.

thou ſhalt call a nation, that thou knoweſt not;] Or, knewſt not, as Pſal. 18.43. whom thou didſt not own, or regard, or look after, or take notice of in times paſt, Act. 14.16. & 17.30. So is the word of knowing, oft taken, Pſal. 1.6. Prov. 12.10. Mat. 7.23.

and nations that knew not thee ſhall run unto thee,] The Gentiles that never heard of thee, not were acquainted with thee, nor had any notice of thee before, Rom. 15.20. & 16,25,26. Eph. 2.11, 12. & 3.5,6. See chap 65.1. a defect of the relative, as chap. 54.1. run unto thee,] They ſhall with all ſpeed, and readineſs, repair unto thee, as ſoon as they hear of thee, by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, Pſal. 18.44. this running intimates, as the alacrity of the perſons called; ſo the efficacy of Chriſts call, Pſal. 119.32. Cant. 1.4.

becauſe of the Lord thy God, and for the Holy one of Iſrael; for he hath glorified thee.] Or, for he will glorifie thee or, becauſe he hath glorified thee: or when he ſhall have glorified thee; as chap. 53. 10. after thy to meer ſtate of humiliation, and thy paſſion over-paſt, that the Lord ſhall have raiſed thee up from the dead, taken thee up into the hi. heſt heavens, and placed thee at his right hand, Pſal. 110 1 3. Chap. 2.2. Joh. 12. 32. Act. 2.33,34. and 13.32, 33. and 17.18. Chap. 2.2. Joh. 12. 32. Act. 2.33,34. and 12.48. that God will reſtrain the repairing of forreign Nations, to worſhip God in his Temple at Jeruſalem, upon the report of ſuch remarkable works of deliverance, as God ſhould doe for the Jewiſh people, Pſal. 68. 28,29.

V. 6. Seek ye the Lord, while he may be found.] An exhortation of the Prophet directed, as ſome would have it, to the Gentiles, not yet converted, calling upon them to come in, and make the peace, while he may, while Gods gracious offers, and tenders of grace, yet continue, 2 Cor. 6.1. as others to the Jews, now under heavy preſſures, for their defections, and revolts. chap. 1. 5. I confeſs, by what followeth, that it is not to be reſtrained unto either, but extendeth unto both.

Seek ye the Lord.] So implying, that they had left him, and eſtranged themſelves from him; yea they had loſt him, and were fallen out of favour with him, by their ſinnes; and it ſtood them upon therefore, if they deſired their own ſafety and welfare, to ſeek after him, and ſeek to him, to uſe all the means that might be, to regain and recover his favour again: the word signifieth, in the first place to seek, to make enquiry after somewhat that we are ignorant of, thing 1 2, 2 King. 22. 13. chro. 8. 19 and so God must be enquired after by us, etc we can come to know, or be acquainted with him, Psal. 14. 2. & 24. 6. & 119. 10. Act. 15. 17. & 17. 27. but that is not the seeking principally intended: in the second place it signifies, to make request for grace and favour, to come perfon offended, to seek them, for reconcilement again. So Psalme 34. 4. and 77. 2. & 78. 34. and so here: the next branch the with it.

while he may be found;] So Psal. 32, 6. in a time of acceptance, chap. 49. 8. while he offereth himself unto you in the means of grace, in the ministry of his Word, Psal. 78. 8. and 95. 7, 8. 2 Cor. 5. 20. & 6. 1, 2. Heb 3. 7. before the term of time, assigned for repentance, be expired, Gen. 6. 3. Exod. 9. 18. Jon. 3. 4. Luk. 19. 42, 44. Rev. 2. 21. before the decree goe forth. Zeph. 2. 1, 2, 3. and God grow weary of repenting, Jer. 15. 6. having born so long, that he can no longer forbear. Jer. 44. 22. and he take a solemn oath, Psal. 95. 11. that he will not be spoken with, he will not be found of you, chap. 1. 15. Jer. 7. 16. Prov. 1. 24. 28. Hos. 5. 6.

call ye upon him, while he is neer.] The same, in effect and substance, with the former, while he cometh neer unto you, in his ordinances, by his ministers and messengers, chap. 51. 5. Eph. 2. 17. while he is neer vnto in mercy, and the means and offers of mercy; not in judgment, and execution of wrath and vengeance, Mal 3. 5.

V. 7. let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts;] Prayer and supplication, that it may prevail for grace and favour with God, must be backed, and seconded, with sincere repentance, testified by serious reformation, and amendment, both of heart and life, Prov. 28. 13. Dan. 4. 27. Mat. 3. 8. Mar. 1. 15. nor can there be any true turning unto God, until men turn away from their sins, 2 King. 17. 13. Jer. 18. 11. Lam. 3. 40. & 23. 8 and 3. 19. & 20. 21. & 26. 18. 20. they must leave, and lose their sins, before they can find God.

his way] His own way; wherein he had gone astray from God and his ways, chap. 53. 6 without own ways; opposed to Gods ways, chap. 58. 13. or, his evil way, his wicked way; as Jer. 18. 11. and 25. 5. & 26. 3. and so his thoughts; that is, his own, or, his unrighteous thoughts: thoughts of iniquity, as Prov. 6. 18. chap. 59. 6. and if we take it the latter way, there is a defect of the adjonct; but to be supplyed from the quality of the person whose, way, and thoughts, they are.

way] For course of life and conversation, as Psal 1. 6. and 119. 1. Jer 7 3.

the unrighteous man] Heb man of iniquity, or, wronts, or, vexation rather: See chap. 10. 1. So Prov. 6. 12. by the former some would have understood the profane, and ungodly: by this latter, the injurious, or, unjust, in their dealings with men: but the terms seemto be promiscuously used, and our Prophets manner is, in divers terms, for variety, and elegancy, to expresse the same thing.

his thoughts] Or, imaginations, or, devices, or, projects, or contrivances, or, purposes: for the word is large, Gen. 6. 5. Prov. 15. 22. & 19. 21. Ezek. 38. 11.) such as above. See chap. 59. 7. and such thoughts, and purpoles, as well as wayes, and works, are to be purged out, and repented of, Jer. 4. 14. Zach. 8. 17. Act. 8. 23. Rom. 2. 15. 16.

and let him return unto the Lord] By entring upon a new course of holy life, conformable to the Will, and Word of God, Jer. 4. 1. Zach. 1. 3. Mat. 3. 8. Act. 26. 19, 20. 1 Thess. 1. 9.

and he will have mercy upon him] Deut. 4. 27–31. & 30. 2–8. 2 Chron. 7. 14. Prov. 28. 13. Jer. 3. 12. Ezek. 18. 27, 28. and 33. 11.

and to our God] Whose nature and disposition, in this kind, we well know, having had good proof, and large experience thereof, Exod. 34. 6. Num. 14. 18. Psal, 86. 5. and 103. 8. Jon. 4. 2.

for he will abundantly pardon] Heb. he will multiply to pardon: as, multiply to wealth, Psal. 51. 2. for, wash thoroughly, over and over: and, multiply to transgression, Amos 4. 4. for, multiply transgressions. Of Gods propenesse to pardon, and his frequent abundant, and plentiful pardoning, see Numb. 14. 19, 20. Psal. 32. 5. and 78. 34-40. & 103. 8–11. Jer. 3. 11–12. Mic. 7. 18, 19. and a lively resemblance of it, Luk. 15. 20–24.

V. 8. For my thoughts are not your thoughts; neither are your wayes my wayes—— saith the Lord] These words are by divers Interpreters diversly referred and diverslyresolved. Some refer them to the requisy of reformation, both in their thoughts and wayes; ascending a reason why these are to be reformed, if they desire to be reconciled to God: to wit, because there is a great distance between Gods wayes, and theirs, his thoughts, and theirs: his thoughts, and wayes, being all holy and heavenly, theirs, wicked, and earthly; for which reason the things here below: and heir, therefore, as muft both be reformed, and raised up, if they would have any other reconcilement to him, or entercourse with him, Mat. 6 8. Col. 3. 1——5. Heb. 12. 14. Others, refer them to the Note annexed to the iquity, containing a promise of having favour, and mercy with God; and giving assurance of having the same, upon their return to him, made good: And of those that goe this way, some expound it of Gods promptnesse to pardon, and forwardnesse to receive into full favour againe: that Gods disposition, and his dealings are herein much unlike unto mens; men are commonly of rancorfull, and revengefull minds; and where they have been much wrong'd, are with much difficulty drawn to admit any motion of reconcilement, on any reasonable terms; feldome to freely, or fully reconciled, but that some inward grudge flicketh ftill in their stomachs, some remembrance of the wrong done them, ftayeth ftill in their minds; yea, that many times, though from the face, and teeth outwardly, they make shew of reconcilement, and profess to be satisfyed, yet they nourish hatred, and malice inwardly in the heart; and doe but wait, and watch, for an opportunity to d e the delinquent some shrewd turn, or other, even to mischief him, if they may. See 2 Sam. 3. 27, 30. & 13. 20, 22, 26–28. & 20. 9, 10. Psal. 55. 21 Jer. 41. 1, 2. Dan 11. 27. But with God it is not so, he is of a clean contrary disposition, he is of tender bowels, slow to wrath, loath to take vengeance, Exod 34. 6. chap. 1. 24. Lam. 3. 33. Ezek. 18. 31, 32. & 33. 11. ready to remit the greatest wrongs, such as no man almost would, or could endure to put up, Jer. 3. 1. and to receive the wrong-doers into as great grace and favour again, as ever, not retaining the least memory of ought formerly done, no more then if the same had never been, either done by them, or known to him, chap. 1. 10 15, 18. & 43. 25. Jer. 31. 34. Zach. 10. 6. Others again, expound it of Gods constancy and immutability in his purposes and proposals: Men are mutable and variable; they promise much, and perform little; what accord, and agreement they are brought unto one day, they repent many times, the same day, and the next day revoke: such they are, both in their carriage towards God, and in their courses and dealings one with an other, Psal. 78. 34, 41, 57. Jer. 34. 10, 11, 15, 16. But it is not so with God, he is a most true and faithful God, there is no mutability, or shadow of change with him: his promises are not so free, and large, but his performances are as iute, and as full, Num. 23. 19. Josh. 23. 14. 1 Sam. 15. 29. 1 King. 8. 23. Mat. 5. 18. Mar. 13. 31. Rom. 11. 29. 1 Cor. 1. 8, 9. 2 Cor. 1. 19, 20. Phil. 1. 6. 1 Thess. 5. 24. 2 Tim. 2. 13. Tit. 1. 1. Jam. 1. 17. 1 Joh. 1. 9 Rev. 15. 3. and this suiteth well with that which followeth, ver. 10, 11. But this, and the former, may well stand together, as being both included, and intended in the disparity, propounded between God and Man: and adding much ftrength to the motives before mentioned, to perswade people to come readily in unto God.

mine not yours,—neither yours mine For, as, or, like yours; and, as, or, like mine; a defect of the note of similitude. See the like, v. 3.

V. 9. For as the heavens are higher then the earth; so are my wayes higher then your wayes and my thoughts then your thoughts.] There is a vaft difference, between my disposition, and dealings, and yours: as there is distance between heaven and earth, my disposition and dealings, both for mercy and goodnesse, and for fimnesse and faithfulnesse, are as far above yours, as the very highest heavens are above the very center of the earth: yea, indeed far higher, for the one is, though unmeasurable, yet, finite; whereas the other, because infinite, is for greatnesse, and ampliitude, and immensity, inconceiveable. So Psal. 103. 11. 12. Ier. 31. 37. and God is far above man, in mercy and goodnesse, in truth and faithfulnesse, as in immensity of height and greatnesse, Psal. 36. 5, 6. & 57. 10, 11. & 108. 4. & 119. 89, 90. & 145. 3, 9. and there may well be some emphasis in these words, your wayes, and your thoughts, as if he had said, yours, even the very best of you, that either have, or would seem to have, some bowels of compassion, some tender-heartedneſs, some equanimity, impunity, and readinefs, to remit a wrong; or some fimness, or faithfulnefs, in making good what ye promise. See the like, Mat. 7. 9——11. Luk. 11. 5, 12.

For as] Or, but as, So the particle is rendred, chap. 30. 16. and 49. 25. and may well be here: They are not as yours; but far higher then they; the note of fimilitude is not expreſſed in the text; but is to be supplyed, and is in the other particle very frequently included. So chap. 54. 9. & 63. 5.

are higher then the earth] Heb. are high from or, in regard of the earth. So 1 Sam. 10. 24. Job. 11. 8, 9. & 35. 5. and the like in the next branch.

V. 10. For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth, and bud;] As these inferiour creatures, though my blessing accompanying them, doe not fail of their effect, but attain their intended end, in causing the earth to fruetifie, for the benefit and behoof of mankind, when to that purpose I am pleased to employ them, Job 37. 6, 11——13. so shall the gracious promises of mercy, and of delivery, that I make unto you, not fail, or be fruftrate, but shall certainly take place, and be assuredly effected. chapter 14. 24——27.

from heaven] From above, for all above us, goeth under the name of heaven, Gen 11, 6–9. 14, 17, 20. from the clouds, that are as Gods chambers, Psal. 104. 13. or, store-houses, Job 38. 22.

yet waters not thither, but watereth the earth,] Or, till it have watered, Heb. but if it have watered 1 Sam. 20. 21. unless it have watered as Gen 32. 26. I will not let thee goe, but if thou bleſſe me, or, unleſſe thou bleſſe me, that is, until thou have bleſſed me: neither know-not rain return, untill they have done the work that God sendeth them about; who by them is said, to water the earth, Psalme 65. 9, 10. and 104. 13. and 147. 8. not that they then go up again, (though as the rivers are said to return again to the sea, whence they had their original, Eccl. 1. 7. so the moysture that cometh from above, being licked up by the wind, and exhaled by the Sun, doth, in procels of time, ascend up oft in vapours again, Psal. 135. 7. Ier. 10. 13. but the meaning is, that it never faileth to effect that, for which God sends it, whether it then go up again, or no: for the term used in these formes oft times implies no more. See Gen. 8. 15. Mat. 1 25. See the like form of speech, 2 Sam. 1. 22. Ch. 37. 29, 34. Jer. 23 20, and 30. 24.

maketh it bring forth and bud] Heb. mak th it child; as we sometime speak: for the term is properly used of childing women; applyed to Sion, ch. 66. 8. and it is indeed used, not of men and women only, begetting and breeding, but of other creatures also that bring forth young: of the earth, or ground, as here, more both inspecrly, and unusually: for as for that pattage in the place cited, where it is said, Shall a land be brought forth in one day: by land, is meant, not the ground, but a people.

and bud] Heb. and maketh it bud, or sprout up, Job 38. 27. Pl. 104. 14. & 147. 8. the word is rendred, sometime, to grow, Gen. 2. 5. 9. sometime to spring up ch. 44. 4. Job 5. 6. the text may well be read, till it have watered the earth, caused it (to wit, the earth) to bring forth, and make it sprout up: made the earth to spring up, that is, made grass, and corn, and plants to spring, or sprout out from the earth; as it is, Gen. 2. 9. Pl. 85. 11. but the same form of speech is also found, Pl. 147. 8.

that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater:] Unto bread-corn, especially, hath this passage respect, because of greatest moment for the support of mans life, chap. 3. 1. ver. 2. and because there is a two-fold necessary use of such grain, for food, and for seed; the Prophet pointeth at either. See Gen. 47. 17. 19. Heb. and gives, or hath given: but the copulative is oft to ued, and so rendred, ch. 53. 2. Mal. 1. 9. Howbeit, this is not to be referred to the earth, but to the rain, or snow; as by the gender of the terms used in the origin. appeareth: they give, becaſe they cauſe the earth to give, what without them it could not. For when the heaven is as brass, the earth is as iron, Deut. 28 23. and God himself by them, moistening the ground, Psal. 104 13. 24. unto whom the Apostle therefore applies this pattage, 2 Cor. 9. 10.

Ver. 11. So shall the word be that goeth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void; but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing, whereunto I sent it] So Ezek. 12. 25.

the word] That is, my promise concerning reconcilement to my people, upon their return to me, and deliverance of them out of captivity: verse 12. So Psalm 119. 38, 41, 43, 49.

return void] As Embaſſadors, or Meſſengers, failing of that they were sent about; or miſſing that they went for, Genesis 32. 3, 6. 2 King. 18. 14. 17, 37 Chap. 30. 4, 5. and 37. 7. Jer. 14. 3.

Ver. 12. For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace:] From Babylon the place of your captivity, a type of many ſpiritual thraldome under ſin and Satan; as Chapter 52. 11.

with joy] Ch. 35. 10. & 51. 11.

let forth] Or, led along: So the word rather importeth, Psalm 46. 14, 15. where it is uſed of conveying, and conducting, in State: and it ſeems to have relation to the conduct of Gods people, by the pillar of cloud from Egypt to Canaan, Exodus 13. 21, 22.

with peace] Or, in peace; that is quietly and peaceably. See ch 52. 12, Exod 11. 7. or, in safety ſo is the word, peace, oft uſed See ch. 54. 13. ſafely under Gods protection, ch. 52. 12. & 58. 8. Exod. 14. 19, 20. Pſ 78. 53.

the mountains, and the hills shall break forth before you into singing] So great ſhall your joy be, and the expreſſions of it, by ſinging and ſhouting, do loud and ſo plentiful that the very ſenſleſs creatures ſhall ſeem to be ſenſible of it, and affected with it, when the mountains and hills, on every ſide founding therewith, return echo's of it, as if they rejoyced joyntly with you, and praiſed God together with you. for it. For the cauſe do theſe, and the like forms ſeem to allude, Pſalm 98. 7, 8. Ch 35. 1. & 44. 22. and 49. 13.

and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands] Heb. applaud with the hands, as Ezek. 25. 6. or, with the palm of the hand; as the word properly ſignifieth, uſed both here, and Pſ 96. 12. where the ſame geſture is attributed to theſe bods: the trees of the foreſt being gently ſhaken with the wind that ye ſhall have to refreſh you by the way, ſhall by making a pleaſant-noiſe, and entertwining their twigs and branches, as their hands and arms, one with another, ſeem to applaud you, and your joy, as you go. See Pſalm 76. 11, 12.

V. 13. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree; and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle-tree] That this paſſage hath, in the firſt place, a reference to the Jewsreturn from the Babylonian captivity, as well as those, ver. 12. to me ſeem'eth undeniable, and the beſt Interpreters acknowledge it. Some underſtand it, of the accommodation of them in their way ha neward, when they were to paſs thorow waſte Wilderneſſes: and ſo it ſhould be the ſame with that, Chap 41. 19. Others, rather conceive it meant of their land and country, that they were to return unto. For where as alluranee was given them, of a quiet diſmiſſion from the place of their captivity, and a fate conduct unto their own country again, ver. 12 their minds might be too bled, when they began to think, what there would be to entertain them with at their arrival there; conſidering that they ſhould find their land, moſt of it having l en waſte, and enjoyed, not a ſeventh years, but a ſeventy years, ſabbath, Lev. 26. 34, 35, 43. over-grown with buſhes, and thornes, and briers, and brambles, Chap 7 24. and the Prophet therefore, from God, telleth them, that inſtead of ſuch trash as the face of their land was then over ſpread with, it ſhould, upon their return, be furniſhed with ſuch plants and trees, as ſhould be, not uſeful only, but beautiful, and delightful alſo: and ſo the paſſage is parallel to that Chap. 4. 2. and that Chap 35. 1, 2. So the mean ng is, that the face and ſtate, of their Land and ſtate, ſhould be ſtrangely altered for better. See the like in, another notion, Chap. 60. 17. Now this is commonly expounded of, and applied unto, that gracious and bleſſed change, that ſhould be wrought upon, and appear in, thoſe perſons and people, that ſhould, by the miniſtery of the Word, be converted unto God; being now ſo ſtrangely altered, and changed, 2 Cor. 5. 17. that as they are elſe-where ſaid, to be thereby transformed, out of ſerpents and wild-beaſts, into mild and tame creatures, ch. 11. 6. 8. to here out of ſuch thorny, and prickly ſtuffs and buſhes, as wicked men for their harmfull, and miſchievous minds and courſes, are in Scripture commonly compared unto, 2 Sam. 23. 6. Mic. 7. 4. into ſuch plants and trees, as are both pleaſant and uſefull, chap. 61. 3. or, as others, that thoſe vices and corruptions, that their hearts and minds were formerly over-grown with, as with brambles and briers, Heb 6. 8. ſhould be ſtubbed up, and rooted out, for ever. And that the graces of Gods Spirit there implanted in the room of them. But the grounds of, and moſt judicious Interpreters, deem it over curious to deſcend unto, and reſtrain the paſſage to theſe particulars: they conceive the flouriſhing eſtate of the Church of God, in general, hereby to be intimated, as abounding in ſpiritual graces and comforts; thoſe at ſome times alſo accompanied and dignified with a remarkable deliverance, proſperous ſucceſſes, countenance of Potentats, peace, plenty, and the like temporal bleſſings, Act. 9 31.

thorn] See of this, ch. 7. 19.

brier] The word ſepad, here uſed, is no where elſe found; the Jewiſh Criticks leave us here in the briers; one while telling us, it is a kind of thorn, another while, that it is a kind of bryer, or bramble no more: The ancient Greek tranſlation it, cnaor, an heard deſcribed by Dioſcorides, 3. c. 127. & Pliny, l. 21. c. 10. and is ſuppoſed by ſome, to be a kind of Mullen; the old Latine, a Nettle. Some of our Criticks would have it ſignifie not any ſhrub, or herb, one or other, but a thorny ground, a place over grown with thorns, as compounded of ſir, that ſignifies a thorn; and the verb xapad, or raphad, that ſignifies, to ſhrew, or pave, (whereof ſee on Chap. 54. 11.) but the oppoſition of plant to plant, here; not of ground to ground, as Chap. 35. 2. ſheweth it rather to denote ſome particular buſh or thubtand the name of a thorn found in it, ſeems to imply one of a thorny kind: To which purpoſe, ſome late Interpreters, conceiving the word rather to be made up of ſir, a thorn; and piſ, that ſignifies harm, or miſchief, Iob 31. 29. Prov. 24. 22, as you would ſay, an harmfull, or miſchievous thorn, do render it, paliurus, a ſhrub; of note, for ſharp and thorny prickles: Of which, Dioſcorides, l. 1. c. 106. and Virgil, eclog. 5. our verſion gives it a brier, but another word, is by that term elſe-where uſual'y rendred, Chap 5. 6. & 7. 23, 25. Mic. 7. 4.

and it shall be to the Lord for a name: Or, as ſome render it; and this ſhall be to the Lord for a name. This deliverance of his People and reſtitution of his Church, and the ſtate thereof, ſhall be a means of bringing much glory to God, Chap. 44. 11. & 60. 21. & 61. 3. for they ſeem to ſwerve from the genuine ſenſe of the words, that would have it underſtood of the acknowledgment of God, for their Soveraign Lord, by bearing his name, as children do of their parents, ſervants of their maſters, wives of their husbands. Genesis 48. 16. Chapter 4. 1. and 63. 19. name, for name, renown and honour, Gen. 11. 4. Num. 16. 2. Chap. 63. 12. See Chapter 56. 5.

for an everlasting sign] An everlaſting monument, and memorial of Gods gracious goodneſs to his people. A ſign of perpetuity, or eternity, that is, a ſign, to endure for ever: as Exod 31. 17. as a name of eternity, or, an everlaſting name, ch. 63 12. That which ſome ſuppoſe to have an eye unto ſuch ſtones, or pillars, as men uſe to erect for boundaries, or land marks, with their names thereon engraven, in lands eſpecially, either newly purchaſed, or recovered from ſome adverſary that had before held, and with-held them. But I ſhould rather conceive it to allude to ſuch tropheys, as are wont to be erected, in memory of ſome great victory, or extraordinary atchievement, ſuch as (ſome think) Jeroveam erected by Moſes, upon the diſcomfiture of Amelek, and Gods ſpeech thereupon, with tho'e words (as ſome think) Jeroveam oft. Exod. 17. 15, 16. words (as ſome think) Jeroveam oft. Exod. 17. 15, 16. words (as ſome think) Jeroveam oft. Exod. 17. 15, 16. As for what Popiſh Writers here prate of the ſign of the croſs, is ridiculous.

that shall not be cut off: Or, that is not apt to be cut off, that is, applyed applyed to the memorial,and the matter thereby to be remembred, that shall never be forgotten,Jer.50. 5. or that it may never be forgotten,but abide still in mens mindes and mouths.See Jer.7.28. But the text may as well be rendred,that it shall not be cut off: and so relating to that which is by the sign obsigned, the meaning will be, that this act of God, in delivering and restoring his Church, shall be,as an everlasting honour to God;so for a sign to his Church, that it shall never be forsaken by God, no more then that act of his forgotten by his people. It shall stand firm and fast for ever, under Gods powerful support and protection, never to be cut off, or cast off,again,ch.48.19.& 54.9,10.Jer.31.31-37.& 32.40.&33.25, 26.a defect either of the pronoun relative,as ver.5.or of the finitive particle, as ch.41. 7.

CHAP. LVI.

Vers. 1. THus saith the Lord] This whole Chapter, (the four last verses onely excepted)seemeth to belong to the foregoing Sermon, and to be the conclusion of it:wherein God admonisheth his people to do that,whereby they may obtain a part in the favours and mercies beforementioned,Ch.55. and retain it, when they have them: withall,comforting the religious Eunuch against want of issue,and the Proselytes of other people, (the number of whom he promiseth to encrease) with promise of an equal interest with his ancient people, in all the priviledges of his house, the Church.

keep ye judgment, and do justice]Or,as some render it, Observe equity,(as the word judgment is oft used for moderation, opposed to strictness, and rigour of justice, Ps.35.9 & 112.5.Jer.10.24.& 46. 28.Mat.23.23.)and deal justly,to to do justice,is ordinary used for to carry a mans self uprightly, and faithfully, in his dealings with others,Psal.15.2.chap.64.5.1 John 3.7,10. Judgment,and Justice, are frequently joyned together; which when they are attributed to publike persons,seem to design,the one, the due and equal hearing,and deciding of causes, that come before them; the other, the causing of justice to be executed, for the righting of the wronged, and punishing of the wrong-doer,2 Sam.8.15.1 Chr.18.14.Psalm 99.4.Jer.33.15. when to private men, the one seems to impo e equitable carriage,free from rigour, and extremity,mixt with mercy and moderation, in exacting their own from others; the other, a just and faithful dealing,in, and about those things that they owe unto others,or are employed about,or entrusted with,by others,Ge. 18.19.Pl.106.3.Ezek. 18. 5. the exercise of these Offices,God requires here of them,as fruits of true faith, and sincere repentance. for my salvation is ner to come] Which none must look to partake in,unless they be thus qualified.So Ps.85.9.ch.46.13.& 51.5.Mat. 3.2.Mar.1.15. Con.6.9,10.Eph. 5.5.

my righteousness to be revealed] My righteousness, which I shall manifest,as by my faithful performance of my promises to my people,so by just vengeance inflicted upon their oppressours,ch.1.27.& 51.5.

Ver. 2. Blessed is the man that doth this] So Psalm 106. 3. Blessed are they that observe judgment, and each one, that doth Justice.

and the Son of man that layeth hold on it]Or, that holdeth it fast. So ver. 4. Ier.8.5. that keepeth close to it,that practiseth it constantly;not by fits and starts, but at all times,Psal.106.3.Son of man, the same with man before;as Job 25.6. and a defect of the relative in either branch,as ch.45.5,13.

that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it] That so observeth the Sabbath(Exod.31.13,14,16.)that he pollutes it not : for that is the meaning of that phrase. See the like,Psal.69.23. Chap 33.15.Hos. 4.6.So ver.4. The observation of the Sabbath, put here for the whole exercise of religion and piety,as Lev.19 3. Jer.17.21,22. to be joyned unto, and go along with the practice of those other duties, before required, ver.1.Amos 5.24. and that here the rather put for the rest; because that might be observed in forrein parts, during the time of their captivity, whereas many other parts of Gods religious Worship, being confined to the Temple at Jerusalem, could not,Deut.12.11-14.

pollute it] Or,profane it:by spending it,or any part of it,save in case of necessity, in any profane employment, Exod.31.14.Neh. 13.17,18.Jer.17.21,22.24.

and keep his hand from doing any evill]Or,that it do not any evill, to wit,to his neighbour, as it is more fully expressed, Psal.15.3. So Zach.8.17.Heb.all,for any,as Ezek.18.13. that is as well careful to walk uprightly among men, as to carry himself religiously toward God,Act.10 35.Jam.1.27. and to abstain as well from wronging his Neighbour,as from profaning Gods Sabbath.See ch.1.13,15,& 58.3-5,13.Amos 5.21,24.

V.3.Neither let the son of the stranger, that hath joyned himself to the Lord, speak, saying, The Lord hath utterly separated me from his people] Let no man think himself excluded from partaking in the gracious promises of God,before propounded,Chap. 55.1,2,13. in regard of his birth and generation, because he is of another nation,and no nat ve Jew, Gal.2.15. for Gods offers of grace, are propounded to all , without distinction of nation,be they Jews, or Gentiles, that shall sincerely come in unto God , and embrace his service, Act.10.34,35.Rom.1.10,11.& 3.29,30.&10.12.1 Cor.12. 13.Gal.3.28. Col.3.11.

the son of the stranger] That is,the stranger born,or by descent.See ver.6.But to he speaketh the rather, in regard of that law,whereby the issue of some people,were for divers descents secluded,from admission into the congregation of Israel,Deut.23.3,7,8.whereunto the Jewish Commenters further add, that he makes mention of the strangers son, because he had no inheritance in the land, of the Eunuch, because though he were a Jew, yet he had no issue to inherit : But God here intimateth, that those laws that made such distinction between the native Jew,and the stranger,should under the Messias be repealed; the partition wall being then removed, that severed Jew, and Gentile, the one from the other, as the veil was from the top to the bottome rent in twain,at his death,Mat.27. 51.Eph.2.11-16.and in the Prophecy of Ezekiel,provision is made for the stranger, also, and his issue, that had joyned himself unto Gods people, to inherit also among them,Ezek.47.22,23. a type of their joynt portion in the heavenly inheritance, Ephesians 3.6.

that hath joyned himself] Heb. that is joyned, as it is rendred, Chapter 14. 1. where the same thing is mentioned ; but these passives have oft a reciprocal notion. See Chapter 5, 8. and so Jeremiah 50. 5. let us joyn our selves to the Lord. See further, v.6.

neither let the Eunuch say, I am a dry tree] Barren, and without possibility of issue : which might peradventure run in the minds of such, as if therefore they should seem to be without the verge of Gods benediction , because fecundity was promised,and esteemed,as a blessing,Exod.23.26.Deuteronomy 28.4,11.Pl.128, 1,3.

a dry tree] Or,a sear tree,Luk,23.31.

V.4. For thus saith the Lord unto the Eunuchs, that keep my Sabbaths, and choose the thing that please me, and take hold of my covenant] That are careful, as well in other things, generally to please me,and approve themselves unto me : and to keep covenants with me,as in the observation of my day,1 King.8.23.Pla.132.12.Col. 1.10.

thus saith the Lord] This rather doth the Prophet here prefix,thus saith the Lord;because it might seem to cross the Law given by Moses,before-mentioned. So the Apostle, 1 Cor.7.10.not I, but the Lord.

unto the Eunuchs]Or,concerning them as the particle is rendred, ch.23.5.for Gods speech here related, is not directed to them, but delivered as concerning them.

choose] Not take them up upon some fudden motion,or from example barely, or tradition, or for some base respects, and sinister ends,as Est.8.17.but after serious and mature deliberation, upon due consideration,out of judgment rightly enformed, and affection thereon grounded,do by a free election,betake themselves to them. See v.6.So David,I have chosen the way of truth,Psal.119.30.a term very significant.

those things that please me]So ch.38.3. Joh.8.29.1 Thef.4.1.Heb. 13.16.1 Joh.3.22.

take hold of my covenant]Or,hold fast my covenant;as v.2.Pl.103. 18.

V. 5. Even, unto them will I give in mine house, and within my walls, a place]By the Law of Moses, none,so maimed,and dismembred,might be admitted into the Priestly function, so as to execute any service within the vail of the Tabernacle, or the walls of the Temple, Levit.21.20,23.Deut.23.1. but no such bodily maim, or defect, should hinder any true believer, any sincere and faithful soul, from having a part in the spiritual Priesthood,1 Per.2.9.Rev. 1.6.and 20 6.and a place in Gods house, the Church, 1 Timothy 3.15.

Even] Heb. And.as ch.1.6.& 40.30.

within my walls] The walls of Jerusalem, as some , Psalm 122.7.a type of the Church : but I suppose rather, of the Temple ; of which, verse 7. and from which, some were excluded though not shut out of the city. See Lev.21.22,23.Lam.1.10.& 2.1.28.

a place]Heb.hand: as Chap.57.8.Deut.23.12.

and a name better then that of sons, and of daughters] Mens names are faid to be continued in their issue male especially, and so faid confequently in such as wanted issue, Numbers 27.4 2 Sam.18.18. and a numerous issue is deemed no small honour, Psal.127.4,5.& 128.3.Prov.17.6.God therefore promiseth here,to supply and make good the want of issue, and of whatsoever, either honour here, or memorial hereafter, might from it, have accrewed unto them, by bestowing upon them, matter of far greater honour, and more durable; even such as should continue unto all eternity : that which should abundantly recompense, and much more then countervail that defect.

a name]What this name should be, many debate much,and some would have it to be the name of Gods people, Hos.1. 22. some of Gods servants, Chap.44. 1,2. some, of Gods Priests and Ministers, chap.61. 6. some of Gods sons, and heires, Joh.1.12.Rom.8.16, 17.2 Cor.6.18.Eph.3,6.1 Joh.3.1.But this is not unlike the dispute about about the name faid to be given unto Christ, Phil.2.9. but as name there,doth not import any one particular title, but is put for power and authority; as Act.3.16.& 4.2. so by name,is not any such particular ftyle here meant, but such honour and dignity, as should far surpasse that, which illue was able to afford, both for eminency, and for continuance. See Chapter 55. 15. and 66. 15. Howbeit, what Popish Writers hence gather for the merit of single life, above the married state , expounding the place of voluntary Eunuchs ; from Matthew 19.12,13.is groundless, and frivolous.

better then that of sons, and daughters]Heb.*good from,or before,sons and daughters*as Prov.22.1.Eccl.7.1. that is, better then the name of sons,and daughters:the word name fupplyed from that before-going,as Dan.4.33.

I will give them an everlasting name]Heb.I will give him(that is, each one of them, as ch. 26. 19.) a name of eternity, as Chapter 63.12.

Ver. 6. Also the sons of the stranger that joyneth himself to the Lord to serve him] Heb. And the sons of the Strangers, that shall be joyned to the Lord, to serve him. Which fome render,And as for the strangers, becaufe the nominative case feems to be put absolutely.

the sons of the stranger] That is, such as are strangers by descent. See ch. 2. 6.

joyneth himself] Heb.are joyned;as it should be rendred, that joyn themselves. See v. 4.

to serve the Lord] The end of this joyning himself to him more fully,then before,ver.4.here expressed; fo it is faid of the prodigal, that he joyned himself to one, that kept a farm, not as a partner, but with an eye as a fervant to him, Luk.15. 15. and fo the words with him,chap.64.5 and of the words here following are. Howbeit, the term here ufed, would rather be rendred, to minister unto him, it being ordinarily applyed to the Priestly function, Deut.10. 6.8. and it is faid here, not as of the Levites, to minister unto Aaron,Num.18.2,4.but as of the Priests,to minister unto the Lord, Deut.21. 5. thereby intimating, that they should be admitted,unto the sacred administration,to minister, not as Levites only , but as Priests.See ch.61.6. whereas all ftrangers, all, that were out of that one tribe , whether Israelites , or forraigners, were before excluded from either, Numb. 3. 38. and 18. 4.

to love the name of the Lord, to be his servants] That is, out of love to the Lord, to be his fervants.So Deut.10.12.to love him,and to serve him;that is,out of love to serve him: that was before closely intimated in the term of choosing,ver.4.See the like fyntax,v.10. the name of the Lord]For,the Lord himself:as Pfal.116.4,17.Prov. 18. 10.

every one that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it,and taketh hold of my covenant] See on ver. 2.every ftranger,that fo doth; for of them ftill he here fpeaks : and he mentioneth the observation of the Sabbath more fpecially as the Jewish Doctors, fome of them, would have it, becaufe that was appointed by God, in more fpecial manner, to be a folemn fign between God and his people,to fignifie,and obfign his fanctifying of them,Exod.31.16,17.Ezek.20.20. and being in Covenant with them,'Exo.31.16,17.Eze.20.20.fome other to diftinguifh between ftranger and ftranger , and to fhew what manner of ftranger it was, that he here intended:for among the Jews,fay they, there were two forts of ftrangers; one fort, that obferved the commandements given unto Adam, and Noah, but went no further: another, that were circumcifed alfo, and obferved the rites delivered by Moses; among which, the Sabbath, Exodus 16. 23. and of thefe, fay they, it appeareth , that he fpeaketh, by mention made of the Sabbath. But this diftinction, we find no ground for, in Scripture; and places are much wronged, to wring this conceit out of them: the Sabbath being the time for a part for Gods conftant folemn fervice, Lev. 23.3. is put for the whole fervice of God,performed ordinarily on that day. So Levit. 26. 3.

V.7.Even, them will I bring unto my holy mountain] Heb. And I will bring them(but,Even them,as ver.5. or,Them, I fay:as Ch.49.6.) unto my mountain of holineffe; as Pf.15.1.to Mount Sion, on which the Temple was fituate,a type of the Church,ch.2.2.& 11.9.Ezek. 20.40.

and will make them joyfull in mine house of prayer] I will cause them to ferve me there, with alacrity, and chearefulnefs of fpirit, Deut.16.14,15. for the manifold bleffings,wherewith I have bleffed them, and for the fpiritual comforts, that by their communion with me, in my facred ordinances, I fhall there impart unto them, Pf.36.8.& 42.4.& 43.3,4.& 63.5.& 84 4,10.

Yet will I gather others to him, besides those that are gathered together]Heb.Yet, or Furthermore,(as ch.8.5. Jer, (dividing it)I will further gather together more upon him,(as alluding to an heap,which to raife higher,materials are laid one upon another)or, to him,(fo is the particle ufed, Pfal.16.2.& 23.2.chap.22.15.& 53.1.)unto, or above,as Job 23.2. my ftroke is above my groaning this gathered together; that is, over and above, or befides thofe, that I fhall at firft gather together. This, a learned Writer of great note,would have meant of the fecond gathering of fome by Nehemy, after the firft by Ezra, Ezr.2.1,2.Neh.7.7. but we read not of any remarkable number gathered together by Nehemy,who was not that very enumber gathered together by Ezra, and fettling of ployed, but about repairing the city, and reforming, and fettling of the State, with thofe, whom he found there. The courfe of the context rather carrieth to thofe forraigners , and ftrangers, before fpoken of, ver.6,7.who were alfo to be gathered,and brought in to Gods people, and added unto his folk, the Church, Joh.10.16.& 11.32.Act.1.41,47.& 11.24.And fo not ours alone, but the Jewish Commenters alfo, expound it; only one telleth us of an expofition of his fathers , which yet he doth not expreffe any allowante of, that this verfe, fhould be underftood of Gog, and Magog ; of whom,Ezek.39.1,6,17.unto whom, he would alfo apply the paffage enfuing,v.9.reading the text,I will gather together against him, &c. But the former paffages control this expofition; and the enfuing words feem to be part of another Prophecy.

V.9. All ye beasts of the field, come to devour, yea all ye beasts in the forest] Divers Expofitors annex the enfuing part of this Chapter to the former; making, fome of them, this the coherence, That the Prophet,from the conclusion of the godly party,in the former ter,to the former; making, fome of them, this the coherence, That part, doth in this latter part, proceed unto the reprehenfion of the wicked,and ungodly party among them. Other of them, that this is fubjoyned unto the promifes before-going, to fhew that yet before they fhould be fulfilled,very fearful and fad matters fhould befall the Jewifh State : which by the Romanes they conceive to have been done, in the deftruction of Jerufalem , Dan. 9. 26,27. and Matthew 23. 38. and 24.15——22. Luke 19. 43, 44. and 21. 20——24. But the moft, and beft, herein agree, that at thefe words beginneth a new Sermon, or Prophecy: and that the four laft verfes of this Chapter fhould go joyntly, in one, with the next.

All ye beasts of the field] Heb. Every beast ? and fo in the next branch: but taken collectively; as Chap. 43.20.Ezek.31.6,13.and 34.5,8. The Prophet maketh entrance into the enfuing Prophecy, with a folemn proclamation, wherein ravenous beafts of all forts are called upon to come in to devour, and make havock of Gods own flock , of his own people ; and by fuch kind of creatures are here defigned, as fome would have it, the Romanes, but, as moft here defigned, as fome would have it, the Romanes, but, as moft rather, the Chaldeans,together with the Syrians, Affyrians, Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, and other people, that joyned with the Babylonians, and ferved under the King of Babylon, in his expedition againft the Jews,2 King. 24.2.Pfal. 137.7.Jer.1.15,16.See the like,Jer.12.9.

come to devour]Heb.to eat:as alfo, Jer.12.9.The adverfaries of Gods people fo defcribed, as alfo, Pfal. 80. 13. are incited to do with them,as fuch creatures are wont to do, with fuch as they prey upon. Howbeit , fome conceive , that the beafts themfelves are called to devour their flain, as intimating what havock would be made of them, and what fhould become of their corpfes, (that which, in likely hood, alfo befell many of them)after they were dead,Pfal.79.2.Jer.7.33.& 34.20. See the like, Ezek.39.17.20. where the ravenous birds, and beafts are invited, as to a feaft, to eat, unto their fill, at Gods table,on the carcafes of horfe,and men; as alfo, Rev.19.17, 18. and I fuppofe there may well, in this paffage, be fome allufion thereunto; but take the former to be the genuine fenfe of the place; the rather, for the reafon of this call, and invitement, rendred,ver.9,10.to wit, the defect,and neglect,blindneffe, and fleepineffe of their fhepherds, that which is wont to give opportunity to wolves, and wild beafts, not to prey upon dead carcafes, cales, but to break in upon, and worry the flock. See Ezek. 34. 2--8.

all ye beaſts of the foreſt] Beaſts in the foreſt, for beaſts of the foreſt: the uſual receptacle, and harbour of ſuch ravenous creatures, Pſ.50. 10.& 80.13.2 King.2.24.Jer.5.6.So mountains in Gilboa, for mountains of Gilboa, 2 Sam.1.21. and, the Prince in thy people, for the Prince of thy people, Act.23.5.

V. 10. His watchmen are blind; they are all ignorant]Or, Their watchmen are blind(becauſe he ſpeaketh of his people; as ch.5.25.) they have no knowledg any of them. Heb. they know not. So Pſ. 14.4.& 82.5.Chap.1.3.& 44.18. Their Prieſts, and pretended Prophets, or their Rulers, as well Civil, as Eccleſiaſtical,(for under the name of watchmen, both may well go, though theſe eſpecially ſeem here intended)that ſhould watch, and look out, to diſcover any evil, or enemy, approaching, to give warning of it, both to People and State, Chap.62.6.Jer.6.17.& 33.2.7.are ſtark blind,utterly void of any ſound knowledg, or ability to diſcern, Chap.42. 19.Hoſ.4.6.and any enemy therefore may ſafely and eaſily break in upon either,without any notice taken of their approaches,or oppoſition made againſt them. Some underſtand this of the Scribes, and Phariſees,in our Saviour Chriſts time, taxed by him, in his preachings under the name of blind guides, Mat.15.14.& 23.15,16,24. & unto them it may be well applyed; but ſeemeth to be of a far larger extent,and to intend other times.

they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark] That which is principally required of a watchman, is to ſee,and look about him:that which of a dog, ſet to keep the houſe, or the flock, is to give warning, by barking,of the reproach of the thief, or any ſtranger unto the one, of the Woolf,or any ravenous beaſt to the other, Job 30.1.watchfulneſs is required in either: and in thoſe,conſequently here reſembled by either, Matthew. 24. 41-45. Mark 13. 33——37. Luke 12. 36-42. whereas they were blind, dumb, drowſie, and drunk, for ſo the words enſuing intimate. So the Princes are revelling, when Babylon is taken,Ch.21.5.Dan.5.1-4,30. and the ſhepherds are ſlumbering,when Niniveh is ſurpriſed.Nah. 3.18.

bark] By reproving the people for their ſins, Chapter 58.1. and forewarning them of ſuch evils, as would befall them for the ſame, unleſs prevented by repentance, Ezekiel 18.19. and it is not unuſual in Scripture,to ſay,that men cannot do thoſe things,which they have no mind, or will, to do.So ver.11.Gen.44.22,26.Jerem. 13.23.

ſleeping] So the moſt: Yet ſome, dreaming; ſome, talking in their ſleep: ſome, ſnorting: ſome, doting, from an Arabick term,that by change of a letter ſo ſignifies: the old Latine, ſeeing vain things: which ſome impute to a miſtake of hozim,for chozim,or hhozim,that ſignifies ſeeing.A late Interpreter of ſpecial note,ſerving the time, but of that his verſion, ſo diſcrepant from the reſt, no ground is, by him, given; nor am I able to conceive what it ſhould be.

lying down,loving to ſlumber] That is, lying down of purpoſe to take their eaſe,and repoſe themſelves, as the only thing, that they deſired,took delight in,and had never enough of.Prov.6.9,10.&24. 33.Amos 6.4.See the like form of ſpeech,v.6.So Nah.3.18.Thy ſhepherds ſlumber.

V.11.Yea,they are greedy dogs, which can never have enough] To their ſluggiſhneſs, and love of their eaſe, is added their greedineſs, and their inſatiable covetouſneſs, an uſual concomitant of the former, with the moſt, requiring means to maintain them, in an idle and looſe courſe of life.

yea, they are greedy dogs] Or, And theſe dogs, or Theſe dogs alſo are very greedy. Heb. ſtrong of ſoul, or, of appetite, as a man, or owner of ſoul,that is,of appetite,for one of greedy appetite,Prov. 23.2.

which can never have enough] Or, they can never have enough. Heb.they know not to be ſatisfied: Our margent renders it, as if it were a verb of the infinitive mood, which ſome of the Jewiſh Maſters alſo, but doubtingly, deliver. Or,rather,they know not ſatiety: for the word ſeems to be a noun, in that notion frequently found, Ruth 2.18.ch.23.18.& 55.2.Ezek.16.28.& 39.19 Hag.1.6.as Ch. 59.8.they know not the way of peace: that is, they know not how to walk,or carry themſelves peaceably:they cannot do it,becauſe they have no mind thereunto. See verſe. 6. of ſome ſuch like dogs, David, Pſalm 59.6, 14,15. the greedineſs here ſpoken of,is not of meat,or drink,(though in following their voluptuous courſes of riot and exceſs,they were that way alſo inſatiable, ver. 12.) but of moneys, and means,to maintain that withall, Eccl. 5. 10. and 10.19.

and they are ſhepherds that cannot underſtand] Or, and ſuch ſhepherds they are, as have no underſtanding; a defect of the relative, as ver.2.Heb know not to underſtand; as Jer. 6.15.& 8.12. they know not to bluſh, and they know not to do right; Amos 3.10. though ſome render it; they know not to teach, as if it were to make to underſtand, to inſtruct:and ſo the word is uſed,Dan.10.14.See alſo chap. 28.19.but is more frequently taken in the former ſenſe, 1 King.3. 9.Prov 1.2,6.& 14.8. Some would here diſtinguiſh between the dogs, and the ſhepherds, as if the one were the inferiour officers; the other, the ſuperiour governours: But the ſame parties ſeem to be, in either appellation,intended; as before, ver.10.they have no underſtanding to foreſee,and conceive, what the iſſue of things will be,Jer.6.14.so the Jewiſh Commenters.Or,they have no skill to order the flock aright: a matter of much moment, and in ſpecial manner,required in a ſhepherd,Jer.3.15.

they all look to their own way, every one to his gain, from his quarter] This clauſe ſheweth more plainly, what greedineſs was meant before;to wit, greedineſs of gain, Prov.15.27.and 31. 15, 16.

look to their own way] See Chap.53.6.they are all for themſelves, without any regard to,or care of,the flock,and its welfare, Jer.22. 17.Ezek.34.2,3.Phil.2.21.Some make this paſſage parallel to that, Chap.53.6.We have turned every one to his own way.Others,to that, Judg.17.6.every man did that which was right in his own eyes. Both underſtand them, as implying not a general concurrence onely, in running out into evil; but a diverſity of thoſe courſes, that they ſeverally took, ſome abandoning themſelves to the giving of ſatisfaction to one inordinate luſt, and ſome to another: whence, alſo, ſome conceive a diſtribution of them here, into two ranks; ſome addicted to covetouſneſs, and ſome to riot and exceſs. But I ſuppoſe the meaning of the words to be ſimply ſuch as was before hinted:nor do the places pointed to, ſeem altogether parallel, the pronoun being in them ſingular, as importing a diſtribution; whereas here it is plural. Beſides, that the ſame parties ſeem charged with the ſame vices, not ſome of them with the one onely, and ſome with the other. See the like, Amos 4. 1. and 6. 3. 4.

his gain] As Prov.1.19.& 15.27.it is rendered,covetouſneſs,ch.57. 17.Jer.6.13.Ezek.33.31.but the word ſignifies properly, lucre, or gain.

from his quarter] Heb. from his end; which Interpreters diverſly expound. Some, from the one end of them to the other;that is from the higheſt to the loweſt; as Jer.6.13. all ſorts of them; and ſo the old Latine rendreth it. Others, from the one end of their way to the other: from the firſt to the laſt, they mind and follow nothing but this: it is the whole tenour of their life, to look after their gain. Others,from the one end of the city to the other, as if out of all parts of it, they did rap and rend what they could; no place was free from their pillage: and according to theſe expoſitions, the ſpeech ſhould be defective, as wanting the latter term more fully expreſſed elſe-where; as Exod.26.28. & 36.33. Others, and ſo ſome of the JewiſhCommenters,from the place of his abode, and they parallel it with that, Gen.19.4. where the word is not amiſs rendred, quarter, as it is alſo according to this ſenſe, which ſeemeth the plaineſt here. Howbeit, ſome conceiving it further to intimate their inſatiable thirſt, and purſuit after gain, render it, without end, and in that notion is the noun oft uſed, as Chap.2.7. and the particle alſo prefixed before it, is ſometime uſed in the like ſenſe:and ſo, from end,ſhould be here, as much, as without end, as from viſion,without viſion, Mic.3.6. But the pronoun,his,affixed, ſeemeth to make the conſtruction; in that ſenſe, here, the harſher, and to carry it rather the other way.I ſhall ſubjoyn only an Annotation of a late learned Writer: He conceiveth that the word here uſed, though commonly ſignifying, coaſt,or end,or extremity, doth oft-times alſo denote, eminent, or honourable perſons.So he deemeth it to be taken,Gen.19.4.& 47.2.Judg.18.2.Chap.26.15.Ezek. 33. 2.and ſo he would have it taken here:and the meaning to be, either referring it to the Prieſts, they look after their gain, the very chief of them; not the meaner ſort only: or referring it to the people whom they made a prey of;they follow their gain, from the principall, (that is, the richer ſort)of them, to wit, of that people,whoſe watchmen they are ſaid to be, ver.10.But the places produced, are all queſtionable; nor doth it ſeem to go ſmoothly either way here: yea, this Author himſelf elſewhere ſeemeth confident, that this phraſe ſignifieth,on every ſide,both here,and Jer.50.26.& 51.31.and in moſt of the places here alledged by him to other purpoſe. But howſoever it may be with other places,the pronoun affixed will not permit it to be taken ſo here.

V.12.Come ye]The ſpeech of theſe wicked Prieſts, and pretended Prophets, either enciting one another, to joyn together, in the practice of riot and exceſs; or inviting ſome of the people to partake therein with them; and ſo impiouſly encouraging them unto ſuch vile courſes,as their duty was to have reproved in them, and to have by all meanes endeavoured to withdraw them from. Thus they applied themſelves to the humour of the people,Mic.2.11 and ſtrengthened the hands of the wicked, that they might not leave their ſins,Ezek.13.19,22.

ſay they]Theſe words are ſupplyed,being not in the text,as chap 22.13.& 45.14. Neh.13.15.Act.7.32.

I will fetch wine,and we will fill our ſelves with ſtrong drink]Heb. I will take wine(but it is well rendred here fetch,as alſo, Gen. 18. 7.& 27.9.for it includeth two notions,to take, and to bring;as to receive: and to beſtow,Pſ.68.18.compared with Eph.4.8.)and we will be drunk(as it is well rendred,Mic. 1.10.) with ſtrong drink: we wil want no good liquor of any kind.Of the word,joyned alſo with wine there,ſee on ch.5.11.a defect of the particle with, as ch.28.1. Jer.13.12.

and to morrow ſhall be as this day,and much more abundant] Some conceive it to be ſpoken in deriſion of Gods Prophets, as ſcoffing at their denunciation of deſtruction, ſhortly and ſuddenly to befall them; we do well enough to day,and we will do better to morrow. See Chap.22.13. But it ſeemeth rather a profeſſion of a wicked and wretched reſolution, to proceed in the continued practice of their preſent exceſs, day after day, without abating an ace of it, but improving it rather. See ſomewhat the like reſolution of the drunkard, Prov.23.35.

and much more abundant] Heb.great; (that is, greater,then this: the poſitive, for the comparative,as Gen.10.21.) yea of much more excellency,or abundance, as Gen.49.3.

CHAP. LVII.

Verſ.1. THe righteous periſheth;] Amidſt the reproofs of the wickedneſs and profaneneſs of the times, and the dreadfull denunciations of wrath and judgement, againſt the main body of the ſtate for the ſame the Prophet here, by the way,inſerts ſomewhat for the comfort of the ſincere-hearted,that living in thoſe times, ſhould either by the cruelty of oppreſſion, have their lives ſhortned,or be taken away otherwiſe: yet not without a ſecret nip, unto thoſe other ungodly ones, that regarded it not,nor took notice of Gods mercy toward them, in tranſlating them hence, before the judgements denounced came to be put in execution; or, of the warning thereof given by the ſubtraction of ſuch.

The righteous] This ſome reſtrain to Joſias, commended for his juſtice,Jer.22.15,16.as well as for his piety 2 Chron.34.3.and taken away by an untimely end, 2 Chron.35. 23,24. But the word ſeems more general; being taken collectively, as Pſal.11.5.& 34.19.

periſheth] Is taken away by death: the deceaſe of many ſuch,a fore-running ſign of ſome general judgement approaching. See Chap.3.2. & 6.13. and ſee the like complaints of a defection of ſuch, Pſal.12.1. Mic.7.1,2. Howbeit it is not ſo to be underſtood, as if ſuch utterly periſhed, and were loſt; for it is not ſo; they live even in death, Joh.11.25,26. But by periſhing, is underſtood only deceaſe, and departure hence, as, ready to periſh; that is, to die, Chap.27.13. And the Prophet the rather uſeth this term, becauſe to the carnal eye, it ſeemed ſo to fare with them; which yet he controlleth, ver.2.

and no man layeth it to heart:] Heb. there is no man, or, not any, (as Chap.36.6. & 40.26.) laying it on heart; as Chap. 47. 7. So ver.11. where a defect alſo of the pronoun demonſtrative it, as here: heart, for his heart. See the like defect of the poſſeſſive, Chap.27.9. & 53.10. none of them, of thoſe debauched ones, Chap.56.12. do any whit regard it, or take notice of Gods hand, and end, in it. See Chap.5.16,17. Amos 6.5,6.

and merciful men are taken away;] Or, pious, godly; or, kinde, pittifull; for the word is uſed for either: for the former, Pſal.16. 10.& 32.6. & 86.2. for the latter, Pſal.103.4.& 109.18.Jer.2.1. & 3.12. Heb. men of piety, or pitty: or, men of benignity, or kindneſs; as Prov.11.17. a man of benignity, or kindneſs, oppoſed there to a cruel man: the word is uſed in the adjective, Pſal.12.1.Mic.7.2.The Jewiſh Criticks thus diſtinguiſh theſe two; the Juſt, or Righteous; and the kind, or bountiful man: the former, ſay they, is one that giveth preciſely to God, or Man, in matter of tithes, or alms, and the like, what the ſtrict letter of the Law exacts of him, and no more: the latter, one that affordeth it with ſome over-plus: For example, the firſt-fruits of their corn, wine, and oyl, was without any certain ſet proportion, or ſtint, required of them by the Moſaical Law,Deut.18.2. howbeit, their Doctors had ſo defined it,that a ſixtieth part, at leaſt, was to be given. This they gathered from Ezek.45.11. where for their oblation, the ſixt part of an Epha, is required out of an Homer, which contained ten Ephaes.Hence, they made three degrees of offerers, one that brought but a ſixtieth part, whom they call a man of a ſtrict eye: Another that brought the fiftieth part,whom they term the middle man: A third, that brought the fortieth part,whom they call a man of a good eye.So Eccleſ.35.9. And this third, is the kinde, or bountiful man. Again, from Eſaus words to Jacob, Gen.33.9. they coin four ſorts of men: The firſt, he that ſaith, Mine to thee, and thine to me; or, Mine thine,and thine mine. And this is the man of the world, that dealeth ſtrictly in mutual commerce. The ſecond, that ſaith, Mine to me, and thine to thee; or, Mine mine, and thine thine. And this is the way of Sodom, that would part with nothing to the Poor, Ezekiel 16. 49. or, the middle man, between the wicked, and the kind. A third, that ſaith, Mine to my ſelf, and thine too to me; or, Mine mine own, and thine mine, and that is a wicked man.A fourth, that ſaith, Mine to thee, and thine to thy ſelf; or, Mine thine, and thine thine own; that giveth freely, looking for nothing again, Pſal.37.21. Luk.6.35. And this is the kinde, or bountiful man See Chap.32.5. True it is, that the word hath a notion of bounty,and benignity in it; but ſo is the word of righteouſneſs alſo oftentimes uſed. See on Chap.54.17. and ſo Matth.1.19. nor ſeemeth it the purpoſe of the Holy Ghoſt, here to diſtinguiſh between righteous men, and men of piety, or kindneſs; but to deſcribe the ſame perſons by words, as they are largely taken, (though in ſtrict notion diſtinct) of equal extent, So righteous, and good,Rom.5.7.

taken away] Heb. gathered; as Gen.25.8. Pſal.27.10. a metaphor taken from the gathering of fruit, or corn, Levit.23.39. Chap.17.5.

no man conſidering] Or,while none conſidereth. Heb, in there being none underſtanding, or conſidering: as, when no deeps were, Prov.8. 24. & 29.18. where no viſion is, or, without any underſtanding, or conſideration: as, without inſtruction, Prov.5.23. that is, for want of it: and, without a wall, Ezek.38.11.

that the righteous] The ſame word comprehending here, the perſons ſpoken of in the two former branches,as being not divers perſons, but the ſame diverſly deſcribed.

is taken away from the evil to come] Heb. from before,or, from the face of the evil, (as Jer.42.17.) is the righteous gathered: a reſemblance taken from the fruit, that is pluckt, and carried into the houſe; or corn, that is cut, and brought into the barn, when a ſtorm is perceived coming, to prevent ſuch hurt, or damage, as thereby it might have received: So here, they are before-hand taken away, that they may not ſee the ruine of the State, and the captivity of their people. See inſtances of the like, in Jeroboams ſon taken away, that he might not ſee the downfal of his fathers whole family, and the utter extirpation of his ſtock, 1 Kin.14.12, 13. of Joſias gathered up, that he might not ſee the ſame with theſe, had they ſurvived, 2 Kin.22.20.

V.2. He ſhall enter into peace] Or, He ſhall go in peace: the particle wanting; as Chap.41.3. or,as ſome render it, Peace ſhall come, to wit, to them; it ſhall befall them; for the word ſignifies,as well to come, as to go, Chap.27.13. & 35.10. and ſome alſo ſupplying the particle of continuation, (which is oft ſuppreſſed: as 1 Sam. 18.30. Ch.2.2. & 10.20. & 11.11.) carry on the ſentence, as further relating what it was, that theſe wicked wretches, who deemed the godly, ſo taken away, to be wretched, and unhappy perſons, did not underſtand, or conſider, to wit, That he goeth to peace; or, That he goeth in peace, or, That peace cometh to him. That they are taken away while outward peace yet continueth, 2 Kin.23.20. and quietly with inward peace in their ſouls, Luk.2.29. or, That they depart hence unto reſt, and peace, Rev.14.3. to a place of eternal joy and bliſs, Mat.25.21-23. Luk.16.25. Joh.16.22. and this is that which worldly men conſider not; becauſe to the eye of fleſh it appeareth not, Col.3.3. 1 Joh.3.2. but they ſeem rather to have periſhed, ver,1. 1 Cor.15.18.

they ſhall reſt in their beds] As their ſouls paſs to a place of reſt, and bliſs; ſo their bodies are laid down to reſt in the grave, as in a bed, or bed-chamber, there to ſleep quietly, until the general reſurrection, what time they ſhall awake,and be raiſed up again, Job 7.21. and 14.12. Eccleſ.12.7. 2 Cor.5.8. Phil.1.23. and 3.21. 1 Theſſ.4.14,17. becauſe the verb here is plural, whereas the former was ſingular. Some would have it rendred his bones ſhall reſt in their beds; but that is not needfull: the word was collective before; and their beds intimateth as much here: and the paſſage from number to number is not unuſual. See Pſal.127.5.& 140.9.

each one walking in his uprightneſs] Or, that walketh uprightly, ſtraight forward, without ſwerving to the one hand, or the other, Prov.4.25-27. or, before him; that is, before God: as Judg.18.6. Prov.5.21. that walketh ſincerely and circumſpectly,as in his ſight, Gen.17.1. Pſal.18.23. & 119.168. chap.38.3 Jer.17.16. before him, for, before God: as, he ſaid, for, God ſaid, Gen.15.13. the pronoun, for the noun: each one, is inſerted; becauſe a diſtribution is implyed oft in ſuch conjunctions of the ſingular noun, with the verb plural. See on Chap.26.19. Some of thoſe that rendred the foregoing branch, Peace ſhall come to them; repeat from thence, the word peace, here, and render it; Peace ſhall go before him, or them: becauſe the word was collective, as Pſal.85.13. righteouſneſs ſhall go before him; and, their works go along with them, or, accompany them, Rev.14.13. as if peace were ſaid to conduct them, and convey them unto the place of their reſt. But the former reading ſeems the clearer.

V.3. But draw neer hither] After the former paſſage inſerted and premiſed, for the comfort of the faithful, that ſhould live in thoſe times hereafter enſuing, and preceding that general ruine, and diſſolution of the State, and deportation of the people, pronouncing them bleſſed,that ſhould be taken away; though by the hands of cruel wretches, (as under Manaſſes,and ſome of Joſias his wicked ſons, and ſucceſſors, it is not unlikely, but that many ſuch were, 2 Kin.21.16. Jer.22.17.) becauſe they ſhould not live to ſee,what ſhould befall the land when they were gone; the like whereunto, ſee Rev.14.13. he now addreſſeth himſelf unto the ſurviving wicked ones, that were of a far other mind concerning thoſe pious ones, ſo made away, as deeming them miſerable creatures,and themſelves happy men, as living ſtill to enjoy the land, and their places, and poſſeſſions in it, together with what they had bereaved them of: and firſt, in lively colours, he layeth out their moſt impious, and abominable courſes; then foretelleth, from God, what judgements ſhould unavoidably befall them, from which none of their complices ſhould be able to deliver them; and laſtly, concludeth with gracious promiſes of mercy, deliverance, and reſtitution, (wherein yet the obſtinate wicked ones ſhould have no ſhare) to the pious and repentant.

But draw neer hither ye ſons of the Sorcereſs]The words run ſomewhat more emphatically in the original,thus: And (for, But: as Chap.53.5.) ye, or, as for you, (as Chap.61.6.) draw neer hither, ſons of the ſorcereſs; as if he had ſaid,But as for you,come ye hither a while:I have another manner of errand to deliver unto you,ſome ſorcereſſes brats, an adulterous brood: it is like that of Achijah to sons of the sorceress] Heb, of a sorceress, or witch; not of Abraham, as ye pretend to be, Chap.41.8. Mat.3.9. Joh.8.33. or, of Sarah, Chap.51.2. but of some sorceress, or witch, rather: their children are men, in Scripture, laid to be, whom in affection, and disposition, they resemble, and whom, in practice, they imitate, Ezek. 16.3. Mat.3.7.& 12.34.& 23.33. Joh.8.37,39,40,44. 1 Joh.3.8,10. the word sorceress, doth not so fully answer the term here used; for the word sorceress, or sorcerers, signifies properly, one that dealeth with lots, and by them divineth; coming from a Latine word, that signifieth a lot: the word witch, being more general, may seem to suit better with it; and the rather, because it is here a feminine, in which form, it is no where elle found: and some would have it to denote such an one, as bewitcheth with her eyes; as among the Heathen, anciently, some were deemed to do. But of the notion, and notation of the word, see on Chap.2.6. where the masculine is rendred, a South-sayer. By which place, also, it is apparent, that these kind of practices were very rife among that people: whereof, see 2 King.21.6. and well therefore are they here termed, a witches children; because so fuch practises addicted.

the seed of the adulterers, and the whore] A baftardly brood, begotten by some adulterer, upon an whore, (for so I suppose our English word should be written, coming from the word hire; as the Latine, meretrix. See Deut.18.18. Ezek.16.33. Mic.1.7.) and belong there before no more to Gods family, then such illiue, as some adulterers, or common strumpet, hath by some adulterer, whom, for taking her husband, or dealing diloyally with him, she hath joyned her self unto, Prov.2.17.& 30.20. See Hos.1.2. & 2.2. & 3.1. Mat.12.39. & 16.4. Joh.8.41,42,44,47. Heb. a seed (that is, iffue, or race; as Chap.1.4.) of an adulterant, or adulterer; (as Jer.9.2. & 23.10. Hos.7.4. by which places it appeareth, how this sin abounded with them; though of spiritual adultery God principally here speaketh) and of one, or of her that playeth the harlot; for the word here is a verb: as also, Levit.19.29. Judg.19.2. Jer.3.6,8. where it is so rendred: the defect of the relative is very rife, as hath been before obferved, Chap.55.13.& 56.2,11. Howbeit, some render it, a seed committing adultery, (as also they would have the term used, Mat. 12.39.& 16.4. to be taken,) that playeth the harlot; (the copulative, for the relative: as Chap.17.2. & 28.1.) or, thou, Isay, (as Chap.49.6.& 55.1.) that hast plaied the harlot. Jer.3.1. Ezek.16.& 23,or, a seed that hath committed adultery, and will play the harlot ſtill, as noting the unfruitfulnes in their spiritual pollutions, and their pertinacious perisiting therein, Jer.3.25. Ezek.16.28. But these all offer force to the text; for the verb here is feminine, as in the places alfo fore-cited, where as the word seed, and the participle annexed to it, (yet not neceſſarily in conjunction with it) are both masculine; and neither of them therefore can couple well with this verb. The former ſenſe is fit, and fair, and to me ſeems to be genuine.

V.4. Against whom do ye ſport your ſelves] The Prophet having to the life limned them, and set before them, an exact picture, and portrayture of themſelves; proceedeth now to debate the matter with them, concerning their practices: and he beginneth firſt, with their carriage toward Gods meſſengers, whom, when they reproved them for their enormities, Chap.58.1. and denounced Gods judgements against them for the same, Chap.56.9. they entertained with nothing but mocks and ſcoffs, and made ſport with them, and their meſſages, 2 Chr.36.16. Chap.5.19. & 22.13. & 28.14,22. Jer.5. 12,13.& 23.33. Ezek.11.3. The Prophet therefore adviſeth them ſeriouſly to conſider, who it was, that they thus derided, and made themſelves ſo merry with: not ſome forry ſely mortals, as they ſeemed to make account; but the immortal, and almighty God, whoſe Miniſters and Meſſengers they were, and whom therefore they wronged and abuſed in them, Exod.16.8. Num.16.11. Luk.10.16. 1 Theſſ.4.8. for that it is, that he intendeth, though he name not the Lord: and the concealment of the party, makes the ſpeech the more emphatical; as if he had ſaid, it concerneth you nearly, to conſider who it is, though I name him not to you: and it is very like that expoſtulation, or debate of God, with Sennacherib, Chap.37.23. They warp too much from the Prophets drift, that would have this branch expounded, of their abandoning themſelves to wantonneſs; as that, 1 Tim.5.6. which they make parallel to this: or, of their voluptuous feaſtings at their idols tables, Chap. 65.11. the like whereunto, 2 Pet.2.13,14. Jud.12. but the words enſuing, clear ſufficiently the Prophets intent.

Againſt whom do ye ſport your ſelves] Or, with whom do ye make your ſelves merry? The word is moſt commonly taken in the better ſenſe, for to delight ones ſelf in ought; as Pſal.37.4,11. Job 22. 26.& 37.10. Chap.58.13.& 66.11. but yet ſometime alſo, in the worſe, in a notion of extream delicacy, Deut.28.56. Jer.6.2. See Chap.47.1. here to make themſelves merry and frolick, with jeſting, and gibing at Gods Prophets. See the like, Pſal.35.15,16. Lam.3.14.

againſt whom] Or, at whom.

make ye a wide mouth, and draw out the tongue?] Heb. do ye widen the mouth, and lengthen the tongue? geſtures, and expreſſions of deciſion, and mockage, Job 16.10. Pſal.22.7. & 35.21. Lam.2.16.

are ye not children of tranſgreſſion, a ſeed of falſhood?] Perſons addicted to diſobedience, and rebellion; (as children of wickedneſs, Hoſ.10.9.) and a race of liers, and counterfeits: as Chap.30.9. that diſſemble with God, profeſſing themſelves to be his, when they are indeed nothing leſs, Chap.48.1,2. or that by their diſobedience to him, diſcard him, and caſt him off, as none of their father, and carry themſelves towards him, as none of his children, Deut.32.5. And this cenſure of them, is propounded by way of interrogation; which addeth much vehemency to it; as alſo, ver.6. as if he had ſaid, Deny it if you can. See the like, Amos 2.11:

V.5. Enflaming your ſelves with idols, under every green tree] Or, Yet that are enflamed. For howſoever theſe paſſive forms have ſometime a reciprocal notion; whereof, ſee on Chap.55.3. Yet here there is no neceſſity of it. Enflamed, or (carrying on the ſentence, as the particle prefixed ſhews that it ſhould be) ye that are enflamed; to wit, with filthy ſpiritual luſt, here principally implied; and with corporal alſo, which were commonly among thoſe rites, and wantonly practiſed by them, at their meetings, and in the meeting places, for the ſervice of their idols, Num.25.1,2. 2 Chr.23 6,7. Hoſ.4.12-14. Amos 2.8. See the uſe of the word, Gen.30.38. Pſal.51.5. Hoſ.7.4,6. The old Latine rendreth it, falſifying themſelves; and the word that ſignifies, ſometime, to repent; ſometime, to be comforted, ver.7. Jer.8.6. doth in the form, wherein this is here uſed, come very neer to it; but the roots are divers, the formation different, and the former vowel-point not the ſame.

with idols] Or, among the oks: for the word ſometime, ſignifieth Gods, or Potentates; great and mighty ones, as Chap.44.10. Exod. 15.11,15. Pſal.89.6. Job 41.25. ſometime rams, that domineer, as ſtrong ones, among the cheep, Chap.1.11. & 34.6. Ezek.34.17, 18,21. whence the ambiguity, and diverſity of readings. Pſal.29.1. ſometime okes, or more generally, ſtrong and tall trees, of nine remembrance, than the ordinary ſort, and rank of them: And it is therefore rendred more generally, in ſome places, trees, Chap.61.3. Ezek. 31.14. as the word, in Greek (whereof ſome think the Druides, or Pagan Prieſts, and Prophets, among the Galles, the Nymphes, wood-Nymphs, or inferiour Goddeſſes, among the Greeks, queſtionleſs, had their names) ſignifying properly an oak, yet is oft taken more largely, for the common ſort of foreſt trees. But of the word it ſelf, ſee more, on Chap.1.30.& 6.13. Here thoſe that take it for ſuch trees, ſome of them render it, a grove, or tuft, of ſuch like timber-trees, dedicated to idolatrous ſervices, Chap.1.29.

under every green tree:] After the manner of the Gentiles, that, in ſuch places, uſed to ſacrifice to their idols, and perform their ſuperſtitious ſervices, being inclined from the heat of the ſun, by their ſhade. So Deut.12.2. 2 King.16.4. & 17.10. 2 Chr.28.4. Jer.2.20. & 3.6. Ezek.6.13. Hoſ.6.13. See Chap.27.9.

ſlaying the children] Heb. ſlayers of the children; that ſlay your children: for their own they were, whom they ſo ſlaughtered and ſacrificed, 2 King.16.3. & 21.6. & 23.10. Pſal.106.38. (a defect of the pronoun, as Job 19.2. Chap.46.4.) that are wont to murther your children in the ſervice of your idols. A ſavage practice, which they learned from the heathen that uſed ſo to do, Deut.12. 31. Pſal.106.35——38. See Lev.18.21. & 20.2. Jer.7.31.& 19.5. Ezek.16.20.& 20.26. & 23.37,39. 2 Chr.28.3. & 33.6.

in the valleys] Or, beſides the brooks; as the particle is uſed, Neh. 3.15,25. 1 King.15.13. the word ſignifieth, ſometime, a valley; ſo called, becauſe there it flooth along as an hollow pipe, or gutter, between two hils. So Chap.7.19. ſuch a valley was that of Elah, 1 Sam.17. 2,3. and ſuch a valley ſeems that of Hinnom, to have been, where ſuch inhumane ſervices were commonly practiſed, Jer.7.31. ſometime, a brook, Lev.11.9,10. Hence, the brook Kiſhon, Judg. 5.21. and, the brook Kidron, 2 Sam. 15.23. 1 King. 2.37. 2 Chr.30.14. whence the vale, lying neer about it, is called, the fields of Kidron, 2 King.23.4. and, the valley of Kidron; as ſeems to be intended, 2 Chr.29.16. this brook is deemed alſo, to have run, among other lower grounds, thorow the valley of Hinnom: and brooks are ſo termed; becauſe they run commonly along the valleys, with thoſe waters, that flnot down from the hils, Pſal.104.10.

under the clifts of the rocks.] Heb. upon the ſteeps, branches. See on Chap.2.21. ſuch over hangings of them or clifts branching out from them, as towards the toot, or foot, of rocky, or chalky hils oft-times, are ſeen, made by the water undermining them; and afford ſhade, as well as the branches of thick trees do, Chap.32.2. Some ſuch caves alſo might be made, and cut out of purpoſe, as for habitation and ſepulture ſometime, Chap.22.16. ſo for exerciſe of idolatrous ſervices, for which they made uſe, ſometime of groves and woods, ſometime of dales; ſometime of rocky caves; ſometime of hils. See Chap.17.8.

V.6. Among the ſmooth ſtones of the ſtream is thy portion] The Prophet here beginneth to alter the frame of his diſcourſe; not ſpeaking, now, as before, to the people, as children of the State, as a flock, or ſtem; or, as the illiue of ſome adulterous couple; but directing his ſpeech to the State it ſelf, as to a lewd woman, or common ſtrumpet: and the tenour of his charge therefore now runneth in a ſingular feminine form. So Jer.2.2. & Ezek.16.& 23.

Among the ſmooth ſtones of the ſtream] Heb. in the parts, or ſmoothe, of the valley, or brook. The former word: (but without ſuch a point, as the middle letter here hath) doth moſt uſually ſignifie parts, and portions, as Joſh.18.5,6,9. Ezek.47.7. & 48.8,21. and it is regularly the plural of the word, here rendred portion: whence ſome there-fore render it, parts, or diſtributions. And ſo the old Latine hath it. Now is thy portion] Thine altars, and thine idol-ſervice, is that which thou delighteſt in, and truſteſt unto; as worldly men, in their wealth, Pſal.17.14. Prov.18.11. that thou eſteemeſt thine inheritance, thy lot, and thy portion: thine idols are to thee, ſo, as God is to the godly, Pſ.16.4 5,6.& 119.57. Prov.18.10. Jer.10.16. Lam.3.24. though ſome would have it ſpoken in a menacing way, as foretelling what ſhould betide them, when they ſhould be in captivity, and ſit mourning in waſte places, beſide the brooks ſides at Babylon, Pſ.137.1,2. But this ſuiteth not ſo well with the ſequel of the context. However, there is an elegant paronomaſie, and antanaclaſis, in the Hebrew, between the words rendred, ſmooths, and portion; which our Engliſh cannot expreſs.

Now of theſe, Some expound it, of the parts adjacent to the brooks: for the word is the ſame, with that before, ver.5. only ſingular here, but in a collective ſenſe, as Job 21.33. & 28.4. & 40.22. Others, but in a collective ſenſe, as of the boughs, parting themſelves into divers branches of the ſtreams: amids which, ſay they, in the ſlands, were their altars, or theams: amids which, ſay they, in the Iſlands, were their altars ſometime erected; eſpecially, about the fountain-heads, from which they deſcended. Others, again, of the rocky-parts at the hill-foot that were as part of the wals, ver.5. But the Jewiſh Commenters, becauſe of the point commonly called dageſh, in the belly of the ſecond radical, underſtand it by ſmooth ſtones, directing us to that place, 1 Sam.17.40. where the ſame word, to dageſhed, another vowelling point only ſubſtituted, is found in the ſame notion, it being laid of pacid, that he picked five ſmooth of ſtones (ſo the word is) out of the brook, or valley rather, that is, five ſmooth ſtones out of thoſe that lay in the vale of Elah, which vale lay between the two Armies, and in which the combat was fought between him, and Goliah, 1 Sam.17.23. for of any brook that ran between them, we read not: ſo, the ſmooth of the brook, or valley (for the Hebrew hath no more) is here put for the ſmooth ſtones (as it is more fully in that other place expreſſed) of the valley, or the brook, and there is a defect of the ſubject or ſubſtantive, as full, for a full cup, Pſal.73.10 ſtrong, for a ſtrong hand, chap.40.10. And by ſuch ſtones, ſome underſtand the ſmooth pebles, wherein there was great ſtore in the brooks, or about them in the valleys; in which their altars were erected ver.5. Jer.2.23. Others, thoſe ſlick and ſmooth ſtones, curiouſly cut out, and poliſhed, Pſal.144.12. wherein their altars were made, contrary to Gods command, Exod.20.25. and this ſeems moſt probable; for what the Jewiſh Doctors relate, that their manner was to pick up ſome fair ſtone, and adore it, is but a groundleſs conceit, Nor doth that of a learned Writer take much with me, (I ſhall leave it to be weighed and deemed of by others) who referring the word both here, and there, in the ſtory of David, to the former root, would have it rendred, as before, diviſions of the brook here, as Pſ.1.3. (adding withall, that by Paynims, brooks were adored, as having ſome kind of diety)) ſo, diviſions of ſtones there; that is, not whole ſtones, but pieces of them; nor ſmooth ones, but rough and broken, as in that regard, much better, and fitter for his uſe: But whither ragged ones were ſo fit to fling with, I doubt.

they are thy lot] Some would have the pronoun, to be put here for the verb ſubſtantive, as ore it is. See ch.43.13. and then ſhould not the word, are be expelled, by any different character. But the gemination of the word (which is here very emphatical, as the like, ch.43.25.) to me ſeems to carry it another way; the emphaſis being rather in the pronoun, then in the verb: the ſentence is the ſame, in effect, with the former: and a trope in either, taken from the parting, and dividing an inheritance, ſo as to aſſign each of the coheirs, or parceners, his, or her portion, by lot; as Num. 26. 55. and 34.13. Joſh.14.2. to Pſal. 16.5. Chap.34.17. Howbeit, I cannot concur with thoſe, that would have it to be ſo underſtood, as if hereby were intimated, that theſe their idolatrous practiſes, were hereditary to them, that they were left unto them, as a legacy, an inheritance, or a portion, from their Parents, 1 Pet. 1.18. even, to them, hath thou powred a drink offering: thou hath offered a meat offering] Heb. alſo unto them, to wit, thine idols, ver.5.6. upon them, to wit, thine altar ſtones, or altars in thoſe places erected, ver.6. for ſo alſo doth the particle here alſo ſometime ſignifie; as Pſal.9.4. upon the throne, chap.3.26. upon the ground.

a drink offering] By the Law of God, unto every ſacrifice of any Beaſt, was to be added, a certain quantity of meal, or flower, mixed with oyle, which was termed minchah, as we render it, a meat offering: and a certain quantity of wine, that was termed neſce, rendred uſually, a drink offering, Num.15.4,5. neither was the ſacrifice deemed compleat, until this latter, the laſt rite, uſed about the body of the beaſt, was poured upon it. Hence, thoſe ſpeeches of the Apoſtle, I am ready to be powred out, 2 Tim.4.6. and if I be powred out upon the ſacrifice and ſervice (as Rom. 12.1.& 15.16.) of your faith, Phil.2.17. where he compareth the Philippians faith, and his miniſtery about them, to a ſacrifice his blood, by martirdom ſhed, to obtign and ſeal up, in way of confirmation, and conſummation thereof. the ſame, to ſuch an offering as this. Howbeit, the word neſce, ſignifying an effuſion, or ſomething poured out, may ſeem to be more general, and to comprehend any liquid oblation, were it of oyl, or of wine: For we read of effuſions, or poutings, in the religious performances of the ancient Patriarks, before Moles, as well of oyl, as of wine, Gen. 28.18.& 35.14. and upon ſome of their bread-corn offerings, to wit, their flower oblations, was by the latter Law, oyl to be poured, Lev.2.1. For others of this latter ſort, were to be only moulded, and made up, or anointed therewith, Lev.2.4,5. But another term is uſed in thoſe places, for the pouring out of oyl, then that, from which the word neſce deſcendeth, which may therefore well be deemed to import, ſpecially that of wine, of the pouring out of theſe to their falſe gods, wherein they partaked alſo with themſelves with them. See Jer.7.18.& 19.13.& 44.17-19,25. Ezek.20.28. Amos 2.8.

a meat-offering] Or, as ſome, a wheat offering: but as the one is too large; for the fleſh-oblations alſo are called, Lev.3.6. Gods meat, Mal.1.12. and were ſome of them meat for the Prieſts, Lev.6.26, 29. Ezek.44.29. ſo the latter is too narrow: for there were ſome, oblations of barly, as well as of wheat, Lev.2.14, 16.& 23.10,17. Num.5.15. nor doth the word, meat-offering, come exactly home to it; becauſe ſome were of the ears of corn, or corn yet in the ear: the neereſt to it ſeems to be, the corn, or the bread-corn offering; which will comprehend all the minchaes in Moſes: for what Calmes was of the fruits of the earth, being, in terms, ſo general, and large-related, is uncertain. But of this kind of oblation, two ſorts of it, the notion, and the notation of the term, See before on chap.1.13. of theſe oblations of fleſh (for of this kind were their cakes tendered to the hoſt of heaven) ſee Jer.7.18.& 44.19. Ezek.20.28. Amos 4.4.5. The word is here, as the former alſo: though in a ſingular form, yet in a plural notion.

Should I receive comfort in theſe?] What joy, or comfort, can I have (for this term hath oft ſuch a potential notion, as Jer.2.23. in ſuch people as theſe? Chap.9.17. though they ſhould withall perform other ſervices to me, Chap.66.1. Jer.7.9,10. Ezek.20.39.& 23 39. for, as ſome, ſhould I have compaſſion on ſuch wicked wretches as theſe? as alſo, chap.9.17. Jer.5.7. how ſhould I ſpare thee for this? thus the word may ſeem to ſignifie, Deut.32.36. Pſal.90.13. Others, how ſhould I repent of the evill, that for theſe things I intend to bring upon them. So is the word taken, Exod.32.12. Jer.18.8. See Jer. 15.6. Pſalm 90. 13. Others, how ſhould I rid my ſelf of that grief, and ſhake of that ſorrow, that my ſoul is poſſeſſed of, and my Spirit vexed with, by ſuch practiſes as theſe, Ezek.6.9. ſo the word ſeems taken, Gen.24.67.2 Sam.13.39. Others, can I be at any reſt, or have any joy of ought, until I have taken vengeance for ſuch practiſes as theſe? See Jer.5.9. The old Latine, after the ancient Greeks, read the words in the negative, Should I not be wroth, or have indignation for theſe things? and in theſe interrogative forms (which run uſually with much quickneſs, and vehemency, as ver.4.) the negative particle is oft omitted. So 1 Sam.2.27,28. Did I, and Did I? for, Did not I? Job 20.4. Knoweſt thou not this of old? Ezek.20. 30. Are ye not polluted? Do ye not commit whoredome? See Jer.31. 19. This therefore here alſo admitted, I ſhould thus render the words; Should I not eaſe my ſelf of ſuch? that is, by taking vengeance upon them; as Jer.5.9. Should I not viſit for theſe things? Should not my ſoul be avenged on ſuch a Nation as this? For the uſe of the word, in this notion, ſee Chap.1.24. and the Prophet may ſeem the rather to have made choice of this word, here, to conclude this verſe, with a word of the like ſound, though not ſenſe, to that wherewith he began the verſe before going.

V.7. upon a loſty, and high mountain, haſt thou ſet thy bed;] After that paſſionate parenthesis, wherewith the fore-going diſcourſe was ſhut up, he returneth to relate their ſhamefull, or ſhameleſs, rather, pollutions of themſelves with their idols. Thou haſt not in vales, and caves only, below by the brook-ſides, erected thine altars, but aloft on the higheſt hils, in thine high places. Such alſo they made uſe of as Temples for the ſervice of their idols, after the manner of the Heathen, whom God caſt out before them, Deut.12.2. 1 King.12.31. & 14.23. 2 King.17.9,29. & 23.13. Jer.17.2,3. Ezek. 6.13.& 16.16,31.& 20.28,29. He compareth the Jewiſh State to a ſhameleſs ſtrumpet, that entertaineth her companions, not in private chambers, and cloſets, as having yet ſome ſhame of what ſhe did, Ezek.8.8,12. but without all ſhame, as glorying rather in her ſhame, committing fornication, and practiſing uncleanneſs in open view, as Abſolom with his tent ſpred upon the houſe top, 2 Sam. 16.22. ſo with her bed, made, and ſet in ſome conſpicuous place, lying open, and expoſed to the eyes of all. See 2 King.23.5,12. Jer. 32.29. Ezek.16.24,25.& 23.41.

high and loſty] Words of the ſame notion multiplied, to make it more emphatical, and to expreſs the eminency of the place. So Chap.2.13,14.& 30.25.& 52.13.

thy bed] Ver.8. Ezek.23.17,41.

even thither wentеſt thou up to offer ſacrifices.] Heb. thither alſo; as ver.6. wentеſt thou up; not to do ſervice and ſacrifice unto me, (as though in an irregular way thy people ſometime did, 1 King.3. 2. 2 Chron.33.17.) but to defile thy ſelf there, (See ver.8.) by offering ſacrifice to thoſe thine idols, on thine altars, to the honour and ſervice of them, there erected, ver.5,6. for I ſuppoſe them to be wide, that conceive the Prophet to allude here to the manner of thoſe, who lodged in the Temples of their idols, expecting direction from them, by dreams.

V.8. Behind the dores alſo, and the poſts, haſt thou ſet up thy remembrance:] There is no place, either abroad, or within dores, free from ſome ſign, or mark, ſome memorial, and monument, or other, of thine idols, thine altars, and thine ſervice, and ſtiſhineſs with them, Ezek.17.31.

Behind alſo] Heb. And behind, as Chap.34.13.

the doors and the posts] Where God commanded his precepts to be ter, that they might be ever in their eyes, Deut 6.9. & 11.20. & 27.2,3. Heb. the door, and the post: which some therefore understand, as spoken of the door of Gods house, the Temple, Exek. 8.3.5.7.14.17. & 43.8. but the words seem to be taken collectively, as our version rendreth them; as allo the word valley, and mountains, ver.6,7. or, if it be taken in a singular notion, because the speech runs of the whole State, as of one strumpet, it may be conceived as spoken of the door of her own brothel-house, Prov.5.8. as in it, to the sons, and enfigns of nobility, set over great mens doors: it might rather be, to the titles, and inscription went to be set anciently over common strumpets eels. But the words here, are, behind the door; not so much to invite them to her (of which before, and afterward, ver.7.9.) as to mind her self of them, Ezek.8.10. & 23.14. Others, to the Lares, or, family-tutular-gods; whose images, lay they, they used to have about their doors, to secure their goings out, and comings in: but of that they bring no proof. Others understand it, of the incense that they burnt unto their idols; because the incense seems to be termed, a memorial, Lev.2.2. but that seems not to suit so well with door, and post.

for thou hast discovered thy self] to another, then me, and hast gone up] Heb. for, or, from, (Exod.19.5. & 16.8.) from me, or, from with me, thou hast discovered, and hast gone up, that is, separate then so; departing from me, or refraining company, and society, with me, of which manner of deflection, or comprehensive form of speech, (see on Chap.1.4.) thou hast discovered thy shame, or nakedness, or prostituted thy self, (that is the meaning of the phrase, as appeareth, Ezek.23.18. Levit.20.17,18. a defect of the pronoun; as Lev.18. 6.) when (so is the copulative used, Gen.14.14. Chap.37.9,36. & 53.2.) thou wentest up; to wit, unto thy bed, set aloft, in open view, ver.7. there to defile thy self. See the like form of speech, in the like notion with the same quick, and concise manner of delivery, employing much indignation against, and detestation of, the fact mentioned, Gen.49.4. They were from the resemblance used here by the Prophet, that understand this passage, of withdrawing her self from Gods protection, and abiding under his wing: as allo thole of the Jewish Doctors, who suppole all this, together with the former passage, ver.6,7. to respect that injunction, Exod.21.24,25. that whereas God had commanded them, if they built him any altar, to make it, either of earth, or of rude rag, and to place it in some hidden place, (though that be not in the text) and to set it on the plain ground there; the had built altars of hewen stone to set them aloft, in high places, and gone up to them by degrees: as also those, both of them, and ours, feem to narrow it too much, who expound it, as if it were faid, that rising from the lide, or bed, there, in his Temple, the had immediately gone up to her idols bed, in her high places: for howloever, some such charge is entred against her, Ezek.23.38,39. to wit, that the lame day that the had committed idolatry with her idols, the had prefumed to repair to Gods houle: Yet the meaning of the text here leems more general, that falling off from God, the had joyned her self unto idols, and not in private only, retained monuments of them, but in publick view allo, committed acts of ſpiritual uncleanneſs with them, See Ezek. 14.6. & 23.17,41 Nor can their interpretation be admitted, who render it, following the old Latine, thou hast beside me, or at my side, that is, fay they, in my Temple, in my light, proſtituted thy ſelf: as reſpecting what Ahaz and Manaſſes did, 2 King. 16.11. 15. and 21.4,5,7. becauſe the words of the text will not bear it: nor doth that ſeem probable, which ſome others render, concerning the laſt word, which, to ſit the Latine, they render in an active ſenſe, thou haſt enlarged them to aſcend; expounding it, by the ſame term uſed, Gen.31 10,12. for though the verb admit either notion, yet the uſe of it before, in the ſenſe commonly received, here carrieth it the other way. See ver.7. no more then that, which the Greek giveth thou haſt there offered thy ſacrifices: as Joſh.8. 31. though that agree better with what the former place, ver. 7. hath. But the Prophet is in another reſemblance here.

thou haſt enlarged thy bed] Thou haſt encreaſed thine idolatry more and more, by the multitude of thine altars; or by enlarging the Temples, and places built, for the exerciſe thereof: as 1 King. 11.7. & 21.3. like a ſtrumpet, that makes her bed, or room larger: or maketh many beds, and rooms, to receive, and entertain the more company, 2 Chron.28.24.25. Jer.2.28. & 11.13. Ezek.16. 25,16,24,25,31. and 23.14. See ver.7. So, enlarge, or widen, the place of thy tent, to receive the more Inhabitants, Chapter 54. 2.

and made a covenant with them] So the old Latine, and ſome of the Jewiſh. Thou haſt engaged thy ſelf to their idols, by entring into covenant with them, Deut.7.2.-4. 2 King. 16.10. Heb. and cut thee out, or cut thee downe from them, or more then they. Now howſoever it be true, that the word of cutting out, be applyed unto coveananting; the reaſon whereof, ſee on, Chap 28.15. from Jer. 34.8,18. Yet becauſe neither the word is found ſo uſed, but where the word covenant, is expreſſed; nor are perſons ſaid, to cut covenant from one, but to cut covenant with him, as in the place before pointed to, and elſewhere; ſome other ſenſe of the words is to be ſought out: where, to paſs by thoſe, who, ſeeming to wander far from the ſenſe of the words here, read it, thou haſt cut thee ſome of them, made Eunuchs of them: or Chap 39.7. though of luch, the word be ſometime uſed, Levit.22.24. & Deut.23.1. Some others render it, and thou haſt cut it thee out (to wit, thy bed. ſeeing ſpoken of) larger then it was; (of which ſort of ſpeech, ſee on Chap.5.6. & 55.1.) that is, lopped trees, in thy groves, (Chap. 14. 8. & 37.24. to make room for thine Altars, or, Temples, built for the ſervice of thine idols; and herein ſtriven to out ſtrip in thine idolatries, either thine idolatrous Anceſtors, Jer. 16.11,12. as ſome; or other idolatrous heathen, Ezek. 5.6. as others: this latter ſeems more probable, then the former; becauſe of Anceſtors, there ſeems no hint, at all, either before, or after; of ſtrangers, there doth. Howbeit, ſome other, both the fore-going branch, and this, with ſomewhat that followeth, to a particular act of Ahaz, who ſeeing at Damaſcus, an altar erected to the honour of ſome, either Syrian, or Aſſyrian, idol, tar greater then that of the true God, at Jeruſalem, ſent a pattern of it to Uriah, the High-Prieſt, to have luch another made: for him, 2 King. 16. 10,15. 2 Chron. 28.23. and they render the text, thou haſt enlarged thy bed, and haſt cut it out for thy luſt; taking a pattern from them: and ſome ſuch thing may be hinted; but the text ſeems much more large.

thou loveſt their bed where thou ſaweſt it] This ſome alſo refer to the altar, that Ahaz law at Damaſcus, and was to much taken with it, 2 King. 16.10. of whom, ſome alſo render the words, thou haſt cut out for thy ſelf from them, whom thou loveſt, their bed, in the place, which thou haſt provided for it: and the defects, both of the relative, as ver.3. and of the pronoun it, as Chap.46.11. are very frequent; but the pauſes will hardly admit this conſtruction, Heb. thou loveſt their bed, in the place thou ſaweſt; that is, the company of them, as Num.31.17. Judg.21.12. See Jer.2.25. wherefoever thou ſaweſt them: and ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors obſerve it, as a tranſgreſſion of that inhibition, Deut.12.13. but that there, is far beneath the guilt of the crime: it rather, ſo read, imports their monuments to this ſpiritual intoxication luch, where with, upon any the leaſt occaſion, in any place, at any time given, the was as a common ſtrumpet delighting in ſuch filthinds, preſently enflamed, Ezek.23.14,16. a defect of the particle, ſo as Chap.44.12. & 48.4. and of the relative, as before; or, thou loveſt their bed; thou prepareſt it, or, providedſt it, room; to wit, for them, to entertain them in: for the verb ſign fies, not to ſee only, but to prepare, or, provide, alſo; as Exod.18.21. and ſo the word alſo parallel to it, Gen.22. 8. and the noun is frequently uſed for room, or place: as Deut.23. 12. Chap.56.6. and in the plural maſculine, for ſpaces, or ranges, 2 Chr.23.15. Chap.22.18,& 23.2.1. and this I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe of the word: but that which ſome ſay here, of a monument, as if the word were ſo taken, 2 Sam.18.18. namely, that it may there alſo be rendred, as our verſion alſo hath it, as well Abſalomes place, as Abſalomes monument, that notion ſeems not to ſuit ſo well here. Howbeit, becauſe the word properly ſignifies an hand; and the old Latine renders it, with an open hand; as if the latter word were not a verb, but a noun, ſome Popiſh Writers would have it to mean, with an open hand; that is, not covertly, but openly, without ſhame, or with the hand beckning to, and inviting company, and cuſtomers to her: as Chap. 13. 2. and 65.2. Prov.1.24 or, with open-hand, liberally, hiring luch, and ſparing no coſt to ſatisfie her filthy luſt, ver. 9. Ezek.23.31-34. but one of their own coat, doth ingenuouſly acknowledge, that no ſuch noun, as they here dream of, is at all found in Scripture: in who would therefore, expound it of the workmans hand; put, as he ſuppoſeth, for his work or workmanſhip; as we ſay a mans hand, for, his handwriting; the efficient, for, the effect: drawing in hither, that of Abſolons pillar, and applying it to Ahaz his altar; of both which before. Others, of the adulterers hand, in an obſcene notion, not fit to be expreſſed. But thus men out of a prepoſterous affection, perverſly employ and ſtrain their wits, to ſupport and bear out a vitious verſion.

V. 9. And thou wentest to the King with oyntment, and didſt increaſe thy perfumes] Another crime charged upon this State is, the ſending Embaſſadors to foraign Nations with preſents, and in moſt baſe manner, ſubmitting, and bowing down, to them, 2 King. 16.7,8. Chap.10.4. either to crave aid and aſſiſtance from them, 2 King.16.8,9. Chap.30.1,6. & 31.1. Jer. 2.18,36. Ezek.17.15. Hoſ. 5. 13. & 12. 1. or to curry grace, and find favour with them, 2 King.18.14,15. Chap. 10.4. and 33.7. or to communicate with them, in their idolatries. 2 King. 16.7,8. Ezek.16,26,28,32,33. and 23. 16, 40.

And thou wenteſt] Or, Thou haſt gone alſo v. 8. gone, either in perſon thy ſelf, as Ahaz, 1 King. 16.10. or, by thy meſſengers, as the Centurion is faid to have come unto Chriſt, Mat. 8. 5. compared with Luk.7. 3,4,6. Chriſt himſelf to the old world, 1 Pet. 3. 19. with 2 Pet. 2.5. and to Epheſus, Eph. 2.17. for the word is ſuppoſed to be uſed, Cant. 4.8. or, haſt reflected, or obſerved, as our margent renders it: and ſo one of the Jewiſh Commenters, thou haſt ſending beheld: So it ſhould be a defective, or complexive form of ſpeech, as ſome of ours make it, reading the text thus; Thou lookeſt about to the King, that is, thou lookeſt about for ayd, (as Pſal.142. 4.) and ſendeſt to the King; and ſuch forms are uſual. See Chap. 38. 17,21. but there ſeems no need thereof here. The word indeed ſignifieth, moſt uſually, to view, or behold, Job 20.9. & 33.14, 27.&

27.& 35.5,13. but ſometime alſo, to preſent, or to render a preſent, as appeareth by the noun thence deduced, uſed for a preſent, as appeareth by the noun thence deduced, uſed for a preſent, 1 Sam. 9.7. that which I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe of it in this place, thou haſt preſented the King with oyntment. The old Latine rendreth it, thou haſt decked thy ſelf for the King with oyntments, and perfumes; as harlots uſe to doe, when they are to entertain their companions, Ezek.23.40. Prov.7.17. but for this uſe of this word, I find no ground.

to the King] For, Molech, Lev.20.2. ſay ſome; becauſe the word hath the notion of a King in it: whence the variety of reading, Jer.49.1. Zeph.1.5. Others, by the King, underſtand here, the King of Aſſyria, to whom Ahaz, both ſent, and went, 2 King. 16. 8—10. Others, the King of Egypt, whom, divers of them, at diverſe times, had graved help from, againſt the Aſſyrian, and Chaldean, 2 King.17.4. Chap.30.1. & 31.1. Jer.37.5,7. Ezek.29. 16. and others again, of the Babylonians, or Chaldeans, Jer.51. 59. but the word ſeems to be taken collectively: not of any one particular, either King, or kingdome; but of ſeeing indeterminately, ſometime to one, ſometime to another, Jer. 2.36. Hoſ. 7. 11.

with oyntment] Heb. with oyle, as Pſal.133.2. & 141.5. Eccl. 7.1. Amos 6.6. of precious oyntment wherewith that land ſeemed to be ſtored, ſee Chap.39 2. among which, their balſome peculiar to that country, ſeems to have been a principal. See Gen 43.11. Jer.8.22. & 46.11. Ezek.27.17. and of this, eſpecially, many understand it here.

and didſt increaſe thy perfumes] Or, haſt multiplyed thy confections; for the word is more general, and comprehendeth as well oyntments, as perfumes, Exod. 30.25,35. whence the word that ſignifies, a confectioner; ſo rendred, 1 Sam. 8. 13. See alſo, Eccl.10.1. Job 41.31. that is, either thou haſt uſed abundance of them, to prepare, and fit thy ſelf for them; (ſo, to multiply waſhing, for, to waſh abundantly, Pſ.51.2. & to multiply ſope, for, to uſe abundance of ſope, Jer. 2. 22.) or ſent abundance thereof to them, to woo, and win them to thee. Which latter ſeems the more likely. See Jer.2 33. and 4. 30. Hoſh.12. 1.

and didſt debaſe thy ſelf, even unto hell] Heb. make low, or lay low; but uſed here, in a reciprocal, though not form, yet notion; as Pſal.113.6. Jer.13.18. thou haſt laid thy ſelf low, or debaſed thy ſelf, as one that boweth himſelf down to the ground, or to the loweſt ground, as if thou wouldſt goe even into the ground, or the grave. See chap. 51. 21. an allufion, as ſome think to ſuch vile and baſe ſtrumpets, who, among the Greeks, had their name, from proſtituting themſelves on the ground; yea, under the ground, in cellars, and vaults, and in tombs, and monuments, ſometimes. I conceive rather, from ſuch, as in a moſt ſubmiſs, and ſervile manner, caſt themſelves at the feet of thoſe, whom they ſue, and ſeek to, for ought; as if they would creep into the very ground. See Chap. 10. 4. for I ſuppoſe they fwerve from the Prophets intent, who conceive the meaning to be, that they had, by theſe their abominable courſes, brought themſelves to a very low condition, by ſuch like forms of ſpeech ſometime expreſſed, Pſal. 7. 5. & 63.9 & 88. 3,4,6. Chap. 25.12. & 26.5,6. and 47. 1. that which yet is true, Chap.29 4. and the was forewarned of, Jer. 2.25. But this ſeems to look another way.

V. 10. Thou art wearied in the greatneſs of thy waies] Thou haſt even tired thy ſelf out, with the length of thy Journeys, ſending to and fro, ſo far abroad, See Jer.2.38. Ezek. 33.40. Howbeit, ſome take it, as ſpoken in reference to their inſatiable idolatrous deſires, as therein reſembling the way, and courſe of baſe harlots, Prov. 30. 19. But that place doth not parallel to fitly with this.

yet ſaidſt thou not There is no hope] Though thou faweſt that all thy toiling, and tiring out thy ſelf was in vain, it was all but loſt labour; yet thou wouldeſt not give over, but goe on ſtill deſperately, in that toilſome, and chargeable courſe. Heb. it is deſperate. See Jer. 2. 25. & 18.12. the diference is not unfitly ſupplyed; as Chap.41.11. & 49.4.

thou haſt found the life of thine hand] Thou ſtill imagineſt, that by theſe courſes thou ſhalt find at length, or haſt already found, and attained that, which ſo much thou deſireſt, ſufficient means, and ayds to ſupport thee, and to ſtrengthen thine hand. See Hoſ. 12. 8. the life of the hand, for, the ſtaff of it, as, by ſome, the life of the head, for, life, and means of life, and ſupport, by the induſtry of the hand acquired; and either of theſe will ſuit well with the ſenſe above-delivered: for they ſeem to love too far out of the way, that would have the meaning to be, that either their pains and toyle, in ſeeking abroad for, or their idol-worſhip, were as pleaſant and delightful to them, as their life; (of which kind of expreſſion, ſee Pſal. 30.5. & 63.3.) or, then food, or meat, whereby, life is ſuſtained. Or thus in form, ſee, Job 23.12, Job.1.4,22. & the 2 yet further, who expound it, thou ſetteſt thy living by thine hand, that is, thou maintainſt thy ſelf (as common harlots uſe to doe, thereof in Latine ſo termed) by thy filthy earnings. For neither doth the Prophet ſeem to be in that argument here, and the contrary rather is implyed, both in the fore-going branch: as alſo Ezek.16. 27——24. Howbeit, becauſe the word here rendred life, as it properly ſignifies, and is moſt commonly uſed, doth alſo ſignifie a troop, or company, conſiſting of living creatures, men, or beaſts, 2 Sam.23.11. Job 38. 39. Pſal.68. 30. ſome late Writers here render it, thou haſt found a troop of thine hand, that is ſay they, forces that will be ready at hand to aſſiſt thee upon all occaſions. Not might this ſuit, if attention ſeem altogether inſupportable, (ſee ver. 13.) but that as by ſome queſtioned, whether that word doe in any place at all ſo ſignifie; and I goe rather, therefore, with what was before propounded.

therefore thou waſt not grieved] Therefore the pains ſeemed no pains, but a pleaſure, rather, to thee; becauſe by ſuch means thou didſt hope, and madeſt full account to accomplish thine ends, and what thou deſireſt, (as Gen.19 20. with 31.40.) and ſeemeſt ſometime ſo to do, 2 King. 10.7,8,9. though it proved otherwiſe afterward in the end, 2 Chron.28. 20,21. Chap. 7.17. & 8 7.8. or, as ſome render it, thou waſt not wearied, or, tired; as the other word before in the front of the verſe; as it be had ſaid, though thou haſt toiled, and tired thy ſelf, yet thou wouldeſt not be weary, wouldeſt not give over: the word properly ſignifies lick, or wickedneſs, as Chap 57.2.1. it may well be rendred, either thus, or the other way, as ſometime alſo it is, Prov.23 35. Jer.5. 3. The old Latine rendreth it, therefore thou haſt not ſpared; that is, tay they that follow it, thou haſt not fought by prayers to me, becauſe thou thoughteſt that thou haſt no need of my help, thou haſt ayd ſufficient from others; but the verb is never found ſo to ſignifie in the ſame here uſed.

V. 11. And of whom haſt thou been afraid, or feared,] Some ſuppoſe the words to be taken, as an aggravation of her ſin, by her impudency in it, that the neither feared, or regarded God, or Man, ſhood in no aw, nor had any ſhame of either: as Luk. 18.4. See ver. 11. Others, as a preoccupation, & meeting with ſuch pretended excuſes, for her ſeeking to forrein forces for aſſiſtance; to wit, out of the fear that the conceived of ſuch powerful adverſaries, as were combined together againſt her, Chap.7. 2. implying, that noſe ſo fear of them ought not to have prevailed ſo much with her, as to make her to break with, and to forget God, who could, and would, have ſecured her againſt all ſuch fears, had the relyed upon, and continued loyal to him, Chap. 7.7,9. This may ſeem not improbable. Howbeit, I conceive the purpoſe of the Prophet, in theſe words, to be ſomewhat other, to wit, to tax her for want of the fear of God ſimply, as the main ground of her ſecure, and pertinacious obſtinacy, both in this, and other her ſinful courſes; that which in the cloſe of the verſe, is in plain terms expreſſed.

of whom haſt thou been afraid, or feared] The former word ſignifieth a careful, or ſolicitous fear, 1 Sam. 9.5. & 10.2. Jer.17.8. and 38.19. the latter, any fear in general: the copulative is here uſed, and may be retained; as Chap. 8. 12,13. and then it ſuggeſteth; but it taken for the diſcretive, as oft it is (See Chap. 44.10. & 45.10.) then it diminiſheth: the words may be rendred according to the latter; whom didſt thou dread, or fear? that is, whom haſt thou any dread, or fear, at all, of? Or, which I conceive to be the firſter, whom ſhouldeſt thou have dreaded, and feared? Whom oughteſt thou to have been afraid of, as one that would certainly be avenged on thee, for thy wicked and croſſe carriages, according to what he had long before threatned? Lev.26.14-23, 24. this form is oft uſed in ſuch a notion of duty; as chap. 26. 9. Jer. 2. 8. and elſewhere.

that thou haſt lied,] Or, rather, when, (as Gen.4.13. Pſal.75.2.) thou lieſt, that is, dealeſt diſſloyally, or unfaithfully, with me? as Joſh.7.11. Pſal.8.44.47. Chap.63.13. whoſe wrath and indignation ſhould thou have feared, when thou dealeſt ſo wickedly and unfaithfully with me: Mal.3.5.

and haſt not remembred me] Or, but (as ver.3.) thou didſt not think upon me; to carry thy ſelf towards me, according to thy duty, Eccl.12.1. Pſ.106.7. for they ſeem to go aſide from the drift of the text, who expound it of flattering the King of Aſſyria, 2 King.16.7.

nor laid it to thine heart:] Heb. thou didſt not lay, or put it upon thine heart; as ver.1. thou didſt not conſider, what the iſſue of theſe things would be, Chap. 47 7. A learned late Writer would have it run thus; whom waſt thou afraid of, or didſt thou fear, that thou ſhouldſt lie? to wit, in denying thy ſins, when charged with them by my Prophets: ſure it is not out of fear of me: for thou didſt not think of me, or mind me at all. But this I ſhall refer to the judgment of others.

have I not held my peace even of old, and thou feareſt me not?] Or, is it not, becauſe I have held my peace, or been ſilent, and that for a long time, (Heb. from antiquity as Chap.42.14.) that (as Chap. 46.5.) thou feareſt me not? See the like ſyntax, Jer.7.19. My lenity and forbearance of thee hitherto, for a long time together, maketh thee, not to ſtand in awe of me, but to proceed obſtinately in thy wicked courſes, and goe on from evil to worſe, Eccl. 8. 11. Pſal. 36. 1,2. and 50.21.22. and 55.19. Chap. 26. 10. Jer. 48. 11.

V. 12. I will declare thy righteouſneſs, and thy works;] I will hold my peace or to bear me no longer (Jer. 44. 16.) I will declare and lay open, thy lewd and wicked courſes, and convince thee of them; not by a verbal reproof, but by a real rebuke, by taking vengeance on thee for them. So Pſal. 5.21. Chap. 42.14.

thy righteouſneſs] Spoken, either ac cording to their own eſtimation, who deemed their own ways & courſes, to be all right and juſt, Prov.

Prov. 16.2. & 21.2. & 30.12. Or, would ſtill have them, at leaſt, reputed ſuch, Jer.2.26. Prov.30.20. Or, it is ſpoken, rather, ironically, thy righteouſneſs, that is, thy wickedneſs, thy naughtineſs. See the like manner of ſpeech, Gen.3.22. and the words righteous, and righteouſneſs, uſed; where in the parties ſpoken of, nothing leſs, is preſumed, or intended, Chap. 64,6. Mic.7.4.

for they ſhall not profit thee.] Heb. and they ſhall not profit thee; which need not be altered. Thy courſes, that thou truſteſt to, ſhall do thee no good, ſhall ſtand thee in no ſtead, but ſhall rather do thee miſchief and prove thy bane, in the end. So Prov.10.2. with 21.6,7. & 11.3,4,5,6. See 2 Chr.28.20, ch.28.15,17,18.& 30.2,3,5.& 31.2,3. & 36.6. Ezek. 29. 6,7. The fore-mentioned Writer readeth the words, by way of interrogation, ſhould I declare thy righteouſneſs, and lay open thy works, thy wicked ways? it would be to no end, they would do thee no good? it would not prevail with thee, or avail ought for the bettering of thee: But this ſeems not ſo natural.

V. 13. When thou crieſt, let thy companies deliver thee] When thou crieſt unto me for help, amidſt thy diſtreſſes, I will return thee no anſwer, afford thee no help but turn thee over to thoſe, and ſend thee to them, whom, forſaking me, thou haſt relyed upon, and truſted unto; thy troops, (Heb. thy gathered ones; as Ezek, 22. 20.) either, of ſtrangers, ver. 9, 10. or, of ſtrange gods, Chap. 65. 11. See Deut.32.37,38. Judg.10.13,14. Jer. 2. 28. and 11.12 but the wind ſhall carry them all away] Heb. and, as ver. 3. a puff of wind ſhall blow them all away, Chap.40.24.& 64.6. Dan.2.35. Hoſ. 4.19.

vanity ſhall take them] Or, ſhall take them away; as Hoſ 11.13. the ſame, in effect, with the former: they ſhall all come to nought, Chap. 31.3. a defect of the pronoun to be ſupplyed from the former branch; as, Chap. 13.8,15.

But he that putteth his truſt in me, ſhall poſſeſs the land, and ſhall inherit mine holy mountain.] A word of conſolation, ſubjoyned for the ſtay and ſupport of the faithful, to aſſure them yet of protection and deliverance in theſe calamitous times, Jer.15.19,21. & 39.17,18. & 45.5. Ezek.11.16. and of return to poſſeſs their land again, and to enjoy Gods ordinances in his Temple, Chap.10.21. and 30.18,19.

putteth his truſt in me] Maketh me his refuge, or place of retreat, (for ſo the word properly ſignifies, Pſal.104.19. Chap.4.6. & 25.4.) and looketh not after other vain ſhelters and ſuccours, Pſal. 2. 12. & 40. 4. & 46. 1. See Chap.28.15,16,17.

poſſeſs the Land] Pſal.37. 3,11. or, inherit the land; returning again to their former inheritances, Jer.3.18. & 12. 15. there is in the word, an alluſion to the firſt diſtribution of the land, by lot, Num. 34.2.13.

inherit mine holy mountain] Heb. poſſeſs my mountain of holineſs; as Pſal.15.1. Chap.11. 9. enjoy my ſacred ordinances there. See Chap. 56. 5, 7.

V. 14. And he ſhall ſay] Or, And it ſhall be ſaid: for the verb is uſed here indefinitely; as Chap.59.19. Mal.1.4. Proclamation ſhall be made, to remove all impediments that might hinder Gods people, in their paſſage, from the places of their captivity unto their own Countrey. See Chap.40.3.

Caſt ye up, caſt ye up;] Or, Make cauſies: for their ſafer and more convenient paſſage. See Chap.35. 8. & 62.10. Prov.19.19.

prepare the way] Make plain the ſurface of it, by ſweeping away, and removing out of it, whatſoever might make it uneaſie, or unſafe. So Mal. 3. 1. See the uſe of the word, Gen. 24. 31. Lev. 14.36. Pſal. 80.9 compared with Chap.5.2.

take up the ſtumbling-block out of the way of my people.] Heb. lift up, or take off, or take away; as the word is uſed, Lev.6.10.15. Dan.8.11. the ſtumbling, either block, or ſtone; as Chap.8.15. and this here more properly: the word is general, and imports any thing, that man, or child, may trip, or ſtumble at, and be indangered thereby to fall. See Lev. 19.14 Pſal.91. 11, 12.

V. 15. For thus ſaith the high, and the lofty God,] Exceeding high; as Chap.52. 13. whom heaven, even the higheſt heaven is not able to hold. 1 King. 8. 27. but is infinitely higher then the higheſt of any creature, Pſal. 83. 18. & 113.4. Eccl. 5. 8. far higher then the higheſt created heavens, Pſal.113.4. Eph.4.10. and is ſaid therefore to ſtoop, in taking notice of the things, as well in heaven, as on earth, Pſal. 113. 5, 6.

that inhabiteth eternity,] As 1 Tim.6. 16. who alone hath immortality, who alone is truly eternal, without beginning, or ending, Pſal. 90. 2. not immortall only, but immutable, Mal. 3. 6. Jam. 1. 17. or as ſome, that inhabiteth, or abideth for ever: but the former ſeems more emphatical; and they ſeem to disjoynt the text, who not regarding the points of diſtinction, render the words; Thus ſaith the high one, who the lofty place inhabiteth perpetually.

whoſe name is holy;] Heb. and holy is his name; as Luk.1.49. the pronoun demonſtrative, with the conjunction copulative, put for the relative: So Judg.13.2. Ruth 2.1. his name, for, himſelf, Pſal.99. 3,9. who is not holy only, but alone holy; as alone wiſe, 1 Tim. 1. 17. and alone good, Mar. 19. 17. ſo holy, as none, but he, 1 Sam. 2.2. ſo, that thoſe, who are in part holy, by participation from him, are not at all holy, if they come once in compariſon with him, Job 9.2. & 15.14,15. Some joyn this, and the former together, thus reading the words, inhabiting eternity, and holy is his name; or, whoſe name is inhabitant of eternity, and holy: ſo it ſhould be only the demonſtrative for the relative; as Chap. 55. 15. And true it is, that divers attributes are ſometimes joyned together, to make up one complexed name; as ch.9.6. But of that here, there is no neceſſity; and the text ſo read, runneth nothing ſo ſmoothly, as it doth the other way.

I dwell in the high and holy place;] In heaven, Chap 32. 15. & 66. 1. Pſal.11.4. & 113.5. & 115.3. where is nothing but holineſs, 2 Pet. 3. 13. Rev. 21. 27. whereof alſo the Holy of Holies in the Temple, his Palace on earth was a type, Exod.26. 34. Pſal. 78.69. Heb.9.8,12,24. Heb. I will, or, ſhall inhabit high and holy: the future, for the preſent; as Chap.53. 1,7. the word, the ſame that before, ſave that the participle there, the verb here; a defect of the ſubject, or ſubſtantive; as Chap. 26. 5. & 33. 5. nor ſee I any good ground, why ſome late Interpreters, of ſpecial note, ſhould rent this branch off from Gods ſpeech, and annex it to his ſtyle, rendring the words, Who dwell in the high and holy; omitting the pronoun, which is here emphaticall, and expreſſed therefore in the text: as alſo ver. 12. Chap. 43.12 & 45,7,12,13. Howbeit, had they thus rendred it, as a part of Gods ſpeech; I that inhabit, or dwell in an high and holy place, doe dwell alſo with him, &c. I ſhould not diſſent from them; the ſuppreſſion of the relative being very frequent. (See v. 3.8.) the ſupply from the former branch nothing unuſuall; as Gen.1.16. and Gods dwelling, in, or with the perſons here deſcribed, in this ſpeech of his, being principally intended.

with him alſo,] To wit, doe I dwell: or, him alſo, doe I inhabit: for it may be as well the bare ſigne of a noun under regiment, as the particle of concomitancy. I dwell, or inhabit both with him, and in him, Joh.14.17,23. Rom.8.10,11. 2 Cor.6.16. & 13. 5. Eph. 3. 17. Heb. and him, or with him; as ver. 8.

that is, of a contrite and humble ſpirit] Heb. a contrite, and low of ſpirit; or, any one of a contrite, and lowly ſpirit. See Ch.66, 15.

contrite] So, the Lord is neer unto all the broken of heart, he will ſave the contrite of ſpirit, Pſal.34.18. that is ſuch as be of a broken heart, and of a contrite ſpirite; and, the ſacrifices of God are a broken heart; a broken and contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not deſpiſe, Pſal. 51.17. See of the word, on Chap.53.5,10. By it here, is expreſſed an inward contrition of heart, and breaking of ſpirit, ſoftned and humbled by apprehenſion of wrath, joyned with a deep ſenſe of Godly grief, ſincere repentance, and ſerious remorſe for ſin, as ſin, as offenſive, diſpleaſing, and grievous to God, 2 King.22.19. 2 Chron.32.26. & 33.12. Ezek.6.9. Act. 2. 37,38. 2 Cor.7. 10.

humble ſpirit] One demiſs, ſubmiſs, low, lowly of ſpirit. So, Prov. 16. 19. and 29. 23. In the ſoul of ſuch an one, God will take up his lodging, in ſuch he deſires, and delights to dwel; as in the higheſt heavens, ſo in the loweſt hearts: the metaphor is taken from the plain countrey, or the vale, that lyeth lower then the hills, Joſh. 10.40. & 11.2,16. Jer.17.26. & 32.44. & 33.13.

to revive the ſpirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones] Heb. to quicken, or make to live, the ſpirit of humble ones,——and the heart of contrite ones: to quicken, or make to live, for to keep in life, (as Exod.1.17. Pſal.22.29. Chap. 38. 16.) when ready to faint, and go away, Chap.40.29. or, to comfort, relieve, refreſh, and reſtore, Pſal.71.20.& 80.18. & 85.6. and 119,25,40,50,88,93,107,159. Mat.11.28. heart, and ſpirit, all one, as before.

V. 16. For I will not contend for ever, neither will I be always wroth:] This reſolution with God, not to contend for ever, but to give over ſtriving with man, is ſometime in wrath; when God, after exerciſe of his patience, and forbearance, for ſome ſpace of time, having made trial of divers courſes, to reclaim ſinners; and finding that nothing will prevail, reſolveth now to ſtrive no longer with them, but to give them over, and leave them to themſelves, as perſons incorrigible, and deſperately obdurate: as the Phyſitian doth the Patient, that will not be ruled by him, or, whoſe diſeaſe, he deemeth incurable. So Gen. 6.3. Ch.1.5. ſometime, in mercy, when ſeeing his people, now brought very low, and brought down on their knees; yea, though ſometime, not ſo ſincerely, or not ſo thorowly, eſpecially where the heart is yet upright, he ſtayeth his hand, and either reſtraineth, and refraineth his wrath, and further proſecution of any harſh and rigorous courſe, for the preſent, or is wholly reconciled again to them. See 1 King. 21. 27,29. 2 King.14. 26,27. Pſal. 78. 34——38.& 85. 3. So here: and ſo Pſal. 103. 9. He will not always chide, nor retain wrath for ever. See alſo Lam. 3. 31,32.

for the ſpirit ſhould fail before me, and the ſouls which I have made,] The verb here uſed ſignifies ſometime, to cover, or, to be covered, Pſal. 65.13. & 73.6. ſometime, (eſpecially where applyed, as here, to the ſoul, or ſpirit) to be over-whelmed, or, to faint; as one that is muffled and ſtifled, Pſal.61. 2. & 77. 3. and 102. title, & 107.5. & 142.3. & 143.4. Lam.2.11,12,19. Jon. 2. 7. Mans ſpirit would faint, being overſ-pread, or wrapt up in, and overw-helmed with terrour and trouble, and the ſouls, that I made, would fail. The conſideration of Mans infirmity and weakneſs, unable to hold out, when God proceeds in wrath againſt againſt him, doth many times move him, in way of commiſeration, to ſtay his hand, and reſtrain his wrath, Pſal.78.38,39. eſpecially, in dealing with his people, his weak and tender-hearted ones; whom he hath a ſpecial care of, Chap.40.11. ver. 15. that they may not wholly be deſtroyed, or utterly diſheartned and diſcouraged, Job 37.23. Pſal.103.10——14. Chap.27.8.& 42.3. and 48.9,10. and the ſaints plead it themſelves unto him, Pſal.39. 10, 11. & 89. 47, 48. Heb. ſpirit, or wind; and breaths, or blaſts; (not amiſs rendred ſouls) Gen. 7. 15. Pſal.150.6. Prov. 20.27. (words uſed the rather to expreſs the vanity, and imbecillity, of Mans conſtitution and condition. See Chap. 2. 22.) are here, one, and the ſame; as alſo, Job 27.3. Chap.42.5. there is in the latter branch a defect of the relative, as ver.3.8. and of the verb to be ſupplyed from the former branch, as ver.15. the ſouls would faint away, which I have made, Gen.2.7. Eccl. 12.7. Chap. 42.5. and have a regard to, as mine own work, in mine own people, eſpecially, Pſal. 138. 8. 1 Pet. 4.19. And this I conceive to be the genuine ſenſe of the place: howſoever divers Interpreters run other ways; ſome rendring, A ſpirit, or breath, ſhall goe forth from before me, and I will make blaſts, or gales. So the old Latine, which many follow, expounding it, ſome, as of a gentle breath, or blaſt, that ſhould revive and refreſh them, as Pſal. 104.30. others as of a proſperous gale of wind at ſea, that ſhould carry them to their own country again: applying that unto it, Pſal. 143.10. others, A ſpirit from my face (that, is proceeding from me) ſhall inſinuate it ſelf into you; and I will cauſe you to breath: as he ſaid before, to revive, and refreſh them, Ezek.37.9,10,14. Others, again, My ſpirit ſhall ſlacken, or allay, and the blaſts that I made before. And ſome again, (taking it a clean contrary way) My ſpirit ſhall over-whelm, and deſtroy the breathing ſouls that I made; as Gen. 6.7,17. But theſe all ſtrain the text over-much: Some of them force it againſt its own ſenſe and drift. A late learned Writer would have it rendred from the uſe of the verb, in the Syriack and Arabick tongues, The ſpirit would return from before me: but how that ſhould fitly ſuit here, neither he ſheweth, nor doe I ſee.

V. 17. For the iniquity of his covetouſneſs I was wroth.] Or, For his iniquity of gain; that is, for his unjuſt lucre and gain, by injurious and wrongful courſes, acquired, Mic. 6.9. Luk. 16.9,11. For they ſeem to be over-curious, who ſuppoſe the words, thus conceived, to imply, that it is not the outward Act of fraud, oppreſſion, or the like, either, ſo much or alone, that God regards, as the inward affection, and diſpoſition of the heart: as alſo thoſe, that would have the word rendred, covetouſneſs, to be put here, for all manner of evill concupiſcence, in general, Rom.7. 8. Col. 3. 5. becauſe it is ſaid to be the root of all evill, 1 Tim.6. 10. though it be not unlikely, that this vice be the rather mentioned, becauſe many other ſpring from it, Prov. 1. 16——19. Now ſome conceive it to be ſpoken, with relation to thoſe watchmen, ſpoken of, Chap.56.11. and this vice there taxed in them. But this evill ſeems to have been more general riſe in all ſorts among them, Jer.6. 13. & 8.11. and even thoſe alſo, to have been over-much tainted with it, who yet were not abandoned to thoſe groſs practices of idolatry, nor did run a madding after idols, as thoſe deſcribed before, ver. 3 10.

and ſmote him] See Chap.1.10. & 60.10.

I hid me and was wroth] Or, being wroth, I hid me; or in my wrath I hid me; as in my wrath I ſmote thee, Chap.60.10. for he is wroth firſt, and then ſmites, and hides; though in open view, yet hidingly, becauſe by the hand of another, Chap.10.5. Jer. 1. 14, 15. he ſmites, and then hides himſelf; as one, that in diſpleaſure, having left one to the evil, and harſh uſage of ſome other, withdraweth himſelf out of the way, and having ſhut himſelf up in his cloſet, will not be ſeen, or ſpoken with. 2 Sam.14.24,32. Pſal. 10. 1.27. 7,9. Heb. hiding, I hid, as it is more fully expreſſed, Deut.31.18. See of ſuch defective forms, on Chap. 59. 13. I hid my ſelf, or my face,: a defect of the noun, and affix, my face, ſo oft expreſſed, Deut 31.18. & 32.20. Pſal. 13. 1. & 22.24. and 51. 9. Chap.8.18. & 54. 8. & 59. 2. & 64.7. Ezek.39.23,24,29. or, my ſelf; the active form put for the reciprocal, Chap. 45. 15. as the paſſive form is frequently uſed, 1 Sam.20.19. 1 King.17.3. Pſal.55.13. Chap.28.15. Jer.36.19.

and he went on frowardly, in the way of his own heart] Or, yet (as Chap. 53. 4,10.) he went on, or, walked on, perverſly, (Heb. turning away: as Jer.3.14,22.) in the way of his heart. See Chap. 53.6. Jer.18. 14. & 23.17. though I manifeſted my diſpleaſure, by giving them up to their enemies, Chap. 47. 6. and withdrawing my ſelf, for ſome ſpace of time, from them, Lam.3.43,44. yet they walked on croſly in their own crooked courſes, and would not be reclaimed, Jer. 5. 3.& 8.5,6. or, it may be read, as rendring a reaſon, why God did ſo both ſmite them, and having ſmitten them, withdraw himſelf alſo from them, to wit, becauſe (ſo the particle is not ſeldome uſed, Chap. 52. 15. & 53. 2. & 64. 4, 5.) they perſiſted in their own croſs, and rebellious courſes, refuſing to repent, and return from them. See Levit. 26. 23, 24. Zach. 7. 11, 12. and this I conceive to be the proper ſenſe of the place.

V. 18. I have ſeen his ways, and will heal him] That is, ſay ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, I ſee his repentance, and I will therefore reſtore him. But the word, ways, ſeemes rather to have reference, to the way of his own heart, or mind, mentioned before; ver. 17. and that way moſt goe; and ſo the text would be rendred; I ſee his ways, but as Ch. 51.23. I will heal him; or, Though I ſee his ways, yet I will heal him. A defect of the former particle, as Ch. 30. 20. the latter in the ſame notion, as chap. 53.10. Though I ſee what his ways and courſes are, how untowardly and obſtinately, they have carried themſelves: yet for mine own names ſake, I will not wholly withdraw, or for ever withhold my mercy from them but will reſtore them again, Ch.43.22,25. & 48. 8-11. Ezek. 36.17-23,32. So is the word of healing, commonly uſed See chap. 19. 22. & 30.26. & 58.8. Jer 3. 22. & 17.14. & 30. 17. & 33. 6. Lam. 2.13. Hoſ.5.13. & 6.1. & 7.1. & 11.3. & 14.5. Pſal.60.2.

I will lead him alſo] Heb. and I will lead him. I will conduct him in ſafety to his own Country, Chap. 52.12. & 58.11. See Chap.14.1,2. & 40.11. & 52.12. Jer.3.14. & 32.37. Some of the Rabbines expound it, I will give reſt to him, or cauſe him to reſt: as Chap.14.3. & 63.14. but the roots are divers.

and reſtore comforts unto him, and to his mourners] I will reſtore abundance of comfort to them, in liew of thoſe manifold ſorrows, and diſcomforts, that they had during their captivity, endured. See Chap.14.1. & 66.13. comforts, for, abundance of comforts: as Chap.66.11.

to his mourners] The perſons, whom God principally reſpecteth, and hath a more ſpecial eye unto, in the favours and mercies here promiſed, the reſidue partaking therein only with them, and for them; thoſe that mourn in Sion, Chap.61.2,3. or, for Sion, Chap.66. 10. that mourn for the deſolations of her, for Gods judgements upon her, and for, both their own ſins, and the ſins of others, as the procuring cauſes thereof, Ezr.9.6. Ezek.6.9. & 7.16. & 9.4. Zach. 12.10. Mat.5.4.

V. 19. I create the fruit of the lips; peace, peace, to him that is afar off, and to him that is neer, ſaith the Lord:] Some carry on theſe words all in one tenour, I create, or, make the fruit of the lips, to be peace, peace &c. expounding the text, either of Gods own lips, that is, his Word, which he turneth into act, by giving his the peace formerly promiſed them, Pſal.85.8. Chap.55.9. or, of the lips of his Miniſters, and Meſſengers, that bring the glad tidings of peace, and reconcilement with God to his people: God making their words to be, not matter of peace only, but means of peace, between them, and him, Chap.40.1.& 52.7. Rom.5.1. 2 Cor.5.19,20. Eph. 2.14,17. or, of the people of God themſelves, who, whereas formerly, they had nothing, but to talk of war, in their mouths, ſhould now have occaſion given them, to ſpeak of nothing but peace. A learned Writer of good note, ſuppoſeth, that it may be read, and rendred, I create as the fruit of the banks, peace, peace; that is, peace in great plenty, like the fruits of ſuch plants, as grow neer the rivers ſide: and true it is, the banks of rivers are ſometime called their lips: (ſee on Chap. 19.7.) and that the note of ſimilitude is oft omitted; as Chap.33.4,11. But to let paſs the needleſs ſtraining of the text, the pauſes in the original, expreſſed alſo in our verſion, require the members to be taken aſſunder, and read apart.

I create the fruit of the lips] Or, as ſome render it, I will create. Heb. creating; as Chap. 65.17,18. Of the uſe of the word, ſee Chap.4.5. By the fruit of the lips, (to paſs by thoſe, who underſtand comfort, and conſolation, ver.18.) I conceive, with many other, to be underſtood the voice of praiſe, and thankſgiving; as we find it to our hands expounded, Hoſ.14.2. Heb.13.15. that, which God promiſeth to give abundant occaſion of, by the reſtitution of them, Chap.60.18. & 61.3,11. Jer.30.19.

peace, peace] True, firm, ſure, conſtant, abundant, peace; a large meaſure of tranquillity, plenty, proſperity; for the name of peace includeth all theſe, Chap. 48.18. and the gemination of the word imports a large extent of it, 1 Chr.12.18. See Chap. 26.3. the verb ſubſtantive is to be ſupplied; as Pſal.119.165. peace, peace, ſhall be; or, there ſhall be peace, peace.

to him, that is afar off, and to him, that is neer] Heb. to the far, and to the neer one. The ſpeech runs along in the ſingular form, but in a collective ſenſe; becauſe ſpoken of the main body of a people; to thoſe far and neer. As well to him that is abroad in captivity, as to him that abideth ſtill at home; or, to thoſe abroad, as well in places more remote, as in places neerer at hand, Deut.30.3,4. See Chap.11.11,12. or, afar off, and neer; that is, as well Gentile, as Jew: the one being a people, in time paſt, neer unto God, Pſal.148. 14. the other, afar off from him, untill called in, by Chriſt, Act.2. 38,39. Eph.2.12,13,17. Col.1.21. See Chap.56.3. for this, with all the former, though in the firſt place, relating to the ſtate of that people, and in part fulfilled in them, yet doth typically foreſhadow the reſtauration, and enlargement of the Church, under the Meſſias in the Goſpel, where the fuller complement of them is found.

and I will heal him] As ver. 8. ſo the Hebrew, word for word. Howbeit, Some render it, that I may heal them: as Chap. 41. 22. but that ſeems not ſo fit here; peace, as health; being rather, an effect of healing, then a means of cure: if any change be thought of, I ſhould rather chooſe to render it, when I ſhall heal, or, ſhall have healed him; as ver.8. which may well ſeem to have reference alſo to a ſpiritual healing; and may receive ſtrength from what followeth, of the excluſion of thoſe from the peace, before promiſed, who are not ſo healed, ver.20,21.

Ver. 20.

V 20. But the wicked are like the troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt] This, some understand of the wicked enemies of Gods people, who envying their peace and welfare, should be restless in seeking, and striving, by all the means that they could, to disturb, and impeach it. See Est.4.& 5.3. Neh.4.& 6. But the most rather, of the profane, and obstinate wicked ones, among them, vers. 15,19 implying, that they should not have any share, either in that inward tranquility, and settlement of mind, nor in that outward peace and prosperity that those other should enjoy; nor, that none such at all should be let free from captivity, or return to, and be seated in their own country again; but that little benefit, or comfort, should thereby accrue unto them, their minds being so unsettled, Jam. 1.6. and their consciences so unquiet, Job 15.20. that they should never be able to rest, Job 21. 23. or to enjoy any sound, and settled peace, ver. 21. See Chap.65.20.

But] Heb. And: as ver .3.13.

are like] Or, shall be like. See Chap. 65. 13,14.

troubled] Or, driven; to wit, with winds, Jam. 3. 4. but the word signifies properly, to drive away, or, expel, Exod 34. 11. it is used in the next branch, for, to cast out, or, cast up.

when it cannot rest] Or, because it cannot rest, Jon. 1.13,13. and no more can they, Job, 15,21-24.

whose waters cast up mire and dirt] Heb. and the waters thereof, as ver. 15.

cast up] To the shore, when it worketh mire] Or mud. The word is no where else read; the verb only, Prov. 25. 26.

and dirt] This, some expound of the issue of wicked mens practises against Gods people, as producing nothing beneficial to themselves, but sorry trash, such as the Sea is wont to cast up Others, of the effect of Gods judgments upon them, whereby he would work them to repentance; but ineffectually only to discover their own filth, wherewith their hearts are full traught. See Jud.13. Rev.16.8.-11. But these things seems over-curious, and beside the scope of the place

V. 21. There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked] Or, There shal be no peace to such See Chap.48.22.

CHAP. LVIII.

Vers. 1. Cry aloud, spare not;] In the Chapter and the next, some joyn together. In either of them, according to an injunction given him, by God, the Prophet layeth forth the wicked courses of his people; in this, their hypocrisie especially, pretending much devotion, and affiduity, in holy exercises, chiefly in fasting, and prayer; and charging God with neglect of them, notwithstanding their diligence in these duties; whereby the Prophet taketh occasion to enform them of the defects in their faths, and other their devotions, and to instruct them, what manner of service, God requireth of them, and expecteth from them, tubjoyning many gracious promise of sundry blessings from God, upon their services to performed.

Cry aloud] Heb. Cry with the throat: the throat being an instrument of voice, and sound, Psal.69.3. & 115. 7. Or, cry with full throat: as Jer. 22. 6. they cry with full throat after thee: a defect of the adjunct here; as of the subject there. Of which forms of speech, see on Chap. 5. 4. thus we use to say, and it might well be so rendred here; Set up thy throat. Gods speech to the Prophet.

Spare not] Or, refrain not. Howsoever it may be deemed matter of commendation, ordinarily for a man to refrain his tongue, and to be sparing of his speech, Prov.10.19 & 17.27. yet not when mans duty to God requireth it, Psal.40.9,10. or, when God himself shall enjoyn it, Jer. 1. 17. & 19. 2. & 26. 2. Amos 3. 8. Act.4. 19 -21, & 5.19-21,29.& 20.27.or, cry as loud as thou canst. Though intention of voice, or clamor, and loudneste of speech, be in some kind, and some cases, neither needfull, nor decent, Cha.42.2. Pro.7. 11. Eccl.7.8.& 9.17. Eph. 6. 31. yet where the matter is serious and weighty, and men wilfully deaf, and unwilling to hear, loud crying is necessary, and by God himself here required. So Prov.8. 1-3.& 9. 3. Joh.7.28,37.& 12.44.

lift up thy voice like a trumpet] Make use of thy throat instead of a trumpet; not as tone tondly, alluding to the manner of managing a trumpet, which a man holdeth with his hand, and soundeth with his mouth: but to make a loud noise, as a trumpet doth, and to give people warning of evils approaching, which is one special use of the watchmans trumpet, Jer. 6. 1. Ezek. 2. 17-21. & 33 2-9. Amos 3. 6. 8.

and shew my people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sins.] My people; and the house of Jacob; such as one would think, should have least need of any, to be so loud cried unto, or so roundly dealt with, yet their wicked courses, and their averfnes, requiring it; and though such untoward wretches, owned still by God, as his people. See Chap.2.5,6. Mich.6.2,3,5.

V. 2. Yet they seeke me daily, and delight to know my wayes;] As wicked as they are in their practices, yet they make a great shew of much devotion, and of fedulity, affiduity, and diligence, in my ser vice. See the like, Chap. 1. 11 ——15. & 29.13. & 48. 1, 2.

seek me daily] by repairing to my Sanctuary, Chap. 1.12. Jer. 7.9. or, to other places, where my people affemble to serve me. Heb. day day, that is, day by day; or, day after day: as morning morning, Chap.28.19. So Prov.8.30,34.

delight to know my wayes] Make shew as if they so did; contrary to the opinion, and unveiled impiety of those, who profels, not to desire the knowledge of his wayes, Job 21.14. as, they shy themselves upon God; that is, profels to do so, Chap. 48. 2. (to here, they delight to know his wayes; make as though they took great pleasure in hearing ought of them, Ezek. 33.30,31.

as a nation that did righteousness] That walked uprightly, that practised nothing but what was just, and right, Chap. 56. 1. Mic. 6.8. 1 Joh.3.7,10.

and forsook not the ordinance of their God] Heb. forsook not the judgment (that is, the Law; as Jer. 5. 4.) of their God: whose people they profess themselves to be; and whole name yet they will bear, Chap.48.1,2. Jer.8.7.

they ask of me the ordinances of justice] They come to enquire of me, by my Ministers, Priests, and Prophets, what courses they should take, and what I require of them: as if it were of ignorance to me, and for want of intimation, if they did ought amiffe, Jer. 42. 2-21. & 43.2-4.& Ezek.14.1,2. Mal.2.8.

and take delight in approaching to God] Seem to do so; as before.

How be it, some turn all these passages another way; expounding the words according to those, ver. 3. of their continual muttering, and murmuring against God, as if it were said, they demand of me daily, and desire, to know what my mind and meaning is, as if they were a people, that had given me no just cause of offence; they require more just, and equal courses of me, (as if I dealt not justly, and equally with them, Ezek. 18.24.) and desire to approach to God; not in a kind and familiar manner, or dutiful way, to be better acquainted with me or to do me, some service; but to debate, and argue the case with me, as one that dealeth unequally, and injuriously with them, Job 23. 3 ——6. the word is used sometime of an hostile, and malitious approach, Psal.27.1. and 119.150. sometime, of a judicial approach, for tryal, or hearing, and debating of a cause, Exod.22.8. Josh.7.14. Chap.41.1,5. Mal. 3.5. But I conceive that this exposition, and that use of the word fitteth not so well with this place.

V. 3. wherefore have we fasted, (say they, and thou seest not?) They complain that they had fasted again, and again, and worn themselves out, by frequent practices of humiliation, and yet God did not regard, or take notice of it, in regard thereof, to relieve them, and free them from such troubles and afflictions, as they were still annoyed and encombred withall; or, And it is as if he had said, they will expostulate with God, when after some hypocritical performances, and external humiliations, they see not by and by heard, and answered, according to their mind; as if in the most serious, and sincere manner, they had fought him, and served him. See Jer. 2. 5. Mic. 6. 6.

have we fasted] Or, do we fast: that which some understand of the yeerly fet, and solemn fast, on the day of propitiation, Lev. 23.27,29. and this seems to be backed, by that of the Sabbath, ver. 13. For that day was a day of strict rest, Lev.23.28,30,31. as if their formal fasting on that day, were sufficient to expiate and satisfie for all the sins of the whole yeer with them. But others rather expound it, of other more frequent, voluntary, and occasional fasts, such as those, upon some exigencies, undertaken before the captivity, Chap. 22. 12. Jer. 14.12. & 36. 69. Or held, and continued by them, during the time of the captivity, Zach. 7. 3 5. & 8. 19. either publicke, or private, Dan. 9. 3. Zach. 12. 12-14. say they,] A necessary supply; as Chap. 22.13. and 56. 12.

seest not] Or, seest it not; that is, regardest it not; as Psal. 10. 11,13,14. a defect of the pronoun it, here, as there.

wherefore have we afflicted our selves,] Or, do we afflict our souls, that is, our selves; as Psal. 44. 25. & 123.4.to wit, by fasting, Lev.23.27,29.

and thou takest no knowledge ?] Heb. thou knowest not 2as Jer. 3. 13. thou takest no notice of it, of what we do; a defect of the pronoun, as before.

Behold,] Take notice of the reason, why these your performances are not accepted: Ye are faulty, and failing much otherwise in such things, as God requireth, and regards, as much as, yea, much more, then these formalities, as Chap. 1. 15-17. Jer, 14. 12.

in the day of your fasts ye find pleasure] According to this version it might be suppoled, that upon their fast days they took their pleasure, and solaced themselves as those revellers, Ch. 22.12,13. But there is nothing less here intended, and the contrary appears; both by their profession, ver. 3. and Gods concession, ver. 5. Some of those therefore that follow this translation, expound the words, thus rendred, as if it were said; on these very fast-dayes of yours, on which you would seem to be most devout; yea, on that very day of solemn humiliation that ye abstain from food, yet ye abstain not from evil practices; ye follow those courses that ye are most most taken withal, and are as delightful, as any the daintiest dish to you; his 2.12. Prov. 2.14.& 4.16,17. Jer. 9.3. Ezek. 23.38,39. Mat.22.14,23. Luk.18.12. But the words would rather be read, in the day that ye fast, ye finde your own desire, pleasure, or will. Heb, in the day that ye fast, or of your fasting: as, in the day that ye eat, or of your eating, Gen. 2.17. that is, when, or what time ye fast, and ye eat: So Ruth.4.5. in the day that thou buyest, that is, whosoever, or, at what time thou buyest: not need the word, day, whosoever, or, at what time thou buyest: not need the word, day, by which they held their fast; but may be restrained to that very day, on which they held their fast; but may be taken more largely, as Chap.3.18.& 22.12. & 26.1. & 27.2. much lesse to the solemn day of humiliation: For the actions heremuch lesse to the solemn day of humiliation: For the actions hereafter mentioned, were such, as were not practised, nor in likelyhood would be permitted, or could be executed on that day, being no day for matter of judicature; and for that of Naboth, 1 Kin. 21.9, 10. it seems not to have been either enjoyned to be done, or put in execution, on the very fast day: but a fast being proclaimed, as in time of wrath were feared, and some evil expected, a crime was enjoyned withal to make some previous enquiry, for which judgment might be searched, and delinquencies, for which judgment might be searched, and delinquencies, on those that were found guilty of such, that fact, justice being done on those that were found guilty of such crimes, the fast might prove the more effectual. The meaning then I conceive to be, that at those times, whether of that general and solemn annual fast, or other occasional ones, they did not at all break off their sinfull wills, desires, moods, pleasures, or purposes (so for the word here used, doth at large signifie, 1 Sam. 18.25. Eccl.5.1,17. & 8.6. Chap.53.10.) but perfift, and proceed ftill in a resolution and purpole, to purfue them, howsoever they might not be employed publikely, in the acting of them, on that particular day on which the fast was held; but suspended the pract ce on them for the present: not unlike those, of whom another Prophet, Amos 8. 4,5,8. find, for follow; because finding, the end of following; as seeking, for, getting, Eccl. 3 6. and not to finding, as some, Chap 65.1. because this the end of that: and a defect of the pronoun; as, word for the whole own word, ver.13. So, desire, for, your own desire; as it is more fully there expressed: and their own wills, for, the desires of the flesh: and, the wills of the flesh, and thoughts, or, minds: that is, their fleshly desires, as I carnal minds and wills, Eph. 2. 3. Some conceive this place to be parallel to that, Zach 7.5,6. when ye fasted, in fasting fasted ye, or, fasted ye at all to me; to me, I say: and when ye did eat and drink, did not ye eat and drink, not to me, but for your selves: (the former branch the word, that the latter muft be so conceived and supplyed) as if he had laid, You had no more regard to me, in your fasting, then ye had in your eating or feasting: ye did both for your own ends. And so here, in your fastings, ye intend nothing, nor regard ought, save the compassing of your own ends, and satisfying of your own desires: Them you follow, and find even then when you fast. See how what the like also. Hof. 10.1. Israel is an empty vine; he bringeth forth fruit for himself.

and exact all your labours] By labours, some of the Jewish Doctors, whom some of ours allow, understand, their wealth their getings, their gains: so called; because by labour and travel usually achieved, Eccl. 4.8. & 5.16-18. alledging for this interpretation, that place, Prov.5.10. where the word is to used: and accordingly, Pfal.128.2. though another word be there used, the labour of thine hand thou shalt eat: and Eccl 5.19. to rejoyce in ones labours: that is, that wealth and those, which both by labour, hath acquired unto either: And they draw hither the greedinels of gain, and all in them, Chap 56.11. they might better that, Chap.57.17. for the former is special; the latter more general. But others, rather, take the word more largely, and understand by it, their debts, or dues, whether of moneys, or services, to termed, not from the labour and pains taken, in the getting and compassing; but from the griefand pain, thefe are put unto, from whom, by rigour, they are exacted: Of which term, see on Chap. 53.7. for the word (as also another of the like notion, Job 5.6,7. and both the Greek and Latine, answering to either) and our English labour too, as when we fay, a woman is in labour) fignifies, as well pain and dolour, as labour and paines; wherein Labor has his name, Chron.4.9. Thus the meaning should be, You exact of your fervants, fervile labour & pains, with extremity, contrary to Gods command, Lev. 25.39,40, 43,45,53. Or, detain them in fervitude, beyond that extent of time, by God prescribed, for an hired fervant three years, Deut. 15.18. (See Chap.16.14.) for one fold outright fix years, Exod.21.2. Deut.15.12. (See Jer.34.8-11,14-16.) or to the year of Jubilee, whether came first, Lev.25.40. as alfo your debts you require with rigour and cruelty, either where the party is not of ability, or where God requireth them to be remitted. Lev.25.28. Deut.15.2. See 2 Kin.4.1. Neh.5.2-13. And this some the rather suppofe to be charged upon them, as a fault more frequent, at their fall time, then at others, because about that time of the year, to wit, at the beginning of the feventh Month, called Tisri, of the new-moon then made, their fruits being all gathered in, Lev 23.24.30. Deut.16.13. the old year, for civil affairs and accounts, ended, & the new begun that month: for such matters, though being re-konted the first, and the new year beginning with it, Exod.24.22. Now on the tenth day of that month, being the solemn fast, the Trumpet of remission and releate was to be blown, Lev.25.9. Some read the words, That ye may exact all your labours: And to the particle is oft uled; as Chap. 12.2. & 41.22. But it seems here not to leasonable. Others, rather, while ye exact all your labours, as 1 Kin.11.25. While he was wroth with Syria, (for lo it would be there rendred) and, while Absalom sate in the Kings gate, Esth.2.21. See Chap 56.9. Howsoever we take the words, by their failings in these offices of mercy and charity, and their practises contrary unto either, he theweth all their pretended devotion and piety, to be unfound, and unsincere. So Chap 1.17, 18. Mat.25.23. Jam.1.27. 1 Joh.3.17. & 4.20,21. And God seems to argue the matter with them, as if he thould say, Do ye think to obtain any mercy from me, when ye shew none to your brethren? or that I should fet you free from evils, when ye refuse to let your brethren go free? That I should remit all to you, when ye owe nothing to them? See Jer. 34.17. Mat.5.7. & 6.14,15. & 18.23-35. Jam.2.13.

V.4. Behold,] As before, v.3. which fowre there come on with this: but repeated, to add the more vigour and vehemency to it, as if he thould fay, Do ye wonder, if God regard not your fasting, when ye fast in this manner? ver.5.

Ye fast for strife and debate] Or, unto strife, and debate. Their words are by Interpreters variously expounded. Some would have the meaning to be, that this was the end of their fasting, to expiate their former finful and injurious courles, that they might return the more freely to them again; as the Papists, in some places, are reported to have a common saying in their mouths; we commit sin, that we may be pardoned; and be pardoned, that we may sin. Others, that in the solemn fast days, when they met together, they fell to quarrelling one with another, about their debts and mon; ages; as if the fast-day had, for no other end, been inftituted, but to quarrel and contend upon: Or, that on that day, they had much bawling and brabling with their fervants, whom, by the Law, they were then to dimis, and ufed them with much cruelty. Others, that the Fast-days, being kept as Sabbaths, or days of reft, from other fervile labours, and employments abroad, they were willing to have Fast days, that they might have the more leisure to caft up their accounts, and survey their debt books, to prepare matter for Actions to be commenced, and purfued against their debters. Others, that the words here imply not, that they fafted at all, but that about the time the counto defigned, they did practife such things, because at that time there was more special occasion of them, then at other. And to indeed is the word, the fast, taken, without special relation to any action of that kind then performed, Act.27.9. But both the words here ufed, not the noun, as there, and the whole drift and current of the context, the weth, that the rite of fasting, performed by them, is here specially intended. I conceive, therefore, (fuppoling that moft of the works before recited, could not that day be done, fave by minding of them, or occasionally speaking of them, if they observed the folemn fall) that the words would be read, not as our verfion hath them; Ye fast for strife and debate, as importing the end for which they fafted; but, Ye fast unto strife and debate: as implying the illue and conlequent of their fasting. Of which manner of fpeech, lee Chap.3.8. your fastings end in, and are seconded with, vexatious hits and brawls.

and to smite with the fist of wickedness.] Or, with a wicked fist; as, with wicked hands, Act.2.23. the word is ufed alfo, Exod.21.18. and no where elle in Scripture: Some apply it to the miltaking of their Servants, Exod.21.20,21,26,27. Others to the harth ulage of their debtors, not able to pay them, or the laying of violent hands upon them, Mat.18.28. it may well comprehend either.

Ye shall not fast as ye do this day, to make your voice to be heard on high.] This some understand, as if it were faid, alluding to their branglings and brawlings, and clamorous outcries, ufed in profecution of perfons obnoxious to them, whether debtors, or ftrangers: Ye are not to fall as ye ufe to do, to quarrelling and chiding upon your Faft-days, that your voice may be heard to the very hills, that they ring again with them: Or, that the cry of your vo'ences goeth up unto heaven See Gen.18.20,21. Exod.22.23,27. 2 Chr.28.9. Chap.5.7. & 22.1.5. Jon.1.2. Jam.5.4. Others, as alluding to then loud cries, that they ufed commonly in their fafts, and days of humiliation; by tone, out of fervor, and intention of fpirit, 2 Chr. 14.11. & 32.20. Joel 1.13. Jon. 3.8. But by thefe here, either for popular applaule, to let others know that they fafted, and hear how devout y and earnestly they did it; as the Thariftes did alfo with their alms, and their prayers, Mat 6 2 5,6. Or, as if by their loud cries, they made account to be heard of, and prevail with God; as Baals Priests with their Idol, 1 Kin.18.26,27. But the moft, and beft, underftand it, as entorming them, that the way they now took, fastling in fuch manner, as was before related, was not the way to cause God to hear, and grant thole things, which, by humble fait and fupplication, joyned, of course, with their fafts, as being the main end of their fasting, 1 Sam.7.5,6. 2 Sam.12.16. 2 Chr.20.3,6. Ezra 8.21. Mat.17.21. Act.13.3. they defire at Gods hand to obtain. See ver.3. As if he had faid, Never look to have your fastings accepted, or your fuits heard on high (that is, in heaven, as Chap. 57.15.) 1 Kin 8.32. to long as ye continue thele courles of vexation and oppreflion. See Chap 1.15. Prov.28.13. and this to be the genuine notion of the place, the oppolite part, ver.6. fheweth. Heb. Ye shall not fast, as to day, or, as this day, &c. which fome render, Ye fast not as these times are, or, according to the manner of this time; to wit, to cause your voice to be heard on high. But this reading seems somewhat hardband our version is plain and smooth enough, whether we supply or ght, or no.

V. 5. Is it such a fast that I have chosen?] Or, As I have chosen: the relative wanting; as Chap.57.8,16. Or the demonstrative put for the relative; as Chap.51.15. the same in effect; but as fitter then that, because such went before; such as I approve, affect, desire, and delight in; as Zach. 7.5. so Pfal. 119. 30. Chap.56.4.

a day for a man to afflict his soul:] Or, for a man to afflict his soul for a day; as ver.3. not that God did not require such humiliation on the solemn fast-days, Lev.16.29,31. & 23.27,32. but that it was a fond and frivolous thing to imagine, that it was enough for them, to ufe such external exercises for a day only, and there an end of all, 1 Tim.4.8.

Is it to bow down the head as a bull rush,] To bow down; as Mic. 6.6. his head as a bul-rush, that being bruized, doth with the weight of its self hang down. See Chap.19.14. Or, as a cord, made of bull-rush, Job 41.2.

and to spread sack-cloth and ashes under him:] As the manner of those times was, in solemn mournings, uſual, 1 Kings 21. 27. Esther 4.3. Job 2.8. & 42.6. Chap.61.3. Jer.6.26. Matth. 11.21.

will thou call this a fast, and an acceptable day to the Lord?] That is, ſuch a faſt as God accepteth of, as before; a fast, and a day acceptable, for, an acceptable fast of the day. See the like, on Chap.4.5, 6. Heb. a day of good will, or, well-liking; as Chap.49.8.& 61.2.

V. 6. Is not this the fast, that I have chosen, to loose the bands of wickedneſs, to undo the heavy burdens, and let the oppreſſed go free, and that ye break every yoke?] Having ſhewed them what manner of faſts, God did not approve, nor would accept, ver. 4,5. he proceedeth now to thew what manner of ones they were, that he required, and would accept; to wit, ſuch as were joyned with retormation, and amendment of their former injurious and vexatious courſes, ſuch as were ſeconded with a practice of the contrary duties of ompaſſion and mercy: Not that the faſt conſiſted, to ſpeak properly, in them: nut that it was to be always accompanied with them, as was Corneliuhis, Act. 10.2, 4. See the like ſpeech, Jam. 1.27.

that I have chosen] That i like, and am pleaſed with; as ver. 5. So is the word uſed, Job 29. 25. If I chose their way, that is, if I liked, or was pleaſed, to come among them, or joyn with them: And ſo it may well be rendred. Pſal.25.12. who is the man that feareth the Lord? him will he teach in the way, that he (to wit, God himſelf) liketh, or, approveth of. Heb. I ſhall chuſe it, or, like, approve, accept it, the demonſtrative for the relative; as before, verſe 5.

to loſe], Heb. properly, to open. See Chap. 51.14.

the bands of wickedneſs] Or, wick d bands, as, the ſtil of wickedneſs, ver. 4. The word is found only here, and Pſ. 73.4. and it is by ſome deemed, to conſiſt of a term, that ſignifies, to cut, whence alſo the threſhing-ſled, called by the Latine tribula, and from it, our English tribulation; and of another, that ſignifies, to vex, or, grieve: Or which, ſee on, ver. 3. ſo joyned in one, becauſe conflictions, as ſome render it, or ſtreight-bands do both. By it, ſome underſtand the combination of thoſe that are in places of Judicature, by unjuſt ſentence, and extream rigour of Law, hired to vex and oppreſs. See Micr. 7. 1. Others, the bands, which they held their poor brethren in ewsnapped in, by unequal, injurious, and uſurious contracts. Exod 22.25. Lev 25.35 37. Neh.5.3,5. See the bond of iniquity, in a dive ſenſe, Act 8.23.

to undo the heavy burdens,] Heb. burdens of declination. So the Chaldee rendreth it: and not unaptly, becauſe it cometh of a word that ſignifies, to decline, stoop, bow down, Lev 25.35. Prov.25.26 ſuch bunches, bundels, or faſcicles, (ſo it is uſed of leſſer ones, Exod. 12. 22. of greater, the Elements lying as globes, or bundles, are upon, or over another. Amos 9. 6. of a troop of men, as made up in a bundl together. 2 Sam. 2.25.) lying ſo heavy upon a man, that they bend him down, and make him to ſtoop. See Jer. 1. 14. for this latter word alſo ſignifies, a yoak, ſo called, becauſe it poiſeth down, puts down, and holds down, Jer 27.2. & 28.10,13. See more after ward. And this may well have reference to the heavy bondage they kept their brethren in. Whereof, See before, on ver. 3. 4. and to let the oppreſſed go free,] Some reſtrain this, to ſuch as they kept in priſon, and in bonds, for debt; but it ſeems more large: And the word includeth all ſuch, as are made like a bruiſed, or broken reed, or cane, chap.36.6.& 42.3. much weakned, cruſhed, and broken, (as we uſe to ſay) in their ſtates and perſons, by vexation and oppreſſion. See Deut.28.33. Hoſ.5.11. Amos 4.1. this branch is found inferred with that paſſage, chap. 61. 1. in the Evangeliſts recital of it, Luk.4.18.

and that ye break every yoke] Heb. and every yoke ye ſhall break: a defect of the particle that, as Chap.41.7. and a redundancy of the pronoun it: as chap.8.13. & 45.9. to break every yoke, for, to give eaſe of, or fet free from, any grievous courſe, of vexation, and oppreſſion: as Chap. 9.4. the term here uſed, is taken ſometime, for a yoke, as was before hinted. Howbeit, it is deemed primarily, and properly, to ſignifie the ſtaff, or bar, that runneth thro.ow the two ends of its bow, to hold them faſt, the one to the other: the word being uſed of the ſtaves, that thorow the rings, by which the Arke was born on the Levites ſhoulders, 1 Ch.15.15, as alſo of that, on which the two ſpices carried the great bunch, or cluſters of grapes, between them, for bruiſing, Num. 13.23. or, as ſome think, the boards, or cords, wherewith either thoſe ſtaves are faſtened to the neck of the yoke, or the yoke it ſelf to the neck of the beaſt. So it is rendred, Ezek.34.24. When I have broke the bands of their yoke, and have delivered them out of the hands of thoſe that forced themſelves on them: and yet more fully, to hint with the form above mentioned, and the application thereof, Lev. 26. 13. I brought you out of Egypt, that, you ſhould not be, or, abide, their bondmen; and brake the bonds of your yoke, that I might go upright. Now when either the ſtaff, or the cords of the yoke are broken, he yoke falls off, and the beaſt is at liberty.

V. 7. Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, & that thou bring the poor, that are caſt out, to thine houſe? when thou ſeeſt the poor, that thou cover him, and that thou hide not thy ſelf from thine own fleſh?] Inſtead of injurious, and vexatious courſes formerly taken, to practice offices of mercy and charity, a ſound argument of ſerious and ſincere repentance, Dan. 4. 27. Luk.19.8.

to deal] Heb. breake, or devide, as Jer. 16.7. for their loaves were ſo to be, as might be ordinarily broken, Mat.26.26. Luk.24.31, 35. See Ezek. 18.7. Lam.4.4.

and that thou bring to thine houſe] Heb. and thou ſhalt bring home, or, unto thine houſe: a defect of the particle that, as ver. 6. and of the pronoun; as chap. 37. 4.23.

the poor caſt out] The latter word ſeldome found; in this place, in this form, alone, Some render, attenuated, or brought to extream poverty; as parallel, to another uſed, chap. 10. 2. & 11. 4. the Greek renders it, harbour leſſe: the old Latine, wandring. Some of the Jewiſh Criticks, after the Chaldee, caſt out; or, toſſed to and fro, as the word, they uſe, ſignifies, and one from the ſame root, Chap. 22.17. and to make up the notation of it, because the verb, the root of this, commonly ſignifies, to rebel, and the active participle, or verbal, a rebel, Dan 9.5. Ezek.20.38. therefore ſome render this paſſive participle, or verbal, caſt out, and driven to and fro, as rebels: but in the Arabick, the word is ſaid to ſignifie, going, to and fro, or travelling; and ſuch as ſo wander, we alſo call rogabellers, or they themſelves, rather: the harbouring of the harbourleſs, is both commanded, and commended, Mat.25.36. Rom. 12.13. Heb.13.2. pi. cedents of it, ſee Gen.18.3-5. & 19.2,3, Job 31. 32. Judg. 19. 20, 21.

that thou cover him] Heb. and thou ſhalt cover him: as chap. 53. 2. See Job 31.19,20. Mat.26.36.

hide not thy ſelf] By turning thy face from him: as refuſing to ſee, or own, or take notice of him, Pſ.39.11. & 142.4. Luk.10. 31,32. See on chap 53.3. & 57. 17.

from thy fleſh] Thy poor brother, who is the ſame fleſh with thee, Judg.9.2. 2 Sam.5.1. Neh.5.5. Prov.28.27.

V. 8. Then] A promiſe following, of many favours, and abundance of bleſſings, that ſhould here upon enſue: when thy faſts, and other the like performances, are in this manner qualified, they ſhall find gracious acceptance with God, as by the fruits thereof following the ſame, here related, ſhall appear.

ſhall thy light break forth as the morning] Thine adverſity ſhall then be diſpelled, and removed, as the night, or as the foggie miſt, and proſperity ſhall then ſucceed, as broad day light, or bright ſunſhine, breaking out, in the room of it, Eſt. 8.16. Pſal.37. 6. and 97.11. & 112.4. Prov.4.18. chap. 9.1,2. & 60.1.

and thine health ſhall ſpring forth ſpeedily] Thy calamitous condition ſhall ſoon be altred, and thy former damages, and detriments, ſuddenly repaired: all recovery out of, or deliverance from any foregoing evils, is in Scripture termed, by a metaphor, taken from the ſtate of mans body, an healing, or a reſtoring of health. See chap. 6. 10. & 57.18. Jer.8.22. & 30.17. & 33.5.

and thy righteouſneſs ſhall go before thee] That is, as ſome, Chriſt thy righteouſneſs Jer.23.6.& 33.16. 1 Cor. 1. 30. ſhall conduct thee and be thy guide, Luk.1. 79. & 3.32. Heb.12. 2. Rev.14. 4. Others, the fruit, and teſtimony of thine uprightneſs, ſhall thew it ſelf to both and appear conſpicuous, in the eyes both of God and man, Pſal. 37. 6. or the fruit and reward of it, from God, in Gods gracious conduct of thee, thereby procured, ſhall go before thee, as a light to direct thee, or as an herbinger, to fit thy way for thee: both to remove out of thy way, what might impeach thy paſſage, and to diſcover unto thee, what way thou ſhouldeſt go, to cauſe all things to proceed and goe on, proſperouſly with thee, Pſal. 5.8. Prov.6. 22. Act. 10. 4. See Pſal 85. 13. Ch.52. 12. v.11.

the glory of the Lord ſhall be thy rereward] By glory of the Lord, ſome underſtand here, a very glorious eſtate: glory of God, for, great glory; as, hills of God, and, trees of the Lord. Pſal.36.6. and 104. 16. Other, the glory that God ſhall then conferr upon thee, Pſal. 149. 4. Or, rather, the glory of God, manifeſting it ſelf, as Chap. 40.5. that is, the God of Glory, Act. 8.2. or, the glorious Lord, Chap. 33. 21. ſhall by his power, providence, and glorious preſence, both conduct, and protect: both guide, and grace thee, goe before thee to prevent thee, with his bleſſings; and to come after thee, to follow thee, with further favours, and to ſecure thee from any, that may come on thy back, to attaint thee unawares. See Pſal. 21.3, & 33. 6. It is an alluſion to Gods manner manner of carrying on his people, thorow the wilderneſs. Exod. 13.21. & 14.19. Or the phrase here uſed, ſee Ch.52.12.

V.9. Then ſhalt thou call, and the Lord ſhall anſwer; thou ſhalt cry, and he ſhall ſay, Here I am] Thou ſhalt have no cauſe then to complain, as formerly, ver.3. that God regarderh thee not, nor thy huts, and requeſts; he will be moſt ready to hear, and to help, to grant thee readily, what thou requireſt, Pſal.34.15,17. & 37.4. Chap.30.19. & 65.24.

Then ſhalt thou call, and the Lord ſhall anſwer] Or, Then when thou calleſt the Lord will (as after, he will ſay) anſwer; as Chap.44. 14. & 53.2. anſwer; that is, grant thy requeſt; return thee, not a verbal, but a real anſwer; do what thou deſireeſt, Pſal.99.6. & 118.5.

thou ſhalt cry, &c.] Or, as before, when thou cryeſt, (being in danger, or diſtreſs, Pſal.121.1) he will ſay, Here I am. Heb. to I. See Chap.6.8. & 65.1. I am ready at hand to help, relieve, and deliver thee. Pſal.46.1.

If thou take away from the midſt of thee, the yoke] If ye put from among you, thoſe grievous oppreſſions, before mentioned, and whatſoever either looketh that way, or tendeth thereunto.

from the midſt of thee] from within thee, as ſome; as intending the reformation, as well of the heart within, as the alteration of the act without, Pſal.51.6. Chap.55.7. Jer.4.14. Jam.4.8. Or from thee, ſimply, as Chap.4.4. or, rather, from among you; (because ſpeaketh of the people, or State, as of a body, or a family, conſiſting of a multitude, though in the ſingular number, yet collectively, ver.1,2.) as Chap.37.12. & 40.6.

the yoke] As before, ver.6.

The putting forth of the finger,] Heb. to put forth the finger: as after, to ſpeak; the verb infinitive, for the noun. Hereby ſome underſtand the pointing with the finger, in way of ſcorn, and derſion, at godly perſons, and Gods Prophets. Whither alſo they draw him, at godly exerciſes, and ſcoffs, Pſal. 22.7. and to make up the notation of it, because the verb, the root of this, commonly ſignifies, to rebel, and the active participle, or verbal, a rebel, Dan 9.5. Hereby ſome underſtand the pointing with the finger, in way of ſcorn, and derſion, at godly perſons, and Gods Prophets. Whither alſo they draw him, at godly exerciſes, and ſcoffs, Pſal. 22.7. and to make up the notation of it, because the verb, the root of this, commonly ſignifies, to rebel, and the active participle, or verbal, a rebel, Dan 9.5. Ezek.20.38. therefore ſome render this paſſive participle, or verbal, caſt out, and driven to and fro, as rebels: but in the Arabick, the word is ſaid to ſignifie, going, to and fro, or travelling; and ſuch as ſo wander, we alſo call rogabellers, or they themſelves, rather: the harbouring of the harbourleſs, is both commanded, and commended, Mat.25.36. V. 8. Then] A promiſe following, of many favours, and abundance of bleſſings, that ſhould here upon enſue: when thy faſts, and other the like performances, are in this manner qualified, they ſhall find gracious acceptance with God, as by the fruits thereof following the ſame, here related, ſhall appear.

ſhall thy light break forth as the morning] Thine adverſity ſhall then be diſpelled, and removed, as the night, or as the foggie miſt, and proſperity ſhall then ſucceed, as broad day light, or bright ſunſhine, breaking out, in the room of it, Eſt. 8.16. and thine health ſhall ſpring forth ſpeedily] Thy calamitous condition ſhall ſoon be altred, and thy former damages, and detriments, ſuddenly repaired: all recovery out of, or deliverance from any foregoing evils, is in Scripture termed, by a metaphor, taken from the ſtate of mans body, an healing, or a reſtoring of health. See chap. 6. 10. & 57.18. Jer.8.22. & 30.17. & 33.5.

and thy righteouſneſs ſhall go before thee] That is, as ſome, Chriſt thy righteouſneſs Jer.23.6.& 33.16. 1 Cor. 1. 30. ſhall conduct thee and be thy guide, Luk.1. 79. & 3.32. Heb.12. 2. Rev.14. 4. the glory of the Lord ſhall be thy rereward] By glory of the Lord, ſome underſtand here, a very glorious eſtate: glory of God, for, great glory; as, hills of God, and, trees of the Lord. Or, rather, the glory of God, manifeſting it ſelf, as Chap. 40.5. that is, the God of Glory, Act. 8.2. or, the glorious Lord, Chap. 33. 21. ſhall by his power, providence, and glorious preſence, both conduct, and protect: both guide, and grace thee, goe before thee to prevent thee, with his bleſſings; and to come after thee, to follow thee, with further favours, and to ſecure thee from any, that may come on thy back, to attaint thee unawares. like a spring of water, whose waters fail not] Heb. do not ly, or deceive; as Hab. 3. 17. that runneth constantly all the yeer long; and is not dryed up, as some small brooks, or winter-floods, in heat of summer, or droughts of any continuance, are, what time there is most need of them, 1 King. 17. 7. Job 6. 15, 20. an emblem, not of flourishing for a time, but of constant prosperity. See Chap. 33. 16. Joh. 4. 14.

V. 12. And they that shall be of thee, shall build the old waste places:] Heb. the wastes of antiquity: as Chap. 61. 4. those that come of thee, shall re-edifie the ruinous places of Jerusalem. and other cities of Judah, that have lien long waste, Chap. 49. 8. and 51. 3. See Neh. 3. Yet some would have it meant of people, replenishing the cities with Inhabitants, which are as flesh and blood to them, being but as feeletons, or dry bones without them: but the former is more familiar.

thou shalt raise the foundations of many Generations] Heb raise, or settle, (as 2 Sam. 7. 25.) the foundations of age, and age, either build upon those foundations, that have lien divers ages desolate; or lay the foundation of such buildings, as for many ages shall endure. See Chap. 44. 26. & 61. 4. and thou shalt be called] That is, thou shalt be; as Chap. 61. 6. Heb. it shall be called to thee: as Chap. 48. 8 & 62. 2.

the repairer of the breach,] Or, the maker up of the breach, that God had made in the wall, or fence, of their City, and State, for their sins, Chap. 5. 5. See Psal. 106. 23. 29. Ezek. 22. 30.

the restorer of pathes to dwell in] That is, the cleerer of those wayes, by which men may return to those places, where they are to inhabit, whereas they were formerly neglected, and disused, and consequently over-grown, either through want of people to travel, or of safety to travellers, Judg. 5. 6, 7. Lam. 1. 4. or, the returner of those places, that were made paths of before, by the enemy passing to and fro over them, having ruined the buildings, and flatted the foundations of them; to be places for men to inhabite again. For they seem to stoop so low, that understand them of fencing their vineyards, and cleering the way to them: and they to shoot as wide, that render the words, The restorer of paths to the Sabbath: for though the words be in sound somewhat like; yet they differ both in roots, point, and form.

V. 13. If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath.] This Some understand of the yearly Sabbath, or day of strictest rest, in the solemn convention for humiliation and propitiation, Lev. 16. 31. and 23. 27-31. where, see our ver. 29, 4. Others, more largely, of the Weekly Sabbath: one special commandment, as a principal, put for the rest of those, that concerned the religious Worship, and service of God; see Chap. 1. 13, 14, 6. Jer. 17. 21. and the words of the text are applyable to either.

turn away thy foot] The Jewish Doctors expound it, of walking abroad: but ours rather, of to bearing, and withdrawing their minds and affections, from such studies and employments upon that day, whereby the same might be polluted or prolaned, Ezek. 22. 26.

from doing thy pleasure on mine holy day;] Heb. to doe, or doing thy pleasure, or will, or businesse (see on ver. 3.) on my day of holinesse: the preposition supplyed from the fore-going branch; (see the like defect, Exod. 19. 12.) and expected again afterward: and, day of holinesse, for, holy day; as hill of holinesse, for, holy hill, Chap. 57. 13.

and call the Sabbath a delight:] That is, account it such, or make it such: or, as some, not unlike render it, thy delight: the pronoun supplyed; as ver. 7. 13. by taking delight in the duties and holy duties of the day. See ver. 14. for the form of speech; for the word, ver. 14. So did the Servants of God, in former times, count the services of God, in his house, on those dayes, their cheefest delight, and the very life of their souls; lamenting and bemoaning themselves, as even dead on the neft, when they were debarred from, or deprived of, them; desiring nothing more earnestly, then free access again to them, when they were restrained from them; and rejoycing in nothing, more affectionately, then in the enjoyment of them, when they had liberty to to do. See Psal. 27. 4. & 36. 8. & 42. 1, 2, 4. & 43. 2-4. & 65. 1-5. & 84. & 122. 1, 2. And that is the genuine meaning of the place, for whether Sabbath of the twain we take it. For it is but frivolous, that the Jewish Doctors expound it, of eating dainty and delightful meats; which, though on some festivals, was seasonable, Neh. 8. 10. yet was not suitable to the afflicting Sabbath; and of as little worth is it, that in the word, call, here, some reference should be to the solemn convocation, because that word cometh from this of calling, Lev. 23. 3, 27. Chap. 1. 13.

the holy of the Lord, honourable;] Or and the Lords holy day honourable: so call, and account it, as well honourable, as delightful: For the word is to be understood in this clause also; as the like, ver. 12. Heb. the Lords holinesse, for his day of holinesse; his holy day; as before: a defect of the noun regent; as Chap. 17. 5. to be supplyed from the words fore-going.

and shalt honour him] Or, it: to wit, his day: for the word will bear either: And we may be faid, as well, to honour God, or to honour his day; as, to sanctifie him, Chap. 8. 13. and, to sanctifie his day, Exod. 20. 8. But here again our Jewish Masters run their carnal way, telling us, that the Sabbath is to be honoured, by wearing good cloths, and having better diet upon that day: that which too many encline to them in, more regarding such matters, then those things, that doe indeed concern the right honour of the day, contra y to that Apostolick rule, Rom. 13. 14. Besides that on the Sabbatical fast here also intended, such suits of apparel, as well as good cheer, would be very unseasonable, Exod. 33. 4, 5.

not doing thine own wayes,] Heb, from doing; that is, abstaining, or refraining thy self, as before, from doing thine own ways; that is, following thine own wicked works and courses, as Chap. 56. 7.

nor finding, thine own pleasure,] of this branch, see before, ver. 3.

nor speaking thine own words.] Heb. and (for, or; as Chap. 48. 5.) to speak, or speaking a word, or ought; as Jer. 36. 2. thine own is supplyed from the former branches, as, foot, 1 Tim. 2. 13, 14. Adam was not first deceived. Howsoever, by thy word, or words, are meant, such words, or things, as were before mentioned, ver. 9. and they were there forbidden, as too usual with them; even at such times: For this place doth apparently answer to that; and the Chaldee therefore rendreth it, words of wrong, and oppression; as the Jewish Doctors also expound the term there used, though roving another way themselves. For as for those two late learned Annotators; the one whereof would have it rendred, a proud, insolent, or lofty word; as he supposeth two other terms, that signifie a word to be taken, Job 6. 13. & 20. 29. And this the rather, because the root it cometh of, hath found one such a notion: Whereof, see on, Chap. 17. 6, 9. & 61. 6. The other would have the copulative taken in an adversative notion, rendring the text, but speaking the word, to wit, of God, I suppose that either of them goeth, therein, a way by himself, and that solitary, without company, for want of probability.

V. 14. Then shalt thou delight thy self in the Lord,] This is sometime required as a duty, Psal. 37. 4. sometime promised, as a reward. So Job 22. 26. and so here. And it is, as if he had laid; If thou keepest the Lords day, forbearing thy wonted evil thoughts, and mindings, on it, and shalt diligently apply thy self unto the duties of the day, therein imploying thy self, not as of necessity, and by constraint: but cheerfully, and with delight; thou shalt find in the Lord, not sufficient only, but abundant matter of fuch delights, as shall minister a fulnels of satisfaction unto thy soul, Psal. 36. 8. & 37. 11. Chap. 55. 2. & 66. 11. such delights as the ungodly man shall never enjoy, Job 27. 10. Prov 14. 10.

and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth,] To dwell aloft in places of security and safety, and to ride to and fro, there, at pleasure. See Chap. 33. 16, 17. The words seem to be taken from Moses his Song, Deut. 32. 13. and to have some glance at the land of Judea, being much of it mountainous, Psal. 87. 1. Chap. 14. 25. & 37. 24. A passage from person to person, as Chap. 57. 10-12.

and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob, thy Father:] With the good things of the land of Canaan, given for an inheritance unto him, for his posterity, Gen. 28. 13, 14. Psal. 135. 11, 12. a type of the heavenly inheritance; The Jewish Doctors here move a question; why the Prophet should rather say, Jacob thy Father, then Abraham thy Father: And divers answers they give; as that Abraham kept no Sabbath, but Jacob did: and that Abraham had an Ismael, as well as an Isaac, and Isaac an Esau, as well as a Jacob; and they defcant upon the promises made severally to them, Gen. 13. 15. & 26. 3. & 28. 13, 14. But these are, the first unsound, and in part untrue; the last of them, curious and frivolous. Somewhat may be in the second, whereof, see before on Chap. 43. 1.

for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.] See Chap. 1. 20. and 40. 5.

CHAP. LIX.

Vers. 1. Behold] This Chapter, whether a continued discourse with the former, as some; or, an entire Sermon distinct, and divers from the former; yet confisteth of two principal parts, as that also did: The former, a relation of the grievous enormities of that people, as the main cause of those calamities that lay heavy upon them, ver. 1——15. the latter, a prediction, and promile of deliverance to Gods faithful afflicted ones, both from oppressions at home, and invasions from abroad, verse, 16——19. together with the continuance of spiritual favours unto them, by the Messias, here also fore-told, and hereafter to be exhibited; wherewith the Prophet usually concludeth his discourses, as the complement of all ourward mercies, and temporal deliverances, as tending thereunto, and being thereof types to them, ver. 20, 21.

Behold] See Chap. 42. 1. & 58. 3, 4.

the Lords hand is not shortned that he cannot save] This may either have reference to the former part of the fore-going Chapter, where they complained of God, for not hearing, and regarding their fastings and praiers, Ch. 58. 3. as if he had laid, Ye complain of God, that he doth not hear and help you, as he had wonted do others of his in times past, Psal. 22. 4, 5. & 44. 22. Ch. 51. 10. that deliverance is not wrought, and effected for you, v. 9, 10. the fault is not in God, (who is still the same, not subject to any defect, or default, Num. 11. 23. Mal. 3. 6.) but in your selves, and in your sins, Jer. 5. 25. Lam. 3. 42, 44. Or, it may back the latter part, and confirm the close of it; as giving them assurance of the undoubted making good unto them, of all those large and liberal blessings, there propounded upon their repentance, seemed they never so improbable, or incredible, in regard of their present low, and forlorn condition, Chap. 58. 11, 12, 14. for that God was no lesse able, or willing, to hear, or help, then in former times he had been, did not their obstinacy in sin, restrain him from the doing of either, Chap. 50. 1, 2.

hand] His power; as Psal. 136. 12.

is not shortned;] Or, abridged, or streitned; as Mich. 2. 7.

as not that it cannot save] Heb. from saving; as Chap. 50. 2. and so after, from hearing. See on Chap. 33. 1. & 58. 13.

neither his ear heavy] That is, deaf, or thick of hearing. as we use to say: so is the word used, being applyed to the ears, Ch. 6. 10. 1o, dull, or hard, when to the heart, Exod. 9. 35. & 10. 1.

that it cannot hear.] Heb. from hearing, as before, from saving.

See ver. 2.

V. 2. But your iniquities have severed between you, and your God:] Heb. Have been, or, severing between you, to between you God: a redundancy of speech, somewhat like where unto is found, Gen. 1. 4. between the light, and between the dark: and nearer to this, Gen. 1. 6. between waters to waters: and Deut. 17. 8. between blood to blood, between suit to suit; or, strife to strife, and between stripe to stripe: But this is yet more redundant then either of those forms, used, not improbably, to imply the great distance, that sin makes between Man, and God: your position of place; (for God is every where present, as well with bad, as good, Psal. 139. 7——12. Prov. 15. 3. Jer. 23. 23, 24. Amos 9. 2, 3. Act. 17. 28) but in disposition of mind, and affection of heart, Psal. 138. 6. Prov. 15. 29. Chap. 29. 13. Jer. 12. 2.

and your sins have hid his face from you] That is, have caused him, in anger to withdraw his gracious Presence, and assistance from you, as refusing to be seen of you, or to be spoken with, by you. See Deut. 31. 17. Psal. 10. 1. Chap. 54. 8. & 57. 17. a defect of the pronoun, as Chap 53. 3.

that he will not hear.] Or, not hear you: a defect of the pronoun, as Chap. 1. 15. Heb. from hearing; as ver. 1. Or, from hearing you. So Zach. 7. 11, 12. God serveth you, as ye serve him: Ye refuse to hear him; and he refuseth to hear you, Prov. 1. 24, 28. & 28. 9. Lam. 3. 43, 44.

V. 3. For your hands are defil'd with bloud, and your fingers with iniquity] The Prophet that he may not be deemed to charge them, without good ground, and just cause; and the better to clear Gods justice, in thus estranging himself from them, doth at large relate, and in lively colours lay forth, their general injustice, mercilesse, and mischievous carriages. Of this first branch, see Chap. 1. 15. Lam. 4. 14. 2 Chron. 28. 6. hands and fingers, are here the same, as lips and tongue, in the next branch: onely the one is added unto the other, to make the speech themore emphatical.

your lips have spoken lies, your tongue hath muttered perverseness] Or, your lips speaks lies, and your tongue meditateth, or talketh of perverseness, or, unrighteousness, as it is rendred, Deut. 25. 16. or, iniquity; as Mic. 3. 10. where it is joyned with bloud. Your common practice, is, by talse suggestions, and subsumed depositions, to strip men of their states, and to bereave them of their lives, Psal. 52. 2——8. Prov. 14. 5. & 25. 18. Jer. 9. 3. See Chap. 58. 9.

muttered] So the word seems sometime to signifie. See on c. 8. 19. but most commonly to meditate, and to some here render it. However, because meditation is not the proper work of the tongue, (some deem it to be a complexive term of speech) Your tongue uttereth premeditated iniquity; and so it should be like that, Psal. 52. 2. Thy tongue deviseth mischiefs; that is, uttereth mischievous plots, devised by thee. But the word here used, signifieth as well, to talk, as meditate, and to utter, as to meditate. So, My tongue shall speak, or talk of thy righteousness, and thy praise, Psal 35. 28. & 71. 24. and, they speak not thereon the whole. Psal. 115. 7. It may well therefore be rendred, Your tongue talketh of iniquity: lips and tongue; as Psal. 12. 3, 4. & 120. 2.

V. 4. None calleth for justice; nor any pleadeth for truth:] All sorts of people are given to vexation and oppression: and no man endeavoureth to relieve and right the wronged, or to redress and remedy ought that is done amiss: No man stands up for right or truth, against fashood and wrong, ver. 16. Eccl. 4. 1. Jer. 9. 3. These general terms, are not to be understood, exactly and absolutely; but of the greatest part, of the most: the better part being so fesson. and so drowned in the generality, that they were not to be seen, they seemed as none. So Psal. 12. 1. & 14. 1, 3. Chap. 56. 10. & 64. 6, 7. Jer. 5. 1. & 6. 28. Mic. 7. 2-6.

pleadeth for truth:] Heb. is not, or, that is, pleadeth in judgment; as Chap. 66. 16. Jer. 2. 35. & 25. 31. or, is judged, is tryed (hath sentence past in his cause, Psal. 109. 7. 1 Cor. 6. 1.) in truth, that is, truly, faithfully, uprightly. as 2 Chron. 31. 12, 15. & 34. 12. no man can have his cause justly decided.

they trust in vanity,] Heb. trusting in vanity, or, emptiness. Of the phrase, see on ver. 13. Of the term rendred vanity, see on Chap. 24. 10. & 40. 17. 23. it is here used for deceit, fraud, and lies: because they are things void, and empty of being, of soundness and substi-stence, and so will prove in the end, unto all those that trust to them. See Chap. 28. 15, 17, 18.

and speak lies] Heb. and speaking (as before, trusting,) vanity. that is, lies; as Psal. 41. 6. & 144. 8, 11. the same in effect with the former. See Psal. 36. 3.]

they conceive mischief, and bring forth iniquity.] Heb conceiving, or, going great with grievance, and bringing forth affliction, or wickedness: they are continually contriving of some injurious and vexatious plot, or other, and never at rest, as a woman going with child, untill by putting it in practice and execution. they be, at length delivered of it. See the very like phrases, Job 15. 35. Psal. 7. 14. and of the practice Psal. 36. 4. Prov. 4. 16. Mic. 2. 1.

conceive] Heb. conceiving, or going great with, rather. See on Chap. 7. 14. they are as much streightned with it, as a woman neer her time: like Boaz, that could not be at rest, untill he had finished the business that his heart was set upon, Ruth 3. 18. and the manner of speech is emphatical; for it is both deficient, and redundant: conceiving, for conceiving they conceive; or, going great, for going great they goe great with, as also, Job 15. 35. and here-after, ver. 13. and, bringing forth, for, bringing forth they bring forth: and so before, trusting they trust; and, speaking they speak; that is all they trust to, and that is their whole continual talk: for these forms of reduplication whether expressed, or implyed, have much emphasis in them: and it is, as if it were faid, such courses as these, are their minds, tongues, and hands, continually taken up with; they are the constant employment of them. See further, on v. 13.

mischief, and iniquity] Of these two terms, see on Ch. 10. 1.

V. 5. They hatch cockatrice egs] Or, as some, adders. See of the word, on Chap. 11. 8. They contrive, and bring forth mischievous plots. Nothing proceedeth from them, or is produced by them, but what is poisontul, and pernicious, Deut. 32. 32, 33. Rom. 3. 13-16.

and weave the spiders web:] They contrive such plots, as may entangle others, as the spiders web doth the fly, to their damage, and detriment, or to their utter undoing, and destruction, Pr 10. 9. Mic. 7. 2. Howbeit, some expound it of the vanity of their wicked plots and projects, that in fine, they shall prove unefficatal, and unuseful, no more helpful to them, or able to read them, then a company of cobwebs. So Job 8. 14, 15. and hereafter, ver. 6 and so it should have reference to their confidence before-mentioned v. 4. which maketh that notion here, not improbable. And yet can I not assent unto a late learned Writer, who therefore would have the former branch to be rendred, not, they hatch, but t hey breake such egs: as alluding not to egs that fowls, or fergents, firft lay, then sit egs: as alluding not to egs that fowls, or fergents, firft lay, then sit on, or brood, & so hatch by cleaving of the shell, (which the word properly fignifies) to bring forth their young, but to the usuall manner of thofe, that having gathered fowls, or torteses egs, ch. 10. 14. doe break them to feed on: as if the Prophet should say, of such that maintain themselves by rapine, and spoil, or fraud, and deceit, that they cloth themselves with spiders cobwebs, and feed themselves with vipers, or adders egs: the one frivolous stuff, that will do them no good: the other, matter pernicious, that will doe them much mischief, but both the use of the word elsewhere, Chap 34. 15. fidcth with the former exposition: and this latter to me seems somewhat too far fetche, he that eateth of their egs dyeth] Nor he that eateth of cockatrice, or adders egs, but he that eateth of their egs, compared to such, whom the Prophet here speaketh of: yet not such egs, as they feed on, but such egs, as they hatch, wherewith to doe others mischief. Whofoever eateth of their egs, that is, hath any commerce, or dealing with them: it proveth dangerous, yea, deadly to him. See ver. 7. So I rather understand it, then with some, of such, as partake with them, in their mischievous defigns. Pro. 29. 24. Chap. 1. 23. the poison of serpents is pernicious unto others, not to themselves: though it be true, that wicked men drink both firft, and most, of their own venome, their malice: and it will prove their own bane in the end, Psal. 34. 21. But that seems not the drift of the Prophet in this place.

and that which is crushed, breaketh out into a viper] That is, say some, if any defery and discloſe their plots and purpoſes, they fly out upon him, as a viper, or some other such like serpent: furnished with deadly poiſon, to work his destruction: or if one will be tampring with them, to make some tryal of them, induced by the fair outside of some specious and friendly prerences, he shall meet with such matter, as in the end he shall rue it: as if a man taking a serpents egg, for the egg of some fowl, that men usually eat of, should, upon the breaking of it, light on that, which he least of all looked for: or as others, if a man fall into dealing with them unawares, it shall be with him as by one that treadeth, by chance, on the egg of some ſerpent, which being crushed, a young one ſpringes out of it in his face. The meaning seems to be, which way ſoever we take it, that there is no safe dealing any way with them. Nor is it improbable, that some would have, who in these words, ſuppoſe a reaſon to be rendred of the former branch, thus rendring the words for that which is crushed, or broken, to feed on, breaks out into a viper: where a man made account to find some wholsome out into a viper: where a man made account to find some wholsome and toothsome meat, when he hath broken the ſhell, he is entertained with a viper: the copulative for the cauſal, we had oft before, Ch. 40. 26. & 52. 15. & 53. 2. Leſs to me probable ſeems to be what ſome some others of no final note exhibit; one reading the words, it any differ e thus, a viper to coleth out: another, it is with him that is but scratched with them, as it a viper had sprung out, and taftened upon him, as on Paul, Act. 28.3. as if it were faid the leaft afperfion of them, or drop from them, is not perilous only, but even pernicious. This v not verfions hence ariseth, for that in Heb. ew, verbs, thoug divers tenms, yet in tters much alike, are oft, in ufe and not c compounded the one with the other. I incline moft to the la the firft because I find the very fame word that here is tr tor compreſſit, or contuſing, Chap. 1.6. and again, for crufhing, c wrecking of eggs, by treading on them with the foot, Job 39.15. Which yet I fuppofe not to have reference that, from the true meaning of, who fo touching the text, expounds th the words; as it it were faid, he that can crush their plots in the egg, or the fhell, is fafe enough; for the make, or ſerpent, will then be gone: ſo it fhould be fome what like that, Pfal. 137.9. as alſo that other learned man, who by alteration of a vowel, making it an active participle, readeth the words, if one fe cutter them that is, refuſing to eat of them, eat them away, and to break them: for the like uſe of the participle pointing, us to Pfal. 141.7. 1 Sam. 2.13. 2 Sam. 14.10. & 19.8. 2 Kin. 7.2. The text ſeemeth to look a far other way, then either of them drives to.

a viper] Thus the moſt. Yet the ancient Greek, and the old Latine, render it, a Baſiliſk; the one; and aregalus, the other: by a name anſwerable to the former, which we commonly call, it cockatrice: the former, they ſay, is an aſp. The Jewiſh Doctors tell us only, that it is a kinde of hurtfull ſerpent; and ſome of them would have this, and the forementioned, to be one and the ſame; but of that, there ſeems no probability: it ſeems to be a ſerpent, that was rife in the foutherly waſtes, bordering upon them, Chap. 30.6. and ſuch an one as had a venemous tongue, Job 20.16. yet not like to be a viper; becauſe albeit Pliny, l. 10. c. 62. rank the viper among thoſe that lay eggs; Yet Ariſtotle (with whom the moſt and beſt Writers accord, and who'e words Pliny ſeems to have miſtaken,) avoweth more then once, that of all ſerpents, the viper alone, lay th no egg, but brings forth young ones; as alſo the dolphin, o po es, leal, whale, and ſome other fiſh, do. (See his hiſtory of living weights, l. 1. c. 6. l. 3. c. 1. l. 5. c. 34.) whence alſo in Latine it is deemed to have his name, vipera, as vivipera; not, as ſome fable, from a tercible delivery. Some other ſerpent therefore it muſt be, to which the Prophet here alludeth.

V. 6. Their webs ſhall not become garments; neither ſhall they cover themſelves with their works:] Their devices, plots, and practiſes, though they may hurt and miſchieve others, yet they ſhall not help, or avail themſelves; all the good, or gain they get, and gather by them, ſhall ſtand them in no ſtead, they ſhall not be able to ſhelter them againſt Gods wrath, no more then a coat of cobweb is able to ſhelter him, that wears it, againſt a fierce ſhower of hail, or a thick volley of hail-ſhot. See Chap. 28.15, 18, 20. & 30.12, 14. they ſhall all prove, in concluſion, as cobwebs to themſelves, for any ſuccour, or benefit, that they ſhall receive from them, or reap by them. See Job 8.14. Prov. 10.2. & 11.4.

their works are works of iniquity; and the act of violence is in their hands.] Or, their works are works of vexation, (and grievance: as ver. 3.) and the practice of violence is in their hands; that is, their whole employment is no other then a continued practice of vexation, and oppreſſion. See ver. 3, 4. for they ſtrain the text unreaſonably, who by works, or acts, would underſtand here, the work of puniſhment inflicted upon themſelves, for their wrongful, and violent dealing; as violence for the juſt reward of it, Pſ. 7.16.

V. 7. Their feet run unto evil, and they make haſte to ſhed innocent blood] So Prov. 1.16. Jer 22.17. Rom. 3.15.

their thoughts are thoughts of iniquity] Or, vexation: as, works of vexation, ver. 6. vexatious thoughts, and vexatious works; ſuch contrivances, and courſes, as tend wholly to the vexation, and wrong, and ruine of others. See Chap. 5.1.7.

waſting and deſtruction are in their paths] Or, deveſtation and deſtruction, (Chap. 60.19. Heb breakine: as Chap. 1.28.) are in their cauſeys, Chap. 7.3. & 33.8. See Rom 3.16.

V. 8. The way of peace they know not] They are ſtaungers unto, and utterly unacquainted, with any quiet, or peaceable carriage; or nothing of that nature pleaſeth them, or is entertained by them, that tendeth to the proſperity and welfare of others. See Rom. 3.17.

and there is no judgement in their goings] Or, traffs: (for it ſignifies properly the tract, that a cart-wheel makes, 1 Sam. 17, 20.) no regard of equity, or right, in their courſes: judgement, for, right: as Chap. 56.1.

they have made them crooked paths] Heb. they perwert their paths to them. So Prov. 10.9 & 28.18. oppoſed there to ſuch as walk uprightly: and an elegant redundancy in that form, to them; like that, Jer. 23.12. their way ſhall be to them.

whoſoever goeth thereinto, ſhall not know peace] He that treadeth their tracks, ſhall never attain to any true proſperity, or welfare, to any ſound peace, Chap. 48.22. & 57.21. ſhall not know it; that is, not have it: as 2 Cor. 5.11. to know, for, to attain, poſſeſs, enjoy: as, to ſee good, is, to enjoy it, Pſal. 34.12. to ſee life; to live, Joh. 3.36. and, ſo, to know good and evil; whence the tree, inhibited, had its name, Gen. 3.16, 17. to know either experimentally; to have experience, as well of the one, as of the other, in ones ſelf; and, to know chriſt, and the power of his reſurrection, and the communion of his ſufferings, Phil. 3.10. that is, to have, and enjoy him, together with the fruit, and efficacy of either: but it is a phrase very emphatical; they ſhall not ſo much as once know it, not ſo much as once know what it meaneth, Rev. 2.17. See the like, Joh. 3.3.5. 1 Joh. 3.4.

V. 9. Therefore is judgement far from us; neither doth juſtice overtake us] The Prophet having, at large, deſcribed the generall, and horrible depravation of the people of God, in thoſe times, doth here begin to apply, what he had hitherto related, concerning the ſame, to the ſtopping of the mouths of thoſe hypocritical murmurers, who had before complained, that notwithſtanding their frequent faſts and fruits, and ſolemn feekings unto God, yet their prayers had not prevailed with him, for the delivery of them out of their preſent difficulties, and diſtreſſes. To this cauſe, ſaith he, that is, for theſe your vile, and deteſtable courſes it is, that God ſtands aloof off from you, and neither executeth judgement for you, upon your enemies, nor protects you, againſt their wrongs; he ſtandeth by, and permitteth them to deal with you, as ye deal your ſelves one with another, Hab. 1.13 17. judgement, put, as frequently, for vengeance, or righting perſons wronged, by juſtice done upon the wrong-doer, Numbers 33.4. Chap. 1.17. Ezek. 14.21. & 16. 38, 41.

we wait for light, but behold obſcurity; for brightneſs, but we walk in darkneſs] We expect deliverance out of our troubles, but they rather encreaſe with us. Of the uſe of the words, light, and darkneſs, ſee Eſther 8.17. Pſal. 112.4. Chap. 58.8, 10. Of expectations, in the like manner fruſtrated, Jeremiah 8.15. & 14.19.

but behold obſcurity] Heb. and (as Chap. 17.20.) behold (ſee how croſs, and contrary to our expectation, things fall out; as Gen. 29. 25.) darkneſs. as Chap. 5.20. & 8.22.

for brightneſs] Heb. brightneſſes, that is, brightneſs in abundance: (ſee on Chap. 58.11.) we look for, (to be ſupplyed from the former branch: as Jer. 8.15.) and the more is expected, the more grievous is its failing.

we walk in darkneſs] Heb. in miſts, for, in an extream thick miſt, or fog; correſpondent to the brightneſs that they expected, and hoped to have had: darkneſs, like that in Egypt, called, a darkneſs of miſt, for, a miſty darkneſs: or, a thick miſt, Exod. 10.22. or, a miſt of God, for a moſt extream thick miſt, Jer. 2.31. Their preſent condition is refembled, by a man walking, or wandring, rather, in ſome place full of dangers, environed on either ſide with an extream thick miſt, able from no part to deſcry any the leaſt glimpſe of light; and being at his wits end therefore, as not knowing which way to take. See Chap. 8.21, 22. & 50.10. & 58.10. Jer. 13.16. 1 Joh. 2.11.

V. 10. we grope for the wall like the blinde; and we grope, as if we had no eyes: Or, we grope, I ſay; as Chap. 49.6. & 55.1. ver. 17. For the latter is, in effect, and meaning, the very ſame with the former. We are as blinde men, who wanting eyes, uſe their hands inſtead of their eyes, Act. 17.27. We are wholly deſtitute of counſel, and can finde no iſſue, out of our calamitous condition. So Deut. 28.29. Job 5.14 & 12.25. Lam. 4.14. Zeph. 1.17.

we ſtumble at noon day, as in the night] Heb. evening or twilight, Prov 7.9. put for the night. Chap. 5.11. for, darkneſs, Jer. 13.16. noon-day is no other with us, then as midnight. See Amos 8.9. a proverbial ſpeech it is, both with Greeks, and Latines. to ſtumble at noon-day ſ ufed here of people, no where ſafe; but ready to miſcarry, and fall into miſchief, even where leaſt danger might be, either expected, or ſuſpected, Joh. 11.9, 10.

we are in deſolate places, as dead men.] The word here uſed is no where elſe read; that is one cauſe that maketh it the more ambiguous. A ſecond, becauſe queſtion is, whether the firſt, or the laſt letter of it, be radical. A third, becauſe of the confuſion of forms, that in found of letters, ſeem neer the ſame. The moſt render it, deſolate. They that ſo do, deduce it from a word, that primarily, and moſt commonly, hath a notion of guilt in it, Yee ſometime of deſolation; as Ezek. 6.6. Hoſ. 13.16. Joel 1.18. becauſe it comes neer in ſound to that, properly ſo ſignifies. Howbeit, thoſe that thus render it, do not all underſtand it alike: For, ſome of them take it ſimply, as it ſounds, that their lands were laid waſte and deſolate, by hoſtile invaſions and incurſions, Chap. 1.7. Others, as an emblem only of a ſad and ruful condition; like people abandoned, unto ſuch places of abode, Pſal 44.19. & 68.6. Jer. 17.6. Others, conceive meant by it, graves, or ſepulcres; to the Chaldee, and divers of the Jewiſh Doctors, becauſe the grave, ſay they, is a place of deſolation: Though ſome go further, conceiving that not graves, or ſepulcres, barely, or ſimply, are hereby meant, ſuch as are newly delved, or built; but ſuch as have been deſerted and abandoned; ſo that the bodies laid in them, are now putrified and diſſolved. And to add ſtrength to this conceit, ſome have recourſe to the ordinary ſignification of the root, and render it, places condemnable, or abominable; fetching hither that of our Saviour, Mat. 23.27. And theſe expound the words, as if it were ſaid, we are even like dead-men, laid up in our graves, and there in a manner clean diſſolved, or dryed up. And ſo indeed is deſpair eſpecially, in Scripture oft deſcribed, deſcribed, Pſal. 22.15. & 88.4, 6. Chap. 26.19. Ezek. 37.11, 12. and the ſtyle of dead men ſeems to intimate ſomewhat like here. And yet we need not ſtrain the other word ſo far: It is enough, that he reſembleth them to dead corples caſt out, and lying unburied on ſome Waſte, as thoſe, Ezek. 37.1, 2. But others render the word, dark, or miſty places: So the old Latine, and ſome of the Jewiſh Writers before. And of dark places, we had mention before, ver. 9. See Pſal. 74.20. & 88.6. But theſe ſhew us not, the word ſhould come ſo to ſignifie, No more do thoſe, who on the other hand would have it to ſignifie the day-light, that it may anſwer to noon day, before-mentioned, as if it were ſaid, like men dead in the day, that have no life, or joy at all, of the day light, as the living have, Eccl. 11.7. becauſe no benefit at all thereby. Which, however they might either of them fit well with the tenour of the Prophets ſpeech; yet until it may be ſhewed, what ground there is, of giving the word ſuch a notion, we have little reaſon to admit. Others, fetch it from a root, that ſignifieth fortreſs: and theſe again run two various ways; the one partly (ſo nefs: and theſe again run two various ways; the one partly (ſo ſome of the Rabbines) underſtand it of perſons: We are as dead men, ſay they, amongſt the fat; that is, thoſe that are alive, in good health and plight: meaning the Gentiles, among whom, in their proſperity, they lived but a kind of liveleſs life, Lev. 26.38, 39 Deut. 28.65——67. Ezek. 36.11. The other party, (and to ſome of ours) expounding it, of places, or eſtates: Their render it, as fatneſſes; (and a word very neer it, is uſed for fatneſs: Gen. 27. 28, 39. and for fat places, Dan 11.24.) as if he had ſaid, a mild abundance of plenty, and outward enjoyments, yet we are as men dead on the neſt; we have no joy or comfort, or ought that we have by reaſon of calamities otherwiſe, Job 20.22. Chap. 24.9. See Eccl. 5.17, 18. 6.2, 3. The firſt, or ſecond; and of thoſe two, the latter, to me, ſeems moſt probable of any.

V. 11. We roar all like bears, and mourn ſore like doves:] All that we can do, is but to lament, and bemoan our calamitous condition, either in an higher ſtrain, by roaring like beaſts, or, in a lower tone, by mourning, as doves. See Pſal. 22.14. & 32.3. & 38. 8. Hoſ. 7.14.

roar] The word is uſed of dogs, Pſal. 59.6, 14. and one very neer it, it not the ſame, of bears, Prov. 28.15. Chap. 5.29. and of men alſo vexed within themſelves, and by outward lamentation, expreſſing their inward indignation, and hearts grief, Prov. 5.11.

mourn ſore] Heb. mourne, mourn. Of the word, ſee Chap. 38.14. like doves] That make a mournful ſound, Chap. 38. 14. Ezek. 7.16.

we look for judgment, but there is none; for ſalvation, but it is far off from us.] See before, on ver 9. Jer. 8.15.

V. 12. For our tranſgreſſions are multiplied before thee;] In thy ſight, provoking thee to wrath and indignation againſt us, Pſal. 51. 4. & 90. 8. Ezr. 9.9. 14. the reaſon, why God, and his ayd, are ſo far from us, ver. 2.

and our ſins teſtifie againſt us,] Heb. anſwer, each of them, againſt us; (for the verb is ſingular, the noun plural, as Chap 26. 10.) as witneſſes produced, one by one, and examined upon interrogatories, do anſwer, and give in evidence, againſt the party, called in queſtion. So Lev. 20.16. See Chap. 3.9. Jer. 14.7.

for our tranſgreſſions are with us:] We cannot poſſibly, either ſhun or, ſhift them off, they lick to cloſe to us, Gen. 4.7. Pſal. 32. 3, 4. & 38.4 & 51.3. Jer. 2.22. 23.

and as for our iniquities we know them.] Heb. and our iniquities we know them: a very uſual reundancy of ſpeech, in that language. See the like, Job 3.8. ch. 8.13. & 15.9. & 28.6. Mat. 21.41. we acknowledge them; we cannot but confeſs them, Pſal. 51.3. Jer. 3.13. It is either a fervent and lively proteſtation of the notorioulneſs of them, as being ſuch as could not be concealed; as Ch. 6.4. or an humble confeſſion and acknowledgment of them, as in the perſon of the Church: 2 Jer. 14. 20. the Prophet not excepting himſelf from that politicke body, wherein, with the reſt, he was a member; but including himſelf among the reſt, though not as guilty of their ſins, yet taking them to heart, as well as his own: and being affected with the ſins that they had been his own. So Moſes, Exod. 34.9. and Daniel, Dan. 9.5, 13.

V. 13. In tranſgreſſing, and lying againſt the Lord, and departing away from our God:] The Prophet purſueth on to a more particular and diſtinct enumeration of thoſe ſinful courſes, that he had pointed at in the lump, ver. 12. The word lying is alſo a gerund in ndo: ſo the reſt, but they are to be expreſſed in the indicative: Otherwiſe, the tenour of the Prophets diſcourſe will not run even: And there is in the phraſe, my room or ſpeech, a defect, eyther to be ſupplyed, we tranſgreſſed, rebell, and deal as diſſemblers, deal diſloyally with the Lord, and departing depart away from our God: that is, we do exceedingly rebell, and deal exceeding diſſemblingly with the Lord, and depart exceedingly from our God. See the like, where the tenour being interrupted, doth more fully continue it) Dan. 9.5. we have ſinned, and done wickedly, and acted wickedly, and rebelled, and departed departed from thy precepts. And again, ver. 11. Yea, all Iſrael have tranſgreſſed thy Law, and turned aside, have turned aſide, they might not hearken to thy voice. The like ſyntax we had before, ver. 4. And here after again, in the latter part of this verſe. I am not ignorant that ſome interpreters, of prime note, whom ours ſeems to follow, retaining the verb infinitive only, carry the text on in a continued frame, from the foregoing verſe, thus; we acknowledge our ſins: to wit, that we tranſpaſſe and lie, &c. And this, in Latine, indeed, runs very ſmooth; But the former is more conſonant to the Hebrew idiom. See alſo the like, Eccl. 9.11. Chap. 43.8. Jer. 6.11. & 14.5. Ezek. 1. 14.

tranſpaſſing] Or, rebelling; as Chap. 1. 3.

lying] Or, dealing diſſemblingly, as Chap. 57. 11. & 63.8.

departing away] Or, renouncing our fellows; as Deut. 17. 17. Hoſ. 5.10. or, in one, widepread, as ver. 14.

from our God] Heb. from after; that is, from walking after him; or, following him; as Pſal. 78.71. Hoſ. 11.2. Amos 7.15 Zeph. 1.6. So, to come after, for, to follow, Mat. 16.24. the Lord, and our God, as Chap. 56. 7.

ſpeaking oppreſſion, and revolt;] Or, talkings, we talk of oppreſſion and apoſtaſie. See Chap 59.9. ver. 4. Deut. 13.5. Jer. 29.32. thoſe things are the main matter of moſt mens talk; apoſtaſie from God, and oppreſſion to their brethren.

conceiving, and uttering, from the heart, words of falſhood] We doe nothing but conceive, or, contrive in our hearts, (for that is the forge wherein all miſchievous matter is framed and from whence it is produced, Chap. 10.12. & 32.6. Mat. 15.19. & 12.34, 35.) and utter, or bring forth from our hearts (for in ſuch things alone are we cordial) words or matters (as) of falſhood, things fraudulent and deceitful. See on ver. 3, 4. There is an elegancy in the words, which our Engliſh cannot expreſs.

V. 14. And judgment is turned away backward, and juſtice ſtandeth afar off:] There is no regard had of right, or wrong, in matters of Judicature: cauſes are carried the contrary way; and juſtice is exiled from Court and Bench, Jer. 3.16. and no marvel then if God deny it unto us, who have no regard to practice it our ſelves, ver. 9. 11.

for] Or, becauſe; as Chap. 48.8. Jer. 3.21.

truth is fallen in the ſtreet,] Truth for want of ſupport, or being truth a faſtin in the ſtreet,] Truth for want of ſupport, or being turn'd aſide in the ſtreet, falleth to the ground, and miſcarrieth over born with falſhood, falleth to the ground, and miſcarrieth in the publicke, where cauſes are heard and tryed, Job 29.7. Pſal. 55. 11.

and equity cannot enter.] As Chap. 33.1. & 24.10. or, cannot go or paſs, as Gen. 10. 19, 30. it cannot find entrance, being ſhut out by violence, and not ſuffered to come in: Or, if it be, for fathion ſake, admitted to ſome hearing, yet it is not able to paſs, or obtain any good iſſue: the ſame in ſubſtance with the former. See Hab. 1.4.

V. 15. Yea, truth faileth:] Heb. And as Chap. 55.1. All regard of truth, either in publicke, or private, is gone, Hoſ. 4.1.

and he that departeth from evil maketh himſelf a prey] He that will not do as others, maketh himſelf a prey to others: He cannot be well in a world where no wicked: a man gaineth nothing, by living ſafe, that will not be wicked: a man ſhall paſſe through, by living harmleſly, but to be made a prey and ſpoil to wicked ones, Pſal. 38. 20. Hab. 1.13. 1 Joh. 3.12. So is the word uſed, Pſal. 76.5. Some of the Jewiſh Criticks, whom alſo ſome of our great ones follow, render it, is accounted a mad man, or, cauſeth himſelfe to be counted a mad man: as was Eliſhaes miniſter, 2 King. 9.11. and as the wicked are ſaid to have deemed the dear, ver. Wiſdom 5.4. but they produce no cleer place, where the word is ſo uſed; for that, Job 12. 17. is another word, and that Mic. 1.8. as the other alſo there, of 17. is another word, and that Mic. 1.8. as the other alſo there, of another notion, Nor is it needful here to fly to any uncouth phraſe, in that language; as to ſay, a man deſpoiled, to wit, of his wits; or, a mad-man, (though in Latine the form be not unuſuall; but for, a mad-man, (though in Latine the form be not unuſuall; but for, a mad-man, (though in Latine the form be not unuſuall; but with them, then full) when the text will well admit the word in its ordinary notion.

And the Lord ſaw it, and it diſpleaſed him, that there was no judgment.] Or, And this, or thoſe things, the Lord ſeeth; and it is diſpleaſing to him (Heb. it was, or, is evill in his eyes; as 2 Sam. 11. 27.) that there is no judgment: This it is, that inceenſeth Gods wrath ſo againſt us, Pſal. 10.14. Lam. 3.36.

V. 16. And he ſaw that there was no man, and wondered that there was no interceſſor: Or, but intercedes, as Job 36.32. none that would ſtand up, and endeavour to ſet things in better order, by ſpeaking, and beſtiring himſelf in the behalf of truth and right, ver. 4. Chap 63.5. So rather, then, as ſome other, following the vers. Chap 63.5. So rather, then, as ſome other, following the vers. beſides, none to intercede with God, in behalf of his people, Chap. 6.11, 12. Ezr. 13.5. & 22.30. Some ſupply here from the former verſe, it diſpleaſed him, for that there was no man; that is, no helper, as Chap. 63.5. Or, no Interpoſer, as afterward, which he wondered to behold.

wondered] Not that God wondereth (to ſpeak properly) for nought: but is ſo ſpoken in an humane ſtrain, to ſhew the ſtrangeneſs of the thing; that ſo great, grievous, and general a corruption, ſhould be found among thoſe that were Gods own peculia on, ſhould be found among thoſe that were Gods own peculia people having had, from time to time, ſuch conſtant courſes taken with them, for the better information, and inſtitution of them, whi h other Nations abroad had not. Deut. 4.7, 8. Pſal. 147. 19, 20. And hence thereto, the Apoſtle concludeth the univerſall depravation of mankind, in his natural condition: becauſe it was found to ſtream, and in ſuch extremity, to common alſo, even among thoſe that had the beſt meanes, to make them better. Rom. 3. 9-19. And here read the words, in a continued traine, as they ſtand in the preſent, or the future. Seeing God the more part er,when God shall see that there is none(that will ſtir hand,or tongue, to help) and he wondereth, or ſhall wonder, that none interpoſeth, his arm ſhall ſave for him, and his righteouſneſs it ſhall ſuſtain him; as foretelling, what God, at length, will do, for the relief, and deliverance, of his people, when all humane helps fail them. The like manner of ſyntax, ſee Chap.30.20. and 35.4. and 37.9,36& 44. 14 & 53.2. and the reading is very probable.

the arm ſo much brought ſalvation unto him.] Heb. and his arm ſaved him, or, ſhall ſave him, or ſave for him.Either his own power did ſuſtain, and ſave his people, Chap.51.5. the pious, that were a prey to the reſt, ver.15. or, he did the work alone himſelf, without the aſſiſtance of any other, or uſe of other means. See Chap.63. 13,15. arm, for, power; as Chap.53.1. and, to ſave, for, to bring ſalvation to one; or, to work ſalvation, that is, deliverance,for one, Jer.11.12. Ezek.44.22. and Pſal.98.1. his right hand. and his holy arm, hath ſaved him,or,ſaved for him; (and the like form is, Judg. 7.2. Pſal.44.3.) which our verſion there rendreth, hath gotten him the victory: but it may well be here rendred; and ſo Chap.63.5. his arm avenged him, or took vengeance for him; or, it ſhall avenge him, or, take vengeance for him; according to that, ver.18 for it is aright rendred, 1 Sam.25.26,33. from ſaving for thy ſelf; that is, from avenging thy ſelf, (as our verſion hath it) or, from taking vengeance for thy ſelf, with thine own hand. For as for that which a learned man obſerveth, that the word of ſaving, in this ſyntax, ſignifies to help; alledging to that purpoſe, Deut.22.27. & Prov.20.22. it is not general; and ſome of thoſe places pointed to, if not thoſe two alſo ſeem to go further. But let it be conſidered, whether this to, him, or, to him, be not here a meer elegant redundancy; as the like alſo, Ch.40.10. his arm brought him ſalvation, that is, his arm brought ſalvation. See the like, Chap.31.8. he ſhall flee him,or,he ſhall flee, as alſo Hoſh 8.3. Amos 2.15.

and his righteouſneſs it ſuſtained him.] By righteouſneſs, ſome underſtand his mercy and goodneſs, to his poor oppreſſed ones, Chap. 54.14 & 56.1. But I conceive rather, that by it, is underſtood the juſtice, that he will do for them, upon their oppreſſors; becauſe what is here termed his righteouſneſs, is the ſame called, his wrath, Ch.63.5. All this, ſome expound of ſpiritual deliverance by Chriſt. Others, whom I rather concur with, of temporal, from ver. 16-19 of ſpiritual, ver.20,21.

V.17. For he put on righteouſneſs, as a breaſt-plate, and an helmet of ſalvation upon his head.] The Prophet here deſcribes God, as a man of arms, putting on his armour, and fitting himſelf for the performance of ſome notable exploit. The meaning is, that God will ſo conſpicuouſly ſhew his almighty power, juſtice, regard of his own glory, and tender affection to the welfare of his people,in the deliverance of them, and in the deſtruction of their enemies that they ſhould as evidently appear, and be ſeen in them as goodly rayment, or gliſtering armour, is on the back of one that weareth it, Pſal.93.1. & 94.1. & 98 2.

For] Heb. And: and ſo Chap.51.15. & 53.2. yet it may well enough ſtand in his native ſenſe here.

he put on] Or, he will put on.

righteouſneſs as a breſt-plate] So Eph.6.14. Yet ſee here,ver.16. an helmet of ſalvation] Eph 6.17. 1 Theſſ.5.8. though theſe are to be underſtood far other wiſe of God, then of us; yet unto theſe terms the Apoſtle ſeems to allude there.

*and he put on the garments of vengeance*for a clothing, and was clad with zeal as a cloak] Or, he will, I ſay (as Chap.58.10. v.10.) will put on; and, will cloath himſelf. See before. Of the word here rendred, cloak, ſee on Chap.61 10.

V.18. According to their deeds, accordingly he will repay fury to his adverſaries, recompence to his enemies] Heb. According to retributions, according to them, will he repay wrath to his adverſaries, &c. retributions, for, deeds, or defects: as Judg.9.16. 2 Chr.32 25.and a defect of the pronoun: as Chap.5.28. He will take vengeance upon the enemies of his people, for all the wrongs that they have done unto them. See chap.34.8 & 63.6. The like trajection to this here, is obſerved, Chap 52.6. Howbeit, the word may be taken in its proper ſenſe, and the text thus rendred, As in retributions, (or,in way of large retribution. ſee of ſuch plurals, on ver.9. Chap.58.11.) as in ſuch, I ſay. (the repetition maketh the ſentence more vigorous, as Chap 8.13. & 48.6.) he will repay, &c. the like uſe of the particle, ſee Pſal.119.14. Or, as the Jewiſh Doctors expound it, and the points ſeem to favour it: As in retributions (he hath done formerly) he hath repaid, (to wit, unto Pharaoh, and others the enemies of his people)ſo in retribution he will now again repay, I ſay, he will render wrath to his adverſaries, retribution to his enemies. retribution to the Iſlands: or, referring the latter verb, as in the text it lyeth, to the laſt, wrath to his adverſaries, retribution to his enemies, reward unto the Iſlands he will repay. Somewhat is ſupplyed in the firſt member from the ſecond; in the ſecond from the firſt; as Pſalm 1.6. Chap.13.13. & 30.17. & 60.13,19. and this ſeems to be the genuine both ſenſe and ſyntax of the place.

to the Iſlands he will repay recompence] To thoſe of them, that live in divers Countries, either maritime parts, or beyond the ſeas. See Chap.41. & 49 1. & 66.6.

V.19. So ſhall they fear the name of the Lord, from the weſt, and his glory from the riſing of the Sun] Heb. And (as Chap. 41.7.) or, Then (as Chap.36.3.) ſhall they fear the name of the Lord, that is, the name of the Lord ſhall be feared: as Chap.57.14. from the evening coaſt: as Chap.45.6. Gods name, and his glory, by occaſion of this his marvellous work, in the deliverance of his people and in executing of vengeance upon their oppreſſors,ſhall make him renowned thorowout the whole world. See the like expreſſions, Pſal.113.3. Mal.1.11.

when the enemy ſhall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord ſhall lift up a ſtandard againſt him] This paſſage is exceedingly vexed and tortured by variety of enforced ſtrains: the moſt whereof therefore forbearing to mention, I ſhall pitch upon thoſe only, derſtand the words of a violent irruption made by the enemies, or adverſaries of Gods people, in, or upon them, together with Gods oppoſition made againſt them, and defeating of them. To which purpoſe maketh that, which our verſion hath admitted into the text, and is by many Authors approved; when the enemy, or adverſary, (as the word is moſt commonly rendred, and ſo was, ver.18.)ſhall come in like a flood, (as foreign forces are not unuſually in Scripture faid to do, Chap 18.2.7. Jer.46.7,8. Amos 8.8. & 9.5. implyed, that the enemies force and fury ſhould be great, and the danger from them no leſs grievous. See Chap.8.7,8. Pſal.124.4. Rev.12.15.) the Spirit of the Lord ſhall lift up a ſtandard againſt him; that is, ſhall raiſe, or lead forces againſt them; as the word ſeems ſometime to import, Pſal.60.5. Chap.10.18. or, the Spirit of the Lord ſhall flie, or, run upon, or againſt, him: as if it were ſaid, they ſhall come ruſhing in, as with a ſtrong torrent. Chap 17.12. but the Spirit of God, as a ſtiff gale of wind, ſhall run, or ruſh upon them, to cauſe them to recoil; as alluding to that, Exod.14. 20. or, becauſe doubt is, not without juſt cauſe, made, whether the verb of fleeing, be ever ſo uſed; for the word of flying, Chap.14.11. is of a far diverſe notion. Some other therefore, not ſwerving much in ſenſe from the former, render this latter clauſe, as our margin alſo exhibites, the Spirit of the Lord ſhall put him to flight; deeming the particle here (as Exod.7.20. Chap.53.12. Lam.1.17.) ſuperfluous: or, ſupplying the word, blowing, and ſo giving it, at full; the Spirit of the Lord ſhall by blowing againſt him, make him to flee, or, put him to flight; as if he had ſaid, the Spirit of the Lord ſhall blow him to flight. (See of ſuch kind of forms, on Chap.38.17. & 57.8.) God with a blaſt of his breath only, ſhall blow him away, and cauſe him to flee; not unlike that. Zach.4.6. and this ſeiteth very fitly, both with the ſtory, and terms, uſed, of Sennacheribs, both irruption into the land of Judah, Chap.8.7,8. & 17.12,13. & 36.1.and the defeat there given him. Chap.37.7.36. together with his ſudden, and ſhameful, flight thereupon, Chap.17. 13. & 31.8,9. & 37.37. and, albeit, the word of fleeing, be in another ſort uſed for, to put to flight, or, to cauſe to flee, Exod.9.20. Deut.32.2. not in this; yet that the word is in this form, regular for that notion, from the root, that ſignifieth to flee, neither is, not can be, denyed: and the ſame root is in the ſame notion found uſed in both forms. But ſome underſtand this whole paſſage, as ſpoken all of one and the ſame perſon: and of theſe, ſome would have it as a deſcription of the violent irruption, only of the adverſary, to this purpoſe rendring the text, when he ſhall come like a violent river, or, a forcible ſtream, which the Spirit of the Lord ſhall drive; that is, when the enemy ſhall break in like a river, that being on either ſide hemmed in with banks, runs in that regard, more ſwiftly, or having been ſtuatned, in ſome place, and getting liberty when it ſhall be driven forward with a mighty wind; for ſo may the Spirit,or wind of God, be taken for a mighty ſtrong, or ſtiff gale of wind: as, hills of God, Pſal.36.6. and trees of God, Pſal.104.16. and, a ſleep of God, 1 Sam 26.12. for, deep hills, tall trees; deep ſleep: or it may have reference to ſome act, or inſtinct of God, putting them on upon the ſervice to their own ruine. See Chap.8.7. Ezek.38.4. Mic.4.12. Others, laſtly, expound it wholly of God himſelf, coming in to the reſcue, and deliverance of his people, and to the defeat of the adverſe party, thus rendring it; when he ſhall come like a ſtrait river, which the wind of God driveth; that is,when God himſelf, or, an army raiſed by him, ſhall come againſt his enemies, before-mentioned, ver.18. like a ſtrong torrent driven on forces, ſent by God, againſt Babylon, Chap.13.3,17. & 43.14. & 45.1.6. Jer.51.42. So ſome other, in the ſpiritual application of it, ſuppoſe it to have ſome reference to the gale of wind, that came ruſhing in upon the Apoſtles, and filled the whole houſe, wherein they were, at the Feaſt of Pentecoſt, Act.2.2. And ſo paſs by all other, a learned man of ſpecial note, underſtanding it, of Gods coming in, and by Chriſt, to propagate his Church, and carry on the Goſpel, thorowout the whole world: as Malach. 1.11. Acts 1.8. thus rendreth it; For he ſhall come like a ſtrait river, the Spirit of the Lord liftiaſ him up, for an eaſign: which he further thus explaineth; He, that is, the Lord, or, the name of the Lord, ſupplyed from the words foregoing, ſhall come with much ſwiftneſs, and great force, in a ſhort ſpace of time, running thorow the whole world, and bearing all down before him, that might hinder his free paſſage; the Spirit of God, in the Miniſtery of the Apoſtles, and Evangeliſts therewith inſpired, lifting up, and bearing before him, Chriſt, or the name of Chriſt, (Acts 9.15. Gal.3.1.) as an an enſign, for the faithful to reſort unto, and to follow. So is an enſign, for the name of God ſaid to be, as an enſign to his, Exod. 17. 15. Pſal.20.5. & 60.4. He the text be underſtood of temporal deliverance primarily, (as to me, it ſeemeth, with the moſt) I ſhould go with the firſt, taking the later term in a notion of flight: if of ſpiritual, wholly. I ſhould concur with this laſt.

V. 20. And the Redeemer ſhall come to Zion] This ſome underſtand of the Angel, ſent to free Jeruſalem, from the fear of Sennacheribs Army. chap.37.36. Others, of Cyrus, ſent to Babylon, to ſet free Sions Citizens, there in captivity detained, chap.43.14. & 48.13. Yet with,not denying them to have reference unto Chriſt: of whom others directly, and in the firſt place expound them; among whom alſo, ſome of the ancienter Jewiſh Doctors, and unto whom the Apoſtle himſelf applyeth them, Rom.11.26. nor is it a thing unuſual, with this Evangelical Prophet, to ſlip from temporal deliverances; in a cloſe way, unto ſpiritual, whereof thoſe were types; and to cloſe up the Prophecies of the one, with the promiſes of the other.

the Redeemer.] Deliverer, Rom.11.26. the word properly ſignifieth ſuch an one, as in regard of propinquity, or nearneſs of kindred, had a right to redeem a mortgage, or the like engagement of land,or livelihood. Levit. 25.25,26. or to proſecute the Law a gainſt a murtherer, Num.35.19,24. but is uſed alſo more largely, for any deliverer,out of thraldom,or avenger of wrong in general, Prov.23.11. Jer.50.34.

to Zion] To the Sionites, the people of God, the Citizens of Sion. See chap.1.27. it is,out of Zion, Rom.11.26. which ſeemeth to make ſome difference: and ſome think the Apoſtle alleged it to purpoſe, to apply it unto the times of which he was then treating, the Prophet ſpeaking of the time, wherein Chriſt was firſt exhibited unto that people; and ſaid therefore to come unto them, Acts 3.26. the Apoſtle, of a ſecond viſit, that Chriſt ſhould afford that people, in thoſe latter days, towards the worlds end, as coming now out of the new Sion, the Church of the Gentiles, to them. Heb.12.23.Acts 3.20. which things, although they be Orthodox, and found, yet I ſuppoſe rather, that the Apoſtle retained the ancient Greek Verſion, commonly received in his time, having nothing material to croſs that in ought, for which he alledged it, nor did agreeing from truth. If it be objected, that the Greek Copies now have not in from, but ἕνεκα, for; and that therefore the Apoſtles text ought to be read. I anſwer, That it appeareth by Jerom; that the Greek Verſion was anciently,as the Apoſtle now reciteth it, both in this branch, and in the next.

and unto them that turn from tranſgreſſion in Jacob, ſaith the Lord] Or, even unto them,or, unto them, if ſo, as chap. 56.5,7. & 58.10. ver.10,17. for this is added onely by way of explication, to ſhew, who of, or in, Sion alone they are, that ſhall have ſhare in,and benefit by, this deliverance; to wit,thoſe alone that turn from their ſins, Deut.30.2,3. 2 Chro.6. 37-39.& 7.14. & 15. 4. for ſuch indeed are the true Citizens of Sion, Eph.2.19.the right Jacob, Pſal. 24.4,6.the ſincere Iſrael, Joh.1.47. the Iſrael of God, Gal. 6.16. The Apoſtle readeth it, and he ſhall turn away ungodlineſs from Jacob: whereby it appeareth that he took the Greek, as it was commonly then read, both readings holding out undoubted truth: none having intereſt in him,but thoſe that turn from their ſins; nor any turning from their ſins,but by his help. See Acts 3.26.

V. 21. As for me, This is my Covenant with them, ſaith the Lord] As for me, Heb. And 1 as 1 Chr.38.2. Chap.66.18. This is,or ſhall be,my covenant with them: the words which the Apoſtle addeth, when I ſhall take away their ſins, Rom.11.27. ſeem to be taken, either, as ſome, from Jer.31.34. where the ſame covenant is, in effect and ſubſtance alſo, related; or,as others from another place of this Prophecy, chap.27.9. or chap 4.4 in either of which places, the effect of them is found. What covenant ſhould be here intended, is the queſtioned. Some would have it, to be the former promiſe of the Deliverer to be ſent unto them. Others, concerning the Word, and Spirit, to be continued in Sion: and to this latter, I ſuppoſe the words do more ſpecially relate: becauſe the mention of the covenant renewed,cometh in ſtill,elſewhere, after the redemption, and return, Jer.31.21,22,33,34. & 32.37-42. & 50.4,5. Ezek. 36.24-27.
